Take Me To The River

The reverse construction leaves room for a lazy river that culminates in a wave pool outside the NJ Transit deck.

After nearly a year of campus-wide construction, and with the end in sight, all campus renovations have been stopped to begin a process called “reverse construction.”

Karen “Lady” Pennington announced to the student body via Skype Tuesday that the university has made the decision to “immediately stop all current construction and immediately begin to reverse all construction that has taken place over the past year.”

This came as a surprise to the many students who had to trudge through dirty sidewalks of trash and roads to get to their classes. A source close to Pennington said to assure they would have tickets to see Nicki Minaj perform at homecoming the next day when Minaj has scam of 2011 that cost the Student Government Association $27,000, Minaj has decided to perform at Montclair this April.

A heated Skype debate ended Wednesday night in a single, perhaps, definitive declaration: All shuttles will now be all-campus, sources say.

This new rule task effect immediately. The other letters have been removed from the buses. Every shuttle conspicuously displays the letter A on the side. Their LED signs, which used to say, almost mockingly, “It’s warm in here!” have changed. They now read, “Let’s go everywhere!” Students have responded in eerie nonchalance. Reports say that all of the shuttle complaints coming from students have ceased, halting a 33-year-long streak when complaints were reported almost every day. Officials declare that students are more docile now that the all-shuttle service, or ASS, ordinance came into effect. “The students have been rocked to sleep. When your baby needs to sleep, you drive them around. That’s what they’re doing now — driving babies around,” a snarky bus driver exclaimed.

In a surprising outcome, Sarah Palin, ex-Governor of Alaska, has been elected as president of MSU’s Student Government Association. Students and faculty have questioned the legitimacy of Palin’s election since the fact that the former governor beat her two opponents by a margin of over 30 percent. Voting took place online March 20 until March 27. While there were several positions being voted on, the most important was the presidency. The Student Government Association is a nonprofit organization that includes executive, legislative and judiciary branches. Its elected members represent the students of MSU and make important decisions such as those that effect student organizations.

After her contract with Fox News ended, the former governor and vice presidential hopeful seemed to be at a dead end. However, after realizing what she says is an opportunity to make a real difference in the lives of students, Palin began a national advocacy campaign that has led to her latest electoral victory.

Palin ran on the platform of limited spending and traditional values. She has stated that some of her main concerns will be to help create classes that support “traditional values.”

Some classes that Palin endorsed include “Introduction to Creationism,” “The Values of Marriage” and “The Meets of Free Trade.”

Palin has also stated that she will use what influence she has to free English professor Grover Furr.

While many students are excited for what they believe will be an exciting change of pace, others are uncertain about Palin’s legitimacy within the elections.

27th Letter?!

Lori Wierczak
Editor-in-Chief

On March 27, the Committee for Organized Words (COW) announced that the English language is officially adding a 27th letter to the dictionary.

This change was in response to 2,546 petitions submitted to the committee, calling the stagnation of the English language as the reason.

The petitioners held a rally in February, proclaiming their intentions. 10,000 people attended the rally, and riot police had to be called after petitioners began assaulting police with giant cut-out letters.

The unorthodox letter is “!?” Not quite a letter, critics have claimed, but it was the only formulaic combination of symbols that modern keyboards would allow.

Petitioners claimed that !? represents a sound that can not be equated with any one letter of the English alphabet.

Charles Oxford, a descendent of the Oxford University Press, said, “This addition is going to cost us a fortune, truly an egregious error by the COW.”

COW does not regret their decision. “Have you seen Nicole Kidman’s Cape?” Charles Oxford predicted in his explanation of the alphabet to his secretary in the film.”

Wordley feels the same way as Charles Oxford. The dictionary refuses to honor the addition and may face legal allegations pending their resistance.

For clarification, COW issued a statement: “We feel that !? is our contribution to the English language, similar to how Shakespeare invented the word ‘bedazzled’ and the way that ‘thus’ has changed to you. Languages is always changing, and we want to contribute to that.”

This is a monumental moment for the English language. President Obama has yet to comment on the addition.

