Montclair State University is not accepting new bids for the bookstore. Nancy Carver, MSU's Director of Auxiliary Enterprises, said that the university is satisfied with the bookstore's present operator, Follett College Stores.

“We've decided to negotiate another contract with them,” Carver said. “We're very pleased with the way the bookstore is operated.”

The New Jersey State Contract Law waives obligation of advertising for new bidders, Carver added.

The contract ends April 30 and the next contract period is May 1, 1999 to April 4, 2004, according to Flannigan, Follett College Stores, said that Follett is waiting to hear from MSU about the possible renovation.

According to Flannigan, Follett operates 600 college bookstores, 281 of which are in New Jersey. He thought that made the company “less generic” because Follett only does college bookstores, they are at least as large...and our sales are growing every year,” Carver said.

The present contract ends April 30 and the next contract period is May 1, 1999 to April 4, 2004, according to Flannigan, Follett College Stores, said that Follett is waiting to hear from MSU about the possible renovation.

“Aside from the renovation, Follett has other qualities that make it desirable to MSU,” Carver said.

“Follett only does college bookstores, they're at least twice as large...and our sales are growing every year,” Carver said.

“The reason for the change, according to Dave Fogg, Associate Director of Academic Technologies, was to cut down on the high costs of running a lab and hiring an assistant, and to provide more computer resources available.

“Students from Bohn Hall are mainly concerned about the new inconvenience they face in having to leave their residences to get to a lab. They offered to help pay for remodeling the bookstore,” Hewitt said.

“We're strongly considering making the bookstore two stories,” Carver said. “A new story would create much more interest in the bookstore.”

Police feel it was an overdose due to the lack of visible trauma to the body.

“It is an apparent suicide, there were no other external signs to indicate it was anything other than suicide,” said MSU police Lt. Michael Postaski.

A mixed reaction from students has developed since the January consolidation of Bohn and Blanton Hall computer labs.

Blanton, open 24 hours, seven days a week, now has eight additional computers, for a total of 16.

Another Bohn resident, Heather Chutsky, who only used the lab in her dorm to check e-mail before, says that now that the computers have been moved, “I don’t bother [checking e-mail] anymore.”

Prison-bound man dead on campus: suicide suspected

Police feel it was an overdose due to the lack of visible trauma to the body.

“It is an apparent suicide, there were no other external signs to indicate it was anything other than suicide,” said MSU police Lt. Michael Postaski.

The body was identified as former Montclair real estate attorney Richard Weil, 54, who has been recently disbarred and indicted for allegedly stealing $153,299 from three former clients, according to anonymous sources.

“A passerby saw a body in the backpack of a car and it was not moving,” said Postaski.

The passerby called the police, who opened the car. Weil was found in the back seat, shoeless and wrapped in a blanket. An apology note to his wife and children was also found in the car.

“The Montclair Police Department did have an alert out, with him as a missing person,” said Postaski.

Weil had been missing since March 4.

“We don’t know the cause of death at this point, it has not been returned (from the medical examiner),” said Mary Kuzinsky, press liaison for the Passaic County Prosecutor’s office.

The investigation is currently being presided over by the Passaic County Prosecutor’s office, because the body was found in a parking lot that was lying in a Passaic portion of campus.

Coming Next Week

Blanton Hall residents seem more pleased with the change.

Abraham Matthew calls the situation “a lot better than before,” and Pam Weag, also a Blanton resident, says that since the change she has not had to wait for a computer.

Plans are now being considered by the architectural and engineering department to greatly increase the size of the Blanton lab, totaling 80 computers and additional hardware, such as a scanner and multi-media equipment, according to Fogg.

Fogg does not rule out the possibility of re-opening the Bohn Hall lab in the future.
Life of nuclear waste plan may be cut short

The federal government could be compelled to start storing the nation's nuclear waste in Nevada far sooner than it is now prepared to do.

The White House wants to focus money and effort on constructing a permanent disposal site, and thinks the thousands of tons of spent nuclear rods should remain at their respective power plants until a repository starts collecting waste in 2010. A new bill introduced by Senate Republicans, however, would require storing the nation's nuclear waste at the Nevada Test Range by 2003, seven years before the White House wants to act.

