Burned out Blanton Hall residents lives slowly return to normal, despite setbacks

by Sheila Patnode

Things are almost back to normal for the Blanton Hall residents who were forced out of their rooms by a fire that occurred two weeks ago. The residents of 4C06 and 4C08 have been living in Bohn Hall while the fire damage is being repaired. The move back to Blanton, however, has been surrounded by miscummunication.

The night of the fire, Ken Doremus, the only resident who was in the suite at the time, was left on his own to find somewhere to sleep after the fire. "Everyone got let back into the building and I was left standing there wondering what I was supposed to do," he said. Doremus called a friend who is a Resident Assistant in Bohn Hall. His friend called an Assistant Manager and Doremus was moved into Bohn Hall.

Spray from the fire extinguishers entirely coated the property of both rooms. The fire itself had gutted the bathroom and left the smell of smoke behind. Doremus and his roommate, Tom Cullen, as well as their roommates, Pete Beckus and Mike Pisano, stayed in Bohn Hall the week before spring break.

Doremus suffered from dizziness and nausea. He had to deal with the aggravation of getting his room and property back to their original condition and also had to deal with a conflict over a missed exam. Doremus became ill after breathing in smoke from the fire and fumes from chemical from the fire extinguishers. He stayed in bed on Sunday and went to a doctor on Monday, causing him to miss an examination in a Myth and Literature class taught by Dr. Thomas Price.

Price to get his comment, he told the Montclarion to contact the chairperson of the English Department, Professor Jim Nash. Nash said that Price told him Doremus would have the opportunity to make up the exam. Doremus has not yet been notified of this.

Meanwhile, Residence Life paid for all four residents to purchase clothing from the Student Store while their clothes were being professionally cleaned. "The only clothes I had were the ones I had on when I went out for the fire drill," Doremus said. "My friends were calling me Montclair Man (after going to the school store) because everything I wore had 'Montclair' on it," Doremus said.

The rooms were professionally cleaned the week of spring break. Clothing and appliances such as TV's and VCR's were sent to professional cleaners. According to Marjorie Coleman-Carter, Director of Residence Life, three rooms were covered with spray from the fire extinguishers. "Astro Care, a professional fire restoration group, did a wonderful job of cleaning the rooms," Carter said. "They cleaned books, razer, everything." The rooms cost $1,400 to clean. Bills have not yet been received for the clothes or appliances which had to be professionally cleaned.

Doremus and Cullen still have a closet full of property, such as shoes and jackets, waiting to be cleaned. It was an oversight," Carter said. "People are coming back to clean those things."

Beckus and Pisano moved in Monday and Tuesday. "They did everything they're going to do for us," Beckus said. "I'm satisfied. They did a fair job." Doremus and Cullen moved back to Blanton on Wednesday and are still waiting for five boxes of personal property to be cleaned.

Blanton resident clubbed Gillooly style in parking lot

by Greg MacSwweeney

A female Blanton Hall resident was assaulted on Sunday night while walking back from her car in Lot 21.

The female student who was assaulted asked that her name be withheld for her own safety. She said that she was grabbed from behind and struck on the side of the head with a pipe or a club.

A CAT scan at Mountainside Hospital in Upper Montclair revealed that the victim received a concussion and a concussion to the head. "The doctor said that I could possibly be in a daze for up to three weeks," the victim said.

At approximately 2:15 p.m. yesterday the victim reported to the Health Center complaining that she could not move her hands because they were clenched in a fist and she could not release them. She is planning to go back to the hospital for observation.

"I'm having a hard time concentrating and memorizing my schoolwork," she said.

She said she spent five hours in the hospital on Monday and missed most of her classes this week.

After being struck she ran to Blanton Hall and the security guard at the desk called campus police. Police searched the parking lots around Blanton but found no suspects.

The victim was not able to identify her attacker and the only information she could come up with is that the attacker wore a black jacket.

An accident report was filed at the campus Health Center.

If you have any information on this attack call campus police at 655-5222.

THEFTS

A student reported his bookbag stolen from Panzer Gym on March 28. One of the computer rooms in Building B was found unsecured by an employee, who also discovered a section missing from a disk drive system.

A faculty member reported that, upon entering his office on March 28, his computer had been left on, $1 in change missing from a desk drawer and an obscene handwritten note left. There was no sign of forced entry.

