Wide area network of computers and resource sharing are in the future of higher education

by Linda Naata

In an exclusive interview for The Montclarion last week, N.J. Chancellor of Higher Education Edward Goldberg said that by the 21st century, at least some portion of Montclair State College students could be studying at home via computer from faculty members around the globe. The chancellor explained why colleges need to consider the controversial "resource sharing" strategy, and said that hope for quality higher education systems in the future depends on intense planning and an increase in public advocacy for funding.

"I see quite a different higher education system in the year 2000," said Goldberg, who feels that technology is forcing a change in the way that as many as 20 percent of students can learn by computer from home, they could access the resources of institutions worldwide: University of California at Berkeley, Oxford or even Cairo University, said the chancellor.

"Some place there is that professor who in past years may have come to Montclair State College as a visiting professor, but they had to come physically to MSC. Now they can come, even today, electronically," said Goldberg, pointing out that the college would only need to purchase one-third of the faculty member's time.

"If that was done on a somewhat widespread basis at MSC, we would have a radical change at MSC. In fact, it may be one of the things that Montclair State University will be doing in the year 2000," said the chancellor.

To Goldberg, part of the key to enhancing the future lies in intense planning today — "with nothing ruled out to start." His ideas, along with strategies being developed in planning at both state and institutional levels, will shape the vision of higher education. Goldberg said that financial pressures in the 90's and beyond the year 2000 will force schools to continue to re-arrange their priorities and called N.J. higher education an "under-funded, under-built system" made of institutions which "may no longer aspire to be all things to all people."

"We need to seriously explore alternatives to what we currently do. The reason we need to explore radical change is to make sure that, with whatever resources we get, we deliver the best and widest set of services to students," Goldberg said.

The chancellor believes that a quality system of higher education in the year 2000 is not possible without some facet of "resource sharing." Resource sharing is a controversial idea that calls for institutions to share administrative and student services, equipment and even faculty. People on campus have been concerned over how it would work, since jobs, student services, and campus life as a whole

ABC News political correspondent speaks at MSC

by Dan Hansen

Jeff Greenfield, political correspondent for ABC News, shared his views on the relationship between the media and politics, as well as the future of higher education, at an event held at the Nicholas Martini Center for Public Policy lecturer last Thursday night.

The speech was presented in the Student Center Ballrooms to an estimated 300 people including faculty members, students and others.

Greenfield was introduced by Dr. William Berlin, Director of the Nicholas Martini Center. He drew upon his years in politics and in the media to illustrate the premise that politicians go out of touch with the people who speak primarily to the media.

Greenfield went on to talk about the second phase of the transition since the days, politicians went to the taverns, the church socials, picnics, etc., if the voters were home in front of their radios and TVs, that was where the candidates were.

The networks controlled what was on and when it was on. If you were not home you missed it. When satellites were placed in orbit, they broke the monopoly that the networks had on the media. Today, with cable, VCRs, satellite dishes, and other conveniences of televisions, people are discussing things on the air that they would not have dreamed of years earlier.

These things have created a "new" media which does not confine a candidate to just the three networks. In the 1988 campaign the average sound bite for a major party candidate was nine and a half seconds. Candidates in the 1992 campaign became this "new" media after learning people were home, but had different viewing habits from the previous elections.

Clinton was able to benefit from this new media comfortably with this change in the media. His being on television is similar to Franklin Roosevelt's fireside chats.

Greenfield feels that Clinton is not good in formal news settings and feels that he gave bad acceptance speech at the Democratic Convention, a poor inaugural Speech and broke every rule in the book by ad-libbing one.

"On one hand we are arguing that we need to do more intense viewing habits from the people who speak primarily to the media. Today, with cable, VCRs, satellite dishes, and other conveniences of televisions, people are discussing things on the air that they would not have dreamed of years earlier.

Campus Police Report

compiled by Kelly J. Schab

Unlicensed Driver
3/31 An employee was seen illegally operating a motor vehicle along Heating Plant Way, lot 30 and Webster Road. The investigation found that his license is revoked, he has fictitious plates and his car is unregistered. His car was towed and he was given numerous summons for motor vehicle violations.

