Reid's welcome back speech isn't very welcoming

by R. A. Campos

MSC may have to take drastic measures to continue it's survival after a $3.5 million budget cut from the state this year, President Irvin Reid said in his Welcome Back speech.

Although the budget cut was $3.5 million, MSC was reimbursed $1.4 through the Tuition Stabilization Incentive Program (TSIP), Tom Auch, vice president of finance said. He also said there will be no raise in tuition for fiscal year 1993 and layoffs have not yet been a consideration. According to Reid, the TSIP will not be a stable part of MSC's budget, but was probably a one time grant. He also said that he exects a $5-$7 million cut in budget for fiscal year 1994. Auch said that all faculty positions at MSC have been filled but staff positions are frozen in areas such as maintenance and security. He also said that the library will receive cuts last as it is a priority of the president to keep it open as long as possible. Auch said that over the last couple of years, faculty has been cut from 1350 to 1120 persons.

Reid was also against raising tuition and boasted last year's tuition increase as the lowest in the last seven years. He said that the reason MSC could not raise it's tuition was because he doubted that students could afford the steep increases needed to make up for the shortfall being created by the legislators retreat from the state commitments.

He also said that the institution must fight to maintain higher education as a high priority but we had better get used to a low priority and adjust accordingly at least for the foreseeable future.

WMSC off the air indefinitely

by Anthony Floreno and Christopher Miguel

If you happen to tune into 101.5 FM on your radio and here a strange noise that sends you screaming into the wilderness, don't worry; it's only WMSC.

But, right now, you might not hear anything over the air, because, in the words of Stuart Weissman, General Manager of WMSC, "We are off the air indefinitely."

WMSC's problems stem from what appears to be a mal-functioning "remote" which enables station personnel to turn the transmitter on and off from the station. Without the remote, the transmitter, which is located on Clove Road, would have to be turned on/off manually.

Presently, WMSC is conducting interviews for the position of chief engineer, whose job would be to watch over the transmitter and maintain the station's equipment. Weissman said, "A selection process is under way. Once an engineer is chosen and their contract and pay-roll are negotiated, they can legally work on the transmitter."

Until then, when you switch on WMSC, you'll only hear the hum of electronic equipment.

But Operations Manager Dave Oates is confident that the station's listenership is not in jeopardy. "We don't expect to lose support, he said, "cause people are still making requests. Now that's what I call a dedicated listener."

Emergency phones installed throughout campus

by George Olschewski

Ten emergency telephones were installed on campus over the summer, bringing the total number up to 39. Most of these phones were installed in the Quarry lots and the Access Road.

"The phones definitely get used," said Phil Calitire, director of MSC's Campus Police. "The new ones are easy to spot. They're painted red, have red 'Emergency Phone' signs by them, and have buttons to call the Campus Police logo stick-ers on them."

There were no spe-cific incidents that prompted the Campus Police to install new phones, but MSC Vice-President of Finance Thomas Auch said there was one woman who called who said someone was following her and she couldn't find a phone.

"While nothing re ally happened to her, certainly the call of one frantic woman could not raise it's tuition was because he doubted that students could afford the steep increases needed to make up for the shortfall being created by the legislators retreat from the state commitments.

He also said that the institution must fight to maintain higher education as a high priority but we had better get used to a low priority and adjust accordingly at least for the foreseeable future.
The Student Center Cafeteria will be open until 10:00 p.m. until the Rat is complete. The salad bar, hot food station, and wok will close at 7:00 p.m. The grill, pizza station and deli bar will remain open until closing.

Donations for Hurricane Andrew survivors are being accepted outside the SGA office in the Student Center Annex. No perishable food please.

PARIS-German Chancellor Helmut Cole has joined France’s President Mitterand in an all out media blitz on French television appealing for a “Yes” vote concerning the upcoming Maastricht Treaty referendum.

French voters will, on September 20, cast their decision on the future role their country will play in the European Community.

CHEDNOBYL, BELARUS-The World Health Organization (WHO) announced in a report this week, that, contrary to earlier predictions, cases of thyroid cancer among children in areas downwind from the site of the disaster are considerably higher than expected.

BEIJING-Shen Tong, student leader of the Tiananmen Square uprising, was arrested in Beijing after returning to China this past July on the assurance from the Deng government that no action would be taken against him.

Deng, who had resided in Boston for the past three years, insisted on setting up a Beijing branch of the U.S.-based Democracy for China Fund.

Deng’s decision was probably prompted by an attempt to test the government’s alleged commitment to reform.

FLORIDA-President Bush asked Congress this Tuesday for a $7.6 billion relief aid package for the victims of Hurricane Andrew. The storm, which claimed 52 lives, is probably the worst disaster in U.S. history.

The damage, which totals over $20 billion, is expected to need at least six months to a year before it can be returned to normal.

The bill is expected to receive bipartisan support.

CALIFORNIA-After 63 days of financial limbo for the state of California, the Democratically controlled legislature approved Republican Governor Pete Wilson’s proposed $57.4 billion budget.

California state agencies had resorted to issuing IOUs this past summer to cover their costs. This had been the first time since The Great Depression that the state had to resort to this tactic.

St. Louis- Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent resigned this week despite his earlier assertion that he would not. A vote of no-confidence by Major League owners earlier this month prompted Vincent, who’s term was to expire in 1994, to resign.

TRENTON-Arthur Scale pleaded guilty to kidnapping and shooting Exxon executive Sidney Reso in a Trenton courthouse earlier this week.

Prosecutors will be pushing for the maximum sentence of 93 years and up to $1.75 million in fines.

MIDDLETOWN- President Bush addressed a crowd in Middletown, NJ this week in hope for support in the upcoming fall elections.

New Jersey will be a major battleground state in the upcoming Presidential Election between Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton and President George Bush.

TRENTON-Governor Jim Florio and State Attorney General Robert Del Tufo announced a sweeping corrections plan to up the mandatory sentence for auto theft. The state has seen a dramatic increase in the amount of car thefts and car theft related violent crimes in the past years and the Governor is hoping to curb the spread.

A special prosecutor would be hired under the plan to solely handle these cases.

Veterans Services moved to Financial Aid office

by Greg MacSweeney

As of September 4, 1992 you will not be able to find Veteran’s Services in the Veteran’s Services office. Its new location is in a cubical in the Financial Aid office. As the change became known many veterans became upset because they may not be able to contact the Finance director, Ken Key, as easily.

“He really takes care of business on a personal basis,” said Rich Adams, a veteran. “Someone, obviously, does not think that he is important.”

Leastman said changes occurred in Blanton. Alden has petitioned with President Irvin Reid, expressing their objections to the treatment of Key and the Veteran’s Service.

Key and the Veteran’s Service not only help service men and woman schedule classes and receive financial aid, but they also help returning veterans readjust to civilian life.

“Key really takes care of us. He is definitely an asset to this school. We’re afraid that we won’t have the same access to him any more.”

Veteran’s Services has always been a part of Financial Aid but because of cost cutting, caused by this years limited budget, the office itself is being moved into the main office.

Dr. Richard Lynde vice president of academic affairs said, “All of the staff has been reduced except for the faculty members.”

Lynde said 140 positions have been cut and financial aid has lost 15-20% of its staff alone. Also the expected total amount of financial aid applications to go from 3500 to 5000 within the next year has a priority has been given to the Financial Aid office.

“The budget is the main problem,” said Lynde, “and unfortunately it might be true that some veterans may lose some attention but we can’t add anymore staff. The veterans are not alone. Everyone may be affected.”

With a $5-7 million reduction in the budget by the fiscal year ‘94 all departments are reorganizing similarly. The Financial Aid Department with the expected increase in applications has moved Key into the main office not only to help with the increase in applications but to also continue as best as he can as director of Veteran’s Service.

Alden has made many changes to make the service bars.

The first of two new elevators was installed in Bohn Hall over summer, with the second one scheduled to be completed by the end of October, said MSC Vice-President of Finance Thomas Asch.

The new elevators will replace the ones that have been in Bohn Hall since its construction in 1971. The old elevators were a constant source of complaints by Bohn Hall residents because they constantly broke down, forcing students to walk up as many as 10 flights of stairs to their rooms.