Lyons resigns after conviction

The Rev. Henry Lyons resigned Tuesday as president of the National Baptist Convention USA, two weeks after being convicted of racketeering and theft in a scheme to skim the convention's $4 million.

Lyons was scheduled to be sentenced on March 31 on state charges, and he is still being charged in a 54-count federal indictment for extortion, tax evasion, and fraud.

North Korea agreed to allow U.S. inspectors access to a suspected underground nuclear site, the U.S. State Department said Tuesday.

The U.S. has raised concerns about activity at the site violates terms of an agreement under which the U.S. has provided nuclear energy aid to N. Korea in return for promises that N. Korea has halted its nuclear weapons program. While insisting food donations would not be linked to any nuclear deal, the U.S. earlier this month pledged 500,000 tons of additional food aid. N. Korea demanded 1 million tons.

U.N. helicopter crash claims 13

All 13 people aboard a U.N. helicopter were killed when it crashed into a steep mountain in Haiti en route to Port-au-Prince Sunday night to pick up a Finnish tourist, a U.N. spokesman said Tuesday.

Tuesday morning, a U.S. Coast Guard team had found no survivors, said Coast Guard spokesman Fred Eckard.

On board were five Argentine police officers and an Argentine doctor serving with the U.N. in Haiti, six Russian crew members, and an American executive from the company that contracted the helicopter.

On Monday, the State Assembly honored Glenn Edwards, 12, of South Or­ange for helping save his cousin's and theirs from a fire that engulfed a two-family home last April.

Glenn was inside with his three preschool-age cousins, an 18-year-old baby-sitter and her infant when the fire, caused by a halogen lamp spread through the stairwell on the first floor. He alerted the sitters, who saved her infant, before taking his young cousins outside. Glenn then went back inside and alerted residents of the second floor.
New GER to take effect for the Fall 2000 semester

By Brian Pedersen
Assistant News Editor

A change in the General Education Requirements, implemented by the University Senate, is expected to take effect Fall 2000, according to senate members.

Questionnaires were distributed to 432 eligible faculty members last semester. Out of the 301 who voted, 180 (59.8 percent) voted yes to the change, while 121 (40.2 percent) voted no, according to Dr. Helen Roberts, the Graduate Coordinator for the department of mathematics and computer science.

Instead of a total of 58 credits needed for the GER, students now have 57 required credits for graduation. 47 of these will remain the same while the remaining 10 will consist of these new courses.

This new curriculum includes a 1-credit course called New Student Experience, and 3 interdisciplinary courses dealing with contemporary issues in science, U.S., and international areas, Roberts said.

"The new GER is combining core experiences as well as the component of the major requirements. The major is separate, this doesn't affect that at all," said Roberts. Roberts hopes that if every student takes these same courses, then each student could take part in a more unified learning community in which ideas learned in the classroom could then be discussed with other students.

"Our committee spent 4 1/2 years generating this new GER proposal. Now it's a matter of setting up the committee to implement this change and that will take time," Roberts said.

"I imagine in Fall 2000 it will be instituted," said Dr. Alyce Miller, professor of English and Chair of the University Planning Committee.

Miller was on the original committee that assessed the need for a new GER requirement.

"Our charge was to review the requirements and then see what colleges around the country were doing," said Miller.

Currently, the committee is in need of a chairperson to organize and implement the necessary stages of the GER change, according to Dr. Richard Wolfson, president of the University Senate.

Miller felt there was a great among students and faculty on campus that the current GER was not up to par. She hopes that this will soon change.

"First of all, what I'm finding is that this school has the most GERs to graduate that don't necessarily help you," said Ursula Jessup, a communications major.

"If they are not comparable to the educational systems of our rival nations such as Great Britain and Japan, then it shouldn't be implemented," Jessup said. Wolfson insists that the purpose of a new GER course like the New Student Experience is not to add more credits or delay graduation, but to act as an orientation device for students. "The committee has worked very hard for a long time conceptualizing a new GER but the work is not over. We have a considerable amount of work left to make their vision a reality," Wolfson said.

Phonathon surpasses $50,000 goal

By Liz Voltman
Special to The Montclarion

The Annual Fund and Alumni Relations coordinated the Alumni Phonathon and raised more than $80,000 in pledges for Montclair State University, surpassing the $50,000 goal. During 12 evenings throughout February, over 50 student callers phoned MSU alumni to request critical, private financial support.

