Field House Shaping Up!

$20,000 of new equipment for students (Gaughan p. 3)
New VP for Student Affairs named

• Former Renssalaer Polytechnic Institute VP Dr. Lee Wilcox chosen to replace Dr. Armstrong

by Greg Mac Sweeney

A new Vice President of Student Development and Student Affairs was appointed yesterday after the field was narrowed down to four candidates in late January. The new VP will start officially on July 1, pending approval from the Board of Trustees.

Dr. Lee Wilcox, the former VP for Student Affairs at Renssalaer Polytechnic Institute, accepted the appointment, yesterday, after MSC President Irvin Reid notified him over the weekend, said Wilcox.

Wilcox will "start phasing in here in early April," said Reid.

"I hope to get oriented with the staff in April," said Wilcox. "I plan to get started on an Academic Advising Center (ASC) that could possibly be located in Moorehead Hall." The Business Department will most likely be moved to Partridge Hall.

"We are very excited about the new appointment," said Reid. "He is a professional of high caliber and his insight into what a complex institution, such as ours [MSC], needs will be very useful, especially as we move closer to university status."

During a speech that Wilcox made to students in early February, he expressed the importance of his job by saying that most students do not leave school because of flunking out, but because of lack of activity in campus life.

"We are here for the students and students need to find satisfaction in campus life," said Wilcox.

According to Wilcox, the people he has met here, including the students and President Reid, have all expressed optimism for the future. He also said that he wants to be part of an institution on the rise and believes MSC is one of those institutions.

Wilcox said he heard about this job from the VPSA at Ramapo College, Pamela Bischof, and said that she thought it would be a good match for him.

He also said that the job was appealing to him because of MSC's initiative such as global education and the focus on the new student experience.

"I also think university status will be a big plus and I would like to be a part of realizing the benefits," Wilcox said.

Wilcox will replace Acting Vice President for Student Development and Student Affairs Dr. Domenica Desiderioscioli. Desiderioscioli replaced Dr. Jean Armstrong in the fall of 1991 when Armstrong retired and returned to the English Department.

Wilcox currently lives in Troy, N.Y. and plans to move closer to university status.

$20,000 in new exercise equipment installed in Field House

by Rodney Gaughan

During the last week of February, $20,000 worth of new exercise equipment was purchased and installed in the Field House located adjacent to the Quarry parking lot.

According to Jose Rebimbas, director of Recreation, the new equipment was greatly needed in order to be able to better serve the campus community.

Some of the new equipment includes, two step machines and two recumbent cyclers. These machines are designed to give cardiovascular workouts. The cyclers feature a contoured seat which gives back support, unlike most conventional machines which do not.

Other pieces of equipment include: a Smith Machine for squats, a lat pull-down machine, and a cable crossover machine which is accessorized to accommodate many different tasks.

Although the field house is small, considering the population of MSC, Rebimbas is trying to make students and faculty aware of all it has to offer.

Another change since Rebimbas came to MSC, about a year ago, is the use of free weights, which most women prefer over conventional weights which are more of a hassle to set up. He also noted that participation by women has increased significantly over previous semesters.

The best times to use the Field House, according to Rebimbas, are in the morning and early afternoon hours.

Graduate Students pay higher fees for undergrad courses

by Tara Champ

Ok-Soon Dang was concerned when she opened her semester bill for fall 1993. Dang received a Masters degree in music here at MSC and returned in fall 1992 for teacher certification. She, along with many other students, learned recently that MSC has changed its policy regarding graduate students. Post degree students formerly paid undergraduate prices for any such course taken outside their academic major. In July of 1993, the Board of Trustees changed that policy. Post degree students are now charged graduate school prices for all courses regardless of the class level.

This policy reflects the school's belief that student status is the primary method by which to assess tuition. Most institutions of higher education have adopted this type of policy for graduate programs.

Dang believes that it is unfair to have post BA students pay double tuition ($142.80 versus $71.40) for undergraduate level courses.

Dr. Rosenblum, vice president for educational advancement, states, "The difference between undergraduate and graduate tuition does not reflect a difference in cost but rather a difference in the degree to which the state of New Jersey is subsidizing undergraduate and graduate students."

The Assistant Athletic Director, Holly Gera, and the Acting Student Center Director Constance D. Ford, were praised by Rebimas for their involvement in obtaining the funds necessary to purchase the equipment. Gera was not available for comment.

The field house was built on the same bond that the Student Center Annex was built with. That is why the Student Center director is responsible for renovations and improvements, said Ford.

A new slip resistant tile floor was also installed to "prevent people slipping on perspiration."

"The response has been great," said Ford. "The more unisex equipment can accommodate much more traffic."

Ford is currently working on getting better heating for the field house along with getting a contractor to fix the sauna that has been broken for over a year.

The best times to use the Field House, according to Rebimbas, are in the morning and early afternoon hours.
The Anatomy of the Citibank Classic card: a body of services and peace of mind for students, now with No Annual Fee. For years, scientists could only theorize about the Citibank Classic Visa® card, unable to actually observe anything below its epidermal surface (i.e. the plastic). Surely the highly intelligent services were evidence of an advanced brain. But with the latest advances in x-ray technology, and when the light could catch the various parts just so, it was confirmed: the Citibank Classic Visa card is head to toe more evolved than ever imagined.

At its backbone are 3 services to cover the purchases you make on the card. Starting at the Lower Costal Spine, we see Citibank Price Protection can assure you of the best price. All you have to do is discover the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150. Along the Oops-It-Slipped Disc, Buyers Security™ can cover those purchases against accidental damage, fire or theft, for 90 days from the date of purchase; and Citibank Lifetime Warranty™ allows one to extend the warranty for the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years. So if you ever buy a walkman, a stereo, whatever, it will be reassuring to know that Citibank can bend and be flexible while still lending support. The backbone is then connected to the cranium or headbone. Look at the bottom of the page. The Citibank Photocard has the head of the cardholder, as well as his or her own signature, right on the front. That way, it will help prevent fraud. It will also make a good form of ID, since you get to choose your own photo. But what about the Nervous System? The fact is, it doesn’t have one, not in the spinal cord nor in the brain. What it has is the Very Calm System. Because even if your credit card gets stolen, or gets lost, an involuntary muscle called the Extendus Anewcardeus activates the Lost Wallet™ Service which can replace your card usually within 24 hours. As suspected, there’s another involuntary muscle: the heart—a beating and caring heart, big enough to give students special discounts and savings. You’ll receive a $20 Airfare Discount on domestic flights; savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, magazines and music; a low variable interest rate of 15.4%; and, No Annual Fee. (In other words, the card itself doesn’t cost a forelimb and a hindlimb.) Naturally the heart of the Citibank Visa card pumps life and personalized customer service into all its parts. So no matter what the question you might have concerning your card, you need only call the 800 number. You’ll find Citibank has a neck they are eager to stick out for you. They will always lend an ear. Or a hand. They will keep an eye out for you. They will put their best foot forward. Etc. So call to apply. You don’t need a job or a cosigner. And call if you’d like your photo added to your regular Citibank Classic Visa card. The number is 1-800-CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226), extension 19.

Details of coverage are available in your Summary of Additional Program Information. *Offer expires 6/30/94. Minimum ticket purchase price is $100. Rebates are for Citibank student cardmembers on tickets issued by ISE Flights only. The Annual Percentage Rate (APR) for purchases is 15.4% as of 1/94 and may vary quarterly. The APR for cash advances is 19.8%. If a finance charge is imposed, the minimum is 50 cents. There is an additional finance charge for each cash advance transaction equal to 7% of the amount of each cash advance transaction; however, it will not be less than $2.00 or greater than $10.00. Egg Donors Are Needed

The Diamond Institute is Looking For A Few Very Special Women.

