Bohn Hall: Forty residents were burglarized.

College facility bill passed

(TRENTON)--Legislation that allocates bond-issue funds for development, construction, and improvements of classroom equipment and facilities at both public and private colleges across the state was approved yesterday by the General Assembly.

Two of the measures (A-3943 and A-3944), are sponsored by Assemblymen William J. Pascrell (D-Passaic/Bergen) and Joseph A. Mecca (D-Passaic/Essex). A third (A-4077), is sponsored by Assemblyman Bernard F. Kenny (D-Hudson).

"The proper up-keep of equipment and facilities at the colleges of this state is a priority issue," said Pascrell. "Without this up-keep, the quality of education at these institutions will gradually decline. We need to insure that doesn't happen."

"In order for these schools to meet the needs of the future, facilities must be built for the many new fields that are growing by leaps and bounds," said Mecca. "Without growth in both established and newer fields, the education process stagnates. These funds will help keep higher education in New Jersey flourishing."

New Jersey's ability to stay on the cutting edge of new technology will greatly affect our state's economic well-being as we approach the 21st century," said Kenny.

All three measures appropriate funds from the Jobs, Education and Competitiveness Bond Act, which was approved by New Jersey voters in 1988, to the Department of Higher Education.

The first measure (A-3943), allocates $142,502,000 for projects at public universities and private institutions.

Pascrell said that the schools receiving aid include William Paterson College, Montclair State College, Rutgers, the State University, the University of Medicine and Dentistry of N.J., Monmouth College, Bloomfield College, Rider College, the New Jersey Institute of Technology, Stevens Institute of Technology, Caldwell College, and the Council of Higher Education in Newark.

The second measure (A-3944), allocates $22,322,000 for projects at state and county colleges.

State colleges defend Student Rights Bill

By Renee McDonnell
Staff Writer

A student rights bill that would give full control of the student government fees to the SGA's of all N.J. state colleges and universities was introduced to the higher education committees of the N.J. State Assembly and Senate.

Other functions of the Student Rights bill would be to provide a way for student governments to raise and lower their fees, allow them to allocate funds to a statewide student organization and give students the right to vote for non-profit corporations onto the term bill in the form of a "waivable fee."

The bill is sponsored by Senate majority leader John Dalton and Assem blyanmen Joseph Doria.

To help lobby the bill, the N.J. Student Rights Coalition, the statewide students organization that lobbied Trenton on Nov. 9, sends representatives from all of the state schools to Trenton every Monday and Thursday to support the bill. On Monday, December 3, MSC was at Trenton. The entire coalition will be in Trenton on Thursday, Dec. 6. The Student Rights Coalition is hoping that the bill will be passed before February.

Opposition towards the bill has been met by college boards and administrators who represent the business and industry sector.

Suso said that such opposition exists because students may want to, for example, set up a public interest group concerned with environmental issues that may restrict business.

Ramapo College also opposes the bill. Suso feels this is due to a "misunderstanding" of the bill.

Suso feels that the bill is "asking for more than what students deserve...The method is the carrier with her from h...it should be the decision of the students as to how that money is spent and how much they have to spend."

Suso also stated that the student legislators do not see any "big" flaws in the purpose of the bill but did mention that the bill can be amended anytime before it is passed.

"To alleviate panic, you should prepare thoroughly for an interview," Thompson said. Preparing means outlining a set of possible questions and role-playing an interview with someone.

Both being late for an interview and being too early were also considered bad moves. A job candidate should be about 10 or 15 minutes early, Thompson said.

Thompson went on to list things that employers look for. They included: intelligence, high energy level, good grades, accomplishments, personality, skills, dress and ability to work with a team.

Also in attendance were Prof. McCauley and Prof. Flannagan who both offered insight into the discussion. When asked how to handle the question of salary, Flanagan said, "What am I going to be paid? should not be asked if it is not factual...If you are asked that question, answer with a question, what...

…”If you don’t get a job, ask why you didn’t. The response may not be true. "Try to learn from experience," Thompson said.

Thompson has taught English at several junior high schools and community colleges. She has more than 15 years experience in the business world.

Campus Police Report:

Another two cars stolen

By William C. Hendrixson
Staff Writer

■Stolen Cars:

Changes in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe

By Steve Sukala
Assignment Editor

Dr. Paul Pastor of the History Department spoke on “Changes in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe” last Thursday afternoon in Kops Lounge of Russ Hall, sponsored by Phi Alpha Theta, the history honors fraternity.

Pastor said that when Gorbachev took control of the Soviet Union’s Communist Party in 1985 after a power struggle, he realized the need for extensive changes. “Gorbachev has to destroy the party in order to bring about changes,” Pastor said.

The East European countries had hoped for a new Marshall Plan from the United States and the Western European countries after the revolutionary changes in their countries, but “this year reality set in,” Pastor said, citing the “inability of the West to respond to Eastern Europe’s economic collapse.”

Pastor said that with Kruschev’s rise to power, demands for sovereignty in Eastern European countries were increasing. Several times in the 1950’s and 60’s, Soviet troops sent in to these countries to stop new governments which were straying from Soviet-style communism. Pastor cited the example of Czechoslovakia in 1968 which was invaded since a multi-party system could not be allowed in Eastern Europe.

He led into World War II with the devastation that fell to the Soviet Union when Hitler invaded. Pastor said that Stalin made a major miscalculation in the non-aggression pact which Germany and the Soviet Union had formed by thinking that he would not have to fight Germany.

Pastor said that the Soviet Union established communist control over the Eastern European countries for two reasons which were important to Stalin. The first was to create a defensive field around the Soviet Union so that no future wars would devastate the country like World War II had.

Second was the economic power which Stalin believed these countries would provide the Soviet Union. By 1953, after a rapid drive for industrialization, Pastor said that the labor stage of industrialization in the Soviet Union was over, and capital, which was unavailable to them, was needed.

Pastor said that with Kruschev’s rise to power, demands for sovereignty in Eastern European countries were increasing. Several times in the 1950’s and 60’s, Soviet troops sent in to these countries to stop new governments which were straying from Soviet-style communism. Pastor cited the example of Czechoslovakia in 1968 which was invaded since a multi-party system could not be allowed in Eastern Europe.

He said that the communist system in Eastern Europe was collapsing by the end of the 1960’s, and it was only saved by the oil crisis created by the Arab countries in the early 70’s. He said this allowed the sale of the Soviet Union’s oil resources for higher prices, which temporarily bolstered the economy.

In the 1980’s, Eastern European countries had gathered a large debt due to irresponsible spending, largely on items and programs which were of temporary benefit only.

More Greeks denied due to restructuring

By Chris Marmo
Correspondent

A bill involving a controversial Class III charter for Sigma Tau Nu Sorority and emergency legislation dealing with a $500 donation by the SGA to the United Greek Coalition (UGC) to sponsor a party for sick children came up for debate at this week’s meeting.

After an extensive debate, Sigma Tau Nu Sorority was denied a Class III charter. The Greek Council is currently being re-structured, and a bill is in legislation that would restrict the chartering of any new greek organization until the second week in Feb. Sigma Tau Nu Sorority was denied a Class III charter. The Greek Council is currently being re-structured, and a bill is in legislation that would restrict the chartering of any new greek organization until the second week in Feb.

