MSC's ROTC to be eliminated unless homosexual ban is lifted

by Heather Bushby

The ROTC program at MSC will be eliminated in the fall if the Department of Defense does not change its policy of denying an opportunity for gay and lesbian individuals to seek commissions in the Armed Forces.

Provost Richard Lynde, Vice-President of Academic Affairs, sent a letter to Major William E.M. Smith of the Military Science Department in January. The letter said that the Department of Defense has until the end of the spring semester to change the policy or MSC will “terminate the informal agreement” with the ROTC program, “delete references to the ROTC program in revisions of official Montclair State publications”, and the “Military Science courses will not be cross-listed in the Schedule of Courses booklet for the Fall, 1993 semester.”

Smith said that due to the “sensitivity of the situation” and “military regulations” he could make “no comment” on the situation.

Lynde said the decision by the administration to eliminate the ROTC program came after the College Senate recommended last spring that “if the Montclair State College ROTC does not rescind its ban against gay men and women by the end of the spring semester, 1993, that it not be allowed to further recruit on this campus and that all connection with the ROTC be severed at the point of graduation of the last ROTC student.”

Dr. Edward Martin, dean of students, said that the intent of the College is to “correct the program” and “if progress is being made the college will hold off any termination.”

Lynde said that there will be “almost no effect” on the students from the termination of the ROTC program. Information about the ROTC program will be more difficult to find and students will have to register for military science courses at Seton Hall. The credits will be transferable, and the termination should not affect any scholarships given through the ROTC program.

The ROTC program has never been based on the campus of MSC, due to the fact that the number of students enrolled in the program has been so small, Lynde said.

The ROTC program is based at Seton Hall. Previously, students were able to register for military science course through MSC and the credits would be transferred from Seton Hall automatically.

There are currently approximately eight students in the program, Smith said.

If the regulations were to change, Lynde said he would be “very happy” to see the program back on campus.

Board of Trustees receives Governor Florio's budget recommendations

by Kelly Schab

During the Board of Trustees meeting on March 11, Governor James Florio’s budget recommendations were presented.

There will be no new taxes because the money will come from increased revenue growth, income tax, sales tax, corporate taxes and other taxes.

In the fiscal year of 1993, higher education received $964 million. For the fiscal year of 1994, the appropriation will be $1026 million which is a $62 million increase.

To MSC, the funded salary program received $3.5 million and the capital construction received $600,000. Interdepartmental transfers received $2,332 million dollars, additional programs received $482,000 and early retirement got $750,000.

In an address to the Board, SGA Legislator Carl Zeitz cited the many violations of the Bohm Hall fire system that are in compliance with the code of 1971. He also cited the vacancies of the first, second and fourteen floors of the building.

On the first floor, at ground zero, rooms are unlocked so that anyone can gain access. They can then unlock the windows and let outsiders in, said Zeitz.

“Those floors are an accident waiting to happen,” said Zeitz.

“Bohm Hall is part of the priority of the Board. There will be installation within the next four to five months of the entire system,” said Chairman Robert Altman.

Women's programs lose needed state funding

by Vera Lawlor

Growth of the Women’s Studies Program at Montclair State will be stunted if Governor Jim Florio’s proposed 1994 budget is passed, according to Dr. Lorraine Mayfield-Brown. The budget contains no funding for the N.J. Project, which acts as a support system for women studies programs throughout the state.

“We are pressing right now to see that the program will be funded,” said N.J. Project Director, Paula Rothenberg, who runs the program from William Paterson State College. The Project is a national model for integrating issues of women, gender, race and ethnicity into the curriculum.

The Women’s Studies Program at Montclair State is affiliated with over a dozen departments and hopes to expand even further.

“Many members of faculty came and heard these approaches, and it enabled them to rethink their curriculums,” said Mayfield-Brown. “It made them aware of the contributions of women to the sciences.”

Rothenberg said that although the N.J. Project believes in women’s studies, it want to encourage integration. “We don’t think people to see a women’s studies program as an excuse for not integrating women into our courses,” Rothenberg said.

As part of its effort to create an inclusive curriculum, the N.J. Project publishes a journal titled Transformation, twice a year. The journal is mostly written by faculty from colleges around the state. Mayfield-Brown, Adele McCollum and Mary Holly are on the editorial board for the journal. Both Mayfield-Brown and McCollum contributed articles in 1991 to the journal which is distributed free of charge to New Jersey residents.