In the past few years a process called "Donor Egg" has made the miracle of pregnancy and having a much wanted baby possible for thousands of couples who were formerly considered "infertile". The procedure involves taking an egg from a female donor, fertilizing it "in vitro" (out of the body) with sperm taken from the husband, and implanting the resulting embryo into the uterus of the woman trying to become pregnant. We are seeking women of all ethnic & racial backgrounds between the ages of 20 to 34.

Your Donated Eggs Can Help Create the Miracle of Life for Couples Who Couldn't Otherwise Conceive.

Donors Will be Paid $2000 Per Procedure

SGA legislators upset over treatment from Executive board

by Glenn Steinberg

During the Feb. 9 SGA meeting, SGA President James Cotter accused a legislator of helping the defendants in a judicial hearing.

Tania Lepe, a legislator of the SGA, was accused by Cotter of helping Tau Phi Beta Fraternity plan out their case.

Lepe acknowledged that there is really nothing she could do and that she is kind of helpless.

"This is getting kind of silly now. I mean, even my mother doesn't give me this kind of guilt," Cotter said.

Mike Crudele, another legislator is somewhat displeased with the Executive Board as well. "Everybody should know where their place is in that governmental body. The legislature should be able to guide itself instead of having the Executive Branch hold its hand all the time," Crudele also said, "Basically what we have is a lack of checks and balances between the legislature and the Executive Branch and we need them."

MONTCLAIR STATE-OFFICE OF RESIDENCE LIFE
Weekend Classes during Spring Break due to snow

By Sheila Patnode

Weekend college students will have to attend classes during the last weekend of spring break, March 25, 26 and 27, in order to make up classes that were cancelled during the semester due to inclement weather.

Weekend classes, which meet once a week between Friday night and Sunday afternoon, were cancelled Friday, Jan. 28 and Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Feb. 11-13.

The decision to cancel classes was made by MSC President, Dr. Irvin Reid, Vice President for Administration and Finance, Thomas Auch and Provost and Vice President of Academic Affairs, Dr. Richard Lynde.

According to Lynde, the state requires that there be 15 weeks in a semester. Losing two Friday classes caused weekend students to fall short of the requirement. Lynde also said that weekend faculty members, a large number of which are adjuncts, had requested a time that weekend classes could be made up.

"I'm glad they rescheduled for the sake of the students," said Dr. Byung Min, who teaches classes on Saturday mornings. "Out of 18 students in my class, only one said she had a problem making the class. I will help the students out with this."

"Losing one weekend class is equal to losing a full week of another class," said John Sanz, director of Weekend College. "Students can tell professors of prior arrangements and they will be more than understanding."

Sanz also said that out of 40 weekend instructors, only two had approached them saying there would be a problem with the rescheduling. "The professors have some flexibility in choosing dates that are convenient to them and the students."

In a memo to the campus community, Lynde requested all academic support units, such as maintenance, the cafeteria and the library to provide the services which would be provided on a normal weekend. He said that there is likely to be some cost to the college but exact figures have not been determined.

Marjorie Coleman-Carter, director of Residence Life, said that 16 dorm students are effected by the decision and that those students are currently being polled in order to establish their housing needs.

Double digit tuition increases (between 10 and 25 percent) are expected to make up the difference (According to the Board of Higher Education Proposed budget, "if adequate public funds are not available to support institutional budgets...then tuition levels will have to rise significantly to preserve the current quality of services and program" p. 28).

New Jersey already has the fourth highest public education costs in the nation (As documented by the AFT/AFL-CIO NJ Council of State College Locals, report on Higher Education in New Jersey, Shifting Costs to Students, p. 21).

Financial Aid will not cover all eligible students, nor will TAG & EOF be protected from cuts (The BHE forwarded plans to the Legislature for "distributing FY '95 TAG funds if the amount appropriated is insufficient for full awards to all eligible applicants," minutes BHE meeting 1/26/94).

Current and future students will be forced out of schools ("the higher education department predicted the cuts would still result in an enrollment decrease of about 1,950 students in the community colleges," Home News, 2/21/92, A1).

The cut will irreparably damage the accessibility and quality of our public higher education system (The Chancellor’s Responses to Fiscal Challenges in the 1990's lists variables that could be changed including "raise tuition and fees; reduce programs, activities, functions or services; defer expenditures where possible; reduce or eliminate contingency funds; lower enrollments," p. 4,2/23/94).

Colleges will be closed and programs will be slashed (In his memo to the Presidents of colleges and universities, the Chancellor stated that "it would be necessary for institutions to...close major programs and/or schools," p. 1,2/14/94).

Schlesinger Speaks

by Joan Petrocelli

Scholar Arthur Schlesinger addressed MSC with his speech "The Disuniting of America: Reflections on a Multicultural Society" on Tuesday.

Using the ethnic war in Yugoslavia and other countries in racial turmoil as examples, Schlesinger said that "with the death of communism tribal instincts are coming back," meaning more people are identifying with each other by banding together in their own ethnic groups. He stressed that this greatly concerns the United States because it is the only country that has so many different groups and lacks one main ethnicity.

Schlesinger said that many experts said a society like the U.S. couldn’t exist but it has succeeded "over two turbulent centuries." Americans band together to live under the motto "E Pluribus Unum," which means "one out of many." Therefore, it is dangerous when groups begin to segregate themselves in order to denounce the melting pot of the U.S., because then, according to Schlesinger, they begin to reverse the motto "E Pluribus Unum" into "many out of one."

Schlesinger went on to denounce racism as "the curse that contradicts the ideals of America and is crippling the American way of life."

"The respect for the diversity of people is essential," he said.

Schlesinger concluded that national cohesion is fragile and that Americans must adopt the "we’re all in the same boat together" mentality in order to succeed. He said that Americans only have to look to Bosnia to see where separation and ideas of superiority lead.

"We have miles to go before we sleep, miles to go before we sleep," Schlesinger said.

Arthur Schlesinger has been the recipient of two Pulitzer Prizes and he also served as Special Assistant to John F. Kennedy.

Dr. Arthur Schlesinger spoke to the MSC community on Tuesday.

MSC Celebrates the Feminine Side

Lisa Cacciola speaks to the audience at the flag raising ceremony, Tuesday, as President Reid looks on.

by Kathryn A. Dean

MSC, along with the rest of the country, kicked off March as Women's History Month, this past Tuesday.

A guest appearance by Sally Jessy Raphael will attract a diverse group of people, said one of the sponsors.

According to Joan C. Ficke, Director of the Women's Center which co-sponsored this past Tuesday's celebration, "since the Women's Center is relatively new, it is important to provide them with equal opportunities."

Ficke believes that the major events of the month are clearly targeted for women, but "Montclair State has one of the more elaborate programs."

Though the programming will do a great deal in recognizing women's struggles for equality, "the women's movement still has a long way to go," Ficke said.

Although there are some events on the calendar that are clearly targeted for women, Ficke believes that the majority of programs will be of interest to both men and women. For example, the one act play on sexual harassment presented by The New Jersey Women's Theater Cooperative on March 8, will deal with issues both men and women need to understand.

According to Lisa Cacciola, a graduate assistant that works at the Women's Center, the event that is certain to draw the biggest crowd is the program led by Sally Jessy Raphael. Cacciola said that she has received a large number of phone calls from people off campus who are interested in her visit to the Women's Center, the event that is certain to draw the biggest crowd is the program led by Sally Jessy Raphael. Cacciola said that she has received a large number of phone calls from people off campus who are interested in her visit to the program on March 8 as well.

