Reid’s welcome back speech isn’t very welcoming

by R. A. Campos

MSC may have to take drastic measures to continue its survival after a $3.5 million budget cut from the state this year, President Irvin Reid said in his Welcome Back speech.

Although the budget was cut $3.5 million, MSC was reimbursed $1.4 through the Tuition Stabilization Incentive Program (TSIP), Tom Auch, general manager of the station.

A crack down on students driving without parking decals occurred yesterday at the New Access Road entrance to the campus.

Beginning at 9 a.m., and lasting throughout the day, Campus Police stopped all cars at this entrance to check for parking decals.

Students who did not have a valid decal displayed in their car windows were told by Campus Police to pull over, and were given a form by the Burnar of MSC, Vilma Maristela.

Students were made to fill out the form, which registers a vehicle for a parking decal before they were permitted to enter the parking lots.

Maristela told students they could either pay the decal fee on the spot, have their account debited, or make other payment arrangements at the Business Office.

Auch said that all faculty positions at MSC have been filled but staff positions are frozen in areas such as maintenance and security.

Reid was again against raising tuition and boasted last year’s tuition increase as the lowest in the last seven years.

According to Reid, the 1993 tuition fee is $60. This is the second time this has happened to him, Stegall said.

According to Campus Police at approximately 4 a.m., they responded to the first call about a car having been broken into.

After a more thorough search, 19 cars were found to have had their windows smashed while 12 others had both their windows broken and been burglarized, said Campus Police.

One of the burglarized cars, a 1987 Nissan, belonged to Donny Steggel, 21-year-old broadcasting major.

WMSC off the air indefinitely

by Anthony Floreno and Christopher Miguel

If you happen to tune into 101.5 FM on your radio and here a strange noise that sends you screaming into the wilderness, don’t worry; it’s only WMSC.

But, right now, you might not hear anything over the air, because, in the words of Stuart Weissman, General Manager of WMSC, “We are off the air indefinitely.”

WMSC’s problems stem from what appears to be a malfunctioning “remote” which enables station personnel to turn on and off the transmitter with just a flip of the switch. Without the remote, the transmitter, which is located on Clove Road, would have to be turned on/off manually.

Presently, WMSC is conducting interviews for the position of chief engineer, whose job would be to watch over the transmitter and maintain the station’s equipment.

Weissman said, “A selection process is under way. Once an engineer is chosen and their contract and pay-roll are negotiated, they can legally work on the transmitter.”

Until then, when you switch on WMSC, you’ll only hear the hum of electronic equipment.

But Operations Manager Dave Oates is confident that the station’s listenership is not in jeopardy. “We don’t expect to lose support, he said, “cause people are still making requests. Now that’s what I call a dedicated listener.”

Emergency phones installed throughout campus

by George Olschewski

Ten emergency telephones were installed on campus over the summer, bringing the total number up to 39. Most of these phones were installed in the Quarry lots and the Access Road.

“The phones definitely get used,” said Phil Calfire, director of MSC’s Campus Police. “The new ones are easy to spot. They’re painted red, have red ‘Emergency Phone’ signs by them, and have the Campus Police logo stick-ers on them.”

There were no specific incidents that prompted the Campus Police to install new phones, but MSC Vice-President of Finance Thomas Auch said there was one woman who called who said someone was following her and she couldn’t find a phone.

“While nothing really happened to her, certainly the call of one frantic woman

INTERNATIONAL

PARIS- German Chancellor Helmut Cole has joined France’s President Mitterrand in an all out media blitz on French television appealing for a “Yes” vote concerning the upcoming Maastricht Treaty referendum.

French voters will, on September 20, cast their decision on the future role their country will play in the European Community.

CHERNOBYL, BELARUS- The World Health Organization (WHO) announced in a report this week, that, contrary to earlier predictions, cases of thyroid cancer among children in areas downwind from the site of the disaster are considerably higher than expected.

BEIJING- Shen Tong, student leader of the Tiananmen Square uprising, was arrested in Beijing after returning to China this past July on the assurance from the Deng government that no action would be taken against him. Deng, who had resided in Boston for the past three years, insisted on setting up a Beijing branch of the U.S.-based Democracy for China Fund.

Deng’s decision was probably prompted by an attempt to test the government’s alleged commitment to reform.

NATIONAL

FLORIDA-President Bush asked Congress this Tuesday for a $7.6 billion relief aid package for the victims of Hurricane Andrew. The storm, which claimed 52 lives, is probably the worst disaster in U.S. history.

The damage, which totals over $20 billion, is expected to need at least six months to a year before it can be returned to normal.

The bill is expected to receive bipartisan support.

C. Everett Koop is scheduled to speak on Wednesday, September 16, at 8:00 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium.

REGIONAL

TRENTON-Arthur Scale pleaded guilty to kidnapping and shooting Exxon executive Sidney Reso in a Trenton courthouse earlier this week.

Prosecutors will be pushing for the maximum sentence of 93 years and up to $1.75 million in fines.

MIDDLETOWN- President Bush addressed a crowd in Middletown, NJ this week in hope for support in the upcoming fall elections. New Jersey will be a major battleground state in the upcoming Presidential Election between Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton and President George Bush.

TRENTON- Governor Jim Florio and State Attorney General Robert Del Tufo announced a sweeping corrections plan to up the mandatory sentence for auto theft.

The state has seen a dramatic increase in the amount of car thefts and car theft related violent crimes in the past years and the Governor is hoping to curb the spread.

A special prosecutor would be hired under the plan to solely handle these cases.

No more climbing stairs for Bohn Hall residents

by George Olachewaki

The first of two new elevators was installed in Bohn Hall over summer, with the second one scheduled to be completed by the end of October, said MSC Vice-President of Finance Thomas Asch.

The new elevators will replace the ones that have been in Bohn Hall since its construction in 1971. The old elevators were a constant source of complaints by Bohn Hall residents because they constantly broke down, forcing students to walk up as many as 10 flights of stairs to their rooms.