Faculty and administration from Montclair as well as other colleges in the state have attended conference sponsored by the program. They have also had the opportunity to avail of consultant visits by nationally recognized scholars, and have received funding to do summer research.

Students also benefit directly from the program.

Undergraduate students receive awards for excellence in feminist studies, and some have

The battle for room 112E heats up

March 12, 1993

TO: Kevin Colligan, Editor-in-Chief, The Montclarion
FROM: Gourj Sadhwani, SGA President

RE: ROOM 112E

As you know, Room 112E is currently allotted to The Montclarion. In the past, the Syndicate has utilized this office space but, due to the lack of availability of office space in the Student Center Annex and a desperate need for a Legislative Office, the SGA feels that Room 112E would be best utilized as a SGA Legislative Office.

Understanding the difficulty and unfairness of The Montclarion moving out of Room 112E during mid-semester, the SGA asks that the change occur as of June 1, 1993.

Thanking you in advance for your anticipated cooperation.

TO: Gourj Sadhwani, SGA President
FROM: Kevin Colligan, Editor-in-chief, The Montclarion

RE: Room 112E

While I am pleased that you did realize the “difficulty and unfairness” resulting from your unprecedented decision to strip office space from a functioning organization, I am dismayed at your continued resolve to follow through with such steps and the manner in which you have chosen to do so.

Room 112E has always belonged to The Montclarion and I feel that your attempt to obscure that fact is an insult to the intelligence of all involved. Your insinuation that The Syndicate, our now-defunct monthly magazine, was a separate entity from The Montclarion seems a deliberate attempt to weaken our undeniable claim to our vital office space. Tactics such as these are underhanded and have no place in a government seeking to serve the best interests of the students.

I would like to suggest that an independent, unbiased committee consisting of both SGA legislators and Class One Organization members be formed in order to reconcile the situation to the satisfaction of both parties. A solution to the shortage of office space can, and should, be reached via respectful negotiation and compromise, not arbitrary bullying.

Ironically, the “desperate” situation could have been averted if not for the shortsightedness of your office. At the start of the academic year, the demise of the Human Relations Organization left you seeking organizations to fill empty office space. Perhaps you should have considered the Legislature before choosing to “allocate” office space to the Class Three Organization you headed the year before.

Campus Police Report

Non-student involved in theft on campus charged with burglary, theft and more

compiled by Kelly J. Schab

3/30 Investigators from the Essex County prosecutors office to assist in the arrest of Saleem S. Pasha, an employee at the bookstore. He was arrested for facing a witness in contempt of a judicial order.

Suspicious Activity 3/30 A female found a male sitting in a car reading a pornographic magazine and masturbating. Officers checked the area and saw a male sitting in a car but no positive ID could be given. No further action was taken.

Property Damage 3/30 An employee from Russ Hall found that the portrait of Walter Kopps had burn holes around the face, eyes and chin.

Trespassing/Assault 3/23 Edward Chen, a former student banned from school grounds for previous harassment charges, was found trespassing. He also pressed charges against Willy Warly, a current student for assault. Warly also pressed charges against Chen for assault. The complaints, which were over ongoing problems, are answerable in Montclair Municipal Court.

Arrest for Stolen Vehicle 3/31 A stolen white Corvette was found in the field house on 2/11. A maintenance employee was arrested and arraigned on the 31st.

Recovered Stolen Motor Vehicle 2/23 Police recovered a car stolen from East Orange in lot 30.

Stolen Motor Vehicle 3/23 A student's car was stolen from lot 30.

Theft 3/19 A purse of an employee of Panzer gym was stolen from her office.

3/19 A student reported that a CD player was stolen on March 7 but he didn't notice that it was stolen until the 19th.

The Candidates for SGA President

George Calle

George Calle, a junior history major, is running for the position of SGA president.

The experience that he can bring to the job includes one year as legislative assistant for the SGA in which he was voted "Legislator of the Year"; Director of External Affairs for SGA for two years; Voting Student Member of College Senate for two years; writer of Peculiar People and Wigging Wonders for two years; avid smoker and all-around nice guy; and Organizer of Tuition Increase Protests/Takeover of College Hall.

