Wilcox leaving MSU for Georgia Tech

By Keri Dwyer
Staff Writer

Vice President for Student Development and Campus Life, Lee Wilcox will be leaving Montclair State University in early June.

Wilcox is scheduled to leave after serving Montclair State for three years and join the faculty at the Georgia Institute of Technology, commonly called Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

While at Montclair State, Wilcox has been in charge of overseeing many departments at the university. Those include Admissions, Campus Safety and Security, Dean of Students, Financial Aid, Registrars Office, Intra-Collegiate Academic Programs, Residence Life, and the Student Center. He has been responsible for the many programs within each department.

Wilcox has also acted as a liaison between the students and the administration. Wilcox would meet regularly with the Student Government Association President and try to represent student interests within the university administration.

Wilcox, who received his undergraduate degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y. and his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota, worked at Rensselaer for 14 years before coming to MSU to hold the position of Vice President for Student Affairs.

Once at Georgia Tech, he will assume the role of Vice President for Student Affairs. He will be responsible for overseeing many of the same departments as here at Montclair State. “It will be a new challenge at a world class university,” Wilcox said. “It will be a capstone experience for me. I have worked at technical universities and public universities and Georgia Tech is the country’s best technical public university. It seemed like a once in a lifetime opportunity.”

“Will be a tremendous loss,” said President Irvin Reid. He has the ability to organize and to be able to work toward a common goal,” said Reid. “I wanted someone who shared my vision of what student services should be. Dr. Wilcox shared my view of what student life should be. Taking the position at Georgia Tech was a very difficult decision for Dr. Wilcox but a wonderful opportunity. His contributions will be valued for many years to come,” said Reid.

“Losing Dr. Wilcox is like losing one of the biggest assets to this school,” John Cvelic, Student Government Association President, said. Rather, Take-A-Break did not deliver what they claimed. Rather, Take-A-Break constantly changed her and her sisters’ travel dates, abruptly canceled their flight home, and made them endure countless inconveniences.

She has hired a lawyer and intends to do all she can to retrieve the $600 she and her friends each had to spend to get flights home from other airlines after Take-A-Break canceled their flight home.

Apparent these blunders are not firsts for Take-A-Break, according to Jackie Bataista. “We are doing our best to serve Montclair students so we are making sure only Montclair students enter the labs,” said Bataista.

ID now required to use computer labs

By Kevin P. Hancock

Proof that you are an MSU student will now be required if you wish to use a campus computer lab in order to prevent non-MSU students from using them, said Charles Fraser of Academic Computing.

Prior to the change anyone could enter and use the services of MSU’s computer labs as no proof of enrollment was required.

The change comes after numerous complaints that MSU students were being prevented from using computers by people who do not even attend the university.

Suggestions by SGA legislators and complaints aired by students convinced Academic Computing to order lab assistants to start checking ID cards, said Director of Academic Computing, Clifford Gillman.

“Basically we were under pressure from the SGA and students that there were too many off-campus people using the labs,” said Fraser.

Lab assistants started requesting ID cards from students entering campus computer labs on Monday. If a student does not have their I-card with them, they can also log on to their Alpha Email account to prove they are an MSU student, said Fraser.

“We are doing our best to serve Montclair students so we are making sure only Montclair students enter the labs,” said Fraser.

Dream trip turns into nightmare for students

The sisters from Phi Sigma Sigma would like to send a big warning to all of Montclair State’s students - be cautious of what you read on the promotional flyers on campus.

The Phi Sigma Sigma sisters from Montclair State University, along with many other students from other universities, learned their lesson the hard way when a much anticipated spring break vacation to Bahamas turned to a disaster.

The company they learned about after reading a flyer they found on campus, Take-A-Break, promised them a great deal and a stress-free vacation, said Donna Batista, a sophomore travel and tourism major.

Batista is determined to fight back because Take-A-Break did not deliver what they claimed. Rather, Take-A-Break constantly changed her and her sisters’ travel dates, abruptly canceled their flight home, and made them endure countless inconveniences.

She has hired a lawyer and intends to do all she can to retrieve the $600 she and her friends each had to spend to get flights home from other airlines after Take-A-Break canceled their flight home.

Apparently these blunders are not firsts for Take-A-Break, according to Jackie Ruege and Kim Andreuzzi, who went to Panama City with Take-A-Break last spring break. Ruege said they their hotel was encircled by yellow caution banners and the pool was full of glass and beer cans.

For the Phi Sigma Sigma sisters, it will be a tremendous loss, said President Irvin Reid. He has the ability to organize and to be able to work toward a common goal,” said Reid. “I wanted someone who shared my vision of what student services should be. Israeli-Palestinian relations deteriorating

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu ceded nothing to Palestinians Wednesday as Mideast tensions appeared to be widening. Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat warned that the entire peace process was “in real danger.”

Relations between the two sides have deteriorated sharply since Israel decided last month to begin building a Jewish settlement in disputed East Jerusalem, triggering days of stone-throwing riots in the West Bank that continued Wednesday.

A Clinton administration official said Tuesday that the gobierno had run out of steam and ideas. After the unrest, an Israeli bus filled with civilians and Israeli soldiers overturned in the West Bank Wednesday after a firebomb was hurled at it. At least 13 people were injured. Two Palestinians died Tuesday in explosions that Israel said were botched suicide bombings aimed at Jewish school children. Two other Palestinians were shot dead by Israeli troops in the West Bank.

Netanyahu, speaking through adviser Shai Bazak, said Israel would not give in to Palestinian demands to stop building in East Jerusalem.

The comments came ahead of Netanyahu’s planned Monday visit to Washington for Middle East peace discussions with U.S. President Bill Clinton. Earlier reports indicated Netanyahu wasn’t planning to make the trip, but on Tuesday Clinton urged him to attend.

Major promising to cut taxes if re-elected

Prime Minister John Major on Wednesday promised low taxes and a hand-up for the have-nots as part of a 25-point platform for the May 1 election that he said would help make Britain the best place in the world to live.

Describing his election manifesto as the boldest any party had published since the ruling Conservatives took power in 1979, Major outlined a wide range of policies aimed at countering charges that his government had run out of steam and ideas.

Major tackled head-on the argument of Tony Blair, leader of the main opposition Labor party, that it was time for a change after 18 unbroken years of Conservative rule.

“It is time for a change. Time for a change to the next phase of Conservative prosperity that will give everyone — no matter who they are, where they live — more choice and more control over their lives,” Major told a news conference.

Buoyed by an opinion poll showing Labor’s lead had fallen to 14 percentage points, Major said the manifesto was being published against a backdrop of a booming Britain that could look forward to a prosperity undreamed of a few years ago.

The only new policy in the 56-page program encapsulated Major’s ambition to cut taxes and show that Labor does not have a monopoly on measures to help the less well-off.

Schoolchildren exposed to hepatitis through strawberries

Schoolchildren in six states may have been exposed to the hepatitis A virus by eating contaminated frozen strawberries that were shipped to school cafeterias. The processor and packer of the berries could face criminal charges, sources told CNN.

The United States Department of Agriculture, which provides surplus food to school lunch programs, distributed the berries.

Initial reports indicated 16 states and the District of Columbia might have received tainted strawberries and had been asked to “put a hold” on the fruit.

But on Wednesday, the USDA and the Food and Drug Administration said only six states received berries believed linked to an outbreak in Michigan because all bore the same lot number. Those states, in addition to Michigan, are Arizona, California, Georgia, Iowa and Tennessee.

Nine other states and Washington, D.C., received shipments from the same company, but the berries bore different lot numbers, the agencies said. Those states are Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Maine, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota and Wisconsin.

Prospective bomb trial juror condemns death penalty

The 13th prospective juror questioned in the Timothy McVeigh bombing trial cited Biblical texts when she told the judge and prosecutor Wednesday she could not condemn someone to die.

Questioning of candidates in the morning session of day three moved on at a quicker pace than the first two days of the trial’s first phase.

The 14th prospective, another woman, said she’s involved in a court fight to save her farm that will conflict with the trial. The 15th was a man, the seventh to be questioned.

The first prospect questioned Wednesday, juror No. 101, quoted the biblical story of how Christ told those about to stone an adulterer, “Let you who is without sin cast the first stone.” She told U.S. District Judge Richard Matsch, “I don’t feel capable of throwing that first stone.”

She said she believes there are crimes for which the penalty should be death, but only God can choose.

“Human judgment has angles and agendas and imperfections,” she said, “and I don’t feel I can condemn someone.”

“Now matter how I phrase this, you’re going to say you are unable to choose a death sentence?” federal prosecutor Pan Ryan asked after a series of questions designed to flesh out her views on capital punishment.

“Yes,” answered woman, a diabetic who works for IBM.

The latest Student Government Association meeting was highlighted by further discussion regarding the student strike on April 15. Also, the legislature passed two appropriation bills, as well as a Class Four charter. The legislature passed two appropriations for Gallery 3 1/2, a Class Three organization. The organization was granted money to hold a gallery opening and to cover the cost of a prize for a graphic design contest. On April 23, from 4:00 to 6:00 PM, the organization will be having a photography exhibit of pictures taken by students. The funds granted by the legislature will be used to cover photography and refreshments for the event.

The organization was also granted $100 for a prize for a contest in which students submit designs for a logo for the organization. In addition to the prize money, the winner will also have his or her design used as the official logo of Gallery 3 1/2. The logo will be used on all stationery and promotion materials for the organization. Lambda Theta Phi was granted a Class Four Charter for the academic years 1997-1998.

During the student open forum, at the beginning of the meeting, student Joseph Pater- noster brought forth concerns that the student protest on April 15 was not being planned and organized properly. Pater- noster claimed, "In order for this to work, ego's need to be set aside. We're students first, then SGA President and Legislator and nobody." Pater- noster said that the SGA needs to take better advantage of resources besides students. "If you contact parents, you'll get at least one lawyer and one accountant, and they'll be mad as hell." Pater- noster said that the event may not be as successful as hoped, due to the fact that when he contacted the office of the Governor, he was told that Governor Whitman had not even heard of the event.