The second elevator’s installation began last Tuesday when the older one was shut down. “We have most of the materials here, we just have to put it in,” said Margaree Coleman-Carter director of residence life. “It’s twice as fast as the other one, and it’s really smooth. One student tried to open the doors when it was still moving because he couldn’t ‘feel it moving,’” she said.

Two attempts at vandalizing the elevator’s interior walls have already been reported. “Even though the elevator is ‘vandalproof’ according to the manufacturers, we still don’t like to see it vandalized,” Coleman-Carter said.

The new elevators are part of an overall renovation package in Bohn Hall, which also includes new furniture for MSC’s largest dormitory. The elevators cost approximately $100,000 each.

“Bohn Hall is in bad shape and if the college wants it to be improved as planned, then Bohn Hall has to be maintained by the staff as well as the students who use it,” said President Irvin Reid. “Bohn Hall is in bad shape and if the college wants it to be improved as planned, then Bohn Hall has to be maintained by the staff as well as the students who use it,” said President Irvin Reid.

According to the Martini’s nephew, William, president of the foundation, the center’s main purpose is to increase interest and heighten public policy debate in areas that are of great interest to New Jersey residents.

“We selected Montclair State as the appropriate forum for this Center, because we recognize it as being the significant institution for learning in this area,” said Martini.

MSC was notified of the grant in May of this year, and Dr. William Berlin, of the Department of Political Science, has been named the director of the center. The center is currently being run out of Russ Hall. MSC creates Martini Foundation

by Nancy Gannon

MSC received a $300,00 grant from the Nicholas Martini Foundation. The grant, which is the largest in MSC’s history, is being used to institute the Nicholas Martini Center for Public Policy at Montclair State.

Martini, who passed away in 1991, was a former Passaic, NJ mayor and councilman, who dedicated his life to public service in North Jersey. Martini was elected official for 25 years, during which time he received many honors and awards for his public service and civic duties, most distinguished of them being, “Passaic’s Outstanding Citizen 1951.”

Don’t forget the potato chips and pickle spear

by Nance Villano

Alden Dining Services, the new food service on campus, has made dining at MSC a little different this year. Alden was given the job after an extensive selection process by a panel of administration and students.

“Most of the changes at MSC were physical,” said Dan Leatman, president of the Alden Dining Services.

“We did a renovation of College Hall Coffee Shop to put in a deli and bakery program,” said Leatman. We also did a facelift of the Student Center Service area by adding a Chinese station, bakery display cases, and an express area near the door for students who just want a quick coffee and a bakery item.”

Leatman said changes also occurred in Blanton. Alden replaced the awnings, painted, and installed a pizza oven to give the dorm students the same pizza program offered in the Student Center.

Leatman said the menu that Alden offers is twice the size of the old menu, offering MSC students Chinese food, grilled, char-grilled, deli, special entrees, baked goods, salad bar, frozen yogurt and desserts.

“Chinese food is the most popular,” said Leatman.

The section of the Student Center Cafeteria that has changed the most is the deli bar. With the former food service students used to be able to make their own sandwiches. Alden has added what Leatman calls a "personal touch" by having an attendant make the sandwich of your choice and filling the plate with potato chips and a pickle spear.

Leatman says that there has been a balance of years and the deli bar.

Brian Charyn, senior, said, "I like the diverse selection. The Chinese food is good. But the deli bar is much slower." Lois Gismondi, senior, also said the lines are too long at the service bar.

Leatman says Alden is working on line management and other ways to improve traffic flow. He made this analogy: "Just as the students are getting adjusted to their schedules we have." Leatman says that he wants to keep communication open between Alden and the students.

Leatman also said that he and his staff are open to comments, suggestions, and complaints and if there is a problem to bring it up immediately and any attendant or manager will help you. Leatman said that he wants to keep communication open between Alden and the students.

Leatman also said that there is a special offer for all new Free Flow Students who apply before September 21 with a deposit of $25 or more. When a student opens a Free Flow account with $25 or more, he/she gets a cash coupon worth 25 dollars. Leatman said. The coupons in this book are in the denominations of 10, 25, and 50 cents and can be used at any time like cash to pay for food, Leatman said.

"The student will be getting fifty dollars worth of food for twenty-five dollars," Leatman said.
Welcome to MSC, land of bulldozers and no parking

by Pam Colon

Ever since MSC decided to become a university with the sounds of trucks, tractors, clanging steel, power drills, and cranes have invaded this once tranquil campus and turned it into a student's nightmare.

From new and longer traffic routes, to less parking access, to orange fences that make you take the "long way home," to a library that is too noisy to hear one's own thoughts, to a shuttle bus that has to exit the school and re-enter it to get to College Hall, to the dirt and dust that constantly lingers in the air. It just doesn't pay to wash your car anymore, "It just doesn't pay to wash your car anymore," Auch said.

because of renovations to the existing construction will not be completed until this time next year.

The new academic building, which will be located across from the library, has the structural steel completed as well as concrete floors. Exterior framing is in process, according to construction documents. The building will be completed in August 1993.

Due to these two construction sites, the library and the academic building, transportation routes have been altered to free College Ave. for construction vehicles.

"The new routes are longer and more congested," said, Eileen Crain, Director of Academic Affairs. According to Kiki Williams, who is in charge of the shuttle bus, the route will stay the same because College Ave. is planned to become a sidewalk after construction is completed. "The college should allow the shuttle bus to ride College Ave. which will cut down on time and traffic," Williams said.

The answer to the traffic problem the college has offered is the removal of the "stop" sign at the intersection of Quarry Rd. and Quarry Way "so that traffic exiting faculty and staff parking lots 14 and 17, and other main campus areas, can now proceed through the intersection without encountering the "stop" sign," Williams said. Another solution is the use of "the traffic signal," Williams said.

"Traffic can now make a left turn at Webster Rd." Williams said. "Traffic can now make a left turn at Webster Rd." According to a memo by Thomas H. Auch, Vice President of Administration and Finance.

Unfortunately the shuttle bus is "too heavy and cannot accelerate up a hill of that steepness," Williams said.

over is to create a "cafe like atmosphere" and to improve food programming and service for pizza. However renovations do not include a bar or any other alcohol service station as it did before.

Other campus moves cover building additions to McEachern Music Hall, Life Hall, and Calcia Fine Arts Building. Midlantic Hall will be completed by Dec. 1,1992, Life Hall by Nov. 1, 1992, and Calcia along with renovations to existing buildings will be completed by February 1, 1993.

The security building will be completed by Feb. 1,1993 and new sidewalks, signs and pavement modifications on main campus will be completed by mid-September according to construction documents. Until then, grin and bear it.

Dr. Murray Prosky

"He was perhaps the most enthusiastic human being I ever knew," said Dr. Rita Jacobs of Dr. Murray Prosky, "from how he planted his garden to an esoteric astatic human being I ever knew," said Dr. Prosky, 56, died on August 17, 1992 of a massive heart attack, three months after having his second heart bypass. "His body was not meant to go on," said his wife Hope Prosky. She also said he "wanted so much to go back to work, his greatest pleasure was seeing his students grow." Dr. Dan Bronson, a close friend who carpooled and shared an office with Prosky for 10 years said, "He was the kind of person that if he knew you, you were a friend, and if you were a friend you were family." Prosky came to MSC in 1972, after teaching at Queens College and Sprague Library, said Albert Wang was a friend, and if you were a friend you were family. Prosky was a family man. He was seeing his students grow." Dr. Janet Cutler, also of the English Department, said Prosky "chose to continue to teach. This was how wanted to spend his last days." Tomlinson taught film classes up until the middle of the Spring 1992 semester when he became too ill to teach. She said at times it was a real struggle for him to continue, but teaching and his students were his life. Tomlinson received his B.A. from York University in Canada, and his M.A. and Ph.D. from New York University. He started teaching here in 1983 and had been very active in the campus community. He was the English Department Co-ordinator for evening and weekend students. Lorna Fried, a Senior Political Science major said, "He was a nice professor and he got the students very interested in what they were reading." Jacobs said, "His energy was amazing, he always found something interesting. He had a wonderfully bizarre sense of humor. He will be greatly missed." There will be a Memorial Service held on Sunday September 13, 1992 at 3:00 p.m. in Packer Collegiate School, Brooklyn Heights, New York.

