The Rathskellar, long dormant in the cellar of the Student Center, will be open for business this Monday, according to Karen Likatt of the Faculty Student Cooperative. The Rat will open around noon with a limited menu that includes pizza, but excludes hamburgers and french fries.

While the Rathskellar was under renovation, a committee composed of administration, faculty, staff, and students met to work out the specifics of an alcohol policy in the Rat. "We met during winter break to come up with a workable policy to bring alcohol (beer and wine only) back to the Rat," said Gouri Sadhwani, committee member and SGA president.

That policy must then be forwarded to college president Irvin Reid for final approval before it can be implemented. According to Dr. Desiderioscioli, Acting Vice President for Student Development and Campus Life, the policy will be reviewed on Monday. "I'm not anticipating major concerns, and we could see the alcohol policy in effect by the middle of March at the latest," she said.

Sadhwani declined to release details concerning the policy to be forwarded, but said it would contain several different trial periods which would be used to experiment with various approaches to the regulation of alcohol. The most successful approach would then be implemented, Sadhwani said.

The Rat had been closed for close to a year, far longer than expected. The delay, according to Sadhwani, was caused by a technical fault in the contract with the construction company.

Students' reactions to the news was generally positive. "Alcohol should be served in the Rat. It will curb the risk of drinking and driving and the possible endangerment of students' lives," said senior Datisha Lewis. "An alcohol policy will definitely help our school to promote on-campus activities and student unity," said junior, Abbe Sloan.

College Life Union Board (CLUB), the SGA, a myriad of Greek organizations and the student body of MSC will be left high and dry this spring due to apparently permanent cancellation of MSC's traditional Spring Carnival. "The Carnival is pending on a raffle license that had formerly been loaned to the SGA by the Alumni Association," said Gouri Sadhwani, SGA president.

According to Sadhwani, the SGA has applied for a license but was turned down. Rob Tranter, SGA treasurer, explained that in order to obtain a raffle license, an organization must provide "financial benefits for persons outside of the organization." The Alumni Association qualified for the license based on the scholarships it provides to MSC students.

Hollie Stephens, Director of the Alumni Association, said the decision to give up the license "basically was a decision not to get involved." The riots that marred last year's Carnival were not a factor in that decision according to Stephens, who was not the director at the time it was made.

In lieu of the carnival, CLUB - the organization that sponsors the Carnival - has been considering several other events according to CLUB secretary, Samuel Rock. "We're thinking about a scavenger hunt - if it's legal - a talent show or possibly a really big Easter egg hunt," said Rock.

The Carnival will impact especially hard upon Greek organizations which rely on the Carnival as their major fund-raising event.

Amnesty offered for fake I.D. toting students

by Juliane Maskowitz

The Campus Police are offering amnesty to anyone in possession of a fake license for a limited time. Joseph Ricker, a 20 year old Montclair State student from Totowa has been selling fake licenses.

The police have the records he made of the licenses he sold to both students and non-students.

There will be no amnesty for anyone who has possession of a fake license and is tracked down by the police.

The fake licenses may be brought to Sergeant Cell or Sergeant Newcombe at the MSC Campus Police during the day.

The campus police are cooperating with the investigation of Ricker with the Totowa Police Dept., Little Falls Police Dept, and with the Passaic County Prosecutors Office.

Frats sponsor lecture against hazing

by Alissa Vallante

Delta Chi and Tau Kappa Epsilon sponsored the presentation, “Death By Hazing,” on Monday night in the Student Center ballroom.

Eileen Stevens, the guest speaker, spoke not against fraternities, but against hazing. She said, “Hazing violates the very premise on which fraternities and sororities were founded. It contradicts what brotherhood and sisterhood stand for.”

In February of 1978, Stevens lost her son, Chuck, due to an alcohol poisoning incident at Alfred University in New York State. Chuck died of acute alcohol poisoning while pledging Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

Stevens has traveled extensively and spoken to fraternities and sororities at over 500 campuses nationwide. She has been recognized by the Greek system and receives numerous awards for her efforts. Among them are The Salisbury Scott Interfraternity Award from Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity and the Kuhn Award, Delta Chi’s highest honor.

When speaking with the audience after the presentation, it was obvious that Stevens’ words would not be forgotten. Mike Kazt, President of Delta Chi, said, “the presentation makes you realize how much stuff just can't go on.”

Finally, when turning to the co-sponsors of the event, it was obvious that Stevens’ words would not be forgotten. Mike Kazt, President of Delta Chi, said, “the presentation makes you realize how much stuff just can't go on.”

When asked the reason for choosing this particular presentation, Chris Protelli, President of Tau Kappa Epsilon, said, “We heard about it through our International Headquarters and decided to co-sponsor it to make people aware of the dangers of hazing.”

Stevens summed it up by saying, “Hazing has no place in any organization. It has no place here at Montclair State.”

Clover Road entrance re-opened

by Nancy Gannon

The Clover Road entrance to campus was re-opened on Monday after being closed since mid-January due to repair work, re-opened Monday, according to Jerry Quinn, Director of Facilities. On closing had caused commuters and Clover Road residents delays in Campus Shuttle service last week.

According to Quinn, half of the repair work to the bearing plates beneath the bridge has been finished. The rest of the repair work had to be scheduled to take place over Spring Break.

The closing forced shuttles to detour onto Upper Mountain Avenue and Normal Avenue. This detour created a 25-minute delay in between Clover Road shuttles, according to Nick Papolitio, a shuttle bus driver.

As a result of the delays, many students complained about overcrowding on the buses, and of being late to classes. Many Clover Road residents have been forced to walk across the bridge, braving a badly cluttered pathway.

“They should’ve started this project at the beginning of Winter Break,” said Janice Palme, a Clover Road resident. “I’ve had to walk to campus over the construction.”

“They should’ve had more shuttles running,” said Pat Algiere, a senior commuter student.

Quinn expressed that he hoped students would be tolerant of the delays. “These repairs are something that has to be done,” he said.