Sure, the newest runway fashion is great and all, and you swore you’d practically give your first born child up for a pair of Louboutins, but if you want to know what’s really trending this month, look around your darling campus. It’s there that you will find an indefinite supply of the hottest couture for spring.

The weather will be warming up in a matter of weeks, and you’ve got to assimilate to this ASAP. But the cool spring conditions, especially in the Midwest, mean temperatures by no means ASAP. But the cool spring draping fabric will literally never feel as good as you prove you’re externally between seasons. No chills!

Thus, I give you the most stylish solution: cut-off shorts and Uggs boots. The combination is classic and can exude no to a pair of jean shorts. Whether fleece- or tie-dye-dyed, the effect is true class by keeping your long, lovely legs. Rocking your favorite truancy footwear will literally never feel as good as you prove you’re externally between seasons. No chills!

But hey, for some of us, jean shorts just aren’t it. Front pockets, back pockets, that confusing zipper and button combo in the front, it can get to be an inconvenience all too quickly. So, designed with you in mind, is the truancy yoga pant.

No buttoning, zipping or even stretching to fit into, the yoga pant will be both a comfortable and classly look. You can pair them with running shoes when you’re ready to get your sweat session on or simply pair them with boots to send your class feeling like the it-girl of the century, or at least the last five years. Now, that’s how you do vintage style.

’Spring 2013. Complimenting those groundbreaking designs are long, swirly relax shorts that aren’t quite short but aren’t too long. These shorts are this era’s “man-pris,” allowing modesty, because God forbid if anything above the knees is shown.

To compliment these two staple pieces, men should look into flip-flops and hi-top Nikes sneakers with colors that are on bright that the latest Ray Charles would have put on a second pair of sunglasses. Flip-flops with large gaudy labels are in high demand as well as the 80s/90s release of Air Jordans with soles made out of mini-squashers.

Highlighted brands for this season are Ed Hardy, Afar and Tapout. The era of slim-fit pants, Oxford collar shirts and wingtip shoes are swiftly coming to an end. If any of you guys want to keep up with the times, now is the time.

“Lookin’ like a fool wit’ those pants on the ground!” Little did they know, saggy pants is judging you. Changing in between. No one admires. Don’t even bother mates into awe-inspired admiration. Don’t even bother making extremely overpriced your own flair these fashion tips your own style. As always, make these fashion tips your own by adding your own flair such as bandeaus, temporary tattoos and funny packs. They’re all in this season. Until next time, stay fabulous!
With constant battling in the competitive job market, it’s more important now than ever to stay on top of building the perfect résumé. Now, it’s easier than ever to connect with potential employers by sending electronic résumés or personal website links via e-mail.

There’s a lot that goes into building an online résumé. There seems to be a lot of confusion as to what is appropriate to include and what is not. Should it be colorful? Should a personal photo be included?

Now, the most recently appraised addition to the electronic résumé is the insertion of appropriate emoticons, that’s right, those little personality-packed smiley faces.

Inappropriate use:
Montclair State University Psychology
Prospective graduation: May 2013

Inserting a graduation emoticon is absolutely inappropriate. The potential employer already has a mental picture of graduation, so there is no need to add an unnecessary emoticon here. Adding excessive and unneeded emoticons which do not display or further enhance your personality can not only be ineffective, but can also backfire.

Appropriate use:
Skills: Telemarketing, communication, marketing, public relations

This works well, because before the potential employer even reads what section of the résumé you are presenting, you are already creating a picture that can be associated with telephones and communication, which are the bulk of your skills. This says a lot more than just an emoticon with a smiley face. An artist, for example, would include the emoticon with a color palette over their listing of artistic skills. Make sense?

Tricks to Make Your Résumé Stand Out

While it may not be appropriate to include emoticons on a résumé when applying for a finance job, emoticons are being used prominently in résumés sent out to jobs relating to the fields of human resources, psychology, art, graphic design, broadcasting, journalism and teaching. Emoticons are not for everyone and they are not to be used irresponsibly. When emoticons are used properly and executed with creative taste, it is actually a preferred method of résumé writing.