Earlier, President Amy Fisher mentioned that she had spoken to Joan Ficke, and the response from the teacher's union seemed supportive of the students. Fisher further mentioned that the University Senate had unanimously voted down a proposal to support a tuition raise for next year. The organization was also granted $100 for a prize for a contest in which students submit designs for a logo for the organization. WILCOX, Cont. from p. 1

TRIP, Cont. from p. 1 sisters this spring break, things began to go wrong right from the start. Their vacation was scheduled to begin on Sunday, March 16, and they were to depart from Newark Airport on Sunworld Airlines. However, Take-A-Break moved their flight to Friday, March 14 due to problems from JFK airport in New York City. After arriving at JFK, a damper was put on their spirits when no one they asked had ever heard of Sunworld Airlines. After much confusion they were informed of their travel agency, Tropical Tours, that Take-A-Break had pushed the flight back to Sunday, because of "bad weather in the Bahamas." Batista recalls returning home and checking a newspaper to confirm Take-A-Break's excuse. She said, "When I checked the newspaper, it was 82 degrees (at Bahamas)."

But that was only the beginning. On their return home, they were originally scheduled to leave on Sunday, March 23 at 12 a.m., and then it was changed to March 23 at 5 a.m. At about 4:40 a.m. that morning, when it was time to board, someone got on the intercom and said that their flight was definitely canceled. About five minutes later, someone said, "Your flight is definitely canceled." The person then asked everyone to go back to their hotels.

Beth Reissig, an undeclared sophomore, was another sister on the trip. Her conversation with her mother on that morning of Sunday, March 23 indicated that Take-A-Break had canceled Batista and the others to believe that Take-A-Break knowingly told them an incorrect depar- ture time. Reissig's mother told her that she had already called Newark Airport the night before to find out the arrival times for the incoming flights from the Bahamas. Reissig's mother had discovered that there was no such flight scheduled to arrive at Newark.

Batista said that when that was announced, "people started crying, people started screaming, and everyone went nuts.

Since the girls did not know for certain whether they would have a flight home or not at the time, they bought tickets from other airlines to get to Newark. This is the expense Batista hopes to com- pensate for.

Cindy Loffa, a sophomore and a commercial recreation major, was one of the sisters who went on the trip. She was told from a travel agent she knows that the reason why there was so much trouble getting flights to and from Bahamas was because TBA's plane, the AV Atlantic, had been grounded by the FAA because the 30 hour delay explains its absence from the schedule, an airport official said. It is not clear then why Take-A-Break did not inform their clients of this delay sooner.

Michelle Hanusi, a freshman studying early childhood education, is also a Phi Sigma sigma sister, who went on the trip along with Jalinda Briggs and Shil Cooperstein, also MSU stu- dents. They stayed behind to wait for the Take-A-Break charter flight to come in, and it took 41 hours for it to arrive, Hanusi said. She and the others were sent back to their hotels, and were provided with drinks but no food. Luckily, she and her friends had enough money to buy something to eat.

They finally got their flight home at 10 p.m. on Mon- day, when it should have been at 5 a.m. on Sunday. The pilot on the flight said a problem with the plane caused the de- lay, but Hanusi was forced to miss her classes on Monday and Tuesday because of the in- convenience.

Other problems they faced ranged from an unkempt hotel to lost luggage. Jackie Ruege, a senior and a history education major, explained that once they finally arrived at the Bahamas, they were taken to an orientation at Take-A-Break's office at the Bahamas. There, the clients would be told the details of their trip, such as their itinerary. It was about 3:30 a.m., and to make matters worse they were not going to be told anything until the next plane flew in, because they did not want to repeat the speech.

The Towne Hotel, where they were staying, had prob- lems of its own. The bathroom doors and windows were broken, and there was construction right across the street. Ruege said, "The pool was the size of a Write for the News Section! e-mail: hancockk@alpha.montclair.edu

In Memory of Yvonne Charmion Collins

BY SUZY CINEUS
THE BLUE AND WHITE FAMILY

Yvonne Charmion Collins was born March 4, 1974 in Atlanta, Georgia. She is the beloved daughter of Rev. Henry C. Collins and Patricia Ann Paden. Yvonne attended Public Schools in Tallahassee, Florida, Lawrenceville and Willingboro, New Jersey. She is a 1992 graduate of Willingboro High School where she was an honor roll student and cheerleader.

Upon graduating from Willingboro High School, Yvonne won many academic and extracurricular awards. In September 1992 she began Pre-med studies in the Health Careers program at Montclair State University. She was completing her last semester for the Degree of Bachelors of Science.

On the morning of March 10, 1997 Yvonne was found unconscious and was rushed to Rancocas Hospital. Doctors determined that she had internal bleeding in the brain. On March 14, 1997, Yvonne was pronounced as deceased.

Yvonne was a loving person who tried to bring love into the lives of everyone she touched. She gave the greatest gift, LOVE. Her radiance will surely be missed on earth, but God will surely enhance her radiance in Heaven.

A Tribute

May 16, 1997 - Commencement ceremonies will take place. Caps will be thrown, balloons will be raised accompanied by shouts of rejoicing from graduates, friends, family, siblings and sighs of relief escape from the lips of parents and spouses. So it will go from every department except for one, the Biology Department. This is not to say that they will not rejoice, not at all. They will reflect and remember their dear friend and classmate Yvonne Collins. When the Biology Department stands, watch them. They will stand a little bit taller because they have lost and this had made them appreciate what they have gained.

Their hearts are all beating under their gowns in anticipation. Unfortunately, for all that were blessed to know her, they realize that one heart is missing. One heart has ceased. Yet her spirit, her memory, and her laugh lives on. This is why the Biology Department and the Health Careers Program students will stand taller, because Yvonne is with them. I have witnessed the power of Yvonne or "Tweety" as we call her. She has bridged the gap between race, color, and majors to bring together persons who would have never spoken before. She has also solidified the union between those of us who are sisters and brothers. I, WE, personally thank you for allowing us to experience the power of Yvonne or Tweety. You have broken us down only to build us up stronger and I thank you and love you for that. The Blue skies have gained a White star.

Drug arrests up on campuses

BY COLLEEN DEBAISE
COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

WASHINGTON—Drug arrests on college campuses have soared in recent years, but that's due to more strict enforcement than a growing number of users, say campus officials.

Drug arrests jumped 18 percent in 1995, marking the fourth year in a row with a double-digit increase in arrests, according to an annual survey of 500 colleges by the Chronicle of Higher Education.

There were 6,797 drug arrests and 15,208 arrests for alcohol violations, confirming campus officials' impressions that alcohol is by far the biggest substance abuse problem. Overall, however, drug arrests rose only about 1 percent from 1994.

The Chronicle survey found that incidences of other crimes dropped in 1995, which paralleled national trends. There were 15 murders, down from 16 in 1994; 1,038 robberies, down from 1,157; and 16,011 burglaries, down from 16,789.

But the number of sex offenses rose to 973, up from 955 in 1994.

Colleges that receive federal funds are required by the 1990 Student Right-to-Know and Campus Security Act to disclose campus crime statistics. For its survey, the Chronicle analyzed data from only the largest universities — those with more than 5,000 students.

Most of the drug arrests involving alcohol were slightly higher, the survey found.

Eleven colleges reported more than 100 drug arrests in 1995: Arizona State, Michigan State, Northern Arizona and San Jose State universities; Rutgers University at New Brunswick and the universities of Arizona, California at Berkeley, Maryland at College Park, Michigan at Ann Arbor, North Carolina at Greensboro, and Wisconsin at Madison.

The largest jump was at Northern Arizona, where drug arrests increased by 40 percent in 1994, then 70 percent in 1995.

But according to Larry Burnett, director of the university police department, the high numbers resulted from aggressive enforcement. By 1996, the number of drug arrests at NAU had dropped 23 percent.

"The first thing we did when we recognized there was an increase in alcohol and drug violations was involve the [campus] community," he said. A few

ALARMS:

3/25 - A fire alarm was triggered in Finley Hall. When the officers arrived, they found that the alarm was accidentally set off by a maintenance worker.

3/26 - A Bohn Hall resident set off the fire alarm after seeing some of her ex-boyfriend's friends in the dorm. She felt that they were there to harm her.

3/27 - Two false fire alarms were sounded in Bohn Hall. The first was caused by an activated pull station on the ninth floor, the second was a pull station on the eighth floor. The Clifton Fire Department responded to both alarms.

3/31 - A fire alarm was triggered in Mallory Hall by water leaking into a mechanical room shorting out an elevator panel. Many sink faucets were found running in the two of the food labs. Ceiling tiles were damaged in rooms on the first and second floor. The alarm system couldn't be reset, and the building was placed on a fire watch.

MEDICAL:

3/17 - A construction worker in Finley Hall was injured when an electrical box fell on his foot. He was transported to Mountainside Hospital by ambulance.

3/25 - A young boy cut his head on a door frame at the Psychological Education Center on Clover Road. First aid was given, and his mother took him to their family doctor.

3/26 - A woman fainted in the bathroom at the Du mont TV Center. She was suffering flu-like symptoms. She refused medical attention, and returned to her room in Bohn Hall.

3/26 - A Bohn Hall resident experienced chest pains and shortness of breath. She was brought by ambulance to St. Joseph’s Hospital.

3/30 - A Blanton Hall resident was injured when she moved a chair in her room. A splinter off of the chair stuck in her thigh. An EMT treated her at the scene.

4/1 - A Stone Hall resident cut his tow while walking barefoot in the stage area of the Speech Building. He refused medical attention.

THEFT:

3/25 - An art object was stolen from the first floor hallway of Calcio Hall.

3/26 - A 1987 Dodge Omni was stolen from Lot 23.

3/26 - A Stone Hall resident reported that money was taken from her desk drawer.

3/27 - A Blanton Hall resident had clothes stolen from a third floor laundry dryer.

3/27 - A Stone Hall resident reported money was missing from her desk for a second time.

3/31 - A Bohn Hall resident had two video games and some food stolen from his locked room after returning from Easter Break.

3/31 - A 1998 Honda was stolen from Lot 27.

CRIMINAL MISCHIEF/HARASSMENT:

3/25 - A pane of glass was broken near an inner hallway door in Richardson Hall. An overturned garbage can was on the floor nearby.

3/26 - Three female Clove Road residents received harassing and threatening phone calls.

3/26 - Male roommates received harassing phone calls over a three week period.

