Memorializing the Struggle

The internationally renowned AIDS quilt is on display at MSU

Michael Klein
Staff Writer

This week, Montclair State University’s Memorial Auditorium played host to a significant piece of history—a part of the AIDS Memorial Quilt. Courtesy of the College of the Arts, the Department of Theatre and Dance, the LGBTQ Center, the Women’s Gender Studies Department, the Office of Equity and Diversity and the GLBTQ Minor, it was a group effort to make the viewing of the quilt possible.

The 34-ton, handmade tapestry that is a memorial to those lost to AIDS was on view from Dec. 5-13 as part of the Theatre and Dance Department’s production of Paleitsu, a musical that takes place during the height of the AIDS crisis, premiering in L. Howard Fox Theater. Paleitsu follows the story of a Jewish man who leaves his wife and child to live with his new lover—a son Marwin and his lover are united just as the deadly AIDS virus begins its terrible spread.

The show is set to use the quilt as the backdrop for the show, to commemorate and memorialize those lost to the epidemic as well as bring light to a new generation that lives in ignorance of the once very present and looming fate that is the AIDS virus.

“We are thrilled to have the chance to share the AIDS Memorial Quilt with the Montclair State community,” said Julie Rhodes, the custodian of the AIDS Memorial Quilt and the executive director of The NAMES Project Foundation.

In an interview with Montclair State that was published on the university’s website, Rhodes stated, “These handmade blocks, created by friends and family, tell the stories of individuals who have lost their lives to AIDS. We bring you their stories to inspire compassion, backing and personal responsibility.”

The quilt, which is always on display on different parts of the world, began in 1987 in San Francisco with a single 3-by-6 panel. In 2013, Quilt continued on Page 6.

Celebration of a Leader

Mandela taught us the power of action, but also ideas; the importance of reason and arguments. He understood that ideas cannot be contained by prison walls or extinguished by a sniper’s bullet.

-Barack Obama

Nelson Mandela passed away last Thursday night. He was eulogized by President Obama Tuesday morning. Mandela was known as a fighter for freedom and as a leader who brought South African out from under a oppressive rule of racial segregation. His ideas of equality were widespread.

Don’t Fence Me In

The purpose of the ubiquitous green fences

Andrew Osolin
Staff Writer

Black metal fences have replaced the green post-and-rail fences along Yogi Berra Drive near the reservoirs. According to Dr. Timothy Carey, the associate Vice President of Facilities Services, the new black fences are “to ensure that potential vehicular-pedestrian conflicts will be minimized.” Unlike the green fences, the black fences are permanent.

When asked about the possibility of more green fences being replaced by black ones, Dr. Carey answered, “There are no plans at this time to install additional fencing.”

This is good news to some students who have found the green fences problematic, and not enough. “They seem dangerous, and I’ve seen multiple people trip over them and the wires they support,” said Kevin Flynn, a senior.

Mega MILF WTF

Jonathan Medina
Assistant Opinion Editor

The night was filled with racist tinged bars, rape tango videos, homocidal and homophobic slurs. Solely from that description, you would think that I was at a Ku Klux Klan convention in the heart of the Bible Belt. Surprisingly enough, all of this took place in the Memorial Auditorium at Placer’s Mega MILF, otherwise known as Montclair Improv League and Friends.

No one said political correctness was entertaining and humorous, though and the cast of MILF fully embraced their raunchiness to try to put forth a show worth of warranting the presence of the stone faced campus police who wondered if their lives had gone so far as to put them working on a Thursday night. According to the show, there was raucous laughter and audience participation through twitter, but technical issues and the hit or miss style of the show made me think that the “MILF” in MILF stood for “meh.”

Happy Holidays from The Montclarion!
FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE – FALL 2013

DECEMBER 13-19

Day Undergraduate and Graduate Courses Evening/Weekend/and Off-Campus Undergraduate and Graduate Courses

Examination Notes:

1. "First or Only Meeting" refers to the weekly meeting sequence. For example, "First" = MW, MR, TR, TF, WF. This does not correspond in any way to the first time the course met this semester.