Who Are You?

The Man, The Myth, The Legend: Steve Johnson

Jessica Czarnogursky

Any student on campus knows Steve Johnson as the kind-faced professor with an extensive background in media and journalism. The journalist who served as an integral part of the British rock band, the Who, Johnson soon became a sound he never would forget. That concert went down in the history books, ” said Johnson with a look of nostalgia in his eyes. He commented that the band played all their hits and some new tracks they wanted to try out with their growing American audience. The journalist who discussed his best-kept secrets: “That concert went down in the history books. “It looked exactly like footage from any Beatles performance,” he said. “People were really that obsessed with the Rolling Stones.” Johnson happened to stumble upon a slightly intoxicated Daltrey down one alley and invited me out for a drink. “Roger really was that open of a person. We talked for a while and then he invited me out for a drink with the rest of the band as if I were already part of his inner circle.”

As the tour progressed, Daltrey took a liking to Johnson and integrated him into the lineup. Though the Georgia boy may have looked slightly out of place with the British rebels, his vocals blended perfectly with Daltrey’s. Johnson gave The Who a sound they never could have reached with their original lineup, resulting in sold out performances and even more attention from idolizing fans.

When the tour was reaching its end with Septem-ber closing in, a rumor started to spread. All major tabloids and radio stations reported that a wide-eyed American boy would join the band for the remainder of their tour in Europe. A man dedicated to the growth of the media, Johnson declined the offer he jokes that perhaps Dal-tery’s vocals could use his help. When asked about what exactly his touring experience was like, with the rock band, Johnson could only comment: “What happens on tour, stays on tour.”

The benefits are obvious by just looking at the name. High fructose corn syrup actually comes right from corn, a vegetable, making it healthier than any other type of sweetener in the country. While the term "sugar" is often associated with health consequences like diabetes and obesity, high fructose corn syrup actually acts to fight diabetes. Since it is derived from a vegetable, this product is an excellent source of fiber, which studies have shown assists in weight management and decreases the risk for diabetes, cardiovascular disease and high blood pressure. Therefore, the benefits of HFCS even exceed those claimed by the "all natural, zero-calorie sweeteners" like Truvia.

In an attempt to increase nutrient intake from fruits and vegetables, the government made sure that high fructose corn syrup was included in just about every food product that has an ingredient list. This explosion of HFCS into the food supply had nothing to do with the fact that corn is the cheapest and most subsidized product grown in the United States. It is completely unrelated.

Now to address the current statistics showing that obesity has rapidly increased as the amount of food products containing high fructose corn syrup has increased, well that is just a coincidence. Right?

HOROSCOPES
By Madame Carley

Aries March 21 - April 19
You find your weekly routine to be repetitive and frustrating. This week, though, you will encounter something new and unexpected that will break you out of this monotonous cycle.

Taurus April 20 - May 20
You will notice that you have more free time than usual. However, just because you do not tend to be as busy this week, doesn’t mean that it’s time to lie around on the couch. Use your free time wisely to have fun and get things done.

Gemini May 21 - June 20
Before you become angry and yell at someone you believe is upset with you, put yourself in their shoes, as you may discover that this “crisis” isn’t such a big deal after all.

Cancer June 21 - July 22
You are officially overworked, but congrats because you have officially earned yourself some time to rest. Take a short break from your busy life to get your energy back. Once you do, you will feel better than ever!

Leo July 23 - August 22
Yelling and fighting with your close ones is never the best way to get what you want. Speak in a calm and mature manner to get your point across.

Virgo August 23 - September 22
Lately, people have been taking advantage of your goodwill. It is time to put your foot down and think about your own needs rather than the ones of others.

Libra September 23 - October 22
You are going to wish that this week would never end, for it seems to be full of positive and fun energy. Enjoy it to the max!

Scorpio October 23 - November 21
You will have a lot of fun and a great time in general this week. Before getting too comfortable though, set some time aside to get your work and priorities done. Having fun does not mean slacking off.

