MSU Hosts First Senate Debate

Senator Robert Menendez and his opponent, Republican State Sen. Joe Kyrillos, was broadcast on several news aggregators including NJTV, WBG0, WNYC and C-SPAN. Moderated by Mike Schneider of NJTV, the two candidates debated over several hot button topics, including Medicare, tax cuts, national debt, foreign policy and abortion.

Susan Cole, in her introduction to the debate, gave a message to the student body: “I encourage students here and throughout the state to be actively engaged in considering the issues and the candidates and to participate in the electoral process.”

Kyrillos was the first to give his opening statement, painting himself as a product of the American Dream and a man who stands for progression in the Senate. He finished his opening statement by giving his closing remarks. Menendez summed up his final statement by reiterating that he is a man who represents the people and that he will do what is right for the people.

Senators Menendez and Kyrillos debating many issues in Lebanese Hall at the Cali school of music.

Shuttle Changes Drive Students Away from Diner

The Red Hawk Diner has been the on-campus place to go for late night meals with friends for over a decade now. With their delicious shakes topped with mountains of whipped cream and curly fries that make mouths drool, how could anyone resist? Their reasonably priced American cuisine has appealed to students since its opening, and to this day has seen a constant flow of business and hungry stomachs. With the recent construction on campus within the past year, the Red Hawk Diner cannot help but no-

Vehicles ticketed, booted and towed for car show

Students received quite a surprise when they realized their cars had been towed from the lot next to Dinallo Heights on the weekend of Sept. 29. A car show taking place in the lot was to blame. Police towed 14 students’ cars from this lot to make room for the show. However, many students are claiming there were no notifications from the university that their cars would be towed. According to Parking Services, a sign was placed in the lot letting students know that their cars would be towed for the car show if they remained in the lot, but there was no campus wide e-mail sent. These students claimed they did not see the sign. The morning of the car show, their cars were ticketed and towed from the lot. Students then had to pay to get their cars out of the impound lots they were being held in. However, an even bigger shock came when students realized that the impound lots were closed over the weekend. As a result, students had to wait until Monday to get their cars.

Student vehicles in Lots 23 and 23N were towed because of a car show that was held on Sunday, Sept. 30.

These Boots Aren't Made for Walkin'

Brittine Ungano

Student vehicles in Lots 23 and 23N were towed because of a car show that was held on Sunday, Sept. 30. Vehicles ticketed, booted and towed for car show

Students received quite a surprise when they realized their cars had been towed from the lot next to Dinallo Heights on the weekend of Sept. 29. A car show taking place in the lot was to blame. Police towed 14 students’ cars from this lot to make room for the show. However, many students are claiming there were no notifications from the university that their cars would be towed. According to Parking Services, a sign was placed in the lot letting students know that their cars would be towed for the car show if they remained in the lot, but there was no campus wide e-mail sent. These students claimed they did not see the sign. The morning of the car show, their cars were ticketed and towed from the lot. Students then had to pay to get their cars out of the impound lots they were being held in. However, an even bigger shock came when students realized that the impound lots were closed over the weekend. As a result, students had to wait until Monday to get their cars.

INSIDE

news

feature

a&e

opinion

sports

Who Else Can “Like” Your Status?

Why Don’t You Just Leave!

Electronic Weirdness: A Look at Swedish DJ and Music God

Cyber-Passion

MLB Playoffs Underway
Pelican Police Report

On Oct. 3:
- Patrol responded to the radio tower off of Clove Road for a reported burglary. Items were taken and the place ransacked. A suspect was identified. This matter is under investigation.

On Oct. 7:
- A female visitor reported the theft of her MacBook Pro from an unsecured vehicle inside of the NJ Transit Garage. This matter is under investigation.

On Oct. 8:
- A male student reported his unsecured vehicle burglarized and items taken while it was parked in Lot 45. This matter is under investigation.

On Oct. 9:
- Alexis Cummings, 20, of Mount Laurel and Nicole Hargrove, 20, of Marlboro were arrested for possession of marijuana while in Sinatra Hall. They are scheduled to appear in Little Falls Municipal Court.
- A female resident of Sinatra Hall reported being harassed by her roommate. This matter is being handled through Residence Life.

On Oct. 10:
- A female student reported having a dispute with one of her professors after she was asked to leave class. This matter is under investigation.

On Oct. 6:
- A female student reported having a dispute with one of her professors after she was asked to leave class. This matter is under investigation.
- A female student reported being harassed by her roommate in Blanton Hall. This matter is being handled through Residential Education and Services.

On Oct. 6:
- Samuel St. Juste, 22, of Boonton was arrested at Memorial Auditorium for defiant trespass. He is scheduled to appear in Little Falls Municipal Court.

On Oct. 9:
- A female resident of Sinatra Hall reported being harassed by her roommate. This matter is being handled through Residence Life.

Corrections
- The Montclarion’s copy desk corrects its factual errors. If you think we’ve made a mistake in a story, please call Editor-in-Chief Lori at ext. 5230.

The Montclarion is a freely distributed newspaper providing one copy per person. Additional copies are $0.25.
In today's tech-savvy society it's almost impossible to find a college student who doesn't have at least one active account with a social-networking site. But the costs of having multiple accounts with these sites may soon outweigh the benefits.

Facebook, Twitter and Instagram are only some of the many sites that college admissions officers are scanning to see if the way a student presents himself on their college application matches their behavior on their private pages.

It may seem reasonable for employers to use social networking sites as a tool to decide whether a potential employee is qualified for the job, but it is right for college admissions officers to determine if you will be a good student by what's on your Facebook page?

A recent survey conducted by Kaplan Test Prep shows that every year schools are discovering more harmful material through Face- book and Google. This negatively portrays prospective students and decreases their chances of accep- tance.

The results of the survey discovered that while the number of college admissions officers' looking at these sites has only slightly in- creased, the amount of damaging information found on these pages has drastically increased from 12 to 35 percent this year.

Jeff Olson, Vice President of Data Science for Kaplan Test Prep, explains that a few years ago social media meant looking at just one or two major websites (Myspace, Face- book) but now students are able to socialize through various channels.