"Because the state provides less than half of the University's operating funds, the support raised annually through the Alumni Phonathon is vital to Montclair State's livelihood. The generous support received from alumni underwrites a variety of student scholarships as well as programming for campus-related events and the Alumni Association," said Barbara Krusko, Annual Fund Director. "These funds ensure that the University can continue to maintain the level of excellence it has proudly offered students since its founding in 1908."

"The success of this year's Alumni Phonathon can be greatly attributed to the enthusiasm of our loyal student callers and the generosity of MSU alumni. The students' energy and perseverance made them a pleasure to work with," said Joan Voltman, Phonathon Assistant.

"Participating in the Alumni Phonathon was a great experience due to the pleasant working atmosphere and it was great to see so many students working for such a worthy cause," said freshman Kristen DeNuzzo. "So many of the alumni I spoke with were pleasant and glad to share stories from their days at Montclair State. I certainly plan to sign up to work the next phonathon."

When phonathon resumes in the fall, the Annual Fund once again will recruit MSU students to help raise these critical funds for the University.

A Newark resident plead guilty to criminal sexual conduct and endangering the welfare of a child after attending an off-campus party at Clove Road earlier this month, according to Star-Ledger reports.

Joseph Koehler Jr., 23, appeared in front of Superior Court Judge Joseph A. Falcone in a Paterson courtroom and plead guilty to the charged accounts. As the third of five people charged in the case to accept a plea bargain, he agreed to testify, opposing two other defendants in the case.

Koehler, possibly facing up to four years in prison, admitted touching a 15-year-old girl while two other men tried to have sex with her. All were drinking at the party that evening. The girl left the party and passed out in the nearby woods.

The others involved in the case, John Carmelo of Kearney, 22, and Deanna Stevens of West Paterson, 19, both arranged to testify in exchange for dropped or reduced charges.

The other two defendants, Antwain Curry, 20, and Sam Damato, 22, were also charged with aggravated assault.

The case is still in court and there will be upcoming trials along with present plea bargains.

"This is an isolated incident and we've had nothing like this since then," Lt. Paul Cell of the Department of Safety and Security said.

WebDorm: provides students with an insider's view of college life

By Christine Tatum
College Press Exchange

The views in this dorm room are any thing but interesting. Just ask the one who lives here.

He'll be the first to tell you there's not a whole lot to look at, unless you're really into watching someone sit and type and type and type some more. Oh, yeah, and maybe throw a guitar every now and then or chat with friends.

Welcome to WebDorm.com, an Internet site where the mundane aspects of student life are entertainment. Brought to the world by a start-up company based in Boston called College Web, Inc., the site allows viewers to peek into the rooms of college students across the country. The project launched Feb. 1, featuring eight students who purportedly attend Bentley and Trinity colleges, Brandeis and Cornell universities, the University of Vermont, The State University of New York at Albany and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

A "Great Lakes" version debuted Feb. 8 with students from Albion College and Bradley, Eastern Michigan, Illinois State and Oakland universities. Two weeks later, students from a few schools in Florida, the Universities of Central Florida, Florida and Miami and the State University, popped up. Company reps say they will eventually want everyone to see the private lives of students in the US.

During the site's first week online, daytime viewers were hard pressed to find any of the students who have assumed aliases and are generally referred to as "Web Dormers," in their rooms. To give voyeurs their cameras' lenses on piles of clothes, inside closets, and, in one case, a white wall.

Believe it or not, that's the beauty of it all, said Allison Mahoney, marketing manager for College Web.

During the site's first week online, daytime viewers were hard pressed to find any of the students who have assumed aliases and are generally referred to as "Web Dormers," in their rooms. To give voyeurs something to look at, the students trained their cameras' lenses on piles of clothes, inside closets, and, in one case, a white wall.

Believe it or not, that's the beauty of it all, said Allison Mahoney, marketing manager for College Web. People who want to know more about what college life is really like, particularly high school students, can get a better idea by checking out the new site, where Web Dormers "chat" with viewers on a regular basis and post journal entries about their ups and downs. (I got back with my girlfriend. Hopefully it will work out this time," one entry from a Web Dormer calling himself "Dad Boy.",)

And if that's not enough, visitors to the site can learn from each other by participating in chat rooms that are available even if none of the other cameras on camera are at home, Mahoney said.

