Sadhwani new SGA president with 400 votes; Kunze takes vice president in landslide win

by Maureen McGowan

Gauri Sadhwani and Richard Kunze won the SGA elections last night for president and vice president, respectively. Sadhwani won by a count of 400 votes and Kunze by a count of 537. Overall 999 MSC students came out and voted this week.

Sadhwani, who is currently President Pro Tem for the SGA, said she was "really surprised I won, but I'm ecstatic," with the outcome. One of her plans for next semester is to "follow up on the goals of this year's executive board." They worked hard and their goals should be carried out. "She added, "This point issue means alot to me, it's not just something to put on my resume."

She also added, "I'm very very happy people came out to vote." Sadhwani said she wants to find out where the students stand on the possibility of University status. She said that in May the Board of Trustees will vote on the matter and that "we have to show the administration where the students stand on University status."

Kunze, who is now the Attorney General, said, "I feel great, I'm going to Disneyland." He added he was pleased with the student turnout, but, "I still feel we should have had more than a 10 percent turnout." He also said he feels the election committee did a great job, especially Jill Armstrong, who was Chair of the Election Committee. "Jill did an excellent job, she pulled it off without a hitch," said Kunze.

One of Kunze's first plans is to "sit down with the (new) executive board and work on goals that we'll be trying to accomplish over the next year."

Other winners include: Janet Jaramillo for secretary, with a vote count of 660, Rob Tranter for treasurer, with 688 votes, and Sal Anderton for Board of Trustees alternate, with 688 votes.

Jaramillo said, "The whole election committee did a fantastic job in trying to get people to vote, but it was sad to see that only 999 students voted." She added that her first priority is to "get together with Dano (Dan Olowsk, current SGA secretary) to completely show me what I have to do and what I can get done." She added, "Depending on what he shows me and what doors he opens, determines how far and to what extent I can take my position."

Tranter, who will retake the office of treasurer, said, "I was happy for the most part by the way the elections were conducted, but I was disappointed in how some members of The Montclarion trivialized the election and the election process."

One of the things Tranter said he is currently working on is getting housing at Clove Road for executive and planning board members of Class I organizations over the summer in order to start programming earlier. He added that he is still negotiating with the administration on this.

"I commend all candidates for making the effort," he said. "I wish more people would try, because you never know until you try."

Anderton, a legislator, said he is very excited, and looking forward to next semester. "The Board of Trustees is something that the students should be more aware of, if students want to protest, the Board of Trustees is a great place to get a point across."

He said from now until his first meeting in June, he will be working with Seth Lebowitz and Paul Priot, the current Board of Trustees Alternate and Voting member.

Other candidates said even though they lost the election they were optimistic about the future of the SGA. Joan Petrocelli, who ran for president and received 291 votes, said, "It was a tough race, very competitive." She added, "Even though I lost I feel really good about it, I met a lot of people along the way who supported me, and I'm not going to let them down."

She said she plans to continue working for the students. "My campaign promises were not just so people would vote for me." Petrocelli said. She said she was not sure in what capacity she wanted to serve the students next semester. Currently she is director of Public Relations for the Student Government Association.

SGA proposes new guidelines for alcohol in the Rathskeller

by Thomas Walsh

In a referendum question at the polls yesterday, 748 students voted to permit the return of alcohol to the Rathskeller.

Anthony Susco, SGA president, said that President Irvin Reid suggested that the proposal for alcohol on campus be brought to the College Senate for approval and then through discussion with the administration it may be implemented.

"The reality of getting the policy implemented depends on whether or not the administration wants to create a better sense of campus community," Susco said.

Susco also said that if the proposal is reviewed over the summer, the implementation of alcohol in the Rat could take place as early as this fall.

Janet Jaramillo, newly elected secretary of the SGA, said that alcohol on campus could promote a new and different campus social life. "Alcohol in the Rat could help change MSC's image as a suitcase college," she said.

Susco also said that the administration has long desired for the students to develop a proposal outlining the rules and regulations of alcohol on campus. "If they really want a campus community, they should adopt the policy," Susco said.

The Rat has not served alcohol since spring of 1989 after a raid by the Alcohol Beverage Commission (ABC) where nine MSC students were arrested for underage drinking. As a result of the incident, the liquor licence was suspended for 30 days and has not been used since by the Faculty Student Cooperative Association (FSCA) who is in charge of it.

Douglas Blackburn, director of the FSCA, said that his organization has maintained the license and insurance and are waiting on the administrations decision on the policy.

Campus Clean-Up Day was postponed until May 13 because of an inclement weather forecast.

by Annemarie Palmer

Campus Clean-Up Day has been postponed until May 13 because of an inclement weather forecast. Victor Korebka, director of welfare and internal affairs, said the event was originally scheduled to take place today and is sponsored by the SGA, the Conservation Club, the administration, the maintenance department and faculty of MSC.

Korebka said that the main emphasis of the clean-up is behind Boh Hall and the amphitheater. If all goes well, he sees this happening annually with hope that the degree of dedication will not be at the point it is now.

"We are doing this in order to give the students an idea of what responsibilities we must take as citizens of this community in promoting pride and a sense of collegiate spirit," Korebka said.

Students, faculty, staff and administrators will participate in a campus-wide clean-up which will split the campus into 11 sections. Members of the campus community who wish to participate will meet in the Student Center Quad and will be put into different groups and given a section to work in.

The maintenance department will provide dumpsters, rakes, bags and gloves. In addition, they will provide the manpower needed to assist in the clean-up.

Korebka also said, "We want to be able to have an interaction between administration, faculty and students outside the academic setting."

Robert Tranter, treasurer of the SGA, said that he had the idea last semester.

Dr. Edward Martin, dean of Student Affairs, said he is in any situation you should use the three C's: Cool, Calm, and Collective. Try to talk the attacker out of whatever he is doing. Try to get his trust so he will let down his guard and then attack. "You have to think just as animalistic as they (attackers) do," said Johnson.

GA was founded in 1979 by Curtis Silwa in New York City. This is a non-profit tax deductible organization whose goal is to protect citizens by paroling the subways and streets.

There are 5000 members worldwide in 67 chapters. There are 60 chapters in the U.S., three in Canada, one in Toronto, one in London, England, and one in Manchester, England.

They are working on a chapter in Australia and hopefils in Sweden, Russia, Poland and Moscow.

The police have learned to accept the GA in NYC after 13 years of proving themselves. Until this day, there are some police officers who won't cooperate. The GA put themselves in more danger than policemen because they don't carry any weapons or wear bullet-proof vests. They use walkie-talkies for communication while on the street.

In order to become a GA you must be 16 years of age and in school or if not in college, work full-time. You are put through a rigorous three month training program which includes Self-Defense; Martial Arts; Subway and Street paroling, and Situation Training, which helps to develop the mind so that if you fall into any type of situation, you will be prepared.

Women are involved in this organization. The only woman GA in NYC is Lisa Silwa, wife of the founder. There is a female chapter in London, England called the Amazon. Women also have a troop in Houston, Texas.

Johnson said, "GA have one common goal. We can't stand the shit and scum on the street!"

El club de Español activos en Abril y Mayo

por Jorge L. Cruz

La población hispanoamericana en los Estados Unidos de Norte América ha venido creciendo en una manera increíble en los últimos años. Esto ha traido como consecuencia que el idioma español haya adquirido gran popularidad en este país. Al principio de los 80, los Estados Unidos Norteamericanos se convirtieron en el cuarto país en todo el mundo, donde más se habla la lengua hispana, esto, debido a la gran inmigración de latinoamericanos.

Este incremento en la población hispanohablante se ha hecho notar en MSC. En los últimos años la escuela ha recibido un considerable número de estudiantes latinoamericanos.