"This increase in social media has therefore increased the level of comfortability students have with sharing parts of their personal lives. "We're seeing a growing cultural ubiquity in social media use, plus a generation that's grown up with a very fluid sense of privacy norms. In the face of all these trends, the rise in discovery of digital dirty laundry is inevitable," Olson said.

While some students like junior Linda Ly believe that, like a pro- spective job, colleague "has a right to eliminate any applicant who is un- qualified to represent their school," others don't think that their "dirty laundry" should be a determining factor in a university's decision to accept or decline their application. "It's absolutely inappropriate! You cannot tell what kind of stu- dent a person is by looking at their social networking page. A kid who is a party animal could be a great student on his/her way to becoming a great doctor or lawyer. You really can't judge a person by their page," said senior Leslie Bretzger.

 Olson, however, believes that sites like Facebook and Instagram simply provide a more raw, uncom- aed look at an applicant's life.

"With regard to college admissions, the traditional application, the essays, the letters of recom- mendation, represent the polished version of an applicant, while often what's found online is a raw ver- sion of that applicant. Schools are philosophically divided on whether an applicant's digital trail is fair game, and the majority of admis- sions officers do not look beyond the submitted application, but our advice to students is to think first, Tweet later," he said.

To learn more about how to pro- tect your digital footprints, visit kaptest.com/socialmediatips.

Other peers aren't the only people who take a look at your Facebook Wall.

Stephanie Apuleo

A recent poll shows that 90% of the college-bound population has an account on at least one social networking site - and 38% have at least two accounts on different platforms. People are spending an average of 16 hours a week online, and 40% of that time is spent on Facebook.

International News

Former Penn State assistant football coach Jerry Sandusky is likely to spend the rest of his life in jail. A judge sentenced him to at least 30 years in prison.

Toyota Motor Corp. is recalling 7.43 million vehicles in the U.S., Japan, Europe and else- where around the world for a faulty power- window switch.

The pharmacy responsible for manufactur- ing contaminated steroid shots suspected in a meningitis outbreak, which has killed 12 and sickened more than 120, set up a recall center to properly remove its products.

The U.S. military sent a task force of more than 150 planners and other specialists to Jordan to help armed forces handle a flood of Syrian refugees.

Two young girls and a 14-year-old Pakistani activist, who won international acclaim for her work promoting peace, were shot and seriously injured Tuesday, Oct. 9 in the town of Mingora in Swat Valley, Pakistan.
JOHN J. CALI SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Kaleidoscope

Don’t miss this 90-minute non-stop showcase featuring music of all styles: choral, orchestral, band, jazz, vocal, chamber, musical theatre, and solo instrumental.

Oct. 12 • 7:30 p.m.
Oct. 13 • 8:00 p.m.

An Evening with
Tracy K. Smith

2012 Pulitzer Prize winner for poetry
No charge - Tickets required for admission

Join us for this sixth installment in a series of public forums on the state of the arts as viewed by prominent contemporary artists and thinkers. Tracy K. Smith is an American poet whose most recent collection, Life on Mars, won the 2012 Pulitzer Prize. At times political, whimsical, and always meditative, Smith’s poems speak largely to the role of art and to the concepts of what it means to be American, dealing with the “evolution and decline of the culture we belong to.” For Smith, in her own words, poetry is a way of “stepping into the mess of experience.”

Oct. 17 • 7:30 p.m.
"I believe in America, and I believe that we can do better."

-Republican State Sen. Joe Kyrillos

Kyrillos. Menendez, who has served in the U.S. Senate for nearly seven years, responded, "I find it interesting that my opponent would like to cast all the national ills on my doorstep, but he has been in Trenton for 24 years."

This debate has shown an edgeier side of both candidates, who let the bullets fly as they got into each other's eyes. Particularly pressing issues were that of abortion and equal rights among women. Kyrillos identified himself as "restricted pro-choice," meaning that after the second trimester he was against the act of abortion.

Menendez offered a biting ridicule of Kyrillos' stance, said "We cannot afford [a candidate] who is multiple choice."

In terms of equal health care for women, Menendez brought up a strident point. "When [Kyrillos] had an opportunity to vote for women in terms of their health care, he voted no, not twice, but six times against women's health care in our state."

Schneider then prompted Menendez with a question regarding Menendez's relationship with Gov. Chris Christie, describing it as "chilly."

"Wouldn't it be better with one enemy [this being a colleague of Menendez] and one friend [of the governor] in the Senate," said Menendez.

"If I was enemies with the governor, I wouldn't have helped the governor get one of the best insurance pools under the new Affordable Care Act. His administration asked me to get a good deal from the Department of Human Services, I did." Kyrillos responded, "The things you cite with regard to your work with the governor and the state government, those are things that you should do."

Urging from the side were divided. Their ultimate stands were Kyrillos for change and a set of new policies and ideologies, and Menendez's experience and purported, refined sense of judgment in U.S. Senate matters.

The latest debate took place yesterday, Oct. 10 at 7 p.m. Keep your eyes peeled for information on the next debate this Saturday.

Know Your Candidates

Robert Menendez was sworn into the U.S. Senate on Jan. 18, 2006. Menendez serves on the U.S. Senate Committee on Finance; Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs; and Foreign Relations. He is also the Chairman of the Banking Subcommittee on Housing, Transportation, and Community Development and the Foreign Relations Subcommittee on Western Hemisphere, Peace Corps and Global Narcotics Affairs. Menendez led the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, preserving a Democratic majority in the Senate in the last election despite the most difficult political environment for Democrats in a generation.

Menendez earned his Bachelor of Arts degree from St. Peter's College and his law degree from Rutgers University. He lives in North Bergen and has two adult children, Alicia and Robert.

Joe Kyrillos began his career of public service when he successfully ran for the New Jersey General Assembly. After two terms, he was elected to the State Senate where he has served since 1992. In 2009, Kyrillos served as chairman of Chris Christie's campaign for Governor. Through his sponsorship of the State's Business Incentive program and other economic incentives, he has helped to create thousands of jobs. Kyrillos graduated from Hobart College and holds a Master's Degree from Boston University. He has also had a career in the private sector, and his business experience has helped prepare him for his mission. He, his wife and their two children live in Middletown in Monmouth County.
At the request of Commuter Association Resources and Services (CARS), Parking Services authorized the closure of Lots 23 and 23N for a car show being held on Sept. 30.