President Irvin D. Reid, who was present at the flag raising ceremony, stated in a proclamation, "Women have enhanced our campus community with invaluable leadership and intellectual achievements. In recognizing their numerous contributions, Montclair State reaffirms its commitment to provide them with equal educational and employment opportunities."

Other sponsors of Women's History Month activities include the Dean of SHSS, Honors Program, Institute for the Humanities, Latin America Conference, LASO, Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Four Walls, MSC's literary magazine, held their second poetry reading of the semester last Tuesday, at 8:00 p.m. in the Rathskeller.

The majority of the works read were original pieces written by students of the college. Many of the featured poems can be found in this semester's issue of Four Walls.

The list of those who participated in the night's readings included Darla Bruno, Steve Struck, Christopher Miguel, Robert Siek and Victoria Caldes.

Poetry was not the only means of expression used on Tuesday night. Jerry Perlinski and John Oakes, both members of the local band Jester Chest, performed a few of their original songs. In addition to his performance, Perlinski also provided musical accompaniment for a few poets as they recited their pieces.

Siek, secretary of Four Walls, expressed positive feelings when asked about the success of the event. "It went well. It lasted longer and more people were eager to read," Siek said.

Upcoming Four Walls events are currently in the planning stage, one of these tentative projects is a Wall to Wall Art Expo, planned for some time in April. This exhibition will consist of artwork which was submitted and published in the Four Walls Literary Magazine. This semester's published issue of Four Walls is scheduled to be distributed May 9th.

MSC Goes To Court
by Nicole R. Sansio

The four-year old competition is sponsored by the bar foundation to provide aspiring law students with practical, hands-on experience of the operations of law and court procedures, as well as increasing the students' comprehension of the historical, ethical and philosophical basis of the American justice system.

In June of 1991, the Mock Trial Competition was named in honor of Vincent J. Apruzzese, Esq., former chair of the Foundation's Public Education Committee, in tribute to his ambitious endeavors in promoting law related education throughout the state.

A team representing MSC, has participated in the competition since its inception. This year's team, coached by Vnenchak, a sole practitioner of Rockaway, and Barbara Sigro, Esq. of the law firm of Young, Dimiero & Sayovitz. Professor Avram B. Segall assisted the team this year and may be assigned the position for the attorney-coach next semester. Dr. Marilyn Taylor, the Chair of the Legal Studies Department, made it possible for MSC to be part of the Mock Trial.

Each team consisted of two parts, the defense and plaintiff teams. The participants in comprising the defense team were Joyce Smith, team captain, Kim Mazzei, Nicole R. Sanzio, Cindy McGeeachen, and Luis Rey noso. The plaintiff team consisted of Anita Hollowell, team captain, Constance Thomas, Joan Kozeniesky, Nicole Harmon, and Kathleen Shanley. The MSC team competed against colleges, such as Seaton Hall University, Princeton University, Trenton State College, and Rutgers University.

All of these teams were given by the bar foundation, identical cases to familiarize themselves with. Having been provided with the affidavits and statutes, the teams were then expected to develop a case.

The team spent over five months preparing for the competition, and it certainly seemed to pay dividends—the second place finish is the best by an MSC team in the four-year old competition. Meeting two to three times per week, the team developed strategies and honed their direct and cross examination techniques, rehearsed witness testimony, and prepared both opening and closing statements.

The teams were judged on their performance in the court room, the individual team's preparedness and effectiveness, and on whether the attorneys made their objections proper and timely enough. After rendering their decision, the panel of judges provided each team with feedback on how to improve their performance and commendations for well-executed elements of their cases.

Although proud of their place in the final standings, the MSC teams reaped an experience that will last well after the joy of winning fades. The participants come away with a greater sense of confidence and improved leadership qualities, such as listening and learning to think quickly on their feet.

The Simulated Legal Proceedings course is offered every fall semester. If you are interested in participating in the course and competition, contact the Legal Studies Department at 655-4152.

So here's another activity that you can occupy yourself with while trapped within the confines of a dormitory on the campus of MSC. Wander the halls like some kind of fascist enforcer and look for doors with offensive decorations hanging on them. You know, anything with bad words on it, any obscene photos or drawings, and for those of you who wish to be religious nut fascist enforcers, any inverted crosses, pentagrams, or crucifixes that don't have Jesus on them, all this stuff must go. Cross it out with a big black marker, write your cries of protest like "Your Crazy" (watch your grammar, it's important not to appear to be an ignorant moron), or just rip all the offensive stuff right off the door.

Don't be shy, and don't worry about the U.S. Constitution or freedom of expression or anything, because it's your job to impose your (superior and correct) morals and values upon everyone else. This may not be a very original idea, as I've already experienced the righteous censorship of Blanto Hall's resident fascist enforcers, but I thought it was an idea worth passing on. Go ahead, get out there and oppress someone today. Close your mind. And damnit, don't throw stuff off the balcony.

What do you do to fill your free time when you are on campus? Do you have a story to tell? We want to know. Bring your story to the Montclarion by the Friday before publication and it will in the next issue of the Montclarion!
FINANCIAL AID INFORMATION 1994-95
PRIORITY FILING DEADLINE: MARCH 1, 1994

IT'S NEW! — THE RENEWAL APPLICATION

If you filed a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) for the 1993-94 academic year, you should have received a new kind of federal student aid application - the Renewal Free Application for Federal Student Aid, designed to simplify the application process for 1994-95. The new form will allow you to update only that information which may have changed, rather than require you to fill out a whole new application.

WHAT DOES THE RENEWAL APPLICATION LOOK LIKE?

The Renewal Application looks a lot like the green 1993-94 Student Aid Report (SAR) you received this year, but it will be printed on white paper. It will also include an instruction booklet and envelope for mailing it back to the processor.

NOW THAT IT'S HERE, WHAT DO I DO WITH THE RENEWAL APPLICATION?

Essentially, you treat it like a new 1994-95 FAFSA. Carefully follow the instruction for completion, change those items which need updating, and leave the others as they are.

WHEN CAN I SUBMIT THE RENEWAL APPLICATION TO THE PROCESSOR?

Just like an original FASA, you may file this form any time after January 1, 1994. We strongly encourage all students to file the Renewal Application by March 1, 1994 to ensure compliance with our deadline.

WHAT IF I DIDN'T RECEIVE A RENEWAL APPLICATION BEFORE JANUARY 1, 1994?

Not to worry! If you have not received a Renewal Application by the end of the holiday break, come by the Financial Aid Office and pick up a regular 1994-95 FAFSA. The same applies if you misplace the one sent to you. Duplicate Renewal Applications are not available. The processor will accept either form. However, don't send both in — just submit one or the other by the priority deadline date.

WHAT IF I DID NOT APPLY FOR FINANCIAL AID IN 1993-94 BUT WANT TO APPLY FOR AID IN 1994-95?

As Michael O'Leary wrote in last week’s Montclarion, “Americans love the victim.” This is understandable in a country where a belief in some abstraction of equality contrasts with real differences of fortune and where we are too often encouraged to resent those who are better off than ourselves. Where inequality exists, many believe, an adjustment should be made in favor of the disadvantaged and in a manner most suited to his convenience. It’s a troublesome tendency in political life but an understandable temptation. There’s a kind of infantile helplessness in all of us that make it very hard to resist any opportunity to blame our failure on someone else. We will even appropriate the suffering of others to express some sense of our victimization. Don’t we all have a reservoir of sympathy for the underdog, don’t we all suffer vicariously for victims of perceived unfairness?

Conversely, while we idealize the “victim” for our purposes, we demonize the “oppressor.” This is the discreditable emotion that Nietzsche characterized as “resentment”: the pathetic hatred of the weak-spirited for the strong.

A neat example of this spiritual deformity can be seen among members of an ethnic group which would perhaps be thought an unlikely breeding ground for self-styled victims: Irish Americans.