On March 29 an employee reported that a tripod was stolen from the faculty member's room in Building B.

A faculty member reported a computer, printer, monitor and cables stolen from his office. The items were last seen before spring break.

A student reported her pocketbook stolen from Life Hall during class on March 29, after she had briefly left it unattended.

VANDALISM

On March 29, a student's car that parked in lot 30 was broken into. The student reported that the dashboard was damaged and the car radio was stolen.

DRUGS

Campus police responded to Stone Hall on March 17 after a student and the Dorm Director, Eric Hunter, discovered a small bag of marijuana. The bag was found under a stairwell.

Health alert at MSC
by Greg MacSwiney

MSC is now on a “Health Emergency Alert” in response to the measles emergency and Cook, Douglas and Piscataway campuses of Rutgers University because members of MSC may have been in contact with individuals from Rutgers campuses.

No cases of measles have been confirmed by the MSC Health Center, said Health Center nurse Kathleen Jones.

So far only three cases of measles at Rutgers have been confirmed but more than 20 are suspected, said Dr. Robert H. Beirman, director of student health services at R.U.

“When there are 20 cases you know about, you can pretty much assume there are a multiple of 10 times that,” Beirman said.

“There has been no medical confirmation of measles in the Health Center in the past two days,” Jones said.

Head Nurse Rose Budgis and Acting Vice President for Student Development and Campus Life Dominica Desiderioscioli left for the day and were not available for comment.

Beirman said that most people who contract the measles recover within 10 days but that in rare cases complications develop ranging from upper respiratory infections to damage to the central nervous system to death.

The incubation period for measles is two weeks. The first signs and symptoms of measles are a cough, fever in the excess of 102 degrees, runny nose, watery eyes and conjunctivitis (commonly known as pink eye). These symptoms are commonly followed by a rash on the face, back and chest and lesions on the mouth.

All faculty, staff and administrators are requested to advise students of the potential danger and ask students to check with their parents or family doctor to determine if they have had measles, been inoculated, or should have the measles vaccine.

The Health Center is working with the State Department of Health to monitor the situation and will take immediate action if our campus is infected with the virus. If a state of emergency is declared, everyone born after 1957 will be required to (a) show evidence of measles inoculation or (b) received the measles vaccine. Those not in compliance will not be permitted to attend class or work on campus.

Any case of measles should be reported immediately to the Health Center (x4361).

The last college outbreak of measles in New Jersey occurred in 1990 at Princeton University and at what is now Rowan College in Glassboro. Rutgers reported 30 cases in 1989.

Every year, a lot of people make a huge mistake on their taxes. They don’t take advantage of tax deferral and wind up sending Uncle Sam money they could be saving for retirement.

Fortunately, that’s a mistake you can easily avoid with TIAA-CREF SRAs. SRAs not only ease your current tax-bite, they offer a remarkably easy way to build retirement income—especially for the “extras” that your regular pension and Social Security benefits may not cover. Because your contributions are made in before-tax dollars, you pay less taxes now. And since all earnings on your SRA are tax-deferred as well, the money you don’t send to Washington works even harder for you. Down the road, that can make a dramatic difference in your quality of life.

What else makes SRAs so special? A range of allocation choices—from the guaranteed security of TIAA to the diversified investment accounts of CREF’s variable annuity—all backed by the nation’s number one retirement system.

Why write off the chance for a more rewarding retirement? Call today and learn more about how TIAA-CREF SRAs can help you enjoy many happy returns.

Benefit now from tax deferral. Call our SRA hotline 1-800-842-2733, ext. 8016.

Ensuring the future for those who shape it.

MONT CLARION
Betty J. Eadie died in a hospital due to complications from surgery - but came back to life.

Her nonfiction book about this two decade-old event has been near the top of the best-sellers list for nearly a year. Her back to life...

The book is written in a simple language despite its often confusing prophesy. There are some obligatory ethereal-sounding parts and the description of the death experience itself is a bit chilling.

If the God Eadie encountered exists and her journey didn't as skeptics will doubtless say, "occur only in her mind," then there is hope of a life beyond this one though it is a life that I in reading this book labored to properly grasp.

The Client

John Grisham

The Client is the fourth legal thriller by John Grisham. In this novel, Grisham deviates from the pious, glamorous attorney as the protagonist to an unspectacular street-wise juvenile named Mark Sway, who comes from a broken home in Memphis. Mark and his brother, Rickey, both witness the suicide of mob lawyer, Jerome Clifford, but not before Clifford tells Mark information that could get him killed.

