Library "study-in" draws over 300 Cutbacks in hours cause all-night protest

by Valerie Kelflin

More than 300 students visited Sprague Library throughout the night Wednesday as part of a "study-in" to protest cutbacks in library hours this semester. The effort was the second of its kind in less than a week; approximately 50 students "studied-in" for two and a half hours after the usual 4:30 p.m. closing time last Saturday.

"We had a steady population of about 300 until around 1 a.m.," said SGA Treasurer Rob Tranter at 2:30 a.m. Thursday at a table on the second floor. "Before midnight, all these tables were practically filled."

SGA President Tony Susco called the present library hours "a threat to the academic mission of this college" in a campus-wide proclamation, and said that he would be meeting with Director of Library Services Bernice Jones-Trent and Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Richard Lynde on Wednesday, Dec. 18, to discuss expanding the hours.

Sprague Library presently closes at 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday (two extra hours were added on Wednesday nights for final exams), 4:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Please turn to LIBRARY page 3

Students shot with BB gun

by Karl Lomberk

Two students were shot in front of Bohn Hall with a BB or pellet gun early Wednesday morning, according to Campus Police and Dean of Students Ed Martin.

The shots apparently came from a Bohn Hall window facing Blanton Hall. A male student was shot in the chest and there was a mark on his jacket but there was no damage to his person. A female student was hit in the back of the head by the ear, and unknown to her at the time, a BB was lodged in her skin at the base of her ear, according to Martin.

The girl refused treatment at the time of the shooting but later the next day went to the hospital to have the BB removed when she realized it was still in her head, according to Sgt. Debra Newcombe of Campus Police.

At first, police were not sure if it was a BB gun or perhaps a small caliber pistol that was fired at the students because there were a few witnesses that reported hearing gunshots.

Police do not have an idea of a motive that lead to the shooting, Sgt. Newcombe said.

One resident of Bohn Hall, Kevin Colligan said that he heard the shots being fired. "I was in my room on the twelfth floor and my window was open. I heard at least two guys laughing and I heard them say, 'Get that girl,' Then I heard them constantly pump the gun and then fire from 2:00 a.m. to 2:30 a.m. I couldn’t tell exactly where it was coming from," Colligan said.

Board of Trustees Meeting:

Pres. Reid gets salary increase

by Dini Marshall

President Irvin Reid's salary will jump from $93,500 to $102,382 after the Board of Education approved a 9.5% pay increase last night.

After receiving his raise, Reid said, "Montclair State College is the largest state college in New Jersey and I am still the second lowest paid college president in the state." He added, "The board felt that they had to keep my salary competitive with other New Jersey college presidents."

Joan Eicke, vice president of Internal Affairs for the American Federation of Teachers Local 1904, said that her organization received no response from the administration with regard to his pay increase. "There was no building of assessment for his raise," she said. "There are real issues of performance that were not

Lot 13 closes

According to an interoffice memorandum signed by Director of Facilities Thomas Stepanowski, Lot 13 will be closed indefinitely as of December 16. Lot 14 will be affected by the closing of Lot 13 because it will eliminate the overflow parking option. Overflow parking will be directed to Lot 17 after the 16th. There will be no overnight parking after that date in Lot 17 and during the daytime its use will be controlled by an attendant.

Library hours

As of now the Library hours are as follows:
- Monday - Thursday: 8:00 a.m. - 10:00 p.m.
- Friday: 8:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
- Saturday: 10:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.
- Sunday: 2:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.

New policy in caf.

Because of the great number of thefts of bookbags in the Blanton Hall Cafeteria students will now be allowed to bring their bookbags with them to their tables instead of checking them in at the entrance to the cafeteria, according to Sgt. Newcombe of Campus Police.

Rash of arrests on Campus

by Karl Lomberk

A rash of arrests over the past semester has plagued Campus Police. Problems have ranged from disorderly conduct to burglary to possession of a dangerous weapon.

On September 18, 1991 Racquel Serrano and Naika DeMoya filed charges against each other for Simple Assault. A fight erupted after Serrano broke up a boyfriend relationship.

On October 15, 1991 Brian T. D. Carlson was arrested for attempting bodily injury against a security officer and also charged with possession of a dangerous weapon when he allegedly threw a rock through a window of a car parked by Stone Hall.

On October 26, 1991 Timothy Riddick was arrested for Disorderly Conduct.

On November 8, 1991 Richard T. Greene was arrested for Disorderly Conduct.

On November 10, 1991 Brian Veal was arrested for Disorderly Conduct.

On November 19, 1991 Michael McIntire, Alexis Grasfield and Daniel Doyle along with a minor with them were arrested and charged with two counts of burglary, three counts of theft and one count of possession of a weapon for unlawful purposes.

The four men were spotted by a Campus Police officer hanging around a car. That same night three cars had their windows smashed and property stolen from them. The men fled the scene after noticing the officer who called for back up and then arrested them. Three of the men got into a car and drove off and the fourth was pulled over shortly afterward. Property from the cars and an air gun were found in their car, all four were placed under arrest.

New security measures are being considered for Bohn Hall after dorm rooms were robbed over Thanksgiving break for the second year in a row.

Doug Cooper, director of facilities in Bohn Hall, said that they are "investing some alternatives" to the security already in place. At the time of the break-ins a security guard was conducting outside perimeter checks on Bohn Hall on an hourly basis.

Among the alternatives being considered are motion detectors and security cameras.

Campus Police have not yet arrested anyone in connection to the burglaries, but say they are looking into a few people.

No developments in Bohn Hall robbery

by Heather Youngblood

They would not go into detail due to ongoing investigation.

Cooper said that the college spent $18,000 on new locks after Bohn Hall was broken into last year. They are not yet convinced, however, that the locks have to be replaced at this time.

A master key was taken from a locked box in the locksmith's shop, used to open the dorm rooms and replaced. While Cooper does not believe that the key was duplicated, they are checking with local area locksmiths.

Bohn Hall Director Sherill Cantrell is once again encouraging residents to take their valuables home with them over the winter break.

Cooper said he is anticipating that security guards will be placed inside Bohn Hall over winter break in order to avoid another break-in.

Parking lots to be rearranged

by Robert Wintermute

Parking lot 13 will be closed to all parking on December 12 and lot 17 will become a "multi-purpose" facility, open to commuters, residents and faculty members, according to Assistant Vice President of Facilities Tom Stepnowski.

Two new parking lots in the vicinity of the Fieldhouse and one additional lot in the area of the Access Road are going to be constructed in the future to handle the flow of parking from the two lots, Stepnowski said. He also said that a parking garage at MSC was a "good idea" and was being reviewed.

Lot 13 is the site of the new Humanities and Social Sciences building, ground breaking for which will begin on the thirteenth, Stepnowski explained. He also explained that usage of lot 17 will be monitored for a time, at which point the final use of the lot will be determined.

Stepnowski said, "there are plenty of spaces on campus." With many spaces in the Clove Road lot, it is "a factor of geography" that makes them seem unaccessible, he said.

LIBRARY STUDY-IN ANNOUNCED

An all night study-in was declared in the hope of overshadowing the ground-breaking ceremonies for the next stage of the Facility Master Plan by SGA President Tony Susco.

The study-in, scheduled to begin immediately after the SGA meetings, was planned to draw attention to recent budget cuts that have resulted in cuts in hours at Sprague Library, Susco said. "This will be the first semester that extended hours are not available at the library for students," he said.

"We intend to keep the library open for the duration of the evening," Susco said, appealing to the Legislature to notify as many people as possible. "It's important that we have a good turn out tonight because we can make an impression for change. We need to show a real concern on the part of the students," he said.

OTHER SGA NEWS

Military student James Lloyd is going to take his dispute with Professor Barbara Chasin to a grade appeal committee, according to Director of External Affairs James Cotter. Cotter said that Lloyd's decision to take his complaint to committee "may be a way-out for the administration," that would be satisfactory for all concerned. Legislator Michael Costa was chosen to represent the SGA at a student government conference being held in the winter break at Texas A & M University. During the December 4, 1991 meeting, Susco explained that the SGA had extra money in its Conference Line after the summer conference in Charleston, WV.

Student board of trustee member, Paul Prior, also opposed Reid's. He said, "I don't deny people getting increases in their salaries, but in the light of certain financial situations I disagree with the increase."

He felt that the students did not have any say in the decision. "It's hard to make a decision with out being in on a situation."