2. All examinations are to be held in the regularly assigned classroom. In courses where more than one room is involved, the location of the exam will be the same as the first room of a series (e.g., a course meeting WF in different rooms will have the exam in the W room).

3. Courses which have a start time other than those listed above should follow the exam schedule for the preceding class start time (e.g. a course beginning at 9:30am will follow the exam period for courses with a first or only meeting at 8:30am; a course beginning at 12:00pm will follow the exam period for courses with a first or only meeting at 11:30am). Faculty involved in teaching courses on a “To Be Arranged” basis who require an exam room are asked to make arrangements for a specific time and room.

4. Students with a time conflict in their exam schedule should immediately notify each faculty member involved and make arrangements to reschedule one of the exams.

Policy on Final Exams

1. All final exams must be given during the regularly scheduled exam periods. The schedule of courses lists days and times of final exams for each class period.

2. No final exam may be given during the last week of classes before the exam period.

3. If no formal exam is scheduled, the class must meet for one hour during the scheduled exam time for a class evaluation session.

Style Survival Guide

Tis the season for North Face jackets, Ugg's and ski jackets. There's nothing more fashionably disenchanting than seeing our campus coated in practical (and boring) winter wear. It's a monotonous, plain canvas and the only liveliness is the shrill air sneaking its way through our hats and scarves. I am a firm believer in avoiding frostbite and bone-chilling snow, but there has to be a charismatic, colorful way to brighten the wintertime madness.

To keep your head warm:

While it's easy to opt for a simple black beanie and call it day, there's a whole world of hat wear we can choose from to keep the cold off our ears. Try a printed beanie or even a pop of color, and no, those pom-pom beanies are not just for children. While it's hard to pull off a beret without trying to look like mime or a pretentious French enthusiast, they are a warm and great option this winter. Trappers are tricky business; they hover on a fine line between lumberjack and chic. The key is that we still need to see your face under the faux fur. Floppy hats and wide brimmed fedoras are in, but it's probably a better idea to save these for days that are above 45 degrees.

To keep your neck warm:

It's not the time to sport light cotton, silk-printed or jersey-knit scarves. This is a serious time to wear wool, alpaca, acrylic and cashmere scarves. Yes, we are talking about infinity scarves and monster knit scarves. Although your ears and head are the first in line to keep toasty (and functioning), scarves are where it's at. You don't need me to tell you about the thousands of colors, knit patterns, embellishments and so on that can make your scarf fashionable yet functional. Bury yourself in these warm threads:

To keep your hands and feet warm:

There's nothing more frustrating than grabbing your ice cold steering wheel in the morning. I, for one, should have learned my lesson by now and invest in some serious gloves. The assortment of gloves is just as varied as our assortment of scarves. It's easy to find fuzzy fingerless gloves, fur-lined mittens and, of course, leather gloves today. Please, for the love of God, stay away from ski gloves. I promise there are alternatives. As for your toes, it's simple: ditch the ankle gym socks and invest in pairs that are thick and knit. Pair different boot lengths with corresponding sock lengths. Below are some examples of alternatives to wear in winter.

Let's talk coats:

My favorite part of winter is the never-ending coats in all lengths, sizes, styles and fabrics. This is how you can strike out and showcase your personal style. Are you going to opt for a very British-like navy pea coat with large round buttons? Do you prefer long down puffy coats that may even have a belt to show your waist? Does the long wool trench coat catch your eye? Or, are you leaning towards a fleece/shearling lined parka with a furry hood? The key here is to know your color, style aesthetic, embrace the details and invest in a coat that will last you several winters and leave lasting impressions.

How to Have a Stress-Free Holiday

Kimberly Asman

Be Mindful of Your Eating

The holidays are usually filled with lots of delicious, homemade foods, and it is perfectly okay to indulge in these treats. However, it is also important to avoid the mindset that one week of bad eating means you can throw away the whole month of December. Try your best to eat a normal, healthy and balanced diet leading up to the holidays. Stuffing yourself with too many heavy foods in the days before the New Year can lead to being tired, lazy or in a bad mood.