The second elevator's installation began last Tuesday when the older one was shut down. "We have most of the materials here, we just have to put it in," said Margaree Coleman-Carter director of residence life. "It's twice as fast as the other one, and it's really smooth. One student tried to open the doors when it was still moving because he couldn't 'feel it moving,'" she said.

Two attempts at vandalizing the elevator's interior walls have already been reported. "Even though the elevator is 'vandalproof' according to the manufacturers, we still don't like to see it vandalized," Coleman-Carter said.

The new elevators are part of an overall renovation package in Bohn Hall, which also includes new furniture for MSC's largest dormitory. The elevators cost approximately $100,000 each.

"Bohn Hall is in bad shape and if the college wants it to be improved as planned, then Bohn Hall has to be maintained by the staff as well as the students who use it," said President Irvin Reid, expressing discontent of Key and the Veteran's Services.

"We won't have the same access to this school. We're afraid that veterans become upset because there is a change," said Adams.

"It will be hard to adjust to their schedules we are adjusting also."

Leasman says Alden is working on line management and other ways to improve traffic flow. He made this analogy: "Just as the students are getting adjusted to their schedules, we are adjusting also."

Leasman also said that he and his staff are open to comments, suggestions, and complaints and if there is a problem to bring it up immediately and any attendant or manager will help you. Leasman said that he wants to keep communication between Alden and the students open.

Leasman also said that there is a special offer for all new Free Flow Students who apply before September 21 with a deposit of $25 or more. When a student opens a Free Flow account with 25 dollars or more, he/she gets a cash coupon worth 25 dollars, Leasman said. The coupons in this book are in the denominations of 10, 25, and 50 cents and can be used at any time to cash in for products, Leasman said.

"The student will be getting fifty dollars worth of food for twenty-five dollars," Leasman said.
Welcome to MSC, land of bulldozers and no parking

by Pam Colon

Ever since MSC decided to become a university, the sounds of trucks, cranes, and traffic have been a common occurrence. The noise, and should continue to do so because of renovations to the existing building will not be completed until this time next year.

The new academic building, which will be located across from the library, has the structural steel completed as well as concrete floors. Exterior framing is in the process, according to construction documents. The building will be completed in August 1993.

Due to these two construction sites, the library and the academic building, traffic routes have been altered to free College Ave, for construction vehicles.

"the new routes are longer and more congested", senior, Eileen Craft said. According to Kiki Williams, who is in charge of the shuttle bus, the route will stay the same because College Ave is planned to be a side walk after the construction is completed. "The college should allow the shuttle bus to ride College Ave. which will cut down on time and traffic", Williams said.

The answer to the traffic problem the college has offered is the removal of the "stop" sign at the intersection of Quarry Rd. and Quarry Way so "that traffic exiting faculty and staff parking lots 14 and 17, and other main campus areas, can now proceed through the intersection without encountering the "stop" sign. The extra traffic will not be stopped" also "traffic can now make a left turn up Webster Rd." according to a memo by Thomas H. Reid, Director of Facilities Planning and Finance.

The objective for the Ratt's makeover is to create a "cafe like atmosphere" and to improve food programming and service for pizza. However renovations do not include a bar or any other alcohol service at the facility as it did before.

Other campus makeovers include building additions to Mclachlan Music Hall, Life Hall, and Calcia Fine Arts Building. Life Hall, as well as College Ave, which will cut down on time and traffic, Williams said.

Prosky dies of massive heart attack

"He was perhaps the most enthusiastic human being I ever knew," said Dr. Rita Jacobs of Dr. Murray Prosky, "from how he planted his garden to an esoteric quote from Jane Austin I needed for a talk I was giving."

Prosky, 56, died on August 17, 1992 of a massive heart attack, three months after having his second heart bypass. "His body was not meant to go on," said his wife Hope Prosky. She also said he "wanted so much to go back to work, his greatest pleasure was seeing his students grow."

Dr. Dan Bronson, a close friend who car pooled and shared an office with Prosky for 10 years said, "He was the kind of person that if he knew you, you were a friend, and if you were a friend you were family."

Prosky came to MSC in 1972, after teaching at Queens College and Seattle University. He attended New York University and attained his Ph.D. at the University of Wisconsin. His areas of expertise were Irish Literature, Brian Moore, and Jane Austin. A friend and colleague, Dr. Alyce Miller said, "He always seemed when you needed support or a hug. He also had no qualms, as a friend, with telling you when you were out of line."

Prosky was very active in the campus community, he was a long time member of the Library committee and had been planning to be the English Department Co-ordinator for evening and weekend students.

Lorna Friel, a Senior Political Science major said, "He was a nice professor and he got the students very interested in what they were reading."

Jacobs said, "His energy was amazing, he always found something interesting. He had a wonderfully bizarre sense of humor. He will be greatly missed."

There will be a Memorial Service held on Sunday September 13, 1992 at 3:00 p.m. in Packer Collegiate School, Brooklyn Heights, New York.

Dr. Thomlinson dies after 3 1/2 year battle with AIDS

Recalling what type of person Dr. Douglas Thomlinson was, Dr. Janet Cutler, a close friend, recalls the first time Thomlinson was hospitalized. "Hospitals are so depressing, so we were trying to pretend we were somewhere else. I told him I'd rather be at the beach. He said he would rather be in Calcutta Auditorium teaching a class." Cutler asked him if he was crazy.

Thomlinson died on June 30, 1992 at his parents' home in Ontario, Canada. He was diagnosed HIV positive three and a half years ago, and died of AIDS at the age of 43.

Cutler, also of the English Department, said Thomlinson "chose to continue to teach. This was how wanted to spend his last days." Thomlinson taught film classes up until the middle of the Spring 1992 semester when he became too ill to teach. She said at times it was a real struggle for him to continue, but teaching and his students were his life.

Thomlinson received his B.A. from York University in Canada, and his M.A. and Ph.D. from New York University. He started teaching here in 1983 and had been very active in the campus community. He was the English Department Co-ordinator for evening and weekend students. He was instrumental in the addition of night and weekend classes in both the English and film departments.

Dr. Thomlinson was also a member of the Library Committee and worked to expand the video library.