Chat during the first week included proper etiquette at the F-word, and sexually suggestive comments to the people appearing on camera, particularly women, that College Web posted a statement warning that "lewd, crass, obscene, inconsiderate and harassing behavior is not tolerated and is noticed and logged at all times." The effort didn't seem to deter one visitor, who tried to lure a young woman seen in a Web Dormer's room into an online chat. "Who is babe at (the) computer?" the visitor asked. "She is a beautiful baby. Somebody get her on here. Hey...get her on here. Can you hear me you beautiful baby? If you can hear me, turn the brightness down because I can't see your beautiful baby face.

WebDorm is roughly the equivalent of looking online at an endless photo album. Images from Web Dormer's rooms don't come with sound and are updated every 30 seconds with help from a small camera that can be positioned anywhere or turned off anytime. A poster slapped across the door of each Web Dormer's room warns visitors that they will be on camera once they enter. Why would anyone subject themselves or their buddies to such scrutiny? "I really like being known and getting to know other really nice, intelligent people," said one Web Dormer from Brandeis who is using the alias "Smoot." "I didn't think this would negatively impact me or my friends because I have discretionary control over what I am going to let the camera see. And I'm not going to be getting dressed or naked in front of it. And there will be no major displays of affection. If I don't want people to see something, I can point the camera at my books or some staff...

with hands and heart, Nelson Nirenberg leads MSU’s orchestra to dramatic crescendos. As director of the Orchestral & Conducting Studies Program and Associate Professor of Music at MSU the “Acclaimed Brazilian Maestro…” as Jornal de Commercio titles him, feels passionately about having his students succeed. “I care for them [the students] as if they were my own. I want them to learn as much as possible and enjoy the learning process. To learn, however, one needs focus, an open mind and willingness.”

How does the professor/conductor/director get students to open themselves and commit to their work? Nirenberg adamantly professed, “You may think you are only a grain of sand, but every star shines…each one of you can make a change.” Maybe it is Nirenberg’s early successes that cause him to push his students toward dedication. At age 15, he was the youngest musician ever invited to play in Argentina’s Bariloche International Festival and to perform and tour with the World Symphony Orchestra. By 18, Nirenberg was already a conductor and soloist with the Brazilian Symphony Orchestra at the Interlochen Festival and in Israel with the World Symphony Orchestra.

Nirenberg is about being professional and teaching his students to be. He stresses to his students the serious opportunities they have to create something wonderful if they apply themselves and make music number one in their lives. Perhaps his passion and dedication generates to his students, or perhaps he helps students see that they have the ability to further their talent. Everyone does have potential if they are willing to work.

“I abhor laziness,” says the professor of Orchestra and Introduction to Music and Conducting. He wants to see his students succeed and he is determined to see the music played with passion so he admits it is a “tough love,” with his students. Nevertheless, student Anthony Peeples wrote in a letter to Nirenberg, “…you, the professor, tried and succeeded in helping us, the students, in achieving our maximum ability. You emphasize to us that we should never go through life doing things half way, or just for simple benefits. We should put our minds and souls into what we do and try to get the most out of it.”

Many students expressed their knowledge of Nirenberg as professional and experienced. Student Carrie Howe writes on taking a class with Nirenberg, “It was a fantastic learning experience! I feel you have a tremendous amount of knowledge of the music world and to share this with us is fantastic.”

The “fiery passionate soul,” as Noticias del Mundo described him, stays at MSU because of the possibilities of the program and the students. Not only is it a wonderful experience for him to be close to the cultural city of New York, but Nirenberg feels the faculty members are interested and enthusiastic about seeing the students succeed. One of the missions Nirenberg believes artists have is to share their professional experience with the next generation. “When they leave my class I hope they’ve accomplished something.”

“Whatever you do in life, you must do with a passion,” affirms Nirenberg. Indeed, “When your heart is in your dream, then no dream is too extreme.”