Mark confides in Reggie Love, a middle-aged lawyer who has only been practicing law for four years. Love is on a noble crusade as guardian of the oppressed and develops an affinity for Mark. Love takes Mark on as a client and becomes Welcome, loyal readers to another thrilling installment of PROPHET BIGG! We, at MSC, were fortunate enough to get a well-known TV personality to come here and speak. Sally Jessy Raphael spoke in Memorial Auditorium on Tuesday night.

There were many questions asked of Raphael in the Q and A portion of the program. I’ve selected a few below in part one of this interview. Next week, I will bring you part two of Sally. In part two, the PROPHET, as well as representatives from both William Paterson and Jersey City State College newspapers spent some time with Sally after the official programming. Enjoy!

Question: I go to school full time. I work full time. And I find it difficult to manage. Do you find there is ever enough time in the day in your life?

Sally Jessy Raphael: No. And I can’t say I see it getting better. Do I ever feel discouraged? Do I ever feel put upon everyday? Yes. I’m sorry if that doesn’t give you any comfort (laughter).

Question: If you were alive in the 1800’s, what would your job be?

S.J.R.: I’d love to say something but I can’t (laughter). Maybe I should say Libertarian. I’d be a Libertarian. I’d run a railroad.

Q: Are there any women in power in broadcasting or is it all just on the surface?

S.J.R.: If you’re asking me if any major networks have a major woman in charge of making major decisions, Sherri Lansing is the only one that I know with any power.

Q: Do you choose the topics for the show?

S.J.R.: I can say I won’t do that. And I can say I will not talk to those guests. Do I? Almost never. In the ten years of the show, we’ve only not aired two shows. Each show costs the company about $50 thousand. So at the end of the year, when my company tallies up, I say, “Oh, we didn’t run two shows, here’s $100,000.” And everything is fine.

Mark’s confidant and friend. Mark becomes the most important client in Love’s career and together they try to figure out what their options are with the dubious information Jerome Clifford gave to Mark.

The police, newspapers and the mob all want Mark but for different reasons. The police are looking to keep Mark alive, the newspapers want a story and the mob wants to see Mark dead but they all want the information Clifford gave him.

Grisham takes the reader on a rollercoaster ride from start to finish. From the outset this novel grabs the reader and doesn’t give any breathing room until halfway through the book. The last half of the book is all down hill and when the book smacks into the last page the reader is left looking for more story.

Grisham doesn’t spend much time on character development or historical background in the story. Grisham’s first novel A Time to Kill has much more in the way of character and historical development. The Client doesn’t get into much legal jargon either like Grisham’s last novel did. The Pelican Brief and Black’s Law Dictionary can be returned to the bookshelf because Grisham does away with the legal jargon in The Client. The irony in the story is that Jerome Clifford and Mark Sway both have the same dilemma in possessing the coveted information.

The Client is a traditional David and Goliath story set in the complex legal system. The Client is in its sixth week at the number one spot on the New York Times Paperback Best Seller list and costs $6.99.

Heavy snow was predicted for the day of my departure (3/3), and this not being a winter to disappoint expectations, the snow came. I called the airport as early and as late as possible hoping a delay might buy me a little time to sleep. I didn’t want the flight to be cancelled of course, but since I was scheduled to be laid over in Miami between 10 a.m. and 9:30 p.m., I wasn’t in a hurry to get started.

Despite a ferocious and continuing storm the airline’s annoying computerized message kept saying the flight would leave as scheduled at 7:30 a.m. I had felt certain it would have been otherwise, so had very little time to get to the airport considering the condition of the roads.

Teri Ryan and I pulled up to the terminal with scarcely 15 minutes to spare. I dragged my luggage to the check in counter in a state of considerable anxiety. A question to the sullen counter attendant, “Is flight 101 on schedule?” Her reply, “Yes.” No commentary whatsoever on the atrocious weather and how it might influence our actual time of departure. As the passenger ahead of me finished checking in, the same lady said to him, “Be sure to hurry up to the gate, the flight is ready to leave.” I’m sure perspiration was breaking on my brow as I wondered, “If there’s such a damned hurry why is she moving so slowly!” She checked me in with maddening casualness, then after an all-too-brief goodbye to Teri, I ran off to the gate.