According to Cutler, Thomlinson also wrote an anthology of Actors and Actresses feelings on films, directors and performing. He worked on the book up until the day he died. It is going to be published under Garland Press, and is due out "soon," said Cutler.

"The research for the book was extraordinarily difficult, but he continued," she said, "he used to say his mind was fine, it was his body that was collapsing."

Cutler said she wanted his students to know that even though it was hard, he wanted to be there for them because they were the most important thing in his life.

Donations may be made in his name to the college's newly established Doug Thomlinson Scholarship Fund.

There will be a Memorial Service held on October 15, 1992 at 3:00 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom B. Anyone wishing to attend and/or speak may do so.

Periodical Librarian dies after fifteen years of service

Bernice Jones-Trent, Director of Sprague Library, said Albert Wang was "highly professional and dedicated, he was willing to go to extremes to help people."

Wang, 57, died of an undisclosed illness on August 12, 1992 after being in a coma for several months. Wang began working in the library in 1977, and was Head of the Periodical Department since August 1976.

Born in Taiwan in 1935, Jones-Trent said Wang came to the United States during the 1950's. He received his M.S. in Library Science from Drexel University in 1969. He then attended Rutgers, New Brunswick Graduate School of Library Service and received his M.A. in Library Science. He later got his M.A. in education from New York University.

Jones-Trent said Wang was "a kind person and a good librarian."

Assistant Football Coach dies at 78

After 11 seasons as an Assistant Football Coach here at MSC, and 40 plus years coaching at other schools in New Jersey, Coach Anthony "Nap" Naporano, 78, died on June 12, 1992.

"His whole life was dedicated to his family and football," said Head Football Coach Enrico Giancola who worked with Naporano. "He loved people and was always willing to help," he said.

His wife Marie Naporano, said "He was just a good man all the way."

Naporano was recruited by Newt Rockney to play for Notra Dame, but Rockney died before Naporano began and he transferred to Rutgers in New Brunswick instead. Naporano spent many years coaching at Barringer High School in Newark, and was the first athletic director at Montvale High School before coming to MSC.

All Langer of Sports Information said, "He was always positive, a pleasure to be around. He helped players not only to become better football players, but better people."

Fred Hill, Head Baseball Coach of Rutgers New Brunswick and former MSC coach, said Naporano was inducted into both the Football High School Hall of Fame and the Newark High School Hall of Fame. "He was an outstanding member of our staff while I was at MSC. He was our freshman coach, he did a wonderful job preparing our freshmen for the varsity team," said Hill.
Junior dies from complications stemming from cancer cure
by Maureen McGowan

"She always wanted to go down to the shore," said Michael Giardina about his good friend Danielle LaFaso, "the one thing I wanted to do when she got better was take her to the shore." LaFaso, 20, never got to go, she died April 24, 1992 from complications stemming from a bone marrow transplant operation.

Her aunt, Carol LaFaso, said Danielle was diagnosed with Non-Hodgkins Lymphoma in 1990. "When she found out she had cancer, she was in the middle of a semester," said her mother. "She was so determined to finish, she often went to class with high fevers and being very sick. She finally had to take in-completes and finish the classes during the summer. She did most of the work on her own, but she made the Dean's List." Danielle had Kemo Therapy treatments, and the cancer went into remission for two months. She then required a bone marrow transplant, where her own healthy marrow was re-injected into her body. She was placed in I.C.U. for several weeks "when something went wrong," said Mrs. LaFaso. "It is ironic that it was the operation that killed her not the cancer which she fought so bravely."

Danielle, a junior, had not declared a major, but had two minors, pre-law and paralegalism. "She loved school," her mother said, "Her professor would call the house to see if she was doing that. Meant a lot to her." Giardina said, "She had a very positive outlook on the whole thing (her illness) up until the very end, then I think she knew something was wrong." He said she was very open, straightforward, and thoughtful, "She always thought of her mother and her family, even while she was dying."

Welcome to the first official column written by staff members of Career Services. Every week we'll be writing about issues of concern to first year students, those nearing graduation and those in graduate school. Upcoming columns will cover topics ranging from how to deal with family pressure when selecting a major or career direction to why people who get interviews still don't get hired. Please feel free to write us a note about issues that concern you and mail it to or drop it off in Career Services, Student Center Annex 104. All of us are aware that the recession is having a negative effect on the job market. Even in a weak job market, however, smart networking has always been an effective way of finding what we need and most of us do it without much thought. We call on our contacts to find the "best" professor, someone who needs a roommate, and the kindest dentist. The same technique can be used effectively to find a job, and when times are bad, it is a technique that all students should plan to use. Think of your network as a kind of web made up of people you know and other areas of your life that are less important, why not try it when you are searching for something that really matters?

College students in particular should learn to network early in order to ease career decision making and later job hunting. "Early" means as soon as you can. If you are first starting college, your network can help you get information about what it's like to work in fields you want to explore. Using your network can also help you to find a summer job to test out whether your interest in becoming a journalist, for example, is real. If you are ready to graduate, your network can help you learn about what is going on inside organizations and companies. Such information can also lead you to the professional position you want. Wherever you are in your education, start building your network now.

1. Identify by creating a list of every person you know or have known. Include all high school and college friends, relatives, teachers, past and present employees, doctors, dentists, people whom you see briefly but regularly (such as your dry cleaner or minister or rabbi). Try to list at least a hundred names.
2. Contact each of these people to let them know that you are interested in gathering information about what it's like to be a(n) , and you're wondering if they know anyone you can talk to.
3. Focus your request on the need for information rather than the need for a job. Obviously your barber can not hire you for a job in advertising, but there is every likelihood that one of his customers will hire you in that field and might be glad to talk to you.
4. Career Services can offer you 375 alumni who will be glad to talk to you. Working in a wide variety of settings and occupations, these good people understand the value of networking and have volunteered to help MSC students gather information about the world of work. Stop in the office to call these alums.
5. Once you have a contact's name, be sure to have a prepared list of questions to ask which will help you to learn about the careers you are exploring. Our next column will provide you with a list of questions to use when you are interviewing for information. But, if you want to get started immediately, come to the office and ask for the list.

