Fire in Blanton damages student property and leads to thefts (Patnode, p.3)
SGA First Amendment rights temporarily obstructed by campus police misunderstanding
by Melissa Brannan

First Amendment rights were obstructed when an SGA sign posted in the Student Center Lobby sponsoring a trip was confiscated. The sign was quickly returned by campus police Friday as a result of a communication error, police said.

The sign, sponsoring a trip to Bloomfield College on Thursday, March 17, to protest Governor Christie Todd Whitman's tuition hikes to state colleges, was taken down by Officer Juan Rivera after he misunderstood a dispatch by Officer Burnell Laury to simply retrieve a flyer about the protest. Bloomfield College had requested a flyer for more information about the nature of the SGA's protest.

Melissa Ardire, a freshman legislator for the SGA, said that it was a "misunderstanding within the department" and that a written apology was sent. Fifteen minutes later, Rivera returned and reposted the sign, apologizing for the misunderstanding, said Ardire.

Director of Campus Police and Security, Phil Calitre, said that it was a "misunderstanding within the department" and that a written apology was sent. Calitre also said that "hopefully the incident can be forgotten."

Although it was an error in communication between the officers, the students involved felt an enormous threat to their First Amendment rights. President of the SGA, James "Appetite" Cotter, said that "Our gripe is that as a campus police officer, you have to understand the environment in which you work. You have to be verse in First Amendment rights."

Cotter said that even if the sign had been illegal, they had a right to keep it up. Cotter also said, in a memo to Calitre, that he was thankful that the officers had "graciously apologized for the incident" and that he was appreciative of the "institution's resolve to address this issue swiftly."

The rights of the student were also the concern of the Dean of Students, Carl Snipes. In a memo that he sent to Calitre, he said that the incident was "an extremely serious matter." That "if handled differently, this could easily have qualified as an infringement of First Amendment rights." He is concerned that "we have officers patrolling the campus who have not been adequately exposed to the important issues of the students' rights and privileges."

Vice President of Administration and Finance, Thomas Auch, said in a memo to Cotter apologizing for the incident that he wanted to "reaffirm, that our security department is here to protect the right and property of students, faculty, staff and visitors to the campus."

Early morning Blanton fire caused by clogged vents

by Jeff Zarillo

A vent with a burnt out motor, that was claimed to have been reported broken, ignited a fire Sunday morning in the adjoining bathroom of rooms 4C06 and 4C08 on the fourth floor of Blanton Hall, Campus Police said.

Kenneth Doremus, 24, was the only resident of the two rooms present at the time of the fire. He later suffered from nausea and dizziness, caused by something burning in the fire and went to East Orange General Hospital in East Orange. He was treated and released with medication.

Doremus claims that two weeks ago he personally filed a “work-order” stating that the bathroom fan was “very stuffed up.” It was never fixed. Director of Residence Life, Margaree Coleman-Carter, said that her office, which has copies of all work-orders, “can’t find any such report.” An investigation into the missing work-orders is underway.

Mike Pisano, 19, and Peter Beckus, 18, who occupy the adjoining room returned to the college on Sunday evening. According to Pisano, “No one called and informed us. We just arrived there, with no one there and no answers.” They also found many of their valuable personal items, such as a word processor and a leather jacket ruined by the fire.

Doremus-Carter said that the residents will be reimbursed for any damages to their personal items.

As far as the possibility for any legal action, Pisano said, “Everything is going in the right direction, as long as that continues, no legal action will be taken.”

Cullen, 21, as well as Pisano and Beckus, have been relocated to two rooms in Bohn Hall.

Debris in the bathroom of rooms 4C06 and 4C08 after the ceiling vent caught fire Sunday.

THEFTS

An employee teaching a class in Panzer Gym reported his jacket, which contained his wallet and keys, was stolen from the gym. The jacket was later found, but all the valuables were missing.

A student reported her purse stolen out of her book bag in Life Hall on March 4.

On March 5, a student reported her credit cards, keys and license stolen out of her pocketbook while it was left in Panzer Gym. Discover Card security reported her stolen credit card being used by a male in New York City.

A cordless phone was reported stolen from the office of an employee in Chapin Hall on March 4.

On March 4, a student reported the theft of three rings from a ladies room in Sprague Library, which she had inadvertently left behind after washing her hands.

A 1990 Toyota was stolen from lot 24 on March 8. The vehicle has not yet been recovered.

A student reported her wallet stolen from the Library on March 9.

A student left her ATM card at the bank machine in the Student Center on March 9 and reported it missing.

ARSON

A resident of Webster Hall reported being harassed by a former roommate. Due to fears for her safety, she returned to her parents’ home. The matter is being handled by Residence Life.

On March 4, a student reported the theft of three textbooks, a walkman, a lamp, some hair care products and $50 in cash. Director of Residence Life Marjorie Coleman-Carter told Clark and Fuzzy that the thief is probably someone who lives on the fifth floor.

Members of the Little Falls Fire Department, Campus Police, an unidentified Resident Assistant and the Student Assistant for Facilities, Chris Guido, opened the doors of the 4C and 5C wings to check for residents who may have remained in the building during the drill. According to Guido, the fireman who checked the rooms, ordered the doors to be left open so that smoke could filter out of the rooms.

“The wing was filled with smoke and it was a high pressure situation,” Guido said. “I was following the orders of campus police and the fire department.”

After the rooms were opened Guido left the hallway to turn off the main circuit breaker for the rooms, Coleman-Carter said.

Coleman-Carter said, “We inadvertently left the doors open in the confusion. Residence Life takes full responsibility for the incident. The Residence Life staff should have gone back to make sure the doors were closed before the students returned.”

In a false alarm situation the RA or AM on duty would lock the doors immediately after spot checking the room but because the fire department said that the doors should be left open the doors were not relocked, Coleman-Carter said.