According to Facilities Services, a sign was placed on Sept. 26 in Lot 23, indicating that the lot was going to be closed and all vehicles remaining would be towed. On the day of the event, 14 vehicles were towed due to the fact that they had not been relocated to a different lot.

Student Bella Milstein was one of those students whose car was towed. She arrived at the lot to find that all of the cars that were once there were now gone. A friend of Milstein’s informed her they towed everyone’s car because of the car show going on. When Milstein spoke to a police officer, the officer explained that there had been signs indicating there was a car show going on and that the lot would be closed. He then went on to explain barricades were put up closing off the lot.

This came as a shock to Milstein, because there were no barricades up when she parked her car Saturday night after running errands. Milstein e-mailed Perry Eggleston, Director of Parking Services, in distress and told him that there were no barricades, she saw no signs and her car was towed. He told her that signage had been put up and apologized for not sending a mass e-mail.

Milstein’s car, as well as 13 others, were booted and towed. She had to pay a ticket of $50 and $197 to release her car from the impound lot.

“Not everyone goes to their car that frequently to notice a sign being put up. This is an awful situation and now that I, along with many other residents and commuters, do not have my/her car, tomorrow is going to be a disaster,” stated Milstein in an e-mail to Eggleston.

“Communication is key and I thought we agreed... email was the most efficient way of communicating to such a large community,” said Milstein. “This is not fair to anyone who has to pay those exorbitant fees to get their car back for a fault of parking services not being able to communicate.”

The officer that Milstein spoke with the day of the car show said that there was probably a “hoonigan” that took the signs and barricades away. Unfortunately, Milstein and 13 others still had to suffer.

In hindsight, parking services believe they could have done more to alert students that they needed to move their vehicles to accommodate the car show.

“Accordingly, we have commenced contacting the 14 affected students to inform them that their towing fees will be refunded in full, and any tickets they received will be waived,” stated Dr. Timothy Curry, Associate Vice President of Facilities Services. “We are only interested in treating our customers fairly, and we believe that the action we are taking demonstrates this commitment.”

HELP WANTED

Production Editor for The Montclarion
Looks great on any resume!
Hand-on experience in the professional world
Creative and fun environment
Contact msuproduction@gmail.com for more information and details!
Every day is a great day to wear a sweater or sweatshirt. They have a laid-back style, perfect for campus. Stripes are a great way to add style without having to think. There are so many colors, directions and widths to choose from — but how do you make the right choice for you?

First off, as I will always advise, always stay true to your own personal style. If it doesn’t fit you, then most likely you won’t feel comfortable wearing it.

Let’s tackle color options first. To be honest, it’s really up to you. Personally, I’m obsessed with stripes. I tend to lean towards black and charcoal stripes, as well as not so ordinary pairing of colors, such as neon orange and green. I love unexpected colors when it comes to stripes.

However, the color of your stripes is not as vital as choosing the style. For me, there are only two directions stripes can go that are acceptable: vertical and horizontal.

Horizontal stripes are dependent on their width to create a functioning outfit. I believe thick horizontal stripes work better and can be worn by any body type. The top can be loose or more tightly fitted, and still look great.

Vertical stripes are trickier. A lose fitting top with vertical stripes can add bulk. However, a more tightly fitted top can create the illusion of making you appear taller.

This style is effortless, so try to experiment. For example, a polka dotted blouse with a striped cardigan, or a striped shirt with a floral scarf, is a great way to add to this simple trend. Either way, keep trending.
Transform your life

Graduate Open House

Sunday, October 21, 2012
12 p.m. / University Hall

REGISTER ONLINE
montclair.edu/graduate

The Graduate School
MONTCLAIR STATE UNIVERSITY
1 Normal Avenue  Montclair, NJ 07043
With every organization, from the NFL to your local bakery, doing something to support Breast Cancer Awareness month, it's easy to get caught up in all the large-scale hype.

On a smaller scale, there's plenty of awareness being raised right here on campus through events at Homecoming and various smaller efforts.

Professor Fernando Uribe, part of the Department of Political Science and Law at MSU, will continue his charity towards this cause again this year in a fundraiser for the American Cancer Society and Making Strides Against Breast Cancer.

Since 2008, Uribe has hosted his annual "A Professor's Quest to Save the Breasts" fundraiser, a non-conventional but highly successful effort at raising money and awareness for a worthy cause.

Each year, the fundraiser is held at a different venue, making for a new atmosphere and fun every time. In the past, the event has been held at Wicked Willy's and Social in Manhattan and Bahama Mama's and Liberty Lounge and Grill in Hoboken. "I make it a point to host the event at a venue accessible to mass transit, so guests don't have to worry about driving after this fundraiser," said Uribe.

Uribe has raised $10,000 to date for the American Cancer Society and Making Strides against Breast Cancer. His successes have landed him the title of Pacemaker in 2010 and 2011, and an invitation to the American Cancer Society kick-off breakfast to speak on behalf of the fundraiser.

Uribe shoots for the same successes this year.

This year, Uribe's fundraiser will be held at Tonic in Times Square on Saturday, Oct. 20. The theme behind this year's fundraiser is a date auction. "It's been fun, harmless and entertaining to watch me host the auction live," Uribe said. "The auction will start at approximately 11:30 p.m. and all proceeds will go towards breast cancer research."

"Despite the critics, my form of philanthropy is fun and more importantly, it raises considerably more money than more conventional means," Uribe said.

For more information about getting involved, visit "A Professor's Quest to Save the Breasts" Facebook page.
When I began to have the courage to speak up about the abusive marriage I was in, I was often asked by others, “Why don’t you just leave?” The truth is, I did, on three separate occasions, before I finally left for good.

There are a myriad of reasons why the abused stay in abusive relationships. The list on domesticviolenceroundtable.org/about-abuse-victims-stay.html outlines the reasons for staying rather than leaving. For me, it was the attachment I had to this man who was also my children’s father. I came from a divorced home and did not want my son to grow up without his father. I also believed that he would change. After all his mother told me “just turn the other cheek” when he would do something I felt was abusive.

