Field House Shaping Up!

$20,000 of new equipment for students (Gaughan p. 3)
New Vice President for Student Development and Student Affairs named

• Former Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute VP Dr. Lee Wilcox chosen to replace Dr. Armstrong

by Greg Mac Sweeney

A new Vice President of Student Development and Student Affairs was appointed yesterday after the field was narrowed down to four candidates in late January. The new VP will start officially on July 1, pending approval from the Board of Trustees.

Dr. Lee Wilcox, the former VP for Student Affairs at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, accepted the appointment, yesterday, after MSC President Irvin Reid notified him over the weekend, said Wilcox.

Wilcox will "start phasing in here in early April," said Reid.

"I hope to get oriented with the staff in April," said Wilcox. "I plan to get started on an Academic Advising Center (ASC) that could possibly be located in Moorehead Hall." The Business Department will most likely be moved to Partridge Hall.

"We are very excited about the new appointment," said Reid. "He is a professional of high caliber and his insight into what a complex institution, such as ours [MSC], needs will be very useful, especially as we move closer to university status."

During a speech that Wilcox made to students in early February, he expressed the importance of his job by saying that most students do not leave school because of flunking out, but because of lack of activity in campus life.

"We are here for the students and students need to find satisfaction in campus life," said Wilcox. According to Wilcox, the people he has met here, including the students and President Reid, have all expressed optimism for the future. He also said that he wants to be part of an institution on the rise and believes MSC is one of those institutions.

Wilcox said he heard about this job from the VPSA at Ramapo College, Pamela Bischof, and said that she thought it would be a good match for him.

He also said that the job was appealing to him because of MSC's initiative such as global education and the focus on the new student experience.

"I also think university status will be a big plus and I would like to be a part of realizing the benefits," Wilcox said.

Wilcox will replace Acting Vice President for Student Development and Student Affairs Dr. Domenica Desiderioscioli. Desiderioscioli replaced Dr. Jean Armstrong in the fall of 1991 when Armstrong retired and returned to the English Department.

Wilcox currently lives in Troy, N.Y. and plans to move to some sort of temporary housing near MSC before he completes the move sometime in the future.
$20,000 in new exercise equipment installed in field house

by Rodney Gaughan

During the last week of February, $20,000 worth of new exercise equipment was purchased and installed in the Field House located adjacent to the Quarry parking lot.

According to Jose Rebimbas, director of Recreation, the new equipment was greatly needed in order to be able to better serve the campus community.

Some of the new equipment includes, two-step machines and two recumbent cyclers. These machines are designed to give cardiovascular workouts. The cyclers feature a contoured seat which gives back support, unlike most conventional machines which do not.

Other pieces of equipment include: a Smith Machine for squats, a lat pull-down machine, and a cable crossover machine which is accessorized to accommodate many different tasks.

Although the field house is small, considering the population of MSC, Rebimbas is trying to make students and faculty aware of all it has to offer.

Another change since Rebimbas came to MSC, about a year ago, is the use of free weights, which most women prefer over conventional weights which are more of a hassle to set up. He also noted that participation by women has increased significantly over previous semesters.

The Assistant Athletic Director, Holly Gera, and the Acting Student Center Director Constance D. Ford, were praised by Rebimbas for their involvement in obtaining the funds necessary to purchase the equipment. Gera was not available for comment.

The field house was built on the same bond that the Student Center Annex was built with. That is why the Student Center director is responsible for renovations and improvements, said Ford.

A new slip resistant tile floor was also installed to "prevent people slipping on perspiration."

"The response has been great," said Ford. "The more unisex equipment can accommodate much more traffic." Ford is currently working on getting better heating for the field house along with getting a contractor to fix the sauna that has been broken for over a year.

The best times to use the Field House, according to Rebimbas, are in the morning and early afternoon hours.

Graduate Students pay higher fees for undergrad courses

by Tara Champ

Ok-Soon Dang was concerned when she opened her semester bill for fall 1993. Dang received a Masters degree in music here at MSC and returned in fall 1992 for teacher certification. She, along with many other students, learned recently that MSC has changed its policy regarding graduate students. Post degree students formerly paid undergraduate prices for any such course taken outside their academic major. In July of 1993, the Board of Trustees changed that policy. Post degree students are now charged graduate school prices for all courses regardless of the class level.

This policy reflects the school's belief that student status is the primary method by which to assess tuition. Most institutions of higher education have adopted this type of policy for graduate programs.

Dang believes that it is unfair to have post BA students pay double tuition ($142.80 versus $71.40) for undergrad level courses.

Dr. Rosenblum, vice president for educational advancement, states, "The difference between undergraduate and graduate tuition does not reflect a difference in cost but rather a difference in the degree to which the state of New Jersey is subsidizing undergraduate and graduate students."

He elaborated that there has been a considerable decrease in funding and the Board of Trustees' primary obligation is to subsidize undergraduate students working on their first degree, although the school is still fully aware of the obligation that it has to its graduate students.

In many cases, post degree students in undergraduate courses are assigned additional work and evaluated by higher standards than other students. Dang, however, contends that her 100 - 300 level courses yielded her the same work load and academic standards as the undergraduate students.

It should also be noted that some of the services offered to undergraduates are not available to post degree students. For example, graduates are not eligible for any of the services offered by the Student Government Association. Many students find this unfair. Graduate tuition, however, does not include many of the fees paid by undergraduates, namely the SGA fee.
The Anatomy of the Citibank Classic card: a body of services and peace of mind for students, now with No Annual Fee. For years, scientists could only theorize about the Citibank Classic Visa® card, unable to actually observe anything below its epidermal surface (i.e. the plastic). Surely the highly intelligent services were evidence of an advanced brain. But with the latest advances in x-ray technology, and when the light could catch the various parts just so, it was confirmed: the Citibank Classic Visa card is head to toe more evolved than ever imagined.

At its backbone are 3 services to cover the purchases you make on the card.

Starting at the Lower Costal Spine, we see Citibank Price Protection can assure you of the best price. All you have to do is discover the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150. Along the Oops-It-Slipped Disc, Buyers Security™ can cover those purchases against accidental damage, fire or theft, for 90 days from the date of purchase; and Citibank Lifetime Warranty™ allows one to extend the warranty for the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years. So if you ever buy a walkman, a stereo, whatever, it will be reassuring to know that Citibank can bend and be flexible while still lending support. The backbone is then connected to the cranium or headbone. Look at the bottom of the page. The Citibank Photocard has the head of the cardholder, as well as his or her own signature, right on the front. That way, it will help prevent fraud. It will also make a good form of ID, since you get to choose your own photo. But what about the Nervous System? The fact is, it doesn't have one, not in the spinal cord nor in the brain. What it has is the Very Calm System. Because even if your credit card gets stolen, or gets lost, an involuntary muscle called the Extendus Anwcardenus activates the Lost Wallet™ Service which can replace your card usually within 24 hours. As suspected, there's another involuntary muscle: the heart—a beating and caring heart, big enough to give students special discounts and savings. You'll receive a $20 Airfare Discount on domestic flights; savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, magazines and music; a low variable interest rate of 15.4%; and, No Annual Fee. (In other words, the card itself doesn't cost a forelimb and a hindlimb.) Naturally the heart of the Citibank Visa card pumps life and personalized customer service into all its parts, 24 hours a day. So no matter what the question you might have concerning your card, you need only call the 800 number. You'll find Citibank has a neck they are eager to stick out for you. They will always lend an ear. Or a hand. They will keep an eye out for you. They will put their best foot forward. Etc. So call to apply.

You don’t need a job or a cosigner. And call if you’d like your photo added to your regular Citibank Classic Visa card. The number is 1-800-CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226), extension 19. If we take an overview of the whole body of services that make up the Citibank Classic Visa card, and consider that it will facilitate building a credit history, then you must shake a leg, flex your index finger and call today.