Dr. Irwin S. Kimble speaks to the campus community.

by John J. O'Sullivan

"Adult Literacy" was the topic of the first of the Joseph F. Brunner Memorial Lectures on Tuesday, March 15. Joseph Brunner was a professor in the Department of Reading and Educational Media until his untimely death two years ago due to heart complications. In a fitting memorial, the Joseph Brunner lectures will all focus on his field: reading, education and the problems and solutions involved in the field.

The guest speaker was Dr. Irwin S. Kimble of the Educational Testing Service in Princeton. Dr. Kimble was the Director of the National Adult Literacy Survey (NALS). The NALS was a "test" given to a randomly picked sample of American adults to find out the level of literacy that they were at and to take that level and relate it to their education/employment/social status/etc. ETS was sponsored and charged by an Act of Congress to create the NALS to test national level of literacy and to develop one's knowledge and potential. Literature was also broken down into three parts: prose, document and quantitative. Prose literature included articles in newspapers, books, ads, information written in "paragraph" form. Document literature is information written in charts and graphs. Quantitative literature is printed information in a computational format; materials like order forms, menu and loan applications.

Dr. Kimble explained that the test was constructed to test the subject not by the traditional "school modeled" multiple choice method, but to test how the subject processes printed information by underlying important data, explaining passages, copying information, computing information and writing paragraphs about the passages. The scoring was based on a 500 point scale and the scale was divided into five classes; Class I being lowest, easiest reading/writing tasks, all the way to Class 5, which included reading high-level literature and writing complex works.

The scores were the most interesting and perhaps the most unsettling of Dr. Kimble's presentation. The average was 270. And for the first time ever, he released the scores for New Jersey, which has an average of 273. All three scores fall within the limits of a Class 2 Literacy. Dr. Kimble also gave the scores in relation to schooling; adults going to school 0-8 years had an average of 161, adults with a high school diploma had an average of 268 and an adult with four years of higher education had an average 376. He remarked that literacy skills may directly influence a student's mindset, making him/her want to stay in school longer than those who don't have the higher skills.

Employment status was also shown in relation to the median grades on the NASL. The more hours worked, the higher the score was. Also, the type of job seemed related to literacy. Professionals had a 300+, salespeople had a 280, craftspeople/service: 250, laborers: 230. People who felt they were passed over for a job had a Class 2 level of literacy. Dr. Kimble stated that literacy was becoming a "currency" where those who have great levels of it can succeed and those who don't have less money to work with.

Dr. Kimble finished off his lecture by discussing the problems with society's aspect on literacy and possible solutions. He felt that society is imposing higher and higher goals for literacy and less and less people are able to achieve those goals and that we need to focus on the way our teachers teach and make sure that they include all three types of literacy into their teaching and we as a society need to realize that the problem is not singular, it is very much plural meaning that the solution has to come from all aspects of society: school, home, workplace and community.

Cappy: A Prime Example of Persona-Non-Grata

by A Fellow Clove Roadian

When someone first enters college, it usually takes them about a month before they find a good friend that they can hang with. Then again, it can take some people a little longer to adjust and shit... then there’s CAPPY!

Would you ever think of moving to Clove Road by yourself? Probably not, because you would want to live with your friends, right? But this sorry chap, or "cap," did. All right, so he moves to Clove by himself because he has no friends and into the humble abode of super-stud athletes with names like Ty-ski, the Stump-master, Dino Bravo, and the late, great, immortal "KINSEY"!

Under normal circumstances, things probably would of worked out. But little to CAPPY’s knowledge, this apartment was awaiting the arrival of "THE SHIT MAN" - an up and coming stud-athlete. So Kinsey departs, and THE SHIT MAN went to sign his John Hancock on the housing contract, the spot was already filled by the infamous CAPPY. Never was the apartment notified of this disregard of their housing rights, but only later did we find out that CAPPY had an inside contact by the likes of everyone’s favorite Residence Life employee, Mrs. Mary Valenti.

Now here comes the good part. Over the next couple of weeks, every "option" was searched out to get THE SHIT MAN in. Let me give you a little chronological re"cap":

FIRST: An attempted switch in rooms is made between SHITTY and CAPPY. CAPPY declines, saying the occupants of that apartment "party all night until five," his friend told him so.

SECOND THRU FOUR: Other vacant spots in Clove are searched out for CAPPY to move to. Three spots were found open on different occasions. CAPPY again declines, saying "I’m not moving in with no international shit."—Mind you now, all along CAPPY has to be getting a sense of an unwanted feeling around here, right?

FIFTH: A fourth spot was finally found for CAPPY, a regular apartment. Now he has to agree, and against his will, does. Finally things can go as planned!

Well, before you can say “Chicago’s in Lodi,” Mrs. Valenti had filled that spot. (About 20 minutes after Maureen Galleghe, head of Clove housing, told her to hold it) Sounds kind of fishy, right?—Now things start to get desperate.

SIXTH: CAPPY is asked by his roommates to “please go” (to one of the open apartments). CAPPY declines once more, saying he feels comfortable here being surrounded by all of his girlfriends downstairs and next door. Besides, CAPPY says he has early classes, goes to work after that, he goes to bed early, and he hangs with his friends all weekend, so he will never be around.—Feels comfortable? After being asked to leave?

FINALLY: CAPPY is told to “GET THE FUCK OUT, NO ONE WANTS YOU HERE!” CAPPY, now knowing that he stays, if he wants, starts kissing a little ass to try to become friends with his new roommates. He even went as far as giving an intense neck-massage to an off-injured STUMP-MASTER. What a pitiful fool!

Now let me give you a little update: CAPPY’s ass-kissing turns out to be the hardest "fresh" bread from his dad’s bakery, two and a quarter gallons of milk, and no stereo or phone/answering machine. He got fired from both his jobs! (The motherfucker never leaves!) He never goes to class, even though he still sets his alarm to get up early—which I hear pretty soon is going to catch him a supreme beat-down from D. BRAVO! He sits on the phone all day. (NO LIFE!) Has a car with NO REVERSE! He can’t get laid in a morgue (even though he tells stories of hooking up with three and four chicks a night!) He has entered the squared circle with STUMP-MASTER and SHITTY (going 0-2 in those battles). He owns some of the most Quido-rat clothes ever invented.

