Cole selected new MSU president

8th president of MSU is the first woman to hold the position

The Board of Trustees unanimously named Dr. Susan Cole the next president of Montclair State University on Thursday, June 4. Cole, who was selected from a group of five finalists, will begin her term as MSU’s first woman, and eighth president overall on September 1.

“We are excited that an educational visionary and dynamic leader of the caliber of Dr. Cole will be Montclair State’s next president,” said Murray L. Cole, chairman of the Board of Trustees (BOT). “We are pleased and delighted that our wonderful university and its future well-being will be in such strong, capable hands.”

Cole comes to Montclair State from Metropolitan State University in Minneapolis/St. Paul, Minnesota where she has served as president since 1993. A former English professor, Cole holds three degrees in English and literature - a B.A. degree from Columbia University’s Barnard College and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Brandeis University.

Cole’s experience also includes time spent at Rutgers University as Vice-President for Academic Affairs, and at the University of South Carolina as Provost and Vice-President of Academic Affairs.

Entering college can be a nervous time for a new student, here are some tips that will help make the transition easier.

Tuition to rise 7.5% for Fall and Spring

MSU cites lack of state funding as cause for rise

Citing a lack of state funding, the Board of Trustees announced an increase in tuition for the 1998-1999 academic year. New Jersey resident undergraduate students will have to pay $7 more per credit hour to attend classes in September.

The tuition increase was approved at the regularly scheduled Board meeting on June 3. A public session was held earlier that day for a tuition hearing, when a budget presentation was made by Harry Schuckel, executive director of Budget and Planning.

“The University administration is raising tuition rates with the utmost reluctance,” said Schuckel. “That is why we are so aggressively seeking to contain costs throughout the university. We realize that every dollar we can save is a dollar that will not have to come from tuition or fees.”

Each credit hour for state resident undergraduates will be $100.15, beginning with the Fall 1998 semester. Non-resident undergraduates will pay $154.55 per credit hour, a $12.65 increase. Graduate students will pay $100.15 per credit hour for New Jersey residents, $154.55 per credit hour for non-residents.

If you haven’t had a few sleepless nights about coming to Montclair State University, chances are, you will. Embarking on this new four (or so) year path can be strangely exciting and at the same time dreadfully frightening.

Using the orientation program and your summer can help ease the transition from home to college for you. Many before you have faced the challenge of freshman year and succeeded. You can too.

Use your time wisely here during your orientation. Be daring one to ask questions and spot out next year’s prospects. Use the time between now and September to ease your transition to university life.

Remember there is a whole lot more to college than your classes. Montclair State hosts a number of campus resources that will aid your personal growth and help you in any number of ways. From Psychological Services in Gibberson Hall to the Wellness Center.

Welcome, from The Montclarion

by Kevin P. Hancock

Attention new students: College goes by fast, be sure to make smart decisions now for your future.

Greetings, and on behalf of the staff of The Montclarion, I’d like to welcome all new freshmen and transfer students to Montclair State University. Your orientation session marks just the beginning of what is going to be a very exciting time in all of your lives, one that will hopefully be successful, enjoyable and unforgettable for you.

It is a great time to be a student at Montclair State. Just granted university status a few years ago, MSU is quickly gaining respect in the eyes of the region as a growing and solid institution. A degree from MSU will graduate, then it is now. Exciting additions to MSU will be worth more in four years when many of you will also to get involved early with the many things that MSU has to offer students, especially its fine student organizations.

The key to that success is to — of course work hard, but also to take advantage of what this university has to offer, and to do so quickly. The ride will be over before you know it.

I cannot stress enough how fast your time here at MSU will go by. It seems like just yesterday that I was standing where you are today, staying in Blanton Hall during New Student Orientation, being simply overwhelmed by the incredible number of new people I was meeting in such a short period time. Now suddenly, entering my fourth year at MSU, I’m already thinking about graduation, and where I will go after I leave this place. Trust me, it may seem far off but soon enough you will be in my shoes just as I was in yours, preparing for your next big step in life.