Dean of Student Affairs, Edward Martin, felt that Reid deserved the pay raise, "in order to keep quality leadership you have to maintain certain salaries, and I think this is what the board is trying to do."

The faculty and staff yearly salary increase is 5.5%. Reid received a 10% increase just last year.

The topic of Montclair State College's honors program was also discussed at the board meeting. Director, Dr. Rhoda Unger said, "Despite declining birthrates and strong competition, our program is holding its own increase just last year."

Prior, also opposed Reid's. He said, "I don't disagree with the increase."

Dr. Armstrong was a strong supporter of the students and our programs." Reid and the board wished her luck with her return to the campus as a professor in the English department by dedicating their post-meeting dinner to Armstrong.

Paul Prior said, "Dr. Armstrong was a strong supporter of the students and our programs."

Although Ficke felt that there was better representation to be found outside the government, Reid said that the college had already made the arrangements and they were locked into making the payment.

College collaborations of a yearly $10,000 tuition waiver was passed for "Newark Scholars in Teaching at Montclair". Each student will receive $2,500 per semester until graduation.

The report of Facilities Committee stated that the buildings on campus are in poor condition. William L. Wimberly, Board of Education member, said the ground breaking for the new Humanities building is positive but the older buildings on campus are a cause for great concern.

"I'm amazed that we can keep them together, this issue needs to be looked at as soon as possible," he said.

Dr. Boymo, Faculty Representative, said that although the percentages of minorities have increased, there should be more use of Affirmative Action on the campus. Joseph R. Harris, vice chairperson said, "the board is very concerned with Affirmative Action and they will give as much assistance as possible."

Destino manifesto: la oficina de WCSA

por Jorge Cruz

Los Estados Unidos de Norteamérica han llegado a ser una potencia mundial apropiándose del territorio de otros países. Paulatinamente, los norteamericanos se fueron adueñando de lo que hoy poseen comprando territorio, así como matando a los nativos de estas tierras; obedeciendo a la creencia de que este era su "destino manifesto". Sabemos que la historia se repite, sin embargo existen personas que tratan de imitar las acciones del pasado. Así, han aparecido sucesores de Adolf Hitler, los cuales han tratado de implantar nuevamente una ola de muerte y racismo. Hemos observado también, el resurgimiento de miembros del KKK que desean mudarse a otro lugar para comenzar su "destino manifesto".

Aunque parezca increíble, existe un problema similar dentro de las organizaciones estudiantes de MSC. Los miembros de la Organización de Relaciones Humanas (HRO) clase I de la Asociación del Gobierno Estudiantil (SGA) creen que su "destino manifesto" es apropiarse de la oficina de la que más les gusta.

La oficina de HRO se encuentra ubicada en el cuarto piso del edificio "Student Center" desde hace muchos años, pero ahora los miembros de dicha organización desean mudarse a otro lugar y han escogido la oficina de una de las organizaciones más atacadas del plantel: la oficina de la Asociación del Colegio de Fin de Semana (WCSA) clase II del SGA.

Los miembros de HRO creen que hacer esto es tan fácil como quitarles una cosa de los otros estudiantes, solo porque ellos la usan. Al parecer no saben que existen reglas establecidas en la Constitución de la escuela y que todas las organizaciones dentro del plantel deben seguir.

Los miembros de HRO tienen preparado un "golpe bajo" para WCSA pidiendo al SGA que les dé la oficina, el cual será discutido el miércoles 12 de diciembre con el plan desaparecer el jueves 12 de diciembre. Los miembros de HRO están tratando de tomar ventaja aprovechando que algunos de ellos son legisladores del SGA, ya que las decisiones en las juntas del SGA son tomadas mediante la votación de los legisladores. Sin embargo, la Constitución establece que las dos partes deben estar enteradas acerca del problema antes de tomar cualquier acción legal, y los miembros de WCSA no fueron enterados sino hasta después de que el documento había sido entregado al SGA.

Desde hace muchos años WCSA ha tenido que enfrentar una infinidad de problemas, tales como la falta de los servicios que otras organizaciones del programa regular disfrutan. No obstante, el semestre anterior WCSA se enfrentó a un grave problema: las autoridades de MSC planeaban terminar con la venta de café que se efectúa durante los fines de semana de cada semestre. Dichas ventas son el recurso principal de la organización para reunir fondos. Afortunadamente, no pudieron lograrlo porque WCSA es una organización bastante fuerte y una de las más importantes dentro del plantel, y que esta no solo ofrece fiestas y entretenimiento para sus miembros sino que ofrece también, un complejo programa de orientación académica y servicios de tutoría y consejería.

Si WCSA no ha llegado a ser una organización clase I es únicamente porque la mayoría de sus miembros reciben clases durante los fines de semana, y las demás organizaciones no tienen conocimiento del gran trabajo que estos miembros han venido realizando desde su creación hace 17 años.

Ahora que WCSA enfrenta este nuevo problema, es tiempo de poner un alto a las arbitrariedades y luchar por el lugar que le corresponde: ser una organización clase I del SGA. Los miembros de la mesa directiva de WCSA están efectuando los procedimientos legales para defender la oficina de los depredadores de MSC.

Booby trap in Bohn causes concern

Two residents of Bohn hall booby-trapped their room with a paint gun over Thanksgiving break, according to Sgt. Debra Newcombe of Campus Police. When the R.A.'s made their final room checks before the four day holiday weekend they found a sign on the outside of one of the rooms warning any would-be burglars of a booby trap in the room. The residents rigged up trip wires around the room and connected it to the closet door. If the wires were tripped the door would open and a paint gun would fire paint pellets at the intruder. Unfortunately for the residents, paint guns are considered an unlawful firearm and they could have been charged for possession of such a weapon. Residence Life is handling the disciplining of the residents instead, Newcombe said.

Theft:

Dec. 5, 1991 10:15 - 11:15 a.m. Two female students reported their wallets stolen from Panzer Gymnasium during Volleyball class.

Dec. 5, 1991 1:00 - 2:00 p.m. A female student left her wallet unattended in the ladies room on the fourth floor of the Student Center. She later returned to find it was missing.

Theft of Motor Vehicles:

Dec. 1, 1991 9:30 p.m. - 3:30 p.m. on Dec. 6. A 1980 Toyota Corolla was stolen from Lot 30.

Dec. 10, 1991 8:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m. A student reported a 1990 Honda Accord stolen from Lot 9.

Criminal Mischief:

Dec. 6, 1991 4:20 a.m. A 1987 Ford Van parked in Lot 21 had a window broken, nothing was stolen. The van belonged to a visitor.

Dec. 9, 1991 12:00 p.m. Female resident of Blanton Hall reported that her 1982 Blue Jeep had its rear window smashed while parked in lot 13.

Examination Notes

1. All examinations are to be held in the regularly assigned classroom. In cases where more than one room is involved, the location of the exam will be the same as the first room of a series (e.g., a course meeting MWF in different rooms will have the exam in the M room).
2. Courses scheduled for 75 minutes and which begin on the half hour are to follow the exam schedule for the preceding hour (e.g., a course meeting TR 0930am-1045am will follow the exam period for courses with the first meeting day on T or R at 0900am).
3. Students with a time conflict in their exam schedule should immediately notify each faculty member involved and make arrangements to reschedule one of the exams.

“Brotherhood has its privileges”

Alpha Kappa Psi is a Class IV organization of the ECA.
Class One Budget Appropriations

Every undergraduate at MSC pays $3 a credit toward SGA fees. These fees are used to fund the operations of all Class One organizations. By the time a full-time student graduates, he or she can expect to have paid about $300 in fees for these organizations.

Where does the money go? What do the Class Ones do with our money? The official word is that it is used to provide programming and cultural events for the entire student body. A brief look at those different organizations can tell just what is provided: concerts, weekly news, special functions, musical programming, and other things that make MSC a microcosm of the outside world.

For the school year 1991-1992, Class One organizations have received $579,412 in appropriations. This article is the twelfth in a series that examines each organization’s budget, appropriation by appropriation.

PLAYERS

Players is an organization that offers students the opportunity to participate in all phases of theatrical production. Full-scale productions are presented each year. Players also sponsors theatre trips to New York City and presents workshops by guest artists. According to Vice-President Melissa Bentley, Players consists of seven board members and 18 voting members.

CONSTRUCTION..........................................................$900

This line is used primarily for set construction, Bentley explained. “That’s for the purchase of lumber and anything that may go along with it, such as door frames, window frames, and moldings,” she said.