Lepe acknowledged that there is really nothing she could do and that she is kind of helpless.

"This is getting kind of silly now. I mean, even my mother doesn't give me this kind of guilt," Cotter said.

SGA legislators upset over treatment from Executive board

During the Feb. 9 SGA meeting, SGA President James Cotter accused a legislator of helping the defendants in a judicial hearing.

Tania Lepe, a legislator of the SGA, was accused by Cotter of helping Tau Phi Beta Fraternity plan out their case.

MONTCLAIR STATE-OFFICE OF RESIDENCE LIFE
Weekend
Classes during Spring Break due to snow

By Sheila Patnode

Weekend college students will have to attend classes during the last weekend of spring break, March 25, 26 and 27, in order to make up classes that were cancelled during the semester due to inclement weather.

Weekend classes, which meet once a week between Friday night and Sunday afternoon, were cancelled Friday, Jan. 28 and Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Feb. 11-13.

The decision to cancel classes was made by MSC President, Dr. Irvin Reid, Vice President for Administration and Finance, Thomas Auch and Provost and Vice President of Academic Affairs, Dr. Richard Lynde.

According to Lynde, the state requires that there be 15 weeks in a semester. Losing two Friday classes caused weekend students to fall short of the requirement. Lynde also said that weekend faculty members, a large number of which are adjuncts, had requested a time that weekend classes could be made up.

"I'm glad they rescheduled for the sake of the students," said Dr. Byung Min, who teaches classes on Saturday mornings. "Out of 18 students in my class, only one said she had a problem making the class. I will help the students out with this."

"Losing one weekend class is equal to losing a full week of another class," said John Sanz, director of Weekend College. "Students can tell professors of prior arrangements and they will be more than understanding."

Sanz also said that out of 40 weekend instructors, only two had approached them saying there would be a problem with the rescheduling. "The professors have some flexibility in choosing dates that are convenient to them and the students."

In a memo to the campus community, Lynde requested all academic support units, such as maintenance, the cafeteria and the library to provide the services which would be provided on a normal weekend. He said that there is likely to be some cost to the college but exact figures have not been determined.

Marjorie Coleman-Carter, director of Residence Life, said that 16 dorm students are affected by the decision and that those students are currently being polled in order to establish their housing needs.

No Tax Hike for Higher Education

FACTS ON THE HIGHER EDUCATION BUDGET
IMPACT ON STUDENTS AND COLLEGES

GOV. WHITMAN'S $93.9 MILLION CUT TO THE HIGHER EDUCATION BUDGET IS AN ATTACK
ON OUR EDUCATION AND THE FUTURE OF OUR STATE.

• Double digit tuition increases (between 10 and 25 percent) are expected to make up the difference (According to the Board of Higher Education Proposed budget, "if adequate public funds are not available to support institutional budgets...then tuition levels will have to rise significantly to preserve the current quality of services and program" p. 28).

• New Jersey already has the fourth highest public education costs in the nation (As documented by the AFT/AFL-CIO NJ Council of State College Locals report on Higher Education in New Jersey, Shifting Costs to Students, p. 21).

• Financial Aid will not cover all eligible students, nor will TAG & EOF be protected from cuts (The BHE forwarded plans to the Legislature for "distributing FY '95 TAG funds if the amount appropriated is insufficient for full awards to all eligible applicants," minutes BHE meeting 1/26/94).

• Current and future students will be forced out of schools ("the higher education department predicted the cuts would still result in an expected decrease of about 1,950 students in the community colleges," Home News, 2/21/92, A1).

• The cut will irreparably damage the accessibility and quality of our public higher education system (The Chancellor's Response to Fiscal Challenges in the 1990's lists variables that could be changed including "raise tuition and fees; reduce programs, activities, functions or services; defer expenditures where possible; reduce or eliminate contingency funds; lower enrollments," p. 4,2/23/94).

• Colleges will be closed and programs will be slashed (In his memo to the Presidents of colleges and universities, the Chancellor stated that "it would be necessary for institutions to...close major programs and/or schools," p. 1,2/14/94).

Schlesinger Speaks
by Joan Petrocelli

Scholar Arthur Schlesinger addressed MSC with his speech "The Disuniting of America: Reflections on a Multicultural Society" on Tuesday.

Using the ethnic war in Yugoslavia and other countries in racial turmoil as examples, Schlesinger said that "with the death of communism tribal instincts are coming back," meaning more people are identifying with each other by banding together in their own ethnic groups. He stressed that this greatly concerns the United States because it is the only country that has so many different groups and lacks one main ethnicity.

Schlesinger said that many experts said a society like the U.S. couldn't exist but it has succeeded "over two turbulent centuries." Americans band together to live under the motto "E Pluribus Unum" which means "one out of many." Therefore, it is dangerous when groups begin to segregate themselves in order to denounce the melting pot of the U.S., because then, according to Schlesinger, they begin to reverse the motto "E Pluribus Unum" into "many out of one."

Schlesinger went on to denounce racism as "the curse that contradicts the ideals of America and is crippling the American way of life."

"The respect for the diversity of people is essential," he said.

Schlesinger concluded that national cohesion is fragile and that Americans must adopt the "we're all in the same boat together" mentality in order to succeed. He said that Americans only have to look to Bosnia to see where separation and ideas of superiority lead.

"We have miles to go before we sleep, miles to go before we sleep," Schlesinger said.

Arthur Schlesinger has been the recipient of two Pulitzer Prizes and he also served as Special Assistant to John F. Kennedy.

MSC Celebrates the Feminine Side

Lisa Cacciola speaks to the audience at the flag raising ceremony, Tuesday, as President Reid looks on.

by Kathryn A. Dean

MSC, along with the rest of the country, kicked off March as Women’s History Month, this past Tuesday.

A guest appearance by Sally Jessy Raphael will attract a diverse group of people, said one of the sponsors.

According to Joan C. Ficke, Director of the Women’s Center which co-sponsors the month’s events with the office of Student Activities, many other colleges are hosting events in celebration and recognition of women’s achievements but “Montclair State has one of the more elaborate programs.”

Though the programming will do a great deal in recognizing women’s struggles for equality, “the women’s movement still has a long way to go,” Ficke said.

Although there are some events on the calendar that are clearly targeted for women, Ficke believes that the majority of programs will be of interest to both men and women. For example, the one act play on sexual harassment presented by The New Jersey Women’s Theater Cooperative on March 8, will deal with issues both men and women need to understand.

According to Lisa Cacciola, a graduate assistant that works at the Women’s Cooperative on March 8, will deal with issues both men and women need to understand.

MSC. The talk show host is present at the flag raising ceremony, stated in a proclamation, “Women have enhanced our campus community with invaluable leadership and intellectual achievements. In recognizing their numerous contributions, Montclair State reaffirms it’s commitment to provide them with equal educational and employment opportunities.”

Other sponsors of Women’s History Month activities include the Dean of SHSS, Honors Program, Institute for the Humanities, Latin America Conference, LASO, Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Four Walls, MSC's literary magazine, held their second poetry reading of the semester last Tuesday, at 8:00 p.m. in the Rathskellar.

The majority of the works read were original pieces written by students of the college. Many of the featured poems can be found in this semester's issue of Four Walls.

The list of those who participated in the night's readings included Darla Bruno, Steve Struck, Christopher Miguel, Robert Sick and Victoria Caldes.

Poetry was not the only means of expression used on Tuesday night. Jerry Perlinski and John Oakes, both members of the local band Jester Chest, performed a few of their original songs. In addition to his performance, Perlinski also provided musical accompaniment for a few poets as they recited their pieces.

Siek, secretary of Four Walls, expressed positive feelings when asked about the success of the event. "It went well. It lasted longer and more people were eager to read," Sick said.