Cruel Intentions will leave you breathless

By Dominick Banks

The tradition of Dangerous Liaisons, Cruel Intentions is definitely the new movie adaptation, which truly rediscovers ultimate deception and treachery to the greatest extent imaginable. The film stars Sarah Michelle Gellar (The Protégé of the Vampire Slayer) who portrays Kathryn Mertesvill, the voluptuous, devil-incamer who uses sex as her ultimate weapon to manipulate those around her. She masquerades as the noble, promising, and dignified lady of integrity to conceal her vipershot dark-side. Ryan Phillippe (Playing By Heart) delivers a three-dimensional portrayal of Sebastian Valentum, the ruthless and cunning master manipulator who tempts his innocent and pure female prey by deviously using sex and lustful persuasion.

The movie becomes intriguingly enticing as the two make a bet on whether Sebastian can seduce the beautiful and chaste Annette (Reece Whitterspoon), the daughter of the new headmaster, into his bed. If Sebastian fails to convince Annette to sleep with him, then Kathryn receives his magnificent car. If Sebastian triumphs in his quest, then Kathryn will give him the satisfaction of having sex with her in any way he chooses.

Sebastian uses his charm and sexual strategies to persuade Annette’s mind with impure thoughts of intercourse. However, Sebastian is shocked to discover that Annette is no fool. She reveals to Sebastian that she sees right through his pretty boy image and his scheme to sleep with her. However, Sebastian doesn’t give up easily in his conquest, especially with Kathryn using her body to further entice Sebastian.

However, the plot begins to twist as Sebastian develops feelings for Annette that he has never experienced before. The movie intensifies as Annette gives in to Sebastian’s charms and they make love. Kathryn becomes jealous of Sebastian’s newfound love, and threatens to expose him to her. After Sebastian breaks off his relationship with Annette, Kathryn reveals that she set him up the bet to conquer him by making him destroy the only love he will ever know. The climax begins to unfold as Kathryn invokes her wrath upon Sebastian resulting in his disastrous fate which leaves Annette in utter mourning and a bitter smile on Kathryn’s face.

Indeed, the film’s director Roger Kimble has succeeded in reinventing the characters of Dangerous Liaisons played by Glenn Close and John Malkovich. Sarah Michelle Gellar delivers her dastardly role with extreme excellence and Ryan Phillippe amazes the audience in his role as the master manipulator who was outwitted by his own stepfather.

The film does exceed the limits of eroticism and the issue of sex in every shocking detail. There is also the issue of homosexuality which refers to Blaine Tuttle (Joshua Jackson). Sebastian’s gay confidant who seduces Ronald, and a lesbian encounter between Kathryn and the naïve and cute Cecile (Selma Blair) which includes intense tongue-kissing.

Cruel Intentions provides entertainment for the audience. The cast was well-chosen, and the plot was crafted with efficient ingenuity. I give this an A+ for its realistic exploration into a world where lust, the need to dominate by sexual means, and revenge can bring out the worst in any young adult.

Caribbean In My Sol debuts

On March 4, renowned Caribbean artist Peter Wayne Lewis made his grand appearance in Calcia audio-rium to give a lecture on his artworks. Lewis was born in Kingston, Jamaica and emigrated to California in 1962. Since then, he has dedicated his life using his talent for art to create art that is unique, inspiring, and the visual and auditory quality and the value of being human are combined. The lecture opened with Lewis illuminating his works on slides for the onlookers.

Some of the slides showed paintings that are enigmatically crafted in long, rectangular shapes suggesting the application of his 3-dimensional style. Lewis builds these images by using blank paper and manipulating the different paint colors over the pallete. The oil and textures that were added to his works were included in his category of "things that inspire me." He also applies physics in his work. Since physics is the examination of what matter is, Lewis is combining chaos and gravity together.

Mrs. Lewis commented on her husband’s concerns and hopes for his art pieces. “His concerns are really more focused on spirituality and more universal in a sense of ourselves, which ultimately in-volve God. Peter [Lewis] is always being pushed by his determination to create more art. His creations are mostly figurative and abstract. People can relate to his work as a human representing other humans. It’s all about placement. [Lewis] has this spectacular talent of playing with people’s perception of his drive. It is to continue with what he’s interested in and to inspire all human beings to be themselves.”