Bentley explained that the materials are recycled from show to show, but they are also in need of frequent replacement. “Our storage space is minimal, since we use the ‘catacombs’ in the basement of Life Hall. We’ve had problems there with people going there and taking what they want as well as the dampness down there affecting the wood,” she said, explaining why replacement is needed.

COSTUMES...........................................................$500

“We do have basic costumes,” Bentley said, “but much of it is thrift shop quality.” She explained that Players does buy costumes from thrift shops as it is needed, but that it also uses the line to purchase material to make costumes and to rent special costumes as well. Bentley also explained that the organization tries to conserve this line throughout the fall in order to use it during the spring for their musical production.

LIGHTS..............................................................$2,500

Players rents lighting equipment and instruments for many of its productions, Bentley said. The amount of equipment rented depends upon the size of the stage being used, she noted. “We rent everything: poles, pole stands, cables, a dimmer pack,” she explained.

OFFICE EXPENSES.........................................................$60

As with all organizations, Players uses this line to purchase all supplies (pens, paper, etc.) that are necessary to run the day-to-day operations of the organization.

POSTAGE.............................................................$40

This line is used by all organizations to cover the costs involved in mailing official correspondence.

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES.......................................$1,250

This line is used to pay for all services and special arrangements that the members of Players can not perform themselves, Bentley said. That would include bands and musicians for the musical production, any “outside” directors, campus electricians for connecting the lighting and sound systems, and to bring professionals to MSC to give workshops, she said.

Total.............$11,950

In this last item, Bentley said, Players does use restraint in how much it will pay for professionals. She gave as an example a recent attempt to schedule a workshop on how to succeed in the business. Upon being told that the cost for two actors to take part in the workshop would be $120 for the day, the organization cancelled the workshop, she explained.

PROPS ...............................................................$750

As with costumes, Players also purchases and recycles props for its shows, Bentley said. A common purchase on this line is for set dressings (pillows, pictures, etc) for shows, she said. However, the line is also used for other props that will be necessary, including “food props,” she added.

PUBLICITY............................................................$2,000

This line is used to purchase publicity for Players productions in The Montclarion and other newspapers, on WMSC, and to produce flyers and posters, Bentley explained.

RENTS/ROYALTIES.......................................................$1,100

“Royalties have to be paid for each production,” Bentley said. She described how the royalties consist of a set rate from each service the scripts are obtained from. This rate is based on how many seats in the arena/theater and is charged for every night of the production, she said. “And then you have to pay for the script,” she added. In the case of musicals, the musical score must often be rented as well, she explained.

SOUND.................................................................$300

As with all other Class One organizations, this line is used to help cover the cost of any calls made that are related to official business.

ELECTRICIAN............................................................$1,000

Bentley explained that campus electricians must be hired for each production to hook up all lights. She also explained that the electrician is necessary if a production requires more sound or power hook-ups.

NEW STUDENT ORIENTATION......................................$150

“This year we didn’t use that line,” Bentley explained. She described how Players normally uses the line to advertise its organization on campus. This year Players used a supply of pre-printed flyers that was still available from an earlier printing, she said.

IS IT ENOUGH?

“That’s a tough question, since we are trying to re-organize,” Bentley said. “It has been enough for this year, so we are only asking for a $450 raise in next year’s budget, which I feel is a pretty reasonable request.”
HUMAN RELATIONS ORGANIZATION (HRO).............$13,475

HRO serves students with training sessions in group dynamics and psychological development. HRO sponsors a weekend event twice a year, on-campus seminars, and group interaction during both the spring and fall semesters. According to Glenn Laniewski, HRO president, the organization currently has 11 members.

TELEPHONE..........................$450

All Class One organizations maintain a telephone appropriation line to be used for all calls related to official business.

OFFICE SUPPLIES......................$325

As with all other Class One organizations, this allocation is used to provide adequate supplies for continued operation. Pens, paper, and other miscellaneous items are paid for from this fund.

PROGRAMMING WORKSHOP............$2,200

“That fund goes for the workshops we provide for students that focus on communication, leadership, group dynamics, and/or personal awareness,” Laniewski said. He listed the different workshops that HRO provides, which included roommate workshops, psychodramas, and visualization workshops.

“Basically our workshops are to help students improve their communication skills on their jobs, with their parents, and with their friends,” Laniewski said. He explained that HRO often works with other groups on these workshops, such as SILC and Residence Life.

“Each workshop runs in the area of $240 to $250 all together,” Laniewski said. He acknowledged that this includes the cost of publicity for the event, which is itself limited by the funds available. “We’ve had to cut back on publicity for some of our workshops, simply because we can’t afford it,” he said, saying that this has affected attendance at its events.

THE WEEKEND.........................$8,250

“This is our biggest event, and probably our most misunderstood event,” Laniewski said. He explained that The Weekend is a weekend long workshop held twice a year in which students learn how to more effectively deal in a group setting and develop effective communication skills and abilities to deal with others.

According to Laniewski, the costs for the event include lodging (“Approximately $2,500 a year for food and lodging”) at a camp owned by East Stroudsberg University, in Stony Acres, Pennsylvania; four professional trainers ($400 each); a professional staff psychologist ($450); and transportation (by bus, approximately $800 for the weekend).

“We don’t pay them (the counselors) a lot of money,” Laniewski said, “They could be making a lot more for the entire weekend.” He gave an example of the potential for the psychologists to make in excess of $1000 for the equivalent in office hours. He also explained that the trainers for the event had at the least a Masters degree in either counseling, psychology, or some other related field.

“This is for the entire weekend,” Laniewski said, “From an event standpoint, it’s a lot of money, but from the hours spent and all that is learned, it is a very valuable experience.”

PUBLICITY.............................$1,100

Laniewski explained how the publicity line is used to promote HRO. “It basically deals with promotional items, such as pens and t-shirts,” he said, “any type of promotion or publicity to generate attention for the organization.” He said that the line is used almost exclusively to point attention to the organization, and that a portion of the money is used during both the fall fest and spring week events for that purpose.

RESOURCE CENTER.....................$400

The resource center serves as the programming library for HRO, Laniewski said, describing how it is used for resource management and for planning new workshops. “We get different books on planning workshops,” he said, telling how the books give examples of different workshops and how to run them.

BANQUET.............................$300

Laniewski told how this line is used to provide a semi-formal banquet for HRO members at the end of each year, at which awards are given to outstanding members. In addition, he explained that new officers for the organization are sworn in at that time.

NEW STUDENT ORIENTATION............$350

“This line is used to drum up support in the summer for new students,” Laniewski said. He explained that some promotional items are purchased for use at that time, as well as an introductory workshop for new students. He also said that HRO plans to work with the CLU in having a “rush” mixer in the spring semester to help “dram up” new members.

CAMPUS LEADERSHIP FUND.........$525

“Not really,” Laniewski said, “We definitely need more money in our program­ming workshop line to adequately program as well as publicize our events. It’s one of the things that has held us back this year,” he added.

IS IT ENOUGH?

ADVANCED REGISTRATION FOR ALL SESSIONS APRIL 7 - 23

Additional Registration Opportunities for Individuals Who Do Not Register Between April 7 - 23:

Wednesday, May 27, 2:00-6:30 PM, for Pre-Session courses and for courses in any other session that begin after May 27.

Wednesday, June 10, 2:00-6:30 PM, for Eight-Week Session and Saturday courses and for courses in any other session that begin after June 10.

Wednesday, June 24, 2:00-4:00 PM, for Six-Week Session courses and for courses in any other session that begin after June 24.

Wednesday, August 5, 2:00-4:00 PM, for Post-Session courses and for other courses that begin after August 5.

VISITING STUDENTS DO NOT file an Application for Admission to Montclair State but DO need written permission from their respective colleges and universities to register for summer courses.

Students accepted by a regionally accredited college or university to begin their studies in the 1992 Fall semester follow Visiting Student registration procedures.

This is a preliminary listing of courses and programs, and is subject to minor changes. Complete registration and schedule information is published in the 1992 Summer Sessions Catalog available late March.

A student may take one 3 semester hour course during the Pre-Session, a total of 9 semester hour courses during any combination of the Six Week, Eight Week, and Ten-Week Saturday sessions, and one 3 semester hour course during the Post-Session.