Welcome back, I suppose. Rumors of my graduation have been greatly exaggerated. So again, I bring you this column of bitter, hallucinogenic, self-absorbed humor every other week (they give me a week off to pollute my body). To wrap up last year, for those of you who dropped in, alas, the apocalypse did not come as expected. Also, although I spied the enchanting girl with the china doll’s face and puffy curly hair at Leilapoloelaza, my sources have reported that she has probably transferred off of our mundane mountain of mud. Such is life. However pleasant and invigorating your first week of school may have been... DO NOT BE POOLED!! Your defense mechanisms should be on high alert in September. You will be coaxed into believing that your 8 o'clock class is supposed to last 3 hours will always get out 2 hours and 45 minutes early. Those exciting and thought provoking lectures in Anatomy of the Platypus will become as withered and dry as a saline cracker as soon as you get to the chapter on living disease. Various administrative puppets will make you steadfastly believe that they are your best buddies:

"Hi, I'm Dean Martin! Please to meet you, come talk to me anytime."

Surprise! This will not be the case once you get busted for throwing domesticated animals from the 10th floor of Bohn Hall. And certainly your dreams of obtaining a 4.0 this semester will be quickly dashed and discarded once you come to the startling realization that it is far easier to lift a beer to the mouth than a pen to paper...

Every year, around this time, some hapless student will fall victim to a disease that afflicts even the strongest of minds. Acute Involuntary Howsummer Syndrome, as it is referred to in the medical kingdom, strikes young adults between the ages of 18-25 and turns them into blubbering, drooling, nose-picking idiots. Last year, some guy flipped out completely. Seems about a dozen victim to a disease that afflicts even the strongest of minds. Last year, some guy flipped out completely. Seems about a dozen... Do you want to know about MY summer?!? It sucked!! It blew ANAL VAPORS! I sweated like a wanthog! I ran out of deodorant! I ate rotten club steak and got diarrhea!! And so on. Word will get around.

The last thing to recognize about this time of the year is the apparent abundance of wide-eyed perky students. The Platypus will become a medieval jousting festival in the student center quad sometime in October. They're going to pit the perkiest Freshman (Oh ma Gawd) against the most burnt out senior (Daunoude). The object being, of course, to see which jouster can plunge his lance clear through the others body, causing as much blood and bodily organs to be spewn across the grassy knoll.

Books in Vegas and Atlantic City have already set the odds at 3 to 1 in favor of the burnt senior. Traditional logic holds that the senior won't be able to keep his jelly-like body erect long enough for the freshman to spear him. The perky one will get so excited over this fact that he'll stab himself. Otherwise, these first blissful days of school should hold enough excitement for any Freshman to brown his undies. Before you know it, it will be Christmas, then Spring Break, Graduation, some stinking job, marriage, kids, retirement and death. Dig that.

CAMPUS: The Community Speaks

Due to the financial situation of MSC, if there was a significant increase in tuition would you transfer to another college?

I'm an incoming student. I think I will stay to see how it is.

Jannis Wong, Freshman, Biology

Yes, it would be a turnover and would upset me, I think it would make people change their minds.

Daniel Cezubiara, Sophomore, Industrial Technology

No, it's not that expensive compared to other campuses. Also, it's convenient, because I work near here.

What is this world coming to?

Abortion is a woman's issue, not the government's

IRON HEEL

BY CHRISTINA TISCHIO

In a few months from now, women will be making one of the most important choices for themselves and the next generation of women to come. They will be choosing whether or not to elect a government that will have power to control their bodies with laws concerning abortion. The basis of this decision is commonly mistaken for whether or not the fetus is a "baby" or potential life. This is not the argument. It is the decision whether or not to give the government, a distant and judgemental institution in itself, the right to choose probably the most personal decision a woman will ever make in her life, the choice whether or not to give birth to a child. And that decision belongs to her.

The Republicans are inspecting their religious and moral objectives into this situation. Religion has no business being placed within State affairs since this country was built on the premise that not everyone is required to believe in the same religion or set of values. Instead, the issue is about rights of a citizen and the only citizens involved during a pregnancy is the mother and the father if he wishes to be involved. But the ultimate decision is up to the woman because it is her body that is involved in the final analysis. I'm sure that Bush would be too busy brown nosing his bourgeois cronies to attend difficult adoption proceedings or really not care that a woman had died needlessly because of her self-induced "miscarriage" because of an unwanted pregnancy.

The idea of handing over power of yourself is an awesome one. It is practically what we do every four years. We decide, out of the selection that is offered, who should take care of us, of our elderly, our choices on defense against hostile countries, of taxes and jobs, issues one step removed from us. But we don't elect an official to decide who we marry, or where we can work. We don't need permission to have a baby. Anybody can have sex, anyone is allowed to get pregnant. It's our life, it's our responsibility of how it will turn out.

The Democrats, Clinton and Gore, support the idea of personal rights in many sectors. On the more liberal side, they allow personal issues to be just that, personal, and take up their time, hopefully, doing something to allow this country to succeed and remain a powerful, influential force worldwide.

Roos and Wade is a milestone for women's equality in society. The woman who pressed forward to affirm her right to a child should be commended. She did more than free herself from an oppressed society, she set a precedent allowing any woman from that time on to walk a clearer path toward equality in a male-dominated world. If that judgement is overthrown, it is more likely to be a higher price for illegal abortions. It is a statement that sets women back more than two decades. It conceivably states that we are not equal, that we aren't responsible enough, intelligent enough to decide how we feel individually about abortion so the choice is no longer ours. We are made to fit the position of a child and we cannot afford to be in that position anywhere else in this society.

When the election rolls around and it is your turn in line for that little curtain box, remember, do you want your future in your hands or in the hands of someone who doesn't even know you.

Vote Democratic. Then all the decisions will be up to you.
New food service, same old gripes

I am taking computer keyboard in hand to alert your readers, as if most of them didn’t know, to the serious situation involving the “new” food service company and their performance already this year.

