Cutbacks in hours cause all-night protest

by Valerie Kellrin

More than 300 students visited Sprague Library throughout the night Wednesday as part of a "study-in" to protest cutbacks in library hours this semester. The effort was the second of its kind in less than a week; approximately 50 students "studied-in" for two and a half hours after the usual 4:30 p.m. closing time last Saturday.

"We had a steady population of about 300 until around 1 a.m.," said SGA Treasurer Rob Tranter at 2:30 a.m. Thursday at a table on the second floor. "Before midnight, all these tables were practically filled."

SGA President Tony Susco called the present library hours "a threat to the academic mission of this college" in a campus-wide proclamation, and said that he would be meeting with Director of Library Services Bernice Jones-Trent and Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Richard Lynde on Wednesday, Dec. 18, to discuss expanding the hours.

Sprague Library presently closes at 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday (two extra hours were added on Wednesday nights for final exams), 4:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Board of Trustees Meeting:

Pres. Reid gets salary increase

by Dini Marshall

President Irvin Reid's salary will jump from $93,500 to $102,382 after the Board of Education approved a 9.5% pay increase last night.

After receiving his raise, Reid said, "Montclair State College is the largest state college in New Jersey and I am still the second lowest paid college president in the state." He added, "The board felt that they had to keep my salary competitive with other New Jersey college presidents."

Joan Eicke, vice president of Internal Affairs for the American Federation of Teachers Local 1904, said that her organization received no response from the administration with regard to his pay increase. "There was no building of assessments for his raise," she said. "There are real issues of performance that were not..."
Lot 13 closes

According to an interoffice memorandum signed by Director of Facilities Thomas Stepnowski, Lot 13 will be closed indefinitely as of December 16. Lot 14 will be effected by the closing of Lot 13 because it will eliminate the overflow parking option. Overflow parking will be directed to Lot 17 after the 16th. There will be no overnight parking after that date in Lot 17 and during the daytime its use will be controlled by an attendant.

Library hours

As of now the Library hours are as follows:

Monday - Thursday 8:00 a.m. - 10:00 p.m.
Friday 8:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
Saturday 10:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
Sunday 2:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.

New policy in caf.

Because of the great number of thefts of bookbags in the Blanton Hall Cafeteria students will now be allowed to bring their bookbags with them to their tables instead of checking them in at the entrance to the cafeteria, according to Sgt. Newcombe of Campus Police.

INTERNATIONAL

The European Economic Community agreed to set up a common central bank and begin using a single currency by 1999. Britain and Spain were accused of setting up insurmountable road blocks to the political and security agreement for the $338 million 12 nation group.

Delegates to the U.N. Conference on Global Warming are ecstatic that John Sununu has been thrown out of the White House. Many delegates felt he was the main obstacle in the Administration to approval of studies into carbon monoxide and pollution into the green house effect.

Russia, Byelorussia and Ukraine, three republics in the Soviet Union, dissolved the USSR and formed their own union. Gorbachev said the move was illegal. A second coup is also feared by military and political headliners. A popular revolt spurred by the famine conditions throughout the Soviet countryside is also feared.

NATIONAL

Cats’ popularity has risen so significantly in the past ten years that they now have surpassed dogs as America’s favorite pets. But their popularity may be their doom. As their numbers have risen so have strays. In our area this has caused an increase in cat rabies. Largely due to tangles with rabid raccoons.

New Jersey regulators are looking into several investments that PSE&G’s parent company has made including leasing jets, real estate holdings, a bank in Maryland and oil fields in Argentina. But the regulators are concerned that PSE&G’s recent request for a $669 million rate hike may have to do with its investments.

Gov. Jim Florio is calling on insurance officials to reject the steep rate increases proposed for drivers in the state run insurance pool. A hike of 15% is expected in drivers in the state run insurance pool. A hike of 15% is expected in the next six weeks and an equivalent increase in cat rabies. Largely due to tangles with rabid raccoons.

Transportation commissioner Thomas M. Downs said N.J. Transportation agencies and Toll Authorities and the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey will also be involved in an unprecedented $13 billion on highway, mass transit, and airport improvements over five years.

Astronauts on the space shuttle missions have a new but non-threatening problem: space debris. Space Shuttle Commander Frederick Gregory dodged 3,200 pounds of rocket debris. He said, “I’m sure sometime soon someone will have a collision with something in space but I don’t think it’s going to be a major problem.”

Bush gave a new budget that calls for more preventative health care. Bush proposed a 15% increase in immunization, a 40% increase in breast and cervical cancer, $59 million more for healthy start a 13% more than this year and $30 million more for community health centers. Bush also called for drug prevention programs, $65 million for high risk youth, 13% more than this year and $70 million for pregnant women 12% more.

Rash of arrests on Campus

By Karl Lomberk

A rash of arrests over this past semester has plagued Campus Police. Problems have ranged from disorderly conduct to burglary, possession of a weapon, and assault.

On September 18, 1991, Raquel Serrano and Naika DeMoya filed charges against each other for Simple Assault. A fight occurred after they kicked off a boyfriends.

On October 15, 1991, Barbara D. Clarkson was arrested for attempted bodily injury against a security officer and also charged with criminal mischief when she allegedly threw a rock through a window of Stone Hall, spraying the security officer with glass.

The incident occurred during an evacuation of the building due to a fire alarm. Garrison maintains his innocence saying that he was at Bantlan Hall at the time and just arrived at Stone when he was served the charges. The case will be resolved Jan. 8, 1992.

On October 19, 1991 Yuri Tobengauz was arrested for use of a Controlled dangerous substance; marijuana.

Students like senior psychology major Laurie Labombard, however, would rather have more access to the present materials. "I'm a full-time student and I work two jobs. The only time that's convenient for me to come is at night, and there are no night hours on the weekends." Jennifer Ware, a senior anthropology major and assistant manager in Blanion Hall, wrote a letter to the library and administration after the limited hours reduced her access to reference materials, causing her to take an incomplete in a legal research course.

In her letter, she called for a "study-in" on Saturday, Dec. 7. Susco attended on Saturday and talked briefly about the situation with the students present, but was unable to address the immediate concern.

"You can sit here, but you can't utilize the word processors (or other non-print media). People are really studying, but it's not a useable library," said Diane Ruggiero, a sophomore English major.

However, Tranter felt that the "study-in" served its purpose—not a demonstration, but proof that students often need to use the library's resources long into the night. "We're doing this to prove a point," he said. "The library should be open every night of the week, at least until midnight."

Wiggins agreed. "I don't know what the next step is," she said, doing her genetics homework Thursday morning, "but I know that at least tonight, we have extra hours in the library."

According to Lynde, under whose division the library falls, the hours for this semester were decided upon by a library committee. "Setting library hours is closely related to the level of staff available," he said. "She [Jones-Trent] would normally send the hours to us via electronic mail, and we suggest changes."

However, Jones-Trent said, "The administration is making decisions that they can afford to pay for. You provide the level you can and maintain your quality. We're doing the best we can do with the authority we have."

Some members of the SOGA, however, question whether she is doing her best. In a response to Wiggins' letter, which she posted at the library entrance, she wrote, "...no amount of 'sitting in' will accomplish the solution to the problem...Be informed that Anthony Susco, SOGA President, nor anyone else has contacted me in any manner about library hours. I have not received any communication from any College administrator about student concerns related to library hours."

She later added that if it were not for her position at the library, she would have been unaware of students concerns about the hours. "Students have to make the concerns known clearly," she said, "I have not been contacted by Tony Susco or any student group. From time to time, Dr. Lynde has mentioned student concern about the library not being open later."

SGA Legislator Rosemary Oliveira, a junior psychology major on the Welfare and Internal Affair committee, felt the lack of communication was "a blatant lie."

"We (the committee) have been working on extending library hours since September. People showed concern at the open forum, and we've done a survey," she said. "I called her [Jones-Trent] to find out if there was a way to improve library hours. She said that she didn't think the SGA had any sort of power or business in that matter."

Susco agreed that he had not personally contacted Jones-Trent to express student concerns; however, he added, "She should be aware of the customer satisfaction she's providing."

Susco said that it seemed Jones-Trent was selecting which concerns to address. "To say that the SGA has no input (in library hours) is effectively denying that the SGA is the voice of the students, and denying that the students have brought something to her attention," he said. "It's almost as if she's selectively deciding which students can bring concerns to her."

Susco said that the college spent $18,000 on new locks after Bohn Hall was broken into last year. They are not yet convinced, however, that the locks have to be replaced at this time.

A master key was taken from a locked box in the locksmith's shop, used to open the dorm rooms and replaced. While Cooper does not believe that the key was duplicated, they are checking with local locksmiths.

Bohn Hall Director Sherill Cantrell is once again encouraging residents to take their valuables home with them over the long winter break.

Cooper said he is anticipating that security guards will be placed inside Bohn Hall over winter break in order to avoid another break-in.

Parking lots to be rearranged
by Robert Wintermute

Parking lot 13 will be closed to all parking on December 12 and lot 17 will become a "multi-purpose" facility, open to commuters, residents and faculty members, according to Assistant Vice-President of Facilities Tom Stepnowski.

Two new parking lots in the vicinity of the Fieldhouse and one additional lot in the area of the Access Road are going to be constructed in the future to handle the overflow of parking from the two lots, Stepnowski said. He also said that a parking garage at MSC was a "good idea" and was being reviewed.

Lot 13 is the site of the new Humanities and Social Sciences building, ground breaking for which will begin on the thirteenth, Stepnowski explained. He also explained that usage of lot 17 will be monitored for a time, at which point the final use of the lot will be determined.

Stepnowski said, "there are plenty of spaces on campus." With many spaces in the Clove Road lot, it is a factor of geography that makes them seem unaccessible, he said.

LIBRARY STUDY-IN ANNOUNCED

An all night study-in was declared in the hope of overshadowing the ground-breaking ceremonies for the next stage of the Facility Master Plan by SGA President Tony Susco.

The study-in, scheduled to begin immediately after the SGA meeting, was planned to draw attention to recent budget cuts that have resulted in cuts in hours at Sprague Library, Susco said. "This will be the first semester that extended hours are not available at the library for students," he said.