Running with my backpack was no easy thing. But I had been possessed since 5:00 a.m. with the thought that I could miss my flight. It was the only one of the day for their airline and I wasn’t about to blow it at the last minute. I relaxed my pace to a rapid walk as I approached the gate. With boarding pass in hand and pleased with my efficiency I smiled at the gate attendants expecting to ride my momentum all the way to my seat. They looked at me dubiously and explained that we were not yet boarding. There must have been a blank look on my face, because their news took a moment to sink in. A break-neck drive in the snow and a fully laden sprint for the airport concessions, then an all-too-brief goodbye to Teri, I ran off to the gate.

Landing was almost as thrilling as taking off. It’s not that we bucked and rolled quite as much, but that we bucked and rolled so close to the ground.

I was a grim sardine during the 45 minutes it took to de-ice, but all was well in the end. There was plenty of extra room on the flight and I was able to move to a seat by an exit door. Thus I enjoyed not only a window, but enough leg-room for Shaquille O’Neal.

It may seem to contradict some of what I’ve written above, but I really love to fly. My wisecracks about Carnival arouse out of pique, not fear. But I must say that this flight reminded me what fear of flying is. It was the fault of the weather rather than the Carnival pilot, I’m sure. But I think I can be forgiven for it having occurred to me that the experience had a certain flavor of an amusement park ride. The rocking and buffeting alone might have been tolerable however extreme. It was the plummeting through “air pockets” on take-off that unnerved me.

Once above the clouds it was smooth sailing. The friendly crew went about their act. One young lady (surely she had worked before on the “Love Boat”) made a speech in imitation of the U.S. Postal Service motto about how the plane had taken off despite rain, sleet, snow, etc. A modestly appreciative applause followed, whereupon the young lady exclaimed, “is that the best you can do?” The passengers dutifully clapped louder and I privately thought, “What’s next, a bleedin’ singalong!”

Landing was almost as thrilling as taking off. It’s not that we bucked and rolled quite as much, but that we bucked and rolled so close to and while rocketing towards the ground. I swear that it’s almost never so bad. Still, one wonders whether in the past I’ve just been lucky.

Landing was almost as thrilling as taking off. It’s not that we bucked and rolled quite as much, but that we bucked and rolled so close to and while rocketing towards the ground. I swear that it’s almost never so bad. Still, one wonders whether in the past I’ve just been lucky.
Every assaults call for administration's attention

Administration's attention to the safety of students on campus is a matter of urgency and a concern that needs to be addressed. On March 21, a female resident of Lot 21 was accosted by two men. One man pinned her and the other fondled her, all without hindrance on campus because of the lack of light. The administration seems to have either ignored or denied the safety concerns that students have raised. It is up to them to live up to their assurance of safety on campus.

In the past, the administration has not been proactive in addressing safety issues. For example, there was a time when the administration acknowledged the need for more police cars on campus, but the expenditure on anything else on campus was not possible. The administration has the responsibility to ensure the safety of its students, and they have failed to do so.

In conclusion, the administration needs to take action to ensure the safety of its students. They need to provide a comprehensive response to this unaccaptable situation. This includes allocating more resources to campus security and ensuring that no student feels unsafe on campus.

So Much for Grades, Motherhood and the Truth: Sally Jesse Raphael Speaks

by Hugo Arenas

Memorial Auditorium had a packed house on Tuesday night as talk show host Sally Jessy Raphael helped in the celebration of Women's History Month at Montclair State.

With the help of neighboring colleges, Jersey City State and William Paterson, Raphael was present to speak on "Meeting The Challenge; Women In Media."

Raphael told all who were present about her life as a woman in the media. She had been fired from 18 jobs before having her popular talk show, but each job had been a stepping stone for her because women were almost "invisible" when she first started in the business.

Raphael told students that grades are not the most important thing, but instead confidence and persistence are more important talents, and that it is fine to bounce from job to job and lie on resumes.

She graduated from Columbia University with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Broadcasting. When the time came to look for a job, Raphael lied about her broadcasting anchoring experience in order to get a job as an anchor in New York City.

Raphael recalls buying two books on how to anchor a newscast, "I stayed up all night reading these books and then went to an audition the following day. Everything was going fine until they asked me how I was with editing, I said fine, even though I had never done it before." She learned the editing process four days after accepting the position.