3/28 - A male saw spotted removing a parking sign from the ground, and a description of the man was obtained. The sign was later recovered inside an apartment hallway. The suspect couldn't be found.

3/31 - A man parked his 1995 Lexus in Lot 25 on March 27. When he returned home, his father found that the passenger side door lock was damaged.

3/31 - A Blanton Hall resident received harassing phone calls for the past three weeks.

OTHER:

3/15 (Arrest on warrant) - A vehicle was stopped for a motor vehicle violation on Quarry Road. Hernan Caques of Kearny was arrested on an outstanding warrant from Little Falls. He was transported to and left in the custody of the Little Falls Police Department.

3/20 (Assist other agency) - A passing motorist alerted officers to an accident on Clove Road at Route 46. Little Falls Police Dept. was contacted, and MSU officers assisted in traffic control.

3/24 (Assist other agency) - An officer gave Wayne Police Department with information on property stolen from MSU. Wayne PD arrested a male for the possession of the stolen property.

3/25 (Trespassing) - An ex-boyfriend of a Bohn Hall Resident refused to leave the dorm room. Her roommate called the police, but the suspect left the room before police arrived.

3/27 (Arrest on warrant) - Officers arrested Darrel Duval of East Orange on a warrant issued by the Little Falls Municipal Court. He was incarcerated in the Passaic County Jail after failing to make bail.

3/31 (CDS) - Officers went to Blanton Hall on a report of the odor of marijuana coming from a 3th floor room. When they arrived, no odor was present.

NO CLASSES WILL MEET ON THESE DATES.

THE EXAMINATION PERIOD BEGINS ON THURSDAY MAY 8TH, 1997.

years ago, Barnett started the Campus Safety Aides programs, in which students with police radios and mountain bikes patrol areas that police cars can’t reach.

“They’re a real strong deterrent to rapes and that sort of thing,” he said.

“The students have come across students smoking marijuana. They’re basically the eyes and ears of the police department.”

The 20 Campus Safety Aides are paid by the university, and those who are criminal justice majors can receive course credit. But Barnett, like other campus officials, reports that an increasing number of students are growing intolerant of their peers’ drug use. “We saw a significant increase in students reporting other students using drugs,” he said. There were 133 drug arrests in 1995, up from 78 the previous year, and many tips came from students sick of drug use in their dorms,” he said.

NAU also increased its police patrols during “peak hours” to crack down on offenders. Eight police officers now patrol the campus during the prime time for student parties, weekend nights from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m.

At University of Wisconsin at Madison, arrests rose from 99 in 1994 to 126 the following year. Campus officials say that’s because university police beefed up patrols of a parking lot where most of the drug activity seemed to originate.

Campus officials told the Chronicle that many kinds of campus crime can be linked to drug and alcohol use. “You are not as likely to get in a fight if you aren’t high,” Alan J. Lizotte, executive director of the Consortium for Higher Education Campus Crime Research at the State University of New York at Albany told the newspaper. “You’re not as likely to be raped. If you get rid of sellers, you get rid of unsavory characters and keep students from being victimized.”

At NAU, the university police department cracked down on drug and alcohol abuse with the idea that “we would be able to reduce the likelihood of sexual assault,” Barnett said. The number of reported rapes at NAU dropped from six in 1994, to two per year in 1995 and 1996.

The Chronicle cautioned that the data collected from the reports may understate campus crime. Many universities do not include crimes that are reported to officials other than the police—such as deans or counselors—even though the law requires them to do so, the Chronicle said. Also, the reports only include crimes that occur on campuses, the newspaper said.

Drug arrests jumped 18 percent in 1995, marking the fourth year in a row with a double-digit increase in arrests.

Health Fair emphasizes a new state of mind and body

BY VICTORIA TENGELIS
ASSISTANT CAMPUS LIFE EDITOR

My blood pressure is 126/72 and I am in average shape for a woman my age. I found this out at the Health Fair, which kicked off Wellness Week on Wednesday. Information on everything from high blood pressure to drug abuse was offered at the booths set up in the Student Center Ballrooms.

The Department of Health Professions, Physical Education, Recreation and Leisure Studies held a fitness evaluation and being a health conscious person I decided to see how I rate. There were many other students getting their fitness levels evaluated too. First they took my blood pressure which was pretty good; high blood pressure is 140/90 or higher.

Flexibility was the next test I found out that I am pretty inflexible. To test for this you have to sit on the floor with your legs straight forward and reach as far forward as possible; I could barely reach beyond my toes.

Next they did the test that every woman dreads, they made me get on a scale. This was traumatic. Anyway I weigh...Not! That was not half as bad as when they checked my body fat ratio.

After that they conducted the exercise part of the evaluation, I had to sign a release to participate (in case you I was to pass out). They checked my heart rate and blood pressure again and then I got on an exercise bike while two people in white lab coats proceeded to take my blood pressure and heart rate while increasing the workload. At this point I felt like a lab rat.

At the conclusion of the test they went over the results with me and helped me design an exercise program. After I left there I decided to get my strength tested at the YMCA's table, all that working out is not paying off as much as it should be.

I also decided to take many of the quizzes that were offered such as the temper test, unfortunately for my friends and co-workers I have a bad temper. This could cause very bad health affects not to mention what it will do to my social status. I also found out that I am extremely stressed (a fact I already knew) so I picked up some pamphlets on breathing techniques and meditation. According to the Wellness Index, based on a questionnaire given out by the Center for The Health Services and Wellness Programs, I am not very well either.

A lot of information on AIDS was available; the health and wellness center is offering anonymous HIV testing on Friday between 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. (by appointment only). I also found lots of information about stress management and relaxation techniques (I really need this). There was also information on drug abuse, smoking and alcoholism and places to go to receive help here on campus along with private facilities and programs.

Information on other health problems such as depression, anorexia and overeating were also available. A warning on the date rape drug Rohypnol (Roofies) was handed out by the Wellspring Program. Misuse by people when using Roofies could cause death and incidents of the drug slipped into a woman's drink to have her not remember a sexual assault have also been reported.

Some of the health insurance companies had representatives attend, such as Aetna and HIP Health Plan. Hospice Care, a nonprofit organization designed to help care for the terminally ill, also had a table at the fair. Other organizations represented included the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and Mountainside Hospital.

Also, there will be a blood drive on Monday, April 7, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., you don't need to register ahead of time, just stop in and donate.

I was very glad I attended the Health Fair, I received some important information on my health and how I can take better care of myself. There are many campus organizations that can help with any amount of problems that may occur in life. Diet and fitness are not the only important part of living healthy, state of mind has a direct impact on health and you may not even notice it.

A s the nation's number one killer, heart disease takes the lives of 940,00 Americans each year-claiming one out of every two deaths. American men face a 42 percent chance of developing heart disease. However, heart disease is not just a male health problem. Half of all heart attack deaths occur in women; and more women die of heart disease than from any other cause.

Many factors contribute to the risk of developing heart disease. High blood pressure, diabetes, and too much cholesterol in the blood all can play a role. College students beware! Many of you probably have R I S K (realize ignorance slowly kills) stamped across your foreheads. Consider the following point: In one minute it would take 45-50 beats of a well-conditioned heart to pump the same amount of blood as 70-75 beats of an inactive person's heart. This would add up to over 36,000 more beats per day for an inactive heart. That adds up to more than 13 million more times per year!

Up to 40% of all deaths due to heart disease are directly attributable to smoking. A smoker has double a non-smoker's risk of heart attack and is 70% likelier to die from it.

The truth is nothing changes a person's lifestyle, more drastically, than a heart attack. A few weeks ago, my friend nearly lost her father. She had the experience of touching her father's cold, lifeless body. To him the experience was something he "would never wish upon anyone." He has since stopped smoking and claims he will be able to "Run a 100-yard-dash faster than anyone of his daughter's friends."

We need a Features Editor for next year...come to the SC annex 113, Tuesday, April 8 @ 4p.m. and get involved!!!!

Did you know?

D id you know that during its all most ninety-eight years of existence, Montclair State University has gone through seven presidents including the present Dr. Irvin Reid? Did you also know that beside Dr. Reid, there was another black American who contributed to the advancement of the University?

Dr. David W. D. Dickson, the fifth president, was born of hard-working Jamaican parents in 1919 in Portland. "I was fat, lazy, and did not walk or talk until I was eighteen months old," said Dr. Dickson in his memoirs. At eighteen, he was considered an introvert with no real chance with the ladies. However, this born-introvert was later to enjoy four years of academic success at Bowdoin College as a debater, writer, and "winner of several speaking awards."

After his years at Bowdoin, he was accepted on scholarship and fellowship at Harvard University in 1941. He enrolled in the English Literature doctoral program. There, his Jamaican American background did not improve his lot with either the faculty or some of the students, who questioned his presence there and the few other students like him. But that did not discourage him. "Harvard gave us a splendid education. If none of us grew to love the place, we all deeply appreciated its intellectual splendor," he said. He graduated in 1948, after a brief interruption because of World War II.

After several posts as a professor at Michigan State University and Northern Michigan University, Dr. Dickson accepted the Presidency of Montclair State College in 1973. In his inaugural speech he delineated three conditions to honor a worthy college. The first was that an institution of higher education should have "an ultimate concern for truth" second, the institution should believe in "the wider human community" and third it should rejoice "in the abundant life of body, mind and spirit."

Our seventh president, who was considered at the time of his appointment in 1989 by The Montclarion as "hubbly, exciting, educated, funny, witty, and very cool," seem to share such a view. Montclair State, under his leadership has become a university and is ever increasingly opening its doors to students of all kinds, origins, and nationalities.
The Internet is no different than newspapers, magazines, TV, radio, etc., except that more people now have the opportunity to express their opinions publicly. Bomb recipes, terrorists, cults, and other weirdos all existed long before the rise of the net. This at least gives us a window through which to view them.

What about the news that doesn't make Dan Rather's list? A site called This Just In brings you the news you won't find in the mainstream press at http://internet-plaza.net/zone/newsthisjustin/index.html. The stories are meant both to inform and to catalyze debate on topics that might never receive any press, e.g., the use of BGH (Bovine Growth Hormone) by chemical and agribusiness giants to increase production. BGH was being used on the University of Wisconsin's own dairy herd. BGH-produced milk and dairy products were being served in the student union and university hospital, even though the FDA had not approved the drug for public use. Other topics covered by this site include Bosnia, Gay Rights, the environment, health care, and militias. See what you are missing!