"We intend to keep the library open for the duration of the evening," Susco said, appealing to the Legislature to notify as many people as possible. "It's important that we have a good turn out tonight because we can make an impression for change. We need to show a real concern on the part of the students," he said.

OTHER SGA NEWS

Military student James Lloyd is going to take his dispute with Professor Barbara Chasin to a grade appeal committee, according to Director of External Affairs James Cotter. Cotter said that Lloyd's decision to take his complaint to committee "may be a way-out for the administration," that would be satisfactory for all concerned.

Legislator Michael Costa was chosen to represent the SGA at a student government conference being held in the winter break at Texas A&M University. During the December 4, 1991 meeting, Susco explained that the SGA had extra money in its Conference Line after the summer conference in Charleston, WV.

not addressed."

Student board of trustee member, Paul Prior, also opposed Reid's. He said, "I don't deny people getting increases in their salaries, but in the light of certain financial situations I disagree with the increase."

He felt that the students did not have any say in the decision. "It's hard to make a decision with out being in on a situation."

Dean of Student Affairs, Edward Martin, felt that Reid deserved the pay raise. "In order to keep quality leadership you have to maintain certain salaries, and I think this is what the board is trying to do."

The faculty and staff yearly salary increase is 5.5%. Reid received a 10% increase last year.

The topic of Montclair State College's honors program was also discussed at the board meeting. Director, Dr. Rhoda Unger said, "Despite declining birth rates and strong competition, our program is holding its own nicely."

The students involved with the program have been very successful. The 48 entering freshman averaged in the 88th percentile of their high school graduating classes, the average SAT score is 1154.

The six-year-old program offers a variety of courses developed for the honors student. Incentives for students include book allowances, scholarships and "quiet area" dormitory accommodations.

The board officially said good-bye to Dr. Mary Armstrong who has served Montclair State for the past twelve years, first as dean of students and then as vice president for student affairs and campus life.

Paul Prior said, "Dr. Armstrong was a strong supporter of the students and our programs."

Reid and the board wished her luck with her return to the campus as a professor in the English department by dedicating their post-meeting dinner to Armstrong.

A waiver of Public Advertising and Bidding was passed for the payment of $15,485 to the Verona Board of Education member, said the ground breaking for the new Humanities building is positive but the older buildings on campus are a cause for great concern.

"I'm amased that we can keep them together, this issue needs to be looked at as soon as possible," he said.

Dr. Boyno, Faculty Representative, said that although the percentages of minorities have increased, there should be more use of Affirmative Action on the campus. Joseph R. Harris, vice chairperson said, "the board is very concerned with Affirmative Action and they will give as much assistance as possible."

Destino manifiesto: la oficina de WCSA

por Jorge Cruz

Los Estados Unidos de Norteamérica han llegado a ser una potencia mundial apropiándose del territorio de otros países. Paulatinamente, los norteamericanos se han adueñado de lo que hoy poseen comprando territorios, así como matando a los nativos de estas tierras; obedeciendo a la creencia de que este era su “destino manifiesto”. Sabemos que la historia se repite, sin embargo existe personas que tratan de imitar las acciones del pasado. Así, han aparecido sucesores de Adolfo Hitler, los cuales han tratado de implantar nuevamente una oda de muerte y racismo. Hemos observado también, el resurgimiento de miembros del KKK práctica una vez más su filosofía racista.

Aunque parezca increíble, existe un problema similar dentro de las organizaciones estudiantes de MSC. Los miembros de la Organización de Relaciones Humanas (HRO) clase I de la Asociación del Gobierno Estudiantil (SGA) creen que su “destino manifiesto” es apoderarse de la oficina de la Asociación del Colegio de la Constitución establecida en la Constitución de la organización para reunir fondos. Afortunadamente, no pudieron lograrlo porque WCSA es una organización bastante fuerte y una de las más importantes dentro del plantel, y que esta no solo ofrece fiestas y entretenimiento para sus miembros sino que ofrece también, un complejo programa de orientación académica y servicios de tutoría y consejería.

Si WCSA no ha llegado a ser una organización clásica, únicamente porque la mayoría de sus miembros reciben clases durante los fines de semana, y las demás organizaciones no tienen conocimiento del gran trabajo que estos miembros han venido realizando desde su creación hace 17 años.

Ahora que WCSA enfrenta este nuevo problema, es tiempo de poner un alto a las arbitrariedades y hacer por lo que corresponde: ser una organización clase I del SGA. Los miembros de la mesa directiva de WCSA están efectuando los procedimientos legales para defender su oficina de los depredadores de MSC.

Booby trap in Bohn causes concern

Two residents of Bohn hall trapped their room with a paint gun over Thanksgiving break, according to Sgt. Debra Newcombe of Campus Police. When the R.A.’s made their final room checks before the four day holiday weekend they found a sign on the outside of one of the rooms warning any would be burglars of a booby trap in the room. The residents rigged up trip wires around the room and connected it to the closet door. If the wires were tripped the door would open and a paint gun would fire paint pellets at the intruder. Unfortunately for the residents, paint guns are considered an unlawful firearm and they could have been charged for possession of such a weapon. Residence Life is handling the disciplining of the residents instead, Newcombe said.

Theft:
Dec. 5, 1991 10:15 - 11:15 a.m. Two female students reported their wallets stolen from Panzer Gymnasium during Volleyball class.
Dec. 5, 1991 1:00 - 2:00 p.m. A female student left her wallet unattended in the ladies room on the fourth floor of the Student Center. She later found it turned in later that day, but $65 in cash, her driver’s license and library card were missing.
Dec. 10, 1991 7:15 - 7:20 p.m. A female student reported her wallet stolen from The Montclair office. Suspect was described as a black male, mid to late 20’s, high cheekbones and squinty eyes, wearing a light jacket. Sgt. Newcombe of Campus Police said that this description is similar to others involving thefts of late.

Theft of Motor Vehicles:
Dec. 1, 1991 9:30 p.m. - 3:30 p.m. on Dec. 6. A 1980 Toyota Corolla was stolen from Lot 30.
Dec. 10, 1991 8:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m. A student reported a 1990 Honda Accord stolen from Lot 9.
Oct. 12, 1991 Campus Police received information from East Orange Police Department that the car was recovered. It was used in an armed robbery, five occupants of the vehicle were arrested and their firearms were confiscated.
Dec. 10, 1991 4:30 p.m. - 2:30 a.m. on Dec. 11. A 1984 Mazda RX7 was stolen from lot 23.

Harassment:
Dec. 6, 1991 Two female residents of Bohn Hall complained about a male caller who identifies himself as Bob. The caller asks for the residents by name and asks them to meet with him. When they don’t comply with his requests he repeatedly calls back and curses them out. According to Sgt. Newcombe there are reports of a “Bob” leaving messages on girls’ doors in Bohn as well.

Criminal Mischief:
Dec. 8, 1991 4:20 a.m. A 1987 Ford Van parked in Lot 21 had a window broken, nothing was stolen. The van belonged to a visitor. The vehicle was arrested.
Dec. 9, 1991 12:00 p.m. Female resident of Blanton Hall reported that her 1982 Blue Jeep had its rear window smashed while parked in lot 13.

CAMPUS POLICE REPORT
compiled by Karl Lombek

SHOOTING
by Rd Galarza

Student Affairs President Jean Armstrong reaffirmed MSC’s opposition to arming Campus Police Officers at last week’s SGA meeting.

Armstrong’s comments were made as negotiations between Campus Police and Administration officials continued.

Interim Vice President of Student Affairs Dr. Domenica Desi supports the administration’s position. “I don’t think AGONLINE should carry guns,” she said. “I don’t think there’s a need for that kind of violence.”

Campus Police officials declined to comment on Armstrong’s remarks.

At least three of nine state colleges in New Jersey, Jersey City State, Stockton State, and Kean College, allow campus police to carry firearms.

Ramapo College Police Sgt. Randy Merced said Ramapo does not permit police force to carry weapons because of fiscal shortcomings. But, he added, “Stockton State does. It lets them carry weapons because they have to respond to local calls as well.”

Sgt. Joseph Henderson of the William Paterson College Campus Police force said there is no difference between campus officers and county or municipal officers. “We train the same way,” we have to qualify with the pistol at least twice a year...starting next year we’ll have to qualify four times per year.” As it stands, WPC police occasionally carry firearms. “We’re armed at certain locations. Basically, when we’re dealing with money...the book store, registradone depends on the quality of the gun; there are more expensive guns that shoot at a higher velocity that will do more damage, and there are cheaper ones that won’t do any damage.

He also said that with a BB or pellet gun, you need a license for it as a normal gun and the same penalties for not having one apply.

BB or pellet guns are used mostly for target practice or shooting vermin.

“It’s nerve racking that we have things going in and out of the buildings that could be used as a weapon or perceived as one,” Martin said.

Examination Notes
1. All examinations are to be held in the regularly assigned classroom. In cases where more than one room is involved, the location of the exam will be the same as the first room of a series (e.g., a course meeting MWF in different rooms will have the exam in the M room).
2. Courses scheduled for 75 minutes and which begin on the half hour are to follow the exam schedule for the preceding hour (e.g., a course meeting TR 0930am-1045am will follow the exam period for courses with the first meeting day on T or R at 0900am).
3. Students with a time conflict in their exam schedule should immediately notify each faculty member involved and make arrangements to reschedule one of the exams.

Class One Budget Appropriations

Every undergraduate at MSC pays $3 a credit toward SGA fees. These fees are used to fund the operations of all Class One organizations. By the time a full-time student graduates, he or she can expect to have paid about $300 in fees for these organizations.

PLAYERs

Players is an organization that offers students the opportunity to participate in all phases of theatrical production. Pull-scale productions are presented each year. Players also sponsors theatre trips to New York City and presents workshops by guest artists. According to Vice-President Melissa Bentley, Players consists of seven board members and 18 voting members.

Conference

Players sends representatives to the ACTF (American Collegiate Theatre Fest). Bentley said, which is being held this year in Muhlenberg College (Allentown, Pa.). They are elected from shows we've done. They compete for scholarships in acting, set design, and any other aspects of theatre," she explained.

This year Players is sending five members: four actors and one scene designer, she said. ’We couldn’t afford to send anyone else,” Bentley explained. ‘For example, I, the director of the play, but there wasn’t enough money for me to go with them.’