Desde hace más de 60 años el Club de Español, una organización clase II de la Asociación del Gobierno Estudiantil (SGA), se ha preocupado por mantener viva la cultura hispanoamericana. Así como de promover la lengua española ayudando a todas aquellas personas interesadas en el idioma español. La organización efectúa reuniones en las cuales se observan, analizan y discuten películas y documentales acerca de los problemas actuales de los países latinoamericanos.

La actual mesa directiva del Club de Español se encuentra conformada por un comité de estudiantes latinoamericanos, encabezados por su consejera la Dra. Carmen Alverio, originaria de Puerto Rico y profesora del departamento de Español e Italiano.

Noé Pérez, presidente del club, es un inmigrante salvadoreño quien ha realizado un excelente trabajo debido a su gran amistad y dedicación a esta institución. El Club de Español está en su lugar y todos se respetarán. Este semestre, el tiene en mente interesantes proyectos por realizar.

Noé Pérez tiene como colaboradores a F. Elizabeth Sclafani, estudiante italo-ecuatoriana quien desempeña el puesto de vice-presidente; Glendy Estrada de Guatemala, tiene a su cargo las transacciones financieras y Damaris Meléndez de Puerto Rico realiza la función de secretaria.

El Club de Español realizará una exhibición de artesanías típicas latinoamericanas.

De igual manera, participará en el “Spring Day” organizado por el club, el próximo 22 de abril en el estacionamiento número 17, el club realizará una venta de comidas típicas latinoamericanas.

El Club, tiene también una importante participación en la décimo tercera conferencia de literatura latinoamericana “Encontros con el Oeste: Latinoamérica y España,” la cual se llevará a cabo el viernes 10 de abril en el “Ballroom B” del “Student Center.” En la cual se llevará a cabo el viernes 10 de abril en el “Ballroom B” del “Student Center.”

De su cena-baile Escobaza el 24 de abril, donde se entregarán los premios a los estudiantes de Español más sobresalientes. Los premios consisten en la beca Escobaza, la cual fue fundada por el Dr. John Hwang, profesor del departamento de Español e Italiano, quien organiza eventos tales como becas y premios para dichos becados. Durante la cena los presentes tendrán la oportunidad de probar la exquisitez cocina latinoamericana.

El próximo domingo 3 de mayo, se organizará un viaje a la ciudad de Nueva York, el cual tendrá como objetivo, presenciar la obra de Gabriel García Márquez “La Cándida Eréndira,” representada por el Repertorio Español. El punto de partida será el “Student Center” y la cita es a la 1:30 pm. Esta es una magnífica oportunidad para los amantes del teatro en español, ya que el boleto de entrada solo costará $12 dólares.

Para todos estos eventos el Club de Español cuenta con la colaboración de sus 26 miembros. Algunos de los coordinadores son: Arlette Oropeza, estudiante mexicana quien esta a cargo del cometido de publicidad; Edgar Oropeza, mexicano también, se encarga de reclutar estudiantes para MSC así como para el club.

Pero no todos los integrantes son latinoamericanos, ya que Kathy Murphy, originaria del estado de Nueva Jersey y estudiante de español, es la encargada de dar el toque femenino a las decoraciones de los eventos.

Todas las personas interesadas en formar parte del Club de Español o aquellos que simplemente deseen participar en alguna de sus actividades, pueden asistir a las reuniones de la organización. Estas se efectúan los martes de 12:00 a 1:00 pm y los jueves de 10:00 a 11:00 am en el salón 402 del “Student Center,” o bien pueden llamar al 893-7512 para mayor información.

Spanish Club plays an important role in MSC community for the rest of the Spring semester

by Jorge L. Cruz

By the early 1980s, the United States had become the fourth largest Spanish-speaking nation in the world, as a result of the large Latin-American immigration which is why the Spanish language has gained popularity in this country.

This increase in Hispanic speakers has been noticed at MSC. In the last several years the college has accepted several hundred Latin-American students.

For more than 60 years, the Spanish Club, a class II organization of the SGA, has been interested in keeping the Hispanic language alive and promoting the Spanish language as a teaching tool.

This year, the executive board consists of a group of Latin-American students advised by Dr. Carmen Alverio, a professor of the Spanish/Italian department.

President Noé Pérez has done an outstanding job due to his enthusiasm and commitment to his responsibilities. He has many interesting projects in mind for this semester.

The other members of the executive board include Vice-President F. Elizabeth Sclafani, Treasurer Glendy Estrada, and Secretary Damaris Meléndez.

The Spanish Club will take part in the International Week, organized by The International Student Organization (ISO). The club exhibited Latin-American art and literature, on April 9, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom B.

The club will also participate in Spring Day, April 27, which is organized by CLUB. Members of the Spanish Club will sell Latin American food in lot 17.

The Spanish Club also played an important part in the thirteenth annual meeting of the Conference on Latin-American Literature, which was held this Friday, April 10, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom A.

Events sponsored by the Spanish Club are the dinner dance, April 24, where outstanding Spanish majors will receive awards. This event was founded by Dr. John Hwang, a professor in the Spanish/Italian department who organizes events such as book sales to raise funds for scholarships.

On May 3, a trip to Manhattan is scheduled to attend Gabriel García Márquez’s “La Cándida Eréndira” performed by “Repertorio Español.” This is a great opportunity for those people who love Spanish theater. Cost of the ticket is $12.

Some of the coordinators of the events are: Arlette Oropeza, who is in charge of advertising, Edgar Oropeza, who recruits students for MSC and the Spanish Club, and Kathy Murphy, who does the design work and gives the members much help in the decorations for the events.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the Spanish Club or simply want to enjoy the activities you can attend the general membership meetings, which are held on Tuesdays, from 12 to 1 p.m. and Thursdays from 10 to 11 a.m. in room 402 of the Student Center. For more information call 893-7512.

SGA, but she wants to serve the students in a greater capacity. She said, “It is better to be a has been than a never was.”

George Callie, who also ran for president, received 214 votes, said, “I’d just like to thank all the people who supported me, and congratulate all the winners. I will still continue to be available to any student who would like to voice an opinion or simply discuss an issue.” He added, “I’m glad to see the election was such a great success, especially for.SaveChangesAsyncand a lot of people didn’t know how to do a write-in.”

Armando Cruz, who ran for vice president, said, “I got 311 votes, I’m really happy. I got a rush out of someone writing me in.” Cruz added that he will continue on the SGA, and he’s considering looking into a cabinet position because he feels the SGA has a lot of potential. “I’ve been looking into plastic explosives, but I decided against it,” he added, “Rich is really cool.”

Andrea Nemeth was a write-in candidate for secretary and received 59 votes. “My disadvantage was that I wasn’t on the ballot,” said, “I was a write-in, and a lot of people didn’t know how to do a write-in.”

Nemeth said her decision to run was “last minute” and added, “I was a little optimistic, but realistic.”

Beside Nemeth, several other people received write-in votes. Robert Campos, Montclair news editor, got 39 votes for president, six votes for vice president, six votes for treasurer, four votes for secretary and three votes for Board of Trustees alternate.

The presidential position also received other write-ins, including six for SGA legislator Michael Costa, and five for Paul Prior, Board of Trustees student voting member. Vice-presidential write-ins included, three votes for WMSC disc jockey Derek Pinkham, Delta Chi pledge Karl Lomberk received one vote, and Jane Smith received one vote.

Write-ins for treasurer were Seth Leibowitz, Andrea Nemeth, Tona Tedesco, Chris Marmo and “any one else” with one vote apiece.

Milford Peetlot and Daniel Schavester received one writein vote apiece for secretary.

Tony Susco, SGA president, said he was pleased with the turnout and “that we had contested positions.” He added that he is happy with the results and thanked all the students who participated.