I was fortunate enough to have experienced the “service” provided by Woods Service and was gratified to know that the college had hired someone else. My joy continued this summer when I enjoyed several palatable barbeque-style lunches during the freshmen orientations. It was at that time of lunches during the freshmen orientations. It was at that time that a roll which Gestsky would have done a number with was “fresh” as well as trying to convince me that my chicken was not burnt but rather “blackened” like they do down in Louisiana.

The food at these orientations was good. Fine. Although I live off campus, I actually considered investing in a meal card. I am here at night, so why not join my friends in Blanton for dinner. They almost got me. Almost, that is, until I happened to find myself on the way to dinner in Blanton on August 31.

To begin, I noticed some changes as I entered the line. First, plastic silverware! As if that weren’t enough, plastic plates! Is Aldan going to threaten my children’s future with their non-biodegradable garbage because they can’t get someone to wash dishes? Besides, if they plan to charge $5.25 for non-residents they should, at the very least, provide a “real” set up! On to the food. The “selection” was a “chicken cheese thing” which was by all means, aptly named. This was served with your choice of those small skinless potatoes, carrots, or spinach. Yum-Yum. Because of the understaffing under staffing, there was only one line for the preceding delicacies, even though there were two “stations” with the same items. The other choice was some sort of pasta at the end of the counter with a selection of sauce, with or without meat. To say that this pasta was oily would be an insult to anyone who had the displeasure of eating it. Not to mention the manner in which it was served. “Next,” was heard from the unhappy cafeteria lady as she threw a handful, literally, by hand, of the well-oiled pasta to my plate followed by a cheery (not!) “Sauce?” I couldn’t be too upset, though. They ran out of it around six.

I had arrived at 5:45 and was more than ready to leave by six. There was no soup. The salad bar was, kindly, in disarray to say the least. When I asked for a roll to sop up my oil with, I was given half a French roll! The long ones! The under staffing, the far less than palatable food, the service of said food, the lack of supplies to keep from running out, and the general mess all around the cafeteria brings up one word as far as I am concerned, pathetic!

In closing, I would like to say I feel sorry for all the poor residents of this campus who have been doped and will continue to be until the service remains the same. I hope for them that it does improve or that I am unaware of some circumstances that were beyond the control of Aldan on the 31. But, at least I can pluck down my five bucks and get a decent meal on real plates with real silverware at almost any local diner.

New food service vows it’s committed to excellence

We appreciate the opportunity afforded to participate in the open forum session of the S.G.A. meeting this afternoon. We also appreciate the candor, which was used by students to voice their concerns. It is through on going dialog with the S.G.A. as well as other campus organizations that we can achieve the type of food service program desired by Aldan Dining Services and MSC.

The primary focus of dining service is to assure that we have open lines of communication with the campus community. It is only through this interaction that we can be assured that each individual need is being met. It is mandated to every member of our management team and each individual employee that all customer concerns be addressed immediately. To achieve this mandate, it is imperative that the campus community communicate directly with us at the time a concern arises.

...it is imperative that the campus community communicate directly with us at the time a concern arises. To delay voicing the concern may cause the problem to go unnoticed. We are committed to serving each and every patron as a valid customer, and are available at any time to meet. Each student and every other patron is paramount to our success.

The Management and Staff of Aldan Dining Services are proud to be the providers of your dining service program. We are pleased with our beginning and yet we also recognize the areas in which improvements must be made. In particular we had hoped that the Rathskeller construction, by MSC would have been completed prior to September, thus reducing the long lines at the pizza, grill and deli stations in the Student Center Cafeteria. We are working diligently to reduce this service difficulty, and ask for your patience and understanding during this process.

Daniel Leastman
President, Aldan Dining Services

Keep MSC clean!

The students at MSC are a bunch of effin’ slobs. You’ll throw yourself in front of a tree to stop progress, but you won’t throw your trash in a receptacle. What a bunch of hippocrates. As I look around the quad, on the second day of classes, all I can see is our ecosystem going down the drain. If you can’t keep a college campus as small as ours clean, chances are the world doesn’t have a chance. Take some pride in your school by walking two feet to the trash can and disposing of it the right way. Thanks.

Moshing in the Quad
"Hey buddy, that's my foot"

by Anthony Floreno

So I'm walking down the back alley of the Student Center (you know, where WMSC is) and who should turn the corner but the Dead Milkmen. So I walk up to Joe the guitarist and say, "Hey, you're in the Dead Milkmen... Wow." On September 2, The Dead Milkmen along with special guests Sweet Lizard Illtet played what turned out to be a free great concert. Illtet came just after 7:30 pm and played a free concert. Illtet came through with their latest album, Talcum, Dave Blood, and Dean Clean has remained the same since their 1985 debut Big Lizard and My Back Yard. After a brief set change, the Dead Milkmen came on around nine. The lineup of Rodney Anonymous, Joe Jack Talcum, Dave Blood, and Dean Clean has remained the same ever since their 1985 debut Big Lizard and My Back Yard. The Milkmen's 23 song set included new numbers such as "The Conspiracy Song" off their latest album, Soul Rotation and "I Love You / I Hate You" and "If You Love Someone Set Them on Fire," both from Metaphysical Graffiti. The set also had old favorites like "Beach Party Vietnam," "Takin' Retards to the Zoo," "Bitchin' Camaro," and of course their biggest hit, "Punk Rock Girl.

The most interesting part of the show was when Rodney read one of his short stories. An interesting tale of Jerry Lewis and the cure for MD (that's all I can say). The show ended with one encore, a cover of the Yardbird's classic, "Shapes of Things." A fitting end, lyrically speaking, to a great show. Yes, it's true the Dead Milkmen and Sweet Lizard Illtet played in the Blanton/Bohn quad. Yes, it's true that about 200 people showed up (according to most estimates). Yes, Class One Concerts President Jim Lloyd was seen in the pit. All these things are true. Forget Ziggy Marley. Forget C & C Music Factory. These two bands proved you don't need a million dollar record deal to know how to rock...
Ramones back with Mondo Bizarro

by Anthony Fiorenzo

After 18 years and 16 albums, The Ramones are still true to the punk-rocker ethos. On this latest album, nearly all of the songs are three minutes or less. In fact, "Poison Heart," the first single off the album, clocks the longest song at 4:04.