So, I suggest to all you out there who think you got it bad, think again! It doesn’t get worse than this. These poor souls didn’t deserve this unrelenting inheritance of the man they call "CAPPY". Let’s just hope there aren’t any other CAPPY’s out there. But let’s not forget that the original CAPPY is still among us and I heed a warning:

SEE YA! WOULDN’T WANNA BE YA!

Conservation on Campus

by Joe Garrahan

The Conservation Club at MSC was founded in 1969, during a trek through the wilds of New Hampshire. It was atop Mt. Monadnock where several students and teachers realized that if the human race was to continue to live in harmony with its natural environment, affirmative action would have to be taken. The original members of the Conservation Club were inspired so deeply by the bliss of the mountain peaks of New Hampshire that they vowed to do all that was necessary to ensure that future generations could share similar experiences, where the fullness of life can truly be felt. Thus, the Montclair State Conservation Club was established, dedicated to the principal that while man can take delight in the wonders of nature and use it to suit his needs and purposes, we must give back to her what she so graciously gave to us.

The club's primary goals have been to motivate, educate and inform the student body as well as the greater society to save our natural resources and the environment. Along with the organized hikes and camping trips, the Conservation Club runs whale watches, Earth Care, Earth Day/Week festivals and Adopt-A-Highway.

In its 25th year as a Class One Organization of the SGA, the Conservation Club and its members continue to keep the torch burning bright. With their strength and unity they invite all to participate in the activities they have planned for the Spring semester of 1994. Adopt-A-Highway is one of the ongoing projects that the Conservation Club has instilled. This project encourages the students, friends and family to become aware of the pollution that has accumulated along our highways. The club asks that people take responsibility for their actions by coming out for a few hours on Saturdays and clean up the mess that we have carelessly made. Your time and support are greatly appreciated. Every spring the Conservation Club holds its Earth Day/Week festival. These events have lifted the spirits at MSC as well as raising the environmental consciousness. This years festivities will be held from April 18 to the 24. They will include the flag raising ceremony and campus clean up (Monday, April 18, 9 a.m.-3 p.m.), various lectures and speakers and environmental open mic. in the quad (Tuesday, April 19, 10 a.m.-3 p.m.), adopt a tree and tree planting ceremony (Wednesday, April 20, 10 a.m.-3 p.m.), MSC Earth Day which includes 50 Environmental organizations and environmental vendors along with live music and entertainment (Thursday, April 21 all day outdoors), National Earth Day celebration (Friday, April 22) and a whale watching expedition in Massachusetts (Friday-Sunday, April 22-24).

Last fall the Conservation Club, along with the Youth Environmental Society (Y.E.S.), was responsible for the organization of the Earth Care Seminar, a project which allowed for over 350 high school students from local schools to sit in on a series of lectures concerning different aspects of environmental education. Lectures included topics on "Pesticides in the Home," "Endangered Species Act," "The Rainforest," "Passaic Flood Tunnel," "Bridges to the Natural World," "Environmental Education Through Music," "Adventures of Trees," "Grass Roots Organizing" and "Recycling." The seminars were a huge success and are something to look forward to.

In addition to these activities, the Conservation Club made a major public protest in support of the Endangered Species Act. Some 45 people gathered in the rain to pay respects to the 3,000 endangered species in New Jersey that have been overlooked by the Endangered Species Act. In a mock funeral, students, teachers and government officials marched chanting "save endangered species," and "protect the animals." Tombstones were made for the rattle snake, the green turtle, the tree frog and other endangered species. College students throughout the country are holding mock funerals to gain support for the country are holding mock funerals to gain support for the act.

A major concern and focus for the Conservation Club is the neglected recycling bins that can be found all over the campus. People are using products that can easily be recycled but are either too lazy or are unaware that there is a proper place for that product when they are through using it. Please make use of the blue recycling bins that have been made available for our benefit. Some things to be aware of are: only purchase items that are biodegradable or recyclable, don't use paper bags, carry a lunch box (or at least reuse the same bag), buy loose fruits and vegetables, and reuse gift wrappings.

Anyone who is interested in or would like to learn more about the environment and what they can do to make the world and their life a pleasant place to be should drop by the Conservation Club office room 120 in the Student Center Annex. Any comments, concerns and suggestions are welcomed. For more information of the upcoming events call 655-5102.

Letters from a Paper Ship (Mercury)

Billy Falcon is the kind of guy you would hear down the shore in some local dive, except with a bigger budget. His new CD, Letters from a Paper Ship (Mercury), is a cross blend of bar band rockers, pop, mellow ballads and honky tonk, but it sounds like the adult-contemporary sound that draws from all aspects of music that is blended into one album. Definitely a disc worth checking out.

Afrodisiac (Mercury)

The Veldt are a band out of the Chapel Hill, N.C. area and if they are any indication of the local music scene, Chapel Hill has a bright future. Combining a hard edge sound with R&B, funk, hip hop, rock and great harmonizing, Afrodisiac (Mercury), is packed from start to finish on eighteen songs. The songs are so diverse it sounds more like a compilation rather than what this quartet put down in a studio. "It's Over" takes advantage of the harmonizing vocals of Daniel and Danny Chavis (two different guys) as does "Revolutionary Sister" an upbeat message for women.

The Veldt show their musical styles with "Juicy Sandwich," a 70's style R&B melody, interlaced with a heavy guitar riff, "Wanna Be Where You Are" a funky, hip hop sound and "Dusty Chain" a harder guitar-driven song. It is refreshing to hear a band with original ideas and a unique sound that draws from all aspects of music that is blended into one album. Definitely a disc worth checking out.