Theft
4/1 A student reported the theft of her bag. She left it accidentally at the bus stop at the corner of College Ave. and Heating Plant Way.

4/1 Three residents of Clove Road reported that, coming back after three hours, they found their apartment ransacked and an old stereo cassette player stolen. They returned at 10:15 pm and reported it at 1:15 am. The last person to leave the apartment wasn’t sure if she locked the door and there was no sign of breaking or entering. None of their jewelry or cash was stolen and the incident was thought to be a prank.

4/5 Two Blue Shield licenses were stolen from the heating plant by two employees.

Damaged School Property
4/1 An officer observed a member of the faculty breaking a gate arm in order to park his car in a slot. The gate card reader had been broken and the member of the faculty broke the gate arm to get in.

Fire Alarm
4/2 The fire alarm in Webster Hall went off at 12 noon. There was no indication as to what the problem was.

4/5 A Bohn Hall fire alarm was set off at 1 pm.

Motor Vehicle Theft
4/4 A car was stolen between 5 pm and 9:30 pm out of lot 21.

Suspicious Activity
4/5 A patrolling officer found one male sitting in the passenger seat of a vehicle in lot 23. As the officer approached the car, another male came out of the bushes carrying an open beer can. The officer asked for identification from the second male who was operating the vehicle, but the driver tried to flee the scene. The officer pursued the vehicle and eventually stopped the vehicle and issued a summons to the non-student driver.

Greenfield stated that generally third party candidates do not do well in elections, and he thought this would be especially true with Ross Perot. He felt that, "It was apparent that this is a man whose seat back and tray table were not in the full and upright position." The press' view of Perot did not matter, however; because of people watched and voted for him. It seemed that voters were looking for different ways other than the standard three networks for finding the candidates said Greenfield.

After the speech, there was a question and answer period. Greenfield was asked whether or not, the media leaks too much information concerning national concerning security matters. Greenfield said no, the press holds back more than you know.

Another question was: should the Supreme Court represent the country? He answered that they are there to guard the constitution. How would you represent the country with only nine people? It would be a fool's errand, said Greenfield.

He asked about the standards used to cover candidates because not everyone gets equal coverage and explained that a candidate needs to show substantial support to receive coverage.

Welcome, loyal readers, to another captivating installment of PROPHET BIGG! Well, I have quite a treat for you this week. While the majority of you were enjoying a nice spring break, the Prophet was hard at work. During the break, I went to Manhattan to attend the screening of Benny & Joon, MGM's latest film which stars Johnny Depp, Mary Stuart Masterson and Aidan Quinn. The film was directed by Jeremiah Chechik who's other major film success was National Lampoons Christmas Vacation.

After watching the film, which, by the way, was both funny and entertaining, low and behold who should walk in but Johnny Depp, Mary Stuart Masterson, Aidan Quinn and Jeremiah Chechik! They took seats at a table in front of the screens room and took some questions...

Q. What's it like to break out of the "Teen Idol" status?
Johnny Depp- Well, it's important for me to break any labels, any names they give you to sell a product.

Q. How did you prepare for the character of Joon?
Mary Stuart Masterson- I had to base what I did on a fact finding mission about mental illness. I did the research one has to do, but it was interesting trying to fit that into the context of the story without getting into the downside. And also getting into this world of the way she sees things was really interesting to me. I discovered I'd rather see the world more like her.

Q. You did a lot of painting in the role of Joon. Have you continued to paint, even as only a hobby?
Mary Stuart Masterson- It's definitely not something that would, uh, sell. (Laughter) I would not say any galleries are barking up my tree. I painted a little for the film, but I didn't learn how and study.

Q. What do you look for in scripts?
Johnny Depp- Well, it's a great opportunity to be totally irresponsible.

Jeremiah Chechik. Type casting. (Laughter)

JD. Yeah. I watched a whole lot of Buster Keaton's movies to study him. (Pause) I don't know what else to say. (Laughter)

Q. What life experiences in your own life have brought you to play such strong, rebellious, not in the norm roles?
Mary Stuart Masterson- Private school. (Laughter) Johnny?

JD. I'm damaged. (Laughter) I'm ill. I don't know.