Upcoming Four Walls events are currently in the planning stage, one of these tentative projects is a Wall to Wall Art Expo, planned for some time in April. This exhibition will consist of artwork which was submitted and published in the Four Walls Literary Magazine. This semester's published issue of Four Walls is scheduled to be distributed May 9th.

Student Life
WORLD FULL OF HATE
by Stephanie Baker

So here's another activity that you can occupy yourself with while trapped within the confines of a dormitory on the campus of MSC. Wander the halls like some kind of fascist enforcer and look for doors with offensive decorations hanging on them. You know, anything with bad words on it, any obscene photos or drawings, and for those of you who wish to be religious nut fascist enforcers, any inverted crosses, pentagrams, or crucifixes that don't have Jesus on them, all this stuff must go. Cross it out with a big black marker, write your cries of protest like "Your Crazy" (watch your grammar, it's important not to appear to be an ignorant moron), or just rip all the offensive stuff right off the door. Don't be shy, and don't worry about the U.S. Constitution or freedom of expression or anything, because it's your job to impose your (superior and correct) morals and values upon everyone else. This may not be a very original idea, as I've already experienced the righteous censorship of Blanto Hall's resident fascist enforcers, but I thought it was an idea worth passing on. Go ahead, get out there and oppress someone today. Close your mind. And dammit, don't throw stuff off the balcony.

What do you do to fill your free time when you are on campus? Do you have a story to tell? We want to know. Bring your story to the Montclarion by the Friday before publication and it will be in the next issue of the Montclarion!
Hey Dude!!!

by Greg MacSweeney

The second Annual Deeher Dude Contest, sponsored by Delta Phi Epsilon Sorority, was held on Thursday in the Student Center Ballrooms to raise money for Cystic Fibrosis. The event had 10 contestants from different MSC organizations compete in five different categories for 1994 Deeher Dude Crown.

This year’s winner, from Alpha Chi Rho Fraternity, Terry Hogan won by a slim margin over the two runner ups. Receiving 200 points from the panel of five judges, Hogan received flowers, the Deeher Dude crown, a first place trophy, and a dinner at The Alexus Steak House with the entire sorority, said the organization and “mastermind” of Deeher Dude, Angelina Chillemi.

“Most of the contestants did a great job and they were all so close,” said Chillemi, “The best part about it was that it was all for a good cause.”

First runner up, Ed Torres from Delta Kappa Psi Fraternity, received 199 points and second runner up, Jay Caravello who was sponsored by Sigma Delta Tau Sorority, received 198 points in a “very close vote,” Delta Phi Epsilon sister, Valerie Bellardini.

Tickets cost $3 in advance and $4 at the door and all of the proceeds went to Cystic Fibrosis except for $100 that went to the DJ and the money that was spent on the prizes, Bellardini said.

“The DJ gave us a break because he knew it was for a good cause,” said Chillemi. “Everyone was very helpful. It was a great success.”

The contestants were judged in five different categories starting with “MSC Wear.” In this category the contestants wore MSC apparel to show their spirit for the school. Following the first category, the contestants competed in the talent category, a one question interview, formal wear and a cheer off where each organization was judged on their spirit for their contestants.

Each contestant also filled out an application describing their hobbies, dream date, personal uniqueness and why they wanted to be Deeher Dude. The five judge panel was made up of Dr. Snypes, the acting dean of student affairs, two Delta Phi Epsilon sisters from William Paterson College and two from Kean College.

Each judge voted on each contestant in each event on a scale from one to ten with ten being the highest.

During the intermission, Jeff Jordan from Z-100 radio was there to hand out CDs and T-shirts.

Last year’s Deeher Dude, Steve Wisniewski from Delta Kappa Psi Fraternity crowned Hogan during the award ceremony.

The other contestants were Sam Martivoch who was co-sponsored by Delta Chi and Tri Sigma, Owen Bonner who was sponsored by Theta Kappa Chi, James Thelman from Tau Phi Beta, Kirt Montanye who was sponsored by Phi Sigma Sigma, Keith Glober from the baseball team, Gary Pankiewicz who was sponsored by Alpha Iota Chi and Rich Renee who was sponsored by Alpha Omega.

Delta Phi Sorority was not able to attend due to a sisterhood event but did donate a check to the fundraiser.

“IT was a good time and everybody performed well,” said Hogan, “It’s always been a dream of my parents for me to win a title with the word ‘Dude’ in it.

“I’d like to thank my fraternity Alpha Chi Rho for their support and Delta Phi Epsilon for the opportunity to win this event,” said Hogan.

“I had a lot of fun back stage hanging out with the other contestants,” said Torres, “I’ve gotten a lot of ‘good vibes’ from the ladies and my brothers cheering made me feel like a million bucks.”

“This really shows how important Greek unity is on campus. This event was a great success for everyone,” Chillemi said.

FINANCIAL AID INFORMATION 1994-95
PRIORITY FILING DEADLINE: MARCH 1, 1994

IT'S NEW! - THE RENEWAL APPLICATION

If you filed a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) for the 1993-94 academic year, you should have received a new kind of federal student aid application - the Renewal Free Application for Federal Student Aid, designed to simplify the application process for 1994-95. The new form will allow you to update only that information which may have changed, rather than require you to fill out a whole new application.

WHAT DOES THE RENEWAL APPLICATION LOOK LIKE?

The Renewal Application looks a lot like the green 1993-94 Student Aid Report (SAR) you received this year, but it will be printed on white paper. It will also include an instruction booklet and envelope for mailing it back to the processor.

NOW THAT IT'S HERE, WHAT DO I DO WITH THE RENEWAL APPLICATION?

Essentially, you treat it like a new 1994-95 FAFSA. Carefully follow the instruction for completion, change those items which need updating, and leave the others as they are.

WHEN CAN I SUBMIT THE RENEWAL APPLICATION TO THE PROCESSOR?

Just like an original FASA, you may file this form any time after January 1, 1994. We strongly encourage all students to file the Renewal Application by March 1, 1994 to ensure compliance with our deadline.

WHAT IF I DIDN’T RECEIVE A RENEWAL APPLICATION BEFORE JANUARY 1, 1994?

Not to worry! If you have not received a Renewal Application by the end of the holiday break, come by the Financial Aid Office and pick up a regular 1994-95 FAFSA. The same applies if you misplace the one sent to you. Duplicate Renewal Applications are not available. The processor will accept either form. However, don’t send both in — just submit one or the other by the priority deadline date.

WHAT IF I DID NOT APPLY FOR FINANCIAL AID IN 1993-94 BUT WANT TO APPLY FOR AID IN 1994-95?

Too many Irish cryin' in their beer

As Michael O'Leary wrote in last week's Montclarion, "Americans love the victim." This is understandable in a country where a belief in some abstraction of equality contrasts with real differences of fortune and where we are too often encouraged to resent those who are better off than ourselves. Where inequality exists, many believe, an adjustment should be made in favor of the disadvantaged and in a manner most suited to their convenience. It's a troublesome tendency in political life but an understandable temptation. There's a kind of infantile helplessness in all of us that make it very hard to resist any opportunity to blame our failure on someone else. We will even appropriate the suffering of others to express some sense of our victimization. Don't we all have a reservoir of sympathy for the underdog, don't we all suffer vicariously for victims of perceived unfairness? Conversely, while we idealize the "victim" for our purposes, we demonize the "oppressor." This is the crédible emotion that Nietzsche characterized as "resentiment": the pathetic hatred of the weak-spirited for the strong.

A neat example of this spiritual deformity can be seen among members of an ethnic group which would perhaps be thought an unlikely breeding ground for self-styled victims: Irish Americans.