The line is used to pay for the registration fee, hotel accommodations, and to provide expenses (gas and food) for the representatives, Bentley said. In regards to the expenses, Bentley explained that the participants have to budget their food expenses daily, since they are all given $15 for food each day.

Construction

This line is used primarily for set construction, Bentley explained. ‘That’s for the purchase of lumber and anything that may go along with it, such as door frames, window frames, and moldings," she said.

Bentley explained that the materials are recycled from show to show, but they are also in need of frequent replacement. “Our storage space is minimal, since we use the ‘catacombs’ in the basement of Life Hall. We’ve had problems there with people going there and taking what they want as well as the dampness down there affecting the wood,” she said, explaining why replacement is needed.

Costumes

“We do have basic costumes,” Bentley said, “but much of it is thrift shop quality.” She explained that Players does buy costumes from thrift shops as it is needed, but that it also uses the line to purchase material to make costumes and to rent special costumes as well.

Bentley also explained that the organization tries to conserve this line throughout the fall in order to use it during the spring for their musical production.

Lights

Players rents lighting equipment and instruments for many of its productions, Bentley said. The amount of equipment rented depends upon the size of the stage being used, she noted. “We rent everything: poles, pole stands, cables, a dimmer pack,” she explained.

Office Expenses

As with all organizations, Players uses this line to purchase all supplies (pens, paper, etc.) that are necessary to run the day-to-day operations of the organization.

Postage

This line is used by all organizations to cover the costs involved in mailing official correspondence.

Professional Services

This line is used to pay for all services and special arrangements that the members of Players can not perform themselves, Bentley said. That would include bands and musicians for the musical production, any "outside" directors, campus electricians for connecting the lighting and sound systems, and to bring professionals to MSC to give workshops, she said.

Publicity

This line is used to help cover the cost of any calls made that are related to official business.

Telephone

Players explained that campus electricians must be hired for each production to hook up all lights. She also explained that the electrician is necessary if a production requires more sound or power hook-ups.

New Student Orientation

“This year we didn’t use that line,” Bentley explained. She described how Players normally uses the line to advertise its organization on campus. This year Players used a supply of pre-printed flyers that was still available from an earlier printing, she said.

Is It Enough?

“That’s a tough question, since we are trying to re-organize,” Bentley said. “It has been enough for this year, so we are only asking for a $450 raise in next year’s budget, which I feel is a pretty reasonable request.”
HUMAN RELATIONS ORGANIZATION (HRO) .......... $13,475

HRO serves students with training sessions in group dynamics and psychological development. HRO sponsors a weekend event twice a year; on-campus seminars, and group interaction during both the spring and fall semesters. According to Glenn Laniewski, HRO president, the organization currently has 11 members.

TELEPHONE ................................................................. $450

All Class One organizations maintain a telephone appropriation line to be used for all calls related to official business.

OFFICE SUPPLIES ..................................................... $325

As with all other Class One organizations, this allocation is used to provide adequate supplies for continued operation. Pens, paper, and other miscellaneous items are paid for from this fund.

PROGRAMMING WORKSHOP ....................................... $2,200

"That fund goes for the workshops we provide for students that focus on communication, leadership, group dynamics, and/or personal awareness," Laniewski said. He listed the different workshops that HRO provides, which included roommate workshops, psychodramas, and visualization workshops.

"Basically our workshops are to help students improve their communication skills on their jobs, with their parents, and with their friends," Laniewski said. He explained that HRO often works with other groups on these workshops, such as SILC and Residence Life.

"Each workshop runs in the area of $240 to $250 all together," Laniewski said. He acknowledged that this includes the cost of publicity for the event, which is itself limited by the funds available. "We've had to cut back on publicity for some of our workshops, simply because we can't afford it," he said, saying that this has affected attendance at its events.

THE WEEKEND ........................................................... $8,250

"This is our biggest event, and probably our most misunderstood event," Laniewski said. He explained that The Weekend is a weekend long workshop held twice a year in which students learn how to more effectively deal in a group setting and develop effective communication skills and abilities to deal with others.

According to Laniewski, the costs for the event include lodging ("Approximately $2,500 a year for food and lodging") at a camp owned by East Stroudsberg University, in Stony Acres, Pennsylvania; four professional trainers ($400 each); a professional staff psychologist ($450); and transportation (by bus, approximately $800 for the weekend).

"We don't pay them (the counselors) a lot of money," Laniewski said, "They could make a lot more for the entire weekend." He gave as an example the potential for the psychologist to make in excess of $1000 for the equivalent in office hours. He also explained that the trainers for the event had at the least a Masters degree in either counseling, psychology, or some other related field.

"This is for the entire weekend," Laniewski said, "From an event standpoint, it's a lot of money, but from the hours spent and all that is learned, it is a very valuable experience."

PUBLICITY ............................................................................. $1,100

Laniewski explained how the publicity line is used to promote HRO. "It basically deals with promotional items, such as pens and t-shirts," he said, "any type of promotion or publicity to generate attention for the organization." He said that the line is used almost exclusively to point attention to the organization, and that a portion of the money is used during both the fall fest and spring week events for that purpose.

RESOURCE CENTER ......................................................... $400

The resource center serves as the programming library for HRO, Laniewski said, describing how it is used for resource management and for planning new workshops. "We get different books on planning workshops," he said, telling how the books give examples of different workshops and how to run them.

BANQUET ............................................................................ $300

Laniewski told how this line is used to provide a semi-formal banquet for HRO members at the end of each year, at which awards are given to outstanding members. In addition, he explained that new officers for the organization are sworn in at that time.

NEW STUDENT ORIENTATION ....................................... $350

"This line is used to drum up support in the summer for new students," Laniewski said. He explained that some promotional items are purchased for use at that time, as well as an introductory workshop for new students. He also said that HRO plans to work with CLUB in having a "rush" mixer in the spring semester to help "drum up" new members.

CAMPUS LEADERSHIP FUND ............................................. $525

"We didn't get this fund this year," Laniewski explained. According to him, following discussion last year with the SGA Legislature it was decided that it was better not to use this fund. Instead it was transferred to other appropriation lines, such as The Weekend, he said.

IS IT ENOUGH?

"Not really," Laniewski said. "We definitely need more money in our programming workshop line to adequately program as well as publicize our events. It's one of the things that has held us back this year," he added.

CHRISTMAS: WHOOPPEE, Fa La Dee Da

This is like the year Intellivision re­placed Atari. As a generation, we lost our innocence the day we saw the T.V. commer­cical or newspaper ad that proclaimed there was something better than that oddly shaped box that came complete with two phallic controllers and "Combat." Bleep, Bloop.

It was only the year earlier that we had begged our parents, pleaded without mercy, for the acme of all Christmas presents, the Atari 2600. Without it, our lives were surely to come to a horrifying end. We would engage in desperate, compulsive fits of anxiety every night in December. As the faithful night of December 24 drew upon us, we found ourselves reeling with hallucinogenic mushrooms in a damp basement, toy company shoving new and improved versions of Atari down our collective throats. And we bought into it, boy, lock stock and barrel. No siree, Johnny has an Intellivision, so by God, I have to have one too. The beginning of the end, my fellow ur­chins.

Peculiar trends started to emerge. Macy's began tossing around garland and multi-colored lights somewhere in the middle of August. Reports of mad mothers maiming each other over Cabbage Patch Dolls were heard. Department store Santas started wigging out. We started to feel funny about watching the Peanut holiday special and crying over the scene where Charlie Brown decorates the runt Christmas tree. We watched the Mr. T goes to the North Pole special instead. We even started harboring resentment over the whole Santa Claus thing. Of egg nog and start chugging. When its 3/4 empty begin to gag uncontrollably and threaten to sue the poor pimply-faced clerk. Go on a save the mindeer march to liberate those unfortunate animals from the stigma of being forced to drag around drunk fat guys in bad suit. Douse the town Christmas tree in gasoline, strip down to your boxer, and set that baby ablaze. Dance around the flaming mass screaming: "MELT FROSTY, MELT YOU PAGAN PIG!"

Since there's really no point in running downstairs in your underwear on Christmas morning anymore, we, the Atari generation, have to find new means by which we can soak and revel in the so-called holiday spir­it. So, I have a few ill devised suggestions. Eat an entire box of those miniature candy canes you get from Woolworth's and lick somebody's face. Go to Krausser's and walk directly to the dairy aisle. Open a quart of egg nog and start chugging. When its 3/4 empty begin to gag uncontrollably and threaten to sue the poor pimply-faced clerk.

We, as students, looking down from majestic Mt. Montclair, stare numbly at our classmates, staring at the cows with a green palor, cursing in anger at the parents who only a year ago were in a state of eternal bliss after receiving the coveted Nintendo entertainment system, are drooling and gnawing at the bit over the new kid on the block, the Sega Super Duper Mega Mont­stros 16 Million Watt Advanced Mind Numbing Game System. Deja Vu. It just all seems very depressing.

It's very inconvenient. Some people work during the weekend they started putting up wreaths and mistletoe at Willowbrook. Our Christmas season has been inundated with cheesy Hallmark mugs and Santa's helpers sex lines featuring scantily clad elves parading in the virgin snow. Even Jimmy Stewart in It's A Wonderful Life looks a tad sick of the whole affair, especially when provided with a green pail, courtesy of Ted Turner's magical marker.

We, as students, looking down from majestic Mt. Montclair, stare numbly at our History of the Stratosphere textbooks, dreaming of sugar plums and fruitcake, but rather 1000 page thesis papers and our long lost uncle Visa. While back at the parental unit ranch, our younger brothers and sisters, who only a year ago were in a state of eternal bliss after receiving the coveted Nintendo entertainment system, are drooling and gnawing at the bit over the new kid on the block, the Sega Super Duper Mega Mont­stros 16 Million Watt Advanced Mind Numbing Game System. Yugoslavia in crisis: I.S.O. conference airs views

by Andrea Piccolino

Yugoslavia, the "Land of the South Slavs," was once a united country of Austria-Hungary and is now torn apart by the vicious battle between the Croatsians and the Serbians. This was the topic discussed on Fairleigh Dickinson University. He is the son of a famous artist from Croatia and belongs to a Serbian party. Mestrovic's views of the conflict was that both parties should respect each other's borders and forget what had happened in the past.