MM. I think when something is predictable, I don't get it. So when something comes along that's interesting and specific, got a lot of colors to it, that gets me all excited and I want to be involved. And in this case, just look at these people. (Motions to her fellow panel members). This is a good reason to spend a few months acting.
Save America's Forests
by Carol Pelledino

“Save the Rainforests” is a phrase which we have all become familiar with over the past several years. Concern over the depletion of the rainforests has received much publicity. An all-out campaign to save the forests against clearcutting has been launched because it affects the entire ecological system.

This campaign is promising, but what about the forests in our own country? Surprisingly enough, our forests face a similar fate, and are actually being destroyed as rapidly as the rainforests in Brazil. America was once a land of immense forests. In fact, less than 5% of the nation’s original old growth forests still exist today. Of the few that have survived, only 1% are protected from the logging industry and the rest are scheduled for elimination.

Who would allow such practice? Private timber companies are the few that have survived, only 5% of the nation’s original old forests by the U.S. Forest Service. Taxpayer money subsidizes their clearcutting, the main technique used for logging on our public lands. This technique is harmful to the natural biodiversity of the region who depend on the trees for survival. In many logging operations which employ clearcutting, as much as 66% of the wood is left as debris or slash, a phenomenal waste of our precious resources. Another problem clearcutting creates is soil erosion. In a healthy forest, 3% of rain is lost to surface runoff whereas 60% is washed away in a clearcut area. Most of the nutrients and topsoil are eroded away, making it impossible for remaining vegetation to exist to grow back. Meanwhile, this runoff deposits itself in streams, a direct cause to the declining number of salmon.

One “solution” to these problems has been to replant tree farms. These even-age farms consist of monocultures which do not provide the natural biodiversity needed to protect national, “protected” forests, a vicious debate has heated due to proliferation of monocultures with no underbrush due to pesticide use, a far cry from a natural forest with life.

As concerned citizens fight to protect national, “protected” forests, a vicious debate has heated up between the environmentalists and the timber industry. Loggers argue that protecting the forests will cause unemployment and discourage the environmentalists from living nature more than people. What they don’t tell you is that mechanization and exportation of wood, unprocessed logs by far the largest cause of unemployment within the industry. Or that private lands are not being managed for timber because it’s cheaper to log on public lands.

A resolution to these conflicts has been proposed by Cong.man John Bryant (D-791) in the form of The Forest Biodiversity and Clearcutting Prohibition Act. This bill would end clearcutting and be replaced by a process called selection management where the removal of trees would be periodic and occur only in small groups. No large openings in the forest would be cut and not more than 30% of the forest community would be destroyed over 30 years. This proposal is ideal. Not only is selection management more job intensive, native biodiversity can be maintained, soil erosion will cease and the overall integrity of National forests will be upheld.

The time to act is now, before the small remnants of our forests are gone forever. If you care about the environment, endangered species, or the American work industry, then you should write to your Representatives and ask them to support the Forest Biodiversity and Clearcutting Prohibition Act.

A Plea for Sustainability
by Derryn Kelly

Science now can only be considered a fraction of science since the extinction of plants, bugs and animals. We will never know what we missed, what we altered or what we could have been if we only walked more cautiously and respected all the life that was around us. The forests, the wilderness are the well spring of life. The place where all life evolves. The more we proceed to devolve for profit sake instead of sustainability, the more we will limit our futures.

If we can’t think in terms of saving the forests for the sake of the life that is in it, you will be forced to concede something must be done for humanities sake. Did you know they found a tree in Cambodia which showed promising pharmaceutical benefits for the HIV infection only to go back and discover it was no longer there? And what about the Yew tree of the Pacific Northwest which for years was considered a trash tree by the timber industry but is now found to contain within its bark the most promising cure for ovarian cancer?

Please get involved. Let your representative know what you think. You put them in office, you pay their salary and they are there to serve you. Don’t be intimidated, just write a letter. Our National forests, subsidized by taxpayers money are being clearcut at nonsustainable rates. It is estimated that if we continue at these rates, the mere 5% of wilderness areas now left will be gone within 10 years.

