TKE accused of violating hazing policy

by Kevin Colligan, Nancy Gannon and Maureen McGowan

Charges that TKE National Fraternity violated MSC’s hazing policy are being investigated by the Greek Council under the direction of the SGA attorney general. A hearing on the matter will be held on October 13 by the Greek Council Judicial Court.

According to Campus Police, the charges are also being investigated to determine if any criminal offenses took place.

TKE officials denied the charges.

The investigations were prompted by charges levied in an anonymous letter that TKE engaged in hazing during its last pledging cycle. Photographs allegedly supporting the charge accompanied the letter.

“What we did was done privately on a retreat. It was not hazing,” said TKE president Patrick Algieri.

Edward Martin, Dean of Student Affairs, said the pictures will most likely be presented to the Judicial Court.

The letter stated that the pictures were from the last spring. Algieri countered the allegation, stating the photographs were taken at a brotherhood retreat that took place in a Glen Ridge home in the spring of 1991.

Dean Martin said, “Our concern is when the activity took place.”

Campus Police officer serves as Reid's chauffer

by Cliff Annicell

MSC President Irvin Reid utilizes a campus security officer as his personal chauffeur and messenger despite budget crunches and personnel cutbacks.

Senior Security Officer Jim Higgins, 43, of the campus police regularly serves as a personal driver for President Reid when he is required to go off-campus for “official duties”. Higgins also personally delivers the agenda of the monthly board of trustees meeting to each individual member of the board at their homes, a drive that sometimes takes up to six hours and includes a trip to Trenton.

Higgins is paid to perform these duties, including overtime when necessary.

“It’s been set up like this long before I came here,” Higgins said, “The word comes down from the president and I go. I’m just following orders. I’m the low man on the totem pole.”

According to the Director of Campus Police and Security, Phillip Calitre, Reid’s use of a security officer in a capacity outside of an officer’s official “mission” is nothing new.

“These are duties inherited through other presidents. When the president has to take care of official business, we provide a security officer to drive him.” Calitre said.

Despite the shrinking of the campus police force from 28 down to 23 officers, Calitre doesn’t feel that the occasional loss of one officer weakens campus safety as a whole.

Hazing polices of NJ state, MSC and TKE

by Mlle Cappadona

Total nudity at any time, paddle swats and pledges awakened time and again during the night are just a few of the examples of hazing according to MSC hazing guidelines.

New Jersey state law defines hazing as follows:

A) A person is guilty of hazing, a disorderly persons offense, if, in connection with initiation of applicants to or members of a student or fraternal organization, he knowingly or recklessly organizes, promotes, facilitates or engages in any conduct, other than competitive athletic events, which places or may place another person in danger of bodily injury.

B) A person is guilty of aggravated hazing, a crime of the fourth degree, if he commits an act prohibited in subsection (A) which results in serious bodily injury to another person.

MSC has its own hazing guidelines set up. The college defines hazing as any action taken or situation created intentionally, to create:

a) physical or psychological discomfort
b) embarrassment
c) harassment
d) paddling in any form

INTERNATIONAL

In International news, according to the Wall Street Journal, South Africa is starting to take steps toward democracy. They freed scores of prisoners while under orders given to them by the African National Congress. Perhaps overlooked in the masses, among the free were three ANC members accused of killing whites and an already convicted Neo-Nazi found guilty of staying a black man.

Gorbachev refused to appear in Russia’s Constitutional Court. He felt the precedings would exploit him since the Court is determining the fate of the Communist Party, the same party he once headed.

Over the weekend in Tajikistan, hundreds were killed as Central Asia moved closer to a civil war. These actions prompted Russian troops to reinforce themselves with more fleets of troops being stationed within the country.

And in Germany, cancellations of the 50th Anniversary Celebrations for the first firing of Hitler’s V-2 rocket were felt by the entire country. This action came under pressure and strong intervention in Germany and from Great Britain.

NATIONAL

In National news, H. Ross Perot spoke out in the The New York Times Business section about how he would handle economics. Although never breaking down the question with an answer consisting of any numbers, Perot’s opinion is, “Reduce spending and generate more revenues... It’s that simple.” He is in favor of raising the tax bracket to 33 percent from the already 31 percent and reducing deductions off tax for persons owning very expensive items such as houses, cars or property. A major tax adjustment, he proposes, is the 50 cent a gallon tax on gasoline, while fully eliminating the deduction an employer accepts providing fully paid insurance. He also states that by cutting back 10 percent on all discretionary budget items will save the country 23 billion dollars. Though he fails to list what those items would be.

In other National news, would you guess the highest amount of women’s labor percentage would be? Well, according to the Wall Street Journal, Minnesota ranked very high with a percentage of 67 percent and Alaska coming in second with 65 percent. Alabama and Louisiana finished lowest with only a little over half, 52 percent.

LOCAL

In Regional News, tropical rousing Danielle coupled with a strong pressure system caused strong northeast winds which ravaged the Mid-Atlantic coastline. Winds up to 35 MPH and gusts up to 45 MPH or more smashed the churning ocean over sea walls and beaches. On Fire Island, 40 feet of beach was lost the first night of the storm.

Police in New York City stormed City Hall despite the fact that their duty is to stop such an occurrence. Off duty police were rallying to protest a proposed Civilian Complaint Review Board. Several thousand police approached City Hall without being halted by on duty police officers.

Proposals by the N.J. Department of Environmental Protection and Energy to support two separate bills proposed by Democratic Senator, Bill Bradley, were offered before a Senate subcommittee. The bills proposed to add parts of the Delaware and Great Egg Harbor rivers to our National Wild and Scenic Life system. Temperatures were about 2.5 degrees below normal this summer in Newark. The coldest summer since 1965.

Crows cleared trees along Rt. 20 East in order to make way for a twenty foot concrete noise barrier. The 8.4 million dollar project is proposed to be 3,000 feet long and should be done by August of 1994.

Olympic swimmer speaks to youths in Panzer

by Michael Frasco

Olympic swimmer Ron Karnaugh was the guest speaker at the Newark Boys and Girls Club/Paterson YMCA Swimming Clinic at MSC’s Panzer Swimming Pool on Tuesday. Karnaugh was on hand to share his experiences from the 1992 Barcelona Olympic Games and to promote the importance of inner city swimming to 40 youngsters from both the Newark and Paterson Clubs.

The 26-year old from Maplewood, N.J. was a gold medalist at the 1991 Pan-American games and the number one qualifier at the 1992 Olympic trials in the 200 Individual Medley.

While in Barcelona, Karnaugh’s father suffered a heart attack and died during the opening ceremonies. He said, “I was prepared to have the swim of my life and I experienced a very devastating tragedy.”

Despite his loss, Karnaugh did compete in the 200 Individual Medley, but finished sixth. “Many people asked me, did it ever cross my mind to not swim and forfeit and go home? The answer is no, it never crossed my mind. I know deep in my heart that my father would’ve wanted me to compete no matter what happens to me.”

Although he said he was disappointed by his sixth-place finish, Karnaugh realized a much more important lesson as a result of his tragic experience, as well as the impact it had on the world. “This made me more sensitive to the basic human needs, seeing how everyone was reaching out to try to help me and how many people were touched by what had happened to me,” he said.