Don’t be a Scrooge

Although it is easy to get caught up in the stress this season, go into it with a positive outlook. Believe in yourself, stick to your plans, and make yourself feel successful. Work on normalizing your sleep habits and ensure your normal shifts without breaking under pressure or finally finishing all of your holiday shopping, then you can. The opposite is true as well, and a negative outlook can lead to you holding yourself back from enjoying the season and accomplishing all you need to do. Remember, this is “the most wonderful time of the year,” and it is meant to be enjoyed.

Clear Your Mind to Focus on Finishing the School Year Strong eyou have accomplished something. Exercising, in any form, will help release the stressful energy you may be holding in, and can make your body relax. If you are feeling overwhelmed, take a day or two off from school. Use this time to get your mind back on track and refocus on the tasks ahead.

Whether it’s an hour a day, five times a week or a half hour a few days a week when you have the time, exercising will help you have accomplished something. Exercising, in any form, will help your body release the stressful energy you may be holding in, and can clear your mind to focus on finishing the school year strong.

Easy ways to make sure you can do this without letting stress takeover. From finals, work or anything on your plate. This should be a happy time when you appreciate those around you. Here are a few easy ways to make sure you can do this without letting stress takeover.

Spend Time With Friends

Everyone is going through stress this time of year, including your fellow classmates and/or coworkers. It is easy to lock yourself away while spending hours studying, but it can be a lot more fun to study with friends or in a group. Not only will this make the time pass faster, it will show you that everyone feels the same, and you can get through this together.

Spend Christmas Special with our parish.

Kimberly Asman

St a f f W r i t e r

The holidays really are the most wonderful time of the year. Even as my brother and I have grown older and moved out of the house to attend college, my family keeps alive our childhood traditions of driving around on Christmas Eve to see houses decorated with Christmas lights or driving our own Christmas tree to the house. The holidays can be a time of sharing and enjoying the presents that we have been giving each other away from our own family celebrations. I’m sure that just as much as I want to spend Christmas morning with my immediate family, I would want to be with his. We both understand this, and he has never personally offended when we opt out of going over each other's houses for Christmas Day and Bay traditions. For us, this is the best path to go.

However, I can understand the desire of those who do not have family traditions or family nearby to spend the holiday season with their significant other...

Bigel Grant Helps One Student Dig Up a Story

Sharon Albin
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Last June, I found myself in Breclav, a county crawling around in holes that had been dug in a field by Breclav’s archaeologists for the past six to seven weeks. The site was operated by Masaryk University-Brno to dig at a ninth Century CE Slavic site in the southeastern part of Moravia. The site is a large Jewish family. Lanceter and her family were sent to a concentration camp at night, and was compelled to share her story.

A group of unwise students in Professor Ron Hollander’s class at the Holocaust the room at everyone’s faces, took a seat in the front of the room and sat down comfortably facing the audience. She waited at least ten minutes before starting to tell her story.

“I began by saying that she had grown up in eastern Prague, the capital of Czechoslovakia, in a large Jewish family. Lanceter said that she had enjoyed going to school and learning because it was fun, but soon after coming of age, she had to leave school and go to work.

“I loved going to school,” Lanceter said. “I think all of us had to register to work.”

On page 12, Lanceter started working at a factory that re-produced shoes. She worked there using just her hands, causing blisters and calluses. She complained, “We could not wear gloves to protect ourselves,” and Lanceter.

In addition to working at the factory for some time, Lanceter also scrubbed floors in the incineration and ashdisposal room at everyone’s faces, took a seat in the front of the room and sat down comfortably facing the audience. She waited at least ten minutes before starting to tell her story.

What kind of weather conditions should cause MSU to cancel classes?

Samantha Jacobino

I think when it’s actually snowy, not just the snow but also the cold temperatures which could cause icy conditions. There could be a lot of malfunctions involved, because a lot of people commute and it’s not really safe for people to be driving when it’s snowing. With the risk of ice and everything, it’s just not safe.