Indeed they are generally very vigorous and independent sort. Having escaped tyrannous obstacles in the Old World they’ve shown an energetic capacity for success in the New. But having long suffered victimization, many of their number cannot now seem to wear themselves of its bittersweet flavor.

I was reminded of this recently when I watched an advertisement on the conflict in Northern Ireland on ABC TV. Toward the end of the ad a logo appeared on the screen. It was a shamrock, the uppermost leaf of which was heart-shaped and red. After a moment a British flag appears above, falling like a headman’s axe into the cleft of the heart. It strikes, and the heart breaks in two.

This is a fair symbolic representation of the cartoonish understanding many Irish-Americans have of the conflict. To them it’s a simple romance of good vs. evil: the nasty “English” invaded Ireland and the Irish want them out. What business do the English have being in Ireland, after all, more Scottish by ancestry than English, and Glasgow is about the only place in Britain where anyone could be found who takes Ian Paisley (the Protestant demagogue) seriously.

Lastly, it may be worth noting that as a kind of counterpart to the British impact on Ireland there has been a tremendous amount of Irish migration to Britain. This means that far from the British being uniformly hostile toward the Irish, many British are Irish in the same way as Irish-Americans. So when an IRA bomb explodes in London a victim’s name could easily be Flanagan, Murphy or Lennon. And when a British soldier is shot in Belfast he could very well be Irish and Catholic himself.

Irish-Americans would do well to stop dreaming of an ideal Ireland like some paradise of kinsmen frozen in a golden age. In the real Ireland of today, people of different views and ancestry call themselves Irishmen and generally live in peace. Perhaps they could learn to do so in the North as well but the cause is not aided by sentimental Americans who for the pleasure of wallowing in a little victimhood vilify an ally and give comfort to assassins.

Finally, students at MSC have been heard. After surpassing sixty-bound items, the Field House received $20,000 worth of items.

For all students who do work out, it has been obvious the exercise is. But all that has come to an end. No more writing in on machines. Now you will have your choice between a new pull-down machine, and a cable crossover machine which accommodates.

On top of all this opportunity, a new floor in which to work out, a completed Field House and a new tiled floor to go with it. To the appearance of the workout room, but makes it more conducive to health mongers.

The Montclarion staff supports these changes and appreciates the opportunity to work out in a crowded, unkept hole that has very few of these and much more equipment, the students now have an opportunity to use.

A side note: there has been a heightened ratio of women in MSC who have started to empower themselves by taking out more often. So all MSC men better get their bodies down to the women take over the new gym equipment.
Every election year, because candidates don't want to talk about homelessness, the declining industrial base and military spending, the American people hear how we are going to win the drug war. The drug war is like most wars: a way for governments to keep the populace from thinking too much about their country's problems.

Now, there is a new fed in society. A fed that promises to be everything to everyone. That fed is mind-drugs. That's right. If you don't like your personality, all you have to do is take a pill and change it.

The most well-known of these drugs is Prozac, an antidepressant. Although it is only scary to eighty percent effective, its producer, Eli Lilly & Co. boasts $1.2 billion a year in sales.

Some other mind-drugs are also popular. Ritalin is a drug that will help concentration. Dilatin, a drug usually prescribed for epileptics, has proven to reduce stress in some people. People who are perfectly normal, who have no serious mental illnesses, take these drugs to "enhance" their personalities.

What underlying message should we all be getting from this new fed? Very simple: that we Americans are still uptight and insecure about ourselves and now we can take pills to change ourselves.

There is a great hypocrisy here. Here is a "mind-altering" drug that can help change your personality. However, mind-altering drugs such as LSD, psilocybin and mescaline are illegal, which goes to show you that deeming one drug "legal" and another "illegal" is a political decision.

Why is it that we Americans are so upstairs about ourselves? Is it our stratification system that makes "controlling emotion" and "perfection" the orders of the day? Is peer pressure? With attitudes like the ones I mentioned before, is it any wonder why the suicide rate is so high? People are told to control their emotions and people wonder why there's such a high ulcer rate in the United States. It's not a bad thing to try to make positive changes in one's own life but I think there are healthier alternatives to pill-popping.

For example, I am no trying Hatha yoga, both as a spiritual and physical discipline. I am also studying Zen and other spiritual rituals. These exercises help me to accept myself for who I am, with all my flaws and imperfections.

Therefore, we can see how pointless our "drug war" is when one person is arrested for taking LSD and another person takes Prozac and they may both give the same effect. However, the real problem is clear: people in this country just can't seem to accept others for who they are, and, even worse, people can't accept themselves for who they are. It's a sin to improve and achieve, but it's a sin not to accept yourself.

The pharmacy is open

Well, here it is, Monday morning, and I'm late with my article as usual. Yesterday, my fiance and I went out to lunch and I said to him, "Oh, damn. I haven't written my newspaper article yet. Now I have to get the attention about something, Any ideas?" We sat in silence for about 10 minutes and concluded nothing.

This is not only astonishing, it's downright scary. For years, I've always been the most opinionated person I know (with one or two exceptions, who shall remain nameless). Now I have trouble caring about a lot of issues, including the ones that are closest to me as a woman. In the classes I have that allow for heated debate on certain issues, I find myself utterly bored. Listening to other people's persecution complexes is much like listening to a broken record, even if I can identify with their experience.

Maybe I've heard it all too many times. I know that beating an issue to death can be dangerous, precisely for this reason. I remember watching films of the Holocaust in my junior year of high school. I went to a Catholic high school and the priest who showed us the films made us watch the films, look at pictures and essentially talk about the horrors of the Holocaust for the entire year. In the beginning, everyone was sickened and horrified by what they saw. By the end of the year, people were yawning. Ho-hum. Just another Holocaust film. A lot of people became irritated because they ceased to care about the Holocaust. Familiarity breeds indifference and apathy. Apathy may have been what allowed the Holocaust to happen. Beating the issue to death only brought about the result that Father Hugh was trying to avoid.

Another problem with beating the issues mercilessly is the "crying-wolf" syndrome. It seems to me that everyone is indifferent and offended by some discrimination against them. Some of the persecution may be real, but in many people it is imagined. The political correctness bullshit (excuse my language, but there's no other word for it) is a direct result of this, because people are persecution-complex-happy. Often the credibility of a minority group is ruined by those who take advantage of their minority status; I have seen women cry "rape" after willfully engaging in sex with someone who ditched them the next day. I have a friend who supervises a large number of people at a county facility and when one black woman on the staff was repeatedly complained about for her abusive behavior, there was nothing my friend could do. When she confronted the woman, she was told by the woman that if she reported her, she would call the NAACP. The administration backed down and let the matter drop because they didn't want to be labelled as racist. People like this ruin the credibility of the group as a whole and when there is a real issue at stake, people think you're just crying wolf. Sad, but true.

Maybe this is why I have trouble getting worked up over "controversial" issues anymore. Or maybe I'm just sick of sounding like a whining worrywart. In any case, maybe the most important thing is this: it never pays to get too worked up about your position on an issue, because you may find later, to your embarrassment, that you've changed your mind.

Don't believe in the government's lies

Mr. Calle informs me that I have only two pages to respond to the four-page attack on me by Prof. Scipione (Montclarion, 2/17). I think this is grossly unfair, given Calle's attack on me (Montclarion, 2/10) and the headlines mocking me personally in both issues. The statements in this letter are not merely "My opinion"; they have been proven by rigorous research. I'll be glad to send a copy of the fuller, five-page reply the Montclarion refuses to print, including the evidence for the statements in this letter, to anyone who drops me a note c/o English Dept., or phones x7305.