RAT frompage 1

The SGA’s outlined proposal for the alcohol policy in the Rat includes having MSC security official work and oversee the proofing station at the door. Non-MSC students would be required to provide two forms of identification and would not be admitted into the Rat without an MSC host.

The proposed hours of operation for the Rat would be Thursday through Saturday from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. Penalties for fighting or violating any of the policies would include being banned from the Rat for up to one full academic year.

One benefit of implementing the Rat’s liquor license is that it would give those students of legal age a place to drink, Susco said.

Craig Alston, manager of Pete’s Arena which is adjacent to the Rat, does not have pleasant memories about the time when it served alcohol. “Clean up was a mess,” he said and indicated that his crew was responsible for clean-up in the Rat.
Permanent Part-time Package Handlers

Our tuition reimbursement package is one of the most important packages UPS delivers.

United Parcel Service knows how difficult it is these days to get through school, academically and financially. While we can't help you get better grades, we can help you by offering one of the most generous tuition reimbursement packages around.

By working 3-5 hours a day, 5 days a week on selected shifts, you can be eligible for educational loans of up to $25,000 a year and tuition reimbursement of up to $2,000 a semester. You'll also start at $8 an hour, be able to pick a schedule that works around your classes, get paid holidays and vacations, receive company benefits and be eligible for promotions.

UPS also knows that free time is important. As a part-time package handler, you'll get weekends off! That's plenty of time to study or recharge.

No wonder we say UPS delivers more than a great job...UPS Delivers Education.

Science! E= what?
Science literacy crisis
by Audrey Regan

In Tuesday's Bergen Record, in the Nation/World section there is an article about Chernobyl. The nuclear power plant's 1986 accident is "far worse than reported" said the headline. More people, one million said the article, are believed to be in danger from low-level prolonged exposure to radiation.
Tragic, interesting, but what's radiation?
Where does it come from? The nucleus of an atom? The collision of two atoms? The splitting of an atom? The splitting of the nucleus of an atom...?
Well, just because it's in the paper doesn't mean I understand it! But if Robert M.
Hazen has his way, college and university graduates will be able to pick up the paper and read these articles "with the same degree of sophistication as they do politics, economics and sports."
Hazen, who is a research scientist at the Carnegie Institute of Washington's Geophysical Laboratory and Robinson Professor at George Mason University and co-author of a book Science Matters:
Achieving Scientific Literacy with Professor James Trefil, spoke to over 35 faculty members Monday afternoon in Richard B.
Hall about what he calls a "scientific literacy crisis."
Hazen blames the "misplaced priorities of the scientific community itself" for failing to provide college and university graduates with the basics for an all-around scientific foundation and for a failure to entice students to become scientifically curious.
"Taken together, at every level of science education in the U.S., we are somehow failing to pour out science as a human process," he said, emphasizing science not as the technological know-how needed to program a VCR or fix a car, but a "core understanding" of how basic laws in physics, chemistry, geology and biology operate and interact in current issues like the disposable nuclear waste debate.
Hazen attributes this failure, which causes students to regard science as "boring, alienating and irrelevant" and which portrays the scientific community as an "elitist priesthood of snobbery," to a number of factors. One is that most general introductory science courses are geared for science majors.
"It's like taking one or two semesters of a foreign language," he said. He did say that this was not the case at MSC.
He also said most universities and colleges teach courses which "almost never integrate with sweep and grandeur science as a body of knowledge which compliments art, philosophy and religion in the totality."
What would a course like this entail? At George Mason University a vote is being taken to institute a three-hour non-Lab course called Development of Scientific Thought, which, loosely based on Hazen's book, would function as a preliminary introduction to science as a human process. "It isn't just about facts. It includes history, philosophy and an understanding of scientific institutions in society and culture."
The course would provide non-science majors with a Renaissance look at what science is, how it interacts with the community and how it functions in major fields.
"To graduate college, I'll need to memorize 10,000 words and if I go on for a PhD, I'll need to know 100,000 words," Hazen said.
"Much of the problem lies in grades kinder garden through 12, where those who teach the teachers tell them to teach earlier experimentation and heavier math first, instead of providing the interest. I think that is a mistake. Most students know gravity as Michael Jordan making a slam dunk - not as an equation."
Hazen also blamed state testing programs, which call for a certain amount of detailed knowledge. This leads to a mentality of,
"To graduate college, I'll need to memorize
10,000 words and if I go on for a PhD, I'll need to know 100,000 words."
"It's, they said, the first time they have taken a course which showed the relevance of science."

WELCOME TO THE SISTERHOOD!!

Phi Sigma Sigma is a Class III of the SGA
Jesus Christ for SGA president

It's been a fun couple of weeks. Krista elamorous across campus, making her nimble feet one in front of the other in a frantic motion. "Late for dance class. Late for dance class. Late for dance class...." She mumbled in a trance-like state. A journey across campus these days is a munching experience. It blows broggers, actually. Making a beeline towards Life Hall, "Late for dance class....." Krista encounters a phenomenon not of this plane of reality: falling construction debris, dribbling gawfuling frat brothers, flaming Linguistic textbooks and the deconstructing, near fossilized remains of vomit-like pizza parts. "Late for dance class...."

But the past week added a new dimension to the already-absurd conditions faced by our fellow urchins here in Reid's Rec-Room. Krista, head to the ground, plowed her way through the mob of zombies wandering about, unaware of the fate to befall her. "Late for dance class....." It's a tale almost too terrible to recall. An unyielding monstrosity of abrasion cast a chilling shadow across Krista's path. "Late for dance class!" and before she knew it, it was too late. She had come face to face with THE CANDIDATE!!

"Hi! My name is so and so and I'm running for SGA president. I'm a terribly nice guy. I'm wearing nice clothes today. I have a pack of Tic Tacs in my pocket and I'm SO enthusiastic! Besides that, I hate the SGA! I think it could be run more efficiently without a lot of the other stuff. So there'll be peace on Earth and we should have a person in office who knows how to handle the necessities. Wanna see? (sniff, sniff). Oh, and by the way. I promise you that I will listen to what you think, and these people want to know. My name is so and so, I'm running for SGA president."

"You'd think it would be along the same level as Christmas and all, but nobody ever really celebrates Easter. In terms of whoopee-value, is pretty lame. You'd think it would be along the same level as Christmas and all, but nobody ever really celebrates Easter."

"I mean, you practically want to get into politics and all. And so the ramifications would be astounding...."

Alcohol in the Rat! The students have spoken!

For too long, the needs and concerns of the students have been swept under the figurative rug by the equally figurative broom of an administration here at MSC. While the campus crumbles and class-sizes swell, while residents take cold showers and commuters stumble across county lines from distant parking lots, while the administration pursues its goals, oblivious to the plight of MSC’s student body, the collective voice of the students has remained muffled and unheard. No longer!

They may make us breathe asbestos, they may make us eat rubberized food in our pseudo-cafeterias, they may take away our library, our beautiful campus and our dignity, but we, the students, will not be denied the God-given (government-restricted) right to consume pitcher after pitcher of golden brown, bubbly, sudsy-headed, lip-smacking beverages.

For the administration not to approve the recommendation of the students would be a slap in the collective, figurative face of the student body. We at The Montclarion are looking forward to next year, when we should be able to imbibe in the safe, rubble-scoured confines of our construction-scarred campus.

Congratulations, students. You’ve chosen wisely.

Now the administration should follow suit. If they do so, The Montclarion, cordially and personally in a figuratively personified manner, invites our President, Irvin Reid, for a round of drafts. Hell, bring Dean Martin if he’s free.
Brown: Big on change, small on details

With voter frustration growing from the longest post-WWII recession and a growing belief that elected officials are Washington have lost touch with their constituents, vote is quite vulnerable for anything new. Jerry Brown's "Take Back America" campaign appeals to such Americans, especially young voters.