Sprague Library wing opens

by Renee McDonnell

The new 42,000-square-foot addition to Sprague Library opened on Monday, January 25, after more than two years in development.

The circulation desk, periodical stacks, a quiet study area, two photocopying rooms and the associate library director’s office will be located on the first floor in the new wing.

The second floor of the new wing will hold books and additional photocopy machines. One new machine will provide reduction and enlargement features for 15 cents.

The new wing provides additional study space for students with both table and carrell seating. The wing has many large windows which provide a great deal of sunlight and a view of College Hall.

“The new addition is really nice and it makes the library so much bigger,” said Letty Lauren, a junior and Psychology major.

In light of the increased size and services of the library which is used by more than 2,500 people daily, the question of hiring more staff and increasing library hours was “Debatable,” according to Bernice Jones-Trent, Library Director.

SGA restricts free phones

by A.J. Paga

The free phone service provided by the Student Government Association has been reduced from calls within the tri-state area to only calls within the 201 area code.

In reply to rumors of a $25,000 phone bill, Assistant Vice President of Information Services M. Lynn Truesdell said “According to our test information the phones would approximate that cost a year.” This figure is only representative of the test period, and is not a compilation of yearly figures, Truesdell added.

Following a meeting on January 7th between Dean of Student Affairs Edward C. Martin, Assistant Director of Computer Services Edward Buscavage, and S.G.A. Treasurer Robert Tranter, it was decided that for reasons of economy the phone service would be limited to local calls only. The service was cut shortly after.

Funding for the phones was provided through the telecommunication budget. Budget cuts and the excessive bills were cited as the cause for the reduction in service. According to Truesdell however, no specific amount was set for the phones in the budget.

Previous bills from the service were approximately the same as the test information Truesdell provided. “The bills have been that high for the last year or so.”

Students who still wish to use the phones need to leave a valid college identification in the S.G.A. office. The student will then obtain a receiver that plugs into the phones in the College Life Union Road (CLUB) office.

Campus residency is down for second straight year

by Greg MacSweeney

Residency at MSC has dropped during the past two years, due mainly to the weakened economy and to students finding that it is less expensive to live off campus, according to Shelley Jackson, Director of Blanton Hall.

While complete Spring '93 figures are not yet available, preliminary numbers show the occupancy rate in the dorms and in the Clover Road apartments to be at 86%.

During the fall '92 semester, the "no show" rate was higher than anticipated and the occupancy rate dropped to 92% when it is usually at a rate of 100% or over. In the Spring of '90, the occupancy rate was 100%.

The current Spring rate is now 98%, also down from 88.6% last spring. Kevin Rakowsky, Assistant Director of Residence Life, stated that the drop from 100% in '90 is most likely due to the weak economy.

According to Rakowsky, there is always a decline in the residency in the spring, but the greater than expected "no show" rate last September accounts for the difference in the amount of empty rooms this spring.

"Occupancy has not been this low at MSC for some time, but a turn around is expected by '96 and there are even some plans to turn Russ Hall into a dormitory," Rakowsky said.

"Students leave for a variety of reasons," according to Jackson, "but most check out for financial reasons, a few for academic reasons and hardly any due to lack of adequate facilities."

Another speculation for the increasing number of empty rooms was a decline in student enrollment, but according to Dr. Allen Buecher, Director of Admissions, the total number of students decreased by a total of 31 people last fall.

Rakowsky also stated that 50 new applications for residency were received during the last week of the fall semester. Most of these applications were submitted by transfer students.

More legislators needed

by Kelly J. Schab

During her presidential address, Gouri Sadhwani announced the Rat’s opening. During the first week, pizza will be $0.65 a slice and there is planned to be a grand re-opening. After the first week, however, pizza will be up to $1.25 per slice.

She also announced that the MSC Alumni Association is having a phone-a-thon on Feb. 22 - Feb. 25. The calling for donations will take place from 6 P.M. to 9:30 P.M.

Sadhwani mentioned that the College Bowl will take place on Feb. 13 starting at 10 A.M. and lasting until 2 P.M. Any four people can make a team and first place receives $200, second gets $100, and third gets $75.

It was also brought up by Sadhwani that there will be a ‘dramatic tuition increase for ’93/’94 school year. The SGA and the administration have come up with an agreement so that money will benefit the students.

In the cabinet reports, it was announced that National Condom Week begins Feb. 12-19. A speaker from Planned Parenthood is scheduled to appear and condoms and literature will be passed out. It was noticed during and throughout the meeting that many more legislators should be recruited and sworn in.

Carnival substitute needed at MSC

Last year, as most of you know, the MSC Spring Carnival was disrupted by a riot that broke out on the first evening of the yearly event. The carnival, the major social activity of the spring semester, was cancelled due to the violent outbreak and the possibility of future carnivals at MSC was unknown. Recently, the SGA applied to the state government for a registration number that would allow “chance” games to be played at the carnival; however, the state denied the SGA the needed number for this spring. Although some lifes at MSC may see another carnival at MSC sometime in the next century, most of us will not experience the thrill, fun and adventure of the spring carnival this year. Thus, most MSC students are left in a ponder, asking themselves how they might possibly entertain themselves in the Spring of 1993.

Never fear, there are other possibilities. Various solutions to this quandary have been offered such as the world’s largest Easter egg hunt, a campus-wide scavenger hunt or a talent show that promises to be different than any MSC has ever seen. We at The Montclarion feel that the great minds at MSC are certainly capable of expanding the menu for fun on our lovely, construction-ridden campus.

CLUB, who is in charge of the Spring Week events, is allotted $15,000 from student fees to provide entertainment for the MSC community. CLUB is seriously considering staging a block party to make up for the loss of the spring carnival. The details of such an event have not been actualized at this time; however CLUB should be commended for quickly developing a substitute event to take the place of the woebegone carnival. Besides, what would become of the money set aside for this event if no substitute was provided? Could it possibly get lost in the vacuum of the ever-shrinking college budget? And don’t MSC students deserve to get what they pay for and a say in what they get?