Entering college is an exciting experience, but it can also be a scary one. It is a whole new world that offers a large number of new opportunities for you to take advantage of, but also many pitfalls for you to hopefully avoid. It is essentially important for you as a new student to start making smart decisions now for your future, for your future will be here before you know it.

It can be easy to fall at your venture into college, however it can be just as easy to succeed.

It can be easy to fail at your venture into college, but what is taking place in your surroundings, and what is affecting your life at MSU. Knowledge is power, and if the students are educated in what is affecting them, then the students will have the power to do something about it. We are dedicated to being “The Students’ Voice,” and as acting as a watchdog for your needs as a student, and we hope that you will take advantage of that. You can pick up The Montclarion every Thursday afternoon during the Fall and Spring semesters at most buildings on campus. Our staff members are very accessible, and can be found scurrying about in room 113 of the Student Center Annex throughout the year.

I sincerely hope that you enjoy the rest of your New Student Orientation, use this time to your advantage to learn all you can about your future surroundings, and savor this exciting period in your life. As I said, life is going to start moving pretty fast for you, make sure you use and enjoy every second.

pay $257.35 per credit hour, a $21.25 increase.

Schuckel explained that the tuition increase was necessary to offset a $1.8 million budget shortfall caused by a drop in state funding. “We share the concerns of our students and their parents about the escalating cost of a college education,” Schuckel said. “We continued to hope that our state funding would be restored to appropriate levels, which would have allowed us to keep our tuition increases to a minimum.”

Interim President Gregory Waters pointed out that “underfunding is a major problem, and efforts will continue to raise moneys from sources other than tuition, such as capital fund drives.

Vitaly Satanovsky, the student representative to the board, commented “I hold the views of students regarding tuition. As a trustee, I have seen how lack of state funding leads to increases in tuition demands.”

Schuckel noted that the new tuition structure doesn’t simply address the budgetary shortfall, but is crucial if MSU is going to maintain its academic excellence. “Our balanced budget proposals address critical institutional needs,” he said, “including program improvements and enhancement of student services. This budget will allow MSU to improve and prosper while being as fiscally sensitive as possible.”

Schuckel noted that a survey of other public institutions statewide revealed that MSU tuition hikes were “near the bottom of the spectrum. Other schools are implementing tuition increases of up to 14 percent. We feel that we offer a comprehensiveness of choice at extremely affordable tuition levels.”

In addition to tuition prices increasing, housing rates, meal plan rates, and student fees were inflated. Housing rates at MSU will increase between $77 and $89, with new rates ranging from $1,990 to $2,308 per semester. Meal plan rates, required for on-campus residents, will increase between $68 and $70, with new rates ranging from $911 for the 14 meals-per-week plan to $986 for the 19 meals-per-week plan. New block meal plans were introduced, a 300 meals-per-semester plan will cost $1,004, 225 meals will cost $932, 150 meals will cost $865, and 30 meals will cost $328.

Cole will be replacing interim president Dr. Gregory Waters who held the position in place of former president Dr. Irvin Reid who left MSU for Wayne State University in Detroit last October. Dr. Waters will be returning to his former position as Deputy Provost and Vice-President for Institutional Advancement.

Other presidential finalists included:

- Cole, 56, was born and raised in New Jersey state collegiate system and her close ties to the area helped win her the position.

Like sports? Call coaches over the summer to learn the practice schedules and expectations in the year ahead. The summer is a great time to get in shape for the year ahead. Don’t forget to check out intramural sports, club teams and the Fitness Center. Athletics are a great way to meet new people and to avoid the dreaded Freshman 15!

Call or meet with your academic advisor or other MSU personnel when a question arrives. The first of the year is an extremely busy time for academic offices. Everything is positive academic habits from the start will help you in the long run. You could even get a jump on some of your reading while enjoying your last days of basking on the shore.