His goals as president include to bring vibration to campus and "make the campus spin like a top." He says he can provide leadership, enthusiasm and a sense of cooperation throughout organizations. He will also maintain autonomy for Greek organizations and Class One organizations, establish a Greek newsletter to show of their accomplishments and educate students in regards to their rights, i.e., residence life, free press and bureaucratic rights.

Calle wants to establish and maintain a strong working relationship with administration but in the same way have the balls to stand up for students when the administration is not working in student's best interests. He wants to recruit new, young and fresh faces into the SGA, such that they can bring in new blood and to be the kind of president that doesn't sit in the office. He wants to establish a relationship with students so that they know they can go to him about anything.

ENDORSED

James "Appetite" Cotter

SGA presidential candidate, James Appetite Cotter, is a senior history major.

The experience that he can bring to the job includes one year as legislative assistant for the SGA in which he was voted "Legislator of the Year"; Director of External Affairs for SGA for two years; Voting Student Member of College Senate for two years; writer of Peculiar People and Wigging Wonders for two years; avid smoker and all-around nice guy; and Organizer of Tuition Increase Protests/Takeover of College Hall.

His goals as president include to bring vibration to campus and "make the campus spin like a top." He says he can provide leadership, enthusiasm and a sense of cooperation throughout organizations. He will also maintain autonomy for Greek organizations and Class One organizations, establish a Greek newsletter to show of their accomplishments and educate students in regards to their rights, i.e., residence life, free press and bureaucratic rights.

Cotter wants to establish and maintain a strong working relationship with administration but in the same way have the balls to stand up for students when the administration is not working in student's best interests. He wants to recruit new, young and fresh faces into the SGA, such that they can bring in new blood and to be the kind of president that doesn't sit in the office. He wants to establish a relationship with students so that they know they can go to him about anything.

Rich Kunze

Rich Kunze, present SGA vice president and senior political science major, is running for the position of SGA president.

The experience that Kunze can bring to the job includes current SGA vice president; One and a half years as SGA Attorney General; member of honors program; student representative of Honor Student Advisory Committee, All-College Disciplinary Committee, Facilities on Space Allocation Committee and Alcohol Committee; and a member of Phi Sigma Alpha, the political science honors association.

As president, Kunze would focus on academic concerns with the students since education is the primary concern of a college. He would have an increase in library and computer lab hours, academic advising, and class size. He wants to halt the increase in class size; higher enough professors to ensure students get the classes they need. He says the primary concern is education, especially since we are turning into university. He also wants to help that becoming a university really means something and is not just a name change. He wants the changes to benefit both students and the college, especially when it comes to enrollment.

He said that he is running because he is continuing what he has been doing for the past four years, fighting for rights and views of the student body.

Kunze believes that a key thing that he can do is to know the student body is a greater degree of experience know-how in getting things accomplished. He knows the system and knows how to get things done through his effective leadership style. He also has a lot of integrity and the respect of his colleagues and faculty.

Referendum Questions:

1) Are you in favor of raising the SGA Fee from $3 to $3.50 a credit on a maximum of 12 credits per semester?

2) Are you in favor of having the SGA Fee adjusted each fiscal year with the cost of living index?
Candidates running unopposed:

Treasurer

James Henaghan

Senior accounting major, James Henaghan, is running unopposed for SGA Treasurer.

The experience that he brings to this job includes president of Accounting Society from '92-'93; SGA legislator for the past year; Appropriations Committee Chairman for Spring '93; and presently serves on Academic Affairs Committee and Multicultural Committee.

The Candidates for Board of Trustees Student Alternate

The Board of Trustees is akin to a board of directors on a large corporation. This is the body that is responsible for most of the major decisions at MSC. The Student Alternate, while not a voting member of the board, has the potential for a very large impact on MSC policy.

Here at MSC, Marchinchin has been in the Honor program; member of Honor Advisory Board (on Board there are professors, three students, and the director of the honor program) in which they voice opinions about honor students.

Marchinchin knows she can do the job and is willing to listen to people’s position and believes she an advantage of hers coming into the position is that she is open-minded.

Michael Costa

Student Alternate for the Board of Trustees candidate, Mike Costa, is a sophomore and a commercial recreation and tourism major.