Professor Radmila Milentjecic, the second speaker, is head of the history department at City College of New York. Her views were to give the Croatsians their freedom on the condition that they leave the Serbians alone.

Daniel Marchishin was the third speaker. He is chairman of the New Jersey Governors Commission for East European History. From a Serbian perspective, Marchishin simply said to act as a mediator for the two other speakers.

The conference was organized by Raphael Foley, the President of the I.S.O. Over 100 people showed up. Half were students, half were non-students, and some were of Yugoslavian backgrounds. The crowd was eager to ask questions and state opinions about the battle. Fortunately, the night went well, not needing help from the security guards.

The conference brought the speakers who had investigated and researched the battle, in order to help bring International Awareness to MSC.

The History

The problem started after World War II, when Lithuania first claimed independence from Yugoslavia, as an independent city-state. Yugoslavia is now comprised of six republics: Macedonia, Croatia, Slovenia, Serbia, and Montenegro. Croatia has recently announced its wish to become an independent federation of Croatia. The Yugoslavian Government is mainly made up of Serbians, but they have no objections towards letting Croatia become independent. However, the problem of freeing Croatia is a conflict between the Serbian border and the Croatian party. Making conceptions real through technology and mousetraps

by Michael T. Bleeker

What is technology? A VCR? A television? A spaceship? If you think so, you're wrong. Technology is a process, not a product. Technology is a "learn-by-doing" course. Students must actually fabricate technological devices to solve identified problems. Patricia Maguire, an industrial technology major, said, "Trying to come up with a creative solution is really a profound lesson: there is a tremendous difference between what you can conceive and what will work.

The ultimate goal of the class is to give students a problem they may have previously perceived as impossible to solve. This is a "learn-by-doing" course. Students must actually fabricate technological devices to solve identified problems.

Professor Roman Russer, program director, said, "One of the most positive aspects of our endeavor was teamwork and test, test, tests. Whatever you think is easy is usually very difficult. Everyone one said, You can't do that, but we did it!"

The design in the competition were as varied as the experiences brought to the class by the students. Some students used pure muscle by building devices with low-gear ratios to produce a great amount of torque. Others applied the concepts of inertia and momentum to move their opponent. Success demanded that the students design, build, test, communicate and estimate on a continual basis. The students learned rapidly a profound lesson: there is a tremendous difference between what you can conceive and what will work.

Volunteers should call 609-530-5003 and ask for Prince Koseff, promotions manager (ext. 5252) or Hope Wooten, director of Radio (ext. 5252). Radio experience helps, but not a must.

On Saturday, February 1, 1992, the College Bowl will be held in the Student Center. It is open to everyone on campus. Come as a team of four or by yourself. A lot like Jeopardy, it has two teams of four, in which both compete in different subject matters such as math, history, geography, pop culture, the arts, science.... For more information or to sign up call extension 4678 and ask for Tony. Leave message.
Gifts for the clueless

by Sheryl Karosen

Having problems deciding what to get someone for Christmas? Do you not know the person well? Are you forced to buy a gift because of your job? Well, stop your relentless gift shopping! Everyone will be thanking you.

GENERAL GIFT IDEAS

• Gift certificates to any of the following:
  - the person's favorite restaurant
  - any fast food joint
  - mall stores (clothing, jewelry, sporting goods, bookstores, etc.)
  - record stores (Goody go got it!)

• gloves

• Christmas items - things you only see at this time of year:
  - Does the person like a certain sport? Say they like tennis? You can buy them a bowl-a-thon
  - cart item (useless or useful)

• scarves

• slippers

• puzzles (most people can appreciate a good puzzle, and I don't mean just jigsaw)
  - blank tapes, either video or audio (check out the 10ers or the Fuji Extratapes)

• something handy; look in those little Harriet Carter books your parents get something extremely common but made in a very unique way (look around)

• batteries (if you're desperate, wrap up a nice little bundle of AA's, 9-volts, C's and D's. At least you know they'll be used.)

• notebooks, pads or post-its

• stationery (everyone writes letters; well, they should)

• an umbrella

• cash and a card!

Here's the address for a magazine that's out of this world. Even if you can't find any gift ideas (you should), you'll find at least 5 things that you want. You receive your order in about a week, but occasionally things are back-ordered, so take that into account and order early.

Yaohan: a new experience

by Sheryl Karosen

For Americans going to this mall for the first time, it is like a slap in the face. It is literally a shock, but a pleasant one, for the Japanese are wonderful people. I'm sure they wouldn't mind if, upon entering Pony Toy-Go-Round, you were to stop dead in your overmatched tracks and exclaim "Wahh!" After spending an hour at this mall, you may begin to think that you're in Japan, simply because of all the Japanese products. The mall consists of the following:

- Kinkukia: a book store featuring all Japanese books, comics and cards
- A connected stores: a golf shop, Pony Toy-Go-Round and an electronics store which do resemble stores you'd see in Willowbrook; although Pony has many great Japanese toys and model kits (like Termanto- tor 2).
- A jewelry store
- A beauty salon (on top of the book store)
- Yaohan supermarket: a huge store where you will find both Japanese and American food products, as well as household goods. Sit down and enjoy the hot food from the various Japanese food stands.
- A fancy restaurant called Chinzan So; around $15-4 plate range.

The candy at the supermarket may not be the same as at home, but the things that come with it and the package designs more than make up for the lack of variety.

When shopping at Yaohan, I strongly suggest that you do not buy products that are totally printed in English, because you will find them cheaper elsewhere.

Parking is adequate, and when it fills up, there are always people leaving. The super- market closes after the other stores, which last I knew closed at 7 p.m. weekdays and 8 p.m. Saturdays. Yaohan is located on River Road in Edgewater, right by the George Washington Bridge. The main phone number is 201-941-9113.

I will now give you lucky ducks directions, which are very simple. Get your little car onto Route 80 East. When 80 splits into express and local, stay to the right (local). Get off at Exit 70 - Leonia/Port Lee. The exit goes straight or right; you go right. You will be on this road for at least 15 minutes. It's a bunch of different things; it finally becomes River Road. Anyway, you will go through nine lights on this road altogether. For the first seven the road is uphill. Then you go down this awful curve and see what looks like a forest. The next two lights will be coming up (highlight: Billy B's on your right (or Billy's if you prefer) and a movie theater). Yaohan will be on your left; look for the white and green globe-like logo (see below). Oh yeah, the place is full, and I mean FULL, of cops. Talk about security. All you need to shop at Yaohan is a car full of gas and a mentality full of respect.

Library be-in; students take over

Sprague Library is odd in that its holdings, it is the second largest among the state colleges, but if you count the hours it is open per week, it is next to last. It doesn’t make any sense. Why put money into holdings when there is hardly enough people to shovel the books? An example of the mentality that is behind the problem is shown in Vice President of Finance Tom Auch’s explanation of why an extra $200,000 was given to library acquisitions and not for hiring desperately needed personnel, when he said, “With books, if you buy them, you have them. It’s not like you have to keep paying people every year.” Is there something basically wrong with this logic?

Another aspect of the library that seems contradictory: why are we expanding a building the school can’t even keep open for adequate hours? They ripped some trees out of the ground and destroyed a fountain, a piece of artwork for some unfortunate reason no one seems to miss, to make room for the unnecessary expansion.

Well, if the expansion can’t be stopped, at least students can expect reasonable library hours. And the students took their first step in securing that right by taking over the library and keeping it open all night on Dec. 11.

If people were expecting a violent protest with book burnings and the college president being burned in effigy by drug crazed and rabid students, they were mistaken. Though such tactics do get the message across, this case was different. The stressed students who are facing a rapidly closing deadline on the semester just wanted some more time and a chance to study. And over 300 students peacefully used the library during the time students kept it open, proving the need for expanded library hours. The reason for the large turnout with their final exams, the Board of Trustees approved a 9.5% salary increase for college president Irvin Reid. This raise comes at a time when MSC is saddled with budgetary cutbacks and reductions in services. Why is it that while the rest of the campus is tightening its belt, President Reid is letting out his trousers? Does MSC exist to serve its students, or do its students exist to serve MSC and its hierarchy?

It seems ridiculous for the president of the college to receive such a hefty raise in the middle of a faculty/staff hiring freeze, a freeze in which positions that become vacant are left unfilled. Did last year’s 10% raise not sufficiently fill Reid’s presidential cupboards?

To his credit, President Reid has developed strategies to deal with the tough times ahead. Unfortunately, they are strategies he does not apply to himself. In a memo which Reid issued to the campus community on Dec. 10, he stated, “The situation for the current year, as well as next year, is so fluid that we must make additional contingency plans to cope with diminishing resources.” To cope with these diminishing resources, further diminished by Reid’s almost $9,000 raise, the president suggested the “implementation of fiscal controls.” Fiscal controls which would be reviewed by a “broad representation of the campus community.”

Apparentely these “fiscal controls” do not apply to Reid’s own salary increase; nor does the assurance of student representation in such matters. In fact, Paul Prior, the sole student vote on the Board of Trustees, wasn’t even informed of the figures of the proposed salary increase until the meeting in which it was voted on was underway. As Price aptly puts it, “It’s hard to make a decision without being in on a situation.”

Reid defends his salary increase by pointing out that, although MSC is the largest state college in New Jersey, her salary as college president is the second lowest. A seemingly sound defense, until one finds that, although MSC is the largest state college in New Jersey, the operating hours of Sprague Library are the second shortest in the state. It all boils down to a matter of priorities. In Reid’s case, those priorities seem misplaced.

Seasons Givings

As I was sitting at my computer wondering what to write about this week, I almost haphazardly began to pay attention to the music playing on my stereo. It is James Taylor's Sweet Baby James which sadly reminds me of a previous best friend who presently has a heroin addiction. Said addiction abrogates our friendship. We are no longer practicing friendship. He has a suddenly sunken, sucked in look, no longer being as impervious as we once was. Yes, an intentional grammatical faux pas but, an intentional, grammatical fox paw that flows fluidly..."as we once was". Ah youth...invincible, bullet-proof, to cheer up, the beat you know. Now I know, that I don't, divorce, me in love, she not. But you, haven't a clue, what this may or may be about. No I won't clear it up, I'm not the type to kiss and tell. I think. Which often presents a problem. Sometimes I think I can write, sometimes I think I am in love, sometimes I think too much. I guess the possibility of falling in love is in itself a gift, even if the love is inherently problematic.