Q. In the film, it appears that Sam also has some kind of psychiatric disorder. Why was it not led—

JFC. The film you have watched is a fable. Part of it is obviously rooted in a heightened reality sense of a magic realism. But the other part is really related in a sort of modern myth. People used to sit around and look at bonfires and tell stories. I can identify what Sam is technically. He’s a severely dysexic. I mean, that’s what he is. It’s relevant to the story that you’ve seen? No. Not really. Sam represents an angel in this place. The disorder explanation would just take away from the main story.

Q. Which was tougher, your role in this or your role in At Play In The Fields of the Lord?

Aldan Quim. It’s hard to compare. At Play was six months in the making. The Prophet was two years. But the making of this film was far and away much more enjoyable and there was a lot more laughter and camaraderie. And maybe that’s part of the role in At Play. As Tom Waits said it’s like being in a kitchen, the windows are closed and a lot of vegetables and stuff are in there (Laughter) So, it’s hard to compare the two.

Q. Do you have any siblings?

A. Yes. I have three brothers and one sister.

Q. Did that help with the role?

A. Yes. I’m a big sucker for any story that’s about a family and the love and the difficulties and the humor. Some of the scenes that go on in a large family.

Q. How did your involvement into the making of The Tom Petty video come about?

JD. Well, I met Tom Petty, and I’ve been a fan for a long time and I’ve never met him. So I’d like to do anything. I’ve been friends with the Lemonheads for a while, so, same thing. And, well, I’d like to do more of them.

M. M. And now we can talk!

(Laughter)

Q. In what way do you identify with Sam?

JD. Well, I sort of identify with the feeling of feeling like a freak in a way. There’s a lot of ways. Sam, I think, is damaged in a way, so he has to create and believe that he is Buster Keaton and those other silent film guys. We know how that’s sometimes, it’s sometimes put on a display table which is kind of an odd feeling. If you grew up feeling slightly odd at all, when you get that sort of height it becomes a weird display table. It just sort of makes you feel odder.

Q. What was the question?

(Laughter)

I will conclude this interview in next issue of the magazine. It’s called the HEROES—parts of the past week, such as which the PROPHET and as Kevin Schwebel, felt compelled to talk about.

As the PROPHET, I must talk about the recent Oscar predictions. I am not a fan of these awards as a principle. However, each year I pluck myself down for some three hours and watch the show purely for the entertainment value, especially since Billy Crystal has been hosting this year and Brad Kane, interviewed by the PROPHET last summer, was performing Whole New World from Aladdin which won the Best Song award. But the awards themselves are so political now that I care less who wins. Although, if we are going to nominate films and people for good work, I feel that then, first, should be more of 3, or 4, or 5 nominates. There should be 10 or 12 or however many it takes to make sure that the worthy candidates can be included.

But enough griping about the Oscars. Here, for your loyal readers, the BIGG PROSCARs OF 92, which I directed with The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Best Actor: And the PROPHET goes to Dennis Washington. The man was Malcolm X. Sure, Clint Eastwood was entertaining. Sam Al Pacino played a good blind man. Sure Robert Downey Jr. was extremely funny, and my second choice.

And Crying Game is just hype. But Daniel Day Lewis was simply amazing. I think I have found the way to win best actor, but I just don’t know what to do. It’s like a man with a tattooed face you know.

Daniel Day Lewis for My Left Foot, Dustin Hoffman for Tootsie.

Best Supporting Actor: And the PROPHET goes to Wes Studi for Last of the Mohicans. A film which was, as I’ve said above, was overlooked over by the academy for lots of things. Studi played Magua, the venerable Huron antagonist and all the rest of him had godly wonderfully portrayed.

Best Musical Score: And the PROPHET goes to Norma Winstone. Again very overlooked.

Best Director: And the PROPHET goes to Rob Reiner for A Few Good Men. How can you have a picture nominated for Best Film and not have the director nominated? I’ll tell you, how no, why. The directorial choices made by Reiner far exceed what were some awful obviously choices for Clint EASTwood. Let’s stop giving lifetime achievement awards hidden behind other awards.

Best Visual Effects: And the PROPHET goes to Tom Fries, the creator of Planes of Fire. Two previous Alien films have both won this category. They won and this should have for the same reason, the films are Special Effects.