In addition, student turnout for most Class I Organization programming is typically overwhelming. The Rock the Vote festival in September and the Pushmasters/James/Tom Tom Club/Soup Dragons concert spectacular produced by Class One Concerts in November were two great successes of the fall semester. One hope of the SGA in bringing alcohol back to the Ratt is to provide a gathering place for MSC students in the hope that it will foster a stronger sense of community on campus. Events such as Spring Week also serve the same purpose and it is important that such activities be continued.

The Spring Carnival has become a tradition of the spring semester, but just like the scenery on campus changes so do the events. It would be a great travesty to the students if they were denied their great social event of the season; therefore, we hope CLUB can successfully orchestrate a block party for the MSC community. The legacy of the Spring 1992 carnival will stay with most of us, but it doesn’t have to dampen the spirit of the Spring of 1993. We also hope the MSC administration will be helpful and loan their assistance to the students who are working diligently to provide a carnival substitute during Spring Week.

Colorado's Amendment Two Unfair

On Nov. 3, 1992, voters in Colorado voted to pass Amendment Two. This amendment overturned a part of the state's constitution that stated people in Colorado could not be denied housing on the basis of sexual orientation. This amendment affects the lives of all homosexual people in that state.

Now gay and lesbian people can be denied the right to buy a house in Colorado. The same day that voters overwhelmingly put Clinton in the White House, they symbolically put homosexuals out of their houses. Isn't that ironic? People were mad at Pat Buchanan and George Bush for condemning homosexual practices. People were happy that Clinton was for gay rights. Now who's happy?

Now, the mayor of Denver is against that vote and he has stated that he feels homosexuals are a minority like Blacks, Jews and women. However, it looks like he is the only one with that opinion because it was brought to his attention that if Amendment Two was about a real, classified minority it never would have made it to the ballot. Technically, it never could have made it. That is because the U.S. has laws forbidding discrimination based on race, religion or sex (gender, not orientation). They are called civil rights. However, the point was made. Why is this allowed?

Why is this such a big deal? We are talking about a preference. You do not see coffee drinkers bushes sea drinkers. We may not understand why some people are gay, but we know it is not a conscious choice. Some people are condemning others because of something that is a part of them; kind of like being a different color or religion. We, no gay man is going to wake up one morning and say, "What am I doing? Boy, was I stupid. From now on I like women. Bring me a Playboy!" And no sooner is Henry Kissinger going to run out and get the new Beanie Boys CD. It just does not happen that way.

We can tolerate other peoples' preferences and views. I may hate rap music, but it is your God-given right to listen to it. You don't want anyone censoring your music. You don't want discrimination against Blacks, Jews, Hispanics, women and others. So you shouldn't want discrimination against gays. If not for humane reasons, then at least think about what (or who) is next. Ever hear of the domino effect? Remember the Holocaust, or African Slavery, and countless other atrocities.

I think one reason this is such a tough topic to deal with is because of nationwide homophobia. People are afraid of homosexuals. Some fear that they will be turned into one. Some fear they might actually be gay, or perceived gay, and don't want to deal with them. That should be the same people who believe the South won the Civil War and if a woman kisses a man she will get pregnant. The rest of us should know better, and if we don't, then we should try to learn the truth. The only way to stop hate is to learn and to educate.

Clinton's talk good, but is his game?

For 200 years the status quo has been preserved and propagated in this country. Then why does one measly election fool so many people into believing things are going to change? How could anyone be swayed by the prevaricated and staged events of a campaign? Dollars count more than votes and actions speak louder than words. The new administration will preserve the system and its benefactors' vast wealth.

I am so tired of all these people and celebrities telling you things will be different and we've got a President who cares. Wake up! Just because the guy likes rock and plays sax does not mean he is one of us. Clinton is not the Messiah and he will not make any significant changes.

Clinton will most certainly talk a good game about what he is going to do, but don't believe him until it is done. We are made to be fools with ridiculous slogans like, "Choose or lose." How does choosing between two of the same thing allow me a choice at all? Clinton's job is to get the masses back in line in order to offset the growing tide of disenchantment and disgust with this system.

Clinton's job is to get the masses back in line in order to offset the growing tide of disenchantment and disgust with this system. He has to make us feel that we have a stake in this capitalist society and that things are going to get better. Then it will take another twenty years for the people of this country to see that we are but laborers for corporations to profit from.

Clinton's job is to get the masses back in line in order to offset the growing tide of disenchantment and disgust with this system.
I used to have this bike, see; a red, white and blue Schwinn with one gear and pedal brakes. I got it for Christmas one year from my grandfather, who in the spirit of Christmas, got my sister an identical model, and myself a Collier bicycle. We both had to wear hard hats, darting in and out of drive-ins during excursions around the neighborhood. My bike didn't have a kickstand, thus, allowing easy mounting and dismounting. I still fail to see the logic in this, considering the differences in male and female anatomy, but I'm staying far away from any tangible point...

Anyway, I used to take my patriotic Schwinn bike on surreal excursions around the neighborhood, darting in and out of drive-ins, jumping curbs, running over domestic animals. It was a gas. The best journey by far was the daily trek to Trezza's Deli to buy my father two packs of cigarettes (always two, never one). I'd be rolling around the yard or trying to convince my brother to eat dirt or something when my father would roll out the window, "Jimmy! Jimmy! Get off your brother and come here!" He'd slip me three dollars and say, "Two packs of Winstons and bring me the change." Change? Changed? From three dollars! Sometimes I could convince him to let me buy a popsicle or something, but most of the time I'd coast down the hill near Pine Street with quar­ters plinking out of my pockets onto the pavement. That was around 1979. I had even more about me than I do now. O.K. So it's 1993. By now the Schwinn is in some landfill on Staten Island and my own cigarette consumption makes my Dad seem like an aerobics instructor. But I have a point here. Cigarettes cost about $1.15 back then. Can you imagine? If cigarettes cost $1.15 a pack nowadays I might have enough spare change to eat, but alas... And if I had attended MSC back in 1979, for one I'd be like Donnie Howser, being nine years old and all. More importantly, I might have been able to use the space change from my trips to Trezza's to pay for tuition.