Brown's style of ignoring details, however, angers this voter. His vague 1960's-like rhetoric and his cries of "empowering the people," whatever that means, are nothing less than pure lip-service.

If it were not for President Bush, Brown would win the Hypocrite of the Year award, hands-down. Brown was one of the biggest political fund-raisers while governor of California from 1976 to 1983. When it served his interests, Brown tapped well into the monetary funds of special interests. Now he has the audacity to expect the public to believe that he's some kind of born-again politician, saved from the big money, lobbyists and PAC's that he was once part of.

Trash ing and labeling his enemies as the establishment, Brown proclaims himself as the outsider - insisting that he's not a typical politician and that he represents "the people." Yet Brown's actions indicate that he's like any other politician who'll resort to any tactics to gain voter appeal.

In New York, his suggestion of choosing Jesse Jackson as his vice-presidential choice was purely a strategic move to attract black vote. In Michigan, where labor unions have greater electoral power, Brown couldn't be seen any-where without his UAW jacket. In Vermont and Colorado, where environment preservation is a big issue, Brown portrayed himself as the environmental politician.

Brown's messages are merely shouts for change, with an utter unwillingness to provide details. Brown only does well in primaries where he makes bitty campaign runs before voters can actually examine the substance of his message. In important primaries like New York, where media attention is most intense, his campaign cannot survive close scrutiny.

Brown fails to give substantial details regarding his proposed 13% flat tax - a measure many have argued would destroy the social security system, while also acting as a more regressive policy towards the lower class.

Richard Cohen, a liberal columnist for the Washington Post, put it eloquently: "Like Ronald Reagan, Brown thinks it's sufficient to simply identify the problem - poverty, for instance - and then his intension - eliminate it - and not say how. You could call this 'Son of You're Economists'...", he said.

Of course, whether one decides to support Brown or not anymore is fruitless. The nomination is practically in the hands of Bill Clinton. A prolonged primary battle will only hurt the Democrats' chances of winning the Presidency in November. Like other Democratic drop-outs (Harkin, Kerrey and Tsongas), Brown should end his campaign gracefully so that Clinton can focus on the big picture: capturing the White House.

I'm sure defeating Bush in the general election is one thing that all Democrats can agree upon.

Neal Dougherty's Record Irreverence

A little carcinogen never hurt anyone

Saturday morning's Real Estate Law class was not nearly as eventful as the incident that I witnessed in the lobby of Partridge Hall. It is a sad comment on the state of MSC curriculum offerings when a sleep enthusiast like myself willingly(?) enrolls in a Saturday morning class. I will allow myself these MSC curriculum offerings when a sleep enthusiast like myself willingly(?) enrolls in a Saturday morning class. I will allow myself these MSC curriculum offerings when a sleep enthusiast like myself willingly(?) enrolls in a Saturday morning class.

The workmen, while assiduous during the day. However, after a hard day's work, one must take off from whatever they are doing that precludes taking anything but a female-induced escape encounter.

Sleep is one of the last mean, sleep is one of the last defenses for its student population. Partridge Hall's lobby serves as both a temporary resting place for the harried student and the secondhand smoke-enhanced means to a cancer concerns. Rumors of a cancer-induced final resting place for eternity.

In all seriousness, MSC has never hurt anyone. Saturday morning's Real Estate Law class was not nearly as eventful as the incident that I witnessed in the lobby of Partridge Hall. It is a sad comment on the state of MSC curriculum offerings when a sleep enthusiast like myself willingly(?) enrolls in a Saturday morning class. I will allow myself these MSC curriculum offerings when a sleep enthusiast like myself willingly(?) enrolls in a Saturday morning class.

The workmen, while assiduously protecting themselves from inhaling the anticipated asbestos-laced fall-down fallout from the aforementioned metal panels, continued to remove said panels in apparent disregard to student health concerns. Although the workmen were careful enough to place drop cloths on the floor, they did not afford any protection to, nor did attempt to protect any of, the students present. This is yet further proof of the administration's blatant disregard of student concerns. Night and weekend students, in particular, seem to bare the brunt of the administration's callous indifference.

At most weekend students know, Friday nights and Saturday mornings are periods when school support services are generally nonexistent. Friday night students arrive to find the cafeteria, Rat and both the campus convenience store and book stores closed. Hence, one must take off from whatever they are doing that precludes taking anything but Friday evening courses to procure the required texts.

I am forever obliged to the MSC administration for providing Friday and Saturday classes because I work during the day. However, after a hard day's work, I find out that food is not officially available on the MSC campus. Most weekend students avail themselves of coffee and donuts offered up by the capitalist-inspired Weekend Eaters, who survive close scrutiny.

Incidentally, I have not forgotten the alluded to incident of sentence one of this elucidating essay. As a State-owned campus, MSC must provide a healthy smoke-free environment for its student population. Partridge Hall's lobby serves as both a temporary resting place for the harried student and the secondhand smoke-enhanced carcinogen-induced final resting place for eternity.

In factuality, the week before last, five coffee-smoke eaters were rushed to the hospital after collapsing from smoke inhalation. Two harder subjects froze to death while waiting for an unexplainably late shuttle bus. While one superhuman specimen, who survived the smoke and the cold only to be faced by inclement weather, is the only one of the shuttle's arriving anonymously, had the terrible misfortune to choose the bus with the chain-smoking driver. Upon the student's uneasiness (as it only served to delay the already late shuttle) demise, the driver than had to dispose of the body east of lot 208.

In all seriousness, MSC (Montclair State Campus) is not in compliance with State law regarding non-smokers valid cancer concerns. Rumors of a class-action suit are ripe throughout the pre-law community.

Brown proclaims him self as the outsider - insisting that he's more regressive policy towards the lower class.

" Republicans don't give a damn" accurately reflects the public's general perception of George Bush and the Republican party.

Exactly how much rubbing would be involved?

According to Pati Jordan's letter, she maintains that the definition of sexual harassment is "when such conduct has the purpose or effect of interfering unreasonably with an individual's performance or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive environment" as stated in the MSC Policy Statement. Fine. No argument here. However, her attempt to discredit Phi Alpha Psi Fraternity is completely ludicrous.

I am a female also, and I have signed one of the centerfolds which so offends Ms. Jordan. I performed the rest of my daily functions just fine, and afterwards did not perceive the contact as anything but a "hostile, intimidating, or offensive environment." Perhaps the next time you refer to a definition to support a cause, Ms. Jordan, you should make sure it is relevant. As any minimally intelligent individual, male or female, can see, the above definition does not apply to Senate pledges requesting female signatures.

In reading her letter, I got the distinct impression that I pity her tremendously if all she can do is quote Gloria Steinem and Audre Lourde.

Pati Jordan is probably one of those people who protests the Miss America pageant and rants and raves if a guy accidentally brushes up against her in a crowded area. Get a life, please! There is some very real sexual harassment taking place in our society today, but asking a woman to sign a Playboy centerfold does not constitute as such. I'm sure Ms. Jordan could find something more worthwhile to concentrate her energies on if she tried. I pity her tremendously if all she can do is quote Gloria Steinem and Audre Lourde.

I do not consider myself to be compliant, nor do I condone sexual harassment. I simply disagree with people who make up stories out of nothing. I know a few of the members of Phi Alpha Psi and do not feel that they intend to degrade women by asking for their signatures on a centerfold. If Ms. Jordan doesn't like it, she doesn't have to sign it. Where's the trauma?