RUSH in Concert

by Brian Abreback

Tough economic times and high ticket prices have caused many bands to stage their tours in clubs and theaters while staying away from the big production arena show, which are a financial risk. Considering this, Rush's sold out show last Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden was a testimony to both the loyalty of the band's fans and to the experience of seeing Rush live.

For over two hours, the band (Geddy Lee-bass, vocals, synthesizers Alex Lifeson-guitars, Neil Peart-drums) entertained the frenzied audience with a mix of material including six songs from their most recent album Counterparts. The band opened the show with "Dreamline," from the album Roll the Bones and then launched into "The Spirit of Radio." A song which received a huge crowd reaction was the soon to be classic "Time to Stand Still."

Rush is a band which is not played frequently on the radio, and many of their fans have been into the band for a number of years. The crowd seemed to know all the words from both newer material such as "Animate," "Cold Fire," and "Stick it Out," as well as to older songs like "Lime-light," "Xanadu," and "The Trees."

The show featured popular songs such as "Roll the Bones," "Show Don't Tell," "Closer to the Heart," and the new songs "Nobody's Hero," "Double Agent," and the instrumental "Leave That Thing Alone." The band didn't play long time favorites "Subdivisions," "Free Will," and "Red Barchetta," but did perform the more obscure songs "The Analog Kid" and "Mystic Rhythms." No Rush show would be complete without the classic "Tom Sawyer." The band encored with "Force Ten" and "XYZ." What is impressive about seeing Rush live is the energy and enthusiasm they put into their performance. Lee and Lifeson moved around the stage and acknowledged the crowd throughout the show. They gave the impression that they really have fun performing and are happy to be on stage.

The band is at the same time relaxed on stage and very professional. They have their material down perfectly and reproduce almost exactly what their songs sound like on record.

A staple of every Rush concert throughout the years...

Orion String Quartet and Edmund Battersby to play at MSC

Edmund Battersby and the Orion String Quartet will repeat their recent Lincoln Center concert Saturday, March 26, in Memorial Auditorium at MSC.

An active recitalist, Battersby is also on the music faculty here. The Orion String Quartet are renowned artists who have received acclaim in their individual careers.

The Oscars are only a week away, and since we're all going to be as far from campus as possible (or as far as we can afford) next week, and since there will be no Monday night next week, here are my picks for the big shindig in Hollywood. Keep in mind these are who I would like to win, not who will win.

Best Picture: The Fugitive. Yes, Schindler's List was a moving movie, and it will undoubtedly win, but I still enjoyed The Fugitive more. Some may argue that List educates others about the Nazi Holocaust, but I go to the movies to be entertained, and Harrison Ford did it a little better than Liam Neeson.

Best Actor: This was a toughie, but I'd say Liam Neeson, with Tom Hanks running a close second. Anthony Hopkins is decent, but the stiff upper lip is getting to be a little much.

Best Actress: Emma Thompson. It's a narrow race, but I think she'll get it, but one can always hope.

Best Supporting Actor: Tommy Lee Jones. Equal billing for The Fugitive didn't stop him from stealing the spotlight from Harrison Ford.

Best Supporting Actress: Holly Hunter. I'd like to see Holly Hunter walk away with this one for her work in The Firm, but the odds on favorite has to be Emma Thompson in In The Name Of The Father.

Best Director: Steven Spielberg. A large aspect of what makes a Rush concert unique is their use of lights, lasers and video footage. The different lights and lasers added emphasis to the songs as did the video screens which flash images to accompany the lyrics to the songs. Rush don't hold back on production, making their concert a complete audio-visual experience.

Rush are a band who give an energetic performance which the audience feeds off of. The emotion and enthusiasm with which the band played gave their show an intimate character despite the fact that they were playing to twenty-thousand people. At the end of the night, the most important thing was the feeling of satisfaction that I sensed the audience, including myself, left the show with as they headed home.

Best Supporting Actress: Holly Hunter. I'd like to see Holly Hunter walk away with this one for her work in The Firm, but the odds on favorite has to be Emma Thompson in In The Name Of The Father.

Best Director: Steven Spielberg. A large aspect of what makes a Rush concert unique is their use of lights, lasers and video footage. The different lights and lasers added emphasis to the songs as did the video screens which flash images to accompany the lyrics to the songs. Rush don't hold back on production, making their concert a complete audio-visual experience.

Rush are a band who give an energetic performance which the audience feeds off of. The emotion and enthusiasm with which the band played gave their show an intimate character despite the fact that they were playing to twenty-thousand people. At the end of the night, the most important thing was the feeling of satisfaction that I sensed the audience, including myself, left the show with as they headed home.
Le Saut de tremplin
By Dave Standridge

As I sit and look out of my window at the scars of our society: the parking lots, the basketball courts, side walks and streets, it occurs to me that most people don't see these things as I do.

People today see a gravel driveway as natural, or a rock garden or dirt instead of pavement. In the world we live in the gray sky has become less beautiful than the blue. The rain less inviting than the sunshine. Today a well trimmed lawn takes the crown over a field of wild flowers as old as the earth. We would call them weeds and pluck them in disgust. Today a sunset must fill the sky with its radiance as if it had been wounded and was bleeding, in order to make us stop and stare. If a song bird wakes you from your sleep at dawn with its melody, is it a nuisance? Do we in fact wish it to stifle it somehow? Shouldn't it be a wonder, to be savored? Today people call skyscrapers beautiful; a mountain undeveloped is missing something—condos perhaps.

All this explains a good many things to me. I've always wondered how could we let the planet be paved over and made lifeless. Now I see that the problem isn't landfills and market economics. Now I see that the problem is in the eyes.