Not literally of course, but like the cost of cigarettes, the cost of college is getting absolutely ridiculous. Five years ago (have I been in school that long?) tuition was about half of what it is now. Now, there's not much we can do about the cost of cigarettes, your ever-active and lovable SGA (you know, Student Government Association Inc.), the kids who spend half a million dollars a year to make MSC worth going to is conducting an enormous lobbying effort to ensure that the state college system is given its fair share of the incredible shrinking state budget. There'll be letter writing campaigns, rallies, people running naked through College Hall, snift like that. It is going to be a very stressful semester for everyone I'm sure, for the External Affairs Committee of the SGA especially, but we're going to need the help of the entire student body if we're to rise in any way successful. The other state college's SGA's are working with MSC so that we are a united voice in the state (although I'm not sure if the SGA President from Kear is going do the naked running Col­lege Hall thing... I can ask him though). If you've never been in­volved on campus before, here is your golden opportunity. Perhaps if you are so inclined you should take part in the petition to be an SGA legislator, which is a terrible mistake. Five years ago I happened to watch a television documentary on Martin Luther King Jr. and was so impressed by the courage and the passion. The speech I heard him make on television prompted me to go to the library and do my own research.

Step two: An administratior^student agreement that emphasizes if students lobby for money for higher education in New Jersey, we want a say as to how this money is allocated on our campus.

Step Three: Rallies/Rallies/Rallies...everywhere and anywhere! Spring 1993 promises to be exciting and productive for the students of New Jersey with the help and leadership from us, the students at MSC.

No Appetite for Apathy

I am presently in my second semester of graduate school and it shames me that through almost 20 years of school, I have never been taught about Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. The American education system has missed the boat. I am a 24 year old Caucausian graduate student and never did any of my teachers, professors or mentors teach me or my fellow classmates about Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Only three weeks ago I happened to watch a television documentary on King and was so impressed by the courage and the passion. The speech I heard him make on television prompted me to go to the library and do my own research.

I just completed reading Strength to Love, by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and I am angered that it took me nearly a quarter of a century to read, learn and understand this great human being, King, by far, was one of the most influential persons in 20th Century America, yet my educators never taught him.

Over the years I have learned about the Greeks, the Jews, the Incas, the Romans and basically every other outstanding historical event and/or historical contributor but King. Now that I have read Strength to Love, I can begin to understand the frustration amongst many Black Americans. White America has too often presented the negative side of Black people, or at least a very limited viewpoint. King was and is one of the greatest inspirations to humanity yet I do not understand how hundreds upon hundreds of educators, in my experience, have allowed a man of his caliber to slip through the cracks of the education system.

In Strength to Love, King expressed how people can learn to acquire a well balanced life. He discussed the stupidity of scare; the虚norature of man, and many other aspects of life which can be used to inspire and/or improve mankind. King possessed wisdom, integrity, religion and a good educational background. From all the philoso­phers that I have studied to date, I am most impressed by the teachings of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. I hope that in the future, it does not take students 24 years to encounter him.

Thanks for the dream Dr. King.

Rome wasn't built in a day. Neither was MSC.

Did you ever hear the saying "a day late and a dollar short"? Well, as a graduating senior of Montclair State College, I feel that saying will be my class motto. Carpe Diem, E Pluribus Unum, The Buck Stops Here, In God We Trust, Isn't That Special?, and this saying. One more time, we as graduating seniors are a Day Late and a Dollar Short. How can this be, you ask. What are we late for or short of? We have everything at this esteemed institution of higher learning. Well...I'll tell you faithful reader.

First, let us talk about that famous pizza serving, soap opera watching, hangout called the Rat (For the freshman reading this, I have just lost you because you have never enjoyed bear with me). Rati"* a restaurant or dining location the cellar of a building that sells beer." So from the time that I moved in as a freshman in 1989, that place called Rat is not even a Rat! For those of you who missed something the Rat has not served beer for at least the last four years.

Now, supposedly the Rat is finally getting alcohol. YAY. When? And, if so when is the Rat going to open? I've already spent my entire senior year without the Rat. Likewise, as mentioned before, the entire freshman class has not even been inside the Rat! I am sick of eating pizza that has been reheated because it was brought over from Blanton Hall. The Taj Mahal took less time to build. Speaking of building, let's talk about some construction that is being done against it. Pros for the improvement, and expansion. What could burn the building that is taking the floor of the music space, the floor that would be my future home. I'll need to speak to the Rat again and say farewell. I have a feeling that it will just go right in the middle of campus without literally overnight, some might say that this is a senseless sacrifice for a greater goal. But this minor sacrifice has been going on for over four years and one worst thing that could happen is you have no ground to see what I am now saying for! They say Rome wasn't built in a day, but this is ridiculous!

Lately (only for lack of article space, not lack of things to talk about), there is the subject of finally getting alcohol. YAY. When? And, if so where is the Rat going to open? I've already spent my entire senior year without the Rat. Likewise, as mentioned before, the entire freshman class has not even been inside the Rat! He became friends with Dr. Stephen Koepp, a zoology professor at Montclair State, while Koepp was visiting Kenya with his family last July.

John works at a famous safari lodge in Kenya, where people from all over the world stay when visiting the country. Before this job, John stayed in his village and took care of his cattle. But now, he holds lectures for the visitors who want to learn about the Maasai culture. That is how John met Dr. Stephen Koepp (more on their meeting later).

John dresses in his traditional Maasai tribal clothing. He wears a bright red top that is flanked by numerous colored beads hanging from his neck. Around his waist he wears a red-plaid piece of clothing that halts about four inches above his knees. I asked John if his clothing had any specific cultural or religious meaning.

"My clothing is a part of my tradition," John says. "I don't wear any kind of European clothes. I always wear my traditional clothing. In our culture, nobody wears Western clothes, except maybe two or three people who are attending school. The meaning of all this clothing is to show that you are a warrior and actually does not have a lot more meaning than that.