Seems some­thing

In its essence or in its baser desire the impetus for love is in itself indicative of having the capacity for love. Personally the aforesaid capacity for love or loving capacity was not always present. Today it is revered as the wonderful gift that truly is. Yes there was a time when I was impossibly invincible, benignly bulletproof, damnned drunk and inca­pable of love. Most days I did not even like myself let alone love...Today, presently perhaps, momentarily, I am okay with me, I like myself som­times. So today, I do love myself. I suppose, pre­sume, postulate that this column will be self con­sumed with love in a decidedly self serving and self revealing sort of way.

My original intention was to compose a column chock full of Christmas cheer. Sort of an altruistic wish list, you know like peace on earth, understanding one another a life full of love. Yes love, refreshingly irrational, even magical, revered by the romantic in me. Seems what ever funny even in­appropriate in this fast paced, recessionary world what sort of deal about peace and love understanding? Growing up I honestly believed that love was all you needed to live happily ever after. And that if you loved someone, you were desired because desirous of love. In some people drink to get happy, I drank, ostensibly to achieve the desired effect, actually I drank whenever I was awake, I continuously made wrong decisions. In fact, the only reason I drank was because I thought drunk girls would be easier. Easier yes, but, as emotionally unavailable as I once was. Perhaps still am. Wish I wasn't. Hope I'm not. Don't want to be.

Perhaps the first time that the students recognized this power was when the Conservation Club demanded that the trees of the library be saved. They gathered around the endangered trees and fought for the trees' right to life. In factually the only protest I witnessed was because I thought drunk girls would be easier. Easier yes, but, as emotionally unavailable as I once was. Perhaps still am. Wish I wasn't. Hope I'm not. Don't want to be.

I honestly believe that love is in all you need corres­pondingly, subsequently, or simply, I wish you all love and...After all, it is all you need.

Do students matter?

Students are what matter on this campus. Without the students there would be no teachers, no administration, no buildings, no money, no school. This prestige gives the students a lot of power. They control the SG and, through it, Class One organizations which program scholastic and entertaining events for the community of the school. Students are teachers are that they don't like and have the ability to change them so that they do like them. Things are not always as good as they seem however.

Last year Bohn Hall was robbed. The students who paid $361 a month to live there lost thousands of dollars. The action was probably an inside job. Because students matter, the issue would not be taken to the administration by holding a sit-in on a Saturday. The students didn't want this. The students voiced their opinions to the administration by holding a sit-in on a Saturday. The demonstration was a success that on Monday the library was open all night. It did not close for the first time in its history, because of the students. Students not only matter but they also have power.

Perhaps the first time that the students recognized this power was when the Conservation Club demanded that the trees of the library be saved. They gathered around the endangered trees and fought for the trees' right to life. In factually the only protest I witnessed was because I thought drunk girls would be easier. Easier yes, but, as emotionally unavailable as I once was. Perhaps still am. Wish I wasn't. Hope I'm not. Don't want to be.

I honestly believe that love is in all you need correspondingly, subsequently, or simply, I wish you all love...After all, it is all you need.

Happy Holidays!

Students' semester wrap-up

By now we suppose you have noticed the fence between you and the center of campus due to the construction of the library addition. This and the access road are two projects of the college's master plan. These and future projects are financed by the JEC Bond Act of 1988. These are state funds specifically set aside for construction at New Jersey state colleges.

Since the recession has resulted in contract bids at lower costs than originally expected, now is an opportune time for MSC to contract with various construction companies. Because of this, the master plan is proceeding significantly under the original budget.

Unfortunately, the addition to the library has resulted in the loss of 11 large trees. However, approximately 50 new trees and bushes will be planted in this area. Furthermore, as a result of its protest, the Conservation Club will be helping to oversee the replacement of trees on this and future projects.

On Sunday, October 6th, the Board of Trustees held an off-campus retreat. The board retreat is an annual occurrence, the primary purpose of which is to evaluate the progress of MSC in relation to its five year plan set forth by Dr. Irvin D. Reid. Also, at this particular retreat, the contracts to construct a new academic building in parking lot 13 were awarded. Like the library and access road contracts, these contracts cost significantly less than originally expected.

LETTER...

Library Director unconcerned with student input

So there I was along with hundreds of other students, writing a paper at the Sprague Library study-in Wednesday night. It was late, maybe 12:30 or 1:00 a.m. I had missed dinner, but I wasn't upset about that. I had more important things on my mind. I was upset about the study-in. At the risk of insulting Mrs. Joans-Tren's intelligence, did she think perhaps the students were there to fight a tuition hike? Protest a war? Cry for rain forests? I don't know which memo she did not get, but fliers all over campus, chalked sidewalks, announcements in residence halls and the proclamation from the Student Government Association President sent through E-mail all clearly stated that the intention of the study-in was to protest the cutsbacks in library services and hours. What other purpose could there possibly be besides to show student concern over this situation?

When a concerned student asked Mrs. Joans-Tren if she had pursued certain avenues to increase her staff and confronted her about possible solutions that she may consider, her response was, "Have you taken any management ideas or possible solution to a campus problem."

I was always under the impression that decisions of students' concerns, support and input were vital for a healthy campus community. After spending 10 hours in the library Wednesday night, Mrs. Bernice Joans-Tren repeatedly convinced me that she has little or no concern for the student input. I feel that Mrs. Joans-Tren handled the situation poorly, without professionalism or good communication skills. It frightens me, as it should all students, to learn that a person with this attitude is capable of obtaining such an important position.

Letter to the Editor:

Offense taken from "gross generalizations"

Upon reading the letters in last week's issue of The Montclarion, I noticed a letter written by a Mr. Mike House, responsible for printing what is news. Dr. Jeffries is a controversial man and it is only natural that his controversial statements are printed in the newspaper. However, a couple of gross generalizations must be addressed. First, the signers of the anti-Jeffries petition are not the majority of the protesters against Dr. Jeffries. The claims against the signers of the anti-Jeffries petition are baseless and do not reflect the true nature of the protest. The problems arise from the implementation of the black power movement in the U.S. The day we change the right of freedom of speech to "Do as I say or else," everything will be a nightmare. Might I add, the ancient Egyptians, the Chinese, the black racism that is so significant, and sharply on the increase, in the U.S. In fact, Jeffries' own theories have profoundly anti-black implications, little different from those of the Ku Klux Klan.

Jeffries teaches that black creativity comes from mela­nimic people. He says if a black does not have the means to protect his preserved power for the U.S. and a largely light-skinned Haitian elite, blacks teach that blacks can have self-respect only because their ancestors — for example, the ancient Egyptian pharaohs and their servants — were black and "great." Again, this is historical nonsense. Even if it were true, this would be anti-black in Jeffries' own self-respect and claim to dignity is based upon the great deeds of their remote ancestors, then they should also feel shame for their ances­tor's atrocities.

Jeffries' statement, like ancient Judea, Athenian Greece or Rome was an oppressive, slave-owning empire. All the "grandeur" of these cultures was built upon brutal, degrad­ing exploitation. Scientists like Imhotep and priests like Pharaohs paid for their "glory" through the slavery of their""

I support those persons who had the courage to sign a petition that they agreed upon. That was their message and they had every right to communi­cate it, just as Dr. Jeffries has a right to send his message. noncontroversial ones. While I agree that it would be a mistake if his positive statements were not addressed, the controversy about the speaker was the main topic. Might I add, I did not attend the Harvest Ball, not because I was afraid or ignorant, but finding a job so I would be able to afford to continue to attend MSC was a little higher on my priority list.

Number three: Freedom of speech is a right I stand behind in the fullest. The founding fathers may have indeed been racist, but I believe that the leaders of today are a little wiser than they were back then. Also, I support the right of anyone to propagate for her mind, as long as it is not matter harmful or offensive. The signers of the anti-Jeffries petition are not the majority of the protesters against Dr. Jeffries. Jeffries, and other nationalists like him, do an invaluable service for the racist U.S. elite. By attacking multi-racial unity, they set up blacks for continued exploitation and oppression.

Dr. Reid's evaluation makes it difficult to take a position about him. The evaluation of Dr. Reid is considered to be a Personnel matter, and thus the Board of Trustees. Furthermore, a student perspective is a fundamental principle that may not be offended by other board members. We are not advocating a movement in which student input will not be overlooked in this and other pertinent board matters.

At the November meeting, the grade dispute between Professor Barbara Chasin and James Lloyd was presented to the board. In defense of Lloyd, the board advocated that Professor Chasin follow the intent of the law passed by the N.J. State Legislature despite the infringement on academic freedom. However, the board does not advocate the State Legislature making laws that infringe on collegiate autonomy and academic freedom.

The next board meeting is on Thursday, December 12 at 4:30 p.m. Among the issues to be discussed is the proposed increase of President Reid. However, being excluded from Dr. Reid's evaluation makes it difficult to take a position on this issue at this time. Our decision will be pending upon the justification of this salary increase.
Star Trek journeys onward
by Tom Boud

Star Trek VI: The Undiscovered Country is Paramount Studio's finest endeavor yet at perpetuating what started as an avant-garde TV series that barely survived into a third season and ended up becoming the greatest sci-fi phenomenon in history. (Note: besides the original 79 episodes which aired from Sept 1966 to June 1969, there are also 22 animated episodes that ran between 1973-1974, The Next Generation sequel series with over 100 episodes, to say nothing of six movies still following the adventures of the original TV cast.)

This time around, Nicholas Meyer is in the director's chair. He perfectly blends together Shakespearean philosophy, outer space combat, neat special effects, political intrigue, betrayal, mystery, witty humor, and colorful character interplay to come up with a cinematic cocktail more powerful than Romulan ale.

Stardate 9521.6, one huge chunk of the Klingon moon Praxis goes Hiroshima, sending interstellar shockwaves that nearly topple the starship Enterprise commanded by newly promoted Captain Sulu (George Takei). This same disaster threatens the very existence of the Federation-Klingon peace agreement is coming to dine aboard the Enterprise.