Indeed they are generally very vigorous and independent sort. Having escaped tyrannical obstacles in the Old World they've shown an energetic capacity for success in the New. But having long suffered victimization, many of their number cannot now seem to wean themselves of its bittersweet flavor.

I was reminded of this recently when I watched an advertisement for a program on the conflict in Northern Ireland on ABC TV. Toward the end of the ad a logo appeared on the screen. It was a shamrock, the uppermost leaf of which was heart-shaped and red. After a moment a British flag appears above, falling like a cross on a flagpole. It strikes, and the heart beats in two.

This is a fair symbolic representation of the cartoonish understanding many Irish-Americans have of the conflict. To them it's a simple romance of good vs. evil: the nasty "English" invaded Ireland and the Irish want them out. What business do the English have being in Ireland, for heaven's sake!

Many Americans see the IRA as the fighting force of Ireland against this occupation and thus tend to confuse the Irish Republican view with that of all Irish. If you in any degree identify yourself as Irish you are expected to take the perceived Irish side and accept the supposed Irish interpretation of the conflict. Symmetrically, you are expected to be against the "English" and the "English" view.

A trip to New York City on March 17th would confirm this. Hordes of Irish-Americans, most of whom lack a basic familiarity with Irish history, will be seen stampeding emotionally against the "English" presence in Ireland and in favor of the "freedom fighters" of the IRA. If one works at it, one might find a better informed or sufficiently indifferent person with whom to discuss points critical of the IRA. But no one dares say such things aloud for fear of being thought unpatriotic, politically incorrect or simply un-Irish.

Plenty of Irish Republican propagandists will be at hand to exploit the touching gullibility of their American cousins. Some will be cynical manipulators, others sincere people made myopic and vicious by their fanaticism. But both will pass off as the Irish point of view interpretations which would be controversial to say the least in Dublin.

There isn't a room here to adequately address the misconceptions of the view which inspired ABC's pandering ad and which inflames the hearts of St. Patrick's Day revellers, but a few points might be offered as a start.

First, the central conflict is not between Irish and English but between Irish Catholics and Irish Protestants. The British Army came in response to increasing violence between factions of these camps.

Second, most Britons don't give a damn about Northern Ireland. It's a burden they would gladly be rid of. If the British tend to hate the IRA more than its Protestant counterpart, it's only because they're more likely to be harmed by the IRA. To the extent that the Catholics of Northern Ireland do have British enemies those enemies are not among the English, but among a minority of Scottish Protestants. Northern Irish Protestants are, after all, more Scottish by ancestry than English, and Glasgow is about the only place in Britain where anyone could be found who takes Ian Paisley (the Protestant demagogue) seriously.

Lastly, it may be worth noting that as a kind of counterpart to the British impact on Ireland there has been a tremendous amount of Irish migration to Britain. This means that far from the British being uniformly hostile to the Irish, many British are Irish in the same way as Irish-Americans. So when an IRA bomb explodes in London a victim's name could easily be Flanagan, Murphy or Lennon. And when a British soldier is shot in Belfast he could very well be Irish and Catholic himself.

Irish-Americans would do well to stop dreaming of an ideal Ireland like some paradise of kinsmen frozen in a golden age. In the real Ireland of today, people of different views and ancestry call themselves Irishmen and generally live in peace. Perhaps they could learn to do so in the North as well but the cause is not aided by sentimental Americans who for the pleasure of wallowing in a little victimhood viliy an ally and give comfort to assassins.

You better...

By Frank Fleischman

The drug war is like most wars: a way for governments to keep the populace from thinking.

Every election year, because candidates don’t want to talk about homelessness, the declining industrial base and military spending, the American people hear how we are going to win the drug war. The drug war is like most wars: a way for governments to keep the populace from thinking too much about their country’s problems.

Now, there is a new fad in society. A fad that promises to be everything to everyone. That’s mind-drugs. That’s right. If you don’t like your personality, all you have to do is take a pill and change it.

The most well-known of these drugs is Prozac, an antidepressant. Although it is only sold to eight pharmacies effective, its producer, Eli Lilly & Co., booted $1.2 billion a year in sales.

Some other mind-drugs are also popular. Ritalin is a drug that will help concentration. Dilatin, a drug usually prescribed for epileptics, has proven to reduce stress in some people. People who are perfectly normal, who have no serious mental illnesses, take these drugs to “enhance” their personalities.

But the underlying message should still be getting from this new fad! Very simple: that we Americans are still uptight and insecure about ourselves and now we can take pills to change ourselves.

There is a great hypocrisy here. Here is a “mind-altering” drug that can help change your personality. However, mind-altering drugs such as LSD, psilocybin and mescaline are illegal, which goes to show you that deeming one drug “legal” and another “illegal” is a political decision.

Why is it that we Americans are so uptight about ourselves? Is it our stratification system that makes “controlling emotion” and “perfection” the orders of the day? Is peer pressure? With attitudes like the ones I mentioned before, is it any wonder why the suicide rate is so high? People are told to control their emotions and people wonder why there’s such a high ulcer rate in the United States. It’s not a bad thing to try to make positive changes in one’s own life but I think there are healthier alternatives to pill-popping.

For example, I am not trying Hatha yoga, both as a spiritual and physical discipline. I am also studying Zen and other spiritual rituals. These exercises help me to accept myself for who I am, with all my flaws and imperfections.

Therefore, we can see how pointless our “drug war” is when one person is arrested for taking LSD and another person takes Prozac and they may both give the same effect. However, the real problem is clear: people in this country just can’t seem to accept others for who they are, and, even worse, people can’t accept themselves for who they are. It’s no sin to improve and achieve, but it’s a sin not to accept yourself.

Heresy
By Trish Barker

Well, here it is, Monday morning, and I’m late with my article as usual. Yesterday, my fiance and I went out to lunch and I said to him, “Oh, damn. I haven’t written my newspaper article yet. Now I have to get opinionated to lunch and I said to him, “Oh, damn. I haven’t written my newspaper article yet. Now I have to get opinionated for today!””

I was in silence for about 10 minutes and concluded nothing.

This is not only astonishing, it’s downright scary. For years, I’ve always been the most opinionated person I know (with one or two exceptions, who remain nameless). Now I have trouble caring about a lot of issues, including the ones that are closest to me as a woman. In the classes I have that allow for heated debate on certain issues, I find myself utterly bored. Listening to other people’s persecution complexes is much like listening to a broken record, even if I can identify with their experience.

Maybe I’ve heard it all too many times. I know that beating an issue to death can be dangerous, precisely for this reason. I remember watching films of the Holocaust in my junior year of high school. I went to a Catholic high school and the priest who showed us the films made us watch the films, look at pictures and essentially talk about the inhumanity of the Holocaust for the entire year. In the beginning, everyone was sickened and horrified by what they saw. By the end of the year, people were yawning. Ho-hum. Just another Holocaust film. A lot of people became irritated because they ceased to care about the Holocaust. Familiarity breeds indifference and apathy. Apathy may have been what allowed the Holocaust to happen. Beating the issue to death only brought about the result that Father Hugh was trying to avoid.

Another problem with beating the issues mercilessly is the “crying-wolf” syndrome. It seems to me that everyone is indignant and offended by some discrimination against them. Some of the persecution may be real, but in many people it is imagined. The political correctness bullies (excuse my language, but there’s no other word for it) is a direct result of this, because people are persecution-complex-happy. Oftentimes the credibility of a minority group is ruined by those who take advantage of their minority status; I have seen women cry “rape” after willfully engaging in sex with someone who ditched them the next day. I have a friend who supervises a large number of people at a county facility and when one black woman on the staff was repeatedly complained about for her abusive behavior, there was nothing my friend could do. When she confronted the woman, she was told by the woman that if she reported her, she would call the NAACP. The administration backed down and let the matter drop because they didn’t want to be labelled as racist. People like this ruin the credibility of the group as a whole and when there is a real issue at stake, people think you’re just crying wolf. Sad, but true.