It's about time in the semester for a good laugh. Comics du Jour, http://internet-plaza.net/zone/comics/, brought a smile to my face. They include Cafe Angst, Fisher, USS Utopia, and my favorite, Ozone Patrol. You deserve a break!

Did you complete that income tax form yet? I know, you'd rather write a paper on the history of lint. Alas, it must be done! Get some help from a list of essential do-it-yourself sites for the savvy taxpayer that's you, http://www.zdnet.com/yil/content/profit/invest/tax_prep.html. Hopefully this will make it a little less painful. I don't recommend visiting the IRS site, http://www.irs.teas.gov, unless you can do it early in the morning. We're talking five a.m. - eight a.m. A couple weeks ago I tried to download a form only to get a message that said, "The IRS ftp server can handle 1200 requests simultaneously. If you are reading this message it means that more than 1200 people are attempting to access this server." Early the next morning I was able to grab the form off the web in seconds. Timing is everything.

It is noted that last week the MSU Summer Session schedule was not yet available. I naturally checked the MSU home page - Summer Session link - ever the optimist that the info would be there. Dear Career Services...

Q I know the Career Fair is coming on April 8th. How can I get the most from it? I don't want to waste this opportunity.

A The Career Fair has something to offer everyone, but what you gain and how you should prepare depends upon where you are in your education. If you are choosing a major and/or your career direction use the Fair to gather information. In this case, approach the employer, introduce yourself and explain that you are making academic and career decisions and would like to learn more about his/her organization and the opportunities available.

If you are job hunting, however, get prepared ahead of time. For starters, come to Career Services and watch our videotape on career fairs to learn how to present yourself effectively.

In addition: 1. Come to Career Services to pick up the list of employers who are coming to the Fair and learn the kinds of positions that are available.

2. Decide which employers you want to meet before the Fair. 3. Research those companies/organizations you are really excited about. 4. Make sure your resume is ready. (If you have any questions regarding your resume, come to Career Services and have it critiqued before the Fair.)

At the Fair, Introduce yourself and ask questions such as: 1. How long before graduation should I send you a resume? 2. What kinds of skills and experience do you look for in the ideal candidate? 3. What kinds of jobs do liberal arts major s generally start out with? 4. How would you describe your organization's culture? 5. Rehearse your introduction before the Fair so that you will speak with ease. 6. Feel free to ask for a business card after you have spoken to the recruiter. If you've hit it off and have spoken for some time, it would be smart to send a note, thanking the recruiter for his/her time and the information provided.

Q Absolutely! Career Services now has Focus, a computerized career and educational planning system that will help you assess your interests, work values, and academic strengths and explore occupations, educational programs and career paths which can satisfy your interests and needs.

Focus is comprised of six phases which take between 10 and 20 minutes to complete. Each phase is designed to tackle different career questions dealing with various stages of career development and you can begin your exploration at whichever phase is appropriate for you. Focus automatically prints out your results which you can then discuss with your career counselor.

Although Focus doesn't have all the answers about your career future, it's a great place to start. To take advantage of this excellent new resource, stop by soon!

Since my senior year in high school, my life has been filled with dilemmas. At that time, I wasn't sure what college or university I would attend. Once I chose to pursue my education at Montclair State University, I wasn't sure what major I would enter. After I made the decision to major in Consumer Affairs, my next dilemma was what to do once I graduated. Since my major requires me to apply for Co-op, I thought this would be the perfect solution for my dilemma.

My first co-op position was at the NJ Division of Consumer Affairs, as the Special Aide to the Director. I assisted the director in handling monthly and fiscal year reports, assisted the Chief of Staff with the Elder Task Force, and attended many different board meetings.

Thanks to this experience, I was able to use my ability to network within my field.

My present co-op position, is at Rhyme Communications, as a Management Support Administrator. My duties at this company include handling telephone inquiries, customer service and light office duties.

Thanks to these two co-op experiences, I have gotten the chance to view two sides of the Consumer Affairs field; the governmental aspect of it (from the Division of Consumer Affairs) and the corporate aspect (from Rhyme Communications).

These two totally different views have now created another dilemma in my life! Both the Division of Consumer Affairs and Rhyme Communications have offered me positions after I graduate. This is a dilemma, however, that I gladly welcome!
The magical musical Pippin opens in the Studio Theatre tonight, Thursday, April 3. This song and dance story of a young man’s quest for self-fulfillment is loosely based upon the life of the eldest son of Charlemagne, the emperor of the Holy Roman Empire in the eighth century.

Under the creative direction of guest artist and MSU faculty member, Jim Ligon, the show takes off with the high energy performances of the chorus in the opening number, led by Juliane Blake and James Tabeek in the roles of the Lead Players. Traditionally cast as one male Lead Player, Ligon puts his signature on this Tony Award-winning musical by double casting the Lead Player as a man and woman team.

Ligon’s untraditional casting concept works well and compliments the show by making it visually and contextually stronger. However, because the musical numbers are written for a male voice, the addition of a female voice created a vocal challenge for Blake.

Although forced to sing out of her range, Blake does a tremendous job of magically pulling off the challenge of Ligon’s concept and pairs up well with James Tabeek as the husband and wife team who run the show. Both Blake and Tabeek are talented dancers and all around terrific performers.

Michael J. Aquino does an “extraordinary” job in the title role of Pippin. Although his physical comedy was slightly contrived, his lyrical delivery in his musical numbers was first rate. In particular, “Corner of the Sky” and his duet with Alicia Williams as Catherine in “Love Song” were delivered with great lyrical emotion.

Alicia Williams is cast well in the role of Catherine as the widow with a son (played by local Maddie Garber) who “restores Pippin’s faith in life” and compliments Aquino with her beauty and fine singing voice.

Other fine performances are turned in by Victoria Elizabeth Cozzolino as Pippin’s mother, Fastrada and Tim Wright in the role of Charles, Pippin’s father. Wright has a terrific booming voice that commands the stage while Cozzolino is an all around professional in every aspect of her performance.

The chorus of players added great energy to the show with terrific improvisations and the outstanding choreography of John Henry Rew. Rew does a professional job of polishing the show with his innovative choreography.

MSU faculty member Eric Diamond does a fine job in his musical direction and highlights the show with his finely tuned musicians and terrific blending of the chorus in the song, “Morning Glow.”

The entire production glows with the beautiful lighting design of MSU student Shawn Robinson. Robinson illuminates the mood of each scene with subtle amber silhouettes and a variety of interspersed hues and shades.

MSU alumna Jennifer Larsen adds sensual texture to the production with her colorful costumes.

Pippin, a finely crafted production is a creative and magical night of entertainment worth seeing.

Performances run April 3-5, 10-12 at 8 p.m. with matinee shows, April 6 and 11 at 2 p.m. Additional shows have been added Saturday April 5 at 2 p.m. and Wednesday, April 9 at 8 p.m.
Eknoh: a dangerous combination

Death Stars must not come cheaply, but I guess the evil Galactic Empire is just loaded. By the opening of the third installment of the original Star Wars Trilogy, which was re-released March 14th, Darth Vader and his Imperial pals are more than half done with a brand spanking new station of destruction just ready to wreak havoc on the Rebel Alliance. Thankfully, the Rebels have a fine assortment of new ships, blasters, and a legion of furry new allies, as well as some truly stunning CGI effects with which to combat the new threat. The final act of the Star Wars Trilogy Special Edition follows the footsteps of A New Hope (Star Wars) and The Empire Strikes Back with a impressive selection of new scenes, digital effects, and re-mastered sound, all ready to blow away the audience. Unfortunately, the new goodies have to take second place to the truth gnawing at every Star Wars fan’s gut for years... Jedi simply can’t compete, story and character-wise, to its two predecessors.

Star Wars introduced the main characters of this trilogy to us, as any good first act of a play would. Empire took those characters to incredible heights of drama and appeal. However, Jedi, with the exception of Mark Hamill’s Skywalker and David Prowse/James Earl Jones’ Vader, there seems to be little or no character development at all. Han Solo (Harrison Ford), arguably the most dynamic and realistic persona of the first two stories, is placed in the position of a second-string character, simply leading a couple of camouflage lackeys through a forest (and it’s too bad being frozen in carbonite makes you gain twenty pounds, miraculously changes the color of your pants, and makes you boring). Princess Leia (Carrie Fisher) takes the news that she French-kissed her brother several times too lightly, and Lando Calrissian’s (Billy Dee Williams) beer belly speaks volumes about how many Colt 45s he has been guzzling while on Tatooine. Even the plot leaves much to be desired, compared to the others, as it is just a variation on A New Hope: Find big space station, blow up big space station. Moreover, following the broadened appeal of the second movie, Lucas saw fit to try to expand the audience (and his paycheck) even further by aiming at a younger audience via the addition of the Ewoks, furry little half-Wookies that many fans consider the worst aspect of any incarnation in the Star Wars universe.

There are many good points to Jedi which, fortunately, help to balance out the plot holes and lack of character development. The new “Jedi Rocks” musical number in Jabba the Hutt’s palace, is incredibly realistic, even if cheesy in subject matter. Star Wars creator George Lucas’ technicians at Industrial Light and Magic (ILM) outdid themselves with this scene. It is one of the first times that a completely CGI character meshes properly with its background. (The original Star Wars Special Edition’s Jabba just seemed too brightly lit for the surroundings he was supposed to be in.) Sy Snoodles and the rest of the Max Reebo band, however, work beautifully insofar as they really feel like a part of the scene, and don’t stick out like a Wampa in the Mos Eisley Cantina. The other great feature of Jedi is its revamped ending, which gives the audience glimpses of the celebration of the Empire’s downfall, albeit curiously premature in this writer’s opinion, over three planets: Tatooine, Bespin, and even the Imperial homeworld of Coruscant (which bears a striking resemblance to Batman’s Gotham City), all courtesy of the aforementioned ILM.

Finally, it must be said that even though Jedi doesn’t exactly stack up against the first two Star Wars installments, it is by no means a bad movie. It is still exceptional compared to most sci-fi flicks. The space battle at the end, now over 14 years old, still blows away most sfx shots today. It is only to say that it was hard to measure up to its big brothers. After all, it is Star Wars - even if it’s bad, it’s still pretty good!