The human race and western ideologies in general have always had a certain arrogance when it comes to natural things. We tend not to see ourselves as a part of nature. Somehow somewhere through some explosion of conceit we've decided that we're more than just a strand in the web of life. This is why all of us are so sick of winter, why everyone hates the cold. When you are out their trudging to class through some desolate corner of this wind tunnel of a campus, frozen to the core, it's a reminder. It's a reminder that nature's got us beat. That the human race is just a tiny grain of life, just a speck of dust on the evolutionary chart, no more or less susceptible to the powers of nature than the frail thicket and shrub we tear away to build our cities, only to find it pushing its way up through the pavement, chipping away at our triumph. So we pave it over again, and try to forget that all our powers of reason, all our centuries of evolution, all our piles of arrogance, can't keep a tiny green stalk no thicker than our little finger from pushing its way upward through the foot of concrete. We pave it over and are proud. We go back to our jobs and our families. We sit and feel at rest in our heated homes, looking out of our windows at the snow covered world. It looks so cold it almost makes me shiver, and our houses are so warm that it's as if that cold could never touch us. All the while forgetting that a shiver of the earth in the frozen universe, and our cities come toppling down upon us.

Please, let this bit of prose have made you all, or even a handful of you, understand that the present state of the planet is not because of our way of life. How we live is the result, not the cause. Oh please, let this have made someone see that at the very bottom of the heaping pile of results lies one single cause for all the death, all the poisoning, we've created. Let this make someone see that some time long ago we decided we were better, and at that instant, countless centuries ago, all of what we face today was born.

Protest Whitman

Protest! Protest! This is what will be happening on Thursday, March 17 when our newly elected Governor Christine Todd Whitman speaks at Bloomfield College in Bloomfield, N.J. Many of the state college students from various colleges will be going to the college to protest the cutting of the New Jersey State College aid and the increase of tuition by approximately 40 percent.

She is placing everyone who goes to a N.J. state college at a tremendous monetary disadvantage. I have two young adults in state colleges in New Jersey and we are all aghast at her lack of compassion on this issue.

Many college age adults depend on the financial aid that the state of New Jersey grants them. They work, go to school and try their very best to get an education.

College age people who must help supplement the cost of their education need to be able to get an education without another stumbling block put in their way. It is difficult enough for the average student to make enough money during summers and part time during their school year. Now, with the proposed increase in tuition, what will happen?

Please, Governor Whitman, be merciful to our struggling young adults who are the future of our state of New Jersey. Allow them to get an unencumbered education so that they may not only help themselves, but in doing so, be a credit to our progressive state of New Jersey.

Sincerely,

Mary Lee Gantaifs

SGA needs more quality time

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to last week's article entitled, "SGA legislators upset over treatment from Executive board." The Student Government Legislature is currently working extremely hard on fighting tuition hike, fighting for academic rights, chartering student-run organizations, and many other "Students Serving Students" projects. I hope these issues get the same press as this sensationalized, already-resolved piece involving the SGA.

P.S. The event occurred two weeks before the story ran and the picture was out of context.

Respectfully submitted,
Gary Pankiewicz

Grab your weapons police think they have a point in case- take last Friday. No, they didn't arrest a car thief. They didn't direct traffic, help an old woman. No, their big accomplishment was the signing of the anti-trespass law.

Ever had a frustrating experience with our belovedampus police? Haven't we all. They do their job of escorting you late at night, possibly because too much drinking prior to that first class of the morning. And you thought you were bad...there is a pitifully thin line between you and an old lady. Or is there? Upon outfacing the same press as this sensationalized, already-resolved piece involving the SGA, the police think they have a point in case- take last Friday. No, they didn't arrest a car thief. They didn't direct traffic, help an old woman. No, their big accomplishment was the signing of the anti-trespass law.

It seems one of our finest was told to come up to the student Center and say, "Police Officer Rivera, the security guard involved, misunderstood the situation. After taking away the posters, the officer was then videotaped and said, 'I am so sorry.' An apology was sent to the SGA for being without the sign for fightin..."...well, I'll let you finish the story ran and the picture was out of context. Respectfully submitted, Gary Pankiewicz SGA Pres. ProTemp.

Miffed at Blanton

I have just experienced a situation that I believe to be inherently insulting. I was asked to show the contents of my bookbag at the desk of Blanton Hall. Not only is this a violation of my constitutional right of privacy, guaranteed by the Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, but also an insult to me as a person. I certainly am not guilty of any act that warrants the searching of my belongings, but was made to feel as though I was.

The Berlin Wall is down, Communism is meekly withering away, yet the bureaucratic harassment continues at Montclair State College.

In reading the student handbook, I came upon a section that lists the desk assistants responsibilities. They are responsible for (pp. 22) I then noticed a section just below the former entitled, "Obvious intoxication." Under this heading it is printed in bold type that, "You may be asked to reveal the contents of bags, boxes, etc. if the presence of alcohol is suspected." I and every other person entering the building with a bookbag are suspects? Am I guilty because it is snowing? Am I guilty because empty alcoholic bottles are found in the lounge? In signing the Residence Life contract that permits me to stay on campus, does there exist a disclaimer allowing staff members to violate my constitutional rights? What lies ahead? Pat downs, strip searches, follow the white line? This place may have been designed as and built to specifications of a prison (e.g. the single file staircase), but does that mean that it should be run as such?

I do not believe so. Big Brother may not be watching, but Big Sister is.

Keep the pressure on Trenton

I am writing this letter to comment on the article entitled "MSC could lose $5 million in state funding next year." When I read this headline I was in no way surprised since I had already heard from sources and officials at MSC as well as from Trenton that this sort of tampering with education would be occurring. Surprisingly, I am in total agreement with SGA President James "Appetite" Cotter's comments in that article.

For years, the concept of maintaining quality education in this country has been an issue of great concern but it has taken a backseat as a result of many other issues which have been awarded emergency status. Now, education, especially higher education, is in a state of emergency. Our state government insists on continuing a policy of cutting aid to state colleges and to compromise education and the future of this state and country. With the emergence of this new plan to cut $5 million in state funding, the students and faculty of MSC need to become mobilized in an attempt to prevent such a counterproductive political policy.