1. Atrocities in Vietnam: Scipione is wrong on all four points. (1) The hundreds of civilians crucified at Hue in 1968 were killed by Americans, and blamed on the North Vietnamese by the U.S. government (Porter, 1974). (2) Many books about U.S. atrocities exist, but the only list I've seen of communist atrocities in Vietnam (Pike, 1970) doesn't even claim a single communist atrocity the scale of My Lai. (3) Mass murder of U.S. civilians in Vietnam was "A matter of policy" (Newman's reporters), and a direct consequence of U.S. military operations such as Wheeler Walla Walla (1967, 10,000 civilians killed) and Spooky Express (1968, over 5,000 civilians killed). (4) Americans murdered tens of thousands in the 'Phoenix' Campaign! As one intelligence officer told Congress in 1971: "I never knew ... any detainee to live through his interrogation... They all died and the majority were either tortured to death or things like their own helicopters." 'Phoenix' was equal to the worst Nazi atrocities.

2. Peasant rebellions against murderous landlords had occurred in Asia for thousands of years. After WWII, thanks to the strategy of mobilizing the poor to fight for their rights, the communist-led peasant revolts in China and Vietnam won for the first time in history. The peasants got the land; their standard of living increased greatly. But the U.S. suppressed the peasants in the Philippines and South Korea through mass murder, so U.S. corporations could reap superprofits through cheap agricultural goods and raw materials, and cheap labor from peasants driven off the land and forced to work at subhuman conditions and wages. U.S. Corporations still profit from these conditions today, while exporting jobs and hiring U.S. workers. This is what "protecting Asia from Communist domination" means in practice.

3. How can Scipione lie that I "never invite him to speak" to my course on the Vietnam War? He spoke to that course for four successive years! As for "balance": (1) I use, and respect evidence. Like anyone else, Scipione should study the research on the Vietnam War before presuming to speak about it; (2) Paul, why not invite me and other anti-capitalist speakers to your business classes for "balance"? Take your own medicine!

It's not just Scipione: We have all been duped by government lies about U.S. foreign policy. Opposing viewpoints are rarely permitted in the media and school, where we are taught that propaganda is something that happens to others. Not to us. It is painful to recognize that we have been so lied to!

U.S. imperialism is as shameful as that of any country in history. And it hurts you and me as well! Moral: Don't be a sucker for patriotism! Don't believe the government's lies!

No more war, no more bloodshed

"No more war, no more bloodshed" is a call being issued every morning on a radio station in Israel. But the war and bloodshed continue as extremists on both the Jewish and Arab sides try to sabotage the peace agreement.

I am writing this article in response to Friday's massacre in Hebron. As do many other Jews and Israelis, I condemn Goldstein's attack. Although Goldstein felt frustrated by the incident that happened the day before the attack, when Arabs were jeering at Jews while they were praying, his response was certainly inhumane and immoral.

When heard the news of the attack on Friday, I knew that now Israel and all the Jews would automatically be blamed and held responsible for the attack that was committed by a single man. As I expected, in Monday's New York Times, several comments were made blaming all the Jews of Israel when in fact neither the Israeli government nor the army and anybody else knew anything of the attack until it happened.

The comments made by the outraged Arab population did not surprise me as much as Mr. Arafat's response. I at least expected the PLO's chairman to have more accurate information concerning this attack, unfortunately, he did not. Mr. Arafat claims that a "gang of settlers" and "some elements of the Israeli army" were involved in the killing, but this is incorrect. So maybe Arafat is using this attack to have this organization's demands fulfilled. Demands such as sending UN observers to the occupied territories to help protect Palestinians, demands that the UN Security Council's resolution reaffirm that Jerusalem is part of the occupied territories, that all the Jewish extremists who are dangerous to the Arab world acknowledge the fact that Israel was not responsible for the massacre will not affect the peace talks. After all, as Prime Minister Rabin said: "Israel did not stop negotiation when Jews were victims. To quit now would mean handing a prize to someone who not only murdered the Palestinians but tried to murder the peace process." Let's not allow extremists on both sides to destroy such a remarkable historical achievement.

I would like to reemphasize the statement I made earlier, before I bring this article to a close: I once again condemn the bloodshed caused by the extremist Dr. Goldstein. It was an act that should not have happened. I do hope that this massacre will not affect the peace talks. After all, as Prime Minister Rabin said: "Israel did not stop negotiation when Jews were victims. To quit now would mean handing a prize to someone who not only murdered the Palestinians but tried to murder the peace process." Let's not allow extremists on both sides to destroy such a remarkable historical achievement.

Le Saut de Tremplin
By Dave Stanridge

Take the fat out of the wallet

People starving in Somalia, revolution in Yugoslavia, our society caught in the frail and intricate web of our mother earth, thrusting about in a vain attempt at freedom from its limitations, and in the process destroying us. We sn in our air-conditioned classrooms staring out of the window of our culture. In the twitch of a finger requiring almost no effort at all, there is a flash. Now the voice is laughing and telling jokes. The laughter brings a smile to our face erasing the memory of a child, his limbs, willowy limbs, his dark skin stretched across bone, his belly swollen from malnutrition. The tears falling from eyes imbedded in the chiseled face of poverty, are quickly wiped away by the laughing voice from the lighted box in our living room. Wallowing in mindless ignorance and bliss, we allow the world and its peoples to be sucked further into the abyss of extinction and what would seem to be destiny. The question that must be posed is, will we let this happen? Will we continue to stumble through our lives like so many blindfolded children, while our fellow human beings and our brothers in the animal world are starving or being slaughtered?

While on earth, our mother, turns to the dank and lifeless world of concrete and glass? That is what we're doing.

Except for the tattered few whose consciences are haunted by the putrid decay of a world and a species, how many of us contribute? How many of us are not part of the problem? Not a handful more than the tattered few. We change the channel, turn the page and leave these troubles behind. When we sit down to eat a meal, maybe our third of the day, how many of us see that Somali boy, with swollen belly and willowy limbs? None of us do. If we can't even bring ourselves to face the problems, how do we expect to solve them? Don't we realize that when we change the channel the show still goes on?

Phaseshifter
(Quicksilver Records)

As alternative music becomes mainstream it is getting harder and harder to find truly "alternative" music.

Fortunately for modern rock lovers there's Redd Kross, a '90's pop band that sings about happy themes, catchy love songs with a twist, and a have-a-nice-day mentality. This is great for a song or two, but too much enthusiasm can make someone sick.

Phaseshifter (Quicksilver) accomplishes all that, but somehow manages to keep a sense of humor about the whole rock star notion.

The first track, "Jimmy's Fantasy," kicks off with a catchy pop melody. This just may go Top 40 yet. The second song "Lady in the Front Row," a Beatlesque tune with a harder edge and harmonizing reminiscent of Paul McCartney and John Lennon.

The vocals are done by brothers Jeffrey and Steven McDonald, and are heard over the lead work of Edward Kurzdziel. "Monolith" is self mocking pop with a sense of humor.

"Ms. Lady Evens" is another short upbeat pop song that stands out from the other short upbeat pop songs.

All the songs seem to hover around the three minute mark, are upbeat and are there for the purpose of being there. There are no deep insightful meanings, tear jerking ballads or blatant sentimentality; just good rock and roll with a freshness rarely found these days.

Though too much happiness becomes annoying, Phaseshifter is a good change of pace.

Shoozy Groove
Respect
(Mercury Records)

The union of hardcore rap and hard rock has worked almost to perfection with Run DMC, Body Count, Anthrax with Public Enemy, and more recently various artists on the Judgement Night soundtrack. Shoozy Groove, based out of New York, has followed this vein with energetic beats, hardcore lines from Sense and Season, and monster riffs from axeman Donny. With a solid quintet of two rappers, one guitarist, a bassist and drummer, these guys presented a live show in May of '93 in New York for their debut full length album. The result of this show is the live EP, Respect (Mercury) with five songs that hit hard.