I noticed in your letter, Ms. Jordan, you felt that Stephen Kazella's comments and writing style were indicative of his equating "pornography and the degradation of women with baseball and grandma's apple pie." Well, I'm a female English major with a minor in journalism and a creative writing concentration, so I doubt you can criticize my writing style, as you did Mr. Kazella's, simply because I disagree with you. Your opinions are not representative of anything even close to the majority of the females on campus, I can assure you. My advice to you would be to grow up and develop security in yourself so that trivial incidents will not drive you into future frenzies.

LETTER...

Make us proud Jeffrey!

Two weeks ago, Jeffrey Ceterko, in his letter, protested the idea of attendance policies at MSC in general and the attendance policies of certain instructors here in particular. Apparently the letter was the more immediate issue, since Jeffrey was a student in one of my classes, yet my attendance policy was not included among those to which he objected.

Jeff's letter troubled me and many of my colleagues for several reasons, but two were particularly disturbing. First, how can professors have the right to establish "ground rules" for behavior in their classes. Ideally, I believe these should be arrived at collegiately, involving active collaboration between faculty and students. Yet both the origins and the history of higher education in the Western world suggest that, traditionally, the faculty set the rules under which students were admitted to study. Indeed, in some European languages, such as Romanian, the word faculty (focal)” means university. A requirement that students show up for class (even Woody Allen has said that showing up is 80% of life!) does not seem unreasonable on the face of it.

Second, and more serious in its implications, Jeffrey asserts that individual students ought to be required only to fulfill the "academic requirements" of a course, presumably including such matters as exams, papers and the like. He apparently believes that attendance would be left to the discretion of the individual student, who is, after all, an "adult." In this, I believe that Jeffrey is mistaken and on a dangerously wrong track.

If education, however defined, were merely a matter of reading assigned texts or printed lectures, passing exams based on these and submitting the written reports of individual research for a grade, then attending MSC, or indeed any college, would be a monumental waste of time and money. The same results—grades, job preparation and a degree—could be obtained more cheaply and efficiently by enrolling in correspondence courses. Yet Jeffrey and hundreds of thousands like him have chosen to enroll in the 3,500 or so 2- and 4-year colleges operating in North America alone.

The conclusions seem inescapable: either these people are utter fools, or they know that "education" is more than simply reading books, writing papers and passing exams (the system, by the way, in many French universities, at least until recently).

It also entails being exposed to a variety of educated, cultivated minds and personalities; engaging in the give-and-take of argumentation and debate with like protagonists; and being challenged to shape, defend, and debate with live protagonists, and being challenged to shape, defend, and refine a world view or stance toward life. This kind of education can take place only if individual students "show up," and attendance policies are one way to insure that they do so with reasonable regularity.

As any of you who have attended them can tell you, a major problem with so-called "adult education" courses is that people pay their money and then show up or not, as their work or social schedules allow. The experience, to say nothing of the results, is disappointing and generally unsatisfying. To suggest, as Jeffrey in effect does, that the "adult school" is the appropriate model for the bona fide college or university is to have more confidence in the self-educational skills of most ordinary people than I have. Or else, since he is in fact paying close to $9,000 for a degree from MSC, it shows a tolerance for being outrageously overcharged (since "adult schools" rarely charge more than $30 or $40 for a 10-week course) that few of us would put up with in any other area of life.

Come on, Jeffrey, get an education!

Give up your clothes

Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Incorporated, would like to thank the women of Webster Hall, the men of Stone Hall and all residents, for their participation in the Clothing Drive so far. Over 758 articles of clothing, six toys, nine pairs of shoes and other accessories, were collected from March 23 - April 10. We are still accepting donations. All donations will be taken to the Lighthouse in Newark, The Christian Fellowship in Bloomfield and the YMCA in Newark.

Again, we thank the campus community for dedicating their time and donations to the needy.

Should drugs be legalized?

Drugs should be legalized. Before you shake your head and turn the page, please hear me out. All will agree that the consumption of drugs is not a wise nor a healthy choice. I do not dispute that. Nor do I condone drug use. But the reality of the situation is this: it doesn’t matter whether I, or anybody else, condone drug use. A certain amount of people have, for all of recorded history, and will, for the foreseeable future, consume drugs. All of the dogmecraving in the world will not change this simple fact of life.

Another indisputable fact is this: the current illicit drug problem is unacceptable. Roving gangs of Uzi-toting teenage drug dealers terrorize the citizens of our crumbling cities. Children are exposed to drugs at frighteningly young ages. Funding for social problems has been cut back as more and more dollars are sunk into an unwinnable “war on drugs.” Prison populations have swelled to incredible numbers, resulting in a revolving door system of justice. All the while, civil liberties, yours and mine, are chipped away in America’s floundering “war on drugs.”

What can be done?

It is time to realize that the illegal drug trade is more deadly than the drugs themselves. This is the lesson that America should have learned from Prohibition. The illegal alcohol trade gave rise to modern day organized crime much as the illegal drug trade today fuels the growth of trigger-happy drug cartels. Take away the market and you will take away the violent criminal element that is spreading across this nation. An independent corporation of the federal government (much like the postal service) should be established which would sell narcotics to legal adults who so choose to consume them. This agency would sell all drugs. To not sell heroin or cocaine because of their danger would undermine the concept. The illegal drug trade would continue.

There would be very strict controls over the dispensation of narcotics.

Firstly, no person under the age of 21 would be allowed to obtain drugs. Secondly, persons would only obtain a sufficient amount of drugs for their personal use. That amount would be dispensed under the supervision of a physician who would administer periodic blood and urine tests to assure that those purchasing drugs were doing so for their own use. It would be a felony to re-sell narcotics. To sell to minors would carry a substantial prison term - 20 years minimum. (Since prisons would have much more vacancies due to the disporsement of narcotics.)

This would effectively keep drugs out of the hands of naive youngsters; youngsters who have an incredibly easy access to drugs today.

This would mean 20 years. (Since prisons would have much more vacancies due to the disporsement of narcotics.)

What is the lesson that America should have learned from Prohibition? Legalizing drugs would result in the entire adult population of North America walking around with straps up their noses. Too costly? Hardly, this system would be self-sufficient via profits from sales.

Wasting dollars and lives on the unwinnable war on drugs is irresponsible

Wouldn’t addicts be driven to commit more crime to support their newly acquired habits? I think not. The price of drugs would plummet, lessening the expense of drug users. Wouldn’t children think it’s “okay” to take drugs if the government sold them? Most children are lured into using drugs because of the glamour involved in their usage. It’s “cool” to take drugs; it’s taking a risk, being exciting. Narcotics sold through this system would lose that aura. There would be no marketing or advertising involved.

In addition, children would be presented with honest, factual information about drug use. There would be no company, ridiculous public service commercials featuring cobra/monster/stake/drug dealers airing at 4:00 a.m. Instead children will learn that cocaine can eat away the flesh inside of your nose that separates your nostrils. Kids would learn that heroin can make your hands swell up like balloons.

Finally, the money saved combating the illicit drug trade could be funneled into rehabilitation and social programs that have long been neglected. Police could catch rapists and murderers rather than concentrating on crack dens or pot smokers. This is not a perfect world, therefore there is no perfect solution, but a commonsense approach could minimize the suffering involved with drug use, in effect, making all of our lives a little better.

Legalizing drugs is a dangerous abandonment of responsibility

Nowadays, it seems to be popular to surrender. I am referring to the controversy over the legalization of drugs. Whether we are winning the war, losing the war or in a standstill, legalizing drugs is not a viable solution. It is throwing in the towel.

Wouldn’t enforcement be quite high. But it far outweighs the cost of the alternative - a drug free-for-all. The legalization of drugs would bring ruin to the family and society as we know it today.

Proponents claim that by legalizing drugs, profits from drug sales will disappear. Drugs will supposedly be sold at in “legal market,” and create substantial proceeds. These proceeds, part of which would come from taxes, will be used to fund anti-drug campaigns. Get people addicted and use the profits to try to get them off drugs. Isn’t that backwards?