Pres. Cotter made strong comments and suggestions that the student body needs to become involved in thinking up strategies and "concrete ideas" or else the student body will be faced with a tough future. According to Vice President of Administration and Finance at MSC Tom Auch, these budget cuts will cause the college to increase class sizes, reduce class sections and reduce the number of full time professors, among other things. These consequences will make acquiring a high quality education very difficult and graduation in four years almost impossible. On top of this, the New Jersey Chancellor of Higher Education, Edward Goldberg said in a Star Ledger article (entitled, Higher education leader considers charging fees to offset budget cuts) that fees for special services will have to be charged to students due to the budget shortfall. Also, in this article, board member Stephen Wiley, in reference to the cuts in aid, said, "The knife is going to cut and New Jersey is going to bleed. Institutions will die." We are being held responsible for the short comings of this state government and we will suffer for it.

If you ever have the chance to walk across campus and ask a few people how they feel about this issue, you will find that everyone is bothered and angered by it. That's all well and good, but now it is time to stop the talk and start the action. If the students, faculty and administration don't begin to take affirmative action, we will fall victim to the greatest injustice that this college has ever seen: our education will be robbed from us. So, let's all set our differences aside and start working together for the one common goal of preserving the quality education that we have here at MSC; let's heed Fred. Cotter's call to action and start pressuring Trenton to keep their hands off our state aid.

Just few moments this St. Patrick’s Day...

by Kevin Colligan

Ireland, for most Americans, is an enigma. It is, at the same time, the land of lush countryside and good-natured folks depicted in A’s Lingus and Irish Spring commercials and the land of political chaos, often mentioned in the same breath as the Middle East by Dan Rather and Tom Brokaw. Every March, shamrocks, leprechauns and Guinness Stout are added into the equation.

Particularly confusing to Americans is the conflict in the Northern Ireland. Is it a war for Irish independence from Britain? Is it a religious war between southern Catholics and northern Protestants? Is it a war at all, or are the “troubles” simply the work of ruthless terrorists as the British government would have us believe?

These are questions that America, a nation with close historic ties to both nations, should ask. And since Americans celebrate Saint Patrick’s Day—an increasingly popular holiday—this week, perhaps we should set aside a few moments to understand the nation of Ireland, consider the historical origins of today’s violence, and explore avenues that may lead to peace in a land that has been in turmoil for over 800 years.

Life Tips

You met him at a party, she was a cute girl in your class, somehow you two have got together. Spring was great! Sitting in the park, long walks, just the two of you. It was a great honeymoon period. But now fall is setting in and the honeymoon is turning into a marriage, what now?

"I really like him but his mates are nerdy."

Yep, it's fault finding time. The realization of the laugh that you use to find so cute now gives you the shits.

It's time to realize that your perfect partner is not perfect and, as all people (even you), has some faults.

Now you can talk it over like mature adults or you can bottle it up and save the torment for her 21 birthday. My advice, let rip at the moment of the realization that you have a problem: That you always find yourself in self destructive relationships.

Get help.

Option one may sound attractive but two does have its benefits. First and foremost one less Christmas present. Second, and it might sound frightening, you'll be single again. And that means fun. Messing around with buddies, drinking, sleeping (or trying to sleep) with other people. The thrill of the chase, the moment of conquest, the realization that you have a problem: That you always find yourself in self destructive relationships. Get help.

Now if you're not a thrill seeker and is easier to cook for.

Now no matter how you react and is easier to cook for.

Real man, on the other hand, rules with an iron hand, is a good father, reacts correctly to 'let's talk' and is easier to cook for.

A real man, on the other hand, rules with an iron hand, is a good father, reacts correctly to 'let's talk' and is easier to cook for.

For the girls, let's talk has the same disadvantage. Do you want to go out with some mealy mouthed SNAG (Sensitive new age guy)? Or do you want a real man who displays his emotions through the barrel of a gun? If you do want a SNAG as a companion for life then be ready for endless conversations about his feelings and needs, his insecurities and how to cook snow peas.

Life is a mysterious thing.

MSC starts off 1-1; drops from No. 1 to No. 13

by Brian Falzarano

One doesn’t have to have a degree in philosophy to debate whether MSC should have descended from its perch atop the NCAA Division III rankings to its current No. 13 ranking after an 11-5 loss to No. 26 Mary Washington College on Sunday.

That’s because debating it is irrelevant. There’s nothing that can be done about the recent past. Conversely, the win aided Mary Washington (9-0) to ascend to 11th in this week’s national rankings. Mary Washington played eight games coming into the contest, while MSC had only played one, the day before. Coincidentally, that was also their first appearance on a baseball field outdoors this season due to Mother Nature’s interference.

MSC (1-1) led this contest 4-2 in the sixth inning and was on its way to beating the Fredericksburg, Va. school again (they defeated them last year in the Mid-Atlantic Regionals of the NCAA tournament, 10-4). But their defense fell apart at the seams like a bad hem-job on a pair of old dungarees in the sixth inning.

Mary Washington first baseman Brian Lillis (3 for 4, 2 RBI) led off with a single and scored two batters later on MSC senior second baseman Rob DiLaurenzio’s error on an errant throw home with runners on first and third. The error was the first of his two and of the Red Hawks three in the inning.

Senior left-hander Drew Yocum, making his first appearance since off-season arm surgery, then missed a sign and the ball went through to second instead of going back to the mound.

That laid the foundation for a four run inning which handed Chris Rampone (0-1) his first loss since 1992. Rampone, who came in after starter T.J. Costello was knocked out after two innings, gave up three hits and four runs (one earned). Again it was the errors that pulled the plug on MSC.

Blomn set to make noise at NCAA meet

by Karen Plumstead

Before this season started, expectations were high for freshman swimmer Billy Blomn.