"The Craz" follows the same Body Count, Anthrax formula with rhythmic verbal flows from the two frontmen, Sense and Season backed by Spec's kickin' grooves on bass. The catchy anhemic song is "Buddhafieldday," about the legalization of marijuana, which seems to be the "in" topic of the moment in rap. Shoozy Groove show off their rock capabilities on the closer, "Rockin' in the Wilderness," their grand finale to the show.

Shoozy Groove is an exciting band to be captured on disc, thus making them a live band to really check out.

Stick
Heavy Bag
(Arista Records)

Here it is again, that g-word. Grunge. An expression that has been beaten to death, it is also the best way to describe the band Stick. The Lawrence, KS foursome mark their debut with Heavy Bag (Arista), which is painstakingly grunge. While other bands like Pearl Jam, Nirvana and Alice in Chains have kept the alternative metal/hard rock scene fresh, bands like Stick seem to be cashing in on the "grunge" sound. The album sounds like Soundgarden outtakes, with vocalist Mark Smirl an almost clone to Chris Cornell, but with only half the vocal range.

The song "No Groovy" has been released as a single and is receiving airplay, but after that the album is lost. "Fueled" is filled with many lyrical cliches about a car, but while the music is in the vein of Stone Temple Pilots. "Zero" takes an Alice in Chains-like melody, but the vocals are lacking to carry the song, leaving it flat.

Every song seems to blend into one another making it at times boring. Basic crunchy guitars and a solid backbeat make up every song, but they never go anywhere. The problem with Stick is that they sound like every other distortion-induced band, with nothing to distinguish them from the rest of the pack. A disappointing debut, but with more vocal range and a more original sound, Stick might be able to break free of the land of mediocrity and come out with a CD worth buying.

Review: "Dealing with the 'X' Factor" by Lisa Ertle

The work of two MSC alumni will be wrapping up its display at the college's Main Gallery today.

"Dealing with the 'X' Factor," a collaborative show featuring the work of Anthony Crisafulli and William Gorcica is as colorful and playful as it is intellectually stimulating.

The majority of pieces by Crisafulli, large rectangular paintings in primary and secondary colors, are a combination of block-letter text and a blending of elements taken from a variety of sources, including photos of the artist and his chronicomor.

Gorcica's work includes computer-generated silkscreen images in wood constructions and a life-size, wooden "Cuberman." Gorcica says that all of the pieces are referential to some of his previous work.

A collaborative piece, a "color-coded football field pool table" is an irresistible

The Fashion Boutique
by Deanna Mazzu

Spring Break is not too far away, and many are looking forward to escaping from the inclement weather we have all been experiencing. Thinking about beach wear to bring on vacation is one way to boost your spirits. The new trend happens to be more sporty look and you could take advantage of water sports without fear of "loosing your top."

The February edition of New York Magazine reported that the new way to go is not less material, but the mystery that accompanies more material. The bathing suits for spring '94 take on a somewhat nostalgic '60's look.

The bottoms are tailored with more material around the hip area and are not as high cut as recent years. The tops are reminiscent of a man's tee shirt which gives needed support to a playful look. Also, the triangle look is still a large influence in swimwear despite the introduction of more sporty suits.

Calvin Klein presented a lycra bikini in his collection fashioned after the tank top suit. Another cool combination for those who are not comfortable exposing much of their derriere is the triangle top and lycra briefs.

which strongly resembles a leotard. This different look has short sleeves and a less trendy scheme with a white and navy-blue one piece tank. Choosing from trendy one pieces, new tank styles, triangles or the old revealing standbys is left up to the individual consumer. Only you know what you enjoy doing on the beach, and your suit should reflect those interests. The most important thing is that you shouldn’t buy the “latest” suit just to have it even though it is not normally your style and it doesn’t flatter your figure. Buy for yourself, it’s you who has to wear it!

The newest incarnation of Knight
Rider’s computer is a hologram. Rather,
the new Knight-knight’s deceased girlfriend appears to him via hologram. You see, her spirit is contained in a chandeliercrystal looking thing.

Time Trax uses a hologram-generated woman throughout the entire series, but that’s not really a plot device. Instead,
she’s a regular character.

Second in line is the use of terrorist attacks on helpless crews, space stations, frontier colonies, Tupperware parties or what have you.

How many left-wing self-righteous groups have attacked or taken over in one way or another on Star Trek DS9? ST-DS9 has been using it on a regular basis, but it has been part of a larger picture—the Bajor-Cardassia War.

SQ DS9 seems to say, “Hmmm. What do we do this week? I know! Let’s have a terrorist attack!”

One week, Darwin was a victim. Oh, that’s right, tug on the ol’ heartstrings by kidnapping a helpless dolphin.

Another week, Lucas was in with a band of computer hackers out to terrorize
the bank networks of the world. Another week, a psycho nut scientist threatens to plague the world with some funky virus.

Can you say “getting old,” boys and girls?

Not only that, but too much emphasis is being placed on new technology rather than people.

There’s a new ray gun, or some bug-
eyed race of aliens has made their version of the Death Star and is trying to muscle
in on the Federation, or a new something or other is doing what it shouldn’t and if we don’t have warp speed in two minutes, Scotty, then we’ll all be dead. Back in the day, science fiction was about people, not about technology. It should get back to that.

I miss the Cylons. I miss the Colonial Vipers and New Chicago. I miss the Galactica. I miss the Visitors. There was technology; There was technobabble and dilithium crystals, but first and foremost,
it was about the people in the series, not
about the ships they flew.

It wasn’t about space stations and funky hairdos (a la Babylon 5). I’ll admit,
I didn’t really notice it until last Thursday
when, trapped in the tomb that is the La
Campana office, our secretary Christine Valenti mentioned it in the course of the conversation.

Thanks for the wake up, Christine.

The Couch Potato Update

by George Olschewski

Science fiction television has, by far, lost its creative edge. Don’t get me wrong,
I still love the genre, but too many stories have become trite cop-outs, most of all, the use of the hologram.

Star Trek: Deep Space Nine recently had an episode where an entire colony population (even the town!) was a hologram.
The newest incarnation of Knight
Rider’s computer is a hologram. Rather,
the new Knight-knight’s deceased girlfriend appears to him via hologram. You see, her spirit is contained in a chandelier-
crystal looking thing.

Time Trax uses a hologram-generated
woman throughout the entire series, but
that’s not really a plot device. Instead,
she’s a regular character.

Second in line is the use of terrorist
attacks on helpless crews, space stations,
frontier colonies, Tupperware parties or
what have you.

How many left-wing self-righteous
groups have attacked or taken over in one way or another on Star Trek DS9? ST-DS9
has been using it on a regular basis, but it has been part of a larger picture—the Bajor-Cardassia War.

SQ DS9 seems to say, “Hmmm. What do we do this week? I know! Let’s have
a terrorist attack!”

One week, Darwin was a victim. Oh,
that’s right, tug on the ol’ heartstrings by
kidnapping a helpless dolphin.

Another week, Lucas was in with a band of computer hackers out to terrorize
the bank networks of the world. Another week, a psycho nut scientist threatens to plague the world with some funky virus.

Can you say “getting old,” boys and girls?

Not only that, but too much emphasis is being placed on new technology rather
than people.

There’s a new ray gun, or some bug-
eyed race of aliens has made their version of the Death Star and is trying to muscle
in on the Federation, or a new something
or other is doing what it shouldn’t and if
we don’t have warp speed in two minutes, Scotty, then we’ll all be dead. Back in the day, science fiction was about people, not about technology. It should get back to that.