CHRISTMAS: WHOOPEE, Fa La Dee Da

This is like the year Intellivision replaced Atari. As a generation, we lost our innocence the day we saw the T.V. commercial or newspaper ad that proclaimed there was something better than that oddly shaped box that came complete with two phallic paddles and "Combat." Bloop, Bloop, Bloop.

It was only the year earlier that we had begged our parents, pleaded without mercy, for the acme of all Christmas presents, the Atari 2600. Without it, our lives were surely over. We watched the Mr. T goes to the North Pole special instead. We even started harboring resentment over the whole Santa Claus thing. Deja Vu. It just all seems very depressing.

But it ended as quickly as it began. Like mushrooms in a damp basement, toy companies started showing new and improved versions of Atari down our collective throats. And we bought into it, boy, lock stock and barrel. No siree, Johnny has an Intellivision, so by God, I have to have one too. The beginning of the end, my fellow urchins.

Peculiar trends started to emerge. Macy's began tossing around garland and multi-colored lights everywhere in the middle of August. Reports of mad mothers maiming each other over Cabbage Patch Dolls were heard. Department store Santas started wiggling out. We started to feel funny about watching the Peanuts holiday special and crying over the scene where Charlie Brown decorates the runt Christmas tree. We watched the Mr. T goes to the North Pole special instead. We even started harboring resentment over the whole Santa Claus thing. I mean, we were played for fools for almost nine years. It was too much to bear.

So it's Christmas 1991, and the season so far has proved to be one of the most peculiar yet. The weather outside is anything but frightful. At a balmy 60 degrees, it feels like Easter you know, the weekend they started putting up wreaths and mistletoe at Willowbrook. Our Christmas season has been inundated with cheesy Hallmark mugs and Santa's helpers sex lines featuring scantily clad elves parading in the virgin snow. Even Jimmy Stewart in It's A Wonderful Life looks a tad sick of the whole affair, especially when provided with a green pajama, courtesy of Ted Turner's magical marker.

Yugoslavia in crisis: I.S.O. conference airs views

by Andrea Piccolino

Yugoslavia, the “Land of the South Slavs,” was once a united country of Austria-Hungary and is now torn apart by the vicious battle between the Croats and the Serbs. This was the topic discussed on Thursday night, Sept. 5, at a conference sponsored by I.S.O. Three guest speakers each other’s borders and forget what had happened in the past. By Michael T. Bleeker

Making conceptions real through technology and mousetraps

by Michael T. Bleeker

The ultimate goal of the class is to give students a problem they may have previously perceived as impossible to solve. This is a “learn-by-doing” course. Students must actually fabricate technological devices to solve identified problems.

What is technology? A VCR? A television? A spaceship? If you think so, you’re wrong. Technology is a process, not a product.

Within the Department of Technology is a course called “Fundamentals of Design and Problem Solving,” a course which teaches students how to think in a technological manner. That is, how to use scientific and mechanical knowledge to solve human problems. Students are taught “how to think,” not “what to think.”

Take for example, this year’s design project competition: the “Mouse Trap Tug-Of-War.” Students competed to design and build mousetraps which were to have a tug of war against a device meeting the same criteria. Students allowed to devise creative solutions like using a secondary power source (that are only triggered by a mouse trap), and certain defense strategies. However, the mousetraps were not allowed to move less than three-inches.

The Common Market is also trying to mediate the fight by pulling in armies from the U.N. to make peace possible for them. The Common Market has been unable to make any resolutions between them, because neither party is willing.

The conference was organized by Michael T. Bleeker, the technology education major, said, "One of the most positive aspects of our endeavor was teamwork and test, test, tests. Whatever you think is easy is usually very difficult. Everyone one said, 'You can't do that, but we did!'

The designs in the competition were as varied as the experiences brought to the class by the students. Some students used pure muscle by building devices with low-gear ratios to produce a great amount of torque. Others applied the concepts of inertia and momentum to move their opponent.

Success demanded that the students design, build, test, communicate and estimate on a continual basis. The students learned rapidly that the experience comes from creating, making and testing a device which solves a problem. The hands-on approach is designed to reinforce analytical comprehension with physical understandings.

Gifts for the clueless
by Sheryl Karosen

Having problems deciding what to get someone for Christmas? Do you not know the person well? Are you forced to buy a gift because of your job? Well, stop your sobbing and just look at this list. Because if this list doesn’t help you, you are a loser.

GENERAL GIFT IDEAS
(for men and females)

•Gift certificates to any of the following:
  - the person’s favorite restaurant
  - any fast food joint
  - mail stores (clothing, jewelry, sporting goods, bookstores, etc.)
  - record stores (Goody got it!)
  - gloves

•Christmas items - things you only see at this time of year
  - does the person like a certain sport? Say they like tennis; you can buy them an hour at an indoor tennis court so they can play with a friend (wouldn’t you be lucky if it were you?)
  - car items (useless or useful)
  - scarves
  - slippers
  - puzzles (most people can appreciate a good puzzle, and I don’t mean just jigsaws)
  - blank tapes, either video or audio (check out the 110ers or the Fuji Extrarolls)

•something handy; look in those little Harriet Carter books your parents get •something extremely common but made in a very unique way (look around)
•batteries (hell, if you’re desperate, wrap up a nice little bundle of AA’s, 9-volts, C’s and D’s. At least you know they’ll be used.)
•notebooks, pads or post-it stationery (everyone writes letters; well, they should)
•an umbrella
•cash and a card!

Here’s the address for a magazine that’s out of this world. Even if you can’t find any gift ideas (you should), you’ll find at least 5 things that you want. You receive your order in about a week, but occasionally things are backordered, so take that into account and order early.

Vauxhall: a new experience
by Sheryl Karosen

For Americans going to this mall for the first time, it is like a slap in the face. It is literally a shock, but a pleasant one, for the Japanese are wonderful people. I’m sure they wouldn’t mind if, upon entering Pony Toy-Go-Round, you were to stop dead in your overpowered track and exclaim “Wow!” After spending an hour at this mall, you may begin to think that you’re in Japan, simply because of all the Japanese products. The mall consists of the following:

• Kinokuniya: a book store featuring all Japanese books, comics and cards
• 3 connected stores: a golf shop, Pony Toy-Go-Round and an electronics store which do resemble stores you’d see in Willowbrook; although Pony has many great Japanese toys and model kits (like Terminator 2).
• a jewelry store
• a beauty salon (on top of the book store)

When shopping at Vauxhall, I strongly suggest that you do not buy products that are totally printed in English, because you will find them cheaper elsewhere.

Parking is adequate, and when it fills up, there are always people leaving. The super- market stores after the other stores, which last I knew closed at 7 p.m. weekdays and 8 p.m. Saturdays. Vauxhall is located on River Road in Edgewater, right by the George Washington Bridge. The main phone number is 201-941-9113.

I will now give you lucky duck directions, which are very simple. Get your little car onto Route 80 East. When 80 splits into express and local, stay to the right (local).

Get off at Exit 70 - Leonia/Fort Lee. The exit goes straight or right: you go right. You will be on this road for at least 15 minutes. It’s called a bunch of different things; it finally becomes River Road. Anyway, you will go through nine lights on this road altogether.

For the first seven the road is uphill. Then you go down this awful curve and see what looks like a forest. The next two lights will be coming up (highlight: Billy B’s on your right (or Billy’s if you prefer) and a movie theater). Vauxhall will be on your left; look for the white and green globe-like logo (see below).

Oh yeah, the place is full, and I mean FULL, of cops. Talk about security. All you need to shop at Vauxhall is a car full of gas and a mentality full of respect.
Library be-in; students take over

Sprague Library is odd in that in its holdings, it is the second largest among the state colleges, but if you count the hours it is open per week, it is next to last. It doesn’t make any sense. Why put money into holdings when there is hardly enough people to shuffle the books? An example of the mentality that is behind the problem is shown in Vice President of Finance Tom Auch’s explanation of why an extra $200,000 was given to library acquisitions and not for hiring desperately needed personnel, when he said, “With books, if you buy them, you have them. It’s not like you have to keep paying people every year.” Is there something basically wrong with this logic?

Another aspect of the library that seems contradictory: why are we expanding a building the school can’t even keep open for adequate hours? They ripped something out of the ground and destroyed a fountain, a piece of artwork for some unfortunate reason no one seems to miss, to make room for the unnecessary expansion.

Well, if the expansion can’t be stopped, at least students can expect reasonable library hours. And the students took their first step in securing that right by taking over the library and keeping it open all night on Dec. 11.