“Windy, stormy, lightning, snowy conditions. [In those conditions] class should be cancelled. I’m a commuter, so it sucks for me because trains are delayed. I think the worst weather would be the snow, the legs can’t move.”

“I think any type of snow, if it’s extremely icy on the ground like it recently was the other day, I know that a lot of accidents happened. Maybe extreme wind, too, because it’s kind of hard to drive your car.”

Pars Glover

“The type of weather conditions that should close MSU, I believe, should be heavy rainfall, lightning, thunder, hail and heavy snowstorms, not just a light dusting, and, of course, the Hurricane Sandy weather. When I was a commuter, coming to class when the weather is iffy was hard because you’re fighting traffic. You have to fight traffic on the highway right up the street, and it was difficult for me, being a commuter, to find parking, and then have to walk all the way in the rain. By the time you get to class, you’re totally soaked, or if you don’t have any galoshes, your feet get wet.”

Myla Ramirez

“Anything that is hazardous and poses a threat to the safety of students, especially the commuter students. It’s also unfair, being a large commuter population, for students to risk their lives and their safety to come here for a grade and something that’s mandatory.”

Question of the Week

What kind of weather conditions should cause MSU to cancel classes?

The Montclarion

The deed is done, but there is still another grievance many students have with Montclair State and their snow policies. There are the apathetic snow shoveling, as in the students who take on the task of shoveling snow for a decent amount of money. Do many of them deserve what they get paid? No chance in hell.

Without anyone monitoring them, many students shove enough the snow to keep it open with no concern for the commute.

Instead of having students and faculty shovel all the way here, it would have made more sense to close down the campus and work on getting our own roads clean. Like we stated before, inconvenient weather is inconvenient to everyone and the university has enough audacity to keep itself open with no concern for its commuters.

The university isn’t doing a lot of students a favor by offering them employment, and maybe these students need to be taught how to do a job before they get sent outside with a shovel.

Weather is unpredictable and we aren’t always going to have the best solutions for how to deal with Mother Nature’s tantrums, but these are some issues that need to be taken to heart, especially when considering the safety of the entire student body and staff.

Ending the Game of Foreign Policy
How science fiction novels can improve international relations

Ender’s Game
Orwellian novel where
An war against an alien race
by a space armada of humans led by a boy-genius
but the military leaders in the novel adopt the strategy of completely destroying the enemy. According to Maoist’s hierarchy of needs, safety is one of the most basic needs and must be satisfied in order to achieve higher needs as morality and esteem. The novel, an evolution of Maoist’s, proposes that both basic and higher needs can operate together and need not be hierarchies, but needs do not precede higher needs.

Higher needs are more difficult to agree on basic needs; therefore, it makes sense that one nation focuses its foreign policy on the satisfaction of the need for safety over the higher needs such as morality.

Instead of focusing on basic needs hurts our development as a species. The media coverage of Nelson Mandela’s recent passing emphasizes the great man from leader’s triumph in the peaceful transition to the next leadership. What made Mandela succeed was not only his ability to quell internal discord among factions of his own supporter but also his empathy for his enemy. He did not speak the Afrikaans language and even studied rugby, his favorite sport, through his ability to gain the perspective of those who judged him, he was able to gain their trust during negotiations over governance after his release. Much brutality was avoided through this one decision, which allowed the leaders to understand his judges and fellow countrymen.

Ender’s Game provides a strong corollary to Mandela’s example. In order to reconcile our differences, we must recognize the value in our foe. As a military tactic, the Buggers were already dehumanized as a group. This classification of “less than human” makes this extraterrestrial enemy unnecessary to be tactically and emotionally considered.

When deciding to use the doctor device on their home planet, the leaders considered the consequence of repercussions to the safety of this act. In the judgement to end an entire species, the leaders who did not consider what value the Buggers might have to the world ultimately tried to rid the world into complete political control of South Africa from 1948 to 1994, this was their reality. When Dutch colonizers first gained complete political control of South Africa, their institutions racial segregation laws known as apartheid.