This is a man who has successfully earned his place in the art world. Lewis’ work has expanded to many countries and has been seen in a large range of environments. His works are focused around geometrically intriguing figures that define his intelligence. Surely his future art pieces will continue to enlighten and appeal to our inner selves.
Soloist Alexander Knox on clarinet at Monday’s Music Rehearsal.

Ah, the trials and tribulations of MSU’s orchestra rehearsals! The members strain for perfection under Nelson Nirenberg’s conducting. Although it is hard for many members to live up to Nirenberg’s expectations, “it is nice to work with a seasoned professional,” said ex-percussion member, Jamie Szeinberg. Also, there is a certain amount of satisfaction performing in a concert, and having all of the semester’s hard work pay off.

For music majors, being a part of the orchestra means having “orchestra class” which is four to six hours of practice each week that is only worth half a credit. Is it? Orchestra experience, a taste of professionalism, and the practice and recognition perhaps gained from the commitment is worth more than students may ever know. For, in any art there is a degree of sacrifice and commitment.

Despite the setbacks, being a part of the orchestra is a privilege for many. Each semester, the orchestra puts on one concert. This semester marked a rare occurrence with a competition for selected soloists to perform in this spring’s concert of concertos.

Piano professor, David Witten, explained the significant meaning of concerto, “Concerto is one soloist against the orchestra...David vs. Goliath, the solitary hero faces the crowd....” These pieces not only symbolize the emotion of the times, but they show the remarkable ability musicians have to work with a group and be supported, but also, “...know when to shine above the orchestra alone.” said ex-member and trumpet player, Christopher Rice.

This concert features many invigorating pieces like Mozart’s Clarinet Concerto in A Major, and Mendelssohn’s Violin Concerto in E Minor. The result of the competitions are violin soloists, Chris Nam and Magda Czakowska, clarinet soloist Alexander Knox, piano soloist Salustriano Mallino, trumpeter soloist Joe Stella, and tenor soloist, Peter Bauch.

Knox, a player of three instruments, a First Chair in All State Wind Ensemble and Orchestra, and a participant of the Philharmonics of Southern New Jersey, “Likes seeing a reaction and creating something unique.”

What is the appeal of music besides its incredible power to promote feeling and thought? Well, to some students like Knox, “It comes naturally to me.” Maybe music is a key to the true genius in all of us. With music, one may enter a deeper level of imagination and a higher expansion of realism. When listening to music each individual can fade away into whatever world he or she wants. As Nirenberg said, “Where words end, music begins.” May the orchestra members succeed in creating their own musical language and provoking passion and sparking their audience’s imagination.

These exciting performances will take place in late April for those wishing to attend. The Collegium Musicum Concert will be held on April 24th at 8p.m. in McEachern Recital Hall, room 15. The Orchestra Concert will be held on April 26th at 8p.m. in Memorial Auditorium.

Do you think that underage and binge drinking are a problem on campus?
No, the administration makes it out to be worse than it is. Nothing is going on that hasn't been happening for the last 30 years on college campuses.

Chris DeMarco, Psychology

No, I definitely think it occurs a lot but I don't see it as a problem... People have fun... This is college, right?
Allison Ordino, English

Yes. I think both are prevalent on campus, whether it is a problem or not remains to be seen.
Austen Harcerode, Geo Science

No. I think underage drinking in high school was a problem but, in college, it's a whole new ballgame. And if it's a problem, me and about 10,000 other students are guilty as charged.
Davis Cruse, Business

No, because college is the only time when we can have fun... but we also have to know our limits.
Eva Cierlo, Undeclared

No, it's college. You're supposed to drink. It's not as if it's out of control.
Ana Lottore, Undeclared

No, because I learned that only 35% of students on campus binge drink. Is that a problem? I don't think so.

THE MONTCLARION

CLASSROOM DOORS REMAIN OPEN

Despite on-campus accumulations of up to eight inches of snow by Monday morning, MSU decided to stand firm and keep the doors to its classrooms and facilities open. Even though maintenance workers from the Physical Plant began shoveling walkways and plows took to campus parking lots as early as 11 p.m. on Sunday, residents and commuters alike found that the first day back after Spring Break was anything but easy. Signs were posted announcing the cancellation of individual classes (a familiar sight even with the lack of a campus-wide closing), commuters were left sitting in hallways, unable to return to cars buried by snowplows. Despite the efforts of Physical Plant employees, residents still complained of dangerous patches of ice. Officer Frank Marino, from the Department of Campus Safety & Security, was struck on the head by sheets of snow falling from the roof of College Hall as he tried to barricade a pedestrian walkway. As reports were confirmed that New Jersey City University, located in Jersey City, had closed and William Paterson University, in Wayne, delayed its classes until 11 a.m., MSU students were left to wonder... Why?