"The reason for wearing red is for protection against dangerous animals in Kenya. Another reason for wearing red in our society is for helping each other, because you can see someone from a long distance and then help the person." HOW DR. KOEPP AND JOHN MET

The reason that Dr. Koepp was in Kenya was because he had applied for a global education grant to the college.

"I wanted to go to East Africa," Koepp says, "and take advantage of a unique opportunity that was available to me.

Koepp's older brother is in charge of important non-government relief agents in East Africa who work to help refugees from war-torn, famine and drought-stricken countries. Dr. Koepp went to Kenya with his family with the primary purpose of visiting refugee camps. But a secondary purpose included a short safari to Western Kenya.

During the safari Koepp and his family stayed at the lodge where John's work was to translate the Maasai culture into English. Koepp quickly got to know John.

"He loves to talk and listen and learn," Koepp says of John. "We became friends in three days. We accepted one another for who we were; race was unimportant to us. In the Maasai culture, people are taught to accept everybody. John felt comfortable when he saw acceptance from American people.

John said that he would come to America to lecture on the Maasai culture. He promised Dr. Koepp that he would visit Montclair State to talk to students. Dr. Koepp promised that his home would be John's home. Fortunately, they both kept their promise.

"Acceptance means everything," Dr. Koepp adds. "Too many people want everybody to be what 'they' are."

John says that the lectures he gives to American students is a very good experience for him, for Dr. Koepp and for all the students. It gives them an opportunity to learn about a different culture.

"There are some rich people who want to go to different countries and see other cultures," John says. "But some people cannot visit another nation because they cannot afford it. I think it is better to know a person who is able to talk like me, instead of reading a book about the culture. Some books tell the truth, some don't. It is very important for students to personally meet someone from the culture."

John is visiting the United States for a total of three months. He has already spent two weeks with Dr. Koepp and his family. He will now go to Michigan for two and a half months where he will meet up with his sponsor, Jill Bush, before returning to Kenya.

Write a paragraph explaining the significance of Magellan's expedition.

A gas mask, a smoke grenade... and a helicopter... that's all I ask.

Today for Sean and I'll I've brought a tiny model of nature: a single, simple lake.

I think we might all learn a lesson from how tiny little things can devastate a capital.

And now, while we're at it, I'll be leaving you all outside.

Tod is: I'm sorry. But even though our brains are made of water like every other one, when you do them it turns them into boring molecules of water. It's a marvel of maturity: a single snowflake.

But I'm afraid my strategy is to run like a squirrel. It's hard to come up with a good plan.

I know that I suffer a disease, and that my life is filled by an urge to say totally incorrect stuff to women.

I think you're in good shape, man!

Internships: Preparation for career success

Everybody knows it is easier to get a job once you have some related experience. One of the best ways to prepare for the job market is through an internship. An internship is defined as any career related experience, whether paid or unpaid, short term or long term, full time or part time. Some internships can last for an undefined period. They can take place in any work or service setting—from a research institute to a wildlife refuge, from a bank to a community health center. They may be part of an educational program and carefully monitored and evaluated for academic credit, such as Cooperative Education which is a supervised, structured and salaried program. Or, they can be part of an independent study that you develop yourself with a professor.

The important element that distinguishes an internship from a short-term job or volunteer work is the opportunity it gives the intern to gain real work experience in a professional environment. That experience can give you an advantage if it is related to the kind of work you want to do when you graduate. If you are unsure about your career direction, an internship can help you explore career areas you may not have thought about before. An internship will also assist you in developing a network of friends and business professionals who can be helpful to you when you graduate.

Besides getting experience and putting yourself in a good position to get a full-time job, an internship can be a valuable learning experience which contributes to your career development as you explore interests and employment opportunities and demonstrate competencies in a work setting. Internships give you an opportunity to be an active member of your community as you participate in addressing local or societal problems and contributes to personal and social growth as you discover and reinforce skills and interests in a new environment. Identifying your skills and building on them helps you become a more marketable person. Internships expand your knowledge of the job market and different career fields which will assist you in your full-time job search. Finding a full-time job in the current economic environment is tough and competitive.

Preparation begins long before the actual job search. An internship can be the preparation you will need to be successful in the full-time job market.

Now that we have discussed the benefits of doing an internship, where do you learn about internships? The Career Services office posts numerous paid and unpaid internships, some requiring an application process with deadlines well in advance of the actual start of the internship and some requiring just a resume and an interview. Some examples of these internships are: Governor Florio internships in government offices, The Smithsonian Environmental Research center for internships in the environmental sciences, Metropolitan Museum of Art for internships for students with strong art backgrounds. In the summer, large organizations run internship programs such as FBI Honors Program, National Park Service and the AT&T program. Career Services also has a variety of guides listing numerous internship opportunities. In addition, large and small employers in the area post career-related internships with Career Services.

Don't wait. Start your search today for an internship in your field or in a field you want to learn more about. Preparation for tomorrow's job market starts today. With fewer opportunities and more competition, an internship can give you the required confidence, experience and focus you will need to be happy and successful in your career.

The MSC Art Gallery is presenting its first exhibition of the spring semester. Marcella Scalise and Zhang Wei are currently exhibiting their artwork in the Main Gallery, located in Life Hall. Marcella Scalise is a New England artist, whose work is done in oilsticks and charcoal. The oilstick drawing show expressionistic lines of vivid mixed hues. Oil sticks are usually thick and compact so the media is both pressed to the paper and then sometimes scratched off. Noticeable too, are the images of nature abstracted: eagles, water and organic shell-like shapes.

Such environmental figures are then repeated in Scalise’s finely executed charcoal drawings. Here Scalise smoothes out the linear rhythms found in her oil stick drawings for a different effect that is soft and shadowy. There is an obvious workmanship shown through these pieces that expresses a great deal of control over the media. Charcoal, gradations of light and dark, create high contrast in the abstraction of a fish’s eye and subdued tones in another picture of its fin.