Some legislators argued on the legality of denying a charter on the basis of a bill that hasn’t been passed yet. Others said that the charter was denied because it was simply a bad time to give any charters because the Greek Council is disorganized at this moment.

SIGMA TAU NU will come up for charter next semester and, according to a majority of legislators, have a good chance of being approved.

After another long debate, the SGA passed a bill to donate $500 to the UGC to co-sponsor a party for sick children at St. Joseph Hospital in Paterson on Saturday, Dec. 15, at 10 a.m. The UGC can’t handle such a financial burden on its own and the party is a little over one week away. The SGA saw it fit to make this bill into emergency legislation.

The $500 is to be used to set up the party and buy toys for the children. The party will run until 1 p.m. A bill involving SGA legislative appropriation was also passed this week.

Welcome to our Walls!
A Class IV of SGA
Ask Mr. BUYBACK

Q. How does the College Store decide if they want my text?
A. The first question the bookstore asks is whether the book has been ordered for the next semester. If yes, then we examine how many copies are needed versus how many we have on hand. If additional copies are needed we place the title on our buyback list.

Q. Do I get more money selling my books at the College Store as opposed to Blanton Hall?
A. No, the money you receive will be exactly the same. We offer two locations to make it easier and less time consuming for you to sell your books.

Q. Will the College Store buy back workbooks, study guides and paperbacks?
A. Yes. Our list is inclusive of all types of books used on campus. There are some texts, however, that are designed for one-time use and cannot be resold.

Q. How much can I sell my textbooks for?
A. The College Store will pay 50% of the new book price on the current edition textbooks if a) we have received a book order from the faculty for your book for the upcoming semester, and b) if we need your books to meet course enrollment figures. (most current edition textbooks NOT being used for the upcoming semester will be purchased by a wholesale company at between 14-20%. These are not resold on campus)

Q. Can the books that I have highlighted be resold?
A. Generally, texts which have been high-lighted can be sold back to the store for 50% or at wholesale, assuming they have market value. Workbooks and study guides meet different guidelines. If the store requires the book, we will be more tolerant of the amount of writing, etc. Wholesalers require this type of book to be almost mark-free.

Q. How often do new editions of textbooks come out?
A. On the average new editions are released every 3 to 5 years in order to keep current with current events and information. When a new edition is released the old edition has no market value to either the bookstore or the wholesaler.

Q. Why is wholesale value so low on paperbacks?
A. First of all, the value of a book is determined based on supply and demand. Secondly, the way paperbacks are constructed places the wholesaler at greater risk that the book may be destroyed in shipping or in handling at the warehouse. Most paperbacks were made to be used by one person.

Q. How come my friend got half price on his books and I only got wholesale?
A. Unfortunately, the College Store can only pay 50% up to the quantity of needed for the upcoming semester. Once the store has reached the quantity needed, we then pay wholesale price, if any, for additional texts. Texts purchased wholesale are sent off campus at the end of each buyback.

BUYBACK Bonus Bucks:
Every time you bring in your textbooks for sale you are eligible to earn Bonus Bucks. You will receive one bonus buck for every fifteen dollars you get for your textbooks. For example, if you sell your books for $32, you will also receive 2 Bonus Bucks.

Bonus Bucks can be used as cash to make purchases in the College Store from December 10, 1990 to December 22, 1990. (Certain restrictions apply)

BUYBACK Bonus Bucks:

Locations, Dates and Times

The College Bookstore: Monday through Thursday, December 10-20 - 8:30am to 7:30pm
Friday, December 21 - 8:30am to 4:00pm

Blanton Hall Atrium: Tuesday through Thursday, December 18-20 - 10am to 7pm

NOTE: A current Photo ID is required for textbook buyback
Bye.

The students feel that someone who works in the building had some part in the burglaries. "It's got to be an inside job," said Bohn resident Chris Pontrelli. "It's scary," Hutchinson said. "They have the keys to every room."

Redmon, who worked the last shift before leaving for the holiday, said at 6 p.m. everyone was out of the building or down in the lounge waiting for their ride, meanwhile the R.A.'s and assistant managers did a floor sweep. After this, Cantrell did a sweep at 10 p.m. When she left, Campus Police did a sweep of the entire building.

"The building was closed," Redmon said. "Why are they (maintenance) there if we are not? When doors were chained they should not have been unchained until Sunday."

The students feel that no one should be in their rooms when they are not present. "Our problems are not that important for them to come when we are not here," Orth said. "There is no reason, if they are on duty from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., for them to be here when no one else is here. Besides, during those hours someone will probably be home. They just don't need a key."

Another Bohn resident said, "They shouldn't be in the building. They have free access to roam. I never thought it was right for repairmen to make repairs when we're not present. Maintenance holds on to the keys all day and they don't need a key."

Coleman-Carter is advising students that if they wish to be home for repairs, just request it. "In wake of everything, if students are uncomfortable with the policy, they can indicate it on their Work Order Form. However, it may cause delays in things being repaired."

Students can file what was missing on their parents Home Ownership Insurance Policy, Coleman-Carter said. However, residents are upset at the idea of their parents paying for the incident. "It aggravates me that home ownership insurance covers anything over $250, but the college says we're not getting anything back because we weren't locked up properly," Redmon said.

A Bohn resident said, "What's the purpose of an insurance policy? Our belongings should be secure. And besides, they took so much stuff that on our parents insurance policy we will only receive a percentage." Another said, "Why should we pay for it twice."

With Christmas coming, students are afraid as to what might happen. As one student put it, "Over Christmas break are they going to bring an 18-foot moving truck and just back the whole place out?" Consequently, Coleman-Carter urges students to take everything with them. "We are encouraging students to take all valuables home over Christmas break," she said.

"Reimbursement and compensation will be reviewed following the results of the investigation. We're committed to solving this and trying to ascertain what persons are responsible. It will take time," said Coleman-Carter.

If you have any information that might help, please contact campus police at 893-5222, or the office of Coleman-Carter at 893-5252.

Mecca said that the schools receiving aid under the second measure include Camden County College, Glassboro State College, Trenton State College, Salem Community College, and Mercer County Community College.

The measure sponsored by Assemblyman Kenny (A-4077), allocates $35,150,000 in bond-issue funds to the New Jersey Commission on Science and Technology to build and equip four advanced technology centers in the state.

Kenny reports that the centers to be funded are an agricultural molecular biology center at Cook College, the Agricultural Experiment Station at Centerton of Rutgers, a photonics and opto-electronic center at Princeton University, and a Center for Surface Engineered Materials sponsored by the Consortium for Surface Processing at the Stevens Institute of Technology.

"With continued support, New Jersey's technology centers may gain the national recognition that places such as Research Triangle in North Carolina enjoy," said Kenny.

"New buildings, computer facilities, and well-kept libraries are essential elements of competitive colleges," said Pascrell. "Without them, New Jersey colleges are put at a disadvantage."

"The bond issue was approved under the philosophy that quality education leads to quality jobs and a competitive edge for New Jersey," said Mecca. "Our legislation follows through on that idea."

The measures now move to the Senate for further consideration.

The vote for each bill was as follows:

A-3943 71 to 2, A-3944 70 to 2, and A-4077 69 to 1.