Until the next installment, may the Force be with you.
When We Were Kings soundtrack, a rousing review

BY JEFF EHRUCH
AST. SPORTS EDITOR

W hen Erin Perry, our Arts Editor, was going through her collection of unreviewed compact discs, I was sitting in a chair near her. She was asking people if they wanted to review anything and, since I am always eager to try anything, I listened to her. She named bands that nobody has heard of and music that I would have to be very drunk to enjoy. Until, that is, she mentioned the original motion picture soundtrack to When We Were Kings (Gramercy Pictures). I jumped at the opportunity to review the disc because I had been meaning to buy since its release on February 11. As a sports writer for the Montclarion, this is the perfect CD for me to review.

I am a huge sports fan and feel I know a lot about sports history. But, until I watched a special on television, I didn’t know about “The Rumble in the Jungle” and what it meant for the sporting world. After listening to the CD and reading the production notes, I have come to an even better understanding.

In 1974, Muhammad Ali fought George Foreman in Zaire, Africa. Africa was a place that few Americans knew anything about. In fact, Spike Lee, one of the film’s narrators, said, “There was a time when you’d call a black person ‘African,’ you’d better be ready to fight.” Muhammad Ali’s arrival in Zaire changed all that. Ali was brash, outspoken, and always said exactly what was on his mind.

Foreman, on the other hand, was quiet and few knew anything about him except that he destroyed Ken Norton and Joe Frazier in second round knockouts. Ali went into the fight as an underdog, and came out a true champion. During the six weeks that Ali was in Africa before the fight, black people all over the world felt a sense of pride that few have ever felt before. Ali was the man who served as the catalyst to this new ‘black pride.’ I do not want to get into the details, but I will mention the movie Crossroads when you hear this one.

The next 13 tracks are all taken from the three day music festival that preceded the fight. It includes the song by Bill Withers, “Ain’t No Sunshine” that reminds me of a cross between Bob Marley and Richie Havens. Then there is a wonderful bluesy track by B.B. King called “Sweet Sixteen” that is straight Chicago blues, pure and simple. For a fan of the blues, such as myself, this song represents what the blues is all about, slide bar and all. Later in the disc another B.B. King number is heard that may be even better than the first. You will surely be thinking of the Mississippi Delta sound and the movie Coming Home when you hear this one.

Also included on the album is the James Brown classic, “Gonna Have a Funky Good Time” and two songs by the Spinners, “I’ll Be Around” and “I’m Coming Home.”

Sandwiched in between these 13 songs are sayings and poems by Ali such as, “If you think the world was surprised when Nixon resigned, wait till I kick Foreman’s behind!” and “Only last week, I murdered a rock, injured a stone, hospitalized a brick. I’m so mean, I make medicine sick.” Other Ali classics included on the album are, “I’d like to tell the children of the world, quit eating so much candy. I have three rotten teeth, and they’re bad. I have to have one of them pulled. I can’t chew my food like I should. Eat natural foods because we must whip Mr. Tooth Decay.”

Ali concluded, “Last night, I cut the light off in my bedroom; hit the switch and was in the bed before the room was dark.” These “Ali-isms” are, in my opinion, what makes this album so different, and so much better than any other.

This album is the perfect mix of sports and music. Even if you are not a sports fan and could care less about Ali, and the social consciousness of America, this soundtrack will inspire you to do so.
We Want you

A message to Madam Ant: Here’s what black people would do

We are writing in response to Madam Ant’s last two articles. We suppose that she thinks her articles are supposed to conjure up sympathy for African Americans. Do not get us wrong, we are sympathetic to the plight of the African Americans. We are also sympathetic to the plight of Jewish Americans, Mexican Americans, Asian Americans, etc. Madam Ant seems to think that by making racial slurs, she is successful in getting her point across. How can she infer that by perpetuating racist ideas, that she will convince others to feel sorry for her?

Madam Ant stated that, "...what would black people say if Hallmark made cards showing black people smiling and saying Happy Martin Luther King Day?" She also asks what would black people say if we were referred to as 'niggers' or portrayed as “watermelon eating” individuals. If Madam Ant would stop whining like a spoiled child and pay attention, she would know there are no "What ifs." Black people have been called niggers in the past and are called niggers today. If Madam Ant checked old newspapers or films, she would see that black people were portrayed as docile, happy, watermelon eating people. Even today, some people probably think that black people do not speak properly and need ebonics to understand a word they say.

Madam Ant wonders what we would say (in response to ignorant stereotypes), as African Americans we would not waste our energy saying anything. We would prove those stupid misconceptions wrong. We would not disparage other races nor insult people with racist remarks to make those egos larger. We would, however, protest these stereotypes with action. We would not cry and sit on our behinds waiting for the ACLU to come to our rescue.

It also seems that Madam Ant has a vendetta against black people. In at least three articles whenever she has a problem, she loves to wonder: "What would black people do?"

We also would like to know what university Madam Ant attends. We would like to find out more about this school with the "plethora of courses dealing with Afrocentricity."

A letter from the SGA president on the tuition increases and "Strike the Hike"

Guess what... tuition is going up again. MSU's students continue to pay substantially more (28 percent since 1992) each academic year for an education that was once more alluring because of its affordability.

Most students don't see a reflection of their increases tuition in their own experience at MSU; making impossible to justify any increase much less that of 9.8 percent (expected for the academic year 1997-8).

Funding from the state isn't equaling the percentage of revenue that it once did. This puts state at a disadvantage. It becomes the responsibility of the Board of Trustees and the president to meet the financial obligations of the institution regardless of state aid. We would be better off to include the Board of Trustees and President Reid to join us in our quest to have the state prioritize affordable and quality education. However, if the Board and the President are so eager to close gaps in their budget with tuition increases, they become part of the problem and not the solution.

On Monday, March 31, 1997, I drafted a letter to President Reid asking him to continue his support for affordable education by pledging to students that they will not receive a tuition increase beyond that of 4 percent.

On April 10, all students are invited to represent the student body as a whole to once again ask President Reid for his support in preventing such an unreasonable tuition increase. April 15 is the student's and faculty's opportunity to voice their concerns about higher education. If Reid pledges his 4 percent increase, he will be invited to stand with us as we send a message to the state. However, if he chooses not to and does not guarantee the 4 percent maximum increase, he and the Board of Trustees will become the focus of our attention.

Hopefully, by placing pressure on the President and Board of Trustees, this will remind them of their responsibility as administrators of this university to lobby for increased state aid and evaluate their own operating budgets, programs, and other financial obligations.

Students have sat back while the school has more readily used their money to support their own spending. President Reid asked the College Senate to back a tuition policy that would rely more heavily on tuition as a means of revenue. The Senate voted this down. It's the students time to take a stand. It's our turn to let President Reid know that we can't afford these increases anymore; that he and his committee need to start looking elsewhere for revenue. On both April 10 and 15, students will be asked to protest against tuition increases.

It is also important to consider the state message that affordable education must be a priority in the state of New Jersey as well as this county as a whole. If April 15 adopts and internal focus, Kean College on April 17, will be organized as a protest directed to state.

All state college students will be invited as well as faculty and administrators.

Regardless of one's political affiliations, we all have the same concern; affordable higher education. Some need to take responsibility. If President Reid chooses to support us, by minimizing the tuition increase to that of 4 percent, he can join us on the state level to continue to address the education issues. No matter what the circumstances are, students need to unite and fight for the same objective; quality and affordable education.

Come out and show your support!

A Spring Break Horror Story

Take-A-Break, remember that company name, because there are a few MSU students who will never forget it. This story sounds like a bad 80s movie but, unfortunately, it is true.

Some MSU students decided to go to Bahamas for spring break and hooked up with the Take-A-Break company. As many of you know, there are plenty of these tour/package vacation deal-type companies on any college campuses across the country — and most of them are reputable businesses. Take-A-Break is not one of them.

First, the scheduled flight to the Bahamas for the girls was changed three times. The second time they were told that it was due to bad weather in the Bahamas. However, when one of the girls checked the paper that day she found that the temperature in the Bahamas that day was 82 degrees.

After the ladies finally did arrive in Bahamas their problems only got worse. Some individuals had their luggage sent to other destinations, and all were wore out before the break even began. However, they experienced the displeasure of staying at the Towne Hotel which, not to be outdone by the airplane, was a horror show. The bathroom and windows were broken around construction going on across the street. Also, according to one of the night-time survivors, "The pool was the size of a bathtub and you had to avoid debris with your swan." And to add a final insult to injury, the hotel miscalculated the severity of the vacation and tried to kick the girls out two days early.

Last was the trip back home. The flight was delayed and, ultimately, canceled. Since the women had already checked out of their hotel, they had nowhere to go and many of them were forced to buy their own tickets. Others returned to the hotel where they were given drinks but no food. After returned home to New Jersey, the girls found out two disturbing things.

First, one girl's mother had called the airline and found out that the plane from the Bahamas had already been canceled. This leads the ladies to believe that they were purposely misled. Second, according to another travel agent, the reason there was so much trouble with the flight was due to the fact that Take-A-Break's plane had been grounded by the FAA because they had denied.

There is no doubt that Take-A-Break is a disreputable company. However, a simple background check, even on this campus, should have been done by the potential customers — and maybe this incident could have been avoided. And to that end, may the SGA can setup a better business bureau-type committee where students report on the good and bad companies they have dealt with, so other students will be warned.

In any case, one thing is certain: if Take-A-Break comes around again, be sure to tell them to Take-A-Hike.

NJCWW offers ways to fight water pollution

Last week several articles were published in various newspapers informing the public that an estimated million gallons of raw sewage was discharged into a Passaic River tributary. Publicized incidents such as this raise concerns about water pollution in our urban rivers. This is not the only occasion that discharge has occurred and it does not just take place in Newark. Working in Paterson as an Americorps member with New Jersey Community Water Watch (NJCWW), I am aware of much smaller raw sewage discharges into the Passaic River from an antiquated combined sewer outflow system that the city is working to fix. NJCWW works to improve and raise awareness about urban water quality issues by educating children and adults about water pollution, stream walking, and organizing river cleanups. There are many ways to get involved. Any concerned citizens may report an emergency pollution incident to the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (NJDEP) Emergency Hotline at (609) 292-7172. As a group or individual, you may register with the NJDEP as a Water Watch group member and adopt a piece of the river to keep an eye on. You can also attend one of the cleanups organized by NJCWW. I urge you to get involved.