Maybe this is why I have trouble getting worked up over “controversial” issues anymore. Or maybe I’m just sick of sounding like a whining worrywart. In any case, maybe the most important thing is this: it never pays to get too worked up about your position on an issue, because you may find later, to your embarrassment, that you’ve changed your mind.

Don't believe in the government's lies

Mr. Calle informs me that I have only two pages to respond to the four page attack on me by Prof. Scipione (Montclarion, 2/17). I think this is grossly unfair, given Calle's attack on me (Montclarion, 2/10) and the headlines mocking me personally in both issues. The statements in this letter are not merely "My Opinion"; they have been proven by rigorous research. I'll be glad to send a copy of the fuller, five-page reply the Montclarion refuses to print, including the evidence for the statements in this letter, to anyone who drops me a note c/o English Dept., or phones x7305.

1. Atrocities in Vietnam: Scipione is wrong on all four points. (1) The hundreds of civilians butchered at Hue in 1968 were killed by Americans, and blamed on the North Vietnamese by the U.S. government (Porter, 1974). (2) Many books about U.S. atrocities exist, but the only list I've seen of communist atrocities in Vietnam (Pike, 1970) doesn't even claim a single communist atrocity the scale of My Lai. (3) Mass murder of U.S. civilians in Vietnam was "A matter of policy" (Newman's reporters), and a direct consequence of U.S. military operations such as Wheeler Wallaena (1967, 10,000 civilians killed) and Spooky Express (1968, over 5,000 civilians killed). (4) Americans murdered tens of thousands in the 'Phoenix' Campaign! As one intelligence officer told Congress in 1971: "I never knew... any detainee to live through his interrogation... They all died and the majority were either tortured to death or things like their own helicopters." 'Phoenix' was equal to the worst Nazi atrocities.

2. Peasant rebellions against murderous landlords had occurred in Asia for thousands of years. After WWII, thanks to the strategy of mobilizing the poor to fight for their rights, the communist-led peasant revolts in China and Vietnam won for the first time in history. The peasants got the land; their standard of living increased greatly. But the U.S. suppressed the peasants in the Philippines and South Korea through mass murder, so U.S. corporations could reap super-profits through cheap agricultural goods and raw materials, and cheap labor from peasants driven off the land and forced to work at subhuman conditions and wages. U.S. Corporations still profit from these conditions today, while exporting jobs and hiring U.S. workers. This is what "protecting Asia from Communist domination" means in practice.

3. How can Scipione lie that I "nevert invite him to speak" to my course on the Vietnam War? He spoke to that course for four successive years! As for "balance": (1) I use, and respect evidence. Like anyone else, Scipione should study the research on the Vietnam War before presuming to speak about it; (2) Paul, why not invite me and other anti-capitalist speakers to your business classes for "balance"? Take your own medicine!

It's not just Scipione: We have all been duped by government lies about U.S. foreign policy. Opposing viewpoints are rarely permitted in the media and school, where we are taught that propaganda is something that happens to others. Not to us. It is painful to recognize that we have been so lied to!

U.S. imperialism is as shameful as that of any country in history. And it hurts you and me as well! Moral: Don't be a sucker for patriotism! Don't believe the government's lies!

Calle-in-Exile

By George Calle

...and he did it in under two pages

The Downing of four Serbian attack planes on Monday signalled that the U.S. and its allies were determined to put a halt to Serbian aggression in the Balkan conflict that has continued almost incessantly for the better part of the past two years. In the end, it was necessary for the last remaining super-power, the U.S., to back the will of the U.N. with its collective might.

The death and suffering that permeates the region serves as a reminder to the global community that it has yet a long way to go before it can successfully prevent such human tragedy from occurring without requiring the aid of the U.S... That is, NATO's action on Monday and subsequent developments since then are a step in the right direction, but fail quite short of offering a catch-all solution for avoiding similar bloodshed in the future. With any such future conflict, it would, once again fall upon the shoulders of the U.S. to back the international will with the threat of U.S. force.

Clearly, the U.S. should strive to ameliorate any situation where lives are being lost and/or where the basic life-sustaining necessities are being denied a people and, to date, the U.S. has answered that call on many occasions. Monday's action in Bosnia made it clear that it intends to continue to bear this responsibility.

For one, it would be a world in which the U.N. would not only be more able to take any meaningful action but also one in which the U.N. would have to make due without close to half of its operating budget which amounts to what the U.S. presently contributes.

A world where WWII ended with The Third Reich at the very least controlling only Eurasia and where the Nazi atrocities continued to affect an ever-growing and all-encompassing "inferior" race, belief and/or gender until only "pure" Aryans roamed the continent and ultimately the world.

Let's imagine for a moment, for the sake of the misguided few, what the world would be like with a weak United States of America. For one, it would be a world in which the Soviets dominated, one in which Stalin's maniacal purges could have taken place on an even larger scale, if that is even possible, than they did, Chernobyl on every continent. Oh joy!

How about a utopian world where no one dominates? How nice.

Wake up! If there where no overwhelming force to detract would-be aggressors, there would be aggressors everywhere! That spells out ANARCHY! That spells out the Balkan conflict up to the moment the U.S. agreed to step in.

We should all be a little more careful before we spew out our vile LIES and personal misrepresentations about the role of the U.S. in today's world. I do not promote the idea that the U.S. is infallible, I simply propose that it remains this world's only real hope for relative stability.

To promote the downfall of the U.S. is to promote the downfall of law & order in the world, as well.

So, you see, I do understand very clearly that it is not a "good thing for all of us" if America were to decline.

No more war, no more bloodshed

“No more war, no more bloodshed” is a call being issued every morning on a radio station in Israel. But the war and bloodshed continue as extremists on both the Jewish and Arab sides try to sabotage the peace agreement.

I am writing this article in response to Friday’s massacre in Hebron. As do many other Jews and Israelis, I condemn Goldstein’s attack. Although Goldstein felt frustrated by the incident that happened the day before the attack, when Arabs were jeering at Jews while they were praying, his response was certainly inhumane and immoral.

When heard the news of the attack on Friday, I knew that now Israel and all the Jews would automatically be blamed and held responsible for the attack that was committed by a single man. As I expected, in Monday’s New York Times, several comments were made blaming all the Jews of Israel when in fact neither the Israeli government nor the army and anybody else knew anything of the attack until it happened. The comments made by the outraged Arab population did not surprise me as much as Mr. Arafat’s response. At least I expected the PLO’s chairman to have more accurate information concerning this attack, unfortunately, he did not.

Mr. Arafat claims that a “gang of settlers” and “some elements of the Israeli army” were involved in the killing, but this is incorrect. So maybe Arafat is using this attack to have this organization’s demands fulfilled. Demands such as sending UN observers to the occupied territories to help protect Palestinians, demands that the UN Security Council’s resolution reaffirm that Jerusalem is part of the occupied territories, that all the Jewish extremists who are dangerous to the resolution should not only be condemned and disarmed, but also detained and restricted, and more. Also the PLO is now asking for the release of more Palestinian prisoners, and last but not least, the Arabs feel now is the time to make the Jewish settlements a priority on the agenda and to focus on closing 144 Jewish settlements before the implementation of the Peace Accord. These demands obviously imply that Israel is to be held responsible.

Let’s not forget that there are also extremist Arab movements that are trying to sabotage the peace agreement. Hamas and Islamic Jihad are the two which are responsible for several bloody attacks and killing of Jews since the Peace Accord was signed. The Israeli government knows by now that when an act of killing takes place by Arabs it must be the extremists among the Arabs and not the PLO, after all the PLO signed an agreement. So why can’t the PLO and the Arab world acknowledge the fact that Israel was not responsible for this terrible bloodshed? The PLO has no control over the Hamas organization and obviously cannot disarm the Jewish extremists.