Proponents also claim that the black market will be eliminated. Because some drugs, such as crack, are too harmful to be legal, what is not legalized will be provided by the black market. Criminals will still profit. Who will decide which drugs to or not to legalize? The Food and Drug Administration? The FDA has a long and tedious process by which it decides which substances are safe to sell for public consumption. If all substances were legalized, the FDA would become obsolete. As with alcohol and tobacco products, legalized drugs will be prohibited for use by minors. This will be a lucrative spot for the black market. What type of message will be sent to minors when the entire family is gathered around the dining room table after dinner, smoking pot, and they cannot participate? How will anti-drug education help?

There are those who claim that the only victims of drug use is the user. This is not true. Go to any hospital and check out the neo-natal unit. Look closely at the crack babies; the tubes, the machines. The use of drugs alters our state of mind. We no longer perceive the world in a rational manner. Do you want someone like this driving a school bus, performing heart surgery or working on an assembly line at General Motors. You think we have problems with quality workmanship in this country now; it will decline even further if drugs are legalized. We are the victims of drug use.

Robert W. Seward, a federal judge from New York believes that we should legalize drugs and spend more money on “the source of this problem, which is poverty.”

Poverty is definitely a problem, and yes, drugs are part of it. But how will legalizing drugs solve that problem? More people will become addicted because of the relaxed regulations and crime and poverty will skyrocket.

Drug use is not a right, a “personal freedom” or a “pursuit of happiness.” It is a burden to the American people. Our country cannot function with a large pan of the population stagnated. If you are under the influence, you act irrationally whether or not the drugs are.

There is no simple, easy solution to the problem. Legalization seems like the best, but it isn’t. We need to stop young Americans from taking drugs in the first place, not making it easier to obtain them. Our government has the responsibility to protect us. By allowing the legalization of drugs is it acting in an irresponsible manner.
Zoo Story

by Sandra Camilleri

To commemorate Spring Week, the zoo is coming to MSC. This zoo though, is one of a totally different nature. It’s a zoo of tangled emotions, elusive personalities and truth binding realities.

Beginning April 20, Players will be presenting a dramatic adaption of Edward Albee’s, The Zoo story. Set outside on a bench in Central Park, the story begins when Jesse, a slovenly semi-crazed intellectual, played by Andrea Caskey. Jesse tells Patty: “I’ve been to the zoo.” From here, a conversation emerges between the two which is seriously funny at moments and intensely dramatic at other moments. The drama slowly builds up until the final climactic moment when the audience ultimately discovers the true motive for Jesse seeking out a listener in Patty.

Directed by Jeffrey Fiske, a theatre professor of MSC, The Zoo Story poignantly conveys some thought-provoking truths about relationships and life. Diane, in her role as Jesse, provides a powerful metaphor-filled monologue of the “Jesse Story.” Diane renders the selection with a depth of emotion that makes you want to reach out and heal the sadness in Jesse. Andrea Caskey is equally as impressive in her role as Patty. Andrea does an impressive job of laughing hysterically at a joke that comes up during the conversation. Diane and Andrea compliment each other’s characters perfectly!

Director Fiske commented about the production stating: “The idea of doing this is that just as Jesse confronts Patty with questions, we’re confronting panesbury with a play.”

Any person attending by Monday through Thursday at 12 noon on April 20 - 24 on the patio, outside the student center, can view the production. An evening performance of The Zoo Story runs on Fri. April 24 at 8:00 p.m. followed by a performance of The Stronger.

Admission for all shows is free. For more information, contact Players.

KRS-1 of BDP (Boogie Down Productions), came live and direct to make the sold out show at MSC. The teacher went back to the tuff old school jams that put the pupils in direct to make the sold out show at MSC. The ‘teacher’ was KRS-1 of BDP (Boogie Down Productions), who seemed to be intimidating at first until he was introduced. Maybe it was because of his subtle voice, or coolheaded demeanor.

Traveling is another means of acquiring knowledge. You learn by interacting with different people. So, wake up and grasp all the knowledge you can obtain in your life time. He is a man of no religion, but takes different ideologies of existing religions to create his own system of belief. He perceives Jesus Christ as an African, and there are many others who feel this way. This is displayed in the most published book of all time (The Bible). To top off the controversy, we cut into economics of African American. There is no doubt that blacks will have to work twice as hard to get halfway to where whites have gone. So, some of our people take different paths to get their piece of the pie. KRS-1 sets forth a message in his new song (Drug Dealer), when making your’s, don’t do it at the expense of your brother. For those who are looking for a solid investment, you should be a piece of the ‘rock’. The place were we come from-the motherland Africa. KRS put that, “When I get enough money, I will buy some land in Africa, but I will have to lure before other people capitalize on our land.” In order for us to stabilize some base in this world we have to learn to make our money work for everyone.

Read my lips

April 14, Sigma Phi Rho Fraternity Inc. sponsored Putting On The Lips V in cafeterias A and B. The event drew over 200 spectators who watched and enjoyed the performers lip-sync to some of today’s hottest music.

12 acts performed in all, and a Sigma Phi Rho brother, Rashin from the Ramapo chapter provided entertainment during intermission with his rendition of “Harlem Blues” from the movie Mo’ Better Blues’ soundtrack.

The winners of the event were as follows:

* 1st place/$100: Lester Redrick
Performance: Lucky

* 2nd place/$75: Vincent Morgan
Performance: We Want EFX by Das EFX

* 3rd place/$50: Cathy & Rachel (“The Juice”)
Performance: En Vogue medley

* In addition to the prizes, the winners also received trophies.

The admission for the event was $3 with a canned food donation of $4 without. The canned food was donated to Alpha Phi Omega to help support their food drive. Over 150 cans were collected.

“We felt a need to supply the campus with an event that would help provide a social outlet for them and also contribute to the war on poverty.” said James Roche, president of Sigma Phi Rho.

Keep your eyes open because it is surely inevitable—Putting On The Lips VI is just around the corner.

The ‘teacher’ was KRS-1 of BDP (Boogie Down Productions), who seemed to be intimidating at first until he was introduced. Maybe it was because of his subtle voice, or coolheaded demeanor.

The conversation opened up with the 1992 presidential elections. I asked who his candidate would be. He said “I will not vote in this election because there is nobody to vote for in favor for us.” Then he gave me a strong reason why he felt the way he does. “If there are four people to vote for, and the first one killed your father, then the next one raped your mother, followed by one of them who beat your grandfather to death, and finally one who hanged your grandmother, who would you vote for?” This is not to say he doesn’t vote, he just doesn’t have anybody to vote for. He did leave this topic with a positive point, “If someone votes with no education, it is only a slain vote.”

Next, we began to speak about the unity of races. His view was blunt, and a powerful one. As a unified world, we, from all walks of life, can go stride for stride in an impossible situation. The reason is the lack of education, but he did say maybe in 300 years it could happen—if we make it that far.

This brought us to our own people, it would be possible in our lifetime to see our people come together as one. If we try, we can be a nation of four hundred million strong (united we stand, divided we fall). I confronted him about them. As a team we are productive. Reading is important also, the only way—reading, talking, and travel. He stresses that talking is equally as inspiring in her role as Andrea Caskey. When he first appeared back from contemplation. As you think about yourself, or the origin of Christ.

KRS-1 of BDP (Boogie Down Productions), came live and direct to make the sold out show at MSC. The teacher went back to the tuff old school jams that put the pupils in the ground for the remainder of the night. His message was from the street, so a boys portion of the crowd was down to his lyrics. You could say this type of performance is what puts him at the pinnacle of the Hip Hop scene for six years.