With a different approach to abstraction and the use of media, Zhang Wei approaches his paintings with much more minimal use of paint and color. Born in China, there is an apparent display of traditional Chinese art influences. The color range between neutral gray, black and whites to brighter, pure hues of red, yellow and purple. The work is non-objective with compositions that appear to stretch from painterly drips and splatters to staining that achieves a translucent effect. Stylistically, Zhang Wei shows similarities to American color field artists and abstract expressionists.

These two artists will be giving informal lectures on their work before their receptions from 3-4pm, Thursday, February 4. The show, curated by Leon de Leeuw, professor of painting in the Fine Arts department, shall be exhibited till February 26. Gallery hours are Monday-Friday: 10a.m.-4p.m. and Saturday: 1pm.-5p.m.
Welcome, loyal readers, to the first installment of PROPHET BIGG for the year 1993. I hope everyone had a good break and the rest of that stuff, but let's get on with it -shall we? Now, sit back and relax as we gaze into the wonderful world of entertainment.

• The trailers have started running on Sly Stallone's latest venture Cliffhanger. Stallone plays some sort of mountain climber-rescuer or something who is chased around by some sort of bad guys. Stallone also reportedly wants to do another Rambo movie. His intent is to bring to a close the Rambo story much the way he did with the Rocky films.

• I made the mistake of paying full price to see Leprechaun over the break. I admit it. But the funny thing was it was one of the funniest movies I've seen this year. No kidding. So, if it was the intent of the producers to make a comedy, Bravo! If not, then I need me 6.50 back!

• As always, I recommend seeing live theatre as often as you are able. Over the break, I was able to get into the city and see Les Misérables for the first time. I went on Lea Solonga's opening night as Eppine. This character has also been portrayed recently by Debbie Gibson. Solonga has won the Tony Award for her role in the original company of Miss Saigon and is currently seen, or rather heard, in the new Disney classic Aladdin. She is the singing voice of Princess Jasmine, for those of you who have seen the film.

• I had a chance to speak with David Prowse of late and he had some interesting things to say to me. For those of you who don't know who David Prowse is he was the body of Darth Vader in the Star Wars trilogy of films. The voice of Vader was played by James Earl Jones. And I know some movie buffs will write in and ask if he was the body of Vader when Luke pulled his mask off in The Return of the Jedi and the answer is no. So anyway, Prowse tells me that he recently spoke to George Lucas, who created the whole Star Wars phenomenon, about future films. According to Prowse, Lucas is seriously considering another trilogy of films, the first of which could come out in '96. Now, I know what you're saying, he said it before. He's backed out before. As late as last year, in fact, he said he would do another trilogy but backed out when The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles television program, which he is involved in, got picked up for another season and just as quickly dropped by ABC. This, according to Prowse, is what has prompted Lucas back into film making. That and the fact that 1996 is the 20th anniversary of the release of Star Wars. I guess we'll just wait and see.

I encourage all of my readers to write the Prophet with your questions and comments about any entertainment field. You can send those letters to PROPHET BIGG, c/o The Montclairian, Montclair State College Student Center Annex, Montclair, N.J., 07043. I will attempt to answer all those questions in the issue following my getting the letter.

Finally, some PROPHET BIGG notes. To Sean Carroll, I will miss you, man, and don't worry. We'll take care of the squid for ya. To absent friends, I miss you too. Where are you? And to all of you Happy (belated) Groundhog Day!

Movie Corner

Matinee by Mark Loughlin

Matinee is the new film from filmmaker and Morristown native Joe Dante, a director, who has always had a very playful and nostalgic approach to filmmaking. This time out, he has a very broad canvas to work from. Matinee is a period film set during the Cuban missile crisis. The entire town of Key West Florida is in a state of panic, in the grocery stores, people are fighting over boxes of Shredded Wheat, and in school, children are having atomic bomb drills. Meanwhile, a bunch of young kids are desperately trying to come of age, while still managing to take in a Saturday matinee of a movie called Meat!" Half man, half Ant, All Terror! This is no ordinary showing though, the film's flamboyant producer, the expert on shock, Lawrence Woolsey (John Goodman, in a very likeable performance) will be in attendance.

Wooley is a fictional version of the horror showman of the early 60's who used to wire seats to the audience and other such outlandish schemes to get them involved. So, while the world is in a panic anyway, what better time to open a horror movie? The theatre is installed with Woolsey's patented process called Rumble Rama which can simulate earthquakes and other natural and unnatural disasters. Well, you can guess what happens, or better yet, you can see the movie. In fact, if you are at all a fan of movies, Matinee is what they call in the film reviewing business, "a must see." The real part of the movie is entertaining in itself, but much of the really funny stuff comes from the nitwitty schlocky "film within a film" Meat! Where else can you get dialogue like, "Bill, when are you going to be able to look at the man and put the insect aside?"

Oddly enough, the characters in the real life Key West are almost a match for the oddballs in Meat! This is 1962, a time when teachers tell you to eat red meat with every meal, and greasy bikers write poetry. It is the eye for detail that makes Matinee a nice change from the norm. With some really likeable performances, a great score by Jerry Goldsmith and some very beautiful cinematography by John Hora, Matinee is a good time, even at night.

A Few Good Men

by Mike Cappadona

Director Rob Reiner gives us a powerful and thrilling courtroom drama about two young Marines who are accused of murder. The movie opens with the two Marines performing a "Code Red" on a fellow officer who is out of line; that is, they attack the fellow officer in the middle of the night to teach him a lesson. During the raid, the attacked officer is accidentally killed, and that sets the stage for the entire film.

Tom Cruise plays Lieutenant Daniel Kaffee, a young Navy lawyer who is assigned to defend the two Marines. Cruise's performance is worthy of winning him an Oscar for Best Actor as he mixes powerful courtroom persona with comic relief. As Kaffee, his job is to prove to the court that his clients were "ordered" to perform a Code Red, and therefore should not be held responsible for murder.

So, while the world is in a panic anyway, what better time to open a horror movie? The theatre is installed with Woolsey's patented process called Rumble Rama which can simulate earthquakes and other natural and unnatural disasters. Well, you can guess what happens, or better yet, you can see the movie. In fact, if you are at all a fan of movies, Matinee is what they call in the film reviewing business, "a must see." The real part of the movie is entertaining in itself, but much of the really funny stuff comes from the nitwitty schlocky "film within a film" Meat! Where else can you get dialogue like, "Bill, when are you going to be able to look at the man and put the insect aside?"