In their demand to simply close 144 Jewish Settlements, it seems to me the Jewish extremists are not the only ones who are being irrational. Just as it sounds absurd to deport thousands of Palestinians out of the land of Israel, and deny their rights for their land, it is equally absurd to remove thousands of Jews from their place of birth, Judea and Samaria and the Gaza Strip (the occupied territories).

This morning I was involved in a class discussion concerning the massacre, when I heard a certain comment made by several fellow students which upset me. The comment was that the Israeli army could have prevented the attack since army troops were near the mosque. This is not true!!! If you take a look at the picture of the Cave of the Patriarchs in today’s New York Times you will quickly understand that it was nearly impossible to react to this attack in such a short time—the massacre was two minutes long. It’s also important to know the nature of the Israeli army. As a seargent in the Israeli army, I know that the army would not have let such a massacre happen to any human being, not even its worst enemies. It is in the Israeli army’s nature to first act morally and secondly, to fight or defend. Maybe those who put the blame on the army troops ought to reconsider and look more in depth into the actual facts of the massacre.

Other comments which I heard were: how could some Jews say that Goldstein was a good, righteous man after what he had done? My question is how many times have you heard of an Arab who kills Jews and is killed as a result, and later is called a martyr and a hero who fought for the will of God? History shows that every time an Arab is killed in the course of action either to spread Islam or to kill Jews he is considered a martyr by some Arabs. I do not think that anybody is a hero if he/she kills people no matter what the circumstances are. But is Goldstein is condemned by everyone, so should the Arab heroes—they both died for their cause.

I would like to reemphasize the statement I made earlier, before I bring this article to a close: I once again condemn the bloodshed caused by the extremist Dr. Goldstein. It was an act that should not have happened. I do hope that this massacre will not affect the peace talks. After all, as Prime Minister Rabin said: “Israel did not stop negotiation when Jews were victims.” To quit now would mean handing a prize to someone who not only murdered the Palestinians but tried to murder the peace process.” Let’s not allow extremists on both sides to destroy such a remarkable historical achievement.

Take the fat out of the wallet

People starving in Somalia, revolution in Yugoslavia, our society caught in the frail and intricate web of our mother earth, thrashing about in a vain attempt at freedom from its limitations, and in the process destroying us of the wallet. It's a real shame how we took their land and their pride. Oh well, there's no time to worry about those things, I've got bills to pay.

That's what we say to ourselves and we forget it all in an instant, in the blinker of the time it takes for a Somali boy to die after weeks of starvation, in the fraction of a second that it takes for an atomic bomb to wipe out a city, in the scrap of an instance it takes us to purge the earth of a species older than our culture and these things, which haunt the pages of our newspapers and litter the news we watch on TV, no longer exist. And when we sit with our face, one without thought or question peering into the glowing screen set before us. A voice is coming from the screen, screaming the atrocities manufactured by our culture. In the twitches of a finger requiring almost no effort at all, there is a flash. Now the voice is laughing and telling jokes. The laughter brings a smile to our face erasing the memory of a child, his limbs, willowy branches, his dark skin stretched across bone, his belly swollen from malnutrition. The tears falling from eyes imbedded in the chiseled face of poverty, are quickly wiped away by the laughing voice from the lighted box in our living room. Wallowing in mindless ignorance and bliss, we allow the world and its peoples to be sucked further into the abyss of extinction and what would seem to be destiny. The question that must be asked is, will we let this happen? Will we continue to stumble through our lives like so many blindfolded children, while our fellow human beings and our brothers in the animal world are starving or being slaughtered? While on earth, our mother, turns to the dank and lifeless world of concrete and glass? That is what we're doing.

Except for the tattered few who's consciences are haunted by the putrid decay of a world and a species, how many of us contribute? How many of us are not part of the problem? Not a handful more than the tattered few. We change the channel, turn the page no longer exist. And there we sit with our face, one out of 376 million. Redd Kross Phaseshifter (Quicksilver Records)

As alternative music becomes mainstream it is getting harder and harder to find truly "alternative" music.

Fortunately for modern rock lovers there's Redd Kross, a '90s pop band that sings about happy themes, catchy love songs with a twist, and a have-a-nice-day mentality. This is great for a song or two, but too much enthusiasm can make someone sick.

Phaseshifter (Quicksilver) accomplishes all that, but somehow manages to keep a sense of humor about the whole rock star notion.

The first track, "Jimmy's Fantasy," kicks off with a catchy pop melody. This just may go Top-40 yet. The second song is "Lady in the Front Row," a Beatlesque tune with a harder edge and harmonizing reminiscent of Paul McCartney and John Lennon.

The vocals are done by brothers Jeffrey and Steven McDonald, and are heard with a lawyer who specializes in sexual harassment cases. 7-10 p.m., Student Center Ballrooms. Free. Sponsored by the Women's Center in celebration of Women's Theater Cooperative on sexual harassment to be followed by a discussion with a lawyer who specializes in sexual harassment cases. 7-10 p.m., Student Center Ballrooms. Shoozy Groove Respect (Mercury Records)

The union of hardcore rap and hard rock has worked almost to perfection with Run-DMC, Body Count, Anthrax with Public Enemy, and more recently various artists on the Judgement Night soundtrack. Shoozy Groove, based out of New York, has followed this vein with energetic beats, hardcore lines from Sense and Season, and monster riffs from axeman Donny. With a solid quintet of two rappers, one guitarist, a bassist and drummer, these guys presented a live show in May of '93 in New York for their devout followers. The result of this show is the live EP, Respect (Mercury) with five songs that hit hard.

The "Craz" follows the same Body Count, Anthrax formula with rhythmic verbal flows from the two frontmen, Sense and Season backed by Spec's kickin' grooves on bass. The catchy anemic song is "Buddahfullday", about the legalization of marijuana, which seems to be the "in" topic of the moment in rap. Shoozy Groove show off their rock capabilities on the closer, "Rockin' in the Wilderness," their grand finale to the show.

Shoozy Groove is an exciting band to be captured on disc, thus making them a live band to really check out.

Stick Heavy Bag (Arista Records)

Here it is again, that g-word. Grunge. An expression that has been beaten to death, it is also the best way to describe the band Stick. The Lawrence, KS foursome mark their debut with Heavy Bag (Arista), which is painstakingly grungy. While other bands like Pearl Jam, Nirvana and Alice in Chains have kept the alternative metal/hard rock scene fresh, bands like Stick seem to be cashing in on the "grunge" sound. The album sounds like Soundgarden outtakes, with vocalist Mark Smirl an almost clone to Chris Cornell, but with only half the vocal range.

The song "No Groovy" has been released as a single and is receiving airplay, but after that the album is lost. "Fuel" is filled with many lyrical cliches about a car, but the music is in the vein of Stone Temple Pilots. "Zero" takes an Alice in Chains-like melody, but the vocals are lacking to carry the song, leaving it flat.

Every song seems to blend into one another making it at times boring. Basic crunchy guitars and a solid backbeat make up every song, but they never go anywhere. The problem with Stick is that they sound like every other distortion-induced band, with nothing to distinguish them from the rest of the pack. A disappointing debut, but with more vocal range and a more original sound, Stick might be able to break free of the land of mediocrity and come out with a CD worth buying.

REVIEW: "Dealing with the 'X' Factor"
by Lisa Ertle

The work of two MSC alumni will be wrapping up its display at the college's Main Gallery today.

"Dealing with the 'X' Factor," a collaborative show featuring the work of Anthony Crisafulli and William Gorcica is as colorful and playful as it is intellectually stimulating.