If people were expecting a violent protest with book burnings and the college president being burned in effigy by drug crazed and rabid students, they were mistaken. Though such tactics do get the message across, this case was different. The stressed students who are facing a rapidly closing deadline on the semester just wanted some more time and a chance to study. And over 300 students peacefully used the library during the time students kept it open, proving the need for expanded library hours. The reasons for the large turnout with very little advertising the protest had may have been due mainly to the approaching finals week, but during regular weeks in the semester why does the library close at 4:30 P.M. on Friday and Saturday, the only time when most working students have a bulk of time to devote to research and studying? The only responsible approach in cutting any hours for essential services, such as the library, is by consulting the campus then making the decision, not the other way around. Maybe the process will change in the not-so-distant future and the student take-over/protest at Sprague is a big first step towards that goal.

But let’s not let a victory get to our heads. Though the students may have had their greatest victory in showing their frustrations with current administrative decisions in their keeping open Sprague Library all night, their success will be nothing more than an empty token gesture unless strong follow-up action is taken. Students can’t let it die here.

If nothing is done, it will show the policy-makers who prompted the contradictory and useless rules to begin with that they can do what they want without any serious opposition from students, that we are ineffective. Then there will be no stopping them.

Reid gets fat; budget belt tightens

Yesterday, the day after the last scheduled printing of The Montclarion, at a time when most students were preoccupied with their final exams, the Board of Trustees approved a 9.5% salary increase for college president Irvin Reid. This raise comes at a time when MSC is saddled with budgetary cutbacks and reductions in services. Why is it that while the rest of the campus is tightening its belt, President Reid is letting out his trousers? Does MSC exist to keep students, or do its students exist to serve MSC and its hierarchy?

It seems ridiculous for the president of the college to receive such a hefty raise in the middle of a faculty/staff hiring freeze, a freeze in which positions that become vacant are left unfilled. Did last year’s 10% raise not sufficiently fill Reid’s presidential cupboards?

To his credit, President Reid has developed strategies to deal with the tough times ahead. Unfortunately, they are strategies he does not apply to himself. In a memo which Reid issued to the campus community on Dec. 10, he stated: “The situation for the current year, as well as next year, is so fluid that we must make additional contingency plans to cope with diminishing resources.” To cope with these diminishing resources, further diminished by Reid’s almost $9,000 raise, the president suggested the “implementation of fiscal controls.” Fiscal controls which would be reviewed by a “broad representation of the campus community.”

Apparent these “fiscal controls” do not apply to Reid’s own salary increase; nor does the assurance of reduction in student representation in such matters. In fact, Paul Prior, the sole student vote on the Board of Trustees, wasn’t even informed of the figures of the proposed salary increase until the meeting in which it was voted on was underway. As Price aptly puts it, “It’s hard to make a decision without being in on a situation.”

Reid defends his salary increase by pointing out that, although MSC is the largest state college in New Jersey, the operating hours of Sprague Library are the second shortest in the state. It all boils down to a matter of priorities. In Reid’s case, those priorities seem misplaced.

OP-ED/LETTERS

by Neal Dougherty

Seasons Givings

As I was sitting at my computer wondering what to write about this week, I almost haphazardly began to pay attention to the music playing on my stereo. It is James Taylor's 'Sweet Baby James' which really makes me feel as though life is worthwhile and that there is a friend who presently has a heroin addiction. Said addiction abrogates our friendship.

We are no longer practicing friends. He has a suntanned, sunken, sucked in look, no longer being as impervious as once we once was. Yes, an intentional grammatical faux pas but, an intentional, grammatical paw that flows fluidly..."as we once was." Ah youth, invisible bullpen, pretenses.

Switching to the Wirehouses' Christmas Wrapping I start to cheer up, the beat you know. Now I know, that I don't, want my Montana to be beat this year. I miss her when we're not near. Canzon is further than Westfield, yes, it is her traditional absence. And she has had a tough year, divorce, me in love, in the no. But you, haven't a clue, what this may or may be about. No I won't clear it up, I'm not the type to kiss and tell. I think. Which often presents a problem. Sometimes I think I can write, sometimes I think I am in love, sometimes I think too much.

I guess the possibility of falling in love is in itself a gift, even if the love is inherently problematic. In its essence or in its basest desire the impetus for love is in itself indicative of having the capacity for love. Personally the aforesaid capacity for love or loving capacity was not always present. Today it is revered as the wonderful gift that truly is. Yes there was a time when I was impossibly invincible, benignly bulletproof, damn good and inca­pable of love. Most days I did not even like myself let alone love...Today, presently, perhaps momentarily, I am okay with me, I like myself some of the time. Do I love myself. I suppose, presume, postulate that this column will be self contained love with love in a decidedly self serving and self revealing sort of way.

My original intention was to compose a column chock full of Christmas cheer. Sort of an altruistic wish list, you know like peace on earth, understanding of one another and a life full of love. Yes love, refreshingly irrational, even magical, revered by the romantic in me. So many things what funny even inappropriate in this fast paced, reccessory spiraled, dog eat dog material world of ours. So many what is so funny about peace love and understanding? Growing up I honestly believed that love was all you needed to live happily ever after. And that love was all that was desired because of love in Some people drink to get happy, I drank, ostensibly to achieve the desired effect, actually I drank whenever I was awake, I continuously made wrong choices. I ventured to the wrong people, I drank in order to be desired and drank because I thought drunk girls would be easier. Easier yes, but, as emotionally unavailable as I once was. Perhaps still am. Wish I wasn't. Hope I'm not. Don't want to be.

I think honestly I believe that love is all you need. Corresponding, subsequently, or simply, I wish you all love....After all, it is all you need.

Happy Holidays!

Student Trustees' semester wrap-up by now we suppose you have noticed the fence between you and the center of campus due to the construction of the library addition. This and the access road are two projects of the college's master plan. These and future projects are financed by the JEC Bond Act of 1988. These are state funds specifically set aside for construction at New Jersey state colleges.

Since the recession has resulted in contract bids at lower costs than originally expected, now is an opportune time for MSC to contract with various construction companies. Because of this, the master plan is proceeding significantly under the original budget.

Unfortunately, the addition to the library has resulted in the loss of 11 large trees. However, approximately 50 new trees and bushes were planted in this area. Furthermore, as a result of its protest, the Conservation Club will be helping to replace the replacement of trees and this future planting.

On Sunday, October 6, the Board of Trustees held an off-campus retreat. The board retreat is an annual occurrence, the primary purpose of which is to evaluate the progress of MSC in relation to its five year plan, laid forth by Dr. Irvin D. Reid. Also, at this particular retreat, the contracts to construct a new academic building in parking lot 13 were awarded. Like the library and access road contracts, these contracts cost significantly less than originally expected.

LETTER...

Library Director unconcerned with student input

So there I was along with hundreds of other students, writing a paper at the Sprague Library study-in Wednesday night. It was late, maybe 12:30 or 1:00 a.m. I had missed dinner and I was up late studying for the exam. I was up late studying for the exam and had just finished the study-in. At the risk of insulting Mrs. Joans-Tren's intelligence, did she think perhaps the students were there to fight a tuition hike? Protest a war? Cry for rainforests? I don't know which memo she did not see, but fliers all over campus, chalked sidewalks, announcements in residence halls and the proclamation from the Student Government Association President sent through E-mail all clearly stated that the intention of the study-in was to protest the cutbacks in library services and hours. What other purpose could there possibly be besides to show student concern over this situation?

When a concerned student asked Mrs. Joans-Tren if she had pursued certain avenues to increase her staff and confronted her about possible solutions that she may consider, her response was, "Have you taken any management courses?" Maybe I am misinformed, but I was unaware that one had to take a management course in order to offer an idea or possible solution to a campus problem.

At MSC, I was always under the impression that students' concerns, support and input were vital for a healthy campus community. After spending 10 hours in the library Wednesday night, Mrs. Bernice Joans-Tren repeatedly convinced me that she has little or no concern for the student input. I feel that Mrs. Joans-Tren handled the situation poorly, without professionalism or good communication skills. It frightens me, as it should all students, to learn that a person with this attitude is capable of obtaining such an important position.

Let's start by identifying the main topics in the document. There are several key themes: the controversy over Leonard Jeffries and his views on race; the broader issue of racism and its impact; the role of institutional structures, such as universities, in shaping opinion; and the challenge of addressing these issues in a way that is both effective and inclusive. The text contains references to specific events and figures, both historical and contemporary, and discusses the implications of these for understanding the complexities of race relations.