Wendy Cooling, Americorps member

A letter from the editor...

Still looking for a way to make your resume stronger? Want experience in writing, editing, and newspaper production? Here's your chance. The Editorial section needs an editor, assistant editor, and writers for the 1997-8 academic year.

No experience is necessary - we can train you in all aspects of the job. But you have to decide soon: Elections for positions are Tuesday, April 8th at 4 p.m. in the Montclarion office in the Student Center Annex, room 113. For more information on the positions, contact me at 655-7731 or send email to navettaj@alpha.montclair.edu. This is a great opportunity - don't miss out on it!

Editorial Editor

P.S. All current writers who have submitted five columns or more are eligible to vote in this election. Come to the meeting on Tuesday or contact me ASAP to get information on absentee ballots.
The Examined Life
by Jean-Marie Navetta

I'm becoming increasingly disgruntled with a lot of people here. And it's more than the "little things" like the fact that I can't see to get my AP English credit adjusted and as a senior I may not graduate due to some lack of an English Comp. class. It's the bigger things that have gotten under my skin. Big things, like the fact that the students of MSU are supposed to strike in about two weeks, and aside from the fact that the SGA has planned a barbecue, sent a letter to President Reid telling him to not raise tuition more than 4 percent or else, and planned on inviting lots of TV people to tape our alleged protest, nothing has happened. Or at least nothing that amounts to much in the scheme of having a strike. So let's take this slowly. For anyone who isn't totally clear, the definition of strike, according to Webster's is: "a work stoppage by a body of workers to enforce compliance with demands made on an employer." OK. So students really aren't workers, per se, but we can handle that. What I'm trying to point out is the fact that there are demands made on the employer. But that means more than just saying that we want no more than a 4 percent increase to be imposed on us. It means saying this and also providing ways to make it possible so our demands are not only sensible, but also ones which we can prove can be met. And we're in the position to do this. As the students who need to foot the tuition bill, we're free to dictate what needs to happen on this campus. More importantly, we also are in the position to say what needs to be said: that more services need to be privatized, that contracts for services should be on a short-term basis to ensure that if a company isn't doing its job, it can be removed from MSU quickly, and that unions should not protect antiquated positions. It's costing the university efficiency and the students money to maintain people who can be replaced with automation and technology.

Students also need to get copies of the state and the university budgets and read them. As I've mentioned before, the state budget is on-line and easy to read. Copies of the university budget will be provided to you if you ask for them. But you have to ask. Despite all the great technology out there, paper work still can't get us up and walk to you if you just think about it. And perhaps the SGA leadership should take this very unfortunate reality under advisement. I met with President Reid this week and he answered several questions about the proposed increases that the SGA could not. While I don't think that we both see entirely eye-to-eye on how things should be done, I learned a little more. And I also got a abbreviated copy of the FY '97 budget for MSU. Perhaps this is something that all you ready-to-protest students out there should get a hold of. In it, you'll see that the expenditures for "research" almost doubles in 1997. And that "support staff salaries" increase by about $2000. However, the amount of money allotted for "student services" decreases from $9,176 to $9,020. That's a reduction in goodies for students. And this is in a year in which a 10 percent hike is being proposed for those same students. This sure looks like something to protest. But this wasn't something that I got from the SGA. I found it myself.

And before the SGA proposes to march off to Kean college on March 17th to protest the state, maybe it should look into some of the programs which the state is working on to help deal with the "education crisis" that the SGA is fond of crying about. There's a lot out there that we should be lobbying the legislature to support. Things that believe it or not are even more effective than more money.

But as I said, no one has mentioned much about any of this. And I and my colleague Joe Paternoster have said this. But up until Wednesday evening, despite our offers to help, no one from the SGA leadership had contacted us. A few did this week. But I'd say that based on past experience, I won't get my hopes up too much that they'll take advantage of the non-SGA students who want to help make this protest successful. I really hope they do something soon, though. April 15th is getting awfully close.

For the first time ever, I really do hope that the SGA can prove me wrong.

Another message to the SGA and MSU students: Wake up, April 15th is coming.

State of the World
by Tom Tracy

I told myself that when it was time to leave the newspaper in a functional capacity that I would go out kicking and screaming. Well, apparently that time has come, so grab some cheese because here comes the whine. On Friday, I have to register for next semester, something that I will do for hopefully the last time. (Who really knows with the GER system at this school?) I knew that I may have some trouble finding the few classes I still had to take at manageable times, but I could have presumed how difficult a task it really was going to be.

I am a Business Administration major with a concentration in Information Systems. The classes that I have left to take to graduate are all 400 level ones in the school of business. There are four classes that I need to take. I figured that MSU would offer at least five or six, from a list of ten, that I could have taken. Wrong. I then figured that of the three or four classes that they were offering I could take, they would have at least one or two sections open. Wrong, again. There were four classes available in my concentration, each offering one section. This is not the kind of open class selection that I read about in the course catalog. Are we being lead astray?

Enough about me though. Many students have this problem every semester. They could graduate, if they just get lucky enough to have all the classes they need offered in a given semester. Often times they are not, and this student is forced to either take a class over the summer, or come back and take one or two classes the following semester. This creates one extra person on campus who could have graduated. This one extra person drives his/her one extra car to school and parks it in one extra parking spot. Wonder now kiddies why you park in a different zip code? The reason MSU has so many lifers is because students can't get the classes they need.

If this school is not adequately staffed to provide enough upper level classes to satisfy student's needs, then maybe it should change the requirements or the way the classes are divided amongst professors. I have a couple of suggestions. First, do we really need 12 sections of Microeconomics, or 10 sections of Mythology? What about those 36 sections of Composition? (All of these can actually be found in the Fall 1997 course catalog). What is there, like 12 kids per class? Increase the class size for all introductory levels, and you can drop a couple sections of that class. This will free up a professor to teach a higher level class, or at least guide a student through a higher level independent study.

Another suggestion is to erect a lecture hall building. Put 20 classrooms in it that can hold 200-300 students. Turn some of the introductory courses into seminars and load them up with students. Get some seniors in the honors programs, or graduate students to assist the professor in teaching the class, and everyone wins. There will be more time for professors to teach upper level sections, and graduate students get some in-classroom experience. I know this will hurt our precious student to teacher ratio that we proudly boast about in the school brochure, but what good is that ratio when it takes the average student five years to graduate?

Programs like these have worked before. When I took General Psychology as a freshman here at MSU, it was a lecture class with about 250 students and no one really seemed to be missing out on anything by not being in a class of eight and having the teacher's undivided attention. When the students had questions, there were at least seven teacher's assistants that were very knowledgeable in the subject, and they adequately fielded every inquiry.

If President Reid and the Board of Trustees insist on raising our tuition every year, then we must start seeing results. This is an area that sorely needs to be addressed. What is the point of coming to this school if you know that three years down the road, it will take you another three years to take the remaining 15 classes that you need to graduate? I'm sure the increased percentage of fifth year students is good for the budget, but it is not good for the student who struggles mightily to pay four year's worth of ever-increasing tuition. Many students are forced to take basket weaving and nap time 101 just so they can keep their financial aid loans.

Perhaps it will help if I put the situation in a light that the school can understand. The way class sections are assigned at MSU is: in need of new paint, has asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone, asbestos, is doing 26 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. speed zone.
The Nonconformist
by William J. Gibbs, Jr.

Many of us have been hearing all the hype about how the SGA wants to clean up their act. Well, I have been a legislator since February, and so far I have seen that the SGA is one hostile environment full of politics and rhetoric.

The first example of this is with "Strike the Hike". As proven by my colleague, Jean-Marie Navetta, they are quite uninformed about the issues at hand. Even worse, the Executive Board members are prompting the legislators to post flyers and do the legwork. They've forgotten that the job of the legislators is to serve the students, not bash Governor Whitman. The SGA leadership, like every other authority at MSU is trying to mold our thinking.

Also, many veteran legislators like to abuse Parliamentary Procedure during meetings, which is very childish. For instance, one speaker will be speaking and they will keep requesting a "Point of Information" in an effort to make the speaker lose his or her train of thought. Unfortunately, this practice is heavily used.

Another thing that really upsets me is some members of the Executive Board. The moderator (our Vice President), tends to be very loud and obnoxious in the meetings. She often screams into the microphone, with intensity that matches a truck stop waitress.

Our president seems to really insensitive to many campus organizations. Every time an organization comes up for an appropriation, she finds it necessary to bash the validity of their request as well as the workings of that organization. But when a bill like "Alcohol in the Rait" comes up, she's all for it.

Something else that gets under the skin of many of the legislators is how some groups of legislators sit together and share the same viewpoints in meetings. They do this almost like a bloc structure. But when put on the spot for it they say, "We are not a bloc."

Additionally, like the president, many legislators try to find ways to keep certain organizations from getting appropriations. They will ask them questions like, "Do you keep minutes? Why do you need this money? Do you fundraise?" in an attempt to blemish the credibility of the organization. Then they will bash the organization and debate heavily to try and encourage a "no" vote.

A meeting in which all of these things took place in happened two weeks before spring break. The International Student Organization came up for a "matching funds" appropriation for their annual Montclair trip. Many legislators tried to railroad them with abuses of Parliamentary Procedure and other heinous acts. Several legislators also left the meeting. Then, a legislator called quorum. While the count was being taken, he left, which set off the count, and the meeting was adjourned after about six hours of rhetoric and red tape. The ISO left with the matter still undecided. However, with the help of some influential speakers, the ISO came back the following week and finally got their money.

A meeting like this should never happen. All of the legislators involved should be ashamed of themselves for the mockery they made of their SGA, an organization meant to serve the campus community, not turn them away when they are in need.

My message to all members of the SGA is that they should remember why they collected signatures on their petitions, and if they cannot live up to their job they should resign! I am not saying that all legislators are bad, there are some good ones. But what I am saying is that those of you who are taking 4 pm on Wednesdays as party time better wake up. You are supposed to be "...students serving students..." not kids acting up! It is the bad legislators that are preventing the SGA from cleaning up their reputation.