Consequently, a reluctant James T. Kirk and company travel 1,000 light years to the starship Enterprise, Excelsior, Bird of Prey, and the trusty universal translator.

Regarding other roles, Sulu (George Takei) does a fine job as captain of the Excelsior. He comes across as tactfully assertive and besides, it's nice to see him in a totally different role for once. David Warner's rendition of Chancellor Gorken isn't bad (note how close Gorken is to Gorbachev) although his part in Trek IV is small. Lastly, there is Kim Cattrall who pulls it off as Lt. Valerie, a Vulcan officer very much like the Lt. Saavik character seen in Trek II, III, and briefly in IV. By the way, I wonder what has become of Saavik these days?

Picaroon, Director Meyer knew what he was doing. He took the central idea of a Federation-Klingon peace attempt that went sour and spiced it up with a brilliant twist. Along the way, Meyer's direction takes you to a rauous Klingon court to the depths of a Klingon gulag, and to a faceoff between the Enterprise, Excelsior, and a Bird of Prey that can fire even when clipped. There is additionally one great scene where Kirk fights an alien who uses its ability to assume Kirk's form.

All in all, Meyer, who also directed the blockbuster Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan, has succeeded at putting together the best Trek flick yet. With all the right elements in all the right quantities, Trek VI: The Undiscovered Country is definitely worth visiting. Note Spock's (Leonard Nimoy) remark near the movie's end about Starfleet's order that the Enterprise's crew be decommissioned: "If we were human, my response would be to go to hell." Trek VII perhaps ...

It took Galileo 16 years to master the universe. You have one night.

It seems unfair. The genius had all that time. While you have a few short hours to learn your sun spots from your satellites before the dreaded astronomy exam.

On the other hand, Vivarin gives you the definite advantage. It helps keep you awake and mentally alert for hours. Safely and conveniently. So even when the subject matter's dull, your mind will stay razor sharp.

If Galileo had used Vivarin, maybe he could have mastered the solar system faster, too.

Rush rolls bones at Madison Square Garden
by Mark Belnay

Well, there I was driving down Seventh Avenue trying to find a parking space that looked somewhat safe thinking about the next two-hours I would spend in the dark with 20,000 people listening to one of the most influential bands of the last 15 years...RUSH. I finally found a space and was walking towards the Garden when I glanced at my watch and was astonished to find that it was already nine o'clock. I had 15 minutes until the show was to begin...I fought my way up numerous staircases and finally reached my seat...They weren't that bad for $22.50...I had just removed my coat and sat down when the lights went out...This was it...RUSH!!! I thought of the last time I saw them, two years ago at the Arena for the Presto tour, and wished they were as good this time around. I guess my wish was answered because they were better...

I only started to follow RUSH again a couple of years ago so I don’t consider myself anywhere near the level of the hardcore followers who surround me, but I yelled just as loud when the first notes of such classic as “Limelight”, “Tom Sawyer”, and “Subdivision” came blasting through the sound system. Perhaps the greatest memory I’ll hold of the show will be when “Closer to the Heart” was played simulta­neously with nearly everyone in the audience lighting up the darkened Garden with the flames from their lighters.

I’ve never been into drum solos, but Neil Peart’s solo midway through the concert literally left me feeling drained. The man is, in a word, amazing...I can honestly say that in all the concerts that I’ve gone to, and believe me I could most likely buy a small car with the money I’ve spent on tickets, it was the first time I uttered a cheer after a solo from the man behind the drum set...

I know that most concert reviews are a basic listing of the songs played and whether or not the group performed up to par of past performances, but this is not one of those reviews...I’m sick of reading Rolling Stone reviews where they make it seem like you have to be born and raised on the band’s music to understand anything the article is talking about so I’ll take a differing approach.

This concert was GREAT!!!! Their full catalogue of music was displayed with songs such as “Time Stand Still”, “Freewill”, “Distant Early Warning”, and “Red Barcheta” screaming through the amps as the lasers pierced the darkness of the night. “Dreamline” and the title track of their newest album, Roll the Bones satisfied the desires of those of us who came to hear the newest material from this Canadian band.

Not since Operation Desert Storm has an issue dominated CNN and network news airtime than the William Kennedy Smith rape trial. I wouldn’t be surprised if the trial proceedings begin popping up in the Nielsen Top 10. People are, believe it or not, tuning out of soaps and other programming to see if one witness’ credibility, but what about the victim? She remains undaunted, the case is still open, and the game’s afoot.

I, for one, am in favor of the victim. Number one, no one ever asks to be raped. Number two, I wouldn’t mind watching the untouchable, high-and-mighty Kennedy clan falling a notch or three. They’ve got a bit too big for their britches, and deserve a decent public spanking. The trouble is, if Willie is found guilty, no big deal. The major ones in the family are still there—JFK, Jr., the lovely senator, they all will be there after the smoke clears. Oh, well. Maybe when the Kennedys fall, Gotti will also be heading for the big house. I know, it’s unlikely.

Still, if you’d like to watch some real live L.A. Law, tune into Willie’s World. Learn how to not screw over (or with) a Kennedy.

Letters to The King

Ewing no "Pat"sy

Dear King,

Last week you dogged Patrick Ewing pretty hard, King. First off, I do agree that Ewing is overpaid, but the same can be said for many other players. Larry Bird did deserve some of his salary and that is commendable. I know that the two players are incomparable as far as accomplishments go, but due to the deferred money, Bird stands to make a cool $7 million and Ewing makes $10 million.

On to another issue, Ewing's rebounding. When Ewing was drafted first overall in the 1985 Draft, the Knicks needed his rebounding and his defense desperately. His frontcourt mates in his first few seasons included: marginal forward Pat Cummings, Louis Orr, and Bill Cartwright.

In those days, the Knicks needed Ewing to average no less than 11 or 12 rebounds per game. Then, in June, 1988, the Knicks traded Cartwright for Charles Oakley. Oakley has been one of the league's top five rebounders in his six seasons in the league. Also, to set the record straight, Ewing's rebounding average has risen in each of Oakley's three seasons with New York (9.3 pg in '89, 10.8 in '90 and 11.2 in '91). Now this season, add strong rebounding small-forward Xavier McDaniell, and newcomer Anthony Mason, and the Knicks don't need Ewing to be in the top five among the league's rebounders. It certainly wouldn't hurt, but it isn't a necessity.

Why does Ewing shoot more jump shots than foul shots? Pat does get manhandled in the paint by every center in the league. Also, as silly as it may sound, the 7'0" center is the least of the league's dominant centers.

Keith Idec

Keith, I'm not dogging Ewing. I'm just telling it like it is. I said Patrick is great, but he doesn't fall under the category of a dominant center. Dominant means averaging 25 points, 14 rebounds and three blocks a game. Pat has got two out of three. But more importantly, dominance translates into victories, and Ewing's got nothing worth bragging about here. Coming into this season, the Knicks have won 21 games with Ewing and 37 with him out. That's a 69% win Percentage. A man who earns that much money should carry his team to 50 wins.

To set the record straight, Keith, if the Knicks needed Patrick to average 12 rebounds a game in the beginning, how come he didn't average over 9.0 until 1989. Enough said.

I also admit Ewing takes jumpers because he is manhandled in the paint. How can a man, 240 lbs., be pushed out of the middle? The sad part here is, not only is it true, but it is the "lesser" centers that usually muscle Ewing around. Pat will outplay a Vlade Divac, or a Kevin Willis, but not by much. Then, against the Robinsons and Olajuwons, Ewing has to take backseat in head-to-head confrontations.

There is one man that no one ever talks about in terms of money or dominance, but he is the center I respect most in basketball, Robert Parish. This Celtic legend does a great job every night and holds his own against the other big men, especially Ewing. The Celtics don't need Parish to score or rebound as much because they're loaded with other players who can do that. That's the logic everyone, including you, Keith, uses with Ewing and the Knicks, but there is so much more to the game than just putting the ball in the basket.

When Ewing realizes this, maybe he'll have something to put in his trophy case other than his record setting check.

Front office to blame for Giants quick exit

Dear King,

It's quite obvious that the Giants are not going to get a chance to defend their Super Bowl title. We could blame Ray Handley, after all he is the coach. The defense did not play particularly well. The ground game was horrid and John McLaughlin has been the most inconsistent quarterback.

Personally, I think it all boils down to the front office. After Bill Parcells retired, Wellington Mara and Co. had a key position vacated. It came down to Bill Belichick, the offensive coordinator of the most feared defense in the NFL, or Ray Handley, offensive coordinator and odds-on favorite. Why is Handley the odds-on favorite? Politics. "It's not what you know, it's who you know," and Handley had been with the organization longer.

Football is a business, and when you allow politics to get in the way of business it produces a problem. Belichick, now Cleveland's head coach, has the Browns first in the NFL in turnover/giveaway ratio at +20.

Now I'm not putting the blame on Handley for the horrid season because he doesn't run or catch the ball. The defense was particularly bad this season. The middle linebacker Pepper Johnson, Gary Reasons and Steve DeOssie were virtually invisible.

I do not like the Giants, but I respect them because they play in our backyard. But I feel that the whole Giant organization is to blame and possibly it was a fluke that they won the Super Bowl.

I just want to leave you with a few things to think about. Ray Handley is capable of being a winner if he loses that conservative attitude. Also, don't be surprised if you see a couple very popular names on the Plan B list.

Hawk swim teams drown USMMA by 32

by Jim Klossek

What do we do for an encore? That question must have been running through the minds of both the men's and women's swim teams after they each chalked up decisive wins over United States Merchant Marine Academy (USMMA) last Wednesday night. The margin of victory for both teams was 32, with the men triumphing 130-98 and the women following suit 109-77.

The MSC men's team ended the night with four triple winners (someone who either won or had a hand in winning three events). Warren Towne led the foursome which also consisted of John Harding, John Miztak and Scott Fried in helping the Red Hawks up their record to 3-1.

Leading the way of Sweshbury, N.J., was particularly impressive winning both the 100 and 200-yard breaststroke events while also lending his talents to the winning relay team.

"We were very pleased with everyone's performance," said head coach Brian McLaughlin, "but Warren made the difference. We thought the meet would eventually come down to the final event, but after Warren won his two meets, everyone was able to breath a little easier. If he keeps this up he's definitely headed toward Division III status."