1. The Controversy over Leonard Jeffries: The text begins with a reference to the controversy surrounding Leonard Jeffries, a controversial scholar known for his views on race. The author expresses support for Jeffries, defending his right to express his views, and contrasts his position against those who are censoring him, implying a broader issue about the freedom of speech and the right to express one's opinions, even if they are controversial.

2. Racism and Its Implications: The text delves into the nature of racism, both past and present, and its impact on society. It discusses the historical roots of racism, such as the slave system and its effects on the working class, and how these inequalities persist in modern times. The text also touches on the role of education and the need for diversity in the curriculum, suggesting that institutions like universities must reflect a more inclusive approach.

3. The Role of Institutions: The text highlights the role of institutions, particularly universities, in shaping opinion and policy on race issues. It suggests that institutions have a responsibility to address these issues openly and inclusively, and to foster a dialogue that promotes understanding and respect.

4. Current Events and Politics: The text references specific current events and political figures, such as President Bush and Richard Herrnstein, and discusses their roles in the context of race relations. It suggests that leaders and politicians have a responsibility to address these issues in a way that is empowering and inclusive.

5. Conclusion: The text concludes by reiterating the importance of addressing these issues and encouraging a more open and inclusive dialogue. It suggests that by doing so, we can begin to create a more just and equitable society.

In summary, the text presents a complex and nuanced discussion of race relations, emphasizing the importance of openness, inclusivity, and the role of institutions in addressing these issues. It challenges readers to consider their own perspectives and to engage in a dialogue that promotes understanding and respect.
Star Trek journeys onward
by Tom Boud

Star Trek VI: The Undiscovered Country is one of Paramount Studio's finest endeavors yet at perpetuating what started as an avant-garde TV series that barely survived into a third season and ended up becoming the greatest sci-fi phenomenon in history. (Note: besides the original 79 episodes which aired from Sept 1966 to June 1969, there are also 22 animated episodes that ran between 1973-1974, The Next Generation sequel series with over 100 episodes, to say nothing of six movies still following the adventures of the original TV cast.)

This time around, Nicholas Meyer is in the director's chair. He perfectly blends together Shakespearean philosophy, outer space combat, neat special effects, political intrigue, betrayal, mystery, witty humor, and colorful character interplay to come up with a cinematic cocktail more powerful than Romulan ale.

Standart 952-1.6, one huge chunk of the Klingon moon Praxis goes Hiroshima, sending interstellar shockwaves that nearly topple the starship Enterprise commanded by newly promoted Captain Sulu (George Takei). This same disaster threatens the very existence of the Klingon race prompting a serious stab at diplomacy headed by Klingon Chancellor Gorken (David Warner). However, things turn sour faster than a fading transporter beam when the delegation's vessel suppos edly gets torpedoed by the Enterprise. Gorken and most of his delegation is massacred by a mysterious duo in Federation space. Kirk and McCoy beam over to investigate the incident only to be arrested to stand trial in a Klingon court for a crime they had nothing to do with.

One fantastic asset concerning the Enterprise's crew is their lively interaction marked with many outbursts of humor. In one scene, Chekov (Walter Koenig) expresses his disgust at the fact that the Klingon delegation is coming to dine aboard the Enterprise, sarcastically saying "guess who's coming to dinner."

Further along the lines of humor, Shatner also quips his way through the film. At one point, he abruptly rebuts a Klingon diplomat's assertion that they need more breathing space by spurning, "Earth, Hitler, 1938." To boot, "Bones" McCoy (DeForest Kelly) tears up the screen with his emotional displays of humor. Scotty (James Doohan) and Uhura (Nicelle Nichols) are more laid back, but have a couple funny moments here and there, including a scene where they try to bluff the Enterprise past a Klingon surveillance post in Kliingon with no help from the trusty universal translator.

Regardng other roles, Sulu (George Takei) does a fine job as captain of the Excelsior. He comes across as tactfully as sertive and besides, it's nice to see him in a totally different role for once. David Warner's rendition of Chancellor Gorken isn't bad (note how close Gorken is to Gorbachev) although his part in Trek IV is small. Lastly, there is Kim Cattral who pulls it off as Lt. Valeris, a Vulcan officer very much like the Lt. Saavik character seen in Treks II, III, and briefly in IV. By the way, I wonder what has become of Saavik these days?

Plotwise, Director Meyer knew what he was doing. He took the central idea of a Federation-Klingon peace attempt that went sour and spiced it up with a brilliant twist. Along the way, Meyer's direction takes you to a rauous Klingon court to the depths of a Klingon gulag, and to a faceoff between the Enterprise, Excelsior, and a Bird of Prey that can fire even while cloaked. There is additionally one great scene where Kirk fights an alien who uses its ability to assume Kirk's form.

All in all, Meyer, who also directed the blockbuster Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan, has succeeded at putting together the best Trek flick yet. With all the right elements in all the right quantities, Trek VI: The Undiscovered Country is definitely worth visiting.

Note Spock's (Leonard Nimoy) remark near the movie's end about Starfleet's order that the Enterprise's crew be decommissioned: "If we were human, my response would be go to hell," Trek VII perhaps ...

A Picnic in December?!
by Andrea Picolloino

A sweltering Labor Day in a small Kansas backyard is a perfect day for a Picnic, and so it seems is Montclair in December.

Not since 1987 has a Montclair State student department have a mainstream production set design that was solely comprised of student designs. The mainstream production of "Picnic," was held at the studio theater last week.

The designers of the set are two B.F.A. designers, Julie Chrobak, the scenic designer, and Mike Van Duesen, the lighting designer. Julie explained how it took months of research to come up with the perfect design for the set. She first had to take into consideration, the time period of the set and the specifications that were needed. She then elaborated on the image of the set that was given by the original story, and came up with her own ideas. The lighting designer, Mike Duesen, had a different approach to coming up with the lighting of the set. "I actually went outside and looked at the sky," Mike explained, "the set required realistic lighting of the outside, held in a dark place."

Mike was assisted by Joe Gibald and other design majors. The students also took a large tree branch from the front of the library, and reassembled it for the set. Everyone agreed with the fact that working together with each other enhanced the play.

Director Susan Trush was pleased with the outcome of the whole production. "It was terrific working together with people you already have relationships with. It was more workable on both accounts, as to what was served for the play, and for the students as well." She then stated that working with student designers was a very different experience, but they were still dealing with the same issues as they would be if they were dealing with professionals. On working together on the set of Picnic, the designers quoted, "We're all one big, happy family, but we hate each other's fucking guts."

It took Galileo 16 years to master the universe.
You have one night.

It seems unfair. The genius had all that time. While you have a few short hours to learn your sun spots from your satellites before the dreaded astronomy exam.

On the other hand, Vivarin gives you the definite advantage. It helps keep you awake and mentally alert for hours. Safely and conveniently. So even when the subject matter's dull, your mind will stay razor sharp.

If Galileo had used Vivarin, maybe he could have mastered the solar

Rush rolls bones at Madison Square Garden

by Mark Belnay

Well, there I was driving down Seventh Avenue trying to find a parking space that looked somewhat safe thinking about the most influential bands of the last 15 years...RUSH. I finally found a space and was walking towards the Garden when I glanced at my watch and was astonished to find that it was already nine o'clock. I had 15 minutes until the show was to begin...

I fought my way up numerous staircases and finally reached my seat...They weren't that bad for $22.50...I had just removed my coat and sat down when the lights went out...This was it....RUSH!! I thought of the man is, Peart's solo midway through the concert piercing the darkness of the night.

The trial is following normal proceedings, but the characters in the play are what's making this more interesting than watching an album. The man is, himself anywhere near the level of the drum set...

I only started to follow RUSH again a couple of years ago so I don't consider myself anywhere near the level of the hardcore followers who surround me, but I yelled just as loud when the first notes of "Time Stand Still", "Proveit", "Distant Early Warning", and "Red Barcheta" screaming through the amps as the lasers pierced the darkness of the night. "Dreamline" and the title track of their newest album, "Roll the Bones" satisfied the desires of those of us who came to hear the newest material from this Canadian band.

Well, after two hours of screaming my brains out and understanding the true meaning of the word exhilaration I left Madison Square Garden and headed back to my car...Guess what...It was still there, although after that concert I might not have cared too much if my car was somewhere being dismantled...Then again, I might have been just a little pissed...