Antics in the Forbidden Zone
by Madam Ant

It's a funny ol' life, innit? Just when I thought it was safe to come out after St. Patrick's Day and address something else, POW! Something else reared it's ugly head.

I was taking an alternate route home from work the other night and happened upon a bar still festooned in St. Pat's regalia. By now, you all know what this is about. As you can imagine, the town was replete with "Point of Information" to keep me from voting for the resolution to keep the bar open.

"Strike the Hike" is a perfect example of this. As proven by my colleague, Jean-Marie Navetta, they are quite uninformed about the issues at hand. Even worse, the Executive Board members are prompting the legislators to post flyers and do the legwork. They've forgotten that the job of the legislators is to serve the students, not bash Governor Whitman. The SGA leadership, like every other authority at MSU is trying to mold our thinking.

No dignity please! We're Irish (Part III)

The behavior associated with this day is an insult to Irish everywhere...

I am or how I got there. That, little man, is not fun.

I was amused that Mr. Connolly perceives me as a good Catholic girl. You see, a significant portion of "Part One" was edited out, and that was the fact that there is no love lost between the Catholic church and me. I am not Catholic, nor have I ever been. I reject any institution that is inherently misogynistic, anti-gay, and anti-choice. I even went so far as to say that Christianity was the worst thing to ever fell Irel. Land. It has done nothing but violently divide people ever since, and for that reason, St. Patrick shouldn't even be revered. But since he is the patron saint of Ireland, his holiday should be respected as a holy day, just as Passover and Ramadan are. Don't paint me as a teetotaling, mass-going, parochial student serving students..., not kids acting up! It is the bad legislators that are preventing the SGA from cleaning up their reputation.

Commercialization of March 17th is not merely marketing, and how can one compare it to Easter or Valentine's Day? Hippity hoppy, here comes Peter Cottontail with a pint of pink and purple beer in his hand instead of an Easter basket. Look, there's Cupid, and he doesn't have his bow and arrow...he has a mug of red beer! I also never heard of people exchanging gifts on St. Pat's Day - that's done at Christmas, right? I will agree with Mr. Connolly on one point though, people do do daft things on St. Pat's, and that is my argument. The behavior associated with this day is an insult to Irish everywhere, be they Catholic, Protestant, Agnostic, or Pagan.

I wonder, Mr. Connolly, what your experience would have been as you marched down Fifth Avenue if your "oppressors" knew that you are a Brit. I doubt you would have been cheered (I'll bet you weren't waving a Union Jack). Rather, you wouldn't have merely been as welcome as a turd in a punchbowl, you'd have had your arse kicked all the way down the Green Mile for sullying an Irish parade with your arrogant Anglo presence.

Stuff You Really Need

BY EDWARD FLANNERY IV
GENIUS INVENTOR EXTRAORDINARIAE

I definitely want to be rich when I grow up. Then again, I don't really plan to grow up for a couple of years. Anyway, I try to think at least once a day. Sometimes that turns out to be a bit of a struggle, but I still try my best. My thoughts are rarely productive, like the time that I spent almost a month writing a manifesto attempting to fix the parking problems on campus. I still feel pretty stupid about that. What a waste of time.

The first product that I plan to market under my new corporation puts a new spin on a few consumer standards. First, hundreds of people drink Jolt Cola™ everyday for a stunning pick me up. Also, people who take cholesterol issues into consideration purchase I Can't Believe It's Not Butter™. Finally, a large number of people without souls eat Spam™.

I still feel pretty stupid about it. Wouldn't you?

This opens up a whole new window of possibilities for me. I plan to drive around picking up only the finest specimens of raccoons and squirrels. Then I will add nuts, rich cream and amphetamines for an unparalleled taste that is almost instantly addictive. Furthermore, the rich content will allow me to charge a premium price.

After I establish myself, I will pick up deer and process them into Edible Urinal Mints™. With the help of entrepreneur genius Joe Paternoster, I will become rich. Did you ever eat a bowl of cereal, and when you are finished, you have that little bit of milk left in the bottom of the bowl? What are we going to do is start a company that will pour that little bit of milk into sealed containers and market it.

Everyone loves that last mouthful of milk. With this plan, we will be able to mass produce thousands of gallons of flavored milk. You could even mix flavors. You could experiment by pouring Apple Jacks™ flavored Cereal Milk™ for an exotic, daring, brand new taste. It sounds like a lot of fun, doesn't it? Damn right it does.

With a little help from my fellow inventor John J. O'Sullivan, I plan to open a new market by selling Edible Urinal Mints™. It is my sincere belief that such an innovation would make the once frowned upon bar scene more attractive to a higher class of people. Instead of placing mints on pillows, the upper class would be encouraged to pop into the bathroom to purge his bloated bladder and then freshen his breath. It only seems logical, but after a little thought, you see that it would never work.

But it would work if we equipped women's rest rooms with Winterfresh Edible Toilet Paper™. Now both genders will have an equal opportunities to refresh themselves and feel sophisticated. Keep in mind that, although these are excellent ideas, none of them even come close to my Jewel Crown. I possess the concept that will revolutionize the beverage industry as we know it. I will now submit to you my sales pitch for Cereal Milk™.

You could experiment by pouring Apple Jacks™ flavored Cereal Milk™ for an exotic, daring, brand new taste. It sounds like a lot of fun, doesn't it? Damn right it does.

With the help of entrepreneur genius Joe Paternoster, I will become rich. Did you ever eat a bowl of cereal, and when you are finished, you have that little bit of milk left in the bottom of the bowl? What are we going to do is start a company that will pour that little bit of milk into sealed containers and market it.

Everyone loves that last mouthful of milk. With this plan, we will be able to mass produce thousands of gallons of flavored milk. You could even mix flavors. You could experiment by pouring Apple Jacks™ flavored Cereal Milk™ for an exotic, daring, brand new taste. It sounds like a lot of fun, doesn't it? Damn right it does.
Pisces (February 19 to March 20) You make me sick. Go to hell. I'm not giving you a fortune. Go away.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) And you, get your grubby hands off the paper. Who the hell do you think you are? Holding this paper? It's not yours. Go away. I hate everyone.

Gemin (May 21 to June 20) What was with those 39 people who ate the pudding? 'Gee, let's go and eat some poison pudding, have some vodka, drift off into an alien la la land, visit E.T., smoke a bong with Mr. Spock, and make nice with some Klingons.' Well it seems you grinning dumb-assed monkey men and ugly-haired women just made 39 dead fools of yourselves; the biggest group sick joke in American history. Ha, Ha, Ha.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) And you, with that smug Tiramisu eating, Land Rover driving, John Tesh listening, Perrier drinking, Short Hills shopping, Internet surfing, latte buying, dumb-assed face, jump off a rather high diff and save the world the misery that you people inflict upon this God-forsaken world. Your lucky numbers are 35, 6, 1, and 455.

Leo (July 23 to August 22) Hey you, don't laugh. You have nothing to laugh about. Look at your face. Now that's funny, Ha, Ha.

Virgo (August 23 to September 22) That fake I.D. of yours is terrible. Get rid of it. It sucks. I have seen better fakes created by kindergartners with crayons. You don't look like a seven foot red haired man named Bubba. You are dumb.

Libra (September 23 to October 22) By the way, did I mention that I hate everyone? Oh I did. I just wanted to make sure everyone knew that. Bite me.

Scorpio (October 23 to November 21) If you rob my bar, I will hit you in the head with Jack Daniels.

Sagittarius (November 22 to December 21) The stars say that you suck. Well, that's at least what I say. Hahaha.

Capricorn (December 22 to January 19) Where did you get that suit? I know that K-Mart may have had a great sale on paisley dress shirts, but you didn't need to buy the whole damn rack, Bachagaloop poop head. Bite me.

Aquarius (January 20 to February 18) Hahaha. I just found your diary. Boy, you are screwed up. Not only that, but your poetry sucks. Hey everyone, take a look at one of this person's poems: "Life sucks, I want to die. I like to eat ham with mustard on it. My life it bites, it bites real hard, Rush Limbaugh's body is covered in lard."

called a few more (184) Annoy-O-Matic 357, went there to drink after their busy, hectic, and freaked-out jobs. Rue Dorks on the Scene

by John J. O'Sullivan

The Earth, a relatively boring blue-green sphere hovering somewhere within the Milky Way Galaxy, was floating around, minding its own business, doing little planet things. It spun around, traveled around the sun, created some volcanoes, made some killer mudslides, et cetera ad infinitum. The inhabitants, a couple billion or so, didn't care very much for the mudslides or the volcanoes, but were pretty happy there. It was alone, and it was.

And then something went horribly wrong. Dork invaders from the planet Zyorthon X-15 felt that this relatively boring blue-green sphere would make an excellent addition to their collection of other relatively boring planets.

They dressed up in their best pocket protectors, jumped in their Annoy-O-Matic 357 Attackships™, and ran over to Earth. Their leader, the most zyglastic Edgar Boobsby (Zyglastic (adj.) - Zygorthian word, meaning "someone who can hold his breath underwater for long periods of time") was in the scout ship, got turned down by Perin Erey, and still felt that Perin Erey liked him. He then called a few more (184) Annoy-O-Matic 357 ships over to win Perin over...and to take over the planet.

They finally got there, they all talked about Star Trek™ - Dorks across the universe love Star Trek™ - it's unsure how they get such good reception from their planets), and decided to get to work. They aimed their annoy-rays at the planet, and fired.

Ground Zero: Trowelsville, NJ.

 Middle of the week. John's Tavern. Nothing was going on. The only people drinking in the bar were a bunch of regulars, who went there to drink after their busy, hectic, and freaked-out jobs. Rue Miegel, a regular, was drinking her 42,598,754,387th margarita, and was about to stop breathing. Peek-Freen Taretta, another regular, was blasted on beer, and fell off of her stool, trying to reenact a Trowelsville Republican Club fight with the Trowelsville Liberal Coalition. Rodi Mastel, professional wrestler, was already on the ground, drunk as a skunk. Robert multi-million dollar prostitution sting.

"She has a nice butt," said Edward Flannery IV, some pervert from Montclair State University.

"But I like mine better. It has less hair."

(phonograph record)

World's going to hell. I love it," said Robert to himself.