His experience includes two years as an SGA legislator; three semesters as Appropriations Chair; sat under College Wide Intercollegiate Athletic Committee 91-'92; presently sitting under Campus Life Senate Committee; gave tours and interviews in Spring '92 for candidates of vacant vice president student affairs position; was selected to give tours and interviews to food services during bids; served on committee to reinstate alcohol; and pledgemaster of Theta Xi, social chairman, IFC representative and Greek council alternate.

The Islamic faith is definitely alive and thriving in the hearts of young Muslims at MSC. The Pakistani American Association, a newly founded organization, held its first gathering in the Student Center on March 4. Whoever thought that the Islamic faith was fading in the younger generation.

The students that attended came from various countries, such as Jordan, Pakistan and Bangladesh, but the one they all had in common was their faith in Islam. At present, the Muslim members are fasting for the whole month of Ramadan—which is one of the lunar months of the Muslim calendar, lasting thirty days. During this month, no food, drink, medicine, smoke or sensual pleasure may be taken from sunrise to sunset. In the evening, it is permitted to eat and drink, also before sunrise a meal is eaten to provide sufficient strength for the coming day's activities.

At the gathering, the members first started the evening with the opening of their fasting—which is called "Iffati". The Iffati occurs every evening after the sun sets and at this time, something sweet is eaten. After the Iffati, the students performed their ritual prayer. During the prayer, the men were lined in the front, while the women lined up behind the men. Leading the prayer was Rashid Mahmood, who is the vice-president of PAA.

During the remainder of the evening, the students enjoyed a variety of delicious Pakistani dishes from traditional sweets to very spicy. Although the students came from various backgrounds, they all enjoyed the evening.

Whether Muslim or non-Muslim, the PAA welcomes everyone. The purpose of the Association is to educate and help others to understand the Islamic faith. "We live in a country that has many cultures from different countries and we need to learn and understand each other. That is the only way misconceptions can be dealt with. The PAA is not just for Pakistanis or Muslims, but for anyone who wants to learn and explore other cultures," said Rashid Mahmood.

Choosing a major that's right for you

Selecting a major is one of the most meaningful decisions college students have to make. Some students are lucky and know, even before they come to college, what subjects they love and want to study. For majority, however, the decision comes with more difficulty. They may be fascinated by everything and thus, unable to decide or nothing is appealing and they're afraid to commit to anything. For still other students, parental pressure to major in subject X further complicates the situation. Worry about the future job market adds another layer of difficulty.

How then should the decision be made? The chart that follows indicates three important areas that students should research and think about before choosing a major:

Self Awareness
Each student faced with selecting a major needs to ask him or herself these questions: What do I like? What have I always been interested in? What do I care about? What values do I have? What matters to me? What am I good at? What skills do I have and what do I want to develop? Where do I want to be in ten years?

Career and Academic Awareness
Additionally, information must be obtained about careers and academic disciplines as indicated in the chart. As you go through this research process, remember that you are not alone. Get information about jobs from career counselors, librarians and family members. Read about careers and interview people in different occupations to learn about what a job is like and what types of people do well. (Use the Alumni Network in Career Services to find people to interview.) Learn about majors by reading course descriptions in the college catalog. Stop in the book store and skim required texts in different majors to check out your interest in particular subjects. Talk to faculty, academic advisors, and upperclassmen to learn about majors and what is required. Find out if an internship is part of the course work and what alumni are doing. Once you have done these things, consider what you have learned and take a few introductory courses in the major you have selected. Remember that nothing terrible happens if you should change your mind as you always have freedom to reconsider. You'll reduce the likelihood of changing your major, however, if you take the time to follow the process described above. You will also benefit by enjoying your college experience and performing well academically. With that success you'll feel more confident about planning your college career.

An Unamerican ROTC

Richard Lynde, Vice President of MSC Academic Affairs wrote to Major William E.M. Smith of the Military Science Department, rescinding the ROTC’s use of the MSC Campus if the ROTC does not change their anti-homosexual rules. This leaves eight students, currently enrolled in the ROTC left without this lucrative opportunity. While this is a shame, we at The Montclarion see it as a giant step for equality, which unfortunately for the eight, takes precedence.

The world is full of those all important first starts, those singular movements that said, “No your wrong.” Those small stands sporadically placed throughout history are what changed the world’s perspectives. Example, one bus, no seats, and a black woman alone to stand and say “No.” This is such an occasion for us as a campus to stand and say “No.”