Proving that he is all that he was advertised to be, the 6-foot-3, 180-pound Clifton native has already left his mark in the MSC records book, as well as the Metropolitan record books.

Swimming

Blomn distinguished himself as a competitor to look out for at this weekend’s NCAA Men’s Swimming Championships after a strong showing at the Mets.

Blomn shined in the 1650 freestyle, leaving his closest opponent a tremendous 44 seconds behind. The 16:08.77 time was an MSC record breaker.

This time was also a record-breaking time in the MSC books.

Blomn’s accomplishments at the Mets did not go unrewarded. Blomn received the Rookie of the Year award at the conclusion of the that meet.

“I was honored to receive that prestigious award,” said Blomn.

So, you might ask, “What helped to make Blomn the champion swimmer he has become?”

Blomn started swimming competitively at age 7. Throughout his development, he was greatly influenced by his brother and sister, who were also avid swimmers.

Blomn says, “You have to keep working at it and build momentum and a routine.”

Head coach Brian McLaughlin agrees with Blomn and also states, “Blomn is a champion swimmer due to his ability to deal with pain day in and day out. That is a key to a becoming a champion swimmer.”

Blomn’s future goal is to become a national champion.

“I want to be the top swimmer in the 500 or 1650 freestyle.”

McLaughlin feels Blomn is “one of the top distance swimmer in Division III and if he continues his work ethic, he can accomplish his goal.”

RED HAWK NOTES.... Sophomore Mark Arnold of Annandale will also compete in this weekend’s NCAA meet......Senior Mariana Krivak, a native of Hasbrouck Heights, placed 26th in the NCAA Women’s Championships this past weekend. She was the first woman from MSC to qualify for the NCAA’s since 1987.

Blomn, sitting poolside at a recent meet above, will attempt to continue his record-breaking ways at the NCAA Men’s Championships in Williams, Mass., which starts today.

With offensive weapons & pitching, No. 7 MSC shouldn’t miss a beat after 31-10 season

by Keith A. Idec

Despite the loss of four starters, there is plenty of room for optimism in the Red Hawk softball lockerroom.

"This is the most depth we've had in the four years I've been here," said head coach Anita Kubicka, who has compiled a 77-48 mark at MSC.

"We’ve got the experience necessary to do some good things this year. From one through nine in our lineup we really don’t have any weaknesses."

Although Kim Drager, the team’s leader in batting average, RBI and hits last season has graduated, Kubicka will still be able to regularly pencil in an explosive lineup that should send MSC to the NCAA tournament for the fourth straight year.

Also lost from last year’s squad, which went 31-10 (5-3 NJAC) and finished as the Mid-Atlantic Regional runner-up in the NCAA tournament, are First Team All-NJAC performer Shannon Malone (.346), Sue Stoft (.327) and Krissi Kressler (.290).

The Red Hawks, who will face some stiff competition in the NJAC this season (three Top Ten Division III teams in Trenton State, Rowan and William Paterson), open the campaign with a grueling seven-day, 12-game trip to Ocoee, Fla., beginning with a doubleheader on Saturday. Seven of the teams MSC will face during the trip are nationally ranked.

"I don't think it would do us any good to play weaker competition to begin the season," Kubicka said. "This type of trip is good because it prepares us for conference play."

The catalyst for MSC will be junior second baseman Jen Finn. The offensive and defensive standout was named Division III All-American last season after hitting at a .389 clip with a .434 on-base percentage and team-high 38 runs scored and 12 stolen bases. Also, Finn committed only four errors in 41 games at her middle infield position.

The Red Hawks’ major run-producer will be senior catcher Kristi Kuchinski, who is also expected to contend for conference player of the year honors.

Kuchinski, who like Finn is an excellent defensive player, hit for a .403 batting average and a .612 slugging percentage, while collecting team-highs with 43 RBI and four home runs.

Another of MSC’s strengths is its three-pitcher rotation. Returnees Michelle Serio and Denise Warnock will team with freshman Robyn Baron to comprise a formidable 1-2-3 combination.

"We will use that to our advantage," said Kubicka. "Having three arms enables us to have a relief pitcher, which is not as common in softball. With the third pitcher, we won't have to tire our starter for our next game’s arm."

Talent-rich Red Hawks expecting big things

by Maureen K. McLeer

Due to excessive snowfall and poor field conditions, Red Hawk lacrosse practices and preparation have been hindered. However, despite these minor setbacks, the team has been practicing indoors and gearing up for what could be one of its best seasons yet.

Lacrosse

Returning to the position of head coach is Doug Alsotrom, a graduate of and former player at Rutgers University. In addition to the head coach, there are many key players returning to the team this year.

Senior tri-captain Keith VanNess will be back as one of the top midfeldeers in the Knickerbocker Conference. Van Ness was named freshman athlete of the year nearly four years ago and has improved steadily each season.

Another tri-captain, Chris Bill, is returning to MSC as a senior midfielder. Last year Bill was named to the second team all conference, and his talent will be heavily relied upon this year as the Red Hawks strive toward the NCAA’s.

The MSC lacrosse team is also graced with the presence of a potential All-American in senior midfielder/defenseman, Neil Blaney. Blaney is no stranger to the game and he believes that “the team should go undefeated, no doubt.” According to Blaney, “the team this year is really, really super.”

Intimidating size is one of the keys to success in lacrosse. Luckily, MSC has two tall and talented members of its team.

John Belotta, a senior midfielder, and Mike Bruten, a junior attackman, will be instrumental in the team’s success. “Both Belotta and Bruten are powerful players,” said tri-captain Niles Furlong. “Their presence on the field is intimidating to our opponents,” added Furlong, MSC is also expecting great things from junior attackman Jim Nugent.

Accompanying these seasoned veterans onto the field will be several talented freshmen and transfers.