The trial was the first time I uttered a cheer after a solo. The man is, "Dreamline" and the title track of their newest album, "Roll the Bones" satisfied the desires of those of us who came to hear the newest material from this Canadian band.

I, for one, am in favor of the victim. Number one, no one ever asks to be raped. Number two, I wouldn't mind watching the untouchable, high-and-mighty Kennedy clan falling a notch or three. They've gotten a bit too big for their britches, and deserve a decent public spanking. The trouble is, if Willie is found guilty, no big deal. The man is, the Kennedys are just a tad nervous. Hell, yes.

Senator Edward Kennedy has megabucks from waaaaaay back. Come to think of it, so does the whole Kennedy family. It's old money. That old money grew into even more new money. Now, Ed and company are spending quite a bit of the green stuff to wipe the blemish of the clan off the public record. Trouble is, for all the moolah spent, the case is still open, and the game's afoot.

Dear King,

Last week you dogged Patrick Ewing pretty hard. King. First off, I do agree that Ewing is overpaid, but the same can be said for many other players. Larry Bird did defer some of his salary and that is commendable. I know that the two players are incomparable as far as accomplishments go, but due to the deferred money, Bird stands to make a cool $7 million a season.

On to another issue, Ewing’s rebounding. When Ewing was drafted first overall in the 1985 Draft, he needed his rebounding and his defense desperately. His frontcourt mate in his first few seasons included: marginal forward Pat Cummings, Lori O’Neal, and Bill Cartwright.

In those days, the Knicks needed Ewing to average no less than 11 or 12 rebounds per game. Then, in June, 1988, the Knicks traded Cartwright for Charles Oakley. Oakley has been one of the league’s top five rebounders in his six seasons in the league. Also, to set the record straight, Ewing’s rebounding average has risen in each of Oakley’s three seasons with New York (9.3 avg in ’89, 10.8 in ’90 and 11.2 in ’91). Now this season, add strong rebounding small-forward Xavier McDaniel, and newcomer Anthony Mason, and the Knicks don’t need Ewing to be in the top five among the league’s rebounders. It certainly wouldn’t hurt, but it isn’t a necessity.

Why does Ewing shoot more jump shots than foul shots? Pat does get manhandled in the paint by every center in the league. Also, as silly as it may sound, the 7’0” center is the Knicks best medium-range jumper. King.

Keith Idec

Keith, I’m not dogging Ewing. I’m just telling it like it is. I said Patrick is great, but he doesn’t fall under a category, I consider, a dominant center.

Dominant means averaging 25 points, 14 rebounds and three blocks a game. Pat’s got two out of three. But more importantly, dominance translates into victories, and Ewing’s got nothing worth bragging about here. Coming into this season, the Knicks have won 21 games with Ewing starting and 22 with him on the bench. That’s a win/loss record of 77 wins to a year. A man who earns that much money should carry his team to 50 wins.

To set the record straight, Keith, if the Knicks needed Patrick to average 12 rebounds a game in the beginning, how come he didn’t average over 9.0 until 1989. Enough said.

You also said Patrick takes jumpers because he is manhandled in the paint. How can a man, 240 lbs., be pushed out of the middle? The sad part here is, not only is it true, but it is the “lesser” centers that usually muscle Ewing around. Pat will ouplay a Vlade Divac, or a Kevin Willis, but not by much. Then, against the Robinsons and Olajuwons, Ewing must take a backseat in head-to-head confrontations.

There is one man that no one ever talks about in terms of money or dominance, but he is the center I respect most in basketball, Robert Parish.

This Celtic legend does a great job every night and holds his own against the other big men, especially Ewing. The Celtics don’t need Parish to score or rebound as much because they’re loaded with other players who can do that. That’s the logic everyone, including Keith, uses with Ewing and the Knicks, but there is so much more to the game than just putting the ball in the basket.

When Ewing realizes this, maybe he’ll have something to put in his trophy case other than his record setting check.

Front office to blame for Giants quick exit

Dear King,

It’s quite obvious that the Giants are not going to get a chance to defend their Super Bowl title. We could blame Ray Handley, after all he is the coach. The defense did not play particularly well. The ground game was hardly effective either.

Personally, I think it all boils down to the front office. After Bill Parcells retired, Wellington Mara and Co. had a key position vacated. It came down to Bill Belichick, the defensive coordinator of the most feared defense in the NFL, or Ray Handley, offensive coordinator and odds-on favorite. Why is Handley the odds-on favorite? Politics. It’s “not what you know, it’s who you know,” and Handley had been with the organization longer.

Football is a business, and when you allow politics to get in the way of business it produces a problem. Belichick, now Cleveland’s head coach, has the Browns first in the NFL in turnover/giveaway ratio at +20.

Now I’m not putting the blame on Handley for the horrible season because he doesn’t run or catch the ball. The defense was particularly bad this season. The middle linebackers Peppier Johnson, Gary Reasons and Steve DeOssie were virtually invincible.

I do not like the Giants, but I respect them because they play in our backyard. But I feel that the whole Giant organization is to blame and possibly it was a fluke that they won the Super Bowl.

I just want to leave you with a few things to think about. Ray Handley is capable of being a winner if he loses that conservative attitude. Also, don’t be surprised if you see a couple very popular names on the Plan B list.

Hawk swim teams drown USMMA by 32

by Jim Klossok

What do we do for an encore? That question must have been running through the minds of both the men’s and women’s swim teams after they each chalked up decisive wins over United States Merchant Marine Academy (USMMA) last Wednesday night. The margin of victory for both teams was 32, with the men triumphing over the women 70-68.

The “Mitzak Magic” continued to happen. Friday, December 13, 1991

Hoffman and Yadin, the women dominated both the freestyle and relay events. Especially impressive was John, a freshman swimmer who was the fifth and sixth triple winner of the night for an MSC squad which seemingly could do no wrong. Between Hoffman and Yadin the women dominated both the freestyle and relay events.

This is not the same team, Dan. None of the players, except for LT (a Parcells guy), said anything about the Simms/Hoss debate. It seemed the players were looking out for themselves and protecting their own jobs. That isn’t a championship team.

I would also like to tell you that Belichick is the difference. I said in “King’s Court” that they never should have let him go. His replacement, Al Groh, is horrible.

About Handley, I never like to blame the coach, however, there is one thing I don’t like about Ray. In an interview, after the Giants beat Tampa Bay, Handley told reporters, “They have a challenge next week and they’ll be ready.” He said “they” and he was talking about his team. Ray, this is “your” team.

Dan, I know that many Giants will be on the Plan B list, but this is good. I think it’s time to break some of these guys up.

The season is over and everyone wants to blame Handley, Hostetler and everyone else. Personally, I feel that management makes the major decisions and, therefore, the major mistakes. Mara and the boys are the reason for this sad season.

I have to say this though. The season is over! Let’s not point fingers at who’s to blame. Instead, we should point to the golf courses, because that’s where the Giants will be, but more importantly, we should point to an area covered by used Kleenexes, where all the Giants fans have been weeping.

(See KING’S COURT page 30)
Two months. That’s how long I had to wait. Two, long, almost never-arriving months.

In my basketball preview, I predicted the Philadelphia 76ers would win the Atlantic Division. I made that decision in early August. So when tickets went on sale for the 1991-92 season, on Oct. 7, I wasted no time in purchasing tickets for perhaps the best back-to-back games in recent memory.

The Portland Trailblazers, the best team in the west, and the Chicago Bulls, the defending NBA champions, would be making a stop at The Spectrum in Philadelphia Dec. 6 and 7, respectively.

I arrived! I made it to Doc’s house! To give you a little idea of how small Villanova is, I entered a post office that was smaller than any MSC classroom. It had basically everything but a guided tour of the Erving estate. I wish.

After 30 minutes of driving and turning and stopping and U-turning, I finally found his house. I made a right onto his block and one house later screamed, “That’s his house! That’s his house!”

I stopped the car, got out, raised my arms on my sides and spun around and around, similar to Julie Andrews in The Sound of Music.

I arrived! I made it to Doc’s house! To quote Mr. Erving himself, “The feeling was just fantastic!”

A half-hour of taking pictures of his house, his servants’ house, his fire hydrant, and everything else, I decided to go back to Philly.

I got back in my car and noticed, as I looked out my rearview mirror, that someone was riding down the driveway. It was Julius’ 9-year-old son, Cory, on his bike, coming out to get the mail.