On Tuesday, Karnaugh reached out to give the kids some guidance and words of encouragement. He said, “I enjoyed being here today and sharing with the kids how I was able to pursue my dreams over the years.”

The Olympic also told the kids that setbacks such as the one he suffered with his father’s death, make the individual more determined.

Concerning his own situation, Karnaugh noted that part of what he learned from his ordeal he planned to apply in other areas of his life, such as pursuing a career as a physician. He is currently attending medical school in Newark.

His plans for the immediate future are to concentrate on his education, and he does plan on competing in the 1996 Olympics, to be held in Atlanta, Georgia. He said, “I plan on making the biggest comeback this country has ever seen. A lot of people think I’m finished, I’m going to medical school and it’s all over…in 1996 I will be back.”

Karnaugh will be 30 when the Atlanta Olympics take place, but he doesn’t consider that to be any factor. He said, “I’ll be 30, so I’ll get the older generation pumped up!”

The reason that he wants to give it another shot, is his not being satisfied with his performance. However, Karnaugh, despite all the adversity, did not overlook the thrill of competing in front of the world. He said, “On the whole, swimming in the Olympics, there’s nothing like it. There’s a lot of pride and it’s an honor to represent your country. I wanted to represent what America stands for in that we’re not quitters.”

Parking decal fee included in tuition bill

by Pam Colon

There was an addition to the tuition bills for the 1992 Fall semester which has caused mixed reaction from students.

According to MSC Business Office, the business office decided it might be easier for them as well as the students if the $25 parking fee be automatically added in on the tuition bills, considering that the parking decal application form is mailed with the bill. Students were not notified of this new addition.

“The form indicates that the fee was added on. If the students don’t realize what’s on the bill then we are not responsible,” Maristela said.

Some students who have cars and needed a decal felt it was easier with the fee added on, but some students did not.

Senior Celeste Narcisco said, “I don’t understand why a notice wasn’t sent out. I have been here for four years, every year I get my bill, I look at the total and pay the price. I figure the school knows what’s going on. The bill looked as it always did so why would I look twice? The funny part is, I don’t even have a driver’s license, never mind a car.”

Maristela said, “We are giving students the benefit of the doubt and if they come down to the business office they will be reimbursed,” Maristela said.

According to Maristela, students are driving to campus but not filling for a decal. Campus police went on a vehicle check and issued approximately $3000.00 in tickets to vehicles without decals. “I don’t understand why students would rather pay $10.00 every time they park without decals. ‘I don’t understand why students would rather pay $10.00 every time they park rather than pay one time $25.00 parking fee,” Maristela said.

Maristela wants the students to understand that they are not charging this fee “for the heck of it;” there is a purpose. It helps pay for the three new shuttle busses as well as parking facilities for the students and faculty.

“Instead of beating the system, why don’t the students work with us to provide a better service for everyone?” Maristela said.

According to the business office, approximately 2,000 students say they are not driving to campus and do not need a parking decal. Graduate students and part-time students are included in this amount, and insist that they are not driving to campus.

“Some of the students live in Harlot and other distant locations, is there a shuttle bus that we are unaware of that comes from there to here? How are these students getting to class?” Maristela said.

Many students that paid the fee and have not received their decal must go to the business office and fill out an application. According to the business office, “If a student did not receive a decal it is due to the fact that they did not fill out the form,” Maristela said.

place, for what reasons, and what changes in member development have taken place since then."

"None of this happens anymore. We must comply with our National's regulations," Algieri said, "Some of our more recent retreats have been held on campus in Partridge Hall." He added that the fraternity is under a new executive board. Algieri said that the men pictured were not pledges, but brothers. "It could be a guy that's been in for two years," he said. "It was a brotherhood bonding activity, we were playing games."

Najarian concurred, "They were all brothers. The event took place to release tension. It boosts everyone's morale. After the activity, I can still turn around and say, 'I love you, you're my brother.'"

According to New Jersey State law, MSC hazing statutes and the constitution of TKE, however, activities defined as hazing (see hazing guidelines) are prohibited for fraternity members as well as pledges.

MSC president Irvin Reid said, "We are keeping an open mind. We are giving the students the benefit of the doubt, but will uphold the policies of MSC."

Reid said the allegations are being examined on three levels:

- the Administration is conducting an investigation to determine whether there has been a violation of campus policy; the SGA, according to president Gouri Sadhwani, is conducting an investigation and TKE National will conduct an investigation.
- James Harris, Dean of Student Activities, said, "Clearly, to anyone who doesn't belong, some of the activities depicted are reasons for grave concern about the practices that continue within the organizations." He added, "Since hazing is illegal, we have no intentions of condoning or tolerating such behavior at this college."
- TKE member Chris Pontrelli, who said he is included among the photographs of blindfolded individuals, said he did not consider activities in which he engaged to be hazing. "I was not forced to do anything, I definitely did not eat anything foul, and I was not scared. I had total trust. I didn't regret it at all, but there are more effective ways, [to promote brotherly trust]" he said.

Pontrelli currently holds the position of "Hypophetes" in the MSC chapter of TKE and is in charge of all rituals, retreats and academics.

Algieri said the activities portrayed in the photographs were the result of brothers losing bets based on competitions that may have ranged from "board games to athletic events."

"The blindfolds," according to Algieri, "are for the whole trust thing. We did not force them to do anything." He also said the writing of letters and phrases on individuals photographed was, "just a goof - just a fake tattoo. It could be part of the competition. You have to have something tattooed on your body with a marker for the night."

Rich Adams, President of Greek Council, commented on the allegations. "Hazing is a problem that must be stopped. But it's been around for as long as fraternities and sororities have existed. Until people are seriously punished by the system for it, it's not going to stop," he said.

SGA president Gouri Sadhwani said, "[The fraternity] will be judged by their peers. They can empathize with them, or hold them up to certain standards."

TKE has issued a memo to all Greek organizations, explaining their situation and asking for support against what they called, "malicious accusations."
Members of TKE at what they state was a retreat, the brothers depicted are said to have agreed to the activities they took part in.

e) required/forced branding or tattooing
f) engaging in public stunts and buffoonery
g) morally degrading or humiliating games and activities
h) forced consumption of food, alcohol and/or any intoxicants
i) any activity that causes or results in public disturbance
j) any actions and/or activities that endanger the student, the university community, or the academic process
k) possession of firearms or other dangerous weapons on college property contrary to law
l) intentional damage to or destruction of college property or of property on college premises belonging to others
m) failure to comply with directions of the college officials and their authorized agents acting in the performance of their duties
n) any requirements by a member or pledge which compel another member or pledge to participate in any activity which is illegal, which is known by the compelling party to be contrary to an individual’s moral or religious beliefs, or which is contrary to the rules/regulations of the college
o) conduct that is made a crime by the criminal law of the State of New Jersey or the United States of America and takes place on college property or in the course of a college activity.

Also, hazing with or without the consent of a student, is prohibited by the college, and a violation of that prohibition renders both the person inflicting the hazing and the person submitting to the hazing, subject to discipline.