The majority of pieces by Crisafulli, large rectangular paintings in primary and secondary colors, are a combination of block-letter text and a blending of elements taken from a variety of sources, including photos of the artist and his chromosomes.

Gorcica's work includes computer-generated silk-screen images in wood constructions and a life-size, wooden "Cubeman." Gorcica says that all of the pieces are referential to some of his previous work.

by Deanna Mazza

Spring Break is not too far away, and many are looking forward to escaping from the inclement weather we have all been experiencing. Thinking about beach wear to bring on vacation is one way to boost your spirits. The new trend happens to be more sporty look so you could take advantage of water sports without fear of "loosing your top."

The February edition of New York Magazine reported that the new way to go is not less material, but the mystery that accompanies more material. The bathing suits for spring '94 take on a somewhat nostalgic 60's look.

The bottoms are tailored with more material around the hip area and are not as high cut as recent years. The tops are reminiscent of a man's tee shirt which gives needed support to a playful look. Also, the triangle look is still a large influence in swimwear despite the introduction of more sporty suits.

Calvin Klein presented a lyca bikini in his collection fashioned after the tank top suit. Another cool combination for those who are not comfortable exposing much of their derrière is the triangle top and lyca briefs.

The Couch Potato Update

by George Olschewski

Science fiction television has, by far, lost its creative edge. Don’t get me wrong, I still love the genre, but too many stories have become trite cop-outs, most of all, the use of the hologram.

Star Trek—Deep Space Nine recently had an episode where an entire colony population (even the town!) was a hologram.

The newest incarnation of Knight Rider’s computer is a hologram. Rather, the new Knight-dude’s deceased girlfriend appears to him via hologram. You see, her spirit is contained in a chandelier-crystal looking thing.

Time Trax uses a hologram-generated woman throughout the entire series, but that’s not really a plot device. Instead, she’s a regular character.

Second in line is the use of terrorist attacks on helpless crews, space stations, frontier colonies, Tupperware parties or what have you.

How many left-wing self-righteous groups have attacked or taken over in one way or another on SeaQuest DSV? ST-D9 has been using it on a regular basis, but it has been part of a larger picture—the Bajor/Cardassia War.

SQ DSV seems to say, “Hmmm. What do we do this week? I know! Let’s have a terrorist attack!”

One week, Darwin was a victim. Oh, that’s right, tug on the ol’ heartstrings by kidnapping a helpless dolphin.

Another week, Lucas was in with a band of computer hackers out to terrorize the bank networks of the world. Another week, a psycho nut scientist threatens to plague the world with some funky virus. Can you say “getting old,” boys and girls?

Not only that, but too much emphasis is being placed on new technology rather than people.

There’s a new ray gun, or some bug-eyed race of aliens has made their version of the Death Star and is trying to muscle in on the Federation, or a new something or other is doing what it shouldn’t and if we don’t have warp speed in two minutes, Scotty, then we’ll die. Back in the day, science fiction was about people, not about technology. It should get back to that.

I miss the Cylons. I miss the Colonial Vipers and New Chicago. I miss the Galactica. I miss the Visitors. There was technology; there was technobabble and dilithium crystals, but first and foremost, it was about the people in the series, not about the ships they flew.

It wasn’t about space stations and funky hairdos (a la Babylon 5). I’ll admit, I didn’t really notice it until last Thursday when, trapped in the tomb that is the La Campana office, our secretary Christine Valenti mentioned it in the course of the conversation.

Thanks for the wake up, Christine. Make terrorist attacks on the yearbook Valenti-ism #2.

I’ll still keep watching the shows, and I’ll still hope for better stories. One final note to TCI of North Jersey—Where the hell are the Sci-Fi Channel and the Cartoon Network???

See you next week.

attraction for students and professors alike: aside from its aesthetic value, it can be utilized for sport during the gallery’s working hours. The pool table, representative of competition; opposing teams, is reminiscent of this exhibition’s creative roots, as the two artists worked on their pieces simultaneously in different locations. Ironically, the combined work, along with structural elements of the gallery incorporated as a unification tool for the exhibit, created an effect which might cause one to assume the two were always on the “same team.”

A poetry reading was connected to the show, “Dealings with the ‘X’ Factor.” The artists gave their personal statements and a lecture on deconstructive aesthetics before their reception on Feb. 3. Deconstructivist Theory, a philosophy which deals with the ambiguity of meaning in text, as well as the visual arts, is what the artists feel permeates all intellectual enterprises of our generation—“Generation X.” Students from communication classes attended, and were invited to ask questions and discuss the exhibit with its creators.

MSC falls to Rowan in NJAC final, but earns first NCAA bid in 10 years

by Brian Falzarano

Balance is one thing in the game of basketball. But when you're like Rowan College, balance and depth win games and championships.

At least the NJAC championship. In defeating MSC, 77-62, there were a few factors as to why the Red Hawks (18-7) came up on the other side of victory.

- The Pros shot 68 percent in the second half, while MSC shot 42.3 percent.
- Players such as Chris Jackson (four fouls in 24 minutes) and Greg Fowler (foiled out) were in foul trouble in the second half, enabling Rowan College to blow the game open.

Yes, it was Rowan's (25-1, ranked No. 3 in the country) depth proving to be insurmountable to MSC.

"The key was their depth," said coach Nick Del Tufo. "They went eight or nine deep."

"Their depth killed us," added point guard Keith Roberts. "They just kept bringing in fresh guys that did the same amount of damage as the starting five."

It was not only their depth that aided the Pros. It was their ability to adjust their defense and their intelligent play as well. Their adjusting to a 1-3-1 match-up zone, which MSC had not seen all year spells out why they were

MSC hires two new track and field coaches

by Karl Lomberk

The MSC Athletic Department has announced the hiring of three new coaches, including two track and field coaches.

Leander Knight, an MSC graduate and a former standout football player in 1984 and 1985, has been named the interim head track coach, temporarily replacing suspended coach John Blanton.

The interim status of the head track coach position is based on the pending judicial proceedings involving Blanton.

Knight was a defensive back for the Houston Oilers and New York Jets from 1987-1991 and served as an assistant football coach at MSC in 1988. He is currently a teacher in the East Orange school district.

Noreen Cassidy was hired to fill the assistant track coach vacancy on a permanent basis.

The 1990 graduate of MSC served as an assistant track coach at Morris Knolls High School in 1989 and was also an assistant field hockey coach at Boonton High School and the Academy of St. Elizabeth in Convent Station in 1991-92. She was also an assistant swim coach at Morristown High School in 1993.

The school also hired Robin Curcuru as the men's tennis coach to replace Barri Pollner.

Curcuru most recently served as an assistant women's tennis coach at Rutgers University. The graduate of the University of Richmond takes over a team that went 8-6 last season.

The Manasquan native was a four-year member of the Spiders' women's team from 1989-92. She was named her team's captain in 1991-92 and was Richmond's Most Valuable Player her senior season.

Curcuru is currently pursuing her Master's Degree at MSC.
Grateful Red Hawks slide into ECAC tournament

by Keith A. Idec

It's not the NCAA tournament, but it's better than nothing.
The MSC women's basketball team, which surprisingly received a bid to the ECAC tournament on Monday, has been given one more chance to walk away from this season with more than just a 12-11 record.

Women's Basketball

The Red Hawks will play NJAC rival Ramapo College, the tournament's top seed and the host of the event, tonight at 8 p.m. in Mahwah. Second-seeded FDU-Madison takes on No. 3 seed York College (N.Y.) in the first game at 6 p.m.

MSC received an ECAC bid last season, but decided to turn it down after playing in the NJAC tournament. This season, the Red Hawks were elated to be playing in the post-season.

"Last year our aspirations were higher," said MSC head coach Gloria Bradley. "It was the NCAA's or nothing. This year we're a younger and more inexperienced team, so the more that we play the better it is for us."