Periodical Librarian dies after fifteen years of service

Bernice Jones-Trent, Director of Sprague Library, said Albert Wang was "highly professional and dedicated, he was willing to go to extremes to help people." Wang, 57, died of an undisclosed illness on August 12, 1992 after being in a coma for several months. Wang began working in the library in 1977, and was Head of the Periodical Department since August 1976. Born in Taiwan in 1935, Jones-Trent said Wang came to the United States during the 1950's. He received his M.S. in Library Science from Drexel University in 1969. He then attended Rutgers, New Brunswick Graduate School of Library Service and received his M.A. in Library Science. He later got his M.A. in education from New York University. Jones-Trent said Wang was a "kind person and a good librarian."

History major dies in crash

by R. McDonnell

According to Thomas Cogan his son Michael was graduating in December and wanted to become a history teacher, just like his parents. Michael Cogan, 24, was killed instantly when his car hit a tree and ricocheted through the front of a house on Upper Mountain Road in Montclair on August 12, 1992. Michael's body was thrown approximately 21 feet from his car. He was pronounced dead on the scene by St. Joseph's Hospital and Medical Center in Paterson. His father said it is believed Michael was not wearing his seatbelt at the time, and may have been speeding. Michael was a history major and a transfer student from Kean State in New Hampshire. He lived in Montclair and graduated from Montclair High School in 1986. He is survived by his father, his mother Joyce of Colorado, his stepmother Sally, four sisters; Carol, Beth, Kelly, and Dusty, and a brother Matthew.

Assistant Football Coach dies at 78

by Maureen McGowan

After 11 seasons as an Assistant Football Coach here at MSC, and 40 plus years coaching at other schools in New Jersey and in New York City, Coach Anthony "Nap" Naporano, 78, died on June 12, 1992. "His whole life was dedicated to his family and football," said Head Football Coach Enrico Giaconia who worked with Naporano. "He loved people and was always willing to help," he said. His wife Marie Naporano, said "He was just a good man all the way." Naporano was recruited by Newt Rockney to play for Notre Dame, but Rockney died before Naporano began and he transferred to Rutgers in New Brunswick instead. Naporano spent many years coaching at Barringer High School in Newark, and was the first athletic director at Montville High School before coming to MSC. All Langer of Sports Information said, "He was always positive, a pleasure to be around. He helped players not only become better football players, but better people." Fred Hill, Head Baseball Coach of Rutgers New Brunswick and former MSC coach, said Naporano was inducted into both the Football High School Hall of Fame and the Newark High School Hall of Fame. "He was an outstanding member of our staff while I was at MSC. He was our freshman coach, he did a wonderful job preparing our freshmen for the Varsity team," said Hill.

Dr. Thomlinson dies after 3 1/2 year battle with AIDS

by Maureen McGowan

Recalling what type of person Dr. Douglas Tomlinson was, Dr. Janet Cutler, a close friend, recalls the first time Tomlinson was hospitalized. "Hospitals are so depressing, so we were trying to pretend we were somewhere else. I told him I'd rather be at the beach. He said he would rather be in Calcia Auditorium teaching a class." Cutler asked him if he was crazy. Tomlinson died on June 30, 1992 at his parents' home in Ontario, Canada. He was diagnosed HIV positive there and a half years ago, and died of AIDS at the age of 43.

Cutler, also of the English Department, said Tomlinson "chose to continue to teach. This was how wanted to spend his last days." Tomlinson taught film classes up until the middle of the Spring 1992 semester when he became too ill to teach. She said at times it was a real struggle for him to continue, but teaching and his students were his life. next 15-20 years. Reid insisted that the problem had to be addressed now and that MSC should not wait for another cut from the Legislature. He offered ten considerations:
1. Possible consolidation of a number of Administrative and Academic Program Units;
2. Reorganization of the campus to achieve better coordination and/or efficiencies;
3. Review of all Academic and Administrative Programs which may no longer be essential to our mission;
4. Possible elimination of a number of positions that are currently vac-cant or may soon be vacant, and possible reassignment of displaced personnel from eliminated programs to other areas;
5. Enrollment increases in areas where growth is possible—including graduate programs, weekend college, winter session, and selected undergraduate programs
6. And increases in class size where possible;
7. Increased activities and results in the areas of development, calending education, conferences and special programs, and other auxiliary services;
8. Investigation of the feasibility of privatizing some existing services as a possible way of reducing costs;
9. Direct allocation of some telephone charges to specific units in order to reduce these expenses by a significant amount;
10. Examination of all other alteratives for achieving our broader objectives.

He also said that the campus will have to determine, some of which may not be resolved before action is required but we must take whatever actions are necessary to adjust this new environment.

by Maureen McGowan

"She always wanted to go down the shore," said Michael Giardina about his good friend Danielle LaFaso, "the one thing I wanted to do when she got better was take her to the shore."

LaFaso, 20, never got to the shore, she died April 24, 1992 from complications stemming from a bone marrow transplant operation.

Her mother, Carol LaFaso, said, Danielle was diagnosed with Non-Hodgkins Lymphoma in 1990. "When she found out she had cancer, she was in the middle of a semester," said her mother, "She was so determined to finish, she often went to class with high fevers and being very sick. She finally had to take incomplete classes during the summer. She did most of the work on her own, but she made the Dean's List."

Danielle had Kemo Therapy treatments, and the cancer went into remission for two months. She then required a bone marrow transplant, where her own healthy marrow was reinjected into her body. She was placed in I.C.U. for several weeks "when something went wrong," said Mrs. LaFaso, "it is ironic that it was the operation that killed her not the cancer which she fought so bravely."

Danielle, a junior, had not declared a major, but had two minors, pre-law and paralegalism. "She loved school," her mother said, "Her professors would call the house to see how she was doing. That meant a lot to her."

Giardina said, "She had a very positive outlook on the whole thing (her illness) up until the very end, then I think she knew something was wrong." He said she was very open, straightforward, and thoughtful, "She always thought of her mother and her family, even while she was dying."

WMSC member dies in car accident

by Anthony Floreno

After attending an Iron Maiden show at the Ritz on July 6, Jon Eleazar and a friend were driving home late that Monday night. After staying awake the entire time, Jon fell asleep only half a mile from his home in Ramsey, NJ. According to police estimates, the car was going over 60 miles per hour and crashed head-first into a telephone pole. In a going over 60 miles per hour and crashed head-first into a telephone pole. In a scene. In particular, he was actively produced. "He was a very outgoing guy and a good guy all around. It shouldn't have happened to him."

Yeggan summed it up perfectly when he said, "He was really agreeable and very smart. Nobody ever had bad things to say about Jon. It's a real shame. I will definitely miss him."

Jon was a member of Rihouse, a music group, formerly called Torment. Previous to that, Jon was an S. O. D. (Stormtroopers of Death) cover band called Douche Crew. Kirk Ott, member director at WMSC, said "Jon was very supportive of the underground metal scene. In particular, he was actively pro-

Due to the large number of students driving without decals, traffic on the access road was backed up all the way to Valley Road at 9a.m. According to students, there was traffic on the Access Road on and off throughout the day.

According to Mariestela, over 200 students were stopped for not having a valid decal.

The Monticola was notified of this situation by a late caller who demanded that the situation be checked out. Many students also expressed their anger over the inconvenience.

"I was really annoyed," said Lance Tarazana, sophomore, "I was here early, and the backup made me late for class. I was honestly quite frustrated," he said.

John Surie, a senior, became involved in a small dispute over the parkling situation. According to Surie, he was made to fill out a form after he explained to Campus Police and the Bursar that he did have a valid decal, even though it was not displayed on his vehicle.

"My decal is on the roof of my jeep, which I did not have today," said Surie. Surie said he tried to explain this but to no avail.

"I threw the form back in her ([Mariestela’s] face)," he said. According to Surie, the officer at hand took down his license plate number and told him he would be towed if he parked on campus.