Aside from the state law and campus guidelines, many fraternities have their own rules and guidelines against hazing. Tau Kappa Epsilon’s (TKE) own hazing guidelines state:

Tau Kappa Epsilon believes that chapters, in planning their new member education programs, should use the findings of scientific research in training and discipline methods. The applicable findings should be publicized in a new member policy by each chapter.

All forms of hazing are forbidden by the Fraternity. Hazing is defined as any action taken or situation created, intentionally, on or off college or fraternity premises, to produce mental or physical discomfort, embarrassment, ridicule, or possibly cause mental or physical harm or injury.
State board votes to change university requirements

by Anthony Floreno

The New Jersey Board of Higher Education met and adopted new regulations governing the criteria for naming a university on Friday, September 25, by a 7-5 vote.

The new criteria includes a larger focus on teaching, which is divided into traditional research teaching and major focus teaching. In traditional research teaching, "The university provides a wide range of undergraduate studies and graduate studies in two or more professional fields, such as medicine, law, public administration, engineering, or education and operative programs of instruction leading to the doctorate or comparable terminal degree." The amendment added to the ordinance is where MSC is divided into traditional research and operative programs of instruction leading to the doctorate or comparable terminal degree in two or more areas.

The amendment added to the ordinance is where MSC is concerned. It is based on major focus teaching and reads, "A university whose major focus is on teaching provides a wide range of undergraduate programs and graduate programs in at least three academic disciplines. A teaching university has a minimum of 2500 full-time equivalent (FTE) students. At least 20% of the university's total student body (headcount) are enrolled in graduate degree programs." The ordinance also states that "a significant number of the faculty in each program are associated with the institution full-time." Because MSC fulfills these basic criteria it is eligible to apply, with the approval of its governing boards, to the New Jersey Board of Higher Education for university status.

Dr. Jesse Rosenblum, Vice-President of Institutional Advancement, said, "The College Senate clearly endorses the notion of university status and is working towards that goal." After MSC applies, its petition is reviewed by an external consultant employed by the Department of Higher Education. The chancellor recommends approval to the Board based on the consultant’s report.

Rosenblum added, "(MSC) stands the best chance of becoming a university, if and when we submit our application."

Several art students said that there has never been such a significant number of the faculty in each program are associated with the institution full-time. Because MSC fulfills these basic criteria it is eligible to apply, with the approval of its governing boards, to the New Jersey Board of Higher Education for university status.

Seventeen paintings by Prof. Leon de Leeuw were found slashed and destroyed in studies, throughout Calcia Hall, on Monday Sept. 21. According to de Leeuw, the paintings had an estimated gallery value of $32,000. He is currently in the process of bringing the paintings home and will no longer store his work in the building.

de Leeuw stated that there has never been such a problem in his 30 years at Rider. Campus Police are currently investigating the situation.

"We are all very upset about this incident," said A.J. Weiskenker, chairperson of the fine arts department.

Several art students stated that they have been complaining for five years for de Leeuw to remove his paintings from the small, overcrowded classrooms. Both de Leeuw and Weiskenker deny the accusation and state that the paintings were stored in the classrooms as demonstration models.

Weiskenker did state that the studios are small and it is not common practice for teachers to store their work there.

de Leeuw said that his initial reaction was, "Damn!" and also stated, "I am bothered by the fact that some sick individual is walking around the campus."

de Leeuw and Weiskenker did not know of any possible suspects.

de Leeuw, who hopes to continue painting, stated that he feels the construction occurring in the building has lessened the security.

Clinton heckled by MSC students

“Whitehouse not a whorehouse”

Several MSC students made presidential hopeful Bill Clinton’s trip to New Jersey last week mighty uncomfortable when they broke out into chants of “Whitehouse not a whorehouse” and “Draft dodger tell the truth.”

The students belong to a loosely-knit organization calling themselves MSC Republicans. They caught the democrats off guard during Clinton’s speech at Merck pharmaceuticals which was supposed to be delivered to Merck employees and Clinton volunteers only.

Jeffrey Ceterko, a member of the organization, said the MSC republicans obtained access to the closed speech due to the lack of Merck’s organization. Passes for volunteers were haphazardly handed out in the parking lots, according to Ceterko, and he and his fellow republicans received passes from a frazzled staffer who mistook them for Clinton volunteers.

Robert Antonek, president of the MSC republicans, concurred, “We said we were volunteers. We didn’t say if we were Republican volunteers or Democrat volunteers.”

Ceterko said the members split into three groups and waited through the speeches of various senators and Governor Jim Florio for their main target to appear. “We were scared,” Ceterko said. After several pauses in Clinton’s speech, Ceterko said, his group stood on their chairs and began to chant.

The other groups never joined the protests. “We chanted for a good minute and a half before we were asked to leave,” Ceterko said. He said he and his companions left peacefully when police arrived on the scene. The protestors were held for the remainder of the speech and then driven off of Merck property by police.

“The best part,” said Ceterko, “was that the cop was a republican. He said he wanted Bush back in too.”

The story was covered in The New York Times, CNN and Z-100 FM.

Comedians start a laugh riot atMSC
by Christline Tischlo
On Tuesday night, MSC held a very successful comedy show. The show consisted of five very talented and widely diversified comedians. The first up was Andy Bowers, a curly haired, Jewish joke telling woman whose sarcastic, dry manner really worked for her material. Small tits and douching highlighted her routine.

The headliner of the show, Spanish-cracking Rich Reveres, displayed a more serious comedy than the others. His previous shows were on VH1. The crowd even laughed at his older routine. He also used musical elements to bring energy and energy to his routine. Speaking of energy, Joe Rogan was a comic that you just couldn’t forget. He has appeared on Comedy Cafe as well as MTV. His routine consisted of sex oriented jokes of Mike Tyson, parties, and a handbook of rules about women and reasons why you shouldn’t become attached. I learned a new word - SNATCH! Instead of the regular slang words for the female body parts.

Campus Construction: Is it a hassle?
by Nicole Pisano

"You're supposed to eat a bushel full of dirt in your lifetime." This is what campus construction worker Gary says to remember the next time you find yourself engulfed by a large dustball of smoke on your way to class.

The bright rays of the sun stream onto the scattered students making their way to class. A piercing steady beep can be heard in the distance along with the strained cries of a crane's motor switching gears. The beeping does not cease. The volume only increases as you move closer to the site.

Soon, metal blockades and fences appear. The yellow mechanical arm becomes visible, reaching out and clutching the ground with it's razor sharp teeth.

A large foggy cloud rises from your feet and seeps up higher and higher until it reaches your head. It moves up through your nostrils and into your throat. As you gasp for a breath your lungs expand. In a vain attempt to expel the particles your lungs release with a loud sound as the debris is ejected in various directions. Welcome to MSC.

"Construction on the library started in November of 1991 and construction on the academic building started around March of 1991," said construction super Tom Kilgallen, who feels that students should not get too upset about the inconveniences. "Before, everyone was complaining that the facilities of the library were inadequate and now when something is being done to make an improvement, they are complaining about the hassle and the sloppy appearance that the construction has brought to campus."