It is time to stop all discrimination and get down to the business ahead of us. As new nations grow and develop, the job before us is to create the strongest defense against whomever rises as our enemy. Beyond issues of morality within the heated homosexual debate, how about realizing human rights? This country stands for freedom, it was built on the pursuit of freedom starting from the revolt against Great Britain all the way to the freedom from discrimination from color, class or religion. It is obvious in a social situation, discrimination will occur. But as leaders in our country, the ROTC as well all other national defense organizations should represent the concept they are defending. The rights of the people. The right to be free, the right to believe in whomever you choose. To have equality just by holding the privilege of being an American citizen.

America was built on the open end policy. You make of yourself what you will, all doors exist to be opened. Why are our leaders, such as the ROTC, trying to close those options to only certain groups?

The Montclarion believes in the policy of freedom within America, and we sympathize with all groups striving for this equality. When America was presented to the world in 1776, we stated that every citizen should have inaliable rights, such as the Right to Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness. If the ROTC believes in America, as all national defense organizations should, they should reread the Constitution, and learn that they are defending all the people to live in freedom, and with that free life they are allowed to pursue whatever goal they wish.
Relax and enjoy the neutral life

By Trish Barker

I was talking to my friend Neil the other day, and he said something to me that I found rather interesting. Neil is a Jainist (look it up), and call me prejudiced, but he said something to me that I found quite interesting.

"I have had a completely neutral day," he responded. When I asked him what he meant, he said, "I got a hundred on the Physics test I took last week, and I failed two Physics labs. Between my feelings about the two, the really good thing and the two not-so-big bad things, everything is neutral. And that makes me happy."

Neil is a Jainist (look it up), and call me prejudiced, but I must admit that he said something to me that I found quite interesting. I've always been a sucker for Eastern religions. Anyway, he came in one day looking rather pleased with himself, so I asked him what was up. "I have had a completely neutral day," he responded.

When I asked him what he meant, he said, "I have had a completely neutral day," he responded. When I asked him what he meant, he said, "I got a hundred on the Physics test I took last week, and I failed two Physics labs. Between my feelings about the two, the really good thing and the two not-so-big bad things, everything is neutral. And that makes me happy."

Now, before you accuse me of those power-of-positive-thinking types, think again. When I'm depressed in a bad mood, the last thing I want to hear is some person with a shit-eating grin telling me to "Think Positive!" Thinking positive is the problem. Negative things can be useful and constructive; we just have to realize that they are without making them "positive," and when I say positive, you must realize that I mean happy or pleasurable. We don't always have to be in a good mood, we don't always have to be content. But don't let your bad feelings control you, for heaven's sake! (As if I'm one to talk.) While it's not constructive to expect everything to be positive to make us feel fulfilled, it's not good to sit around waiting for bad things to happen, either. If we go through life bracing ourselves for the bad things, we'll never get anywhere, and that's worse.

So cheer up! You're not dead, and the world won't end tomorrow. Have a neutral day.

When I'm depressed in a bad mood, the last thing I want to hear is some person with a shit-eating grin telling me to "Think Positive!"

Vinnie's Views

By Vincenzo Stampone

Come on, let Dr. Death reign

Many of you have probably heard of Dr. Jack Kevorkian. He's a retired doctor who assists people to commit suicide. In many countries this is called euthanasia, but not here in the United States it will be considered murder. Is helping someone commit suicide a crime? Who gives us the right to decide?

One thing I should clear up right now is that when I mention suicide in this article it pertains to the terminally ill. The latest person that Dr. Kevorkian helped commit suicide was Hugh Gale, a retired merchant mariner from Michigan. Mr. Gale was 70 years old and had not left the house in over three years. In fact he never left the recliner in the parlor. He suffered from heart disease and emphysema. He was waiting to die. On Monday, February 15, Mr. Gale inhaled a deadly gas and died.

People are so scared of dying they

You want to live with constant pain and suffering? There are many sides that will say suicide is wrong. That's not a question to be decided by the legislature. It should be an internal one. If someone believes that suicide is the answer and that they wish to live out their remaining days in pain, I can respect that decision.