"I was really late for class," said Surie.

"Nobody knew what was going on," said Jessica Geller, sophomore. "I was really pissed off," she said.

"I'm livid about this situation here this morning," said senior Jack Lynch.

Mariestela explained that she felt the decal crackdown was "necessary." According to our records, there are 2500 students not driving on campus. Many of these students just don't want to pay for parking decals. We want compliance. Most of the students are cooperating," she said. "I want students to know what the decal money is spent on. Last year, it was used to maintain the parking lots, provide security, and buy three new shuttle buses," she said.

Mariestela explained that the crackdown was joint effort it was authorized by President Reid, she replied, "No, the President doesn’t even know we are doing this."

Assistant V.P. for facilities, Thomas Stepnowski, who visited the site yesterday, made a statement regarding the situation. "Nothing war done that wasn’t in accordance with MSC policy," Stepnowski said. "You must have a decal to park on campus, that policy was infor ted today," he said.

Stepnowski also addressed the concerns of students regarding safety.

"I hope students understand that the Bursar and the Campus police are trying to do the job they are charged with, to provide a secure campus. Parking decals enable the Police to identify which vehicles belong on campus (or regards to theft)," he said.

"I think the situation sends a clear message to everyone that the lots are being patrolled," Stepnowski said.
USE A LITTLE RESTRAINT WITH YOUR KIDS.

Sometimes you just gotta put kids in their place. And when you’re on the road, that place is buckled in their own safety belts, and firmly. Do this, and your kids will be more than ready for the long road ahead of them.

You could learn a lot from a dummy. Buckle your safety belt.

The value of networking

Welcome to the first official column written by staff members of Career Services. Every other week we'll be writing about issues of concern to first year students, those neary graduation and those in graduate school. Upcoming columns will cover topics ranging from how to deal with family pressure when selecting a major and career direction to why people who get interviews still don't get hired. Please feel free to write us a note about issues that concern you and mail it or drop it off in Career Services, Student Center Annex 104.

All of us are aware that the recession is having a negative effect on the job market. Even in a weak job market, however, smart job hunters continue to be hired. How do they do it when the number of positions available seems to decrease continually? The answer is simple: they have learned how to network.

Networking has always been an effective way of finding what we want and most of us do it without much thought. We call on our contacts to find the "best" professor, someone who needs a roommate, or the kinddest dentist. The same technique can be used effectively to find a job, and when times are bad, it is a technique that all students should plan to use. Think of your network as a kind of web made up of people you know and all the people they know. Perhaps the people you know cannot help you get the information that can lead to a job. But, if you travel across your web to other people, you can make the connections you need. If the technique works in one area of your life that is less important, why not try it when you are searching for something that really matters?

College students in particular should learn to network early in order to ease career decision making and later job hunting. "Early" means as soon as you can. If you are first starting college, your network can help you get information about what its like to work in fields you want to explore. Using your network can also help you to find a summer job to test out whether your interest in becoming a journalist, for example, is real. If you are ready to graduate, your network can help you learn about what is going on inside organizations and companies. Such information can also lead you to the professional position you want. Wherever you are in your education, start building your network now. You want to get started immediately, come to the office and ask for the list.

1. Begin by creating a list of everyone you know or have known. Include all high school and college friends, relatives, teachers, past and present employers, doctors, dentists, people whom you see briefly but regularly (such as your dry cleaner or minister or rabbi). Try to list at least a hundred names.

2. Contact each of these people to let them know that you are interested in gathering information about their companies. After perusing through career services you are wondering if they know anyone you can talk to.

3. Focus on the need for information rather than the need for a job. Obviously your barber can not hire you for a job in advertising, but there is every likelihood that one of his customers works in that field and might be glad to talk to you.

4. Career Services can offer you 375 alumni who will be glad to talk to you. Working in a wide variety of settings and occupations, these good people understand the value of networking and have volunteered to help MSC students gather information about the world of work. Stop in the office to talk to these alumni.

5. Once you have a contact's name, be sure to have a prepared list of questions to ask which will help you to learn about the careers you are exploring. Our next column will provide you with a list of questions to ask when you are interviewing for information. But, if you want to get started immediately, come to the office and ask for the list.

Zeta Kappa to be officially installed

by Dawn DIBacco

The MSC Pan-Hellenic Association will add one more national sorority to the list. On September 19, the Zeta Kappa Chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma National Sorority will be officially installed at MSC. The MSC Pan-Hellenic Association will add one more national sorority to the list. On September 19, the Zeta Kappa Chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma National Sorority will be officially installed at MSC. This chapter at MSC will be the fastest colony to add one more national sorority to the list.

The foundation for Sigma Sigma Sigma at MSC actually began twenty-seven years ago when the local sorority Iota Gamma Xi was established. This local sorority was strong on this campus since 1965. In the Spring of 1971, the women of Iota Gamma Xi realized that with the many changes occurring in Greek Life, it was in the best interest of the sorority to seek National affiliation. The first step was to get the approval of the MSC Pan-Hellenic Association. This was done and approved unanimously. Then, it was time to choose the right National Sorority. After investigating twenty-three National Pan-Hellenic Sororities, Iota realized Tri Sigma was the one.

On March 7, 1992, Iota Gamma Xi became Sigma Sigma Sigma Colony.

Sigma Sigma Sigma will be sending five national officers to stay until October 4. The Installation Banquet will be on September 20 at Town & Campus in West Orange.
Welcome back, I suppose. Rumors of my graduation have been greatly exaggerated. So again, I bring you this column of bitter, hallucinogenic, self-absorbed humor every other week (they give me a week off to pollute my body). To wrap up last year, for those of you who dropped in, alas, the apocalypse did not come as expected. Also, although I spied the enchanting girl with the china doll's face and puffy curly hair at Lollapolooza, my sources have reported that she has probably transferred off of our mundane mountain of mud. Such is life. So onward my fellow urchins, let us plunge headfirst, kicking and screaming, into the abyss...

O.K. So its over. Like a bowl of strawberries and cream left to turn rancid in the afternoon heat, the stench of academics, tests and term papers has reared its ugly head. The last thing to recognize is the apparent abundance of wide-eyed pre-pubescent, snot nosed, overly enthusiastic humanoids who roam the campus in search of the mythical college experience. Society has dubbed these creatures "Freshmen." Dig this now, they are to be avoided at all costs. They are perky, happy sunshine, and full of life. Obvious traits to disdain.

Word has it that there's to be a medieval jousting festival in the student center quad sometime in October. They're going to pit the perkiest Freshman (Oh ma Gawd) against the most burnt out senior (Daumonde). The object being, of course, to see which jouster can plunge his lance clear through the others body, causing as much blood and bodily organs to be spewn across the grassy knoll.

Surprise! This will not be the case once you get busted for throwing domesticated animals from the 10th floor of Bohn Hall. And certainly your dreams of obtaining a 4.0 this semester will be quickly dashed and discarded once you come to the startling realization that it is far easier to lift a beer to the mouth than a pen to paper...

Every year, around this time, some hapless student will fall victim to a disease that afflicts even the strongest of minds. Acute Involuntary Howsummer Syndrome, as it is referred to in the medical kingdom, strikes young adults between the ages of 18-25 and turns them into blubbering, drooling, nose-picking idiots. Last year, some guy flipped out completely. Those exciting and thought provoking lectures in Anatomy of the Platypus will become as withered and dry as a Saltine cracker as soon as you get to the chapter on liver disease. Various administrative puppets will make you steadfastly believe that they are your best buddies:

"Hi, I'm Dean Martin! Please to meet you, come talk to me anytime..."

"My summer? You want to know about MY summer?? It SUCKED!! It blew ANAL VAPORS! I sweat like a wet mop! I run out of deodorant! I ate rotten club steak and got diarrhea!!... And so on. Word will get around."

The last thing to recognize about this time of the year is the apparent abundance of wide-eyed pre-pubescent, snot nosed, overly enthusiastic humanoids who roam the campus in search of the

So much for higher education

Many college officials were very weary about what the impact that the state's new tight fiscal budget would be on New Jersey's state colleges. Governor Jim Florio called the state budget passed in July as a "hatchet job" and a "wrecking ball" that will "slam the door shut" for some students. After reviewing the transcript of concerning President Reid's annual 'Welcome Back' address on the state of MSC's future fiscal conditions, Mr. Florio's assessment may not have been that far off.