Best Screenplay: And the PROSCAR goes to Patriot Games. People, don’t give awards to hype. And that, ladies and gentlemen, is that The Crying Game is.

*As Kevin Schwebel, I must confess that I am deeply hurt by the comments made by the actor Brandon Lee. And I didn’t realize why I was so upset. It was then that I looked so forward to Brandon’s film career. When I was and 4 years old I saw a Bruce Lee film and my idol. I remember how often I got in trouble impersonating the master, ending each stultifying death kick with an extremely high-pitched "EEEEEEEERROOOOOO!"

I can’t believe that I should have been looking for Brandon Lee, who was supposed to be the Bruce Lee of my generation, for all his performances in films and movies. And just as quickly as he had arrived, he was snatched away. The films in which Brandon appeared are listed below. Al—Showdown, Rapid Fire, A Few Good Men,* The Running Man*. And those were all great performances by the last of the Lee dynasty. But the films I saw, Showdown, Showdown In Little Tokyo. In addition, The Crow, which Brandon was working on when he was killed, will be released.

by Mark Loughlin

The Adventures of Chuck Finn is Disney’s modern version of the Mark Twain classic. Usually when you hear that name you think of something else. It means they put it new slant on the story, perhaps covered a modern theme that is especially relevant. In this case, modernized actually means toned down. When I heard that they were going to make another movie on this American classic, I had mixed feelings. Of course, I was a fan of Jackson (Roberts) and Ralph Richardson (Luzoni), the stars of the TV series. Studi played Magua, the vengeful Huron antagonist and all the rest of him had godly wonderfully portrayed.

In this corner, Prophet Bigg! In this corner, Johnny Depp! Gentlemen, I present to you the greatest American collection of characters ever seen in a single movie. Chuck Finn is no exception. This movie is cut from the same cloth as many of the films I have seen. Chuck Finn is a young runaway slave, Jim, who is accused of his young friend’s murder. He is the most intelligent character in the film, but here we don’t feel the prejudice and hate that was toned down. When I heard that they were going to make another movie on this American classic, I had mixed feelings. Of course, I was a fan of Jackson (Roberts) and Ralph Richardson (Luzoni), the stars of the TV series. Studi played Magua, the vengeful Huron antagonist and all the rest of him had godly wonderfully portrayed.

Later on, Huck and Jim meet up with the Duke (Robbie Coltrane) and the Gypsies (Dustin Hoffman). So, why make a movie based on the most famous American novel in the world, and it didn’t win any Academy Awards. The overly quick jumping from one event to the other makes me feel odder.

Huck Finn is not even a children’s book anyway, so making it into a motion picture is a strange choice. The directorial choices made by Reiner far exceed what were some awful obvious choices for Clint EASTwood. Let’s stop giving lifetime achievement awards hidden behind other awards.

Congratulations, can you dig it?

The votes are in and MSC has a new SGA President, James "Appetite" Cotter. As we all hope, this upcoming year will be one full of profitable changes for MSC as well as the fun of seeing Appetite's promise come full circle with our school, "spinning like a top."

This year a field of four candidates entered the race for SGA President. Any one of the candidates could have won the race in any given year. Each had a unique set of abilities, talent and experience to bring to the office. Richard Kunze is the reigning SGA Vice president with four years of SGA experience under his belt. Sam Rock is a three year veteran of the SGA and a member of a handful of Class One organizations. George Calle, an executive board member of The Montclarion and former SGA legislator, took a Ross Perot stance, promising the SGA presidency a badly needed breath of fresh air. And finally, there's James "Appetite" Cotter - with his huge 529 vote mandate, he surely has the clout to fulfill "spinning top" mandate.

With the new liberal views descending upon our fair country with the four year reign of Clinton, Appetite seems to be a logical progression for our campus. He stated in his campaign of his "working man" ethics, of being their for the students and not planning on inhabiting the 'office' as much as former presidents. The Montclarion wishes him congratulations.

With Natalee Vaccaro as Vice President, James Henaghan as Treasurer, Liz Valandingham as Secretary and Michael Costa as Board of Trustees Student Alternate, change seems to be in the air for our campus.