Try to contact your new roommate to plan what you need to feel comfortable in your new abode. That first communication can eliminate problems from the start such as showing up to campus with two VCR’s and no TV! It is also a great time to get to know your roommate a little before you are both stuck in the same room together.

Once you know what is on your shopping list for your home away from home, scope out the sales. Consolidate things like pictures into a collage frame. Pack elements of what is uniquely you, but not enough to furnish an entire room.

Taking a sensible approach to your college career can help you with the transition and calm your nerves!
Q: You’ve finally arrived at Montclair State University, now where do you go from here?

OUR MISSION
For 70 years, The Montclarion has been on the front lines of all the action at MSU, keeping the campus abreast of the latest events and activities that effect your lives as students. Entirely student-run, The Montclarion is dedicated to giving the student body a voice at Montclair State, serving as a watchdog for your student values and looking out for the average student’s needs and interests. Throughout the year you can find coverage, analysis, and opinions on current issues, topics and events, from the actions of the university administration and Student Government, to reviews of the latest concerts and MSU sports.

WHO WE ARE
The Montclarion is a Class One Organization of the Student Government Association, Inc. and is operated in part by student fees collected by the SGA. Our staff is entirely composed of undergraduate MSU students, and operates independently of the administration and of the SGA. We are a proud organization, preparing to celebrate our 70th year of service to the Montclair State community. Originally named The Pelican, the paper was first published in November of 1928, and has been a staple at MSU ever since. Growing at a tremendous rate, The Montclarion’s arms are always open to new hard-working students who share our vision, and willingness to serve the students of Montclair State.
A: Get involved by joining the staff of MSU’s most involved organization - The Montclarion!

WHY JOIN?
Published weekly on Thursdays, The Montclarion provides an excellent opportunity for students of all majors to get directly involved in the major events at Montclair State while gaining valuable experience in all areas of journalism. Remember, only part of what you learn at college comes from the classroom. In today’s competitive job market, “real world” experience is not only wanted, but required to succeed. Joining The Montclarion is not only an exciting way to get involved at MSU, but serves as an excellent training ground for the leaders of tomorrow. Besides all the serious stuff - it’s fun! There is no better way to meet a lot of exciting new people.

WHAT YOU CAN DO
There are many different ways to get involved with The Montclarion. We are always looking for aspiring and skilled writers, reporters, photographers, editors, artists, and people skilled in computer layout and graphic design. Students are also needed for administrative and office duties. No prior newspaper experience is necessary, the only prerequisite you need is motivation! A message for all new students on how to succeed in college and in life

One of the most challenging tasks to endure is to truly figure out who you are. Too often we rely on the beliefs of others to determine the character for which we stand. Although corrective criticism and other’s opinions are indeed helpful, living in the shadows of them can lead to your destruction. In this world, we tend to thrive on acceptance and fitting into the mainstream. All of that is fine, until one considers what acceptance has to do with being an individual.

For the purpose of my self-preservation, I often ponder the following quote. “Criticism of you isn’t the truth, it’s just someone’s opinion.” The aforementioned phrase rests beneath my picture in my high school yearbook and forever in my mind. It simply allows me to be the April Walker that I know, not the April I should be according to society. My many experiences at Montclair State University allow me to stand by those words every single day.

With bright eyes and innocence, I made the decision to enter Montclair State University. It wasn’t too far away from my beloved home and family. It wasn’t too big or too small. It was, however, the place for me. My timid nature and sometimes dry humor mixed well with the tranquility and ease of MSU. I’ll never forget my first day of school. Although the class began at 3:00 p.m., I decided to arrive at about 2:05 p.m., just to be sure. Indeed, I was on time, maybe a little too punctual. For a minute, I thought I was on time for the wrong class to begin. After checking my watch fifty times, it still wasn’t 3:00 p.m. yet. Suddenly, I began to wonder if attending college was something I chose to do individually or something that fit the criteria of others’ expectations.