In his address, President Reid contended that a loss in funding of $3.5 million to MSC would have a serious effect on the school's ability to function properly. Furthermore, Reid added that the college will most likely have to make drastic and unpopular decisions to make up the shortfall.

The Tuition Stabilization Incentive Program (T.S.I.P.) was created with bipartisan support in Trenton this summer. It guarantees a reimbursement of funds for all New Jersey state colleges that maintains a tuition hike that is no higher than 4.5% each year. Although MSC was granted $1.4 million for holding last year's tuition increase at 4.5%, the lowest in the past seven years, Reid contended that the institution received a net loss in total funding because of slashes in appropriations for interdepartmental accounts.

Reid argued, in a letter to the editor in the July 6th edition of The Star Ledger, that these cuts will "require the institutions to pay for Social Security and other benefits which historically have been the responsibility of the state."

So what does this mean for MSC students? It imminently looks like a no-win situation. It would mean a virtual freeze on vacant positions and maintenance of buildings, reduced hours for the library and other college offices, as well as cutbacks in student services and academic support programs. To show the magnitude of these cuts, Reid pointed out in the same letter that "Alternatively, to make up the difference we would have to eliminate more than 300 classes, leaving nearly 5,500 students without courses they need for their education."

The upcoming year for MSC looks like the year of tough choices that will unquestionably anger parts of the campus community. However, now is not the time for infighting and finger pointing. What it should be is a time for unity, where the administration, the faculty, and student leaders get together to make the difficult decisions that this college will need to make.

Yet, it's truly sad in the final analysis, as it often seems to be, that it will be the good, hard-working, modest income students who will feel the brunt of this painful and inevitable consequences of those decisions.
Abortion is a woman's issue, not the government's

Iron Heel

BY CHRISTINA TISCIAO

In a few months from now, women will be making one of the most important choices for themselves and the next generation of women to come. They will be choosing whether or not to elect a government that will have power to control their bodies with laws concerning abortion. The basis of this decision is commonly mistaken for whether or not the fetus is a “baby” or potential life. This is not the argument. It is the decision whether or not to give the government, a distant and judgemental institution in itself, the right to choose probably the most personal decision a woman will ever make in her life, the choice whether or not to give birth to a child. And that decision belongs to her.

The Republicans are insisting their religious and moral objectives into this situation. Religion has no business being placed within State affairs since this country was built on the premise that no one is required to believe in the same religion or set of values. Instead, the issue is about rights of a citizen and the only citizens involved during a pregnancy is the mother and the father if he wishes to be involved. But the ultimate decision is up to the woman because it is her body that is involved in the final analysis.

I'm sure that Bush would be too busy brown nosing his bourgeois cronies to attend difficult adoption proceedings or really not care that a woman had died needlessly because of her self induced "miscarriage" because of an unwanted pregnancy.

The idea of handing over power of yourself is an awesome one. It is practically what we do every four years. We decide, out of the selection that is offered, who should take care of us, of our elderly, our choices on defense against hostile countries, of taxes and jobs, issues one step removed from us. But we don't elect an official to decide who we marry, or where we can work. We don't need permission to have a baby. Anybody can have sex, anyone is allowed to get pregnant. It's our life, it's our responsibility of how it will turn out.

The Democrats, Clinton and Gore, support the idea of personal rights in many sectors. On the more liberal side, they allow personal issues to be just that, personal, and take up their time, hopefully, doing something to allow this country to succeed and remain a powerful, influential force worldwide.

Ron vs. Wade is a milestone for women's equality in society. The woman who pressed forward to affirm her rights in society should be commended. She did more than free herself from an oppressed world, she learned that in a male dominated world. If that judgement is over-turned, it is more than a higher price for illegal abortions. It is a statement that sets women back more than two decades. It is disconcertingly states that we are not equal, that we aren't responsible enough, intelligent enough to decide how we feel individually about abortion so the choice is no longer ours. We are made to fit the position of a child and we cannot afford to be in that situation anywhere else in this society.

When the election rolls around and it is your turn in line for that little curtained box, remember, do you want your future in your hands or in the hands of someone who doesn't even know you.

Vote Democratic. Then all the decisions will be up to you.

NEW FOOD SERVICE, SAME OLD GRIPES

I am taking computer keyboard in hand to alert your readers, as if most of them didn’t know, to the serious situation involving the “new” food service company and their performance already this year.

I was fortunate enough to have experienced the “service” provided by Woods Service and was gratified to know that the college had hired someone else. My joy continued this summer when I enjoyed several palatable barbeque-style lunches during the freshmen orientations. It was at that time that I noticed several suits assessing the situation who, presumably, were in charge or at the very least were some sort of employee of the Aldan, the new company. I was pleased to see such an active interest in the well being of the food. I was about to eat rather than the former head of the Blanton cafeteria, that female creature from hell, who told me last year that a roll which Gretsky would have done a number with was “fresh” as well as trying to convince me that my chicken was “like they do down in Louisiana.”

I happened to find myself on the way to dinner in Blanton on August 31. To begin, I noticed some changes as I entered the line. First, plastic silverware! As if that weren’t enough, plastic plates! Is Aldan going to threaten my children’s future with their non-biodegradable garbage because they can’t get someone to wash dishes? Besides, if they plan to charge $5.25 for non-residents they should, at the very least, provide a “real” set up! On to the food. The “selection” was a “chicken cheese thing” which was by all means, aptly named. This was served with your choice of those small skinless potatoes, carrots, or spinach. Yum-Yum. Because of the under staffing, there was only one line for the preceding delicacies, even though there were two “stations” with the same items. The other choice was some sort of pasta at the end of the counter with a selection of sauce, with or without meat. To say that this pasta was oily would be an insult to anyone who had the displeasure of eating it. Not to mention the manner in which it was served. “Next,” was heard from the unhappy cafeteria lady as she threw a handful, literally, by hand, of the well-oiled pasta to my plate followed by a cheery (not!) “Sauce”? I couldn’t be too upset, though. They ran out of it around six.

I had arrived at 5:45 and was more than ready to leave by six. There was no soup. The salad bar was, kindly, in disarray to say the very least. When I asked for a roll to sop up my oil with, I was given half a french roll! The long ones! The under staffing, the far less than palatable food, the service of said food, the lack of supplies to keep from running out brings up one word as far as I am concerned, pathetic.

"Hey buddy, that's my foot"

by Anthony Floreno

So I'm walking down the back alley of the Student Center (you know, where WMSC is) and who should turn the corner but the Dead Milkmen. So I walk up to Joe the guitarist and say, "Hey, you're in the Dead Milkmen... Wow!"

On September 2, The Dead Milkmen along with special guests Sweet Lizard Illtet played what turned out to be a great free concert. Illtet came on just after 7:30 pm and played their brand of funk/Chili Peppers. The most interesting part of the interview was trying to keep their attention. I had to listen to five minutes of sarcasm before I could get a straight answer. For example:

Question: So guys, did you all grow up in the same area?
Reply: We're from....Planet Planters, Yeah... (As they pointed at the Plants jar of peanuts across the table.)

I should have known from the moment I walked into the room that I was doomed. My first glance at the crew was focused on Rocky.

He was lounging in his chair in a deep gaze. His eyes were fixed on his left shoulder where a tattoo of a pyramid toppled off with an eyeball was drawn. When I asked him what it signifies to him he told me to find out.

Well, after a bit of research, I uncovered a few facts about this symbol, which can also be found on the back of a dollar bill, is representative of the "all seeing eye." A popular theory behind the "all seeing eye" is found in a book by Robert Anton Wilson and Robert Grey called The Illuminatus.