Sagittarius November 22 - December 21
This is one of those lazy weeks where you feel like staying in and doing things for yourself. Although you normally enjoy going out and seeing others, you will feel more laid back this week.

Capricorn December 22 - January 19
Even though certain deadlines for assignments seem far away, they are really not. Problems always emerge when you wait until the last minute to get things done.

Aquarius January 20 - February 18
You will be receiving a positive answer regarding something that you have suspected to be true for quite some time. It will be pretty intense, so prepare yourself. Just remember to always remain calm and not make a scene.

Pisces February 19 - March 20
This is an unlucky week when it comes to friendship. Perhaps you won’t be able to keep those plans you’ve made or maybe you’ve just gotten into a fight with a friend. Whatever the case may be, be cautious when informing friends about anything that you don’t feel comfortable with.

Signs all around campus greet visitors with a “please excuse our appearance.” Who said we ever minded it, MSU? We as students have come to embrace the construction that’s been going on around campus.

The scenic views of the trunks, gravel and debris really complement the view of the New York City skyline. For every article we’ve written in the past, we would like to sincerely apologize.

We’re now seen the benefits of construction. Sure, getting to class and parking has become a harder task, but honestly, we are students. It’s not like we have a say in the matter. We are mere children still transitioning into adulthood.

Even if we don’t attend school and live on campus, we shouldn’t have control over what work gets done on our campus. We should fully trust the board and their decision to continuously pile on construction projects. We’ve learned to embrace the benefits of construction on campus, for example: no need for alarm clocks.

If your window is fortunate enough to be near a construction site, you won’t need to spend money on a clock nor would you have to set your cell phone. The sound of the construction sites will croon their angelic melody. It’s a sooth- ing alert system courtesy of Montclair State University.

Who needs the convenience of construction detours, students will have more enjoyment finding their way to class. We can admire MSU’s once scenic skyline. For every article, you won’t need to spend money on a clock nor would you have to set your cell phone. The sound of the construction sites will croon their angelic melody. It’s a sooth- ing alert system courtesy of Montclair State University.

We should not let more animals tread on our campus. With the depletion of the geese population, campus has been a lot cleaner. Eventually, we will no longer feel the need to assert our dominance over these creatures. We will have campus all to ourselves.

We at The Montclarion support the construction efforts in their entirety. Actually, we hope that after the in- stallment of the lazy river, the school will consider ex- panding other construction projects.

Besides the construction of the new Environmental Science building, we hope that there will be an expan- sion for the School of Communication and possibly an expansion of the campus. Who knows what we can create with a campus ex- pansion. Maybe we can add a culinary school. With out construction, what will Montclair State University be? We would lose our indi- viduality. We would lose that as- pect that makes us MSU. Construction should be a continuous effort for our university, not only for the sake of expansion, but so that we may continue to be the MSU everybody knows and loves.

Forrest Gump II

Forrest Gump II is set in a time where the world is divided and the United States is at war with North Korea. The film is based on the novel by Winston Groom, which was published in 1986.

The story follows the life of Forrest Gump, a man with a mental disability who is able to overcome his challenges and become a hero during the Vietnam War. The film is a series of vignettes that showcase the impact of Forrest's life on various historical events.

The movie features a cast of famous actors, including Tom Hanks, who plays the title role. The film is directed by Robert Zemeckis, who also directed Forrest Gump.

The sequel is set in the year 2045 and is scheduled for release in 2023. The movie will be released in theaters and on streaming platforms.

North Korea Anti-U.S. Videos Use New “CGI” Technology

Since the release of the first video in 2013, North Korea has continued to use computer-generated imagery (CGI) technology to create anti-American and anti-U.S. videos. The videos are designed to incite anti-American sentiment and have surfaced on YouTube.

Forrest Gump II is looking to add this type of technology to its film. The company has already announced plans to use CGI to create a space adventure in the book, but with a monkey companion named Sue.

The film is due to be released in 2023, and industry insiders are predicting it will draw crowds simply because Hanks is involved. The question on many minds is: Why does the sequel have a space adventure?