Dan VanNess, a freshman attackman, has great speed and field sense. The younger Van Ness will be a strong addition to the team this year. Another bright star on the field this year will be Mike Como. Como is a sophomore transfer who was recruited for his special talent as the “best face-off man around.” Como plays midfield and there will be a great deal of pressure on him to perform at his peak this year. A third key addition to the team this year is Frank Morano. Morano is a transfer from Richard Stockton and was named second team All-NJAC last year.

After finishing at .500 last season, there is an “NCAA’s or bust,” attitude in the MSC lockerroom, according to Furlong.

As a powerful defenseman, Furlong, a senior, “is a destructive force on the field,” according to Keith VanNess. However, Furlong sustained a severe knee injury last weekend at practice.

Furlong tore his ACL, but he’s confident that he will be able to play this season because as the optimistic Furlong put it, “no one want’s it more than me.”

"They were having trouble hitting my fastball," said the sophomore from Wayne. "I was locating my fastball really well. That made the curveball that much more effective."

REDHAWK NOTES.....Schoenig on the current nine-game swing which takes them through North Carolina, as well as two games against Virginia Wesleyan which were supposed to be played at Pittser Field, but were changed due to the weather: "If you come out of this thing with a record of 6-5, you're doing very well in my opinion. Anything above that is excellent." Among the teams they will encounter will be N.C. Wesleyan, the number two team in Division III, and Barton College, a good Division II school.

Roof was also a key in MSC's win over Bridgewater College this past Saturday. The sophomore left fielder crushed a pinch-hit 440-foot three-run roundtriper, piloting MSC to an 8-2 victory over No. 28 Bridgewater (7-2) this past Saturday.

Ralph Yezza (2 for 4) singled to start the inning off. Two batters later, Jason Scavalla walked to give Roof the spotlight to show he is on his way to big things.

John Carlon, the 5-foot-9 righthander, tossed a three-hitter over seven innings to take his first victory of the season. The win, which helped Carlon to improve to 6-0 in his career at MSC, was merely fundamental if you ask him.

Kevin Cooke got the win for Mary Washington, pitching a strong eight-plus innings in relief of starter Jeff DeSanto, who was taken out of the game after getting only one out.

Chris Roof, as was expected of him, had a good day, going two for four with two RBI, enabling the Red Hawks to jump out quickly.

The victor in the Midwest Region will be second-seeded UMass. John Calipari’s bunch will struggle with the likes of St. Louis, Michigan and Arkansas, but Lou Roe, Marcus Camby and Michael Williams will get them through. And last but not least, what would any tournament be without the unlikely becoming reality?

Can everyone say Golden Gophers? OK, it’s a pretty silly nickname, but the University of Minnesota, a No. 6 seed, will be the West Region’s representative in the Final Four.

Why? Missouri is a fraud, California and Cincinnati have been plagued by inconsistency and Arizona, well let’s just say there is a lot of history against them. Look for UMass and UConn to battle it out in an all-New England NCAA final, with the Huskies emerging as the champions.

Calling the shots.

To all of you hard-working students, and the rest of you all: Enjoy Spring Break and make it your little special pet project to find out who St. Patrick was and if possible, determine how his memory is somehow correlated to millions of people getting completely drunk on the same day.

MSC’s turnaround similar to that of Seton Hall in ’89

by Brian Falzarano

In order to fully comprehend what MSC felt after losing in the first round of the NCAA Tournament to Hunter College, one would have had to experienced the bus ride home.

There was no bitterness, although the loss could be considered bittersweet.

Men’s Basketball Analysis

There was instead, laughter and talking echoing throughout the spacious bus. The Red Hawks were pleased to have been in the NCAA tournament, but it was time to get on with life.

While it is too soon to think about next year for some, there can be comparisons made between MSC this year going into next season and the Seton Hall Pirates who went to the Final Four in 1989.

All right, all right. The talent and the level of competition are drastically different. I knew that already. But the similarities between the teams have an undeniable coincidence about them.

This year, the Red Hawks lose Keith who are whining, “What about Eric Montross, Donald Williams, Derrick Phelps, Dean Smith and the freshmen!”

Before you all cry a river of Tar Heel Blue tears, realize that Donnyell Marshall and Co. have been the bracket’s most consistent team throughout the season and might not even have to face North Carolina.

Remember, the Tar Heels will have to get by Temple and their outstanding trio of Aaron McKie, Eddie Jones and Rick Brunson to get a crack at the Huskies.

In the Southeast Region Grant Hill will hush any doubters of his leadership ability by leading Duke, a No. 2 seed to Charlotte. Obviously, Glenn Robinson of Purdue is the nation’s top player, but he won’t have enough help to advance.

But, if the three’s are falling, Kentucky could make Rick Pitino a happy little man.

But, if the three’s are falling, Kentucky could make Rick Pitino a happy little man.

The nucleus of the top six players is pretty solid. Keith Roberts has solidified the point guard position well for MSC, much in the way Gerald Greene had a stabilizing effect on his teammates. Roberts only differs in that he is more of a scorer on this level than Greene was on his. Dean Spinogatti is a more selfish version of John Morton, the shooting guard drafted by Cleveland. Spinogatti and Morton could both hit from the outside with blistering precision, but Morton was also adept at penetrating and slashing.

The main difference between the two teams, besides the level of play, is at small forward, where Greg Fowler and Andrew Gaze are as opposite as apples and oranges. Gaze was a marksman from the outside, making the three-pointer a main offensive weapon for the Pirates. Fowler is more athletic. He’s quick, doing many other essential things to help. Chris Jackson and Daryl Walker are both rebounding fools who do all the dirty work. They both center their games around such “subleties” as rebounding and setting picks, but do them with remarkable skill.

Center is another position where the teams differ. Mike Piperico is more like Seton Hall sixth man, Michael Cooper.
The MSC baseball team began its season one up and one down, but lost its No. 1 national ranking (Falzarano, p. 20)