The story is about an underground organization that is conspiring to take over the world called The Illuminatus. The symbol of the organization is the all seeing eye. The organization is so intricate that they have even

by Chris Miguel

Imagine the poetic eloquence of Jim Morrison, the street-smart savvy of Ice-T and the looks of Anthony Keidis all rolled into one person. With a porcupine, a knife, a ring, and a peculiar lime-green fingerless rubber glove on his left hand. This is Mike Kilmer, bass player, vocalist and songwriter for the Hoboken-based band Sweet Lizard Illtet.

I had the opportunity to sit on a live, on-air, pre-concert interview with him last Wednesday. Being a DJ for 101.5 WMSC FM, the campus radio station (a blatant plug if you know), I was already familiar with the band's music. But sitting there talking to Mike and asking him questions with fellow DJ Dave Schablik, I could tell this would definitely be a trip into the ozone without a parachute. (Caution: Any readers with closed minds and Z-100 bumper stickers on their cars, please leave the room.)

With that said, enjoy the ride.

CHRIS: I've always wondered...how'd you get the name?
MIKE: Well, we wanted to get a name that would do something to people and relate to the music. So, we...you know, prayed and held rituals every full moon for a couple of years, you know. And I think it was through Venus that the name came down to us through a series of dreams over time.

CHRIS: Did you ever tour under any other names or...

MIKE: Nah. Just one name.

DAVE: Do you guys prefer studio time or live and if it's the same, why? Like, what's...
Before we all left for a glorious summer of sun, surf and slavery (some of us have to work for our tuition money, y'know), I wondered who would be the new King of Late Night. Johnny Carson handed over the reins of The Tonight Show to Jay Leno, and as always, Arsenio Hall is gunning for the throne. Dennis Miller was okay as hosts go and did have a loyal audience, but it isn't the ratings and viewers just weren't there. Soon, Whoopi Goldberg will toss her dreadlocks into the ring, and the game is afoot once more.

The king is retired—who's the new king? Jay Leno is, but for how much longer, nobody knows. Jay and Arsenio have been battling for the #1 spot since Carson's retirement, and week after week, Jay has kept a shaky hold on it. Back in June, I predicted the race would be pretty much neck and neck, and that has held true, with Jay just squeaking in the lead. Jay still has the old Tonight Show audience plus the new viewers he's picked up since he took over. Arsenio still has his loyal following, plus whoever crossed over when Johnny left. In addition, both shows now have their own official "policies." If you're on one show first, you're banned indefinitely from the other one. If Leno books you first, no Arsenio Hall spots for you, and vice versa. Cutthroat, ain't it?

The implementation of these "policies" just shows how close the ratings game is, and how much both hosts want the #1 spot. How much do these two people have to lose? Leno has more to lose than Arsenio. Then again, Leno has a tougher act to follow—Arsenio just has himself. Leno has to prove to the world he's just as good (if not better) than his predecessor. Arsenio just has to keep up, and every now and then, he upstages Leno. Both are so eager and desperate to upstage each other, they are forced to use TV guerrilla tactics in order to get ahead.

Not that this is anything new. During sweeps months, all four networks try to get the biggest slice of the pie by airing the juiciest tabloid programs, the raciest movies and the most scandalous prime-time dramas. Anything goes, and sometimes it shows. A little more skin here, a couple doing the nasty on a beach there, it all adds up. What's interesting is that Jay Leno is on all the NBC affiliates nationwide. Arsenio is here and there. In some areas, he's on Fox, in others, he's on local stations (like WWOR in Secaucus). Arsenio is moving in. Jay is simply trying to hold his ground. Neither one is giving up or giving in. One thing is certain—if one slips up, the other will not waste any time in going for the jugular. This is the Late Night War. Look out, Schwarzkopf.

Ramones back with Mondo Bizarro

by Anthony Floreno

After 18 years and 16 albums, The Ramones are still true to the punk-rock ethic. On this latest album, nearly all of the songs are three minutes or less. In fact, "Poison Heart," the first single off the album, clocks the longest song at 4:04.

Mondo Bizarro is the Ramones first studio album in three years and the first one on Atlantic Records, after 17 years with Sire Records. The newest member, C. Jay Ramone is on bass, as the replacement for longtime bassist Dee Dee. Founding members Joey on vocals, Johnny on guitar, and Marky on drums round out the well-known line-up.

Mondo Bizarro opens up with "Censorship," a blistering attack on rock critic, Officer Tipper Gore. With the oft-repeated refrain "Aw Tipper come on! Ain't you been getting it on? Just listen to Ozzy, Zappa, and me! We'll show you what its like to be free, this song is sure to be banned by someone.

"Cables on Crack" puts fun at the driving (in)ability of New York City cabbies, while "Heidi is a Headcase" is straightforward Ramones in the "Sheena is a Punk Rocker" vein.

Of course there are classic Ramones songs like "I Don't Care, I Was Raised on Punk Rockers" and "I Wanna Be Sedated". Or a scathing attack on PMRC head Tipper Gore. With the oft-repeated refrain "Aw Tipper come on! Ain't you been getting it on? Just listen to Ozzy, Zappa, and me! We'll show you what its like to be free, this song is sure to be banned by someone.

"Cables on Crack" puts fun at the driving (in)ability of New York City cabbies, while "Heidi is a Headcase" is straightforward Ramones in the "Sheena is a Punk Rocker" vein.

The one surprise on the album is a cover of the obscure Doors song "Eat It as It Comes," which the Ramones play true to the original. Three chord, knock you down and kick you on the floor rock 'n' roll. Ramones fans old and new will love this latest from the Grateful Dead of the punk scene.

Welcome to the first installment of "Prophet Bigger." This idea here is that I, the prophet, will clue you in as to what we can look forward to in the future of the entertainment industry as well as color commentary about current going on. I also encourage you to drop your entertainment questions at the Montclarion office in the Student Center. Annex room 113. If I can answer your questions, I will in the following issue.

Okay, enough crap. On to the real stuff.

Poeny Marshall has been talking recently about bringing in an R-rated Laverne and Shirley to the big screen which she will direct, of course.

Universal wants a big screen reunion of Crockett and Tubbs and are currently speaking to Jeff Goldblum and Harvey Keitel about a T.V. personality who thinks his lovely wife has an unusual hobby in So, I Married An Axe Murderer.

Steven Spielberg is bringing the Michael Crichton novel Jurassic Park to the big screen in summer blockbuster style. Universal has already laid out some $50 million dollars for the film.

Late Night with... Dana Carvey? Hmm. Maybe. G.E. Smith will take over Paula's keyboards. Not.

In case you've been dead for a year, Ren and Stimpy have already started their new show, The Ren and Stimpy Show. It's on Fox, but has only just begun. Watch for video games, comics, real product endorsement, and enough other crap to cause future archaeologists to call the 90's the Ren and Stimpy era, which will lie just above the Simpson level.

The implementation of these "policies" just shows how close the ratings game is, and how much both hosts want the #1 spot. How much do these two people have to lose? Leno has more to lose than Arsenio. Then again, Leno has a tougher act to follow—Arsenio just has himself. Leno has to prove to the world he's just as good (if not better) than his predecessor. A loss for words
by Cliff Annicelli
After hearing Naked Soul’s new e.p., Seed, I was immediately struck by a shocking revelation: There are too many record labels. I had always believed that the more record companies there were the more artists could get their message across to people. I called it the great formula for art and the music business. Naked Soul have proved me wrong. Some bands are better left unrecorded.

Naked Soul is a California trio that incredibly hard to sound like one of those classic mid-80's Midwestern-pop-punk bands. They succeed, I guess, because they sound an awful lot like Soul Asylum. So much, in fact, that I checked to see if Naked Soul’s vocalist, Mike Conley, was actually Soul Asylum’s Dave Finner doing some sort of cloning. He wasn’t. Naked Soul have no excuses for their lack of originality. The average depth of subject matter for Naked Soul is “I’m lonely. I’m thinking about you. Are you lonely too?” Now say that six different ways for half an hour and you’ll get a good appreciation of what we were influences of.” The Irish Folk Chieftains are among the musicians admired by the Dead Milkmen. They are also fans of U2 since they were influences of.”