As time went by, I thought if I did leave, where would I go? I had talked to my mother several times about my situation. She was unsupportive and unwilling to take my son and I in. Over and over again, she said, “You made your bed, now lie in it.” If I did not have my mother to turn to, where else were we going to go? It was not like I had a well-paying job that would have afforded me to find an apartment on my own. At the time, there were also few to no shelters available for people in my situation. I was a mother of a child with disabilities. With those odds against me, there was no way we would be allowed entry. Last but not least, I risked losing my surviving child to the state if there was any hint of domestic violence. Child protective services are mandated to remove children. Eventually, I just accepted that it was better to stay then fight what was bigger then me, but it did not stop me from trying.

We had just gotten a computer with Internet capabilities. The research skills I acquired as a reporter during high school came in handy. I began to search for help outside of my state. I hit upon a shelter run by the Sisters of Mercy for women and children. After speaking with the director of the program, I made plans to leave my job and within days I did just that.

My son and I stayed there for about a month with the hope I would find a job and an apartment. Unfortunately, finding a job was difficult as I needed a car (I do not drive) to get to most places out of the area and I did not have childcare.

Through the shelter staff, I was able to get a subsidized apartment that required some type of income. I had no choice but to apply for public assistance. When abuser found out I did this, I received a phone call from him pleading with me. “If you take me to court for child support, I will kill myself. Come back home now!” I believed him as he had had a child with an uncle who actually committed suicide some years before we were together. I waited a few days before I repacked our bags and hoarded the bus back home.

Though he promised, things at home did not change as he had promised they would. Instead of finding a job, he suggested that we live on public assistance to support ourselves until one of us found employment. Somehow, he convinced me that I was better suited to find work when he said, “You’re the smarter one. The one with more experience.” Once again, I believed him, and it was true. For years I was the one supporting us before I left. As for being the “smarter one,” I’ll let you decide.

When I began to have the courage to speak up about the abusive marriage I was in, I was often asked by others, “Why don’t you just leave?” The truth is, I did, on three separate occasions, before I finally left for good. After a few months, he managed to convince me yet again he was a changed man. He began coming over for dinner regularly, spending a little time with his son and then expected us to be intimate. I did not reject these advances as I missed him. I missed us. He was taking advantage of me, but I did not really see it as that right away. I began asking him for my needs to be filled: come back home, get a job, be there for our son, move away, let’s have another child.

As time went by, I started having suspicions he was not being faithful, which made me stop engaging in sexual acts with him. I did not stop him from trying. The final straw was the morning he came by under the guise of taking his son out for the day. He appeared to be belligerent or drunk. While my son was taking a bath and as I was getting some of his clothes ready, he raped me. He wanted me to “prove I wasn’t sleeping with that (expletive). You’re mine,” he yelled. As he had his hands around my neck, looking straight into my eyes he said, “I should have squeezed harder.”

As soon as he left, I called the police. They came by and took a report. With this report, I went to court the next day and was able to get criminal and family court orders of protection keeping him away. It worked and he followed the orders. I also begged my mother to come home. Within three days, my son and I were safe and out of harm’s way.
Child Care needed in clean Clifton home for boys ages seven and nine. Friday or Saturday night each week. Jennifer (973) 868 9159

TUTORING
INSTRUCTIONS available for SPANISH & ITALIAN! If interested, call NICOLINA MAZZEO, Certified Teacher at: 973-751-3457

The “It’s Only Another Beer”
Black and Tan
8 oz. pilsner lager
8 oz. stout lager
1 frosty mug
1 icy road
1 pick-up truck
1 10-hour day
1 tired worker
A few rounds with the guys
Mix ingredients.
Add 1 totaled vehicle.

Never underestimate ‘just a few.’ Buzzed driving is drunk driving.

NOW HIRING:
Assistant Production Editor for THE MONTCLARION!

Stop by our office in SC Annex Room 133 or email msuproduction@gmail.com for details!

Email montclarionadsales@gmail.com for more information and details

EXPLORE HEALTH SCIENCES EDUCATION FAIR

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20, 2012
10 AM–1 PM
NJDH - ORAL HEALTH PAVILION
50 12TH AVENUE, NEWARK, NJ

Join us
Meet representatives from the eight schools of UMDNJ

For Info, email exploreumdnj@umdnj.edu, or visit EducationFair.umdnj.edu

Your Future Starts TODAY!
Cyber - Profiling

“W hat’s to stop admissions from doing the same? Admissions offices could look at your Facebook, but to go as far as making your profile a determining factor to be accepted to a university is absurd. Facebook is a place where we like to make jokes and chat with friends. Many of the pictures and statuses on Facebook can be taken out of context and is not appropriate for admissions to see.

College is a place where students learn about professionalism and become serious students. To punish them for pictures plagued with past mistakes is ridiculous. Facebook is a form of expression for teenagers. It’s a haven from our adult monitored world. Most parents aren’t tech-savvy enough to stalk their child’s account, so why should we feel constricted by tyranny?

High school was in the past and we all know from personal experience, college is much different. Those who have struggled in the past with making the right choices will have an opportunity to strive throughout their college experience. The opposite can be said about those who shined in high school. They can underestimate the college work load.

We understand that admissions offices are curious about the students they admit into their school, but isn’t that what our college essays are for? They are the expression of a student’s personal character. A university should administer the merit and words portrayed in a college essay. Facebook is not a reliable source to learn more about students. When you reflect on what you wrote in your college essays, it was honesty. There are secrets in college essays that someone would never admit to on Facebook. That is the true depiction of a student’s personality, not trivial websites.

It shouldn’t be the university’s concern as to what is on our Facebook accounts. What we post on it is for fun. Sometimes we may make mistakes and post something that was never meant for the internet to ogle at, but we have to learn from our mistakes.

College isn’t just about finding great students, but also students finding greatness within themselves. When students begin to take responsibility for themselves, then they will realize what is appropriate to post online. It’s understandable for the employer to look into an applicant’s Facebook. They have a right to know who they are hiring, but only until an applicant has matured through their college experience. In the words of Evander Holyfield, “It’s not the size of the man, but the size of his heart that matters.” Allow me to rephrase that, “It’s not the Facebook of a man that matters, but the size of his heart.”