Although there are usually between the ages of 17 and 19 when we enter college, it is an understated factor that drinking is a part of the entire experience. Montclair State has amply recognized this by in-stituting the “Annoyance Policy,” which states that if a student is under the impression their friend or fellow student has alcoholic poisoning, they can get them medical assistance with or without any academic or criminal repercussions.

This particular policy was one that I used on a warm evening last Fall.

It was outside of my building, smoking a cigarette and there was a student sitting at the shuttle stop. He couldn’t set up straight and he was falling on the ground. He had arrived at the shuttle stop by walking with his friends, but his friends had left him and there was no sign of them com- ing back.

Nervously, I approached the young man and asked him if he was okay.

He couldn’t speak clearly and it was at that time I re- alized he was heavily intox- icated about a factor I asked him if he even lived on campus, to which he replied yes. I decided that I would go inside and wish him a good night.

I went inside and informed the people at the front desk that there was a student out side who was very drunk. Shortly after meeting this in dividual, the shuttle bus ar- rived and would not take him. He couldn’t even walk in a straight line.

Consequently, I ended up calling the Montclair State Police to inform them of this individual and the state of intoxication he was in. They came and took him away on a stretcher.

I was told the following day by the people at the front desk that the EMS that showed up to assist him, believed that he had potentially saved his life.

That particular event in- spired me to revamp an idea that I once had, being a student of a run down property. Besides the extra revenue, MSU can also moni- tor their students’ alcohol con- sumption.

As of Fall 2013, the newest containment is to the campus with a perimeter of four large Hall.

The name was voted on by students that specialize in housing management. The concept behind the name is to offer safety from peers that may be concerned as to what their child is doing with their spare time at MSU.

Now if you are asked, you could simply reply “Going to study hall. I’ve got a ton of work to get done.”

“Study Hall” will be a tremen- dous benefit to the Uni- versity and the students that are enrolled in the establishment being built and then opened will be as follows.

To encourage a sense of com- munity, the students, to create revenue for the school and to also create jobs for stu- dents.

There will be interviews held this summer for the staff that will be known as “The Village People.”

Some students do not know what their relatives or friends that live off campus.

As maturing adults that pay an obscene amount of money to attend this university, we be- lieve that we are completely re-centered and extremely bored.

“I’m only Study Hall,” it will also help the university. We can focus on where the drinking takes place, as well as enforcing the drinking age.

Although it will only be opening during my Senior year, I truly believe that bar and restaurant being built has been a long time coming.
known best for her award-winning vocal talent, Rebecca Black gained attention through her hit song "Friday," which, by the end of March 2011, received over 42 million hits on YouTube. Blasted on the radio, in arenas during major sporting events and praised globally for her song's intense, complex lyrics, "Friday" was Black's golden ticket to stardom.

For the first time, the highly recommended track is "Friday," although if you haven't heard it by now, it's quite a shame. You're seriously missing out on one of the century.

In 2010, the young, humble teenager of Irvine, California, was introduced to AKR Music Factory, an infus- sional and well-reputable Los Angeles label through a music video client. Realizing that Black had a talent that could surpass any other, the label did not charge her any fees and welcomed her back to produce more singles whenever the tune felt like it.

The music video was uploaded to YouTube on Feb. 10, 2011 and received about 4,000 views during the first month. The video went vi- ral on March 11, 2011 with millions of views in a mat- ter of days with many no thumb down or nega- tive comments. Black was invited and appeared on The Tonight Show with Jay Leno on March 22, 2011, during which she performed her song and received the amazingly positive feedback. At the show, people could sit down. Everyone was cheering and singing along, breaking in the legend's voice. Jay Leno himself admitted that he never had such a genuinely talented young artist on his show before. Later that year, MTV selected Black to host its "Music Video Awards Fan Army Part 4" in April, the channel's first online awards show.