Mondo Bizarro is The Ramones first studio album in three years and the first one on Radioactive Records, after 17 years with Sire Records. The newest member, C. Jay Ramone is on bass, as the replacement for longtime bassist Dee Dee. Founding members Joey on vocals, Johnny on guitar, and Marky on drums round out the well-known line-up.

The Ramones open up with "Censorshitt," a blistering and scathing attack on the Parents Music Resource Center (PMRC). With the oft-repeated refrain, "Aw Tipper come on! Ain't you been getting it out? Just listen to Ozzy, Zappa, and me! We'll show you what it's like to be free," this song is sure to be banned by someone.

"Cabbies on Crack" pokes fun at the driving (in)ability of New York City cabbies, while "Heidi is a Headcase" is straightforward Ramones in the "Sheena is a Punk Rocker" vein. Of course there are classic Ramones songs like "Anxiety" and "We'll Show You What It's Like to Be Free," which the Ramones play true to the original.

Three chord, knock you down and kick you on the floor rock n' roll. Ramones fans old and new will love this latest from the Grateful Dead of the punk scene.
At a loss for words
by Clift Anticevic

After hearing Naked Soul's new e.p., Seed, I was immediately struck by another striking revelation: There are too many record labels. I had always believed that the more record companies there were the more artists could get their message across to people. I called it the great formula for art and the music business. Naked Soul have proved me wrong. Some bands are too many record labels. There are too many record labels.

permitted organizations like the masonic, teamsters and even governments, thus the explanation of the symbol on the back of the dollar bill.

What did I really find out about these guys?

Dave, Dean, Rocky and Joe have been together for nine years and have produced six albums. This foursome from the Lorraine Region of Southern France has worked with many bands. When asked who they have opened for Rocky replied, "It is not who we have opened for but who has opened for us.....You name a band and we have opened for them...including The Red Hot Chili Peppers and Faith No More". Guns and Roses even opened for them when they were still known as Five Guns West.

When asked what their major influences were Rocky replied, "It is not so much as who we were influenced by as what we were influences of." The Irish Folk Choirs are among the musicians admired by the Dead Milkmen. They are also fans of U2 since they were planning to see their concert that weekend.

The Dead Milkmen are not currently working on any new material. After MSC they will be heading to Maxwells in Hoboken for two shows and another in Asbury Park.

the good and bad about these two points?

MIKE: It's like, you know, in the studio you...put it together at a piece at a time. And, you know, you get a psychedelic mindset and a lotta cool equipment. You kinda build it up like a...sculpture of trippin' all night and buggin' out. And then live, you know, you'll be smokin' a blunt, you get it on stage...and you get your thing together. You get the audience, people jammin'...and you lose your stage...you know...totally becoming involved. It's more like a lotta-type, right now, on the one trip. It's never the same twice. So they're both great. We love 'em.

DAVE: Did you ever want to look into the future of playing and recording as it is?

MIKE: Yeah, yeah man. There's just so many ways to get it out on tape. I mean, when you think about it, it's pretty much infinite.

DAVE: Did you ever get lost in the studio, like you can give them a little more reverber here, a little echo there? Did you ever run into those problems, or you just kinda...play and let it be?

MIKE: Well, you know, it depends on the song. Sometimes you just kick it out live and that's it. Often we just...mess around for as long as we can...and just kinda have a good times.

CHRIS: Speaking of the music...do you have any major influences that you can think of that really shaped the band?

MIKE: Definitely. Public Enemy, P-Funk, The Wallers, Led Zeppelin, Black Sabbath, Pink Floyd...Bad Brains.

CHRIS: I think Public Enemy is probably...one of the most influential bands of all time. (A round of "Yeeeah boyz" quickly ensues.)

MIKE: They got it. Interns of commercial music, they are definitely the ones who are running it. Definitely.

DAVE: Commercial music...what do you think about it? Do you think it's just success? I mean, a lot of times, bands are underground and become very successful, for instance, the Red Hot Chili Peppers. Could you see yourself playing a stadium someday...and having your own little display at Tower Records? It could happen...you're on Warner Bros.

MIKE: I think it's all about making money. Because playing for 20,000 people I don't think feels any better than playing for...200, or by yourself, in terms of the music and in terms of...somewhere, the music picture. But you make a lot of money that way, and money is power.

DAVE: Well, it's inevitable. You get successful, the money comes in...

MIKE: Maybe. You gotta be on the money goes out. Like Biz Markie...his career was destroyed by that cat Gilbert O'Sullivan who sued him. I don't know what he's gonna do now. Because the business thing...they get you man. They put you down, they keep you down. There's so many groups out there. I mean, there's just so much music, and the pop culture wants you to think that what's on MTV and the radio is the only thing there, when it's only a tiny percentage of it.

DAVE: Would it bother you if your fans said you sold out?

MIKE: We probably already have fans who think we sold out, because we used to be into...much more avant-garde stuff than we do now. So it's relative. Yeah, I'm sure I'd be bothered by it some times.

DAVE: What was your first experience with...standing there saying "Wow man, these people are freaking out over me, and I'm not even on stage!"

MIKE: Probably the first time...I was on stage in one of our first gigs, and I took my shirt off and all my younger sister's friends...these girls were like screaming!

DAVE: Do you get into that whole fan thing?

MIKE: Well, you know, it depends on the day, it depends on the mood. It feels good, a lot. But when you get down to it, it's not gonna make your life.

DAVE: Do you have any shows you want to just plug away out here?

MIKE: (Pauses) We're taking a couple of weeks off so the percussion player Wylie (Wirth) can go to Amsterdam and hang out with his lover for a while. And then when he gets back...I think we're gonna play the Limelight on Tuesday the 22nd with this band Arrogant Response...and then nothing else local right now that I can think of.

CHRIS: Are you going to be cutting any more studio albums or live albums, any kinda stuff coming out in the stores?

MIKE: Not in the near...switches gears.I think we're gonna tour with B a s c h e a d, hopefully. Man, those guys are kickin'. And then, we're working in the studio...we...we got some stuff cookin'.