But who can't people accept this? Who do people think they are to tell others they must live, suffer and wait to die? People here in America love to meddle in others' affairs. Organizations like "Right to Life" elect themselves the "moral police" of the land. They go around telling us what is wrong. We turn on television and hear Pat Robertson telling us we're all destined to hell. That's exactly where they should go and let people make up their own minds. People are so scared of dying they cannot fathom someone else wanting to. Everyone dies eventually. People must face that fact. To all those against euthanasia, ask yourself is living in pain and suffering, waiting for the moment to come, life or mere existence? Which is more dramatic. Waiting for the moment to arrive or dealing with the loss? A better question to ask than is euthanasia wrong would be is keeping people alive by artificial means with no hope of reversal of their condition ethical? If you believe yes, then ask the family of Karen Ann Quinlan. She remained "alive" for over ten years legally brain dead while a machine acted as her heart and lungs. Ask the family if it would have been easier to accept her loss if she had just passed away. If you were in her shoes, would you want to "live" or accept the coup de grace?

Alumnae Return in Dance Co.

by Sandra Cammilleri

As the spring begins its seasonal show of color and signs of new life carpet the earth, the Great Events Series is springing forth with a blossoming performance of vibrant and energetic dance talents.

On Friday April 2 and Saturday April 3, Nikolais and Murray Louis Dance Company will perform Retrospective Repertoire in Memorial Auditorium. The company made up of ten dancers offers a diverse array of movements. This is particularly apparent in the work titled “Totem”, an original dance repertoire which will be performed both nights. Emanating with an exuberant style, the dancers are a prolific paradigm of Nikolais and Louis' choreographic styles.

Company founders, Alvin Nikolais and Murray Louis take on active roles in shaping these enchanting dance productions. Mr. Nikolais generally choreographs, creates sound scores, and designs scenes and costumes, while Mr. Louis, a recognized artistic director and master choreographer, brings a fresh, flowing grace to the dance world. Together, this pair have been recognized by the New York Times to be a “double dose of genius” and have received more than fifty awards by both private and government funded Arts organizations.

A special added attraction of the show is the return of two Montclair State alumnae, Donna Scro and Joelle VanSickle who are current members of the dance company. Scro an VanSickle will grace the stage floor of their alma mater with a performance in this exciting dance production.

Tickets for Nikolais and Murray Louis Dance are $10 for students, $17 for seniors citizens, and $20 standard. Tickets can be obtained by calling the box office at 893-5112.

PERFORMATHON

The MSC Music Prep Division is holding a fund-raising “performathon” on Saturday, April third, from 10AM to 5PM at the McEachern Recital Hall. There will be five different recitals. At ten, Irena Belenski will perform a piano concerto. Afterwards, a twenty piece violin troupe of 4 to 3 year olds will perform. Then, the MSC Harpist’s Ensemble will play at noon, followed by a piano duo conducted by Candace Chung and Isaac Hong. The “Performathon” will end with the 7-8 year old class of violinists. Tickets are two dollars. For information, call Teresa Roccanova at 893-4443.

Pamela Scheinman displays her collection of fotoesculturas and a few of her own renditions. Women that she met on the Mexican streets were asked to pose and have their picture taken. These pictures were then cropped and a three-dimensional relief of their upper torso was added. This relief draws a comparison between the neutral color of the black and white portraits and the textured colors from their added clothes and body. These four pieces embody the idea of the fotoescultura portrait and display a certain pop style that has a certain sense of kitsch. The two artists work are appropriate together and the exhibitions informative nature keeps the viewer interested. It is a show worth seeing this semester at the Main Art Gallery in Life Hall. Hours are 10-4 Monday through Friday, Saturday 1-5. The show will continue till April 23.

Fisticuffs in Phoenix could cost Knicks more than fines and suspensions

It's been over a week and the cloud of dust has seemed to clear out in the desert. The consequences of the Knicks' brawl with the Phoenix Suns continues to affect the entire team.

The $98,500 in fines and seven games in player suspensions were only the cosmetic consequences of the action of the incident. If you look deeper, it could cost the Knicks the home-court advantage throughout the playoffs and a 60-win season.

When the fight took place, the Knicks were only down by six points (59-53) and had a legitimate chance to sweep the season series with Phoenix. But when Doc Rivers and Anthony Mason were ejected from the game, the Knicks had no shot at winning the game.

While Rivers deserved to be ejected, the whole fight was caused by Kevin Johnson, who obviously had a chip on his shoulder from the beginning of the game. Kevin Johnson and the rest of the Suns were out to prove that they could play Eastern Conference style basketball.