Some disagree with his flamboyant attitude, and some with his radical philosophy. Personally, I do not say he doesn’t vote, he just doesn’t have anybody to vote for. He did leave this topic with a positive point, “If someone votes with no education, it is only a slain vote.”

Thunderheart
tells the story of FBI special agent Val Kilmer who is sent to a run down Indian reservation to investigate the murder of an Oglala named Leo who was deeply involved in Indian politics. Along with him is Sam Shepard, who is a veteran with the FBI and Indian relations. Their investigation eventually teams them up with Graham Greene (the actor, not the writer), who steals many scenes as an officer with the tribal police. Since Kilmer’s character is one quarter Indian, it makes him ideal to infiltrate the reservation, or “Res” as it’s referred to.

The local resistance known as ARM, the Aborigine Resistance Movement has prompted local vigilantes to take matters into their own hands led by Fred Ward. Now, everyone is after a suspect known as Jimmy, who is said to be a “shape shifter” or someone who can change into animals. Of course, this makes him a little hard to get a hold of.

Thunderheart is the flipside of Dances with Wolves, showing the modern day horrible conditions that these people must deal with. The reservations look more like the world’s largest junkyard than a “reservation.” It is appropriate that Greene is there to be the anchor between the white men and the Indians. It’s a winning performance, proving that his Supporting Actor nomination was no fluke. There is some action to keep things going along smoothly, but this is more of a mystical journey, one that our hero makes within himself. You see, after a couple of visions, Kilmer found out that he was reincarnated from someone who was killed at Wounded Knee.

There are many memorable moments in Thunderheart, some of the issues it addresses are important ones. We are given a realistic, no nonsense view of a modern day Indian reservation, and it is quite jarring. All of the performances are fine, especially Greene’s, and James Horner’s music is spooky and modern. Michael Apted, the director of such films as Coal Miner’s Daughter and 35 Up, makes the film visually interesting, which helps to produce an enlaced, Indian atmosphere.

I doubt that this film is going to be very popular, which is unfortunate. If you’re at your local 12-plex and you find Basic Instinct and Beethoven are all sold out, you could give Thunderheart a try and experience some intelligent entertainment.

Part of Spring Week ’92: ‘Too Sexy For My Classes’
Lacrosse crushes two more foes

Red Hawks outscore South Hampton and Drew University by a 42-11 margin

by Jim Klossek

Having played only two of its first six games at home this season, MSC started its longest homestand of the campaign last Monday night by destroying South Hampton University 29-4 behind freshman midfielder Frank Munzella’s five goals and three assists off the sticks of Buch Meverson, Mike Bruton, Keith Van Ness and John Belotta.

As the score indicates, this one was over almost before the first few minutes of play. The Red Hawks (6-1) jumped out to an early advantage and took a commanding 16-2 lead into the dressing room at halftime. Since the game was well in hand at this point, Head Coach Doug Alsofrom took the opportunity to give his reserves some playing time and the night. Rounding out the scoring for MSC were Pat Shuba and Bill Brownson who had a goal apiece.

RedHawk Notes...Chasing Blaney for the team’s goal scoring lead are Meyerson with 24 and Van Ness with 21...Alsofrom’s coaching record after five games is 56-13...MSC’s win over Drew avenged a 12-11 loss to them last season...The drubbing of South Hampton was the biggest margin of victory for the season for the Red Hawks, as they previously defeated Stockton State 26-7 back on March 21...Rounding out the current home stand are games with Scranton (April 15) and Fairfield on Saturday (April 18).

This was one of the games Alsofrom had been calling “one of the toughest on the schedule,” and he had to be impressed with the effort his team put forth.

Following a close first half which found the Red Hawks leading 5-4, MSC was able to pull away with eight second-half goals on just 17 shots. Leading the way for the Red Hawks were Van Ness, Meyerson and Bruton who all scored the last trick and Neil Blaney who netted two goals to increase his season total to 26, which leads the team. Junior goalkeepers Ken Kane had one of his best games of the year by turning away 37 of the 44 shots he faced on the night. Rounding out the scoring for MSC was Pat Shuba and Bill Brownson who had a goal apiece.

Despite losing its last two matches, the MSC men’s tennis team believes it is on its way to achieving Head Coach Craig Fitzpatrick’s goal of finishing in the top half of the conference. Fitzpatrick said that he’s very optimistic about the team’s performance to date and believes his team will finish third in the conference.

The team was off to a solid start with victories over both Jersey City and East Stroudsburg in late March. MSC swept the Jersey City match 9-0, and clearly dominated the match against East Stroudsburg with a score of 8-1. These victories came with the outstanding performances of David Orlofsky, who plays second singles, and Jeff Clements, who plays third singles. Clements, a freshman, won his first two matches and was up 7-5 in the third set against Trenton State. He had several match point opportunities, but failed to capitalize on them. Along with those two men is Jason Cucure, who hasn’t been as successful with the statistics, but is still playing well.

Fitzpatrick also feels good about his team’s chances when this match is made up. He said, “It should have been a win, and since we’re resuming that match at a 4-1 status, we should be victorious.” The Ramapo match was also postponed.

With the star-playing of David Orlofsky, Jeff Clements and Jason Cucure, and the confidence of Fitzpatrick, the team has a solid chance of a winning season.

Despite two losses, men’s tennis confident

by Maureen K. Mc Leer

Despite losing its last two matches, the MSC men’s tennis team believes it is on its way to achieving Head Coach Craig Fitzpatrick’s goal of finishing in the top half of the conference. Fitzpatrick said that he’s very optimistic about the team’s performance to date and believes his team will finish third in the conference.

The team was off to a solid start with victories over both Jersey City and East Stroudsburg in late March. MSC swept the Jersey City match 9-0, and clearly dominated the match against East Stroudsburg with a score of 8-1. These victories came with the outstanding performances of David Orlofsky, who plays second singles, and Jeff Clements, who plays third singles. Clements, a freshman, won his first two matches and was up 7-5 in the third set against Trenton State. He had several match point opportunities, but failed to capitalize on them. Along with those two men is Jason Cucure, who hasn’t been as successful with the statistics, but is still playing well.

Fitzpatrick also feels good about his team’s chances when this match is made up. He said, “It should have been a win, and since we’re resuming that match at a 4-1 status, we should be victorious.” The Ramapo match was also postponed.

With the star-playing of David Orlofsky, Jeff Clements and Jason Cucure, and the confidence of Fitzpatrick, the team has a solid chance of a winning season.

It’s tee time for Red Hawk golfers

by Gary Pych

Back in full swing, the MSC golf team is optimistic about the 1992 season. The mood is upbeat after returning from a 1991 campaign which saw MSC finish second in conference play. Returning players include Brian Gaffney, Chris Hellow, Gary Horner and John “Bear” Moroses.

Brian Gaffney is MSC’s top returning player. Gaffney, from Westfield, also plays at the Plainfield Country Club when not competing. According to Assistant Coach Bob Downey, the 5’8” 150-pounder “gives 100 percent.” Gaffney is known for his distance and accuracy with long irons. He shot a 71 at the MSC Classic on Monday to help secure a third place finish among the 20 teams invited. Horner is another key player who shot an 83 at the MSC Classic. John Moroses is a high 80’s player who shot an 86 and an 89 at Dickinson.

The team’s home course and practice facility is the Crestmont Country Club in West Orange where players practice individually and qualify to play for each tournament based on one round of golf.

MSC has only played one tournament at home and will go as far as Pennsylvania to compete against teams in the Eastern Collegiate Conference. The team is currently second in the New Jersey Athletic Conference which includes Ramapo College, Trenton State and Rutgers Camden. Players to look in for future tournaments include Mike Hayes, a freshman with great athletic talent, and John Krick, who shows in the mid-80’s and keeps the team loose with his sense of humor.