“AFT wins vote; talks resume”

The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) won the right to act as the collective bargaining agent for MSC faculty during a two-day voting session. The NJ Education Association had challenged the AFT for control, but lost miserably. Faculty felt the AFT better represented not only their needs at the bargaining table, but also offered programs, workshops, and seminars.

“A Lecture reveals media tricks”

Dr. Wilson Bryan Key, a former North Western Ontario University professor and author of Subliminal Seduction, Sexploitation, and Clamplate Orgy, gave a lecture on media manipulation—inserting subliminal details into certain ads. He showed several examples, including an ad for Johnny Walker Red which consisted only of a glass filled with ice cubes; Key later pointed out the images hidden in the glass—skulls, distorted faces, and ravens—are seen by alcoholics undergoing withdrawal and appeal to a “death wish” of the subconscious.

“Assessment exam is proposed alternative to ‘gate-way’ test”

The controversy continued as to whether undergraduates would be forced to take the so-called “gate-way” test prior to their junior year. The proposed assessment exam would evaluate teaching skills and curriculum rather than determine whether or not students could proceed into their junior year, and was apparently favored by the faculty.

Student comedian, 19, hosts CLUB’s Christmas Comedy Show

By Valerie Kalfin

Outlook Editor

Nineteen-year-old Rob Magnotti has been to a lot of clubs in the area, but he never gets caught for being underage.

That’s because when he’s been to Rascal’s, Grampa’s (in Long Island), the Comedy Loft, and other clubs in NY, he hasn’t been a customer. He’s been performing.

Monday night, Magnotti, a sophomore, plans to bring his routine of stand-up comedy and impressions to Memorial Auditorium where he will host CLUB’s Christmas Comedy Show. The show will feature John Mulrooney of Comic Strip Live and Mick Luzinski.

It’s a unique booking for someone who first did stand-up comedy in front of a college audience here at MSC, and was invited to host the Christmas show while standing in the campus bookstore by Chuck Juszczak, CLUB’s comedy chairperson.

“It started when I was a kid,” he says of his interest in comedy. “I was always hyper, a jokester. I used to mimic family members, and movies that I saw.”

Then in 1983, he saw Eddie Murphy’s Delirious on Home Box Office, and was hooked. “I watched him and watched him,” he says. “I tried to be like him a lot of times. I used to do his act in school. In high school, I got into acting and did some stand-up in the classroom. That’s when I started creating my own type of humor.”

His own type of humor included doing impressions, something which “takes work” on his part, but gets across easily to the audience. “If they’re (people he impersonates) in the public eye, it’s not that hard. The bridge is already there,” he says. His repertoire includes all different kinds of dialects, Tom Carvel, Andrew Dice Clay, and Bart Simpson. “I try to watch The Simpsons every night to see what else I can pick up about Bart’s character.”

Magnotti, who also plays the drums as a hobby and whose brother, Al, is a senior here, works through the Top Drawer Entertainment agency in NY, and was discovered by his agent here last summer.

It all started in 1988 after a Chinese dinner with his aunt and his father in West Orange, when he told his aunt that he wanted to be a comedian. He did impressions throughout the meal, including ordering dinner as the Godfather, going to the men’s room as Archie Bunker, and coming back as Bunker’s wife, Edith. "After dinner, my dad said, 'Let's go to Rascal's,'" which was three blocks away. When we got there, he said, 'I have a young comedian here. Who would he talk to to get started?' They gave us a business card that read 'Tony Camacho.'

"A couple days later, I called the agency (Top Drawer). I said, 'This is Rob Magnotti.' They said, 'Who?' I started asking questions about the business, and they asked me for a tape, pictures...I didn't know about any of that stuff. I was only 17."’

Once Magnotti knew what he needed to get started, he began developing an act. Last October marked his first performance at MSC during an "Open Mic Night" sponsored by Class One Concerts.

“That was the first thing I did on campus in front of college kids,” he says.

Last spring, Chuck Fiener of the Office of Student Activities invited him to perform at the student orientation comedy show in the summer for a 10-minute spot. “He said a big agent might be there, but when I went on stage, I forgot all about that. About a minute after I walked off stage, this guy came up to me and says; ‘Good job. Here’s my card. Give me a call.’ I looked down at the card, and everything slowed down to a dream-like state. The card read, ‘Antonio Camacho.’

MSC sophomore Rob Magnotti has appeared at several local comedy clubs.

“Kind of like deja vu,” he muses. “I mean, the person I was looking for in ‘88 turns up at the college. The whole thing was really incredible. Explosive. Everything took off from there. We’ve been working with each other ever since.”

Magnotti is currently undeclared in his major, although he says he is “leaning towards” communications. He eventually wants to break into TV and movies, and sees comedy as his life-long career.

“I love doing it,” he says. “I couldn’t take other jobs. I’ve been a busboy and a movie usher. I’ve valet-parked cars. This is what I’ve always wanted to do.”

While Top Drawer Entertainment definitely knows who he is when he calls now, Magnotti still has a way to go before he’s a household name. Maybe one day, though, he’ll be billed alongside his idol.

“I realized I can’t be him,” he grins. “There’s only one Eddie Murphy.”

The Rat: MSC's sports bar

On Monday night the New York Giants played the San Francisco 49ers, and just about every student at MSC was planted in front of their TV sets anxiously awaiting the outcome. The Student Intramural Leisure Council opened the Rathskeller so students could come and watch the game on the big screen television and eat pizza.

The event was not very successful because of the fact that the game was on regular TV. But what would happen if this idea was expanded, featuring sporting events only offered on cable?

If the Rathskeller purchased a satellite dish and played all the cable sporting events, the cable-starved campus community would flock to the Rat like moths to the flame. There is no way for the many undergraduates at MSC to watch local teams like the Knicks and Devils, as well as all the other sports alternatives cable offers. Considering all the sports enthusiasts, the on-campus location would soon become a hot spot.

All it would take would be someone with the vision and capital to invest. If the administration is serious about offering fun student activities that don't need alcohol to be successful, they should look at what interests students. Sports is one of the most popular and universal forms of entertainment, and one which MSC students are seriously deprived of with the absence of cable television.

Through the sales of pizza and soda, the Rat would be profiting, but the most important fact is that students would have somewhere fun to go to without fear of getting arrested. If organized correctly, it could be a serious source of added revenue to help the administration deal with the rising cost of tuition.

Student Voice

Post-graduates overcharged for courses

I am writing this letter to inform MSC of an unfair policy concerning post-Baccalaureate students and tuition. I am a post B.A. student with an undergraduate degree in Business Administration (MSC, 1984). I went back to school for teacher certification in Physical Education in January of 1989. I did not go back for a Masters degree, but for a second degree so that I can become a teacher.

The courses I am required to take in the Spring of 1991 are at the 400 level in the teachers' professional sequence. I have numerous undergraduate students in my classes who are being charged undergraduate tuition, rightly so. However, post B.A. students, who are not earning a Masters degree or credits toward a Masters degree, are being charged graduate level tuition fees for the same courses.

What benefits does a post B.A. student receive that entitles MSC to charge him/her the graduate tuition? Do I get a Masters in teaching and the subsequent pay raise because of it? Of course not! I am being charged graduate fees for an undergraduate degree!

Many other benefits of being a graduate or undergraduate student are not available to the post B.A. students. Scholarships, financial aid, and SGA services are restricted or primarily for undergrads or students seeking a Masters degree.