Rivers, who was admittedly embarrassed by his actions, shouldn't be heavily scrutinized for going after Kevin. Because honestly, the cheap shot that he took to the chest probably would have been enough to provoke Gandhi. The display of anger by the Knicks and Kevin Johnson was evident and fines and suspensions. However, trying to understand how both of these players were suspended for the same amount of games is like trying to comprehend what Dennis Miller is talking about most of the time.

If you look deeper, you could imagine him on a battle field yelling, "Fire! I mean don't fire! I mean I don't know what I mean!" Some Final Four predictions: Kansas over Kentucky; Kentucky over Michigan; and Michigan over Kentucky in the Championship Game.

Anthony's two years with New York have not been anything resembling spectacular, but he still possesses the talent to become a solid NBA point guard. Definitely a gem and he effectively goes to the basket. Other parts of his game need improvement, but in the long run he should be the glue to this team.

And Anthony has yet to return due to his five-game suspension which continue to keep the Knicks thin at the point guard position. Because of this the Knicks are genuinely desperate but not likely.

Because of this the second-year player has forced people to question whether or not he is more of a detriment than a help to his team. In fact, several area sportswriters seem intent on running Anthony out of town. That may be taking things too far, but there is the demand for a Barry Manilow rap album.....It's a good thing that Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins is not a runny noses. Red Hawks as good as good in California

Return home with No. 10 national ranking after successful (5-2) road trip

by Brian Faltzarano

If there is one cause of a team being apprehensive, it would be a prolonged road trip. Being away from Pitzer Field could have led to more than a few anxious moments.

In the past week, the MSC baseball team may have shown everyone that they are as good as they were branded. This is due to the fact that they boarded the plane home winners of five of the seven games played on their California road trip this past week.

The occurrences of this trip were enough to please head coach Norm Schoenig. "It was an excellent trip," said the coach of the tenth-ranked team nationally in Division III. "We faced five numbers one pitchers of the seven teams we faced, and everybody played well," added Coach Schoenig.

Without further delay, the run down of the seven games:

3/23 Claremont Mudd Scriptis - MSC started in a hole, down 4-0 going into the fifth. As in three other triumphs on the trip, MSC played the Cardiac Kids and pulled out a 5-4 victory. After two hits in the first, the Red Hawks (7-2) answered back with three runs in the fourth, with junior first baseman John Paulino contributing a sacrifice fly.

MSC tied the game in the sixth on shortstop Tony Martinez's RBI single. The finishing touch was applied by Paulino, whose single drove home Rob DiLauro, who walked to trigger the inning.

Senior reliever Frank Dippold (2-0) closed things out with 2 and 2/3 innings of shutdown relief, that incurled picking off a runner with one out in the ninth to thwart a potential rally.

3/22 UC San Diego - Chris Mayak of UCSD (4-7-1) ripped five hits, including a 420-foot single on an 0-2 count with two out in the ninth to spark San Diego to an 8-7 decision.

After being down 5-1, MSC tied things as six when Martinez single homered Harold Van Dunk. After UCSD scored a run, John Paulino hit a monstrous 420-foot home run to tie it at seven, until Mayak pulled it out for UCSD.

Todd Sak (0-2), a freshman left-hander, who had a rough trip, took the loss in relief. Mike Micucci and Jason Scavalla each hit solo homers in the defeat.

The finishing touch was applied by La Verne-Sophomore outfielder Ralph Yezza hit a two-run blast, breaking a 5-5 deadlock to give MSC (5-2) a 7-5 victory in 11 innings. John Carlson started and Dippold closed things out to gain the decision.

3/20 Cal Poly Pomona - Against the number eight team in Division II, Chris Rampone came big, throwing seven shutout innings of two-hit ball to stifle Poly Pomona, 1-0. Ramponge (2-6, 2.00 ERA) was masterful during his entire tenure, yielding to Dippold who came on in the eighth and pitched two scoreless innings to get the save.

MSC (5-1) scored its lone run in the third when DiLauro, a junior, singled to steal second and came around on Martinez's single with two outs.