Peter Famiano is the head coach and is also a club pro at Crestmont. Downey calls him “a great player, teacher and motivator.” Famiano also participates in many state tournaments and has been coach at MSC for nearly 12 years.

RED HAWK NOTES...Assistant Coach Bob Downey encourages those who have interest in golf to contact him at Crestmont or through the MSC athletic department...MSC’s next competition will be against FDU Madison/Rider today at 1:00 p.m.

Beat goes on for track and field

Preparation continues for Penn Relays

by Mark A. Belna

The MSC track and field team is less than two weeks away from the Penn Relays, and if the past can be considered a prologue, then this team should leave its mark next week at the University of Pennsylvania. This past weekend, however, the team was at Howard University in Washington, D.C., participating in the Howard Relays. A total of four school records fell at Howard and 11 members qualified for the NCAA Championships.

The men’s team was headed by Dewayne Stevens who broke the school record in the 400 meters with an NCAA-qualifying time of 47.51. Abdul Williams finished third in the same race with an NCAA provisional qualifying time of 48.63. Stevens also anchored the 400-meter relay and the 1600-meter relay teams. Both relay teams broke school records and qualified for the NCAA Championships.

The 400-meter relay team comprised of Stevens, Williams, Ernest Johnson and Brian Major ran 3:16.38.

The women’s team was led by the performance of Sharon Lindo in the 400-meters with a second place finish in the event, running 56.40 to qualify for the NCAA’s. Lindo was also part of the 400-meter and 1600-meter relay teams that each qualified for the NCAA Championships. The women’s 400-meter relay team of Sharon Lindo, Denise Drakes, Shantay Brame and Sherine Titus set a school mark, as well as qualifying time for the NCAA’s, with a time of 49.00. This same group qualified for the NCAA’s in the 1600-meter relay with a time of 3:54.55.

The team heads to Monmouth College this weekend to prepare for the Penn Relays next week. Head Coach John Blanton says the team is “right on schedule” and is looking forward to some strong performances from both the men’s and women’s teams. Blanton says this weekend’s trip to Monmouth College will be used mostly as “maintenance for the Penn Relays” before heading to the University of Pennsylvania April 22-25.

The team has qualified for many events which will be featured in the NCAA Championships. The men’s relay teams have qualified for the NCAA Championships in the 4x100 and 4x400.

The Nets will be making their first playoff appearance since 1986

Fritz Massman to be honored by the Nets

It's only fitting that the Nets make the playoffs this year: Fritz Massman's last year as the NBA. With Fritz Massman? He has been the trainer since 1970. Massman is retiring the end of this season, his 22nd with the top.

Massman has seen it all in those 22 years. He was there in 1972 when Rick Barry or the Nets lost the NBA Championship. He was there in '74 and '76 when Julius Erving and John Williamson led the Nets to the ABA Championship. Massman was there when the Nets moved to the NBA, when they lost Dr. J., when they came to the Meadowlands and now, when they make their first playoff appearance since 1986.

Earlier in the season, when I watched the Nets on SportChannel, I noticed that the first five or six rows had fans in them. That was it! But now, the Nets are 39-41 and playing very smart and entertaining basketball. Consequently, the Nets are getting more fan support.

Why are the Nets winning when they average 20 points and 10 rebounds a game. Bowie, Blaylock and Morris are all responding as the team's elder statesmen.

The number one reason the Nets are a playoff team this year is the play of George, Mills and backup center Chris Dudley. I think Dudley is one of the most productive big men in the league. The Yale graduate

There is an NBA team in New Jersey

The Nets sold Erving to the Philadelphia 76ers and finished their first NBA season 22-60. The next year they became the New Jersey Nets and their home court was in Piscataway, at the Rutgers Athletic Center.

The Nets played at the ABA for four years and made their first NBA playoff appearance in 1979, but were swept by Erving and Philly.

In 1981, the Nets moved to the Brendan Byrne Arena and they celebrated by finishing with their best NBA record, 44-38. Williams was named Rookie of the Year and New Jersey made their second playoff appearance.

The Nets acquired Dawkins in 1982 and they continued to get stronger. From 1981-82 to 1985-86 the Nets made the playoffs. It's only fitting that their first playoff game and series victory came against Dr. J.

Since the 1986 season, when the Nets fell to the Bucks in the opening round, New Jersey has been a perennial loser. In 1990, the Nets won a mere 17 games. More importantly, they lost a lot of fan support as well as the revenue from attendance.

But New Jersey has made some deals, like acquiring shooting guard Drazen Petrovic, power forward Terry Mills and center Sam Bowie. They have also strengthened the team in the NBA Draft. Chris Morris, Mookie Blaylock, Derrick Coleman, Tate George and Kenny Anderson are all Nets' draft picks and all contributing heavily to the Nets success.

They have sound players who are hungry to win. There are no names that are going to scare you. They have sound players who are hungry to win.

Petrovic is emerging as one of the best shooting guards in the league. He's also providing leadership and last game clutch shooting. Coleman, last year's Rookie of the Year, has also improved on last year's stellar season. If he can play all 82 games, he will not have any All-Stars on the team. The Nets have good, young players who are starting to understand each other's roles and, as a result, they're playing very team-oriented basketball.

Baseball bounces back by bagging seven straight

Yocum sets record; Pallino and Micucci star

by Keith A. Ieoc

After losing three straight games last week, the MSC baseball team responded by winning seven games in a row this past week. The Red Hawks lifted their overall record to 16-5 and won three conference games to up their NJAC mark to a respectable 4-3.

Throughout the week, MSC received quality innings from its starting pitchers, something that had not been getting earlier in the season. "We were fortunate enough not to have to go to our bullpen too early, even after playing eight games in seven days," said Head Coach Norm Schoening. "Throughout the season, you're going to win some games with your bullpen, but if you use them too much early in the season, they'll tire out," he added.

Towards the end of the week, fatigue began to set in with the Red Hawks. "Some of these kids right out of high school aren't used to playing this much baseball," he said. We came out of this stretch usually exhausted," MSC skipper. "The Red Hawks were given a day off on Monday, giving players time to rest and to concentrate on academics.

The week was full of highlights for MSC. Left-handed reliever Drew Yocum continued his brilliance on the mound. The sophomore from Verona set an MSC record by not allowing an earned run in over 29 consecutive innings. The old mark was 22 2/3 innings set by Ralph Serio in 2002. "The Red Hawks also had a few offensive stars this week. First baseman John Pallino was named the Star Ledger's Male Athlete of the Week.

MSC 12, Unive. of Scranton 9 April 12

John Pallino rapped out four hits and drove in three runs in a game that put the Red Hawks winning streak at seven. Freshman right-hander Ralph Yazza picked up the win for MSC. This non-conference affair was played in 35-degree temperatures in Scranton.

MSC 10, Kean College 0 April 11

Drew Yocum picked seven innings of shutout baseball, allowing only three hits. He also struck out seven and walked two. Pallino again collected four RBI and two singles for the Red Hawks. This game was called after seven innings due to the 10-run rule that applies to doubleheaders.

MSC 8, Keane College 2 (2nd game) April 8

Yocum started the second game of the doubleheader and pitched two scoreless innings before giving up his first earned run of the season in the third inning. Pallino blasted a two-run homer in the first and Ralph Yazza added a solo shot in the fourth for the Red Hawks. Chris Rampspeck picked up the victory for MSC, lifting his record to 2-2.

MSC 7, College of Staten Island 3 April 10

After trailing 3-2 after seven innings, the Red Hawks came through with three runs in the top of the eighth and added two in the ninth to pick up the victory. Senior left-hander Paul DeSimone got the win for MSC, and John Byerly picked up his third save.