However, after I entered my first class and many more to follow, I found the college experience to be truly rewarding and self-fulfilling. Never did I explore the opportunity to bellow my opinions across a piece of paper, visit the Metropolitan Opera House, or fulfill any of my dreams. The following words are just a sample of the many comments I’ve endured. “April, you’re nice, but being that shy will only hurt you in the long run.” “What’s wrong with that girl, why doesn’t she say anything?” “You’d be all right if you would just say a little more.” “You’re young, express yourself.” “If I were you...” There was a time when comments like that would really scar me, but now they are actually humorous. Who are others to judge me? In all honesty, I’m pleased with my accomplishments and I know that I have a long way to go before reaching the top.

Truthfully speaking, I’ve found great peace and comfort with myself, Montclair State University and its tremendous faculty and staff. However, I’ve made only one place besides the library my home. That place is the Office of New Student Experience. During the summer of 1997, I had the splendid opportunity to work as an Orientation Workshop Leader (O.W.L.). The whole idea of filling the position was both fascinating and terrifying. Directing myself in the right direction wasn’t a problem, but the thought of directing others was a mental obstacle.

“What do I do if they don’t like me? What if I’m not the right person for the job?” However, the only way to answer those questions was to do the job. Every student I endured didn’t like me and accepting that reality has helped me grow as a person. Every game I played with the students wasn’t an overwhelming success, but the idea is that I learned from my mistakes.

During my first day on the job, in my crisp white shirt, I experienced rejection from about twenty people. For a long time, I pondered what to do as an ice breaker. Finally, I decided to distribute candy to the new students. How could that go wrong? Well, I sort of purchased an abundance of this cheap sour candy that was basically thrown back in my face. However, for the next time, I decided to put a bit more thought and money into my selection.

Rejection hurts, but it’s good. How else are you supposed to learn. At the time, it was traumatizing, but it’s hilarious to me now. As I became more comfortable with my position, my success also flourished. Instead of throwing candy in my face, my students placed cards of appreciation. It took a great deal of dedication and commitment to reach that plateau, and I’m still making the sky my limit to success.

Not being the most outgoing individual, this position enabled me to boost my communication skills and self-assurance. What makes me the most pleased, though, is that I helped others while helping myself. To make one person’s day makes my day. To enable one person to make a positive change enable me to feel positive about myself. Never before did I exhibit such leadership and a pride in what I was doing. To see young adults not much younger than myself adhering to what I was saying made my role as an O.W.L. invaluable. I wouldn’t trade the experience for any other, except for one.

During the summer of 1998, I will have the privilege to work as a Super Orientation Workshop Leader. Although this position holds an equal importance to that of an O.W.L., it’s quite different. Instead of leading a group of new students, I will lead the O.W.L.s in that challenging task. It will be my opportunity to give back what New Student Orientation gave to me. The apprehension that once had in successfully accomplishing the position can be someone else’s boost of encouragement. I’ll never be hesitant to admit my mistakes and trust that this honesty aids in the guidance of others. Together, New Student Orientation’s 1998 O.W.L.s and myself will partake in a journey of learning, leadership and success.

To prepare myself for the journey, I’ve worked in the Office of New Student Experience for the school year and during the entire summer. Much planning and preparation goes into the creation of a successful orientation. Daily, I speak with concerned parents, incoming freshmen and transfer students as they schedule for orientation. To finally see their faces will truly be rewarding.

The role of Super O.W.L. has enabled me to view both the behind the scenes process and actual production of New Student Orientation. Simply said, a lot goes into the making of this division of campus. I’m proud to be an active participant, for when you think about it, N.S.O.’s purpose is invaluable. A student’s first in-depth encounter with MSU will take place during orientation. Under the guidance and leadership of my mentor, supervisor and friend, Dr. Felicia E. McGinty, I’m proud to do this job. After a full day’s work in her office, there’s no question that I have a purpose on this campus.

secutive RBI singles by Shawn McCorkle and Frank Francia cutting the Warrior lead to 7-3. However, it was not enough as the powerful Warrior offense added four more runs in the top of the ninth to give Eastern an 11-4 victory.