Heart and passion are the determining factors of a potential college student, not a Facebook picture of a kid holding a red Solo cup.

Students Speak

Should college admission offices consider applicants’ Facebook pages in the admission process?

Maya Jackson
Freshman
Undeclared

“Yes, I believe that because some people put some crazy things on Facebook that can reveal how they really are and that can really be helpful to the psychos that start living on campus, so, yes.”

Sophia Alberly
Junior
Public Relations

“No, I feel like that’s a student’s personal thing. It’s their Twitter life or their Facebook life, and I don’t feel like it has anything to do with their academic ability, and if they actually judge you based on your Twitter, versus your academic standards, it’s kind of mean, if you ask me.”

Daniel Hernandez
Senior
Physical Education

“I don’t think so. I just feel like it’s an invasion of personal space. Overall, there’s a lot of things that people are being tagged in on Facebook, in certain pictures, and that’s not them actually posting those pictures and it’s not an actual representation of them. So, I don’t think Facebook is a good... it’s pretty much not who the person really is.”

Jessica Hoyt
Sophomore
Mathematics/Finance

“No, because that’s my personal life. I don’t think that has anything to do with my academics or how I perform.”
Romney’s “Clean” Coal the Future Face of America

The dark, dirty reality of Appalachian coal mining

It has been known to cause higher mortality rates, due to those working in mining districts of Appalachia. Not only were several of these displaced people forced to pursue higher education, because coal mining is such a highly valued industry in those areas.

The true, the dirty, the deceptive complex is West Virginia. Though politicians may change the future of the state, it’s a horrible crime to promote the industry of coal blindly, without understanding the role coal mining plays in the unhappiness of many citizens of our country.

The Process of Soul Searching and Loving What You Find

Taking the time to focus on yourself rather then others

I feel as though many of us struggle to be who we are and our peers. We seek approval, as it seems to bring about as human beings, our worries—about money, family, and our peers. We seek approval, as it seems to bring about as human beings, the proof of our existence.

In talking to some residents of West Virginia about the coal mining industry, or the drug trafficking scene, are at risk. Environments in which drug use is common, are exploited of the students who pursue higher education, because coal mining is such a highly valued industry in those areas.

The Appalachians, are considered to be one of the most impoverished states in the country. The state thrives on the coal mining industry, or the drug trafficking scene, are at risk. Environments in which drug use is common, are exploited of the students who pursue higher education, because coal mining is such a highly valued industry in those areas.

The story of those in West Virginia who have grown up in or around poverty, coal mining offers an opportunity to escape. The story of those in West Virginia who have grown up in or around poverty, coal mining offers an opportunity to escape.

The dark, dirty reality of Appalachian coal mining has the potential to do what they set their mind to. The dark, dirty reality of Appalachian coal mining has the potential to do what they set their mind to.

With recent media attention to trapped miners throughout the world, it comes as no surprise to see an unbelievably dangerous job, not only for those in the mines, but also for the health care professionals treating the leaves. For those in West Virginia who have grown up in or around poverty, coal mining offers an opportunity to escape.

The story of those in West Virginia who have grown up in or around poverty, coal mining offers an opportunity to escape.

The dark, dirty reality of Appalachian coal mining has been known to cause higher mortality rates, due to those working in mining districts of Appalachia. Not only were several of these displaced people forced to pursue higher education, because coal mining is such a highly valued industry in those areas.

The true, the dirty, the deceptive complex is West Virginia. Though politicians may change the future of the state, it’s a horrible crime to promote the industry of coal blindly, without understanding the role coal mining plays in the unhappiness of many citizens of our country.

The Process of Soul Searching and Loving What You Find

Taking the time to focus on yourself rather then others

I feel as though many of us struggle to be who we are and our peers. We seek approval, as it seems to bring about as human beings, our worries—about money, family, and our peers. We seek approval, as it seems to bring about as human beings, the proof of our existence.

In talking to some residents of West Virginia about the coal mining industry, or the drug trafficking scene, are at risk. Environments in which drug use is common, are exploited of the students who pursue higher education, because coal mining is such a highly valued industry in those areas.

The story of those in West Virginia who have grown up in or around poverty, coal mining offers an opportunity to escape. The story of those in West Virginia who have grown up in or around poverty, coal mining offers an opportunity to escape.

The dark, dirty reality of Appalachian coal mining has the potential to do what they set their mind to. The dark, dirty reality of Appalachian coal mining has the potential to do what they set their mind to.

With recent media attention to trapped miners throughout the world, it comes as no surprise to see an unbelievably dangerous job, not only for those in the mines, but also for the health care professionals treating the leaves. For those in West Virginia who have grown up in or around poverty, coal mining offers an opportunity to escape.

The story of those in West Virginia who have grown up in or around poverty, coal mining offers an opportunity to escape.

The dark, dirty reality of Appalachian coal mining has been known to cause higher mortality rates, due to those working in mining districts of Appalachia. Not only were several of these displaced people forced to pursue higher education, because coal mining is such a highly valued industry in those areas.
Drivers Seek Permission to Park Freely

This point was emphasized in an "In real life..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."

...or "in a way..."
Tim Berling, a Swedish Electronic DJ and producer better known as Avicii, has become extremely popular after the release of “Levels” (also spelled as Le7els) last year. The song samples the vocals of Etta James’ 1962 gospel ballad, “Something’s Got a Hold on Me.” The iconic DJ received great feedback and gained millions of fans around the globe after “Levels” became one of the top summer anthems in rotation. The song is played at music festivals and clubs all around the world.

Avicii has transformed from Swedish DJ to a house music god, and was the first House DJ to perform at Radio City Music Hall. He is now being looked upon as a breakout star. “My Feelings For You” is another single that became a hit. It was first produced in 1999 by a French Electronic music band named Cassius. In December of 2010 it was released and remade by Avicii and Sebastien Drums.

Avicii has become an icon within the fashion industry after Ralph Lauren sponsored him. Currently, he is performing around the United States. 2012 looks like an amazing year for Avicii!