The closing of a university is a costly venture. Teacher and administrators are paid whether they spend the day on-campus or not. Food Services still needs to cater to the 2,000 students who reside on-campus, though the C-Store, Rathskellar, and dining halls are not able to make the money that they would on a day when commuters regularly stop in between classes. Events need to be rescheduled; meetings moved. But, in the end, how can we put a price on student safety?

A delayed opening might have been the answer. Though campus roads, as well as highways and main roads throughout Montclair, Clifton and Little Falls, were in great shape by 8 a.m. on Monday morning, horror stories from commuters were still present. One commuter, travelling up the Garden State Parkway, said that she had to leave even earlier in the morning, anticipating traffic, only to find that the plows had yet to hit the streets of her hometown.

In the event of inclement weather, according to the 1998-99 Student Handbook, "Students should assume that all courses will be held as scheduled. In case of a severe storm, daytime classes may be cancelled, but evening courses are usually held."
Montclair is hardly Maine and snowfall amounting to anything hazardous to attending class is rare. We ask that the next time that foul weather hits MSU, the administration thinks twice about the safety of students and faculty struggling to get to campus in inclement weather, and not worry as much about how a closing will affect the lining of their pockets.
The Equal Role of Men and Women in the Islamic Faith

Islam is a simple, peaceful and righteous religion. In Islam, a female is regarded not as a threat to the honor of her family or as a sex object that can be bought or sold, but as a blessing. Islam regards women in positions of prestige and prominence in family as well as society.

Islam does not subscribe to demeaning views of women such as the idea that women are to be kept indoors to prevent causing their banishment from Eden. To the contrary, Islam offers many opportunities to women, regarding them with a sense of personal and social respect.

It is important that we, as women, raise ourselves to a higher level of consciousness and awareness and do what we can to not only benefit ourselves, but also the society in which we live.

Recently, 20/20 aired a special report that portrayed Arab girls, fearing for their lives because they had furnished the American military, the American government and the military with information on the families of their husbands or brothers, and they were given up to their families, and they were waiting for the time when they would have to die for what they had done for them. This, there is something more that people who were being held in Jordanian prisons after escaping from their families for fear of their lives. Their explanations as to why they had done this were not indicative of Islamic views.

The car is still in the possession of the city.

This does not mean that his attributes may be worth more than others. And I am not ashamed to say that it makes sense that the city wishes to confiscate the vehicle of any driver caught driving under the influence of alcohol.

The driver can face a lengthy appeals process plus an almost guaranteed boost in insurance premiums. If the driver has leased the vehicle and is still making payments, those payments are not the problem of the city.

But the punishment should suit the crime, and immediate vehicle seizure does not fit such a driver. The use of car phones is associated with a four-to-fivefold increase in the risk of accidents. Does this mean a person using a cellular phone while driving should have their car taken away from them? What about someone who is eating while driving? Or someone trying to drive and follow directions at the same time? The logical progression of steps leads towards the absurd.

What makes racism so appalling is that it encourages rational thought and it recognizes the virtue of individuals and their lives or dies.

The life of a woman is equal to that of a man and should not be held in any less regard. Men should not take precedence over women. Men and women are of the same family, and such as have similar rights and duties, and their Lord promises them “Never will I waste the work of a woman among you, whether male or female, the one you being from the other.” (Quran 3:195)

Islam rests on two basic principles: the belief in Allah, that He is the One and Creator of all humankind. We are all equal individuals, with similar rights, and are obligated to serve Him. Islam has granted men and women as independent identities and clearly proclaims “to be of a woman among you, whether male or female, the one you being from the other.” (Quran 3:195)

Islam is a philosophy consistently making its voice heard in this country, and I am not ashamed to say that it does now. In Illinois, a man named Matthew Hale has tried to become a practicing lawyer. The problem with this is that he is a white supremacist, the self-proclaimed lawyer. The problem with this is that he is a white supremacist, the self-proclaimed lawyer. The problem with this is that he is a white supremacist, the self-proclaimed lawyer. The problem with this is that he is a white supremacist, the self-proclaimed lawyer.