A Few Good Men is Rob Reiner's best directorial project to date, and the film is certainly one of the year's best. Worth the seven bucks and then some.

Ruiz shines as track and field preps for Alden Invitational

by Mark Alan Belnay

As most of us were preparing for the onslaught of Super Bowl Sunday this past weekend, the MSC track and field team was getting down to business with meets at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and Princeton University. The meets proved tough competition from schools such as Mt. Saint Mary’s, Rider College, Navy, and the two host schools, Princeton and West Point.

As the six-foot hoagies and the unwanted relatives invaded your home, the men’s and women’s teams were leaving their mark once again on the oppositions track.

The men’s team once again displayed the talent of Neal Ruiz, of hills and valleys in terms of their performance. Ruiz finished to lapse his previous school record of 6.32, set at last year’s NCAA Championships. The men’s team once again on the oppositions track. The women’s team didn’t perform up to the level of excellence it has set for itself and head coach John Blanton seemed a little disappointed with the team’s effort at Princeton. As the defending National Champions in the 1600-meter last two years, Blanton expects the upperclassmen to provide the leadership he needs to keep the women’s squad in stride.

After a week of tough training and hard competition, the NJAC rivalry between the Red Hawks and the Trenton State Lions. This match that took place last week, went right down to the wire. The Red Hawks came up a little short, dropping the match by only two points. The Red Hawks’ record is now 6-1 overall (1-1 NJAC).

They are on Sunday, Feb. 7 at 12 p.m. in the SUPPER 6 Tournament at Binghamton, N.Y. on Thursday, Feb 11th NJAC rival Knux 7 p.m. and finally to close out the season, the Long Island Championships on Feb. 20-21. This location is yet to be announced.

Weekly Sports:

MSC grapplers foiled by Trenton State, 21-19

by Nicole Feola

The MSC wrestling team is still competing and working harder than ever to remain a top force in the college wrestling world. A lot of action has taken place in the last week, including a lot of wrestling, and a lot of heart-stopping events. So let’s get started.

A major note to be made is that to MSC 177-pound senior wrestler, Jim Sloan, whose four victories in one week won him the prestigious honor of NJAC Wrestler of the Week. This is quite an accomplishment for this wrestler who has yet to lose a match this season.

Sloan, who was a Division III All-American in 1991, is 22-0 on the season, and won all of his four matches last week by pinning his opponents.

Now getting back to the main event in recent team competition: the NJAC rivalry between the Red Hawks and the Trenton State Lions. This match that took place last week, went right down to the wire. The Red Hawks came up a little short, dropping the match by only two points. They won this match losing by the narrowest margin. All the wrestlers gave their all, despite the loss. Two of those wrestlers who had an outstanding performances were Sloan, who collected the night’s only pin in 1:56 and senior 126-pounder Armando Nadarco, who won by the huge margin of 15-4.

This frustrating loss drops the Red Hawks’ record to 8-9 overall (1-1 NJAC). The season is quickly beginning to wind down, with only three more scheduled events for the MSC wrestlers.

As the six-foot hoagies and the unwanted relatives invaded your home, the men’s and women’s teams were leaving their mark once again on the oppositions track.

The journey to Princeton was a factor in decreasing in minutes was a factor in Grant’s decision because he could not be reached for comment.

Former co-captain Gillette leaves MSC hoops for Trenton

Gillette, 26, transferred to the Red Hawks’ NJAC rival Trenton State College.

The 6’0’’ 165-pound guard-forward was once considered the team’s best defensive player and was a two-year starter and key contributor to the 1992-93 team.

Prior to this season MSC head coach Nick Del Tufo characterized Gillette as “a scrappy player who takes advantage of what he is given.”

Last season, Gillette played nearly 20 minutes per game and averaged 9.7 points and 5.3 rebounds per game.

This season, Gillette has decreased to just under 22 per game and his scoring average dipped to 6.1 points per game.

It is not known whether his decrease in minutes was a factor in Gillette’s decision because he could not be reached for comment.

Bills prove that third time isn't always a charm in "Super Bore"

The process starts with the two-a-day drills in July at NFL training camps throughout the country. It continues with an Aug. of pre-season games and excitement of the full season to come. Then for 17 weeks from Sept. through December, every Saturday night, every Sunday and Monday night, every team has a chance to play in the Super Bowl.

Your team wins some games and all that, but the opportunity to play in the playoffs and ultimately, have a shot at the championship of the entire league.

The season is long, but it's finally cut in half when the two champions of the AFC and NFC are determined. Thus, you have the participants for that year's big game: the Super Bowl.

This season the Dallas Cowboys basically steamrolled through the regular season. People still didn't believe. Then they beat up on the Philadelphia Eagles in the second week of the playoffs. The buzz was still there but the Cowboys couldn't beat the defending Super Bowl champs. They beat the Eagles, too.

Yet there were still some doubts about the Dallas defense. And when the Bills went to Dallas, many people thought they'd be beaten by their own fans. The Bills looked like a different team that week. They had a whole new defense and they were able to score on them. They won the last two games on the road and entered the Super Bowl four times in the past two years.

So, the stage is set. The best team in each conference were going to battle for what every football player steps on the field for, besides the paychecks.

But wait a minute. First, the fans must endure the two weeks of media hype and preparation that proceed the big game. However, the moment finally does come. Whether you're at home having your own Super Bowl party with family and friends, or at a bar with your buddies or at someone else's house for a party, the Super Bowl kickoff couldn't come fast enough.

Now for the two best butt heads and put on the show you could ask for, but rarely lives up to expectations. In fact, in the last ten Super Bowls played, eight have been lopsided and seven could have been decided by halftime.

Sunday's game, which was predicted to be the above set, just went along with the percentages of recent years. The winners have outscored the losers in the last ten Super Bowls 357-151, for an average margin of victory of 23.6 points. Do these sound like the best games of each year to you? I didn't think it would.