Among the other big winners was senior John "Duke" Harding who won two freestyle events and also participated on the winning relay team. "This feels great," said the Duke about the win. "It's what we've all been working for, and it's only going to get better, you wait and see."

The "Miztak Magic" continued to abound as both Andrew and John Miztak made their presence known once again by extending their teams that is quickly earning a reputation in college swimming circles. Especially impressive was John, a freshman out of South Orange, who has re-broken the 100-yard backstroke three times in the last month alone! This time around he was clocked at 55.4 seconds and according to coach McLaughlin we haven't seen anything yet.

"John could easily shave two seconds off that time by the end of the season," said the third year coach out of Central Connecticut. "He's just one of those gifted swimmers that come along once in a great while."

The MSC women's team also made a night of it at the Merchant Marine Mariner's expense. Leading the way for the Lady Hawks were juniors Susan Hoffman and Yardena Yadin, who won the fifth and third triple winners of the night for an MSC squad which seemingly could do no wrong. Between Hoffman and Yadin the women dominated both the butterfly and freestyle events.

"This was sincerely a team effort in every sense of the word," said Hoffman. "Everyone really chipped in to make it happen."

Among those who had a hand in the victory was newcomer Sara Dobol, whose arrival added some depth to a short-handed women's team, and made her season debut a successful one by capturing the 200-yard butterfly event.

"Sara arrived at just the right time," said coach McLaughlin. "I believe her addition to the team is going to be a very positive one."

Later, the coach summed up the dual victory this way, "As far as the men are concerned, they have arrived; there's no question about that. There's not a team in the conference that can afford to look beyond us in the swim schedule."

"The MSC presents a problem. Belichick, now Cleveland's head coach, has the Browns first in the NFL in turnover/giveaway ratio at +20."

"This was sincerely a team effort in every sense of the word," said Hoffman. "Everyone really chipped in to make it happen."

(See KING'S COURT page 30)
Two months. That's how long I had to wait. Two, long, almost never-arriving months.

In my basketball preview, I predicted the Philadelphia 76ers would win the Atlantic Division. I made that decision in early August. So when tickets went on sale for the 1991-92 season, on Oct. 7, I wasted no time in purchasing tickets for perhaps the best back-to-back games in recent memory. The Portland Trailblazers, the best team in the west, and the Chicago Bulls, the defending NBA champions, would be making a stop at The Spectrum in Philadelphia Dec. 6 and 7, respectively.

Imagine the intensity! Imagine the banging! Imagine the dunking! Just imagine! Back-to-back back-to-back games in recent memory.

The day finally came. Dec. 6 rolled around and I was as anxious as a child in a toy store. I left my house Friday at 1 p.m., but the weekend got off to a very auspicious beginning.

“Watch out for rubberecking on the New Jersey Turnpike south, in between exit 15 and 14, due to a disabled vehicle in the left lane.”

That was me! I ran over a nail and my tire was just about done. I felt like Fred Flintstone when his stone wheels used to break and get Philadelphia to do: Find Julius Erving’s house.

I just want to let everyone know, especially those who doubted me, VillanovA is a suburb of Philadelphia. It’s not just a college.

In any event, I travelled to the small suburb of Villanova, a rich area 15 minutes west of Philadelphia. I stopped at the first gas station I saw in Villanova. I asked the storeowner at the gas station if he knew where Dr. J lived. He said he could get me near his house, but he didn’t know the exact address. So he handed me a phonebook and said, “Look it up.” I looked at him shockingly and asked sarcastically, “Julius Erving is listed in the phonebook?”

Anyway, I went through the book quickly, ripping a few pages, until I came to “Erving.” Phil Erving! Who’s the hell is Phil Erving? I felt teased, but, fortunately, the man said to go to the post office right down the block.

To give you a little idea of how small VillanovA is, I entered a post office that was smaller than any MSC classroom. It had only one man working on a Saturday, less than three weeks before Christmas.

The man here was so helpful. I told him that I just travelled over three hours just to see Julius Erving’s house. The man gave me directions, gave me Doc’s address, he basically gave me everything but a guided tour of the Erving estate. I wish.

After 30 minutes of driving and turning and stopping and U-turning, I finally found his house. I made a right onto his block and one house later screamed, “That’s his house! That’s his house!”

I stopped the car, got out, raised my arms on my sides and spun around and around, similar to Julie Andrews in The Sound of Music.

I arrived! I made it to Doc’s house! To quote Mr. Erving himself, “The feeling was just fantastic!”

After a half-hour of taking pictures of his house, his servants’ house, his fire hydrant, and everything else, I decided to go back to Philly.

I got back in my car and noticed, as I looked out my rearview mirror, that someone was riding down the driveway. It was Julius’ 9-year-old son, Cory, on his bike, coming out to get the mail.

He is a good likeness of his father. The boy is at least 5’2”. I talked to him for a couple of minutes and he was very friendly. I asked him if I could take a picture of him. He smiled and said, “Okay.” After the flash, he closed the mailbox, smiled again, and said, “I’ll see you later.”

I couldn’t believe I had just met my lifelong hero’s son. I was just like a little kid, bouncing around in my car. All I kept saying was, “The license plate is now true: J’s house, I met his son.”

When I finally regained consciousness, I got back on R2, I headed for The Spectrum. I still had the Bulls game to go to.

Travelling north, I noticed, let’s just say less than 25-feet away from me, Sir Charles was wearing a walkman, so he couldn’t hear my constant honks and shouts. However, I did manage to get a red light up ahead, so I was able to stop and take a picture.

Cory Erving! Charles Barkley! What next?

I was so pumped that when I started to head, once again, back to The Spectrum, I saw The Philadelphia Museum of Art. I immediately took the exit. No, I didn’t go to look at any paintings! I did what everyone else has to do. I ran up the 98 steps that Sylvester Stallone ran up in Rocky’s I, II and V. You! It was great!

Just when you thought all the excitement was all over, there was still a basketball game to go to. The Bulls against the Sixers. It wasn’t Michael against Charles. Instead, it became Michael and Scottie against Hawkins and Gilliam.

Hawkins poured in 30 points and “The Hammer” added 29, including three free throws in the final .20 to give the Bulls- less 76ers a 103-100 victory over the defending NBA champs.

The game, which was the icing on the cake, ended and so did my weekend. But what a weekend it was. The two-month wait was well worth it.

Calling the Shots

Julius Erving has just inked a deal with The Taj Mahal, in Atlantic City, to meet Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in a one-on-one contest at The Taj Mahal in Atlantic City in February.

smaller and smaller. That’s the sound my tire was making. I had to have a cop stop traffic while my carubbled over four lanes onto the shoulder.

Needless to say, I changed the flat and once again began my two-hour trek to “The City of Brotherly Love.”

After stopping and showering at my hotel, I went to the game; a game that had every indication of a blowout. Philadelphia came in losing seven games in a-row, and it was playing its fifth straight without Charles Barkley. Portland, on the other hand, came in riding a three-game winning streak and was on top of the Pacific Division.

To make a long story short, the Sixers got well-balanced scoring as Hersey Hawkins netted 29 points, Armon Gilliam scored 24 and Johnny Dawkins added 23. It was Dawkins’ 30th that won the game. With 2.1 seconds left in overtime, Hawkins calmly took and buried a 35-footer at the buzzer, giving the Sixers a 105-102 win. With 2.1 seconds left in overtime, Dawkins calmly took and buried a 35-footer at the buzzer, giving the Sixers a 105-102 victory over Clyde Drexler and Portland.

The excitement and intensity was incredible. I woke up Saturday morning with a splitting headache and a hoarse voice, but I was not going to let anything stand in the way of doing what I really went to do: Find Julius Erving’s house.

I just want to let everyone know, especially those who doubted me, Villanova is a suburb of Philadelphia. It’s not just a college.

In any event, I travelled to the small suburb of Villanova, a rich area 15 minutes west of Philadelphia. I stopped at the gas station I saw in Villanova. I asked the storeowner at the gas station if he knew where Dr. J lived. He said he could get me near his house, but he didn’t know the exact address. So he handed me a phonebook and said, “Look it up.” I looked at him shockingly and asked sarcastically, “Julius Erving is listed in the phonebook?”

Anyway, I went through the book quickly, ripping a few pages, until I came to “Erving.” Phil Erving! Who’s the hell is Phil Erving? I felt teased, but, fortunately, the man said to go to the post office right down the block.

To give you a little idea of how small Villanova is, I entered a post office that was smaller than any MSC classroom. It had only one man working on a Saturday, less than three weeks before Christmas.

The man here was so helpful. I told him that I just travelled over three hours just to see Julius Erving’s house. The man gave me directions, gave me Doc’s address, he basically gave me everything but a guided tour of the Erving estate. I wish.

After 30 minutes of driving and turning and stopping and U-turning, I finally found his house. I made a right onto his block and one house later screamed, “That’s his house! That’s his house!”

I stopped the car, got out, raised my arms on my sides and spun around and around, similar to Julie Andrews in The Sound of Music.

I arrived! I made it to Doc’s house! To quote Mr. Erving himself, “The feeling was just fantastic!”

After a half-hour of taking pictures of his house, his servants’ house, his fire hydrant, and everything else, I decided to go back to Philly.

I got back in my car and noticed, as I looked out my rearview mirror, that someone was riding down the driveway. It was Julius’ 9-year-old son, Cory, on his bike, coming out to get the mail.

He is a good likeness of his father. The boy is at least 5’2”. I talked to him for a couple of minutes and he was very friendly. I asked him if I could take a picture of him. He smiled and said, “Okay.” After the flash, he closed the mailbox, smiled again, and said, “I’ll see you later.”

I couldn’t believe I had just met my lifelong hero’s son. I was just like a little kid, bouncing around in my car. All I kept saying was, “The license plate is now true: J’s house, I met his son.”

When I finally regained consciousness, I got back on R2, I headed for The Spectrum. I still had the Bulls game to go to.

Travelling north, I noticed, let’s just say less than 25-feet away from me, Sir Charles was wearing a walkman, so he couldn’t hear my constant honks and shouts. However, I did manage to get a red light up ahead, so I was able to stop and take a picture.

Cory Erving! Charles Barkley! What next?