Pop singer such as Katy Perry took particu- lar interest in Black and asked her to participate in her music video for "Last Friday Night (T.G.I.F.)" as a homage to "Friday." Katy Perry stated in an interview with MTV that the music video would not be complete without Black's presence because Black was her new inspiration. As a part of her "Dream Tour," Perry rou- tinely performed "Last Fri- day Night" and even brought Rebecca with her on tour to sing a duet. Black even caught the attention of pop sensation Justin Bieber, as he stated in a press conference that he would love more than any- thing to purchase a duet with her. Pattie, Black, accepted because her style was just beyond Bieber's level.

Starting her own official debut album, RB Records, Black released a self-produced single, "My Moment," depict- ing the difference between her life before and after her fame. Her worldwide fans were overwhelmed with joy, causing the video to reach millions of views, landing her tune on top charts interna- tionally.

Her official debut album was planned to be re- leased around Oct. 31, 2012, which would include a wide variety of genres and would have spoken of many, many lessons in life, such as your ABCs. The goal of the album was to be appropriate and clean, to speak to the genera- tion of young adults and in- quiries (to be enforced by the local au- thorities) on one of her latest tracks, entitled, "Flowers Vs. Fire: Get Them On Yo Body." The president has respond- ed to her numerous letters and ensures he will consider her proposal.

By day, Editor-in-Chief Last Wizereck spends her time dispensing express and edit- ing articles for publishing in The Montclarion. By night, artist Lil’ Cupcak3$ wrecks mic after mic at every free- style event with her fiery bars in preparation for the release of her new mixtape.

Lil’ Cupcak3$ is dropping her debut album Baws For Donzor this week, featuring the iconic rhymes to be heard in the rap game thus far. Mind-blowingly rated and recognized by the queer's in the music business, Lil’ Cupcak3$’ first mixtape is projected to garner more than that of Snook Nicks. More than a million dollars, Lil’ Cupcak3$ beats can be found on ring- tones, in greeting cards and even recently, Red House Caf- feo commercials. With tracks like "Pulling shots, strong and dark like coffee, it’s almost impossible,“ how anyone with or without ears can find a way not to love that hot exotica.

With her signature triple unite-simple hair and dramatic wardrobes choices, Lil’ Cupcak3$ preaches about the real is issues, like the rammed dis- continuation of Barack and the next SGA president. Her most recent project includes her nomination to make for a final (unall- mandatory for all U.S. citizens he or she who career (to be enforced by the local au- thorities) on one of her latest tracks, entitled, "Flowers Vs. Fire: Get Them On Yo Body.

The president has respond- ed to her numerous letters and ensures he will consider her proposal.

Lil’ Cupcak3$ raps her big- est line of the year as more than her mentor, Rashard "Da Killa" Brook- s. Like Snoop Dogg's Bow Wow, Lil’ Cupcak3$ was the beloved defection of Cokez himself.

CALL NOW!!!
Bieber and Swift Team Up
For a Rap Duo Attack

Bales and Hoes
Jay-Z Goes Country

While Taylor Swift’s life has become a punch line of jokes from, peer Justin Bieber had to deal with not having a “Bie-bs-tastic” birthday, being booed on stage after arriving late to a concert by his “Bieber fever” is sweeping across the internet. Then you hear about the quote I just recently heard! Please let me know if you have any questions.

Swift was not pleased when Tina Fey and Amy Poehler made jokes in regards to her short-lived romances when the two ladies hosted the Golden Globes on Jan. 15. It didn’t help much when late-night host Chelsea Handler mentioned Swift’s quote in Fashion, Fear, which said, “There’s a special place in hell for women who don’t help other women.”

Swift and Bieber came together for the chorus where Jay-Z also mentions that most of his fans have yet to see and are truly anxious to hear from. I think Jay’s new album will be incredible and is something that no one will ever forget. Like says in his hit single, “Public Service Announcement” “Allow me to reintroduce myself, my name is HOV.” Even though he is still the same rapper so many people fell in love with, he is reintroducing himself as a talented, passionate and driven country artist.
Although the Academy Awards have passed us by last month, rumors are already swirling about next year’s nominations. Granted, there is always speculation around the fantastic pictures and dedicated actors but there is overwhelming support surrounding one multifaceted team. The cast of Jersey Shore goes to undeniable lengths to provide authenticity to their roles portraying trashy guidos and guidettes on this reality show. Here, their efforts have not gone unnoticed. Their fan following is cult-ish: those who tune in week after week are made speechless by the raw emotion oozing from what some would call, “tanned babes.”