He is a good likeness of his father. The boy is at least 5’2”. I talked to him for a couple of minutes and he was very friendly. I asked him if I could take a picture of him. He smiled and said, “Okay.” After the flash, he closed the mailbox, smiled again, and said, “I’ll see you later.”

I couldn’t believe I just met my lifelong hero’s son. I was just like a little boy, bouncing around in my car. All I kept saying was, “The license plate is now true! I’ve got a friend in Pennsylvania! Cory Erving!” I know that sounds a little extreme, but I was very excited. I not only found Dr. J’s house, I met his son.

When I finally regained consciousness, I got back on Rt. 1, and headed for The Spectrum. I still had the Bulls game to go to.

Travelling north, I noticed, let’s just say I saw any painting! I did what everyone else was doing. I ran up the 98 steps that Sylvester Stallone ran up in Rocky’s I, II and III. Yo! It was great!

Just when you thought all the excitement was all over, there was still a basketball game to go to. The Bulls against the Sixers. It wasn’t Michael against Charles. Instead, it became Michael and Scottie against Hawkins and Gilliam.

Hawkins poured in 30 points and “The Hammer” added 29, including three free throws in the final :20 to give the Barkley-less 76ers a 103-100 victory over the defending NBA champs.

The game, which was the icing on the cake, ended and so did my weekend. But what a weekend it was. The two-month wait was well worth it.

The year in sports, MSC Red Hawk style

A look back at the memories and moments of the year that was plateu in its first 60 years.

October 10
Ramapo College stuns MSC on an 85-yard TD pass play with just over one minute remaining, giving the Roadrunners a 23-17 victory in the 13th Pride Bowl.

October 17
The Women's Cross Country team impresses at the First Red Hawk Invitational.

Freshman Kimberly Kraft sets a school record in the 3.1 race, finishing 13th with a time of 1:21:04.

November 7
For the third consecutive year, the MSC men's soccer team clinches a birth in the NCAA Division III soccer tournament.

Former MSC soccer star Rob Chesney takes over the men's soccer program. In replacing Dave Masur, he becomes MSC's 11th soccer coach since 1958.

Former MSC soccer star Rob Chesney takes over the men's soccer program. In replacing Dave Masur, he becomes MSC's 11th soccer coach since 1958.

Alice DeFazio, a former MSC player on the late-great women basketball teams of the 70's, replaces Jill Jeffrey as the new head coach. DeFazio becomes only the fifth MSC head coach for the women's basketball team.

MSC football defeats the Buffalo Bulls, 120-111, in what third year head coach Brian McLaughlin calls, "A major win, an upset." The transfer from Wake Forest leads the Red Hawk football star tailback John Walker in pursuit of all-time MSC rushing record.

Big girls don’t cry, or so the song tells us. However, more than a few tears were seen falling as the curtain fell on the 13th annual Gym.

not only is home where the heart is, it’s also performance over the past few days,” said “I couldn’t be more pleased with our captured their seventh straight DSC title. Continues to reside as the Lady Red Hawks where the Dial championship trophy of our opponents showed us two distinct styles of basketball, but we adapted well and fortunately came out on top.” Adapted is putting it mildly. After a lackluster first half on Friday night against Emmanuel College (Mass.), in which the Lady Hawks shot only 30.8% from the floor, they stormed back to outscore their opponents 47-27 in the second half enroute to a 71-52 rout of EC. Shannon Shaffer led MSC with 21 points while Judy Stair (19 points) and Kim Barnes (16) played a big part in the second half rally which saw MSC connect on a sizzling 56% of its shots.

“They’re extremely quick,” commented Stair. “And they caught us off balance in the first half with that 2-3 zone defense they threw at us. Luckily we were able to pull together and play the kind of basketball we all knew we were capable of.”

That kind of basketball Stair eluded to elated the Red Hawk fans in attendance and left Emmanuel head coach Andy Yosinoff shaking his head with disbelief.

“It can’t explain it,” said the astonished Yosinoff. “I knew we let down a little (in the second half) but they were playing as if their lives were at stake. One thing’s for sure, whenever goes against them tomorrow they’re going to have their hands full.”

The Frostburg University Bobcats (MD) turned out to be that team as they doubled the Wittenberg Tigers (Ohio) 51-42 behind junior center Nicole Bashaw’s 18 points.

Things are looking up. That’s what MSC’s Shannon Shaffer seems to be signaling, as she led the Lady Hawks to the Dial Classic title over the Frostburg State Bobcats, 61-52 last Saturday. Shaffer was named tournament MVP for her outstanding play.

The Bobcats, who have become a more defense oriented team since their high scoring forward Sheila Colbert (657 points last year) graduated, knew their only chance was to outwork the Red Hawks at every turn, especially under the boards which meant containing Shaffer.

“Shannon is the key,” said Bobcat head coach Jim Crawley. “If we contain her we have a good shot at winning this thing. If we can’t we’re in for a long night.”

For a while it looked like Frostburg’s strategy was going to work. It jumped out by a quick 15-8 lead and increased it to 26-14 with 4:03 left in the half. At that point, the Bobcats seemed to let down their guard a little. Some sloppy play on their end led to a four-point play. What had been a 43-39 Lady Hawk lead less than a minute before was now an eight point advantage. It was a lead that MSC never relinquished enroute to the 61-52 Dial Classic victory.

“Maritza really stepped up and took charge,” said DeFazio. “Up to that point the game could have gone either way. That gave us a little breathing room and we took it from there.”

Maritza finished the night with 17 points including three threes. Gillette who scored in double figures were Barnes and Stair (each with 10 points) and Shaffer (13 points). Shaffer was voted the tournament’s MVP while Barnes and Stair also received awards for their efforts. After the game they commented on MSC’s latest Dial victory.

“Just to be here was gratifying enough,” said Barnes. “But really, it’s especially when we had to overcome such stiff competition, is something I’ll never forget.”

“It was a total team effort,” offered Shaffer. “Everyone deserves credit for the job they did today. Of course I’m very pleased to be chosen as the tournament MVP but it could have easily gone to Maritza, Judy or Kim. I’m just happy to be part of a team which I believe is only going to get better.”

It was a night in which some big girls did cry; fortunately for the Red Hawks they were tears of joy.

HAWK NOTES....Shannon Shaffer who raised her averages to 17.4 ppg. and 9.4 ppg....Pete Riteuski is second at 13.1 ppg, and Gillette 33.3, Spinogatti 32.9, and Riteuski 30....Gillette is the leading FT shooter at 81%....MSC has five games scheduled over break. Men's basketball can't find win column despite strong performances by Mullins

by Keith A. Idee

The MSC men's basketball team was still in search of its first victory of the season on Tuesday, December 10th. The stage was set: MSC was taking on Trenton State in Ewing Township's Packert Hall. The battle between the NJAC rivals was televised on the New Jersey Network. MSC entered the game 0-6 (0-3). Trenton came in 2-3 (0-2 NJAC). The Red Hawks got behind early, but crept back into the game. They trailed 15-8 with 12:10 remaining in the first half. Forward Lee Mullins scored MSC's first eight points. The Red Hawks cut the Lion's lead to 28-24, with 2:55 left in the half. Mullins led the charge, adding a three-point basket and a lay-up. MSC trailed 34-27 at the half.

In the second half, Trenton upped its lead to 10 points on three different occasions, before pulling away for good with 2:02 left in the game. MSC didn’t score again after the 2:18 point and dropped the contest, 71-57.

Mullins led the way for the Red Hawks, scoring 26 points. Guard Garrett Gillette added 15 points and six rebounds. Craig Dudley led a balanced Trenton attack with 12 points. On Friday, Dec. 6, MSC travelled to Camden to take on Rutgers-Camden. The Red Hawks came as close as they’ve come to winning a ballgame this season on this evening. MSC led at halftime, 36-31. However, after numerous lead changes in the second half, Rutgers-Camden pulled out the victory, 67-64. Mullins played an excellent game, scoring 31 points (12-19 FG’s, 7-10 FT’s) and grabbed 5 rebounds. Guard Dean Spinogatti chipped in with nine points and seven assists, while Gillette added nine points and six rebounds. Don Palk led Rutgers-Camden with 27 points.

There is one more game scheduled for MVP but it could have easily gone to Maritza, Judy or Kim. I’m just happy to be part of a team which I believe is only going to get better.”

It was a night in which some big girls did cry; fortunately for the Red Hawks they were tears of joy.