I was so pumped that when I started to head, once again, back to The Spectrum, I saw The Philadelphia Museum of Art. I immediately took the exit. No, I didn’t go to look at any paintings! I did what everyone else has to do. I ran up the 98 steps that Sylvester Stallone ran up in Rocky’s I, II and V. You! It was great!

Just when you thought all the excitement was all over, there was still a basketball game to go to. The Bulls against the Sixers. It wasn’t Michael against Charles. Instead, it became Michael and Scottie against Hawkins and Gilliam.

Hawkins poured in 30 points and “The Hammer” added 29, including three free throws in the final .20 to give the Bulls -less 76ers a 103-100 victory over the defending NBA champs.

The game, which was the icing on the cake, ended and so did my weekend. But what a weekend it was. The two-month wait was well worth it.

Calling the Shots

Julius Erving has just inked a deal with The Taj Mahal, in Atlantic City, to meet Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in a one-on-one contest, on Feb. 28. It’ll be great to see these two legends square-off again.

Not to boast, but The King did say Magic Johnson would be in Barcelona and Magic said this week that he does plan on playing in the Olympics, if he’s alright.

After Navy defeated Army in the 92nd classic, Army skipper Bob Sallton told a reporter who commented on the game to “Tell it to the Marines!” Well Giants fans, all I have to say, or should I say sing, is “Na Na Na Na, Na Na Na Na, Hey Hey Hey Goodbye!” I love it!
The year in sports, MSC Red Hawk style

A look back at the memories and moments of the year that was MSC has had a great tradition of athletic excellence and this past year was no different. A Division III school which prides itself in the classroom as well as on field, MSC can always look to its sports program for an added touch of class.

There have been many memories to be savored and many moments to be cherished, as this year’s MSC Red Hawks gave the competition all it could handle.

Let us take the time to relive the all the excitement MSC teams and individuals have given us in 1991.

February 21
The MSC women’s ski team qualifies for the Mid-Atlantic Regionals in Champion, PA. The team, led by Maureen Harrington, finishes third in the N.C. Collegiate Ski Conference.

February 28
The women’s basketball team is denied a third consecutive trip to the NCAA finals after losing to WPC 54-43.

The team’s record drops to 19-6 and also negates its chances for an NCAA bid. The Red Hawks still make post-season play, qualifying for the ECAC tournament.

March 7
The Lady Hawks basketball team win the ECAC title, 62-48, over WPC. Head coach Jill Jeffrey retires after seven years, to pursue a career as a sports agent.

Jeffrey takes the program back into national prominence as her teams earned two NCAA bids, reaching the Sweet in the NCAA’s in 1988 and 1989.

During her seven years here Jeffrey and her teams won 131 games and lost 58.

Against WPC, All-American Kim Wilson plays in her final game. She exits her career with 1,757 points and 759 rebounds, which ranks her third and fourth, respectively on the all-time MSC list.

In her final year, Wilson averages 20.3 points and 9.3 rebounds per game.

April 4
The MSC Lacrosse team moves to 5-0, led by senior midfielder Bill VanNess.

The team seeks its fourth consecutive Knickerbocker Conference title.

April 25
After a 1-5 start, the MSC baseball team is now 13-11 behind the strong pitching of Drew Ryan and power hitting of Dave Kennedy.

August
Nick Del Tufo becomes the new head coach for the men’s basketball team. He replaces Ollie Gelston, who coached the Red Hawks for 24 years.

Former MSC soccer star Rob Cheney takes over the men’s soccer program. In replacing Dave Masur, he becomes MSC’s 11th soccer coach since 1958.

Alice DeFazio, a former MSC player on the late-great women’s basketball teams of the ’70s, replaces Jill Jeffrey as the new head coach. DeFazio becomes only the fifth MSC skipper since 1969.

September 13
MSC baseball star Dave Kennedy signs a major league contract with the California Angels worth a reported $76,000.

The transfer from Wake Forest leads the Hawks to a 28-16 record. He hit .365 with 19 home runs and 88 runs batted in.

September 26
MSC football defeats the Buffalo Bulls 7-3 for the 300th victory in the school’s history.

With the milestone victory, MSC becomes the first football team to reach the plateau in its first 60 years.

October 10
Ramapo College stuns MSC on an 85-yard TD pass play with just over one minute remaining, giving the Roadrunners a 23-17 victory in the 13th Pride Bowl.

The loss drops MSC to 1-3 and eliminates the team from playoff contention for the second straight year.

October 17
The Women’s Cross Country team impresses at the First Red Hawk Invitational.

Freshman Kimberly Kraft sets a school record in the 3.1 race, finishing 13th with a time of 21.04.

November 7
For the third consecutive year, the MSC men’s soccer team clinches a birth in the NCAA Division III soccer tournament.

President Irvin Reid states his ideals and objectives for the student athlete at MSC.

Reid says he sees sports as an extension beyond the academic programs and notes that all of us have a responsibility to uphold the values of the institution and its sports program, that others who went before us set.

The women’s volleyball team makes its second consecutive trip to the NCAA tourney, but is swept in the double elimination format.

Despite its elimination, the Hawks, headed by Anita Kubicka, finish five games ahead of last year-posting a 9-19 record.

November 14
The men’s soccer team drops out of the NCAA tourney, losing 1-0 to NJAC rival TSC.

MSC finishes with an overall record of 15-4 under first year head coach Rob Cheney.

The MSC men’s swim team defeats TSC 120-111, in what third year head coach Brian McLaughlin calls, “A major win, an upset.”

The Mitzak brothers key their teams to victory. John, a freshman, breaks two MSC records in the 1000- and 200-yard backstroke events. Older brother Andrew is a triple winner in the 100- and 500-yard freestyle races and the 200-yard butterfly.

Women’s volleyball star Tori Muller is named NJAC Rookie of the Year.

Also an NJAC second team selection, the 20-year-old from Commack, N.Y. finishes the season with 132 kills, 87 aces, and a 1.3 ace average.

On a larger note, the MSC campus is stunned after basketball legend Magic Johnson announces he has been infected with the HIV virus that causes AIDS.

In his toughest challenge yet Johnson vows to fight the virus and says he will become a spokesperson for the HIV virus.

December 13
The women’s basketball team captures its seventh straight Dial Classic Championship, beating Frostburg 61-52.

Despite its elimination, the Hawks, headed by Anita Kubicka, finish five games ahead of last year-posting a 9-19 record.

November 21
Red Hawk football star tailback John Walker becomes the only back in MSC history to gain 1,000 yards twice in a career. Walker accomplishes this with consecutive seasons of 1,003 and 1,081 yards in ‘90 and ‘91, respectively.

He moves into third place in all-time MSC rushing, accumulating 2,672 yards in just three years.

With one year left, Walker is a cinch to break all-time leader Lenny Horn’s record of 2,942 rushing yards, as he is just 270 yards shy of the mark.

December 13
The women’s basketball team captures its seventh straight Dial Classic Championship, beating Frostburg 61-52.

MSC beats Emmanuel College in the 1st round 71-52. Shannon Shaffer is named tournament MVP, as she scores 34 points in the two games. Shaffer is also named Star Ledger Woman Athlete of the Week.

Clean Sweep:

Lady Hawks coast to seventh straight Dial Classic

by Jim Klossek

Big girls don't cry, or so the song tells us. However, more than a few tears were seen falling as the curtain fell on the 13th annual Dial Soap Classic held last weekend at Panzer Gym.

Teams came from Massachusetts, Maryland and Ohio only to be reminded that where the heart is, it's also where the Dial championship trophy continues to reside as the Lady Red Hawks captured their seventh straight DSC title.

"I couldn't have been more pleased with our performance over the past few days," said first-year head coach Alice DeFazio. "Both of our opponents showed us two distinct styles of basketball, but we adapted well and fortunately came out on top."

Adapted is putting it mildly. After a lackluster first half on Friday night against Emmanuel College (Mass.), in which the Lady Hawks shot only 30.8% from the floor, they stormed back to outscore their opponents 47-27 in the second half enroute to a 71-52 rout of EC. Shannon Shaffer led MSC with 21 points while Judy Stair (19 points) and Kim Barnes (16) played a big part in the second half rally which saw MSC connect on a sizzling 56% of its shots.

"They're extremely quick," commented Stair. "And they caught us off balance in the first half with that 3-3 defense they threw at us. Luckily we were able to pull together and play the kind of basketball we all knew we were capable of."

That kind of basketball Stair eluded to elated the Red Hawk fans in attendance and left Emmanuel head coach Andy Yosinoff shaking his head with disbelief.

"I can't explain it," said the astonished Yosinoff. "I knew we let down a little (in the second half) but they were playing as if their lives depended on it. Some sloppy play on our end led to their three-pointers so early and we just couldn't recover."

For a while it looked like Frostburg's strategy was going to work. It jumped out to a 15-8 lead with 12:10 remaining in the first half. Mullins led the way for the Red Hawks, scoring 31 points (12-19 FG's, 7-10 FT's) and grabbed 5 rebounds. Don Palk led a defense oriented team since their high scoring forward Sheila Colbert (657 points last year) graduated, knew their only chance was to outwork the Red Hawks at every turn, especially under the boards which meant containing Shaffer.

"Shannon is the key," said Bobcat head coach Jim Crawley. "If we can contain her we have a good shot at winning this game. If we can't we're in for a long night."

The Frostburg University Bobcats (MD) turned out to be that team as they doubled the Wittenberg Tigers (Ohio) 51-32 behind junior center Nicole Bashaw's 18 points.

Things are looking up. That's what MSC's Shannon Shaffer seems to be signaling, as she led the Lady Hawks to the Dial Classic title over the Frostburg State Bobcats, 61-52 Saturday. Shaffer was named tournament MVP for her outstanding play.

For a while it looked like Frostburg's strategy was going to work. It jumped out to a 15-8 lead in the first half. At that point, the Bobcats seemed to let down their guard a little. Some sloppy play on their end led to the Bobcats lead as the second half started, and when Jeannine Mullahy hit a jumper with 1:14 left, Frostburg's lead was cut to 26-21.

The Hawks continued to chip away at the Bobcats lead as the second half started, and when senior Maritza Martinez hit a three-pointer from the right side with 6:15 gone, MSC found itself with its first lead of the game, 33-32. After that the game tightened up and the score was tied 39-39 with 9:58 left.