"Is it okay to lie? I don't know," Raphael said, "it's okay to lie about your age or even about the jobs that you've had in the past, as long as you can have someone to back you up when the employer calls. The ideas of resumes is pretty dumb anyway."

"People spend too much time and money perfecting their resume, so if you ever apply for a job at my show, or even with Oprah or Geraldo, the interview questions are somewhat different," Raphael said.

Raphael worked 26 years in the broadcasting business in Puerto Rico, and managing a family at the same time sometimes got hard, "there were times that we had to sleep in the car and live off of credit cards. Now I find it funny but the time it wasn't," Raphael stated.

She advised all women that seek to go into the profession to definitely learn a second language and to put off having a family for as long as possible.

"It's not too late!"

Civil Rights and Environmental Activism

by Daniel Saggio

On April 8th, at St. John's University, the Journal of Legal Commentary is sponsoring a symposium on a heated issue surfacing in the arena of Environmental Justice. The topic to be addressed during the scheduled four panels of speakers is "The Merging of Civil Rights and Environmental Activism." The discussions will attempt to articulate the discriminatory factors behind the siting of industrial waste centers.

All those interested need to register by calling (718)-990-6688. A copy of the published remarks can be purchased when it becomes available. The symposium scheduled at St. John’s University School of Law, will be held in Most Courtroom, Room 2050, and will go from 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Spring Break: Bah! Humbug!

I hate it when people ask me how my spring break was. They say, "Hey John! How was your spring break?" Well, I went to Cancun and got drunk everyday and had sex every night under a palm tree and... By this point in the conversation, I am so jealous, angry, and just plain miffed that I have no choice to say, "YOU BASTARD! I HAD A SHITTY SPRING BREAK! WHILE YOU WERE OUT THERE HAVING SEX WITH SOME UNDERGRAD Nymph named 'Bambi' (or 'Chuck'), I WAS AT..." Pathmark.

No, I didn't choose to go to my local Pathmark for Spring Break, I work there. Pathmark is an "interesting" place if you consider arguing with 2,000-year-old women interesting. I find it to be a drag. For example, I had this one 2,000-year-old named Mrs. Wilma Bartleberry Jones McDufl Scribner Herbert Walker Bush, who was just so incredibly annoying, most of my actual hair fell off of my actual head. Here is the ACTUAL (sorta) transcript of what went on:

Me: "Hello, welcome to Pathmark.
Would you like paper or plastic bags?"
Mrs. Wilma Bartleberry Jones McDufl Scribner Herbert Walker Bush: "(screaming)
WHAT?! (This went on for 120 more times.)"
Me: "Hello, welcome to Pathmark.
Would you like paper or plastic bags?"
Mrs. Wilma Bartleberry Jones McDufl Scribner Herbert Walker Bush: "YOU STUPID FUCKING OLDHAG FROM HELL! WHY THE HELL DID YOU EVER COME HERE, YOU SATANIC GRANNY FROM COCYSU(LS)!! YOU ARE MAKING MY LIFE A LIVING HELL!!! I HATE YOU! TRUCK HITS YOUR HOUSE WHILE YOU'RE THERE MAKING SATANIC KNIT THINGIES!! DIE!! DIE!!! DIE!!!!!!"

(At this moment I picked her up, stuffed her in a paper (with plastic) bag, and threw her out of the store. Everyone on my line applauded me, and my manager named me "Associate of the Month.")

Now, if only had to deal with Satanic old-women from HELL, life would be good. Real good. Like when you wake up in the morning and you realize that you can sleep an extra hour. That good. But NO, NEVER!!! Not in Pathmark. To add to the aggravation, management discovered another device about as BAD as Mrs. WilmaBartleberry Jones McDufl Scribner Herbert Walker Bush: The PA System.

"Right now we have Pursue(TM) Fresh-Roasted chickens for $1.59 a pound!! Buy a cart-load today!!!" When one first hears this phrase, it seems like nothing at all, none-the-less something evil. But, multiply that by 13,478,238.12 and square it, and find the sine and...sorry, I got carried away. The point that I'm trying to make is that after the 100th time, it's like Chinese water torture. After hearing...

"Buy a cart-load TODAY!!" I was about to wig-out. At repetition number 523, once again, flipped out. I found the bag with Mrs. Wilma... and thrashed it. Pathmark.