3/19 Cal Lutheran - In a battle of youth versus experience, freshman left-hander T.J. Costello decisively bested All-American left-hander Pat Norville, as MSC defeated Cal Lutheran, then the nation's number one team in Division III, 8-1. Costello (2-0) was in control from the beginning as he went the distance, yielding three hits, while Norville was knocked out in the seventh. "He (Costello) was outstanding," Schoenig said. "He showed a lot of poise and had good control out there," noted Schoenig. Senior co-captain Joe Critelli contributed a three-run homer in the effort.

3/18 Azusa Pacific - For those of you that think that NAIA schools are a joke, Azusa Pacific, ranked atop the NAIA polls, bombed MSC, 16-5. Sak (0-2, 12.15 ERA) was hit hard, taking the fall in a game MSC was never really close in. At one point the Red Hawks pulled within 7-4, but Pacific came back with seven unanswered runs, putting the nail in the coffin.

3/17 U of Redlands - A real knock-down, drag-out affair saw MSC gain the decision on Cal Lutheran's (261, 2 HB's, 14 RBI) three-run blast in the top of the ninth. The homer, which was among the five ninth inning RBI's on the trip, helped solidly his position among Division III's top players. "John was outstanding, both at the plate and in the field," said Schoenig.

This game saw Redlands jump out to a 4-0 lead in the fifth. MSC roared back with eleven runs of their own to take an 11-4 lead. Redlands came back with a rally of their own to take a 12-11 advantage. Then Dan Massaro scored from third on a double steal to tie the game. Critelli reached on an error, moving DiLauro to second and set up Paulino's game winner. Ramponge came in on relief to pick up the victory.

"Our team has speed has become a plus, something we haven't had in the past few years," said the six-year coach. Indeed, speed has become a major contributor. The Hawks have stolen 19 of 22 bases, puilced by DiLauro's eight swipes.

MSC soft ball sparks in the Sunshine State; 8-1 mark good for Top Ten in Division III

Pitching and defense are the keys that will reopen the gate to the Division III College World Series for the MSC softball team this spring.

Both were clicking on the Red Hawks' nine-game tour of Florida over Spring Break. MSC returned to Upper Montclair with an 8-1 record and the tenth spot in Division III, 8-1. Costello (2-0) was in control from the beginning as he went the distance, yielding three hits, while Norville was knocked out in the seventh. "He (Costello) was outstanding," Schoenig said. Pitching and defense are the keys that will reopen the gate to the Division III College World Series for the MSC softball team this spring.

Both were clicking on the Red Hawks' nine-game tour of Florida over Spring Break. MSC returned to Upper Montclair with an 8-1 record and the tenth spot in the Division III national poll.

The good defense is a major surprise especially this early in the season. MSC had been practicing in the gym and on the turf before the trip and didn't get much time on a dirt field.

The pitching wasn't as good as the defense, but it was good enough. Denise Wamock (4-0) and Michelle Serio (4-1) were ERA's of 8.04 and 2.03 respectively. On paper these numbers seem impressive, but head coach Anita Kubicka is expecting better games from her two-pitcher rotation. "They pitched well, but not up to their full capabilities," said the third-year coach.

Overall, the team was swinging a hot bat as well. The Red Hawks returned with a 345 team average with second baseman Jennifer Flinn (448), Kristi Kuchinski (417) and Sue Tiedemann (.391) leading the way.

Tiedemann, a junior left fielder who hit only .234 last season, was the biggest surprise of the trip for MSC. Known for her defensive work, Tiedemann was not expected to be an offensive force for the Red Hawks. Her performance has given Kubicka more confidence in the bottom of the order.

Now that they've gotten accustomed to winning in recent weeks, the Red Hawks must be careful not to allow a letdown. Last season MSC returned from Florida with an 8-2 record and proceeded to lose 11 of its next 14 games. Although MSC got back on track and made it to the College World Series, Kubicka doesn't want her team to put itself in a similar predicament.

"We can't do that again and it's something I've made clear to them," said Kubicka.

Like last year, the weather may force the Red Hawks to take quite a long layoff. With the rapidly melting snow and the recent snowstorm...Mike Micucci's stats scratch below the surface. The sophomore from Emerson is batting only .211, but has a home run and 11 RBI's placing him second on the team in RBIs behind Paulino...MSC has turned eight double plays, a fact which pleases Schoenig.

"(Mike) Murphy and Martinez are playing well together," he said.

Jennifer Flinn, who has successfully returned from shoulder surgery, awaits a ground ball during a drill at a recent MSC softball practice.