Senior forward Judy Stair was especially happy about continuing her career at MSC. "We were shocked to get in," said Stair of the players' reaction to getting a bid. "I've played in the post-season every year I've been here. If we're able to win, it would be a great way to end my career."

MSC got into the ECAC's thanks largely in part to Upsala College. The Vikings, who were on the bubble for the NCAA's, wound up receiving a bid to that tournament, thus opening a spot for MSC as it tries to salvage its season with an ECAC tournament title this weekend.

"We have to deal with Katina Johnson on the inside and their backcourt is really strong," said Bradley. "Another key for us is to hit our free throws. The last time we played them we were 7-20 from the line and we lost by five points. If we're focused, we'll do well."

Ramapo will also look to 5-10 junior forward Sue Beck, who goes for 16.6 points and 10.3 rebounds per game. Guard Tyra Cameron adds 15.6 points and 4.5 assists a contest for the Roadrunners.

Along with Kovar and Stair, sophomore guard Lisa Vilialta and senior guard Stacy McWilliams must play well for the Red Hawks to get into the final against either FDU-Madison or York.

MSC comes into the tournament having not played a game for a week-and-a-half. The Red Hawks also did not practice for over a week since they didn't know if they'd have anything to practice for. When they got word of the tournament bid on Monday, it was time to shake off the rust.

"We were a little rough around the edges when we practiced on Monday and Tuesday," said Bradley. "But we've gone at it real hard in practice. The time off was good because most of the players needed some time to heal."

Entering this season, MSC was expected to struggle a little bit. With only two seniors, this was thought to be a rebuilding year for the Red Hawks. It was. Inconsistency plagued them throughout the season and their record reflects that.

However, winning this tournament would be a major confidence builder for next year. Three starters return and Bradley has a year's worth of head-coaching experience under her belt.

Obviously, the earlier this team learns to win, the better off it will be. There's no better time than now.

RED HAWK NOTES....Stair finished as the team's leading scorer at 19 ppg. She was also the NJAC's second-leading scorer.....Vilialta finished as the conference leader in assists (6.4 apg) and was second in steals (5.6 spg). She scored 9.7 points a contest.....Freshman guard Heidi Klingert was MSC's second-leading scorer at 10 points a game.

Five MSC wrestlers go for it all at national meet

by Glenn Steinberg

After finishing third in the NCAA Division III wrestling tournament last year, the Red Hawk wrestlers are returning to the NCAA tournament with high hopes.

The tournament begins tomorrow with the preliminary and quarterfinal rounds at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point. It concludes on Saturday with the semifinal and final rounds. The official weigh-ins are today.

Representing MSC (8-10) in Wisconsin will be Mike DeLuca (118 lbs.), Scott Castiglia (126 lbs.), Mike Flammer (142 lbs.), Chris Beagan (150 lbs.) and Chris Rea (190 lbs.).

Last year's outstanding performance (third place overall in the nation and five All-Americans) will be hard to duplicate, but head coach Steve Strellner is expecting a lot from his team.

"All five of them are have the potential to be All-Americans," said Strellner. "The guys last year were stronger, but these guys are good."

Each weight class has 20-24 wrestlers at the NCAA's. To place in the meet, a wrestler must finish in the top eight in his weight class. Placing in a weight class ensures a wrestler of All-American status.

DeLuca is No. 7 in his weight class in Division III, so going in he is expected to place.

Castiglia, a senior, is wrestling in the weight class he belongs in for the first time in his four-year career and it has benefitted him tremendously. "He used to wrestle at 134 and that was a little too heavy for him," said Strellner. "He's a better wrestler at 126 than he was at 134."

Flammer should have a shot at the national title at 142 lbs. "He lost in a real good match to Johnson of Trenton State in the finals of the Mets and Johnson is the top wrestler in the country in his weight class," Strellner said.

Beagan lost to the No. 3 wrestler in the nation at the Mets and is also in contention to place.

However, the expectations for Rea are not as secure. "Anything could happen with Chris," said Strellner. "But he's a good wrestler and his different style could help him."
Hines proves that nice guys don’t always finish last

by Brian Falsarano

There are a few things you should know about Keith Hines. He is tough. He has no fear. He wears a scowl on the court that would make his own mother wary. And he is a prime contender for NJAC Player of the Year.

By the way, he is also very well-liked and respected. In other words, he’s a nice guy.

Wait a minute. A person such as Hines, who helps lead his team to its first NCAA tournament bid in 10 years and plays with a fierceness and determination unrivalled in the conference, is a nice guy?

You better believe it. “He’s just a real nice guy,” said point guard Keith Roberts, who has become close with Hines since transferring from Wagner College this year. “You’ve gotta like him. He gets along with everybody.”

“Keith’s like Keith,” said MSC coach Nick Del Tufo, “is he’s a caring, considerate young man. He’s a secure individual. They’re intangibles you wish all your kids had.”

Ironically, Hines almost didn’t get this far. He didn’t even start playing basketball until seventh grade because his first love was football. It was by accident that he discovered the game in which he now excels at.

The coach (at his junior high school) walked up to me and said, ‘Congratulations, you made the team.’ I looked at him and told him I didn’t even try out.”

From there he worked on his game with Craig Brandon, who became his best friend, as well as his brother Greg, who played at the Hampton (Va.) Institute and overseas for 10 years.

Despite being overlooked by Division I schools such as Rutgers and St. Peter’s, which offered him scholarships and plays with a fierceness and determination unrivalled in the conference, is a nice guy?

ousted, 46-29, in the second half.

"They made changes that hurt us," said guard Dean Spinogatti, who had 12 points for the Red Hawks. "They went to a 1-3-1 zone, which we hadn't seen before."

The first half was another story. When Rowan led 23-15 with 8:48 left in the opening half, MSC believed they could stay in and win this game.

Proof of that came in Spinogatti's 35-foot three-pointer on one leg, which banked in off of the glass at the buzzer to give the Red Hawks a surprising 33-31 lead at the break. It also gave them a huge confidence boost.

"That shot put us exactly where we wanted to be," said Roberts, who had 13 points on a sub-par three of 15 shooting. "When he made that shot, there was no doubt in my mind we were going to win that game."

"Everyone definitely felt good," said Spinogatti. "We thought it might have been a sign."

But it wasn't. Rowan came out and dominated the second half, hitting nine of their first ten shots. MSC was within 51-46, when Rob Gluck made a steal and threw down a dunk from the foul line that got the fans and the Prof into the game. Another key statistic was that Rowan's bench, led by Gluck's eight points and three rebounds in 16 minutes, outscored MSC's bench, 21-0.

MSC played two very solid halves, including a near flawless first half in a game they never trailed to ward off Stockton State, 73-62, in the first round of the NJAC tournament.

Led by 21 points from Greg Fowler and Spinogatti's eight assists in the first half, the Red Hawks coasted to a 40-21 halftime margin.

For the Red Hawks, it gave them some relief from the last time these two teams met. In that game on February 3, MSC was winning for nearly the whole game until Ramon Gaines hit a three-pointer with 18 seconds left to give Stockton a 58-57 win.

This time Gaines was held to five points on two of 12 shooting. Jermaine Clay, a contender for conference player of the year, had 17 points despite foul trouble for the Ospreys, who were led by Carl Cochran's 24 points.

RED HAWK NOTES: Statistical leaders - Keith Hines leads in scoring (16 points per game), rebounds (10.6 rpg), minutes (32.9), and blocks (2.16)....Fowler leads in free throw percentage (86.2) and three-point field goals made (33)....Roberts leads in assists (4.54)....Jackson leads in steals (2.96)....Hines on having Roberts: "If we had him last year, we would have been in the NCAA's."