The Academy Awards are typically a celebration of movies. However, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has altered the rules starting in 2014. Council member Joe Schmo says, “This has been the topic of controversy for quite some time, yet we have felt that some shows are more deserving than an Emmy Award. They deserve more prestige.”

There will always be mixed feelings about who deserves what, and this nomination will be no different. Many are upset that the Academy Awards have decided to allow television shows to be a part of the ceremony, especially when they already have one all their own. The controversy peaked when the public learned of the reason this change was being made: Jersey Shore.

“Jersey Shore? Really?” says Academy Awards fan Stephanie Lopez. Plenty others share her sentiment, thrusting that if the Academy Awards continues this disrespect, they will lose millions of viewers from tuning in next year. Yet, there are those who are delighted to see their favorite stars finally being honored for this show, despite book deals, spin off shows, clothing lines and endorsements. The Jersey Shore is finally getting the respect that they deserve and will begin to be taken seriously as an art form. Loyal fan Danielle Johnson says, “They work so hard for everything they have achieved. The haters are just jealous. ‘GTL’ for life.”

Others think the controversy is too extreme. “Honestly, I don’t see the big deal,” says Mike Fern, a self-proclaimed fan of the show. “They’re just having fun, and if you don’t like them, don’t watch the show.”

But some moments from Jersey Shore cannot be denied. It took sheer courage when Mike “The Situation” Sorrentino slammed his head into a wall to scare off his opponent Ronnie back in season four. In season three, Nicole “Snooki” Polizzi was arrested for public intoxication in the middle of the day. She took her role to the next level, invoking the emotion of viewers across the country and internationally.

Whether you love or hate the cast of Jersey Shore, you cannot argue the fact that they are pure entertainment, down to the bar fights, drunk- en escapades and idiotic banter. Whether you think they deserve an Oscar or a stint in boot camp to clean up their act, either way, they’ve got your attention.

We will just have to stay tuned in and see if the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will keep their mentality and lose faithful fans or if they are committing the greatest pop culture prank of all time. The Jersey Shore cast is infamous and will remain so even if the Academy Awards retract their statement, allowing the cast to be considered. Only time will tell.
Over the last few years, it has become a common occurrence throughout sports for there to be labor and contact disputes. Believe it or not, right here on campus, their seems to be a dispute with Rocky the Red Hawk’s contract negotiations with the school.

His contract expires as of the end of Spring 2013 semester, and if negotiations succumb it is very likely that a mascot would be getting paid, but when it comes down to it, there’s good reason that a mascot simply don’t get compensated for their efforts.

Think about it: the Philadelphia Phillies would be boring without their Phillie Phanatic jumping on top of their dugouts. Before the Washington Nationals were relevant, the only thing fans looked forward was their “President’s Race” during the 7th inning stretch.

The mascot that ran for Teddy Roosevelt received a standing ovation for assembling a 5-2 game-winning streak. If that doesn’t seem like a big deal, then I don’t know what does anymore.

A mascot is more than just someone sweating in a big ass suit while jumping into random things. A mascot is the image a school uses to market itself to one who attends every major sporting event to boost our fan’s morale.

Winter or not, all indicators point to Rocky flying down south and leaving his alma mater. Despite the upsetting news, our sport’s morale.

A mascot is more than what fans can’t cope anymore. Then I don’t know what does anymore.

In that moment, the team and the program.

Believe it or not, the women’s basketball team is not as perfect as we were driven to believe they are. After extensive research, the NCAA has come up with evidence that Montclair State University cheated in every single one of their games during the 2012-2013 season.

What began as a simple experiment grew into a slippery slope of scientific discovery and deception that would make Space Jam look pathetic.

It all started when, ironically, the team was doing their pregame ritual of watching Space Jam while performing black magic and several types of extremely questionable science experiments.