I miss the Cylons. I miss the Colonial Vipers and New Chicago. I miss the Galactica. I miss the Visitors. There was technology; There was technobabble and dilithium crystals, but first and foremost,
it was about the people in the series, not
about the ships they flew.

It wasn’t about space stations and funky hairdos (a la Babylon 5). I’ll admit,
I didn’t really notice it until last Thursday
when, trapped in the tomb that is the La
Campana office, our secretary Christine Valenti mentioned it in the course of the conversation.

Thanks for the wake up, Christine.

THE STUDY DIET PLAN.

Mid terms are upon us again. Here is a helpful study diet to help you manage your weight and relieve stress.

Breakfast: 1/2 a grape fruit, a cup of black coffee or tea, one piece of toast with margarine. Do half an hour of our relaxation exercises. Schedule 2 hour of study.

Lunch: A green salad, a glass of orange juice, one lean chicken sandwich. 1/2 a slice of cheese cake. Walk for an hour on a gradient of 1/5. Remember to breath through the nose to optimize oxygen intake. Schedule 2 more hours of home work.

Dinner: Lean Beef or Skinless chicken, three vegetables, eat the rest of the cheese cake, drink a bottle of wine, go out on the town, drop out of college.

Can you draw a straight line? Do you make your friends laugh intentionally? Then you should draw comics or write articles for the Montclarion’s funny pages. We need you!

Red Hawks hope to avoid falling prey to Hunter

MSC head coach Nick DeTufo may have put it best when he said, "We're back on the map."

That's saying plenty for how dramatically this program has improved. DeTufo and his players, watching via satellite, saw themselves in the NCAA Division III tournament for the first time since 1984 on Sunday.

Tonight, the fifth-seeded Red Hawks will travel to New York City to take on fourth-seeded Hunter College (25-2) in the first round of the Atlantic Regional. The winner of that game travels to Glassboro to take on top-seeded Rowan College, which is also No. 3 in the nation.

"They're a quick team," said Del Tufo of his first round opponent. "They like to use full-court pressure, kind of a helter skelter approach."

The Hawks will look to junior guard Shawn McCartney (23.7 ppg) and senior guard/forward Rob Carter (19.2 pgg, 7.9 rpg) for offense. They'll receive help inside from sophomore center Brian Palacios (who's averaging 13 points and 8.7 rebounds per contest.

MSC probably clinched the tournament bid by winning seven straight games before succumbing to Rowan, 77-62 on Saturday.

"I don't think we realize how big a game that Stockton game was," said guard and sixth man Chris Smith, "because if we didn't win that game, we might not have got in. I think it's kind of a relief that we got in."

"Their depth killed us," added point guard Keith Roberts. "They just kept bringing in fresh guys that did the same amount of damage as the starting five."

It was not only their depth that aided the Prof's. It was their ability to adjust their defense and their intelligent play as well. Their adjusting to a 1-3-1 match up zone, which MSC had not seen all year spells out why they were

MSC falls to Rowan in NJAC final, but earns first NCAA bid in 10 years

by Brian Falasarno

Balance is one thing in the game of basketball. But when you're like Rowan College, balance and depth win games and championships.

At least the NJAC championship. In defeating MSC, 77-62, there were a few factors as to why the Red Hawks (18-7)

Men's Basketball

came up on the other side of victory.

-The Prof's shot 68 percent in the second half, while MSC shot 42.3 percent.

-Players such as Chris Jackson (four fouls in 24 minutes) and Greg Fowler (fouled out) were in foul trouble in the second half, enabling Rowan College to blow the game open.

Yes, it was Rowan's (25-1, ranked No. 3 in the country) depth proving to be insurmountable to MSC.

"The key was their depth," said coach Nick DeTufo. "They went eight or nine deep."

"Their depth killed us," added point guard Keith Roberts. "They just kept bringing in fresh guys that did the same amount of damage as the starting five."

MSC hires two new track and field coaches

by Karl Lomberk

The MSC Athletic Department has announced the hiring of three new coaches, including two track and field coaches.

Leander Knight, an MSC graduate and a former standout football player in 1984 and 1985, has been named the interim head track coach, temporarily replacing suspended coach John Blanton.

The interim status of the head track coach is based on the pending judicial proceedings involving Blanton.

Knight was a defensive back for the Houston Oilers and New York Jets from 1987-1991 and served as an assistant football coach at MSC in 1988. He is currently a teacher in the East Orange school district.

Noreen Cassidy was hired to fill the assistant track coach vacancy on a permanent basis.

The 1990 graduate of MSC served as an assistant track coach at Morris Knolls High School in 1989 and was also an assistant field hockey coach at Boonton High School and the Academy of St. Elizabeth in Convent Station in 1991-92. She was also an assistant swim coach at Morristown High School in 1993.

The school also hired Robin Curcuru as the men’s tennis coach to replace Barri Pollner.

Curcuru most recently served as an assistant women's tennis coach at Rutgers University. The graduate of the University of Richmond takes over a team that won 8-6 last season.

The Manasquan native was a four-year member of the Spiders' women's team from 1989-92. She was named her team's captain in 1991-92 and was Richmond's Most Valuable Player her senior season.

Curcuru is currently pursuing her Master's Degree at MSC.
Grateful Red Hawks slide into ECAC tournament
by Keith A. Idec

It’s not the NCAA tournament, but it’s better than nothing.
The MSC women’s basketball team, which surprisingly received a bid to the ECAC tournament last season, is now in the NCAA tournament. In the first game at 6 p.m., MSC received an ECAC bid last season, but decided to turn it down after playing in the NCAA tournament. This season, the Red Hawks were elated to be playing in the post-season.

"Last year our aspirations were higher," said MSC head coach Gloria Bradley. "It was the NCAA’s or nothing. This year we’re a younger and more inexperienced team, so the more that we play the better it is for us.

Senior forward Judy Stair was especially happy about continuing her career at MSC. "We were shocked to get in," said Stair of the players’ reaction to getting a bid. "I’ve played in the post-season every year I’ve been here. If we’re able to win, it would be a great way to end my career."

MSC got into the ECAC’s thanks largely in part to Upsala College. The Vikings, who won the bubble for the NCAA’s, wound up receiving a bid to that tournament, thus opening a spot for MSC in the ECAC tournament.

Ramapo (14-10) is the favorite to win the tournament despite closing its regular season with a four-game losing streak. To advance to the final on Saturday at 6 p.m., the Red Hawks will have to stop the Roadrunners’ leading scorer, 5-foot-11 senior center Katina Johnson, who’s averaging 16.8 points and 11.3 rebounds per game. That task will go to sophomore center Kim Kovar. The six-foot Kovar is averaging 9.1 points and 11.1 rebounds per game.

"We have to deal with Katina Johnson on the inside and their backcourt is really strong," said Bradley. "Another key for us is to hit our free throws. The last time we played them we were 7-20 from the line and we lost by five points. If we’re focused, we’ll do well.”

Ramapo will also look to 5-10 junior forward Sue Beck, who goes for 16.6 points and 10.3 rebounds per game. Guard Tyra Cameron adds 15.6 points and 4.5 assists a contest for the Roadrunners.

Along with Kovar and Stair, sophomore guard Lisa Vilallta and senior guard Stacy McWilliams must play well for the Red Hawks to get into the final against either FDU-Madison or York.

MSC comes into the tournament having not played a game for a week-and-a-half. The Red Hawks also did not practice for over a week since they didn’t know if they’d have anything to practice for. When they got word of the tournament bid on Monday, it was time to shake off the rust.