Only Super Bowls XXIII (49ers-20, Cincinnati Bengals-16) and XXV (New York Giants-20, Bills-19) have been entire games that were worth watching, the latter being the best Super Bowl ever played.

Sunday marked the first time in history that a team lost three Super Bowls in a row. The Bills have lost the three games to three different teams in the NFC East. Overall, the NFC continued its dominance over the AFC (nine straight victories).

Maybe they should cut out that extra media week again. It could keep the teams more focused on the job at hand. It's also possible that rhythms are being broken up by the extra week.

I know that these excuses are lame, but there has got to be some reason why the "big game" has turned into such a joke.

Is it possible that the NFC just has better teams than the AFC and will continue to dominate league year after year? If so, then maybe the NFC could just fight it out amongst themselves to determine who's football's best team. I certainly wouldn't mind watching it. It would sure beat watching the Bills lose every year, wouldn't it?

As the MSC swimming season comes to a close, the women cheer while the men brush off this season and look forward to next year.

MSC’s women swimmers closed the regular season with a record of 7-5. It was the team’s first winning season in five years.

On the other side of the coin, the men finished at 3-8, a downside from the incredible 8-2 record they posted just last season.

Over the holiday break, the MSC swim team was busy with its last dual meets.

The men came away with a 1-4 record during the break. Although many losses occurred, sophomore John Mitzak returned to the team academically sound. In just five meets, he placed first in all events.

The MSC men traveled to the Metropolitan Conference on Feb. 18-20, where they will compete to advance to the NCAA Division III Conference.

MSC’s individual hopefuls include senior captain Andrew Mitzak, who has won the fastest time (1.58.07) in the butterfly event three years running. The Profs went 28-25-2 at half-time.

Things didn’t go nearly as well in the second half for the Red Hawks. Rowan’s Debbie Flink dropped in 11 of her game-high 19 points in the final half.

Macey Dusewicz led the Red Hawks with 18 points for the winners on four three-point shots. Jennifer Zimmerman added 10 points for the Profs.

The Red Hawks are currently 7-2 at home. Their NJAC record (2-3) is behind only Cuneo and Kean. Rowan, ranked No. 5 in the nation, cruised through this season, so the Red Hawks had something to prove.

The Red Hawks dominated Rowan, 79-63, at the end of the first half and never looked back.

The MSC men’s basketball team was overwhelmed by an explosive Rowan College offensive attack, 79-53, Saturday at Glassboro.

Rowan, ranked No. 2 nationally in Division III, played a well-balanced scoring effort, as four players reached double figures. Terrance Stewart had twenty points and Michele Burden netted 18 to pace the Profs (17-0 overall, 12-0 NJAC).

It was Burden’s six points in the opening minutes, that staked Rowan to a 10-0 lead.

Senior forward Frank Kraft was praised for his diving excellence by McLaughlin.

Sophomore Paulo Madeira has also been a consistent performer in the breaststroke for the men’s team.

The women’s team finished its season with a bang.

Yardina and Michele Opalka captured 17 first place finishes over break.

Yardina, a senior, was a tremendous team leader along with senior co-captain Susan Hoffman.

"Yardena was excellent all season and Susan improved with every stroke. They were a big part of the team’s success,” said McLaughlin.

Women's and men's swim teams finish seasons at opposite ends by Karen Plumstead

Women's basketball has five game winning streak snapped by Rowan, 70-52 by Keith A. Idee

Both of the MSC basketball teams were handed losses by Rowan College on Saturday, with the women dropping a 70-52 decision.

The women Red Hawks had a little more to play for than the men did. Although they cannot catch up to Rowan in the conference standings, the game was a good way to get the recent improvement that the Red Hawks have made.

Going into the game, the MSC women had nine straight losses and were playing solid basketball as the post-season slowly approaches.

Rowan (16-1, 12-0 NJAC) has cruised through this season, so the Red Hawks had something to prove.

They also went out to average a 59-56 loss to Rowan on Nov. 28 at Panzer Gym.

MSC put together 20 minutes of good basketball and fought the Profs to a 28-28 tie at half-time.

The lone bright spot offensively for MSC was junior forward Keith Hines. The 6’5” forward Keith Hines. The 6’5” forward had 15 points and also contributed 10 points for the Profs.

The Red Hawks are currently 7-2 at home and have been good at keeping leads. In games that they have led at halftime, they have won fifteen of twenty.

The Red Hawks are currently 7-2 at home and have been good at keeping leads. In games that they have led at halftime, they have won fifteen of twenty.

Since our last issue, the Red Hawks have won 9 of 11 games.

After starting off the season at 1-4, MSC has turned up the intensity and has posted a victory after victory. If the trend continues, the Red Hawks could meet up with Rowan again in the NJAC playoffs that begins on Wednesday, Feb. 24.

RED HAWK NOTES...Going into last night’s game, freshman Lisa Villata needed only 20 steals to break MSC’s all-time single season record. The record was set by Allie Dolce, who swiped 180 steals in the 1979-80 season. Senior center Shannon Shaffer needed 99 points and 57 rebounds going into last night’s game to become only the third player in MSC history to score 1,000 points and record 1,000 rebounds.

The other two players were Carol Blaze and Pat Cosulich. Shaffer, an All-American candidate, currently leads the team in scoring (14.6 ppm) and rebounding (15.1). She has also led MSC in rebounding in every game this season. The Red Hawks are currently 7-2 at home and have been good at keeping leads. In games that they have led at halftime, they have an impressive 8-2. Overall, MSC has scored 1,011-950. If the Red Hawk’s five game winning streak continues, the schedule will see conference rivals Trenton State, Rutgers Newark and Rutgers Camden pay visits to Panzer Gym.

MSC's Greg Fowler and Chris Jackson each had nine points to give Hines some scoring support, but the Profs just exhibited superior play and their quest for an undefeated season was preserved for one more game.

Red Hawk Notes... MSC’s Kean game winning streak was preserved for one more game.