The team was feeling relatively down before their first game but, just as Bill Murray walked onto the court in glorious fashion, green smoke filled the locker room as the team performed their confession, all that was heard above the smoke was the sound of Space Jam while Tobie’s iconic theme song resurrected Frankenstein’s monster.

Finally, after weeks of practice and a little luck, Tobie became of the record, the team and the program.

The Red Hawks are coming at their many “wins” from the 2012-2013 season. Montclair State University now awaits what will be their regular season ends Aug. 30. Unless the team makes it to is the championship series, it won’t conflict with the school’s sporting events. Even if it does, our events are usually during the day while the Jackals baseball games take place in the evening. You can put it in the books, because next year, our schools name will now become the Montclair State Jackals!

NCAA Anounces New Sport

Sports

Mike Papanico

The Montclair State University softball team has just received news from the NCAA that it will be adding a new fall sport for both men and women.

The news created a buzz on campus, as many of the varsity cornhole players were looking forward to having a new sport to practice on. The news also indicated that the Intramurals program was to be able to offer a new sport to take the place of sports that had been wiped clean and it was one of the main staples of our athletic program.

MSU Athletics director Holly Gera announced earlier this week that Montclair State University would be adding a new sport to its Fall Athletics lineup.

Montclair is one of the first schools in the nation to accept the official NCAA decree that it would be instituting a new sport beginning with the Fall 2013 season. The NCAA’s decision to leave it up to its member schools as to what level teams they would field, Division I, II or III.

While cornhole has long been offered on many college campuses as a co-ed intramural activity, the NCAA is mandating that separate male and female teams be formed to meet Title IX requirements, providing for gender equality of sports offerings and funding.

In a recent interview with Gera, she stated that the athletic department strongly believes that offering the new sport will help the team’s drawing capabilities. Above are the dimensions and parameters needed to make an official NCAA cornhole board.
Who’s Hot

Susan Cole
President — MSU
Cole had a phenomenal outing last week. Cole filed a record 43 forms in under five minutes. More impressively, she did it while her foot was asleep.

Jessica Czarnogursky
Feature Editor — The Montclarion
Czarnogursky broke the land-speed record for driving up to the roof of Car Parc Diem with a time of 50.34 seconds. She also made three straight garbage bin jump shots.

Who’s Hot

Rocky Red Hawk
Mascot — MSU
Rocky attended every sporting event last week and recorded 15 cartwheels, five back hand-springs, one somersault and three jumping splits.

Rashard Bradshaw
Arts Editor — The Montclarion
Bradshaw wrote two 1000-word essays in the span of two hours and managed to get an A on both. Bradshaw followed them up by stacking six quarters on their sides.

When I say “Montclair State University,” what comes to mind? Is it the gym? Susan Cole? The horrible parking? Our glorious mascot, the Red Hawk?“Carpe Diem.”

Knowing he had conquered all of the Alaskan tundra, Hawkins grew tired of his mission. He decided to fall into a deep existential state where he would meditate and find where fate eminated from him when he was ready for college. Knowing he was meant to transcend the physically taxing journey towards his goal. After completing the 1,974-hour trek in only 14 days, Hawkins set his eyes on the majestic peak that the physically taxing journey towards his goal. After completing the 1,974-hour trek in only 14 days, Hawkins set his eyes on the majestic peak that is Montclair State. Due to his vast knowledge and experience in rural Alaska where he would hunt wolverines on a daily basis and wear mammoth pelts to stay warm. In that moment, he was hit by a superhuman being to lead this school to greatness. Shocked by the confidence and poise of Hawkins, Cole immediately declared that the school’s new mascot would be the Red Hawk in honor of Hawkins and the red-hot flares that emanated from him when he told Cole to “seize the day.”

Hawkins and the red-hot flare of Bruce Lee and Chuck Norris combined, he isn’t the most interesting man alive. He is a silent guardian, a watchful protector, a superior being to lead this school to greatness. Some students claim to have seen Hawkins wearing a red hawk mask and black and red clothing to hide his identity.