I presently expect to graduate in May 1991. I went back to MSC because I could afford the high quality education it has to offer. Now, one semester from graduation, I get hit with a tuition bill of $1800.00 which is almost twice the undergraduate tuition for the exact same courses.

I hope to hear from you personally, Dr. Reid, because this affects many students at MSC. I do not want to hear that this is policy and that's that. Why is this policy if it is unfair to post B.A. students?

Why should I be penalized for seeking to become a teacher in N.J.? I have re researched the policy in the graduate and undergraduate catalogs and received answers from the registrar, business office, and graduate advisor that this is policy.

Only you can help to change this unfair practice. Remember, if you truly believe it is hurting students and do not act, you are responsible for your nonaction. Not only will I and other post B.A. students remember, but it will continue to affect students to come in the future.

I write this to you sincerely and honestly hoping to hear from you soon.
Better buys on books

Are you tired of constantly getting ripped off by the student Bookstore? A store that continuously sells the books at an outrageous price, and buys them back to almost nothing. Because the students are constantly getting ripped-off, the brothers of Alpha Phi Omega, have formed a bookstore. This store is not the most attractive one, but it will provide books right away, but rather we can give you more money when we sell the books. You can be ripped off by 60% of the ticketed price, which is still lower than the student bookstore price. As we sell this book, you, the student, will get 50% of this price.

All a person has to do to find out if we have the book is first find the title in the Bookstore, then come upstairs to the fourth floor of th Student Center, room 406 and check to see if we have the book. The Alpha Phi Omega Office is right in front of you as you exit the elevator.

Legislator replies

In reply to the less than friendly editorial written about our SGA President, Anthony Susco:

First, to clear up a couple of points which I feel were wrongly stated: Mr. Susco was at the “gathering,” as indeed were a number of other SGA members, including myself. That much is true. Phaedra, in her letter, however, added that the numbers attending the gathering were excessive. There is a relative term. I know for a fact that including the people who were already there, there were no more than twelve people there. So that leaves eight guests...some party?

Second, the presence of alcohol is not illegal at Clove Road. We know that because if it were, we wouldn’t currently be trying to ban its ban—right? As Mr. Susco was driving that night, he knew that he didn’t consume more than a couple of beers—three glasses at the most. Concerning the “fight”: What Phaedra Boer failed to mention was that the incident which occurred was initiated by a complete “unknown”, i.e. not an MSC student, who barged into the apartment and deliberately started the fight. There was no offensive action taken by anyone in the room. I was there. I saw it.

Clove residents feel harassment

Let me tell you a little story. Spring of 1990 was a pretty tough semester. Not in the classroom, but in my very own Clove apartment.

That was last fall semester - what a coincidence! (one in a string of many) Briefly, we happened to have a problem roommate. Numerous things were stolen from us and were found in her possession. We immediately appealed to a Clove authority figure to have this problem roommate removed. Nothing was done for us. Ha, what else is new? This problem roommate proceeded to attack me shortly after returning from a bar one leisurely evening. This attack was witnessed by the other roommates. We again appealed to the same authority figure who will remain nameless.

We were pointedly asked “How do I know you’re not lying just to set her up?” Regardless of claw marks on my neck, thanks for the vote of confidence. Finally, months after the original appeal, the problem roommate was removed (only after several interventions from an angry parent to more prominent MSC authority figures). It would be a crime if I neglected to mention that the roommate was removed, not from Clove Road Apts., but merely to another apartment nearly near. I suppose the violations she committed (all of this) were not serious enough for her to be moved, not from Clove Road Apts., but from an angry parent to a more prominent and prominent property and physical well-being of other roommate in the eyes of the Little Falls Court was found guilty, placed on a one-year suspended jail sentence, and slapped with a fine.

The incident I have just described strongly indicated that this authority figure was not properly doing her job.

Incident dismissed? We couldn’t be so lucky. As a result, it appears that we are disliked by a certain authority figure. Why? Merely because we pleaded to maintain what few rights we have!

Kick us while we’re down, why don’t you. Well, that’s exactly what happened. I hate to rehash old news, but it’s relevant, so please bear with me. When we returned this semester, we were less than ecstatic to find our apartment the only apartment that was unsanitary and “dangerous”, and that it was completely uninhabitable.

Another coincidence? Hmmm...while the 4 of us were crammed into one dorm room on a male wing for one solid month (at least) while virtually nothing was done, we consistently followed up on our problem, we made sure that this authority figure was fully aware of the situation of our apartment from the first week of school and several times after that.

Obviously, nothing was done about it. Ahah, just another coincidence I suppose.

It was not until an editorial was printed in the Montclarion that something was finally done. Upon our moving back into the apartment, we were promptly written up for a violation we did not commit. Consequently, my sister and I are to be removed from Clove Road Apts. “pending available space” in the dorms.

It almost looks as if we’ve been set up. Harassment comes to mind. We have appealed twice, and have been denied via ambiguous letters which seem to contradict themselves. Coincidence?...

We are aware of numerous Clove residents who have been in violation of far more serious policies and have not been sanctioned in any way similar to ours. This includes our former problem roommate. I find it amazing that someone who has endangered the property and physical well-being of other students is permitted to reside among them while others are reprimanded for simply asking to be treated in accordance with standard practice.

It is a very sad commentary on the Clove management that something is done, and students who pay rent and are disliked by the “landlord” are denied the same treatment as students who do not commit. Consequently, my sister and I are to be removed from Clove Road Apts. “pending available space” in the dorms.

Concern everyone had for him, even the ambulance women.

Mr. Tony Susco is a student. Don’t be fooled. He’s a student just like you! He took the position of President of the SGA because he believed that he could do a good job.

Considering that he spends over 60 hours a week at this school each week and is constantly and energetically involved in student affairs, couldn’t we assume that he is in fact doing a good job? But, at the end of the day, he is human, he is a student, and he has every right to go to see some friends, relax, and have a conversation.

If people spent more time looking at the relevant, important aspects of someone in a position of leadership and less time delving into THE MCG UH,UH, we’d all be better off. If Phaedra had a problem with Tony’s action, wouldn’t it have sustained good relations between the groups. It seems to me that she has come to him directly instead of splashing it all over the newspaper like some trashy magazine.

Finally, I’d like to say that the prerequisite for SGA President is not perfection.

Thanks for the support

This is to all the people out there who feel that there is no good left in this world.

On October 13, Saturday, Homecoming, an accident happened.

On the Delta Chi/Alpha Iota Chi Homecoming float, a student pretending to be a director was sitting in a director’s chair. The driver popped the clutch, and he fell off, head first, onto the ground. His head hit the concrete, and he lay there unconscious for 30 (plus) seconds.

Immediately (and I stress immediately) a student named Steve from Zeta Beta Tau, and one of his brothers in Delta Chi, Ross, rushed to his aide. Steve held his head still, and Ross held his hand.

To everyone’s relief, he finally regained consciousness.

Everyone was concerned. Very, very concerned. Cops and an ambulance came, and he was strapped to a body board, with a splint holding his head still, and carried off to a hospital. Right off the bat, the student knew of the great concern everyone had for him, even the ambulance women.

He ended up with a scratched and bruised left shoulder, a fractured cervical vertebrae, and a highly battered ego.