Montclair State 6, Aurora University 5 - Sophomore designated hitter Frank Francia laced a one-out single over a drawn-in infield to score the tying and go-ahead runs in the seventh inning, and MSU rode the relief pitching of freshman Steve Trongone for a thrilling 6-5 victory over Aurora on Tuesday, May 26. The Hawks rallied from a 5-3 deficit in the 7th inning to take the lead on Francia’s single and a double by Shawn McCorkle that cut the deficit to one. Trongone, who came on with one out in the 6th gave up three straight hits to lose MSU’s 3-1 lead, but then settled down to hold on to a 6-5 victory for Montclair. The win kept MSU alive in the tournament, sending them to a re-match with Cortland State who they had defeated earlier, to decide who would get to play Eastern Connecticut in the championship game.

Montclair State 5, Cortland State 2 - Sophomore Frank Francia continued his hot hitting by going 2-3 with an RBI, and A.J. Economou won his second game of the tournament to lead the Red Hawks over Cortland State 5-2 in the semi-final match-up. Montclair led the whole way in this one, taking a 4-0 lead in the top of the forth. Freshman Craig Conway tripled in that inning to score Dan Wydner for a 2-0 lead. Shawn McCorkle then followed with an RBI single for a 3-0 lead, and a sacrifice fly by Alex Bosch scored a forth run. Cortland came back with 2 runs in the seventh, but MSU held them off to advance to the NCAA Division III championship game against Eastern Connecticut.

Eastern Connecticut 16, Montclair State 1 - After playing so well, MSU was stunned by a crushing defeat, again at the hands of Eastern Connecticut. Eastern catcher Anthony Formato began the rout with a sac fly to center in the third inning to give the Warriors a 1-0 lead. From there they never looked back, scoring five runs in the forth, four in the fifth and two runs each in the sixth, eighth and ninth innings. Starting pitcher Scott Allan was chased after 3.5 and two-thirds innings of work, suffering his second loss of the tournament.

Despite the defeat, Montclair’s impressive World Series showing earned three Red Hawks 1998 NCAA Division III Baseball Championships All-Tournament team honors. They were, Shawn McCorkle at first base, Dan Wydner, outfield, and Frank Francia, DH.

So that’s how they do that...

There would have been one more title added to that list, however they just could not get past Eastern Connecticut State who defeated them twice in the double-elimination World Series tournament by a combined score of 27-5.

Eastern Connecticut senior center fielder Steve Rembisz went 4-5 with four RBI's and catcher Anthony Formato went 2-3 adding three RBI's leading their team to a crushing defeat over MSU. All told, the Hawks gave up 18 hits, including seven doubles in the loss. MSU's starter, Scott Allan took the defeat which was his second of the tournament, both coming at the hands of Eastern Connecticut.

The win gave Eastern Connecticut its second national title in its history, the last one coming in 1990 for the Warriors. The championship game was the third all time for the Red Hawks, having won its two previous title-game appearances in 1987 and 1993. The loss was the worst MSU has ever suffered in the 107 NCAA post-season games it has played, and its worst loss in what was otherwise a spectacular season.

MSU ends the year with a 35-11-1 record, winning the NJAC championship with a 14-4-0 record in the conference.

The Red Hawks swept through the Mid-Atlantic Regional Tournament, earning a spot in the NCAA World Series by defeating their four opponents by a combined score of 38-1. Winning the Mid-Atlantic championship continued MSU's history of post-season excellence, claiming their 10th Regional title in the last 23 years. By the time Rowan, Allentown and The College of New Jersey, who they defeated twice, knew what hit them, MSU was off to Salem, Virginia for their tenth appearance in the division III World Series.

Jones, the NCAA’s Regional Indoor and Outdoor Athlete of the Year, set her record breaking time in the semi-final race to break the 13.97 finish previously set by defending champion Bridget Concord of Christopher Newport University, VA.