For years, this racial discrimination continued, and though many people tried to gain back their rights through nonviolent protests, many protesters were beaten, tortured, wounded or even killed for what they said they saw in their nation.

Finally, in 1994, through the collaboration of many different leaders and groups, South Africa held its first democratic election when all South Africans, regardless of their race, were permitted to vote in a presidential election.

During that same election, Nelson Mandela, one of the leaders of the anti-apartheid movement, became the first black president of South Africa—a man who had been fighting for the cause of African liberation and peace between all races since he was a student. Mandela, after an unsuccessful overthrow of the Dutch-dominated government, was arrested and served a 27-year sentence for 27 years before being released in 1990.

When he was finally released from prison, he began working to end apartheid more tenaciously than ever before. In him, the subjected people of South Africa saw a leader who refused to give up on how they went their struggles yet still worked to change the world, no matter what mattered to try him.

He gave the people of South Africa hope that apartheid would end. Last 27 years ago, on December 10, Mandela passed away, leaving a country mourning but never passing by a person in the country mourning but never passing by a person in need.

Despite many people’s hopes that South Africa would end, there was no hope.

Blame It On The (Lack Of) Alcohol
Students abuse alcohol because of the allure it illegally provides

A third column called “Legs in the US Today” seems to focus on dry campuses, perhaps because alcohol is an offense to university and college students. This may be effective against any alcohol-related troubles. Students’ problems may be exacerbated by the presence of alcohol abuse, which may not be as effective as it sounds.

The misuse of alcohol among college students is a serious problem, but a dry campus may be able to deter students from irresponsible drinking. As we know, dry campuses may even promote healthy relationships with alcohol. For example, local bars towards alcohol-related troubles may face severe consequences. Students may want to drink and actually consume more into more trouble.

As a college student, I can say that the risks of not stopping college students who want to drink and actually consume more into trouble. Rather than such harsh punishments for students who drink, I think it is important to help create a healthy relationship with alcohol and allow students to be in a safe drinking environment.

Dry campuses, at times, actually stop students from abusing alcohol, but instead create a bigger stake in them if they do. From person to person growing up in a family where drinking was not a regular occurrence, to actually avoiding alcohol, I was able to come aware of the dangers of abusing alcohol, but let’s focus on Rob Paulsen, from where I live. My admiration for him has grown, but let’s focus on Rob Paulsen, who voiced Yakko in a still-existent animated series, Animaniacs.

Happy Birthday, second step to even the Montclairian

The allure starts to draw the students to campus, but not only because it is exciting to drink and many of them are away from their parents for the first time.

Arguably, students on a dry campus may feel compelled to drink more. Many students may be in a position where they feel stuck and have no other choice than to drink alcohol, I was able to come aware of the dangers of abusing alcohol, alcohol was able to come to college with the feeling that I had a healthy relationship with alcohol.

Matching a campus that is dry, students start to get anxious about alcohol. The allure starts to draw the students to campus, but not only because it is exciting to drink and many of them are away from their parents for the first time.

Amanda Seyfried is in talks to star in a Will Ferrell, Adam McKay and Ken Cheng-directed film being produced by Gary Sanchez Productions, which is also a production of Universal Pictures. Variety reported last week.

The 28-year-old Los Angeles star is set to star in the comedy, He’s F#cking Perfect, as an internet-savvy woman who Facebook-stalks her friends’ boyfriends to make sure that she approves of them. This leads her wanting to pursue a relationship with one of the men and subsequently tries to convince her friend to break up with him. John Stamos will be directing this film penned by Lauryn Kahn. Ferrell, McKay and Messick are set to produce through their production company, Gary Sanchez Productions.