Scott Spatola, a commuter, said, "It takes long enough to find a parking space in the morning. Now, I have to leave even earlier just to walk around the detours to get to class."

Freshman Donald Jiminez said, "When I first decided to come here the construction was not this bad, now I get a cloud full of dust on my way to class... also, I am having a difficult enough time finding my way around campus let alone trying to find my way around all the fences so I can get to class."

The guard rails and barriers may look unappealing but they have been put up to provide a safer environment for the students. "They are used to block off dangerous areas or to cover up holes," said Tom Kilgallen.

For others, the construction has had no effect on them. "It doesn't effect me at all, I just park in the Quarry and take the shuttle to class," said senior Michele Pisano. Sophomore Jill Helm said, "It makes the campus undesirable to prospective students, but it does not bother me."

Some students in their senior year are disappointed about the construction on campus. "It is my last year and I know the construction is going to be very beneficial to the new incoming students by the time they graduate, but for me, I am leaving this place in May and it is not too pleasant to graduate from a school whose campus looks like it has been hit by a hurricane," said Iggy Zelaya. Jen Weldeon, also in her senior year, said, "The construction work really doesn't bother me, after all, we do get the benefits of the hoisting marks of the construction workers as we walk by." On a serious note, she said that it is a little inconvenient for us now but in the end it will better the school.

Students and workers have mixed reactions to the construction on campus. For some, it is just something ugly to look at while others are not phased by it. Yet there are still others that are not focusing on what is in front of them at the current time. They choose to focus on the future that the expansion will bring to this campus, which will aid in its growth towards becoming a university.

Do you think Perot should re-enter the presidential race?
No, because it would just cause more of a problem amongst the voters making their decisions.

Save your soul. Don’t wig out. See Suzie Herbst.

Alcohol. Booze. Say it out loud for emphasis—B-O-O-Z-E, the succulent nectar of our youth. Stand on top of College Hall naked and scream to anyone who walks by. “ALCOHOL IS THE SUCCULENT NECTAR OF MY YOUTH!! I WAS BREASTFED BY BUDWEISER!! BOOYA! 33!!

SUCCULENT NECTAR OF MY YOUTH!! I WAS BREAST FED and scream to anyone who walks by. “ALCOHOL IS THE SUCCULENT NECTAR OF MY YOUTH!! I WAS BREASTFED BY BUDWEISER!! BOOYA! 33!! WHAT DOES THAT HAVE TO DO WITH THE GLASS LINED TANKS OF OLD LAROTRE?!? I AM THE MARSHMELLOW KING OF THE STRATOSPHERE!!” People will start asking you questions.

Ever since the Rat entered the age of prohibition, the urchins that inhabit Camp Montclair have been looking for direction. They’ve felt violated, dismayed, confused and screaming for the guy holding your feet that you’re losing your grip on. The bones that popped out of your neck upon impact are a source of great wonderment to the paramedics, who sit and wait for backup as they sip on your beer...

Fear for yourself, certainly, but also fear for the multitudes of innocent people who will be the brunt of your fall into madness. Let’s say, just coincidentally, that your 21st birthday falls on a Thursday, and that, with equal coincidence, there’s a Board of Trustees banquet roaring in the ballrooms. Hearing squeals of delight and howls of joy coming from the room, you meander over, wondering how anyone could possibly be having such a grandiose time in the student center, of all places. With your nose smashed up against the glass doors, you suddenly realize what all the hubbub is about.

“THEY’VE GOT ALCOHOL IN THERE!!”, you frantically yelling, “OH THE HYPOCRACY!! THEY’RE SUCKING IT DOWN RIGHT IN FRONT OF MY EYES!!!”

You run around the halls frantically yelling, “OH THE HYPOCRACY!! GET ME A TISSUE!! ON THE HYPOCRACY!!” Grabbing people by their necks, you pull at least ten students towards the Ballroom uttering “We GOT TO stop them! It’s illegal, and for CHRIST sake I’m 21 and I have to drive to f-ing Lyndhurst to consume the succulent nectar of my youth!!”

Now being a messiah is not all that its cracked up to be, (ask Jesus), but by general consensus, it is far more attractive than wigging out on your fellowpeons or plunging to death. Suzie Herbst, SGA-messiah type person, is looking for those who have lost their mind over MSC’s draconian alcohol policy. While her committee may not be able restricting the noodles of your brain, it might be beneficial to the rest of your campus community to attend their Ad-Hoc committee meetings 1-3 every day in the SGA office. Otherwise, hey, you’re over 18, and from now on, any debatchary will go on your permanent record. (Steve Garufi paid me $5 to mention his name in one of my columns. I got the dough, so here it is. There’s a sucker born every second...).

The pain, the terror, the Holocaust
a survivor shares her past

by Gall Schansinger

An ordinary citizen, one might think. She is a survivor, a victim, a symbol of the perpetual violence that occurred in Germany between 1938-1941. The Holocaust. It unlocks memories of terror, a child completely robbed of innocence; her crime—being Jewish.

The Germans looted their house and destroyed her father’s hardware store. Their possessions were thrown out of their windows. Her father was arrested and taken to a concentration camp. He died there.

In 1944, Susan’s mother and sister were deported to Auschwitz. They were transported in a cattle car. They had to stand. Susan’s sister had typhoid fever, one of many illnesses.

Susan was taken from her family at age 7. She was sent to Great Britain on the “Kinder Transport” alone. She arrived in England not knowing any English and lived with a foster family.

Susan’s mother and sister managed to survive Auschwitz and both reunited with Susan in the United States in 1947. A tattered grey dress, letters, a small knife and stockings is what is left of a memory shattered by pain.

She brought to the U.S a feeling of new hope. She leaves the past behind and looks toward the future. I’d say a survivor indeed. She shows no bitterness, just a philosophical attitude in nature.

Hitler—a symbol himself of hatred and disdain is dead but his philosophies live on. We must fight back through education and never allow a government too much power. For Hitler can always return.

It's a hard luck life...

It is heartening to know that in the midst of MSC's budgetary crisis, our esteemed college president, Irvin Reid still has the services of a chauffeur and has not been subjected to the indignity of driving himself to whatever destination he deems desirable.

Now, that is not to say that His Eminence isn't sorely burdened with the trials and tribulations of utilizing his own motor vehicle when he awakens from a restful slumber at some ungodly hour of the night with a craving for pudding pops. Sadly, Reid must stress his wrist muscles, so tired from penning presidential quality memoranda for the benefit of our humble campus community, to turn the ignition key and back his Olds out onto the treacherous roadways of Upper Montclair and drive himself to the A&P. This does not even take into account the chunk of Reid's annual salary increases that is scandalously being siphoned off in car insurance expenditures.

Naysayers may point out that a Campus Police force scaled down to 23 officers from a previous numerical force of 28 officers might have some crime prevention skills that could be offered our college, but we at The Montclarion are not swayed. In fact, we do not believe the comforts of the office of college president are up to the proper standards.