Since Nicki Minaj’s explosive debut in the male dominated world of hip-hop, many listeners have been happy to see the reappearance of the forgotten and often misunderstood female MC in music. After Minaj’s pop cross-over success, many fans are still hungry for a stable female figure to bring the sexy back to rap. The hip-hop fan’s wait may finally be over with the entrance of newcomer Angel Haze.

Haze has been making waves in hip-hop since 2009 and recently signed to Universal Music Group. Her talent has gained her loads of press on blogs and websites ranging from Pitchfork to Complex, and her buzz has gained her thousands of fans online and offline. With hypersexual imagery and a rapid-fire array of sick and twisted rhymes, Haze is proving she has what it takes to carve her own lane in the music game. Check out her new EP “Reservation,” a free download filled with the heat that’s going to keep Haze a hot topic.

Since Frank Ocean’s “coming out,” the state of homosexuality in music has been the topic of discussion in and out of the press. With music legends constantly being asked to share their thoughts on the perceived issue, there is a pack of openly gay artists making their own moves in music without a pass from the mainstream.

At the forefront of this pack is Le1f, a fast-rapping water nymph from New York City. Le1f received loads of press after releasing the video for this single “Wut” from his Dark York mixtape a few months ago. The video soon became infamous when the urban media outlet Worldstarhiphop shared it with the headline, “This Is What Happens When Rappers Start Admitting They’re Gay?”

With all the bumps on his rise to the top Le1f is proving that his sexuality is just one facet to his musical identity and is not going to hold him back from his 15 minutes of fame.
1. "Homecoming Queen," by Hinder
   Jessica Czarneckiy – Feature Editor
2. "She Has A Girlfriend Now," by Reel Big Fish
   Nick Verhagen – Sports Editor
3. "Rock It for Me," by Caravan Palace
   Catherine Baxter – News Editor
4. "God Save the Queen," British National Anthem
   (in honor of the elected King/Queen)
   Monika Bujas – Opinion Editor
5. "Last of the American Girls," by Green Day
   Kristen Bryfogle – Asst. Opinions Editor

HOMECOMING PLAYLIST

6. "Prom Queen," by Lil Wayne
   Carley Hussain – Production Editor
   Rashard Bradshaw – Arts Editor
8. "Underground," by Ben Folds Five
   Nick Taylor – Chief Copy Editor

EURO TANS & SPA

Professional Waxing  Airbrush Tanning

"Euro Tans & Spa is awesome! I got airbrushed by two different technicians (Cat and Abbey) the results were beyond excellent. They allow you to look yourself over and say if you would like more in a certain area. Absolutely fantastic place. color was exactly what I wanted, no orange to it at all. Everyone at work was amazed at how good it looked. I have been promoting Euro Tans to everyone I know in New Jersey!!! Spray Tanning gives you instant results that last for quite some time. The place is clean and the staff is beyond wonderful!" ~ Kelly Mazzaloni Fronczak

MONTCLAIR NOVELIST DEBUTS NEW CHESAPEAKE BAY THRILLER

DEADRise

A Ben Blackshaw Novel by Robert Blake Whitehill

Reading and Signing, Eating and Drinking

DATE: Saturday, the 13th of October 2012, 12:00 p.m. – 3:00 p.m.

LOCATION: Palazzo Restaurant, 11 South Fullerton Avenue, Easy Parking at the South Fullerton Deck

Complimentary Chesapeake Bay Foods, Eastern Shore Craft Brews and Wines (Proper ID required)

For Autographed and Personally Inscribed Copies of DEADRISE ORDER BOOK IN ADVANCE:

Watchung Booksellers 973.744.7177

"DEADRise is a first rate thriller. The characters are fascinating and so real. The plot was so engaging that I could not put the book down until I finished it. I highly recommend this to all fans of the genre."

- Bill Jarblum, Motion Picture Producer

"Masterfully written, DEADRISE is a non-stop adventure of political machinations, double dealings, covert operations, and Deliverance-esque ingenuity."

- A.S. Amazon Review
School Daze is a 1988 Spike Lee classic and musical-drama that deals with the college experience inspired by Lee’s enrollment in historically black institutions. The film follows the lives of active members of the student body during the exciting and eventful homecoming weekend at Mission College. The film also dabbles in the many ups and downs that college students go through: pledging, relationships, friendships and fun are all strong topics depicted with 1980s flair thanks to Lee’s signature style, a style that make him a cinematic heavyweight.

Vaughn “Dap” Dunlap (Laurence Fishburne) is a conscious African-American student who is the film’s protagonist. Throughout the film, we watch his deep-rooted power struggle with Julian Eaves (Giancarlo Esposito) also known as Dean Big Brother Almighty of Gamma Phi Gamma Fraternity, Incorporated. Their feud is played out through Dunlap’s cousin, Half Pint, (Spike Lee) who is pledging Gamma Phi Gamma.

Written and directed by Lee, School Daze is his second full-length feature that touches on issues within the African American community that are still prominent today. The most moving is Lee’s portrayal of colorism, which is the driving force behind the feud with Dunlap and Eaves. There is the topic of what exactly is “good hair” that is fought out between the fraternities’ sweethearts. The Gamma Rays, are a pack of fair-skinned beauties who wear contacts and hair extensions while the other female crew, are pro-black students who have chosen to reject the influence of white America on their identity as African-Americans. The film is definitely a powerful perspective on college that we rarely see in films.

School Daze is a 1988 Spike Lee classic and musical-drama that deals with the college experience inspired by Lee’s enrollment in historically black institutions. The film follows the lives of active members of the student body during the exciting and eventful homecoming weekend at Mission College. The film also dabbles in the many ups and downs that college students go through: pledging, relationships, friendships and fun are all strong topics depicted with 1980s flair thanks to Lee’s signature style, a style that make him a cinematic heavyweight.

Vaughn “Dap” Dunlap (Laurence Fishburne) is a conscious African-American student who is the film’s protagonist. Throughout the film, we watch his deep-rooted power struggle with Julian Eaves (Giancarlo Esposito) also known as Dean Big Brother Almighty of Gamma Phi Gamma Fraternity, Incorporated. Their feud is played out through Dunlap’s cousin, Half Pint, (Spike Lee) who is pledging Gamma Phi Gamma.