Editor's note: What was the greatest thing a human being crawled through eyes of slanted men? A pitiful slave begged entrance. Sobbing I led him out to the front yard, setting locking it after me. A few minutes later I had him right where I wanted him. "Why, darling you look so sexy in thatCOUNTY," I thought. "How about me to gain entrance of anything he could get to get me back because he loved me more than life itself. You have been a thorn in my side for over a decade, and I am_... what?" He asked stupidly. I beckoned him forward and kissed him. "What?" He asked stupidly. I beckoned him forward and kissed him. I silently hoped it would bleed. The OK Boyfriend, Part Two

He didn't think, he failed to pay attention to where he was walking. He didn't see the flower bed with a few times, cause we is threw there. Since he was clinging to the edge of the windowsill, I decided to slam it on his finger at that idiotic remark. He bellowed in pain. I immediately closed the window, and caught unsaw, he lost his grip on the edge and went sailing into the prickly rosebushes. There came another howl of agonizing pain. I stuck my head out the window and shouted, "Tsk, tsk! You ruined my mother's garden!" chided, "Tsk, tsk! You ruined my mother's garden!"

MSU Hockey eliminated in first round of playoffs

Over spring break, the Montclair State University's club ice hockey team had something other than warm weather on their minds. They skated against Monmouth University on Sunday, March 7 in Wall Township's ice rink. This was the first game of the playoffs for Montclair Sate. 1998 marked the first time since the 80's that MSU has had a hockey team. The Red Hawk team competed in the Metropolitan Collegiate Hockey Conference (MCHC).

The team lost several players mid-season due to strict grade policies, but successfully continued the season playing "front man hockey" only having enough players for two line changes.

A few injuries also took a toll on the team. The Red Hawks had an idea of what was ahead of them after playing Monmouth University earlier in the season. Although Monmouth had beaten them the two games that they competed in, "It's hard to beat a team all three times," said defenseman Curt Banicki. Monmouth University beat Montclair State University 5-3. The Red Hawks went into the first period demonstrating their determination. With 20 minutes in each period, MSU scored the first goal at 18:08 by forward Darren Kester. Shortly after, they scored their second goal at 17:09 by assistant captain center Marc Gregory. MSU's spirits were let down when Monmouth also scored in the first period at 12:30. The period ended with MSU dominating 2-1.

Monmouth physically dominated the second period. With several penalties on Monclair State, such as roughing and interference, Monmouth was able to score twice, both times on a power play. The Red Hawks played as best they could considering their situation. Therefore, with the penalties and Monmouth's advantage of having both power plays, it took all of MSU's energy to defend their goal. For the rest of the second, that's just what they did.

By the third period, MSU looked tired and having only enough players for two line changes, their energy was fading. With 17:25 on the clock in the third period, Monmouth University scored again and took the lead by two.

However, Montclair Sate still had some fire in them. They took some penalties for tripping and high sticking. At 9:32, forward Darren Kester scored their third goal showing that the Red Hawks weren't going to be considered out of the game just yet. Montclair State's goalie Pete Perkowskii kept them in it with numerous saves. The fire that kept them alive also punished them towards the end of the third period. With two more penalties for roughing and cross-checking, Monmouth scored again with the advantage of a power play.

Although Monmouth University beat MSU, the Red Hawks proved on the ice that they did earn the right to play in the playoffs.

"Coming into the season as a first year team, our potential was doubted by everyone in the league. Despite the outcome of the playoffs, we surprised everyone by getting as far as we did," said defenseman Matt Calderone.

East Stroudsburg junior Megan Macauley scored a game-high four goals and had four assists, while teammates Kelley Lambert and Kristen Restivo added four goals each to steer the Division II East Stroudsburg (1-0) past Division III Montclair State (1-2), to an 18-5 victory at MSU’s Sprague Field this afternoon.

Macauley’s first goal came as an unassisted tie-breaker after the Red Hawks opened the game with three goals over the first 11 minutes of play.