DAVE: Do you find that touring makes you better as far as the studio goes? Does it kinda rub off? Or does it just make you tired?

MIKE: We always make the record after a two-month vacation and then we go on tour and then we can play. Because when you don't play for a couple of months, man, you lose it. So...when you play every night, you're pretty rockin'.

CHRIS: Once last word...Just then, Derek Pinkham, radio personality and station sex-god walks in...

DEREK: Can I ask a question?

DAVE: Sure, go ahead.

DEREK: If you were veal, how much per pound would you be?

MIKE: It depends on if I'm subsidized by the government! (Laughter)

Perfecto! Men's hoops returns from Spain undefeated

by Keith A. Idee

When the MSC men's basketball team headed for Malaga, Spain on its nine-day, three-game tour, no one expected the Red Hawks to return home with three victories. However, the eight-man Red Hawk squad did just that.

The trip was arranged by former MSC guard Carlos Gaspar, who now plays for Club Candido in Spain. MSC President Irvin Reid and Athletic Director Gregory Lockard accompanied Head Coach Nick DelTufo and his Red Hawks on the trip.

MSC began its three-game set with C.B. Marabella, a semi-professional team from the city of Marabella. The Red Hawks fell behind by 15 points in the first half, but managed to battle back, as this one went right down to the wire. With five seconds left, MSC was down 72-71 and had sophomore Lee Mullins at the foul line. Mullins hit the first free-throw to tie the game, but missed the second. The missed free-throw was rebounded by forward Chris Jackson, who missed his shot-attempt. Then, in dramatic fashion, the high-flying Mullins grabbed the rebound and sank a three-foot jumper at the buzzer to give the Red Hawks a 74-72 victory.

The second victory of the trip came a little easier for MSC. The Red Hawks pounded Club Candido (Gaspar's team) 109-83. The real highlights came after this game was played on the court. The players from both teams exchanged greetings and gifts. Also, Club Candido presented President Reid with a silver plaque as a token of their appreciation for having the Red Hawks in Spain.

The third and final victory came as the biggest surprise of the trip. MSC defeated Malaga, a Spanish professional team, by the score of 84-73. Malaga was 16-2 prior to the loss and has an average height of 6'6". However, the Red Hawks used their quickness to jump out to a 15-2 lead in the first half and never looked back.

Although the three victories were good signs for MSC basketball, the players got much more out of their voyage. They learned about a foreign place, a different language, and an assortment of customs and cultures. It was truly a unique experience and an opportunity that most basketball players never get.
Women's soccer seeks to reach playoffs in just third year

by Michael Frasco

After just two seasons as a varsity sport, women's soccer at MSC has made great strides and is not looking back.

Although the team finished its inaugural season at 4-10-1, head coach Peter Latartara and his players turned things around in 1991 as the team finished at 8-7. As this season gets underway, the Red Hawks, who play in the ECAC, are looking to better that mark and perhaps reach the playoffs.

But don't expect the team to improve by playing easy opponents. That's not Latartara's style. The third year coach is a firm believer in scheduling challenging opponents. Of the 17 regular season games the team will play, six will consist of nationally-ranked opponents.

To improve upon last year's mark, Latartara recruited some new faces. Maybe the most notable is freshman forward Renee Hanaka. "She has incredible tenacity and speed to go along with a great shooting touch," Latartara said.

Another highly regarded newcomer is sophomore goalie Jessica Vankat. "Jessica is a good goalie and has done very well so far," Latartara said.

Concerning the teams overall strengths, Latartara said, "We have uniformly good skills (good passing) and have added a little speed on the attack. This will make the team more balanced on defense and in front."

Peter Latartara
On the other hand, Latartara noted the unit needs to improve on its transition from attacking to defending. He said, "We need selflessness. We must discharge the responsibilities on all 11 players."

If Latartara can get that kind of cooperation from his players, his goals of the team playing better each time out and reaching the playoffs will certainly remain within reach.

New field hockey coach optimistic despite thin roster and young team

by Keith A. Idec

Barbara Brown accepted a tough position when she was named MSC's head field hockey coach last week. The former Montclair High coach took over a team that went 1-11-1 in 1991 and had only nine players on its roster going into yesterday's opener with C. W. Post. Nine players is the minimum amount that a team can play with according to NCAA regulations.

Although the team started out with 15 players on its roster, six players are no longer active due to either injury or academic ineligibility. "We may set the record for the least amount of players on an NCAA field hockey roster," Brown said.

Despite the lack of players, Brown remains optimistic. "We have four talented freshmen, and five sophomores whom I expect solid contributions from. We should have a full squad by the third game of the season. Also, we'll get leadership from returning captain Mariann Duva."

Since being named coach, Brown has developed a close relationship with her small, young team. She has stressed that a positive attitude is a major key to success. "There is no room for negativity in this program," she said.

Brown has been encouraged by the continuing interest in MSC field hockey. "Almost everyday someone new comes out for the team and they have shown that they have some impressive skills," Brown also has a surprise player whom she feels will be "a key player." To avoid putting pressure on the walk-on, Brown chose not to name her.

The young coach comes to MSC with plenty of high school coaching experience. Prior to her two-year stint at Montclair High, Brown coached at Paramus Catholic, Butler, and Madison. She took the Red Hawk job because she has come to MSC to work on her Master's degree. Thus, the resignation of former field hockey coach Debbie Ballway came at a perfect time for Brown, who graduated from the University of Delaware in 1984.

After moving around from job to job, Brown believes she has finally found a home at MSC.

Men's soccer seeks repeat of last season's magic

by Keith A. Idee

The MSC's men's soccer team enjoyed a high level of success in 1991, head coach Rob Chesney's first season at the helm. The Red Hawks finished at 15-4 (7-2 NJAC), and made their third consecutive trip to the NCAA tournament.

Chesney hopes that his team can achieve that type of success in his second season, but that could be a tall order to fill. The squad has lost six seniors to graduation, including stars Tom Estes, Gus Moramarco, and John Rubiniello, who has returned as an assistant coach for the '92 campaign. This has given the team a very different look.