Very soon after, he got cards from everyone (well, almost everyone). Everyone cared, sincerely, and he knew it and appreciated it. He sat reading all the cards, and occasionally cried, but he was so overwhelmed with the feelings.

Progress? He didn’t even know were sending him cards, balloons, poems, the works.

The student was me, Gavino Siciliano.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone, especially all the greeks, who sent me everything and said, “Are you okay?” or even gave me a concerned look. Thank You.

It seems that for the last two years every band in the world has been making either a comeback or having a reunion, from the Rolling Stones and The Who to a re-energized Aerosmith. And then there are the bands that never went away. Take, oh, AC/DC for instance.

These guys have been around for the better part of 15 years and still have more raw energy and talent that many bands never had and never will (ie. M.C. Hammer, Rick Astley, etc.). The lineup has changed over the years, but the constant factor has been Angus Young, the lead guitarist. He may be pushing 40, but his raw energy and excitement, you can’t top him.

AC/DC came to the Arena last month for one of THE best shows I have ever seen. They opened up the show, predictably, with “Thunderstruck,” which was preceded by some powerful-sounding thunder and lightning. As far as I was concerned, AC/DC never stopped the thunder.

With only one or two exceptions, the show was one great song after another, and no one did a lot of their older songs, going back to the beginning and working through their newer stuff.

Chris Shade proved to be a great addition on drums after I heard him live. Formerly of The Firm with Jimmy Page, he gives the rhythm department an added edge which may have been a little lacking when Simon Wright was on drums.

AC/DC only did three songs off the Razor’s Edge, which was good because I hate to see people leave, and if I wanted to hear it, I would have just turned on my CD player.

Don’t get me wrong, I really do like the newer stuff, but there’s something about that classic pre-1980 AC/DC, before Bon Scott, the former lead singer, drank himself to death. Brian Johnson may have a powerful voice and a strong stage presence, but he lacks some of the darker qualities in Scott’s voice essential to older AC/DC.

The other tracks off the new album they played were “The Razor’s Edge” and “Moneytalks,” at which point a whole bunch of paper (not money, you fool, there would have been a riot) came down on the crowd seated on the floor.

AC/DC played some of their regulars like “You Shook Me All Night Long,” and “Back in Black,” as well as “Hell’s Bells.” During that song, a really BIG bell came down from the scaffolding above the center of the crowd, which was cool if nothing else, even though the chiming didn’t exactly coincide with the guys swinging the bell’s clapper with a rope. Oh well.

Oh yes, there were a few other really neat special effects at the show, but they only popped up here and there for certain songs. The stage was mostly empty, except for a rope that was pulled behind the band which Johnson and Angus roamed around on every once in a while. When they played “Highway to Hell,” a personal favorite of mine since I almost drove into the Passaic River while listening to it, a giant balloon came up behind the stage of Angus’ head with horns as he appeared on the cover of the album “Highway to Hell,” waving his tail in his hand. I think I saw it at Macy’s Thanksgiving Parade, but maybe I was hallucinating again.

During Angus’ guitar solo, he made a brave move by going to a platform set up for him near the back end of the arena. The lights went off for a few minutes, accompanied by a mellow rhythm from the rest of the band. Suddenly, Angus appeared on the circular platform, which was jacked up about ten feet off the ground, and he did his usual frantic guitar-sole, which was really cool even though I had heard it before.

He may not always be totally original, but he makes up for it in energy. I thought he would have had a heart attack by now at the pace he keeps.

Now for the disappointments: Their live version of “The Jackson” was terrible, and their hit “WHILE THE LONELY ROSE,” “Shake Your Foundations” or “Big Balls,” some essential AC/DC songs.

Johnson also messed up the intro to “TNT.” Some people just can’t ‘oy’ properly. You’ll understand that if you’ve heard the song.

Starting with 74 Jailbreak, their first U.S. release, AC/DC has been putting out one album after another, based on a formula that is still working. They are very serious about their music in that they have one hell of a great time doing it, which shows in their live appearances.

Many bands that have been around a while do not put on long shows, but they performed a solid two hour set.

Anybody who knows what AC/DC is really about knows that they aren’t a trash metal band that writes about death, war, or other fun things, or a lame pop metal band that writes a lot of cute love songs about getting laid. Their favorite subjects are women, booze, sex, and rock and roll. That’s all they write about. They aren’t poets, but it sure sounds good coming out of the radio.

The only things which really weren’t cool about the show were the ashole who was throwing firecrackers on the crowd from the upper decks, and the ambulances I saw that kept leaving one of the arena’s gates throughout the show. How about a little violence with your rock and roll.

Soho-“Goddess”

OK! We got our love beads, our platform shoes, our tie-dyes, and we straightened our hair. We prepared ourselves for yet another version of the ever-so-popular B-52’s/Dee Lite 60’s style of music. BUT, to our suprise, it is NOT a B-52’s or Dee Lite sound at all. Also, to our surprise, we found we listened to the entire tape continuously, and not just the same one or two choices songs over and over again.

There are a couple of mellow songs on this tape, but they are mostly upbeat. You can definitely dance to this music or at least engage in one of those romantic cheek-to-cheek jobs.

It’s hard to say who Soho sounds like, because they are reminiscent of many...

Stephen King's Miserable Movie

By Anthony Minutella
Staff Writer

"Miserly" is an absolutely spellbinding suspense thriller that literally had audience members screaming in their seats. Based on Stephen King's enormously entertaining 1987 bestseller, the film is a gripping but engrossing blend of character study, humor and Hitchcock-style suspense.

The clever and involving story centers on Paul Sheldon (James Caan), a famous romance novelist who has just completed his last novel in a series featuring the beloved and popular character Misery Chastain. To celebrate, he has his ritual smoke and glass of wine, then takes a drive to his favorite isolated lodge in the Colorado wilderness. Out of nowhere a bizarre character appears and Paul gets into a terrible accident that cripples his arm and both legs.

To his rescue comes his “Number One Fan” Annie Wilkes (Kathy Bates), a large, plain and lonely professional nurse who takes care of Paul in her country home. When she reads that Paul has just written a novel of excellence, Annie feels personally betrayed and sets about getting rid of her off the deep end. Her care turns into torture as she holds Paul hostage. She forces him to bum the manuscript he has just completed and create an all-new Misery novel just for her (Misery in Annie's heroine).

Traveling on with the Wilburys

By George Oschewski
Staff Writer

1988 marked the debut of an unknown band with a strange name—The Traveling Wilburys. Soon after its release, it started getting rave reviews, and this unknown band was well on its way to stardom.

Well, almost.

The band might have been unknown at the time, but the members weren’t. Rock and roll fans immediately recognized the Traveling Wilburys—Spike Wilbury (George Harrison), Muddy Wilbur (Tom Petty), Clayton Wilbury (Jeff Lynne), Boo Wilbury (Bob Dylan), and Lefty Wilbury (Roy Orbison). These five men took what was originally a fun-time screw-around jam session and turned it into an album of the year type—"Traveling Wilburys Vol. I." It was fun the way everything came together, and it all felt natural.