We've probably done this before, so we'll not dwell on it. The Midwestern pop-punk bands. They succeeded, I guess, because they sound an awful lot like Soul Asylum. So much, in fact, that I checked to see if Naked Soul’s vocalist, Mike Conley, was actually Soul Asylum’s Dave Finner doing some sort of cloning. He wasn’t. They are also fans of U2 since they were influences of.”

MIKE: Yeah, yeah man. There’s just so many ways to get music. We now think about it, it’s pretty much infinite.

DAVE: Did you ever get lost in the studio, like you can give them a little more reverberation, a little echo there. Did you ever run into those problems, or you just kinda...play and let it be?

MIKE: Well, you know, it depends on the song. Sometimes you just kick it out live and that’s it. Often we just...mess around for as long as we can...and just kinda have a good times...

CHRIS: Speaking of the music...do you have any major influences that you can think of that really shaped the band?

MIKE: Definitely. Public Enemy, P-Funk, The Wallers, Led Zeppelin, Black Sabbath, Pink Floyd...Bad Brains...

DAVE: Do you find that touring makes you better as far as making music...do you have any major influences that you can think of that really shaped the band?

MIKE: We probably already have openned for Rocky when they were influenced by as Naked Soul. Buy a thesaurus.

DAVE: What was your first experience with...standing there saying “Wow man, these people are breaking out over me, and I’m not even on stage!”

MIKE: Probably the first time...I was on stage in one of our first gigs, and I took my shirt off and all my younger sister’s friends...these girls were like screaming!”

DAVE: Do you get into that whole fan thing?

MIKE: Well, you know, it depends on the day, it depends on the mood. It feels good, a lot. But when you get down to it, it’s not gonna make your life.

DAVE: Do you have any shows you want to just plug away out here?

MIKE: (Pauses) We’re taking a couple of weeks off so the percussion player Wylie (Wirth) can go to Amsterdam and hang out with his lover for a while. And then when he gets back...I think we’re gonna play the Lime Ltd on Tuesday the 22nd with this band Arrogant Response...and then nothing else local right now that I can think of.

CHRIS: Are you going to be cutting any more studio albums or live albums, any kinda stuff coming out in the stores?

MIKE: Not in the near... (switches gear) I think we’re gonna tour with B a s e b a d, hopefully. Man, those guys are kickin’. And then, we’re working in the studio...we got some stuff cookin’.

DAVE: Do you find that touring makes you better as far as the studio goes? Does it kinda rub off? Or does it just make you tired?

MIKE: We always make the record after a two-month vacation and then go on tour and then we can play. Because when you don’t play for a couple of months, man, you lose it. So, when you play every night, you’re pretty rockin’.

CHRIS: One last word... Just then, Derek Pinkham, radio personal and station six—god walks in...)

DEREK: Can I ask a question?

DAVE: Sure, go ahead.

DEREK: If you were real, how much per pound would you be?

MIKE: It depends on if I’m subsidized by the government! (Laughter)

Freshmen tennis stars are keys to season

by Karen Plumstead

With the backdrop of the U.S. Open echoing in its ears, the MSC women's tennis team began its season on Friday. Coming off a 2-7 (1-3 NJAC) campaign in '91, the team was looking to start the season off on the right foot. However, MSC was defeated 6-1 by Rutgers Newark.

Despite the opening match loss and the fact that seven of the eight-man Red Hawks are to compliment one another with their on the court talent in addition to taking the rest of the team to a higher level when they are on the court together.

When asked about this year's squad, Chouinard had this to say, "We have a lot of potential, and I think we can go real far this year. We have a good mix of returning players and new players."

Kubicka views the '92 team as the "best talent I've seen on a volleyball court here at MSC." Expectations are high despite conference battles with Kean, Rutgers Newark, Stockton State and Ramapo. The team is packed with a deep bench and talent that includes excellent servant and hitters that have a hard year together to grow as a unit.

The schedule includes seven consecutive home games from September 19 to October 3. The homestand features games with NYU, William Paterson, and Fairleigh Dickinson.

Despite an uphill start, MSC is optimistic about the upcoming season. Blanton, in his fifth season as Red Hawks head coach, has built a successful program with a "we as a team" philosophy. "We treat each athlete as a member of the family," said Blanton. This year however, several members of the family are missing.

Due to financial restraints, five members of the team's roster will not be running this season. "Unfortunately, because of the state's legislation cuts in financial aid many student-athletes are unable to participate," Blanton said. Two members of the squad that Blanton is depending on for leadership are Wayne Dennis, a junior transfer from Essex County College and Sharon Linda (junior/ Brooklyn), who was last year's team captain and a 1991 All-ECAC performer.

Two runners who will not be running who have previously run are Brian Major (junior/Lakeland) and Jennifer Welch (sophomore/Dover). Both were selected to the 1990 All-Conference team and have decided not to run for personal reasons.

Blanton, the former head track coach at Clifton High School in East Orange for three years, took over the MSC cross country program in 1988. At that time, the team only had four runners. Since then, Blanton has turned the program around. "This program has grown tremendously. We are never content. We are always trying to better our last performance," said Blanton.

The young Red Hawks' first test will come on September 25 at the Monmouth Invitational in Holmdel.

Perfecto! Men's hoops returns from Spain undefeated

by Keith A. Idee

When the MSC men's basketball team headed for Malaga, Spain on its nine-day, three-game tour, no one expected the Red Hawks to return home with three victories. However, the eight-man Red Hawk squad did just that.

The trip was arranged by former MSC guard Carlos Gaspar, who now plays for Club Candado in Spain. MSC President Irvin Reid and Athletic Director Gregory Lockard accompanied Head Coach Nick DelTufo and his Red Hawks on the trip.

MSC began its three-game set with C.B. Marabella, a semi-professional team from the city of Marabella. The Red Hawks fell behind by 15 points in the first half, but managed to battle back, as this one went right down to the wire. With five seconds left, MSC was down 72-71 and had senior-forward Lee Mullins at the foul line. Mullins hit the first free-throw to tie the game, but missed the second. The missed free-throw was rebounded by forward Chris Jackson, who missed his shot-attempt.

Then, in dramatic fashion, the high-flying Mullins grabbed the rebound and sank a three-foot jumper at the buzzer to give the Red Hawks a 74-72 victory.

The second victory of the trip came a little easier for MSC. The Red Hawks pounded Club Candado (Gaspar's team) 109-83. The real highlights came after this game was played on the court. The players from both teams exchanged greetings and gifts. Also, Club Candado threw a banquet for the Red Hawks and presented President Reid with a silver plaque as a token of their appreciation for having the Red Hawks in Spain.

The third and final victory came as the biggest surprise of the trip. MSC defeated Malaga, a Spanish professional team, by the score of 84-73. Malaga was 16-2 prior to the loss and has an average height of 6'6". However, the Red Hawks used their quickness to jump out to a 15-2 lead in the first half and never looked back.

Although the three victories were good signs for MSC basketball, the players got much more out of their voyage. They learned about a foreign place, a different language, and an assortment of customs and cultures. It was truly a unique experience and an opportunity that most basketball players never get.
Women's soccer seeks to reach playoffs in just third year

by Michael Frasco

After just two seasons as a varsity sport, women's soccer at MSC has made great strides and is not looking back.

Although the team finished its inaugural season at 4-10-1, head coach Peter Latartara and his players turned things around in 1991 as the team finished at 8-7.

As this season gets underway, the Red Hawks, who play in the ECAC, are looking to better that mark and perhaps reach the playoffs.

But don't expect the team to improve by playing easy opponents. That's not Latartara's style. The third year coach is a firm believer in scheduling challenging opponents. Of the 17 regular season games the team will play, six will consist of nationally-ranked opponents.

To improve upon last year's mark, Latartara recruited some new faces. Maybe the most notable is freshman forward Renee Hanaka.

"She has incredible tenacity and speed to go along with a great shooting touch," Latartara said.

Another highly regarded newcomer is sophomore goalie Jessica Vankat. "Jessica is a good goalie and has done very well so far," Latartara said.

Concerning the teams overall strength, Latartara said, "We have uniformly good skills (good passing) and have added a little speed on the attack. This will make the team more balanced on defense and in front."