Three ways to beat the high cost of college.

1. The Montgomery GI Bill
2. Student loan repayment
3. Part-time income

The Army Reserve Alternate Training Program is a smart way to pay for college. First, if you qualify, the Montgomery GI Bill can provide you with up to $50,840 for current college expenses or approved vet/tech training. Second, if you have—or obtain—a qualified student loan not in default, you may get it paid off at the rate of 15% per year or $500, whichever is greater.

Red Hawks win five games in last at-bat during 9-3 Spring Break tour

by Keith A. Ide

Initially, the MSC softball team struggled during its annual Spring Break trip to Florida. Prior to embarking on the seven-day, 12-game excursion, the Red Hawks had not played outdoors at all due to the inclement weather in this area.

They needed time to adjust.

Softball

But once they settled into a comfort zone, MSC was able to put its 2-3 start behind and went on a seven-game tear, during which the Red Hawks outscored their opponents 52-19. (See chart to the left.)

Overall, MSC won five of its games on the trip in its last at-bat.

Head coach Anita Kubicka was relieved that MSC was able to leave the Sunshine State winning nine of its first 12 games, which included seven opponents that were nationally ranked in the Division III pre-season poll.

"It was one of those trips that could have easily put us at 6-6," said Kubicka. "But putting together the streak we did at the end of the trip showed that this team has a lot of character, drive and determination."

The Red Hawks hit .358 as a team during which the Red Hawks outscored their opponents 52-19.

MSC makes strides despite trip record

Carlon hurt as Red Hawks go 5-3 in North Carolina-Virginia games

by Brian Falzarano

Being away from home would be an experience for most. An experience of growth, maturity, and prosperity. Or conversely, it could also be an experience of horrific proportions.

MSC's trip was actually successful in that they finished above .500 (5-3, 6-4 overall). Nothing can ever be taken for granted between the white lines. The only things you can count on are that there are nine players in the field and that it will be a contest every time out.

Baseball

The Red Hawks are a testament to that last sentence. Their North Carolina trip could be deemed a success because of those guidelines.

"Overall, I think you have to be pleased because of the competition we played," said Schoenig. "Six and four is certainly an acceptable record."

Their most recent contest was against Virginia Wesleyan this past Saturday. MSC dropped that game, 10-5, but the loss itself was overshadowed by John Carlon's performance.

Carlon, a sophomore who was 6-0 last year, dropped to 1-2 on the year. He was taken out after two-thirds of an inning (four hits and five runs, two of them earned) due to tendinitis in his rotator cuff.

Serious? Not really. It will not hinder him for the rest of the year. Nonetheless, precautionary measures will be taken on the fourth Red Hawk pitcher to experience arm trouble (Chris Rampone, George Salinovich, and Drew Yocum were the others).

"After he threw (in the bullpen), he thought he'd be able to go," said Schoenig of Carlon, who experienced a twinge in the shoulder while throwing on the side on March 19. "He wasn't real sharp, but he thought he could go."

Carlon will throw on the side starting next Tuesday and will get back on the mound on the following Friday or Saturday. However, he will not be brought back until league play said Schoenig.

Carlon said he was in pain, but hoped to be back against NJAC rival William Paterson on April 8.

"Towards the end of the trip was when we really started to click. I hope, hopefully, that will carry over into this weekend (MSC-Kean Softball Classic on Friday and Saturday)."

O'Meara knocked in a team-high 15 runs, went 18-for-34 and has a .538 on-base percentage.

"I think that I want it more this year than I did last year," said O'Meara. "Also, last year I was just DH'ing. Now that I'm playing the field (center), I'm into the game more."

In the MSC softball team's case, it was good for nine wins during its annual spring tour of Florida, thanks largely in part to the offensive production of seniors Kristi Kuchinski and Keri O'Meara.

Kuchinski still sees room for improvement, though.

"I think that numbers can be deceiving because we were a little inconsistent," she said. "But the hitters in front of me have been doing a good job and having Keri hitting behind me takes away some of the pressure."

Kuchinski, O'Meara tandem sparks softball to hot start

by Keith A. Idee

More often than not, when a team's No.3 and No. 4 hitters both bat .529 over a 12-game span, it's going to translate into a lot of victories.