The list of perks befitting the commander-in-chief of an institution of higher learning such as Montclair State College is far too lengthy to list in our meager newspaper. We have, however, come up with a paltry, badly abridged list:

Everyone knows that after a trying day of scribbling over the word "college" on all MSC stationary, the president deserves to slip into a bed that is free of any type of chill. To put an end to such an abomination, a librarian from Sprague Library should be constantly on call to slip between the presidential sheets an hour or so before Reid's bedtime as to assure our president a comfortably warm resting place.

Furthermore, a construction worker on campus should be readily available for channel switching should Reid misplace his television's remote control.

And finally, an English professor (we've been kicking a few names around) should wear a pager in order to turn the pages of our president's favorite novel should our president suffer a disabling paper cut while reading.

The shame.

The truth must be found

Tau Kappa Epsilon has been accused of a very serious infraction. It is the hope of The Montclarion that the din of rumors, speculation and half-truths that typically follow such controversial matters do not interfere with the search for the truth.

If TKE is exonerated, it is our sincerest wish that the fraternity is not besmirched by the memory of baseless accusations.

If TKE is not, however, we hope that the proper procedures will ensure that an instance, such as the one alleged, never is allowed to occur.

"The word comes down from the president and I go. I'm just following orders. I'm the low man on the totem pole."

-Senior Security Officer Jim Higgins

Quote of the Week
University status will do nothing to improve MSC

The State Board of Education ruled on Friday, September 25, to lower the standards required to allow colleges to call themselves universities. Seven members of the 12 member board have brought a devastating blow to the educational system in New Jersey.

Monclair State College will now have the opportunity to apply for the right to call itself Montclair State University, but the name change will take place without much change to the institution itself. President Reid should concern himself with how the college is actually functioning instead of how it looks to his peers. Why should we call ourselves a university when we are only making cosmetic changes?

To call something other than what it is, is false advertising. Anybody who could not distinguish Monclair State College, but will come to Montclair State University, does not belong here. We do not want standards set on the campus.

It is true that times are changing and outlooks are different, but lowering our standards is not the way to go. We should work to make our college better. If we implement programs that meet our current needs of higher quality standards, there and only then, can we call ourselves a university.

Will anything be different if we change our name? Not really. Elevators will still not work. Registration will still only get worse. Clauses will be lager unless money is found for more staff members. We will not have a wide selection of classes to meet our needs, and the likelihood will be still longer that it should be. MSC has trouble functioning as is.

What will the added burden of university status bring? Maybe President Reid will propose to raise tuition to "university status" to pay for our new burdens.

There is a technicality that is being overlooked. Two classes of universities will be established. The lower tier will be "teaching universities." MSC is included in this category and will be "teaching and research universities," which will include universities such as Rutgers and Princeton.

However, according to the Star-Ledger, the descriptive terms will probably be dropped from the formal title. This means that Montclair State Teaching University will read Montclair State University, leaving applicants confused as to whether we are a "real" university or not. This is misleading. We should not draw people to this institution believing MSC to be something that it is not.

You will be happy to know that the state will monitor institutions that call themselves universities to make sure that they are what they say they are. It is nice to see our tax dollars going to a good use. Are we to believe that this body of people will have the capabilities to check each and every university to see if they are playing by the rules? We do not need another costly bureaucracy wasting our money.

The seven spineless members of the Board of Higher Education should be replaced with people who will stand up for what is right and not succumb to unjustified pressure.

President Reagan said, "I think America’s best days are ahead of it. I believe that not only because of my faith in God but because of my long and enduring faith in man."

This is completely contrary to the Bible. Faith in God is contrary to faith in man. To believe men can live and get by on their own is to believe not in God but in men.

Maybe he was trying to say that God is on America’s side. If he was, then I think he is wrong. God is on the side of practicing love and peace, not for one nation to be richer and to dominate technologically and militarily inferior nations.

I find Bush’s policies of hating, stealing, and making war to be very different from what appears to be Christian to me. If those policies ever come to mean love, peace, patience, respect, and truth, then we can call them Christian. No man can truly represent the will of God.

One of the most grotesque battle cries this election is the Republican’s stoke to “Christian Values.” I am a born again Christian and by no means do I recognize the atrocities Bush has done for the beliefs I hold. Professing hate, war and indifference to the poor has little to do with the ways these beliefs have major faults.

From a Christian point of view, “Christian” is to defend Kuwait. This was the truth. The fact that Reagan’s core constituency holds a fundamental pro-life outlook. How many babies died in Iran, Iraq, Haiti and many other nations in his presidential term.

This administration also utilizes the hate and misunderstanding of different people to get votes. Vote for me because I’m not a Homosexual, welfare state, letting-rape-niggers-out-of-jail, tree hugging, draft-dodging, unpatriotic, immoral, A.C.L.U. candidate. From a Christian point of view, these beliefs have major faults.

I do not remember Jesus espousing two nations as the economic system of God. Are we not, according to the Bible, to help one another and treat each person’s good as the common good? Instead we have a system that leaves those at the bottom of the dogs. We are told of the evils behind establishing a better equilibrium in the distribution of wealth. Why is this?

One of the best examples of half truth is the Bush claim that Clinton raised taxes 128 times in Arkansas. Technically this is true, half truth is the Bush claim that the poor has little to do with the ways the Bush Administration was pushing for farm credits for the Iraqis, sparing all religion except monotheism whose name of "democracy." But when Bush was technically good, and geographical power opposed all religion except Islam. This does not follow Republican claims of Christian advocacy.

Bush’s stance on abortion is obviously not founded on Christian ideals but politics. In 1980, George was pro-choice, but switched when he joined Reagan. This was the truth. The fact that Reagan’s core constituency holds a fundamental pro-life outlook. How many babies died in Iran, Iraq, Haiti and many other nations in his presidential term?

What does any one person have with millions and millions of dollars when people are starving? Contrary to Bush’s belief, the poor are not poor because they are lathy. They are poor because they are left undereducated because of a system that maintains undereducated schools.

It is also clear in the Bible that God comes before country, if country even counts at all. I believe of my Christian beliefs, could never fight in a war. Bush assails Clinton for avoiding service in a war he found to be futile and unjust. If patriotism is blindly following our government, then I am unpatriotic. I try to follow the laws of God, not the petty wants and squabbles of men.

Who is George Bush, or anyone, to condemn the moral beliefs of another person. “Judge not lest ye be judged,” is an appropriate excerpt from the Bible. I have too many problems with my own obedience to God and my practices of morality, to worry about attacking and criticizing other people, although I will happily debate them.

President Reagan said, “I think America’s best days are ahead of it. I believe that not only because of my faith in God but because of my long and enduring faith in man.” This is completely contrary to the Bible. Faith in God is contrary to faith in man. To believe men can live and get by on their own is to believe not in God but in men.

Maybe he was trying to say that God is on America’s side. If he was, then I think he is wrong. God is on the side of practicing love and peace, not for one nation to be richer and to dominate technologically and militarily inferior nations.