"Moooose beerth's please," said Peek-Freen.

"THUD! THUD! THUD! THUD!"

The roof of the bar started making loud thudding noises (see above) for no apparent reason. Robert, being curious, and hoping for nuclear war, went outside to see what was happening. It was raining cats and dogs.

No. Serious. It was raining cats and dogs. As in the meowing and barking animals falling from the skies. Robert wondered if he was insured for this.

No one is sure how a huge animate object could flash her bottom at the world's biggest city, and swim away, but many theories have surfaced. Some involve a mass hallucination from some laced pudding pops. Other theories revolve around a huge alien invasion being mounted by de-mented geek aliens. But who the hell are they kidding?

In related news, 39 people in the 'Heaven's Sidewalk' cult sprayed their ankles collectively in a vain and incredibly stupid at-

I don't know...it looks pretty bleak for us. I think I'll have another beer.

Second half rally leads MSU over Stockton St.

The Men’s Lacrosse team evened their record at 3-3 this past Saturday as they defeated Richard Stockton, 9-8.

The first half was all Stockton, as they took an 8-4 lead at the half. However, the Red Hawks exploded both offensively and defensively in the second half.

MSU scored five goals, three from freshman attacker John Bruton (High Bridge), with fellow freshman Andrew Larsen (Boonton) and Brett Cerullo (Lincoln Park) each adding two goals and one assist. Freshmen attacker Steve Urbanowycz (Clifton) and junior mid-fielder Chris Trowbridge (Boonton) each had a goal and an assist as well.

The Red Hawk defense held Stockton to just nine shots for the second half, five of which were saves by freshman goalkeeper Dave Ilovor (Montclair), who came in for MSU’s other freshman goalkeeper, Anthony Malanga (Clifton). Malanga did have six saves, but gave up eight goals.

“They showed great intensity. They really wanted to win this one,” said Assistant Coach John Dolan about his players.

The Red Hawks look forward to keeping up their tenacity as they host Lycoming College next Wednesday at 7p.m. at Sprague Field.

Red Hawks lose inaugural match to Vassar 15-3

Last Wednesday, the MSU women’s lacrosse team played their first ever game in MSU history. Unfortunately, the Red Hawks fell to Vassar College, 15-3.

“It was our first game ever against a live opponent, so we’re just starting to get our feet wet,” said Head Coach Andrea Whitcomb.

Freshman goalkeeper Karen Foy (Toms River) had four saves but gave up 15 goals throughout the entire game. Vassar had 27 shots against her.

“We played better in a zone defense than man-to-man,” Coach Whitcomb said, “And played a much better second half.”

Down 11-2 at the end of the first half, the Red Hawks came out scoring at the beginning of the second. But so did Vassar.

MSU let up only four goals in the second half.

“We just need some fine tuning work on the details. Vassar is a good team, but I don’t think we should have lost to them as much as we did. Had we played them at the end of the season, I think the outcome would be different,” Coach Whitcomb said.

Freshman offenseman Jeanelle Husth (East Windsor) had two goals for the Red Hawks while senior Christine Bohan (West Caldwell) had another.

The Red Hawks travel to face Lycoming State College in Pennsylvania this Friday, April 4, for a 4 p.m. start.

Seattle over Atlanta. Because the Mariners' lineup is strong and they have dominant pitching.

Stacy Smith
Sophomore, Undeclared
I think the Yankees will win, because that's the team I like.

Jacob Dillard
Sophomore, Art History
Yankees over Atlanta. Because I’m a Yankee fan. They've been good for the past two years.

Ihor Andruch
Sophomore, Communications
White Sox over the Mets. The White Sox are a powerhouse with Belle and Thomas. They started off strong Tuesday night.

Mike Brennan (Ewing) came in to pitch for Economou. Brennan then booted a ground-ball to load the bases. After a strikeout, Brennan then walked the next Cortland State batter to force in a run, the Red Dragons first. Then a two-run single to left-field brought in the Red Dragons second and third runs. After Brennan recorded the second out of the inning on a fly ball to Mullane, sophomore right-hander Brad Bava (Edison) came in to pitch.

Bava proceeded to give up a two-run double which made the score 5-3, Cortland State. Then, after loading the bases by walking two Red Dragons, he managed to get the final out of the inning on an unassisted ground out to McCorkle. After seven-and-a-half innings, the once comfortable 3-0 lead became a 5-3 deficit for the Red Hawks.

The Red Hawks could not overcome the deficit and, in fact, the Red Dragons scored two more runs in the top of the ninth. Brennan picked up the loss, his first of the season, and the Red Hawks record stood at 6-9 after Saturday's loss. They had plenty of time to prepare for their next game on Wednesday, April 2, however, mother nature did not cooperate.

Following the freak snowstorm on Monday and Monday night, the Red Hawks game scheduled for Wednesday was postponed due to the poor condition of Pittser Field. It will be made up sometime later in the season.

However, after two days of sunshine the field should be good enough for the Red Hawks to play their first inter-conference game on Thursday, April 3, at 3:30 p.m. They will take on the Rutgers-Western Connecticut.

Senior shortstop and team captain Rosalie Guzzi (Long Branch) with her hit that drove in the only run in MSU's 1-0 victory over Ithaca.

The Red Hawks could not cooperate. In executing to get runners across the plate, they came up in a clutch situation, did what they needed to do, and beat us," said Coach Kubicka.

Yesterday, MSU hosted Felician College again, and again came away victorious.

In the first game of the double header, the Red Hawks scored four runs in the first inning and never looked back.

but we did not do.

MSU had nine hits, gave up 10, and left a total of 11 runners on base.

“We were hitting the ball and had opportunities, but we weren’t doing our part College again, and again came away victorious.

In the first game of the double header, the Red Hawks scored four runs in the first inning and never looked back.

Saladino with one of her own.

MSU skated to a 8-0 win. Ormsbee won her eighth game with five strikeouts and gave up five hits.

In game two, the Red Hawks must have felt a sense of deja vu as they won 12-3. Citarella and Wisz were fantastic, as each went three for three and one RBI, with Wisz having a triple in the third inning. Saladino belted the MSU’s first homerun of the season in the second inning, a three-run shot over left field. She too, was three for three and had three RBIs. Guzzi was good for two hits with Acevedo, Nawrot, Lascik, and Saladino. Saladino is the Red Hawks winning pitcher, which means he was capable of doing

After a 2-0 start at the MSU/Kean Classic Tournament, the Red Hawks fell to Salisbury in the championship round this past weekend.

In the first game versus Ithaca on Friday, MSU squeezed out a 1-0 win in a low hit game.

Junior lefty Sharon Ormsbee (North Plainfield) gave up just two hits while striking out a whopping 11 batters for her seventh win of the season.

The game was scoreless until the bottom of the fourth inning. Senior centerfielder and two-time 1st Team All-American Jennifer Citarella (Belleville) led off with a single, then successfully stole second. She advanced to third on freshman second baseman Tara Wisz’s (Pompton Plains) sacrifice hit.

With a count of one and three, senior shortstop and team captain Rosalie Guzzi (Long Branch) drove in Citarella with a single up the middle.

The Red Hawks held on to win, 1-0.

MSU next faced Felician College in the second game and scored 13 runs off of 13 hits. The Red Hawks had a slugfest against Felician, as nearly all MSU batters had hits in the game. Citarella was three for four with a triple in the fourth inning, and had two stolen bases. Wisz was two for two, one hit being a double in the second, as was junior catcher Ortiz (Newark) then struck out for the third out of the inning. After one inning the score was 2-1, RPI.

The Red Hawks second, and last run of the game, came in the eighth inning when RPI had a lead of 8-1. Freshman pinch-hitter Brian Seelinger pounced out 20 hits, scored four with a triple in the fourth inning, and gave up just two hits while striking out 11 batters for her seventh win of the season.

Junior rightfielder Wendy Saladino (Mountainside) whacks a 3-run homer, the team’s first this year.

The Red Hawks did not have much time to think about their loss because on the next day, Cortland State was ready to take the field against MSU.

Both Cortland and MSU were coming off losses the day before. Cortland lost to William Paterson on Friday and MSU, as aforementioned, lost to RPI. Obviously both teams were looking for the win. Cortland State, however found it. They won 7-3, and handed the Red Hawks their ninth loss of the season.

MSU had a 3-0 lead through seven innings and appeared on their way to their seventh victory of the season. But sloppy fielding and poor pitching caused the 7-3 loss as the Red Dragons scored five unearned runs in the final two innings.

Freshman left-hander A.J. Economou (Howell) started and gave up no earned runs, no walks, and struck out four through seven innings. He came out to pitch the eighth and after giving up a single, a double-play ground ball to Gleichenhaus was booted for an error.

With men on first and second and no outs, junior left-

After appearing to be on the winning track after three consecutive victories, the baseball team has lost two back-to-back games. The losses were an 11-2 defeat by the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute Engineers and a 7-3 loss to the Red Dragons of Cortland State. Both these losses were at Pittser Field.

Dave Lohrman, the RPI starting pitcher, was virtually untouchable on Friday afternoon as he went the distance, giving up just four hits and only one earned run. He recorded 15 strike outs and walked only five Red Hawks. He is 3-0 this season with an earned run average of 0.75.

For MSU, the nearly non-existent offense did, however, produce two runs. With two outs in the bottom of the first, right-fielder Mike Mullane (Bayonne) reached on an error by the RPI third-baseman. Clean-up hitter, first-baseman Shawn McCorkle (Newton) then doubled in Mullane from first. Center-fielder Fransisco Longbranch drove in the third run of the inning. After one inning the score was 2-1, RPI.

The Red Hawks second, and last run of the game, came in the eighth inning when MSU had a lead of 8-1. Freshman pinch-hitter Brian Seelinger and second, sophomore third-baseman Lou Finamore (Franklin) singled, driving in Seelinger with two outs. Junior second-baseman Corey Gleichenhaus (Clarkstown, NY) grounded to second for the third out of the inning.

Senior right-hander Kevin O’Shaughnessy (Ramsey) was the starting pitcher. He gave up seven earned runs and 10 hits in three innings. He picked up his first loss of the season as RPI pounded out 20 hits, scored twice in the first inning, five times in the fourth inning, and three in the ninth for an 11-2 final.