In the much anticipated final race, Concord came out ahead of Jones setting a new mark of 13.60 while Jones finished in 13.69 for second place and a qualifying time for the Junior National team.

Teammate Brenner finished the 100m hurdles in 14.50 to place sixth and earn her first All-American award while Jones’ performance made her the first Montclair State athlete to be a three time All-American all in the same year having been awarded with the honor for indoor 55m hurdles, indoor 55m dash and most recently the outdoor 100m hurdles.

Most recently, Blair was the head coach of the Kearny Thistle Girl’s U-19 Club Soccer team from last November until now, and prior to that position, was the head goalkeeper’s coach at the Princeton University Girl’s Soccer Camp.

Blair also comes to MSU with significant playing experience, most recently as a member of the New Jersey Wildcats, a semi-professional soccer team of the USISL Women’s National League. Blair was also goal keeper on the North Jersey Imperials in 1994, and filled the same role with the Peninsula Aztecs of the Women’s Garden State League in 1996.

CHRISTINE D’AMATO, Men’s and Women’s Cheerleading: A 1995 graduate of Montclair State, D’Amato returns to her alma mater as the head coach for men’s and women’s cheerleading after a two-year stint as the head cheerleading coach for Franklin Township High School from 1996 through this Spring season. D’Amato was also the captain of the MSU cheerleading squad as an undergraduate from 1993-1995.

ROY HINCHMAN, Strength and Conditioning: Also a graduate of Montclair State, Hinchman received his BS in 1983 in Physical Education, and returns to the MSU campus as the University’s third Coordinator of Athletic Strength and Conditioning. Hinchman is currently the owner and president of Pinacle Personal Training, Inc. in Totowa, NJ, a 2,500 sq. ft. private fitness facility. He also was the head strength and conditioning coach at Ramsey High School from 1996 through this past year.

MEN’S LACROSSE (6-5) The women’s lacrosse team started its season with the first ever spring break trip to Florida where it scrimmaged some of the top teams in the country, including Yale and Hofstra. Second year head coach Andie Whitcomb’s decision to stay with the tough early schedule paid off as the team posted one of its best seasons and recorded a four game winning streak, which included impressive wins over Lycoming, PA and Kean University.

MEN’S TENNIS (6-9) While head coach Anthony Shortt was on sick leave, the women’s tennis head coach, Brian McLaughin filled in, and did a solid job with a young team. Men’s tennis ended its year with an overall record of 6-9 and finished in third place at the NJAC championships, hosted by Montclair State.

The Red Hawks were defeated by Eastern Connecticut State University 16-1 in the NCAA Division III National Championship game on May 27, dashing MSU's title hopes and ending an incredible run by the Hawks, that saw them sweep through the month of May, winning the NJAC, and Mid-Atlantic Regional titles.

The dream has come true for Montclair State's first baseman, Shawn McCorkle, it just came true a little sooner than expected.

The 6-4, 225-pound lefty swinging first baseman out of Newton High School was selected by the Seattle Mariners in the 7th round of Major League Baseball's amateur draft at approximately 3:15 on Tuesday, June 2. The selection is the second-highest ever for an MSU baseball player, with only two players selected in a higher round in MSU history - John Deutsch by the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1989, and Dave Kennedy by the California Angels in 1991, both in the 5th round.

I'm so excited right now I can't even sit down.

- Shawn McCorkle, MSU First-baseman

For McCorkle, the news was beyond a surprise. “I was absolutely shocked,” said the soft spoken MSU junior. “I thought that I had a chance to be selected, but I was thinking more in the range of the 15th to 20th rounds. I couldn’t believe I went so high, and still can’t. I’m so excited right now I can’t even sit down.

McCorkle was told that by his senior season that he may be an "inside 10-rounds selection" by various scouts and coaches, but not to expect much in this, the end of his junior year. However, the Mariners thought otherwise and now will meet with McCorkle and his family sometime this week to discuss options and a contract for the