I find Bush’s policies of hating, stealing, and making war to be very different from what appears to be Christian to me. If those policies ever come to mean love, peace, patience, respect, and truth, then we can call them Christian. No man can truly represent the will of God.
Welcome back to Record Irreverence. This week I have arbitrarily chosen to ostensibly write about the Tom Meyer caricature prominently featured somewhere on this page. The term "somehow" should tip off the ever observant reader to the fact that I no longer serve in an editorial capacity in the purely sorry for the loss editorial/opinion section of The Montclarion. Mere mention of the aforechronicled caricature also serves as a type of leveraged insurance that it will indeed appear. Those of us, the author and you the ever patient and tolerable reader, familiar with my writings in this venue, understand that the aforementioned selection is not at all necessarily relevant to the content of this issue to be elucidating easy. For the reader who is unfamiliar with my column, understood that it once was a regular feature in the esteemed Montclarion. Perhaps it made a good word choice, as I certainly do not want to suggest that I remotely approach omniscience, conform to the norms of society, this column conforms to any literary standard practices, or that I am a regular kind of guy. Instead let it be better said that my column appeared frequently in the aforementioned esteemed Montclarion. Also, for the information of the first-time reader, this column is usually irrelevant as its by-line indicates, generally invariably humorous, although today it will be appropriately irrelevant but in a serious sort of way. Although a myriad of musical possibilities present themselves with the aforeselected caricatures i.e. the Wainwrights I could rule the world if I could only get the parts LP, or Aeromeltis' Big Ten Inch, (who can forget the horrendous scene at this summer's National Republican Convention, scads of yuppy eyed Republicans chanting "four more inches.") Fortunately I 'cause I am running out of space, this week's column needs no musical interlude. Instead, I will let the record speak for itself. In 1990 President Bush won the Doublespeak Award presented by the National Council of Teachers of English. Following are an example cited by the council: During the presidential campaign Bush reiterated his "no new taxes" pledge repeatedly. Remember the infamous read my lips pneumonia? In faculty, during his State of the Union address President Bush claimed his 1991 budget contained "no new taxes." Nevertheless his 1991 budget did propose 21.7 billion dollars in "receipts proposals" and "user fees." Bush's synthetic pantomime pre-dilection was not limited to taxa­ tion doublespeak. Once again during the 1988 campaign, "Read my lips, I will be the education presi­ dent. Clearly this is consistently contradictory considering the recent collegiate tuition hikes. While a president-elect candidate, George Bush said "We need to assure that women do not have to worry about getting their jobs back after having a child or caring for a child during a serious illness. This is what I mean when I talk about a gentle nation..." After he was elected the White House issued this statement: President Bush vetoed the Parental and Medical Leave Bill; he "has always been opposed to the federal government mandating what every business in this country should do." Just last week Bush vetoed the latest incarnation of the Family Leave Bill claiming it was bad for business. George Bush has a history of incongruent rhetoric. When asking for $7.9 billion to wage an "assault on every front" of the drug war, he implied that $7.9 billion was an enormous amount of money. Yes, $7.9 billion is an enormous amount, however it amounted to .065 percent of the federal budget. Clearly allocation of such a minuscule per­ centage will only beget miniscule results.

A majority of voting Americans believed then presidential candidate Ronald Reagan, when he claimed he would balance the budget while simultaneously lowering taxes. An alarming majority also believed candidate George Bush when he re­ peated again and again "Read my lips, no new taxes." 12 years later taxes are at record levels and "read my lips" proves to be nothing more than a pathetic attempt at lip service. Reduction will only perpetuate this fraud.

Cartoon symbolizes society's trivialization of rape

*The editorial cartoon that accompanied last week's "Commuters check in, but they can't check out" was one of the most insensitive editorial decisions that The Montclarion has made this year. Hopefully in given time, the judgement of Steve Garufi, the editorial page editor, may improve, but for now we must challenge the idea that a tragic element of women's existence can be used to humorously illustrate a problem that exists for all students on this campus, male and female alike. Malicious intent may not have been directed toward victims of rape by the caption pertaining to this cartoon, nonetheless, comparing a car being vandalized and a woman being raped is completely trivializing a crisis that affects many women's lives every year in this country. Moreover, it suggests that women have no more value in this society than an automobile — that an inanimate, feeling object might possibly share an experience as devastating as rape. This is extremely insulting, not only to survivors of rape, but to all women, everywhere! Vandalized automobiles and rape victims have one major thing in common—they are objects. Rape is not an act of love or even sex. Rape is an act of violence. Rape is the act of a man venting his anger and wielding his power over a woman who is simply a victim. The overwhelming belief that a woman "asks for" rape is simply society perpetrating its rape culture for a scapegoat. Rape is society's problem, not women's. Similarly, students at MSc don't ask for their cars to be vandalized when they leave them unattended to go to class. If this were the "kinder, gentler nation" that George Bush always talks about, but never provides, one would assume we could leave our cars for a few hours and return to find them in the same condition as when we left. Likewise, women should be able to walk down a street, go on a date or live in their homes without the constant fear of suffering the ultimate in physical violation. However, this is not the case. Nothing is sacred anymore, especially women's bodies. The anti-choice movement provides a good example. Men seem determined to control our bodies in one more way. The point of the editorial cartoon was attempting to make is a valid one. Any time one's personal space or belongings are invaded, damaged or stolen, we as human beings feel violated. The problem here is in degree of violation. If our car windows are broken, our stereo are stolen, then it is frustrating and cer­ tainly a nuisance, but our insur­ ance companies help us repair the damage and life goes on. When a woman is raped, the physical, mental and emotional damage is so severe that a woman's life is permanently altered. There is no "quick fix" for rape. First, rapists are rarely consid­ erate enough to use protection, when they attack a woman. There­ fore, there is often the chance that an unwanted pregnancy will oc­ cur. Nothing could add so heavily to the devastation of rape than becoming pregnant with a rapist's child whether the rapist was an acquaintance, friend, husband, or stranger. Secondly, with the fre­ quent occurrence of sexually trans­ mitted diseases among consent­ ing partners being so serious, it thing to cause it and that she could have done something to prevent it. Fortunately there are several types of therapy that can help women overcome these feelings and recover the power that they feel a rapist strips them of. Yet, this recovery often takes years and no one can ever erase the memory of a woman's rape from her mind. As the level of violence escal­ ates in our society we hear less and less about rape, but it remains a serious problem that we must address. Rape does not happen only to rich women and rape does not only happen to white women. Rape happens to all of us: mothers, daughters, sis­ ters, grandchildren, rich, poor, middle-class, Black, Hispanic, Caucasian, working women and students. Rape is a crisis, not a joke, and we should be treating it like one. Using a woman's trag­ edy to provide humor for the stu­ dent body is not only sexist, it is distasteful and disrespectful. Garufi, next time, please use better judgement and if you aren't going to act like a feminist, quit claiming to be one.
President Bush must go!

The Republican administration have brought the United States to one of its worst conditions in many years. Today, more than 35 million Americans live under the poverty line. The U.S. unemployment rate is 7.6% and will continue to go up. The deficit is around $325 billion, as a consequence of the failed Reagan economic policies of the 1980’s. America became the biggest debtor nation in the world after being the biggest creditor. Our 1991 GNP decline was -0.4%. This was last seen in the 1930’s. Interest rates are down.

Consequently millions of Americans’ incomes have been affected, particularly that of the elderly. Furthermore, America has lost its competitiveness. We only invest about 1.4% of our GDP in research and technology. Japanese invests 28%, Germany 26% and France 21%.