Two years later, the Traveling ones gave it another shot. "Traveling Wilburys Vol. 3" was released. Some members of the Wilburys debated whether or not to continue without the voice and guitar of Lefty Wilbury (Orbison), who died earlier this year. The happy, jammin’ feeling is still there, but the loss of Orbison shows. The only way to describe the feeling is a group of people who know that a dear friend will never be coming back. The music is still there, the fun is there, but the magic that Orbison put into the band is no longer there.

"The biggest problem we faced as a group was if we were going to replace Lefty, " said Muddy (Petty). "Later on, we decided that we wouldn’t. We’ll travel without him. I was never so happy that we could ever replace him.

Wilburys Vol. 3 still has the good ol’ boy feeling and the album has some really cool tunes on it. "She’s My Baby" is a great opener, and the end track, "Traveling Wilburys" is a rocking song that reminds one of the oldies era. It’s not as good as Vol. 1, but it is a nice addition to anyone’s record collection.
CAPSULATE MOVIE REVIEWS

By Amy Caradine

The movie was poor.
$$ it was a good movie.
$$$$$ it was an outrageously-incredible-must-see movie.

Three Men and a Little Lady
Starring Tom Selleck, Steve Guttenberg, Ted Danson and Nancy Travis. The sequel to Three Men and a Baby manages to keep its freshness primarily due to a superb little actress, Robin Weisman, who portrays Mary, the little lady. The five, child with mother and three fathers, have lived together happily for five years. Then, mother, Travis, decides she wants marriage. The rest of the movie deals with the impending nuptials. Guttenberg, Danson and Selleck are a bit on the overkill as the fathers. Overall, a light movie that keeps pace with its predecessor. $$

White Palace
Starring Susan Sarandon and James Spader. A tale of a fortyish burger waitress who picks up a twentyish businessman at a bar. A depressing movie with credible actors yet a rather mundane storyline. Realistic portrayal of a white collar man coming to terms with his feelings for a (greasy) blue collar woman. The only thing this movie has going for it is what is the center of their relationship - sex. $$

Video Always
Starring Richard Dreyfuss, Holly Hunter and John Goodman. A pilot, Dreyfuss, dies and leaves his girl, Hunter, behind. But he can't seem to let her let him go and get on with the rest of her life. A touching love story.

Immediate Family
Starring Glen Close, James Woods(V) and Mary Stuart Masterson. Close and Woods can't conceive and choose open adoption. Masterson is the natural mother. A sad realistic movie.

Harlem Nights
Starring Eddie Murphy and Richard Pryor. It's 1938 and Murphy and Pryor are running an "underground" nightclub. They run into some trouble with the competition. A funny movie if seen with a lot of friends (Don't see it alone, you'll be really bored!)$$

Loverboy
Starring Patrick Dempsey and Kate Jackson. Dempsey tries to earn money in one of the oldest professions. Jackson is his understanding and softhearted mother. A bit unexciting and predictable.

As was noted last week, the greatest fun is had at the expense of others. This might not seem fair, but it's just the way it is. A good-natured, but vile, practical joke is in reality the highest form of humor. And friends make the best targets. Here are some of my favorites:

1) "The old removing the mouthpiece from the telephone routine." There are still people who don't realize that you can still take apart a telephone receiver, remove some parts and have it still function to a degree. Take advantage of them. While they are in the bathroom or setting up the VCR, do your dirty work. Pocket the mouthpiece, try not to lose it since, if it's a leased phone, it belongs to AT&T, and try to keep a straight face. With any luck, your friend will receive incoming calls while you're still there.

That's when the fun starts! Hold back those giggles when relatives phone to report a death in the family, and your friend is unable to respond. Watch their features twist as they shout even more loudly, all to no avail. Watch them squirm as they're forced to listen to telephone marketers run through their entire routine without being able to tell them to shove it. Watch them cry as their boyfriend/girlfriend ends their relationship in a furious tirade because they think they're being ignored. On your way out, casually hand the mouthpiece back (they might not realize what it is) and run like hell.

2) "The eternally full gas tank." This one might cost a few dollars, but in laughs per gallon, it more than pays for itself. For this to work, three conditions must be met. You must have access to your friend's car late at night. It must be parked in an area without nosy neighbors. And it cannot have a locking gas cap. For this to work, three conditions must be met. You must have access to your friend's car late at night. It must be parked in an area without nosy neighbors. And it cannot have a locking gas cap. It may take awhile for them to notice, but when they do, the first assumption is that the gas gauge is broken. Upon pulling into a service station, they'll discover it is not. You'll hear from them shortly after that. In fact, your entire circle of friends will probably soon be getting calls about this miracle car that burns no gas. It might be wise to confess before they go so far as calling the local newspaper. Don't try this if they're away on vacation. It just won't work.

3) "The Nintendo-master scam." This one requires a few high-priced items which your parents have probably bought for you already-a Nintendo system, a VCR and a television. The setup is as follows: Plug the Duck Hunt cartridge into the system. Situate yourself close enough to the set that you can't possibly miss. Set the VCR to record. Play several ridiculously long games. Save the tape. The next time one of your friends is stopping over, set up the VCR, game system and television so that the taped game is in progress. Keep your remote control handy, but hidden. Pretend to be playing. Shoot with your eyes closed, behind your back with a hand mirror, between your legs, etc. Time yourself to end play with the end of that game on the tape. Subtly pause the tape, and switch over to the real thing. Pass your friend the gun, and watch him make a total fool of himself trying to mimic your outstanding ability. I don't advise letting your friend in on this particular charade, since the money making possibilities are endless.

They should be complemented on their excellent use of harmony in a different way. The music itself is totally unique.

We would definitely suggest buying this tape. This music will fill all clubs because it’s fun. The single “Nuthin’ on my mind” doesn’t do the album justice. To fully appreciate Soho, you have to listen to the entire tape. Every song is different from the last. In some songs, the lyrics do get repetitive, but the music keeps you going.

This tape has something for everyone. “Nothing on my mind” (except my new love)”, and “Out of my mind” are perfect for those in love. For those out of love or searching, there is “Another year” and “God’s little joke” (We can think of a couple of God’s little jokes ourselves.). For those who simply want to dance, then “Goddess” is the song for you.

This tape is innovative and different. It’s new, but has an excellent beat. The lyrics scream “Soho!” and to us Soho speaks reality. Get the tape to understand what we mean. ****

What follows is an incredibly tense-jangling cat-and-mouse game in which Paul and Annie desperately try to outsmart each other. As directed by Rob (“When Harry Met Sally...”) Reiner, “Misery” captures the audience’s emotions but forces us to relate to the characters and their struggle to settle their destinies. The ending is the familiar fight-to-the-finish, “Fatal Attraction”-style conclusion, but it still leaves you with a feeling of unease.

The film version (unlike the book) has flaws, although they’re minor ones. The title “Misery” is ironic in that it not only deals with a character’s name or Paul’s primary emotion, but it also defines the underlying sadness in Annie’s life.

Her entire world consists of being alone and fantasizing a better life for herself by escaping into Paul’s novels. Unfortunately, there is only one scene in the whole movie in which we genuinely care for Annie and come to understand the emptiness in her life. Otherwise, she’s used strictly as a sinister presence (which works fine) or as unnecessary comic relief.

It’s embarrassing to watch a potentially sad character like Annie played for laughs, and it diminishes the power of the strong story. The film could have been more effectively charged if Annie was given a little sympathy and dimension.