Another highly regarded player on an NCAA field hockey team that went 1-11-1 in 1991, had only nine players on its roster going into yesterday's opener with C. W. Post. Nine players is the minimum amount that a team can play with according to NCAA regulations.

Although the team started out with 15 players on its roster, six players are no longer active due to either injury or academic ineligibility. "We may set the record for the least amount of players on an NCAA field hockey roster," Brown said.

Despite the lack of players, Brown remains optimistic. "We have four talented freshmen, and five sophomores whom I expect solid contributions from. We should have a full squad by the third game of the season. Also, we'll get leadership from returning captain Mariana Duva."

From being named coach, Brown has developed a close relationship with her small, young team. "She has stressed that a positive attitude is a major key to success. "There is no room for negativity in this program," she said.

Brown has been encouraged by the continuing interest in MSC field hockey. "Almost everyone new comes out for the team and they have shown that they have some impressive skills," Brown also has a surprise player whom she feels will be "a key player." To avoid putting pressure on the walk-on, Brown chose not to name her.

The young coach comes to MSC with plenty of high school coaching experience. Prior to her two-year stint at Montclair High, Brown coached at Paramus Catholic, Butler, and Madison. She took the Red Hawk job because she has come to MSC to work on her Master's degree. Thus, the resignation of former field hockey coach Debbie Hallway came at a perfect time for Brown, who graduated from the University of Delaware in 1984.

After moving around from job to job, Brown believes that she has finally found a home at MSC.

New field hockey coach optimistic despite thin roster and young team

by Keith A. Idee

Barbara Brown accepted a tough position when she was named MSC's head field hockey coach last week. The former Montclair High coach took over a team that went 1-11-1 in 1991 and had only nine players on its roster going into yesterday's opener with C. W. Post. Football looks to rebound from mediocre '91 season

Last year's 5-5 mark doesn't sit well with players

by Michael Frasco

As the Red Hawk football team embarks on the 1992 campaign, two things are certain: the team is young and the處partment is looking for its first winning season in years. The previous two years, despite high hopes, the team has failed to win a conference battle. However, the Red Hawks are determined to change that this season.

The team has several players returning who could be key to the team's success. John Walker, a senior tailback, is expected to lead the team in rushing. Walker has compiled 2,672 yards over three seasons and is just 271 yards shy of becoming MSC's all-time leading rusher.

Quarterbacking the Red Hawks will be third-year starter Steve Banas. After learning the system freshman year and a disappointing sophomore season, Banas now needs to step forward as a leader. He has two exceptional receivers in sophomores Trenaine Wimberly and Tyrone Rola, so clearly Banas is the determining factor because if he plays well, the offense should play well. Furthermore, if Banas passes well, defenses will not be able to key on Walker.

Of course, Banas will only be able to guide the offense if he gets adequate protection from his offensive line. This poses an unknown problem, as four starters were lost from last season. As a result, the line will consist mainly of underclassmen. Giancola said, "There are some players who’s playing time has been limited". In addition to the linesmen, the Red Hawks will look for senior noseguard Larry Thompson to be the focal point. Over the last three seasons Thompson has been consistent, registering 17 sacks and causing over 150 yards in losses to the opposition. These numbers just begin to show why Thompson is recognized as an All-American candidate this year.

So the main concern will be the overall work ethic and putting things together in time well enough to win." Offensively, the Red Hawks will rely heavily on senior tailback John Walker, who certainly knows how to put together yardage. The All-American candidate has compiled 2,672 yards over three seasons and is just 271 yards shy of becoming MSC’s all-time leading rusher.

Larry Thompson: Leads defense

The linebacking crew will be anchored by senior Duane Grade and junior Keith Short both on the inside. The outside linebackers will consist of sophomore Mark Gatto and junior Dwayne Savage. Of these two Giancola said, "These guys should give us the stability we need to surround our defensive line a little bit so that what we might lack in terms of experience there, those guys might be able to pick up for us.

The defensive battle will be key to this season. As last season’s only ECAC All-Star. As a sophomore Davis made his presence known by making 43 tackles, 33 of those solo’s, breaking up nine pass attempts and picking off three passes.

Finally, the main concern Giancola, his coaching staff and team worked to improve upon side from the offensive line, was the kicking game. Doing the placekicking will be freshman Scott Rubiniotti, who narrowly beat out Darryl Pelligrino, a junior transfer from Rutgers. Concerning this battle Giancola said, "Either one of those two could step in and kick for us right now. So I feel extremely confident the kicking game will be a solid one." Despite this team being young, Giancola feels his team has worked hard to prepare itself to win. He believes that factor can be the difference between his team and another football team. Perhaps the added talent the Red Hawks possess will, in fact, make the difference. The only question that remains then, is have the Red Hawks prepared and worked hard enough to do it in time for this Saturday?

Men’s soccer seeks repeat of last season’s magic

The MSC’s men’s soccer team enjoyed a high level of success in 1991, head coach Rob Chesney’s first season at the helm. The Red Hawks finished at 15-4 (7-2 NJAC), and made their third consecutive trip to the NCAA tournament.

Chesney hopes that his team can achieve that type of success in his second season, but that could be a tall order to fill. The squad has lost six seniors to graduation, including stars Tom Estes, Gus Moramarco, and John Rubiniotti, who has returned as an assistant coach for the ‘92 campaign. This has given the team a very different look.

Since 1988, MSC has produced a record of 61-20-4. The major component to that success has been excellent defense. Last season, the Red Hawks tied a school record by allowing just 3 goals all season. This season the defense will be anchored by All-American Don Bucci. The senior tri-captain from Edison was last season’s Defensive MVP. “Once again, we will look for Edison to lead our team from the back. He is probably the best sweeper in Division III and that says a lot because there are a lot of talented players,” said Chesney.

Bucci will be helped out defensively by junior Hugo Munoz (Bayonne/Hudson Catholic) and Ozzie Nurendin (W. Caldwell/ Caldwell). These two players are highly skilled and have college soccer experience. Rounding out the defense will be juniors Melken Noriega (Hackensack/Hackackack) and Julio Cenegera (Paterson/Don Bosco Tech), sophomores Mario Batelli (Totowa/Panasonic Valley) and Paul Puelusio (Garwood/Beary Reg.), and red-shirt freshman Jimmy Reddy (Elizabethtown).

Offensively, the Red Hawks should be in good shape as well. The forwards will be led senior tri-captain Guillermo Siles (Lima, Peru), who was named an Adidas Academic Regional All-American last season. “We are looking for Guillermo to step up as a real leader for us this year,” stated Chesney. Sophomore Erik Neubart (Livingston/Livingston) is expected to be a major contributor after showing promise as a freshman. “With a solid year of learning behind him, we feel he can score many goals this season,” said Chesney.

Other forwards who are expected to see playing time are seniors Carlos Hanze out of Ridgefield Park and transfer Jim LaGarde, who comes in as a freshman out of Goshen, New York.

The midfield lost three of its four starters, with senior tri-captain Fernando Barbato (Paterson/Don Bosco Tech) being the only returning starter. Two freshmen

The bottom line is if everyone comes in ready to work, accepts their roles, is totally dedicated to the team, and gives 100 percent every game, we will be successful” being counted on to contribute heavily in the midfield. Hamzah Alhamid, who comes from Saudi Arabia, has been labeled “as talented a player as you’ll find in any division.” Alex Zapata, a native of Columbia, has a lot of experience and should make an immediate impact.

The MSC goal will be kept by junior Mark Williams. The Holmdel native saw time at goalie last season and will see his role become bigger this year, because he is the only goalkeeper on the Red Hawks’ roster with experience at this level. Chesney knows he can count on Williams, as his Mark controls the box extremely well. I am confident that he can do an outstanding job for us,” said the second-year coach.

Although there are twelve new players on the roster, Chesney feels that MSC can have success in ‘92. “The bottom line is if everyone comes in ready to work, accepts their roles, is totally dedicated to the team, and gives 100 percent every game, we will be successful.” We have some very talented players on this team, but it will take hard work by all of us to get things going smoothly,” said Chesney.

This weekend MSC will take part in the Scranton Tournament. The festivities begin with a non-conference battle with Elmira College on Saturday at 1:00 p.m.