In regards to the environment, there is not a strong initiative to clean up our country and the earth. On the contrary, President Bush in the last Rio de Janeiro Summit was opposed to the agreements that would lead to a much cleaner earth. His piece was both opposed to the agreements that would have led to a much cleaner earth.

President Bush wanted to be the education president and make American students number one in Math and Science by the year 2000, but so far he has done nothing.

We need more people like Ms. Iron Head

In the September 17 issue of The Montclarion, Christina Tischio wrote about the stupidity of prejudice. Her piece was both strong and addressed to all viewers who should read it. She was able to clean up our community and the earth.

We as members of the college community hear and read so much about our college. Upon arriving at MSC for the Fall Semester, 1987, "to lecture a bit," one of my first impressions of the college was an unsightly "run" of graffiti that have been neglected by the administration has not addressed and would lead to a much cleaner earth for us and the generations to come.

We need more people like Ms. Iron Head.

The Life Hall art gallery presents "Abstractions in Sculpture and Drawing" which displays the work of Tom Aprilie and Rolando Castellon. New Yorker Tom Aprilie combines furniture parts and tree branches in his work. A common aspect of his work includes flowing and rhythmic lines which is also displayed in his seven pastel drawings that are also shown exhibit. Rolando Castellon displays a different kind of abstraction by utilizing a combination of objects which include paper, thread, paint and earth. He combines this materials by using methods such as weaving and folding.

The work of these artists will be on display until October 16 at Life Hall noon 135.

American Indian Pow-Wow

by Sandi Cammiller

As the nights grow colder and autumn winds herald the start of the harvest season, the Great Events '92 season of the SIFA of Montclair State heralded a harvest-like ceremony of its own! On Sunday, September 27, 1992, American Indian Dance Theater opened the season with a regalia of American Indian performers. Arrayed in rich traditional costumes, the dancers displayed an array of dancers, musicians, and singers from tribes of the Dakotas, Southwest, Canada, and the Great Plains, brought together a cultural legacy.

The costumes, consisting of authentic ceremonial headwear and dress, were striking. Each performer wore genuine attire which he/she made or acquired from a tribal member. The intricate beadwork and featherwork were an exquisite reflection of the fine craftsmanship which is still practiced among the American Indians today. The costumes were made of leather, beads, natural fabric, animal feathers, and fur. Each costume was a unique design, adorned with symbolic animal designs such as the eagle. The patterns and colors of the costumes provided a vibrant visual aesthetic to the production.

The dances were all custom expressions of the social and spiritual life of the various American Indian subcultures. While each dance was as diverse as the costumes of the dancer, there was an apparent synergy which bound the production and allowed it to move as a cohesive whole.

Northwest Coast Suite: A new addition to the American Indian Dance Theatre repertoire.

Two of the most outstanding numbers presented were the "Hoop Dance," and the "Fancy Dance." In the "Hoop Dance," a male dancer garbed in full attire including headwear, manipulated several red hoops. As he moved, he used both his body and the hoops to create such shapes as a flower, a butterfly and an eagle. The "Fancy Dance" consisted of unique fancy footwork! In this number, several dancers competed with each other as they challenged one another in a display of spins, stamina, and physical prowess.

The music, primarily made up of drum beats and vocal chants, was fascinating in and of itself. Very often, music and dance merged into one synonymous expression!

In an interview, one company member, Lloyd Windbird from the Plains Cree Nation, commented about his relationship to American Indian Dance Theater stating: "Our culture has always been exploited. We want people to realize we're not extinct." As a whole, American Indian Dance Theater beautifully told the rich heritage of a culture of American society that has been significantly overlooked.

Music department kicks off Fall season

CW Springfield

MSC's music department is underway in its Fall 1992 schedule of events, including numerous faculty/student recitals, concerts, and field trips. The next noon recital will be tomorrow, October 2, in the Student Center Ballrooms. Dr. Oscar Ravina will be conducting the orchestra, who will be accompanying Dr. Lisa DeLorenzo on Piano Concerto No. 2 in C minor. Ravina is also a violinist with the New York Philharmonic. Next Wednesday will feature faculty member jazz super star Chris White with Peggy Schecter and John Citt, also faculty members, in one of the many jazz concerts offered by the music department. You'll be seeing mostly just faculty playing noon recitals in the upcoming month to give their students a standard for performance requirements.

The MSC Concert Band, conducted by Don Butterfield, is heavily rehearsing for their December concert...A field trip is being planned to the Metropolitan Opera House, but unfortunately, the trip is only available to music majors.

Do not forget to mark your calendars for these events: Paly Toro and Andrew Schulman, November 11th. The flute choir, November 18th Opera Workshop recital, November 20th. All recitals start at noon, unless otherwise posted. And finally, the Madrigals performing their annual Christmas concert (no date has been posted yet), and a production of King David is in the works for the Spring of 1992.

Welcome, dear readers, to this very special edition of PROPHET BIGG.

This week, we break from our usual bill of fare so that I, the Prophet, can relate to you my recent journey into the past.

"As a whole, American Indian Dance Theater beautifully told the rich heritage of a culture of American society that has been significantly overlooked."

P* We hear a lot about child stars of the 50's, 60's, and 70's and about the problems they had or are having as a result of being a child star.

"It’s not often that a person is able to meet one of his or her heroes. This past Sunday, I had the unique opportunity to spend a day with one of mine, George McFarland. He was born in 1928 and started making motion pictures for Hal Roach when he was only ten. It was around this time when he was given his more well known nickname, Spanky."

"What goes around comes around. You reap what you sow..."
The topic of conversations

By Mark Loughlin

With all the press that Woody Allen has been getting lately, it seems that reviewing his film is redundant. There has been more press on this movie than Basic Instinct and Heaven's Gate combined. Tri-Star pictures, knowing an opportunity when it sees one, decided to release the film in an unheard of 800 theaters. For the normally low grossing Mr. Allen, this was a good sign.

The main point of interest is the numerous parallels between the real Woody Allen and this film. It’s true that Allen in the film is also married to Mia Farrow in the film (in reality, they are not even married). He later becomes interested in a 20 year old writing student (Juliette Lewis) and leaves his wife. The characters are all a bunch of Manhattan neurotics, but then, what else is new? That’s where the similarities end. In reality, Allen and Farrow do not have kids of their own, but Mia’s character has one from a previous marriage. In reality, Mia has a child from a previous marriage, one with Woody, and enough adopted children to remake the Wizard of Oz.

Husbands and Wives is more of an intense, philosophical character study than a plot oriented film. It tackles some very burning questions, like, are people meant to stay together forever, and is there such a thing as a perfect match? Where most movies of late are a nice little snack with a diverting story that you may remember the remainder of that night, Husbands and Wives is heavy, substantial brainfood that can be the basis for some real intelligent discussion. That, of course, depends on your company.