"We were a little rough around the edges when we practiced on Monday and Tuesday," said Bradley. "But we’ve gone at it real hard in practice. The time off was good because most of the players needed some time to heal.

Entering this season, MSC was expected to struggle a little bit. With only two seniors, this was thought to be a rebuilding year for the Red Hawks. It was.

Inconsistency plagued them throughout the season and their record reflects that.

However, winning this tournament would be a major confidence builder for next year. Three starters return and Bradley has a year’s worth of head coaching experience under her belt.

Obviously, the earlier this team learns to win, the better off it will be. There’s no better time than now.

RED HAWK NOTES...Stair finished as the team’s leading scorer at 19 ppg. She was also the NJAC’s second-leading scorer. Villalta finished as the conference leader in assists (6.4 apg) and was second in steals (5.6 spg). She scored 9.7 points a contest. The conference guard Heidi Klingert was MSC’s second-leading scorer at 10 points a game.

Five MSC wrestlers go for it all at national meet
by Glenn Steinberg

After finishing third in the NCAA Division III wrestling tournament last year, the Red Hawk wrestlers are returning to the NCAA tournament with high hopes.

The tournament begins tomorrow with with the preliminary and quarterfinal rounds at the University of Wisconsin-Steven Point. It concludes on Saturday with the semifinal and final rounds. The official weigh-ins are to place in the meet, a grappler must finish in the top eight in his weight class. Placing in a weight class ensures a wrestler of All-American status.

DeLuca is No. 7 in his weight class in Division III, so going in he is expected to place.

Castiglia, a senior, is wrestling in the weight class he belongs in for the first time in his four-year career and it has benefited him tremendously. "He used to wrestle at 134 and that was a little too heavy for him," said Strelliner. "He’s a better wrestler at 126 than he was at 134.

Flammer should have a shot at the national title at 142 lbs. "He lost in a real good match to Johnson of Trenton State in the finals of the Mets and Johnson is the top wrestler in the country in his weight class," Strelliner said.

Beagan lost to the No. 3 wrestler in the nation at the Mets and is also in contention to place.

However, the expectations for Rea are not as secure. "Anything could happen with Chris," said Strelliner. "But he’s a good wrestler and his different style could help him."

Along with Kovar and Stair, sophomore guard Lisa Vilallta and senior guard Stacy McWilliams must play well for the Red Hawks to get into the final against either FDU-Madison or York.

Hines proves that nice guys don’t always finish last

by Brian Falzarano

College this year. “You’ve gotta like you wish all your kids had.” These intangibles caring, considerate young man. He’s a secure individual. They’re intangibles you wish all your kids had.”

“You better believe it. “He’s just a real nice guy,” said point guard Keith Roberts, who has become close with Hines since transferring from Wagner College this year. “You’ve gotta like him. He gets along with everybody.”

The thing I like about Keith,” said MSCI coach Nick Del Tufo, “is he’s a caring, considerate young man. He’s a secure individual. They’re intangibles you wish all your kids had.”

Ironically, Hines almost didn’t get this far. He didn’t even start playing basketball until seventh grade because his first love was football. It was by accident that he discovered the game in which he now excels at.

Hines’ play in the paint has helped the Red Hawks get into the NCAA’s.

“The coach (at his junior high school) walked up to me and said, ‘Congratulations, you made the team.’ I looked at him and told him I didn’t even try out.”

From there he worked on his game with Craig Brandon, who became his best friend, as well as his brother Greg, who played at the Hampton (Va.) Institute and overseas for 10 years. Despite being overlooked by Division I schools such as Rutgers and St. Peter’s, which offered him scholarships, he was considered a “tweener” hurt his chances of those schools risking a scholarship on him.

“They didn’t think I could be an impact player,” said Hines, a 6-foot-5, 210-pounder. “The coach (at his junior high school) walked up to me and said, ‘Congratulations, you made the team.’ I looked at him and told him I didn’t even try out.”

From there he worked on his game with Craig Brandon, who became his best friend, as well as his brother Greg, who played at the Hampton (Va.) Institute and overseas for 10 years.

And boy has MSC improved since his decision. They went from winning six games in 1991-1992, the year before he came back home and worked odd jobs for a year. It was during open gym at Panzer Gymnasium that Del Tufo and assistant coach Jose Rebimbas spotted him playing and urged him to play for them. After a visit from Del Tufo, his mind was made up. “I decided I wanted to play,” Hines said. “My parents were very supportive of me. Ever since then I’ve been a Red Hawk.”

Hines proves that nice guys don’t always finish last Night in and night out, you know what you are going to get from him,” Del Tufo said. “Keith Hines is probably one of the best all-around players I’ve had at MSC. He’s definitely the best inside player we’ve had.”

With his presence on the court, it opens up things on the outside for me and the other players,” said Dean Spingatore. “He’s definitely feared and respected around the league.”

The fact that he is a senior who led the Red Hawks to their goal at the outset of the season is apparent to one teammate in particular.

“The coaches made reference to it (making the tournament for Hines) a few times and a few guys did, too,” said Chris Smith, a key contributor off the bench. “He’s the typical player you want on your team. He gives it all on the court, and off the court he gives it all in life and as a friend.”

Hines, as humble as he is, deflects praise towards his teammates. Especially towards Spingatore, Mike Piperic and Chris Jackson who have been here since Del Tufo’s abysmal six-win first season.

“Dean, Chris and Mike were the foundation,” said Hines. “Those are the type of guys you want to say to them, ‘Way to go, fellas!’”

That’s Keith Hines for you.

outscored, 46-29, in the second half.

“They made changes that hurt us,” said guard Dean Spinogatti, who had 12 points for the Red Hawks. “They went to a 1-3-1 zone, which we hadn’t seen before.”

The first half was another story. When Rowan led 23-15 with 8:48 left in the opening half, MSC believed they could stay in and win this game.

Proof of that came in Spinogatti’s 35-foot three-pointer on one leg, which banked in off of the glass at the buzzer to give the Red Hawks a surprising 33-31 lead at the break. It also gave them a huge confidence boost.

“That shot put us exactly where we wanted to be,” said Roberts, who had 13 points on a sub-par three of 15 shooting. “When he made that shot, there was no doubt in my mind we were going to win that game.”

“Everyone definitely felt good,” said Spinogatti. “We thought it might have been a sign.”

But it wasn’t. Rowan came out and dominated the second half, hitting nine of their first ten shots. MSC was within 51-46, when Rob Gluck made a steal and threw down a dunk from the foul line that got the fans and the Prof into the game. Another key statistic was that Rowan’s bench, led by Gluck’s eight points and three rebounds in 16 minutes, outscored MSC’s bench, 21-0.

MSC played two very solid halves, including a near flawless first half in a game they never trailed to ward off Stockton State, 73-62, in the first round of the NJAC tournament.

Led by 21 points from Greg Fowler and Spinogatti’s eight assists in the first half, the Red Hawks coasted to a 40-21 halftime margin.

For the Red Hawks, it gave them some relief from the last time these two teams met. In that game on February 3, MSC was winning for nearly the whole game until Ramon Gaines hit a three-pointer with 18 seconds left to give Stockton a 58-57 win.

This time Gaines was held to five points on two of 12 shooting. Jermaine Clay, a contender for conference player of the year, had 17 points despite foul trouble for the Ospreys, who were led by Carl Cochran’s 24 points.

RED HAWK NOTES: Statistical leaders - Keith Hines leads in scoring (16 points per game), rebounds (10.6 rpg), minutes (32.9), and blocks (2.16)

...Fowler leads in free throw percentage (86.2) and three-point field goals made (33)....Roberts leads in assists (4.54)....Jackson leads in steals (2.96)....Hines on having Roberts: “If we had him last year, we would have been in the NCAA’s.”