Written and directed by Lee, School Daze is his second full-length feature that touches on issues within the African American community that are still prominent today. The most moving is Lee’s portrayal of colorism, which is the driving force behind the feud with Dunlap and Eaves. There is the topic of what exactly is “good hair” that is fought out between the fraternities’ sweethearts. The Gamma Rays, are a pack of fair-skinned beauties who wear contacts and hair extensions while the other female crew, are pro-black students who have chosen to reject the influence of white America on their identity as African-Americans. The film is definitely a powerful perspective on college that we rarely see in films.

School Daze is a 1988 Spike Lee classic and musical-drama that deals with the college experience inspired by Lee’s enrollment in historically black institutions. The film follows the lives of active members of the student body during the exciting and eventful homecoming weekend at Mission College. The film also dabbles in the many ups and downs that college students go through: pledging, relationships, friendships and fun are all strong topics depicted with 1980s flair thanks to Lee’s signature style, a style that make him a cinematic heavyweight.

Vaughn “Dap” Dunlap (Laurence Fishburne) is a conscious African-American student who is the film’s protagonist. Throughout the film, we watch his deep-rooted power struggle with Julian Eaves (Giancarlo Esposito) also known as Dean Big Brother Almighty of Gamma Phi Gamma Fraternity, Incorporated. Their feud is played out through Dunlap’s cousin, Half Pint, (Spike Lee) who is pledging Gamma Phi Gamma.

Written and directed by Lee, School Daze is his second full-length feature that touches on issues within the African American community that are still prominent today. The most moving is Lee’s portrayal of colorism, which is the driving force behind the feud with Dunlap and Eaves. There is the topic of what exactly is “good hair” that is fought out between the fraternities’ sweethearts. The Gamma Rays, are a pack of fair-skinned beauties who wear contacts and hair extensions while the other female crew, are pro-black students who have chosen to reject the influence of white America on their identity as African-Americans. The film is definitely a powerful perspective on college that we rarely see in films.

School Daze is a 1988 Spike Lee classic and musical-drama that deals with the college experience inspired by Lee’s enrollment in historically black institutions. The film follows the lives of active members of the student body during the exciting and eventful homecoming weekend at Mission College. The film also dabbles in the many ups and downs that college students go through: pledging, relationships, friendships and fun are all strong topics depicted with 1980s flair thanks to Lee’s signature style, a style that make him a cinematic heavyweight.

Vaughn “Dap” Dunlap (Laurence Fishburne) is a conscious African-American student who is the film’s protagonist. Throughout the film, we watch his deep-rooted power struggle with Julian Eaves (Giancarlo Esposito) also known as Dean Big Brother Almighty of Gamma Phi Gamma Fraternity, Incorporated. Their feud is played out through Dunlap’s cousin, Half Pint, (Spike Lee) who is pledging Gamma Phi Gamma.

Written and directed by Lee, School Daze is his second full-length feature that touches on issues within the African American community that are still prominent today. The most moving is Lee’s portrayal of colorism, which is the driving force behind the feud with Dunlap and Eaves. There is the topic of what exactly is “good hair” that is fought out between the fraternities’ sweethearts. The Gamma Rays, are a pack of fair-skinned beauties who wear contacts and hair extensions while the other female crew, are pro-black students who have chosen to reject the influence of white America on their identity as African-Americans. The film is definitely a powerful perspective on college that we rarely see in films.
It was a busy week for the Mon- clar State Women’s Field Hockey team. The Lady Red Hawks, now 20-2 on the season and 3-3 in the NJAC. Highlights of the week were when Kaitlyn Irwin named the NJAC Volleyball Defensive Player of the Week and when the team picked up its 20th win of the season.

In the first half of the week, the Red Hawks were up against the tough Baruch College squad that came into the match with a 14-6 over- all record. Baruch College came out with a 10-1 lead after 15 minutes to leave Montclair with the win. Baruch won the match in three straight sets at the Panzer Athletic Center last Tuesday evening. Marta Topor was a standout for the Red Hawks, registering 10 kills and nine digs. Alyssa Balistel, Nicole Wojcicki and Sara Gregor all had five kills each in the match for the Red Hawks. Angela Campo finished with 23 assists and Irwin recorded 23 digs.

To pick up their 18th win of the season, the Red Hawks played a good team match at home to sweep the William Paterson University Pioneers. Topor earned her sixth-assist of the season and the Montclair State Volleyball NJAC Championship Banner was handed out to the Lady Red Hawks after a successful 3-0 sweep over FDU-Florham. Senior, libero Frances Schaefer and sophomore, setter/forward, Sara Sirag both picked up their 19th NJAC Offensive and Defensive Player of the Week Honors respectively.

The NJAC Offensive Player of the Week is good enough for sole possession of first place in the conference. The Lady Red Hawks ten game-winning streak.

Both athletes have played a key role on this team during the Lady Red Hawks ten-game-winning streak, Montclair State’s overall record is 12-1, while their NJAC record is 4-0, which is good enough for sole possession of first place in the conference.

Mike Panepinto
Sports Writer

The Montclarion • October 11, 2011 • SPORTS 19

Volleyball Continues to Dominate

Kate Norgard is currently second on the team in both goals and assists with nine and seven respectively. Norgard is also tied for the team lead with 25 points.

Field Hockey Remains Unstoppable

Kate Norgard is currently second on the team in both goals and assists with nine and seven respectively. Norgard is also tied for the team lead with 25 points.

Field Hockey Remains Unstoppable

Kate Norgard is currently second on the team in both goals and assists with nine and seven respectively. Norgard is also tied for the team lead with 25 points.

Field Hockey Remains Unstoppable

Kate Norgard is currently second on the team in both goals and assists with nine and seven respectively. Norgard is also tied for the team lead with 25 points.

Field Hockey Remains Unstoppable

Kate Norgard is currently second on the team in both goals and assists with nine and seven respectively. Norgard is also tied for the team lead with 25 points.
nada, zip, zilch

(What most kids know about preparing for college.)