My grandmother used to tell me, “The first time, something’s funny. The second, it’s silly. The third time is stupid.” This especially holds true for the whole Dan Quayle/Murphy Brown fiasco. The potato (minus the ‘e’) schtick got old real quick, and right behind it comes Mr. Family Values vs. The Unwed Mother. Okay, I can see why someone might say something. Kids should have a father (or father figure) as well as a mother. I don’t dispute that, and neither does 99.44 per cent of the population. I think everyone would love the Norman Rockwellian family image- Mom, Dad, and a picket fence in Suburbia U.S.A. However, it’s time for a reality check. This is the ‘90s. Like the bumper sticker reads, shit happens. (Rutledge Hill,$5.95) Advice for attaining a full life.

From my point of view and the point of view of the average middle class family, it is easier to see the consequences of my child’s philosophy. This is the ‘90s. Anybody with a middle class family knows that the Vietnam War seemed like a distant memory, and now he or she is there again. Army recruiters walk into your kid’s school and ask if they want to do their draft. (Rutledge Hill,$5.95) Advice for attaining a full life.

dope. No discourtesy, no nothing. But as far as these other child stars, I can understand where abuse would affect somebody, but most of these kids didn’t have child abuse. The only abuse their parents heaped on them was not teaching them right from wrong or letting them run helter-skelter, giving them more money than they could spend and not instilling any responsibility in them. That’s the real abuse.

P: During your years with Hal Roach Studios did you have a favorite or a least favorite co-worker?
S: No. Not really.
P: Just went in, worked and came home, huh.
S: Well, we were all friends and whether we were or not, we had to be. We worked together nine hours a day, five days a week...

P: For a very long time.
S: And we learned how to work with people that maybe you didn’t particularly like, but found some redeeming value in them that would make it bearable for you to work with him day in and day out. Otherwise, you were gonna be unhappy and everyone around you would be unhappy. I learned early in life to get along with people. You don’t have to fall in love with ‘um, but you get along with ‘um for the period of time you have to. When that’s over you don’t. You go your own way and they go theirs… Life is very simple. The only social graces that any person needs in this country they can learn in kindergarten.

P: So you’ve read All I needed to learn I learned in kindergarten by Robert Fulgum.
S: I’ve been saying that a long time before Robert ever wrote it (Laughter.)
P: How did you leave show business? Was it your choice to leave or...
S: Absolutely.
P: You decided “I’ve got to go….”
S: I was sixteen years old and no longer under contract to anybody and I was tired of making movies. I told my father “I’m not gonna make any more movies” and I didn’t.

P: And your father approved?
S: No. He didn’t like it.
P: He wanted you to go on then.
S: Well, he thought I still had a career out there and I didn’t care whether I had one or not. I wanted another life. I was sixteen years old and had been working for thirteen of those. I wanted a break.

S: Of course. Hollywood, unusual as it may be, is an art form; an ongoing, changing art form. And art has its effect on society. Hollywood is very liberal. Always has been, probably always will be. But I don’t agree with a majority of things that Hollywood says, does or puts in motion pictures but it does have effects on American people. Life gets tedious. Don’t it? Remember that song?

P: What song?
S: “Life gets tedious, don’t it?”
P: I don’t think so.
S: That goes back quite a few years though. I don’t know why I thought you’d be familiar with it. You’re too young.
P: I’m not all that young ya know.
S: You’re not 40!
P: I’m almost 24.
S: Well, excuse me. (Pause.) I’ve got shorts that are 24!! (Laughter)

Majestic Croaker, also an old resident of Newark, is coaching in his sixth Pride Bowl and fourth in the last four years. He also serves as a volunteer for the organization, and the game, to the people, and volunteers involved.

"Pride Bowl is people," said the coach. "It is people joining each other, trying to help kids, to give kids special opportunities. Every year, I am proud to be a part of this game, and this organization.

Davis and Culver are proud as well. "Helping those kids is the best feeling in the world," said Davis. "Culver and I are next to him, smiling, nodded his head in agreement.

"Everybody wins," he said. "The players, the fans, and eighteenthousand kids from my hometown. No better deal than that."

Thorning "the hick from French Lick" for the memories

by Mark Alan Belnay

For anyone who has ever been a fan of the game of basketball, the upcoming season will hold a different look. No longer will there be the classic Boston-Laker matchups of the 1980's with Bird and Magic leading their respective teams into battle. First of the sports lost Magic Johnson to the HIV-virus and this past summer saw the final moments in recent years. Things depended on it, and called his name. I ended up standing next to him and smiling, nodded his head in agreement.

"Everybody wins," he said. "The players, the fans, and eight thousand kids from my hometown. No better deal than that."

Dear Mom,

My first day at MSC was awful! Since my Walls broke, I missed my 8 o'clock class. There was no hot \textit{Literary Magazine} left in the showers. Then I tripped and fell down the stairs in front of the entire \textit{Submission Deadline}. During Oct. 9th, I spilled my \textit{Room 113 A} all over the front of my \textit{Student Annex}.

Then I walked into the wrong classroom and got yelled at by some \textit{Poetry} professor. When I finally found my \textit{Short Stories} class, I was 15 minutes late.

The worst \textit{Drama} of it all was waiting two hours in line in the \textit{Drawings} store and then realizing I had left my money back in the dorm room.

By the time I reached my \textit{Paintings}, my keys were nowhere to be found and my \textit{Photography} had left for the weekend.

Please \textit{Submit} beer money...

Cross country looks for big things from All-Americans

In addition to the three track and field All-Americans, Titus, L Cindy, and Roberts, the women's team boasts some sparkling new talent in freshmen Kara Rambberger of Bridgeton High School, East Orange High's Rhonda Westbrook, and the team's sixth runner Maria Tolichichian out of Dover High School. Despite finishing with an incomplete this past week at the Monmouth Invitational, the team shows promise. Head coach John Blanton who is looking forward to an improved performance this week at the New Jersey College Championships says, "Hopefully all butterflies were left on the track this past week."

With an improved performance from the women and Brennan and Dennis improving upon their previous marks, as both did this past week at the Invitational by nearly four minutes in their 5-mile races, the MSC team should put up an impressive performance this week at the Invitational. Following that week at the Invitational, the team is on the road for their remaining meets that include the CTC Championships on Halloween and the team's sixth runner Maria Tolichichian out of Dover High School. The Pride Bowl: More than a football game

by Michael Frasco

The Red Hawks offensive attack was as relentless as the rain Friday night at the Rancocas Valley field. The men’s soccer team poured on for its third straight victory, after losses to Cortland State and Ithaca College in its first two contests, the Red Hawk football team is in need of a victory to keep its playoff hopes alive. MSC will get that chance against NJAC rival Ramapo College this Saturday night at Springgate Field at 7 p.m. The contest marks the 14th annual Pride Bowl.

The Roadrunners will be seeking their first victory as well, after dropping a 7-0 decision to Kearny this past weekend and falling to 0-3 in the process. And although this game is critical for each team, the fact that the two teams will convene, means the real winner will come off the field in the name of the kids from Project Pride.

The game is the sole fundraiser of this all-volunteer non-profit Project Pride Inc., which funds over $25,000 per year for recreation, after-school tutoring for young adults and elderly, and enrichment programs for kids. The proceeds also benefit Project Pride’s scholarship fund for kids who have lost a parent to AIDS.