Still, there are some terrifying moments in “Misery” that most likely will leave you breathless. As the film builds to a heart-pounding climax, it’s great fun watching Paul, helpless and bitter, and Annie, easily hurt and angered, go after each other like a bee to honey. The fact that their relationship is rooted in reality makes it all the more frightening. How many times have you seen a celebrity or gone to a concert where at least one hyper fan would do anything to meet their idol? There’s also the suggestion that Paul, who wants to do more challenging writing, may be getting what he deserves: abandoning the legions of fans who live in Misery’s life and suddenly see it come to an end shows his lack of concern and respect for the “ordinary” people. Thus, when Annie shows her lack of respect, we understand her feelings.

The primary reason why “Misery” works so well is due to the superb performances by Caan and Bates in what must have been physically and emotionally demanding roles. Playing a man tormented not only by Annie but who has a crippled, virtually useless body, Caan makes his character enormously appealing by adding humor to his horrifying situation. And Bates is really sensational, despite the lack of depth in her written role. It’s amazing that Bates can be menacing, funny and compassionate all at once, but she pulls it off expertly; she makes Annie a consistently intriguing woman. By the end, we not only cheer but cringe at Annie’s demise because Bates has injected warmth as well as menace to Annie. Together, Caan and Bates make “Misery” a wonderfully exciting experience.

different bands. It is a totally original work. Some people will insist on comparing them to the B-52’s for the simple reason that the lead singer sounds like Kate Pierson, but we find that Soho also sounds a little like Wilson Phillips.

The Posse beats up Ultra Violent

The Gamerettes defeated the defending champion student Trainers on Sunday to capture the Co-Rec volleyball championship. Members of the upcoming championship team include Melanie Dorr, Chris Cooper, JoAnne Mills, Dawn Reynolds, Noelle Stewart, John Luna, Carl Buffalino, Jeff Lawson, John Fiore and Shannen Lyons.

In the Tuesday-Thursday Men’s League the Zoo and PRP battled for the first place seed in the upcoming playoffs. The Zoo came out strong in the first game and won 15-10.

PRP showed some true grit as they answered back to winning the second game 15-12. Despite relentless hustle by the Zoo on virtually every point, PRP’s flawless execution was instrumental in earning a three point victory game two.

In the third and decisive contest, the momentum continued to swing in PRP’s favor as they jumped out to an early 9-1 lead. Despite the early eight point deficit, the Zoo was able to climb back into the contest as they capitalized several PRP mistakes to shift the momentum back to the Zoo. The Zoo got its wake up call just in time as they came from behind to capture a 15-12 triumph.

In the Monday-Wednesday League, the undefeated Posse had to defeat undefeated Ultra Violent to capture the first place seed and automatic first round playoff bye. In the game one it was the Posse that looked ultra violent as they mauled and stormed Ultra Violent 15-3. Ultra Violent showed some character and shades of their old championship days as they came back to win the second game. Game two saw Ultra Violent put together several good bumps and sets which was instrumental in notching a 15-7 decision.

Like the PRP-Zoo contest it would take a third game to decide who was number one in the conference. The third game belonged to the Posse as Ultra Violent never came close. The Posse was able to keep Ultra Violent off balance successfully defending UV’s key spiker Jim “Zippy” McKeown. McKeown, UV’s answer to Michael Jordan was set up repeatedly and was forced to fight off double blocks and perfect back row coverage in order to score points. Ultra Violent let up an early lead and was unable to come back.

The Posse will look to pull off the S.I.L.C hat trick. The Gamblers have already captured the one-pitch softball and flag football championships and another championship would make 1990 “The Year of the Gambler”.

Win it. Jeff Kovalchuk, Wade Whitehead and Brian Pray have the height and the jumping ability to spike over the eight foot net. The rest of the team has incredible quickness and will cover that 30 ft. court easily.

The Kaboomers, who upset Ultra Violent last Monday in the playoffs have talent and height. However, this team is young and experienced and lacks the experience to upset the Posse.

The Tuesday-Thursday finals will be held in Gym 6 tonight starting at 8 pm.

The championship game will be held on Sunday, December 9, at 9 pm in Gym 6 at Panzer Gym. It should be a great game to watch. Wrestling trio places at Coast Guard Tourney

By Keith A. Idee
Correspondent

The MSC wrestling team kicked off the 1990-91 campaign in splendid fashion defeating Western New England 37-6 in its home opener followed by a fifth place finish at the annual Coast Guard Invitational Tournament at the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Connecticut.

The tournament's sixteen-team field included Division I teams: Rutgers University, Yale University, Harvard University, Boston University and Columbia University.

Three MSC wrestlers placed in the double elimination tournament. At 177 pounds, junior Jim Sloan placed first in his weight class last matches en route to capturing first place. Sloan, second in his weight class received a bye in the first round, then split his next two contests. Vega's last match of the day, a wrestle back, ended in default when the Freehold native sustained a lower back injury.

Head Coach Steve Strellner was extremely pleased with his team's performance. "With hard work they can become even better and win the NCAA championships."

In their victory over Western New England, the MSC wrestlers won eight out of ten matches. The winners were Chris Gross at 118 pounds, Academic All-American Ken Hoff at 126 pounds, Scott Castiglia at 134 pounds, Will Feher at 142 pounds, Bill Templeton at 167 pounds, Jim Sloan at 177 pounds, Scott Vega at 190 pounds and Sean McLeary in the heavyweight division. Both Sloan and Vega won their matches by pinning their opponents.

This week, the Red Hawks will go on the road twice putting its No.3 national ranking in Division III up to the test. Tonight MSC battles conference rival, Trenton State followed by a Friday meeting with Hunter College (NY). The team then gets a two weeks off to prepare for final exams before it resumes wrestling.

Swimmers split meets, women's Hoffman wins 3

It was one up and one down for the MSC swimming program last week, as the women's team improved its record to 2-3, while the men dropped to 1-2.

Of the women's victory, coach Brian McLaughlin said, "That was one of their most important wins in a few years."

That win came last Tuesday as MSC cruised by Kean College, 160-125 at home, avenging last year's 135-81 pounding by Kean.

Leading the way was sophomore distance freestyler, Susan Hoffman, who swam to victories in the 200, 500, and 1000 yard freestyle, with respective times of 2:26.8, 6:28.9 and 13:12.1.

Junior driver Carrie Spender won the 1 meter diving event with a 1:47.7 time while freshman breast stroker Marriana Krivak gained two victories of her own, placing times of 1:17.6 and 2:49.6 in the 100 and 200 breaststroke. Also contributing a noteworthy effort was freshman Tara Mulligan, who excelled in the 100 and 200 yard backstroke, with times of 1:20.5 and 2:52.6.

McLaughlin was no doubt pleased with the women's performance. He says, "The two teams were comparable on paper and when we're in a meet with a team similar to us, we want especially to win."

The fortunes were not as good for the men's team, as it lost to Jona, a strong Division I team, by a 63-49 score.

Senior diver Mike McQuade was a double winner in both 1 meter events, which helped him close in on the school record for diving. "Sophomore breast stroker Paul Albert posted a brisk swim of 2:12.50, and showed he may be regaining his old form after a 1 1/2 year layoff due to his transferring from Miami of Ohio," McLaughlin said. "This swim is a glimpse of what the future may hold for him."