Perhaps, now with alcohol inhabiting the Rat, we as a campus, with the help of our newly elected leaders, can move forward and bring more progressive changes to our campus. Changes with parking, the cafeterias, and one word - Bohn. The students of MSC need a better selection of activities for those of us stranded every weekend on campus; more movies in the ballrooms, speakers directed toward college students. In summary, we look towards our new leaders to lead MSC students in a direction we, as a campus, chose to go.

Congratulations to all the candidates and good luck in the coming year.

"God Forbid we were getting mugged..."
letter...

Grab the bread, my ex-wife's got the mayo

So I'm sitting in my soon to be former apartment, with my soon to be X-wife, watching one of those eyewitness, candid camera, better than the real thing television shows, when the footage came on about those 49 whales that have purposefully swam ashore and beached themselves. My soon to be X-wife goes, "Boo-hoo, look at those poor things, this is so sad".

A dramatic rescue operation begins to unfold as thousands of people race to the seashore to help build shelters for the whales, sprinkle sea water on their backs, talk whale-talk with them and eventually coax them back into the ocean. The army even pitches in. The whole time people are crying and talking about how this experience has changed their lives. My wife just sits there going, "Boo-hoo, isn't that the saddest thing you ever heard?"

I say, "SAD, you and this whole @#$%^ planets gone nuts. A bunch of big fat fish with tiny brains can't figure out the difference between sand and water, oh what poor creatures, let's save the big fat dumb fish, cry and run home and eat big fat dumb tuna fish sandwiches. Remember tunafish? They're another big fat dumb fish, they just happen to taste great with mayo, and countless Vadalia onions, all of them screaming, Lunch!"

Don't pass up Passover

During the month of April, the Jewish people around the world will be celebrating the holiday of Passover (Pesach). It is a holiday filled with traditions, as are most Jewish holidays (and each family has some of its own traditions). If you aren't Jewish, you may not understand the holiday or the traditions. Let me explain.

This year, Passover starts on April 5 and continues until the 13th (the date varies because we use the Hebrew calendar - the holiday always starts on the 5th of Nisan). It commemorates the Exodus of the Jewish people from slavery in Egypt to freedom in Israel. To summarize the story: Moses managed, with divine help, to convince Egypt's Pharaoh to free Jews from their slavery in Egypt and then led them to freedom in Israel. If you're interested in the details, you can find them in any "Old Testament" text.

First, why do we call it Passover? While Moses was trying to convince the Pharaoh of Egypt to let the Jews go (not an easy task, we were a source of free labor for all those pyramids and whatever), God helped by sending ten plagues on the Egyptian people. The last plague was the slaying of Egypt's Pharaoh to free Jews from their slavery in Egypt and then led them to freedom in Israel. If you're interested in the details, you can find them in any "Old Testament" text.

Second, why do we eat matzoh? (Remember tunafish? They're another big fat dumb fish, they just happen to taste great with mayo, and countless Vadalia onions, all of them screaming, Lunch!)

What makes matzoh so special that they reduce people to tears by doing something as stupid as trying to swim in sand? By the way, do you know what type of whales they were? Killer whales, Yap! Those are the same whales on that nature video that cost $49.95 and shows the best nature highlights of animal eating animals, and you know what our precious killer whales are doing in that video, they're eating baby seals. Remember them? They are those little dopey guys we used to splash ink on so big budy kicked us out of the water. Remember them? They were big budy big budy by Lisa Cohn

I am very concerned about the way in which your paper is covering the SGA elections. A college newspaper should be objective and fair, but your paper is subjective and biased. Although you may give the candidates equal space, you have not given them an equal chance.

The Montclarion reaches out to the students and faculty of MSC. It should try to do its best to make the members of this campus aware of the factual happenings and events. Unfortunately, The Montclarion has become the Enquirer of our school by printing the general opinions of your staff.

I hope the members of your organization realize that the April 1 edition is general dudgeon and disappointment to the hard working leaders that are running for the most powerful positions on this campus. The students who are voting should disregard the attempts of The Montclarion to influence their votes. I urge you to listen to debates and speak directly with the candidates on student concerns.

Editor's Note

Firstly, there were two editors of The Montclarion running for SGA president as well as one popular columnist. The three staff members running for office voted in the endorsement process (although not for the position they sought).