Senior Kristi Kuchinski (left) and Keri O'Meara (right), were instrumental in leading the Red Hawks to seven straight wins and nine wins overall during MSC's trip to Florida.

Can Earvin perform "Magic" again for struggling Lakers?

Showtime is back at the Great Western Forum. Temporarily, at least. "I know it's going to be for a month, anyway," said the man with the million-dollar smile.

That wasn't exactly reassuring for Laker fans, nor was it what owner Dr. Jerry Buss probably wanted to hear.

Thus, the uncertainty of his commitment is the most unnerving thing about Magic Johnson's appointment as Los Angeles Lakers' head coach last week.

Sure, Magic will bring the celebrities and others back to Inglewood to fill those suddenly-empty 6,000 seats and to check out at best a mediocre bunch. There will be some sellouts (possibly all) for the few remaining home games. But that in itself will not restore the interest and faith that were once so vital to Laker basketball.

Magic, who led the Lakers to five NBA Championships, will be able to motivate his players by demanding their best and nothing else, just as he did as the best point guard to ever step on a basketball court. No one is questioning that.

Yet, that too will not be enough.

What guys like Doug Christie, George Lynch, Vlade Divac, Nick Van Exel and Elden Campbell need, is someone who will stick around and help them become winners again. In the four seasons since Pat Riley left town, the Lakers have had three coaches (Mike Dunleavy, Randy Pfund and Johnson). The revolving door must be nailed shut.

So, if Magic isn't willing to be the Lakers' coach for more than a month, that he never should have taken the job. After all, fulfilling Buss' fantasies should not come at the organization's expense. That is, of course, if Buss is interested in making the Lakers contenders again.

If he is willing to remain for the long haul, then the Lakers are in business. Magic is a proven winner with a tremendous amount of knowledge of the game. Those are key ingredients that make a good coach.

However, let's play Devil's advocate for a second.

Doesn't Quinn Buckner know a lot about basketball and winning? Yup. Can he coach worth a lick? Apparently not. Jamal Mashburn and Jimmy Jackson will be the first to attest to that.

The point is that hiring a coach at this level that has absolutely no coaching experience could backfire.

But Magic's situation is unique because the fans will tolerate the growing pains, simply because he's Magic. For a little while, anyway.

The real question that will be answered soon enough is: Will Magic be able to handle not being the best for a change, knowing that he will have to take a game into his own hands with strategy and not physical ability?

also pitched well, collecting three wins in four decisions. She returned with an impressive 1.29 ERA and gave up only 17 hits in 21 innings.

Warnock turned in her most impressive performance in the team's last game in Florida when she tossed a three-hit complete game without allowing a walk in a 3-1 win over Allegheny College.

"I know it's going to be for a month, anyway," said the man with the million-dollar smile.

"I was very difficult for the pitchers to adjust from inside to outside," Kubicka said. "I think that was why there were so many walks and wild pitches in the first few games. But once they settled down and made adjustments, they pitched well."

The Red Hawks will need some of that superior pitching, along with some offensive punch in this weekend's MSC-Kean Softball Classic at the Quarry Fields beginning tomorrow and concluding on Saturday with the championship game at 3 p.m. The 10-team field features seven nationally ranked Division III teams, including MSC.

The condition of the fields will factor into whether the games are played as scheduled. Call the Red Hawks Sports Hot Line for up-to-date information at 655-7645.

tried to shovel his teammates out. Instead, he gave up a three-run homer to Kevin Rooks.

With the score 10-5 in the ninth inning, Chris Roof hit a liner into the alley in right-center with the bases loaded, but it was caught.

St. Andrew's, one of the two NAIA schools MSC came across on the trip, benefited from a three-run rally in the bottom of the ninth to overcome a 7-5 deficit for an 8-7 conquest over the Red Hawks on March 23.

Ralph Yezza, picking up where he left off last year, went 2-for-5, with three RBI, including a two-run fence-clearing shot to give MSC a 7-4 advantage. Keith Glauber, who won two games on the eight-game swing, suffered his first loss of the season after giving up all three runs in the ninth.

Although he was not too thrilled with the losses, Schoening was more disappointed with how his team lost. "The way those games transpired bothered me. The St. Andrew's game, we had won," the seventh-year coach said.

They bucked the trend of the previous game as Tony Martinez singled an inning and a third of hit-free ball. The St. Andrew's game, we had won," the seventh-year coach said.