Without the help of an adult, it may be confusing for students to find their way to college. If you know a student with dreams of a higher education, do your part and help lead the way. Learn how at... KnowHow2Go.org  800-433-3243
The Montclair Scarlet Raiders football team suffered a devastating loss last Saturday at home to the visiting Rowan Profs, as evidenced by Rowan professors claim a 33-7 victory. This marks their first loss to the now 22nd ranked Profs since 2005, their most lopsided defeat since their New Jersey State University victory in 1996. The Profs were fueled by an offensive explosion in the second quarter in which they scored 27 unanswered points. Rowan drew first blood in the opening quarter with a 38-yard touchdown pass from senior quarterback Louie Bianchini to sophomore wide receiver Vin Fischer, the quarterback end with the Red Hawks leading 7-6. The Profs offense exploded in the second quarter, scoring on three of four offensive possessions. Senior running back Keith Concor was unstoppable as he scored on a one-yard run just over a minute into the second quarter. This was followed by the following drive when Bianchini completed a 34-yard pass to senior wide receiver Anthony Barone for a 27-yard touchdown. The Red Hawk defense went through the motions allowing 63 yards to the game and a 21-yard punt return by senior wide receiver Dan Reed took the Profs deep into Rowan territory. In the end, Bianchini capitalized on the good field position on the very first play with his third touchdown pass of the day, this time to junior wide receiver Warren Oliver. Rowan would continue to pour it on offensively, adding one more score before the half. A 54-yard pass from Bianchini to freshman running back Billy Marcolin brought the Profs to the Red Hawks one-yard line. A penalty pushed them back to the seven, but it made no difference as Bianchini hit Concor for his fourth touchdown pass as time expired to make the score, 33-7, at the half.

Montclair State University made eight-year-old Shayne James an honorary member and captain of the Rowan Scarlet Raiders football team this year. Despite entering the red zone on two occasions in the second half, the Red Hawks offense wasn’t able to put anything on the scoreboard, as the Profs held on for a dominating 33-7 victory. The Red Hawks were held to just 223 yards of total offense and were forced to go three-and-out five times in the struggle. Rowan quarterback Bianchini hit up the start, completing 19 of 24 passes, throwing for 268 yards and four touchdowns. Junior running back Bill Roman, who was filling in for the injured A.J. Scopca, rushed for 122 yards on 24 carries. Catchey went for 31, throwing for 113 yards. With the win, the now 22nd ranked Rowan Profs improve to 5-1 overall and 4-0 in the NJAC. The Red Hawks fall to 2-4 overall and 2-3 in the NJAC. The Red Hawks will be at home again on Saturday, Oct. 14 for the annual homecoming showdown against NJAC rival The College of New Jersey Lions. This will be the 80th meeting between these two teams in a historic New Jersey college football rivalry. Montclair Scarlet Raiders lead the overall series with 49 wins, 28 losses and 2 ties.
There is no cheesy slogan to prevent reckless driving.

There is no spokesperson with a catchy phrase to remind the driver to slow down, stop eating, quit messing with the radio or pay attention to the road. There's Only You. Speak Up.
Who’s Hot This Week

Dan Mendoza
Midfielder — Soccer
Mendoza made the most of his opportunities with two goals on two shots to help the No. 6 Red Hawks record wins over Rhode Island College and Richard Stockton last week. He currently ranks sixth in the NJAC in points with 18.

Frances Schaefer
Midfielder/Forward — Field Hockey
Schaefer was named NJAC Offensive Player of the Week after scoring a goal in the Red Hawks 3-2 win over Stevens. She followed this with an outstanding hat trick performance in the Red Hawks 5-1 victory over No. 3 and defending national champion TCNJ. The Red Hawks now sit atop the NJAC with a record of 4-0.

Game of the Week

Football
vs. TCNJ
October 13, 3:00 p.m.
The Red Hawks will take on the Lions for the 80th time in this historic rivalry for the annual homecoming game.

For updates, check out:
www.montclairathletics.com
and @TheMontclarion on Twitter
Don’t feel it like it was just yesterday when ESPN’s Sal Paolantonio interviewed New York Jets linebacker Bart Scott right after the team went on to beat Tom Brady and the New England Patriots in taking one step further into the playoffs. Paolantonio ends the conversation by congratulating Scott and how he looks forward to seeing them play the Pittsburgh Steelers in the AFC Championship. Scott emphatically responds with one of sports’ most famous sayings, “Can’t Wait.”

“Well, unfortunately, Jets fans probably won’t be waiting until next season to see this. Some team debracit they have to endure. Although their record stands as 3-2-1, on paper, the roster has been depleted with major injuries. Cornerback Darrelle Revis, one of the best corners in the league, went down to Bill Belichick’s New England Patriots. This situation in helping out the secondary was very questionable. It was already off to a lousy start in training camp when QB Mark Sanchez was injured. Owners asked him a question by calling him “Ted” (QB Tim Tebow). Sanchez seemed to have taken light of the mistake, by consulting, “I’m Mark” the quarterback for the Jets. Sanchez has played horribly this year, but he definitely hasn’t lived up to expectations like he did his first two seasons.

Another move the Jets made this off-season was hiring former Miami Dolphins head coach Tony Sparano as their offensive coordinator. One of the purposes of hiring Sparano was to specialize in the “Wildcat” formation. This was meant to incorporate Tim Tebow in making the offense unpredictable at any given time during the game. So far, this formation hasn’t been able to throw off any of the opposing teams’ game plans, while Tebow has a total of only 66 yards in the first five games. The Jets’ focal point last season was when they went head-to-head with their city rivals, the New York Giants, on Christmas Eve. Both teams went into the game with a record at 7-7. It was a high-stakes game with the role of “New York’s team” on the line. Most importantly, this game was a make-or-break moment with both teams in pursuit of a spot in the playoffs.

Despite this game happening last season, the Jets have fully recovered from such a devastating loss. The team’s morale certainly took a big hit, and this season has seemed to make things even more complicated. On a positive note, at least head coach Rex Ryan has slimmed down to, what looks to be, a much healthier physique. All joking aside, the AFC doesn’t look to be all that competitive this season, giving the Jets a little more hope in potential fighting for a Wild Card berth. Plus, they get to play the NFC West that, for years, has been the NFC’s weakest division despite having seen much improvement this year. That’s all depending on whether or not this team can start to figure things out by playing inspired football and turning it into wins.