Overall, McLaughlin could not be more pleased with the swimming program. He says, "The attitude is very good, the swimmers realize where they fit in and they are working together."

Sophomore freestyler John Harding credits his positive attitude to teammate Andrew Mitza, a junior, who swims the butterfly. "I'm motivated and pushed by Andrew and I think this will also help the team make out O.K.," says Harding.

McLaughlin is very optimistic and happy about MSC's swimming program, as athletes such as Mitza and his motivation can only rub off on the other swimmers. Although McLaughlin agrees, winning doesn't hurt either.
The MSC men's basketball team has stayed at the .500 level. After losing in the finals of the Red Dragon Classic last week, MSC came back to N.J. and was greeted by Glassboro State, which promptly handed the Hawks their second loss of the season 69-62. However, a few nights later, MSC posted a victory over conference foe Rutgers-Camden 61-52 to even the Hawks record at 3-2.

Playing at Glassboro, MSC was plagued by a problem that has been its Achilles heel all season: poor shooting. The Hawks were able to shoot only 32% for the game and Coach Ollie Gelston was not pleased with the MSC's futility from the floor. "We're missing a lot of layups," Gelston said. "We have not greeted by Glassboro State, which laidups," Gelston said. "We have not at Glassboro, MSC was played well, scoring 11 and 10 points respectively, Ray Goode and Mike Tilney led with seven rebounds each.

The Hawks schedule will get tougher as their next three games are against conference foes Trenton State, William Paterson, and Jersey City State. "These games are important, but not critical," says Gelston. "These games will tell us if we can play with the best in the conference. Barring injuries and academic casualties, we will get better."

Although the Hawks are making mistakes on the court, Gelston sees a reason why. "We have a very young team. We have five returners and six new players. We must improve our shot selection however to be a consistent club."

Gelston is pleased with the performances of Lamont Halsey, who is an excellent defensive player and Gelston is also impressed with freshman Malik Jones and Lewis. "They are going to be excellent players."

But Gelston would not make any predictions as to where the Hawks will finish this year. "If we progress, we may make one of the four playoff spots. January is the key because of the break. Players' minds wander in January because it's not conducive to a regimented routine. We may get through January, we'll be alright."

HAWKS NOTES:

Junior guard Carlos Gaspar is an amazing story. He came to MSC two years ago from Spain, knowing no English. In two years, he has accumulated 102 credits and has a 3.8 GPA in physical education. "Forward Ernie Harris and guard Brian McNair are coming from the football team and Gelston feels that once they work themselves into "basketball shape," the team will be much improved, particularly with McNair, who could provide key outside shooting." Senior forward Chris Albertson is, according to Gelston "our lead and most intelligent player. He rarely makes a mistake."

Wheeling and dealing was the name of the game this week at the O' Hare Sheraton in Rosemont, Illinois for baseball's annual winter meetings. If there was one team that came into the meetings with intentions of making offers players couldn't refuse, it was the San Francisco Giants. Despite the fact the Oakland A's play in the American Leaque, both the A's and Giants are competing in the same marketplace. Unlike the Mets and Yankees, the Bay area market is nowhere near the size of the New York market where if you produce two winning teams fans will fill both ballparks. Even with two of baseball's biggest stars in Kevin Mitchell and Will Clark, the A's with Cansecos, McGwire, and a 1990 World Series Victory over San Fran remain the King of the Bay.

The A's have basically forced the Giants to dip into the free agent market and GM Al Rosen has opened up his paycheck. The Giants have added former Oakland outfielder and 1990 batting champ Willie McGee (4 yrs. $15M), pitchers Bud Black (4 yrs. 10M) and longtme Yankee Dave Righetti (4 yrs. 10M) for a total of $33 million worth of free agent contracts.

The Yankees and Righetti, 32, could not agree to terms leaving Rags free for the taking. The major snafu with Rags and the Yanks was with the length of the contract. Rags wanted a four year deal, but the Yankees wouldn't budge on their three year offer.

The Giants took a risk signing a 32 year old pitcher to a four year deal, but the feeling is that Righetti will not be used as an the Giants' exclusive closer which will save his arm.

For Righetti it signals the end of a 12 year career with the Yankees, but the deal is best for both parties. Not to knock Rags, but he is 32 and had he stayed in the Bronx he would have finished his career playing for a team in transition going nowhere. At least Righetti, who lives in San Jose, can go pitch in his backyard where he at least has a chance at a ring.

The Mets put the finishing touches on signing speedster Vince Coleman to a four year deal worth $12 million early Wednesday morning. The addition of Coleman will by no means fill the void left by Darryl Strawberry, but Coleman will add needed speed on the basepaths. In addition to being one of the National League's top base swipers, Coleman had a 93% success rate against Met catchers during his career.

The move to get Coleman leaves Met fans wondering where this team is going. Instead of going after Coleman and paying him $3 million per year, Frank Cashen and company would have been better off going after someone with speed and punch in his bat. The name Tim Raines immediately comes to mind. "The Rock," as he is referred to, has been stuck in Montreal since 1981 with a team that has been six games out of first place for the last ten years. While Raines is not a free agent, he is very tradeable if the Mets were to come up with the right offer.

Raines is about to enter his 11th season with the Expos and while his legs don't churn like they used to, we're still talking about a solid seasoned vet who is still welcome in Flushing even with Coleman. An outbid of Coleman in left, MagMcReynolds in center, and Raines in right with Darryl Boston and Mark Carreon filling in from time to time, would be more solid than most would expect in the Post-Straberry era.

In addition to trades and free agent signings at the meetings, talks of league expansion are another big issue. Cities competing for two available franchises include Buffalo, Denver, Tampa/St. Pete, Miami, and the state of Arizona. The rumors from the meetings have been that the two Florida entries in the expansion derby will be awarded franchises. Like the other cities the Tampa/ St. Pete and Miami areas are lucrative markets filled with baseball starved fans. However, the Florida areas are more appealing to Major League Baseball because of its climate, but its also hard to ignore St. Pete, especially with a 43,000 seat baseball stadium with no tenant. As for Miami, the fan support exhibited by Heat fans who travel to watch the Heat play in Overtown, the economically disadvantaged section of Miami, cannot be ignored.
The MSC women's basketball team cleaned up last weekend at the Dial Softball Indoor Track and Field Classic, beating Randolph-Macon and Scranton University en route to their sixth consecutive title, in front of a near-capacity crowd at Panzer Gymnasium. MSC was led by Kim Wilson, who earned the most valuable player award for the third straight year.

In the first game, on November 30, MSC set a school record for steals with 27, in routing Randolph-Macon, 80-48. Late in the first half, Wilson went on a 22-8 run to pour in 40-16 lead. During that run Wilson pitched in with nine of her game high 17 points. Coach Jill Jeffrey was pleased because she got production from both her starting five as well as needed punch of the bench.

In addition to her 17 points, Wilson pulled down four boards, blocked three shots and came away with five steals, all in just 24 minutes of action. Three other Lady Hawks put up double digits in the scoring department. They were: Kim Barnes (14 pts.), Shannon Shaffer (12 pts.), and Cathy Madalone (11 pts.). Shaffer's 12 points were complimented with eight boards, two blocked shots and came up with five steals.

The Randolph-Macon victory put MSC in the championship contest.