Since 1988, MSC has produced a record of 61-20-4. The major component to that success has been excellent defense. Last season, the Red Hawks tied a school record by allowing only 13 goals all season. This season the defense will be anchored by All-American Dom Bucci. The senior captain from Edison was last season's Defensive MVP. "Once again, we will look for Edison to lead our team from the back. He is probably the best sweeper in Division III and that says a lot because there are a lot of talented players," said Chesney.

Quarterbacking the Red Hawks will be third-year starter Steve Giancola. After learning the system freshman year and a disappointing sophomore season, Giancola now needs to step up forward as a leader. He has two exceptional receivers in sophomores Tremaine Witterbody and Tyrone Rolls, so clearly Giancola is the determining factor because if he plays well, the offense should play well.

Furthermore, if Giancola passes well, defenses will not be able to key solely on Walker.

Of course, Giancola will also be able to guide the offense if he gets adequate protection from his offensive line. This poses an unanswered question for us this year," Giancola said. "The offensive line is limited in terms of game experience. Only Don Forbial (right guard) has come back from last season. As a result, the line will consist mainly of underclassmen. Giancola said, "These guys are fairly good condition and that's a tribute to the players responding to last year's 5-5 record."

Giancola has also been pleased with his team's overall work ethic in pre-season camp. The 10th year coach said, "The players have tried to learn and understand the concepts. It is now a question of repetition and putting things together in time well enough to win."

Defensively, the Red Hawks will rely heavily on senior tailback John Walker, who certainly knows how to put together yardage. The All-American candidate has compiled 2,672 yards over three seasons and is just 271 yards shy of becoming MSC's all-time leading rusher.

However, what makes Walker even more dangerous aside from running the ball, is his versatility as a ball carrier, catch passer, punt and kickoff return as well. Giancola aptly put it, "His versatility as far as all the skills that a tailback can do probably ranks him among the best that we've had."

Giancola, his coaching staff and team worked to improve upon aside from the offensive line, was the kicking game.

"I think our kicking game will be freshman Scott Rubiniello, who narrowly beat out Darryl Pelligrino, a junior transfer from Rutgers. Concerning this battle Giancola said, "Either one of those two could step in and kick for us right now. So I feel extremely confident the kicking game will be a solid one."

Despite this team being young, Giancola feels his team has worked hard to prepare itself to win. He believes that factor can be the difference between his team and another football team. Perhaps the added talent the Red Hawks possess will, in fact, make the difference. The only question that remains then, is have the Red Hawks prepared and worked hard enough to do it in time for this Saturday?

Women's soccer seeks repeated of last season's magic

by Michael Frasco

As the Red Hawk women's soccer team embarks on the 1992 campaign, two things are certain: the team is young and small. The Saturday's opener against perennial NCAA powerhouse Cornell State will be a significant test for the Red Hawks. It will determine if the team, with its abundance of youth, has arrived as a cohesive unit or if it may need a few games to let maturity set in.

Last season, the Red Hawks were also a young and talented bunch, however after opening up with an 18-7 loss to Manhattan University, the team soon fell to 1-3 and continued with an up and down campaign, eventually finishing with a disappointing 5-5 record.

According to head coach Rick Giancola, last year's mediocre season was something the team soon learned from. "The squad has underachieved with a disappointing 5-5 record. What a question for us...I like what I see there, it just needs time to develop...to mature.

"Transitioning to the defensive line, the Red Hawks will look for sophomore noseguard Larry Thompson to be the focal point. Over the last three seasons Thompson has been consistent, registering 17 sacks and causing over 150 yards in losses to the opposition. These numbers just begin to show why Thompson is recognized as an All-American candidate this year. Thompson's presence on the line will be some new starters due to the losses of John Stoibe and Derrick Williams. Giancola said, "They're not veterans but they have the experience, so they will be our best bet."

Football looks to rebound from mediocrity '91 season

by Michael Frasco

The MSC's men's soccer team enjoyed a high level of success in 1991, head coach Rob Chesney's first season at the helm. The Red Hawks finished at 15-4 (7-2 NJAC), and made their third consecutive trip to the NCAA tournament. Chesney hopes that his team can achieve that type of success in his second season, but that could be a tall order to fill. "Once again, we will look for Edison to lead our team from the back. He is probably the best sweeper in Division III and that says a lot because there are a lot of talented players," said Chesney.

Bucci will be helped out defensively by junior Hugo Munoz (Bayonne/Hudson Catholic) and Ozzy Nuredin (W. Caldwell/Caldwell). These two players are highly skilled and have college soccer experience. Rounding out the defense will be juniors Melkeni Norigia (Hackensack/Hackensack) and Julio Cengerale (Paterson/Don Bosco Tech), sophomore Mario Batelli (Totowa/Patrick Valley) and Paul Peliuso (Garwood/Bearessy Regal). And red-shirt freshman Jimmy Reddy (EastRut) said Chesney. "The forwards will be led by senior tri-captain Guillermo Siles (Lima, Peru), who was named an Adidas Academic Regional All-American last season. "We are looking for Guillermo to step up as a real leader for us this year," said Chesney. Sophomore Erik Neubart (Livingston/Livingston) is expected to be a major contributor after showing promise as a freshman. "With a solid year of learning behind him, we feel he can score many goals this season," said Chesney. Other forwards who are expected to see playing time are freshmen Carlos Hamez out of Ridgewood Park and transfer Jim laGrande, who comes in as a freshman out of Goshen, New York.

Of these two Giancola said, "These guys should give us the stability we need to surround our defensive line a little bit so that what we might lack in terms of experience there, those guys might be able to pick it up for us."

The defensive backfield will be anchored by senior Duane Grade and junior Keith Smith both on the inside. The outside backfielders will consist of sophomore Mark Gatto and senior Dwayne Savage. Of these two Giancola said, "These guys should give us the stability we need to surround our defensive line a little bit so that what we might lack in terms of experience there, those guys might be able to pick it up for us."

Finally, the main concern Giancola, his coaching staff and team worked to improve upon aside from the offensive line, was the kicking game.

"I think our kicking game will be freshman Scott Rubiniello, who narrowly beat out Darryl Pelligrino, a junior transfer from Rutgers.