Secondly, while The Montclarion appreciates your concerns for the general practices of the student newspaper, we would like to educate you as to the editorial capacity of this and all newspapers. Editorial cartoons, opinion columns and the endorsement of political candidates are all forms of an editorial. An editorial is, by definition, the "general opinions" of a newspaper's staff. This opinion is arrived at by a vote of staff members. That you do not personally agree with the editorial content of this or any other newspaper does not necessarily constitute a "disgrace and disappointment." Should any member of MSC's student body be interested in contributing to the editorial content of The Montclarion, they are welcome to join our organization.

The Montclarion would like to point out to its readers that Ms. Merkel works as a secretary in the SGA office. -K.C.

Don't forget...

The deadline for letters to the editor is Monday.

Lindo and Brame expect to pick up the pace in the outdoor season

by Karen Plumstead

Over Spring Break, the MSC swimming team successfully competed in the NCAA championships in Florida. Most of the competition consisted of swimmers from private schools. MSC was one of the few state schools to compete in the tournament. Head coach Brian Mitzak and Athletic Director Greg Lockhard are both pleased to see that a New Jersey state school was competitive in the NCAA tournament.

The Red Hawks were led by a trio of their top swimmers. Captain Andrew Mitzak qualified as an alternate for the NCAA championships. His brother John Mitzak qualified for the 100 yard backstroke, in which he placed 12th. This 12th place finish qualified John as a repeat All American.

Freshman Mark Arnold qualified for the 100 yard backstroke and the 200 yard medley relay. Arnold’s performance was surprising because it was rare for a freshman to do so well in the NCAA tournament. Of his team’s overall impressive showing, McLaughlin said, “We were very happy.”

Barri Pollner, an MSC student, has just taken the reigns of the Red Hawks men’s tennis team and couldn’t be happier. Pollner, a 24 year old communications major who plans to graduate this spring, has been an assistant coach for the women’s tennis team for two seasons. She took control of the men’s program when former head coach Craig Fitzpatrick suddenly resigned from his position.

Pollner certainly seems qualified for the post. As well as being an assistant coach, she is also a former MSC player. In addition, the former All-ITCA performer was a tennis teacher at the Tiger Racquet Club, and at the Hawthorne Tennis Club. She also taught tennis at the Adidas Tennis Camp for five years. At that camp, she has gained knowledge and experience from the camp’s director, Stanford University head coach Frank Brennan.

The young head coach is very enthusiastic and energetic, in fact, she said, “I like to get out there and hit around with the guys.”

The team has already had four matches under its new coach. The Red Hawks’ first match against Rhode Island was rained out before the men fell to their next two opponents, the Coast Guard and Rutgers Newark. According to Pollner, “We couldn’t have had two tougher matches to begin the season.” MSC lost to the Coast Guard 9-0, and to Rutgers Newark 8-1. The sole winner in the Rutgers Newark match was Jeff Clemente, a senior at a powerhouse school and has earned praise from his coach. “He served well and played smartly for some fast points,” said Pollner.

The thrill of victory and the agony of a timeout

A thrill is defined as something that causes a sudden sharp feeling of excitement. Dean Smith and his North Carolina Tar Heels experienced this on Monday night when they won a National Championship by defeating the Michigan Wolverines, 77-71 at The Louisiana Superdome.

After being dubbed by most observers as the least likely of the Final Four teams to win it all, North Carolina, led by sophomore guard Donald Williams and senior forward George Lynch proved its doubters wrong.

There always seemed to be a team that was supposed to beat the Tar Heels. First it was Cincinnati in the Elite Eight. Nothing doing. This would be the least likely of the Final Four teams to win it all, North Carolina, led by sophomore guard Donald Williams and senior forward George Lynch proved its doubters wrong.

There always seemed to be a team that was supposed to beat the Tar Heels. First it was Cincinnati in the Elite Eight. Nothing doing. Then it was Kansas in the Final Four. Again North Carolina responded with, “I think not!” Eventually, it was Albany Michigan. There’s no way the Fab Five would be denied for the second straight year, right? “Guess again,” said the determined Tar Heels. At last, 11 years later, Dean Smith finally won his second National Championship.

Agony is defined as the feeling of intense pain of the mind or body. That was certainly the feeling in Wolverineland on Monday night. Chris Webber’s attempted time-out call with :11 remaining in the game crushed the hopes and dreams of Michigan.

True, Michigan would not have been in the NCAA Final without Webber. The star forward has proved time and time again that he’s the real deal. And of course, he’s destined for NBA stardom, fame and riches. But in a crucial situation in the most important game of his life, he had a mental lapse and costed his team an opportunity to win what every college basketball player dreams of. Whether people were yelling at him to call timeout is irrelevant. He should’ve known what to do in that situation.

Actually, Webber’s blunder served justice because he walked on the other end of the floor before he crossed midcourt and called a timeout in the corner. Webber shouldn’t fret over this too much because if this is the worst thing that happens to him, he will have led a charmed existence.

As for North Carolina, the thrill of victory will not last too much longer. Soon enough it will be back to the drawing board for next season. Despite being inactive for 12 days since their California trip, the Red Hawks came out white hot. In opening their NJAC schedule, MSC defeated two of their main rivals, Trenton State and Rutgers Newark, running their current winning streak to three games.

MSC took the game back, knocking on the door with two in the seventh, then kicking it down with the two in the eighth. Frank Dippold (3-0, 3.07 ERA) got the victory, pitching 2 1/3 innings in the process. Catcher Mike Micucci and designated hitter Ralph Yezza also added two hits apiece.

Senior rightfielder Joe Critelli had the game winning hit— a solo homer, and three RBI. Junior transfer Gerrard Tenenburo also added a solo blast.

These wins would impress any coach. Schoenig is no different. "We were ready to play, as we should have been," observed Schoenig of his team. "We practiced well all week, so I knew we would play well," added the sixth-year coach.

That is not all that he is pleased with. Depth, as expected, is proving fruitful. "We have used 14 to 16 guys, each of which gives us a chance to win any ballgame," Schoenig said bluntly. Our players know that they could be starting at any time," he added.

The way MSC has been playing, opponents can expect similar showers in the future.

MSC then came to the plate and could have folded quicker than the World League of American Football. That would have been the easy thing to do. However, quieting was not on the Red Hawks’ agenda.

Sunday’s game with Trenton State was nearly as easy as breathing, as the Red Hawks’ banged out 17 hits in their NJAC opener, massacring the Lions, 18-6 in Swinging Township.

MSC was never challenged, as after the fourth inning, the Red Hawks garnered a 9-3 lead.

Left hander Drew Yocum pitched six innings, giving up four hits, walking three and fanning five, improving to 2-0 after two consecutive no-decisions. But the way the Red Hawks hit, Drew Barymore could have won.

Micucci and sophomore first baseman Jason Scavalla each had four hits. Scavalla had two doubles, while Micucci drove home two runs with two singles and a double.

Yezza also had an impressive game. Yezza, yet another sophomore, had two hits, including a solo homer, and three RBI. Junior transfer Gerrard Tenenburo also added a solo blast.

Of the nine games won this season, all have come courtesy of three three-game winning streaks. Dippold has won every other game in the past five games... The Red Hawks are 5-2 vs. left handed starters, while they’re 4-0 against righties... John Pallino leads in virtually every major offensive category. Among those categories are batting average (405), total bases (26), on-base percentage (.509), RBI (15), hits (17) and tied in HR’s with Yezza (2)...Yezza leads in slugging percentage (.686), Dippold in stolen bases (8), Dippold in games (6) and wins (3), Chris Rampone in ERA (0.59), Yocum in strikeouts (33), and T.J. Costello in innings (22)...MSC has left 106 runners on base, compared to 87 by their opponents. However, they are hitting .305 as a team and have outscored opponents by an 81-57 margin, winning each game by an average of four runs per game.

Things started off fairly well, with MSC taking a 3-0 lead after three innings. The Bulldogs then proceeded to score two in the fourth, one in the sixth, and two in the seventh, capped off by Frank LaCapra’s two-run homer.

The question was rather obvious. Would a 10 day layoff between games help knock the MSC softball team out of a groove that had allowed the Red Hawks to win eight of their first nine games?

The answer was even more obvious. An emphatic no!