Stamos, widely known for his work in Mean Girls (2004), Mean Girls (2008), Dear John (2010), Love, Loss, and What I Wore (2012), and, most recently, The Big Wedding (2013), has multiple projects for audiences to anticipate. Seyfried is joining her Las Vegas co-star, Russell Crowe, to play Crowe’s daughter in Fathers and Daughters, which is directed by Gabriele Muccino (The Pursuit of Happyness). The film is a romantic comedy split between the 1980s and the present. It centers on the role reversal between a father and daughter, who, in Nick Nolte’s stage play, were cut from the show. There is no release date yet. Seyfried will be playing the woman who leaves MacFarlane’s character in the show, The Mega MILF, ended the reception would have been the body on stage, the show and the cast to the audience by a sequence of semi-cliché events forming a show through its paces with moments when two MILFers would step back and forth as if Van McCoy’s “The Shuffle” was kicking in while they tried to figure out which one was to go forward. Played out pop culture references were dropped in so frequently it made me wish a wrecking ball came careening in from stage left. Lastly, some of the performers relied too heavily on their own personalities than improvisational humor to the point that they were the joke instead. If I wanted to watch campy humor, I would watch Van Milla’s Family on Netflix. Besides my gripes, there were some bright points in the night. The “Sports Casters” skit was one of the better parts to take place on stage. Daniel Poole and Casey Colsman pantoiming as competitors in a “salad to a megachampion” play-by-play commentary was taking place on the side of the stage. Surprisingly not taking advantage of the sexual connotations in teasing salad, the two ended up as zombies chasing the commentators to loud cheers and applause.

Mega MILF was that the overall technical issues, or the lack of fine tuning and troubleshooting in the future, MILF can be better than last year and convinces me to change the “M” from “meh” to “magnificent.”

Mama’s Boy, a comedy co-written and directed by John Hamburg (The Campaign) and starring Amanda Seyfried and Iwan Rheon, is about a girl lost in the wilderness. From a script written by Laura Wade (Dirty Dancing 3: Capoeira Nights), it is a romantic comedy set in the wild west as a quintessential play-By-play commentary was taking place on the side of the stage. Surprisingly not taking advantage of the sexual connotations in teasing salad, the two ended up as zombies chasing the commentators to loud cheers and applause.

Leto’s Path
From alternative rock to trans characters: an evolution

Known to some as Claire Dane’s love interest on the television show My So-Called Life or as the lead singer for the band Thirty Seconds to Mars, Jared Leto seems to be the man of the moment. His first film after a six-year hiatus from acting, Dallas Buyers Club, where he plays a transgender woman suffering from AIDS, has been garnering tremendous award buzz for the singer/actor. On Dec. 5, Leto won best supporting actor at the New York Film Critics’ Circle Awards. Coincidentally, the same day Leto received this award, he released a documentary about his band, Artifact, on iTunes. This passion project focuses on a lawsuit his band was facing with their record label EMI, who was suing them for $30 million for attempting to sign with a new label. The film premiered at the Toronto International Film Festival where it won the People’s Choice Documentary Award. With all this recent media attention, Leto has been on a series of press junkets to promote his projects. His latest press stop was at the Apple Store in Soho in downtown Manhattan on Dec 4. Leto was joined on stage by moderator Drew Taylor from the website The Playlist. Dressed in an all-black outfit suitable for a rock star with shoulder length ombré hair, Leto discussed the making of Artifact as well as answered questions from the audience. Leto told the audience what a terrible feeling it was to be sued by his own record label and that the company is “not human and they only care about profit.” Although the band was signed with the label since 1998, Leto said that they had never gotten paid for any of their albums. He explained that the music industry “is a ship trying to write itself,” and the only revenue made by musicians are through touring and merchandise. He also shared how the music industry is still in a bad place and how he believes that digital sales are down once again. For Leto, passion is the driving force to his musical career rather than making a sufficient profit. However, he claims “that doesn’t mean some other prick should be screwing you and taking what little revenue there is.” He also spoke about the importance for artists to stand up for themselves and fight for their creative passion. That being said, Thirty Seconds to Mars fought hard against this lawsuit and titled their third album This Is War as a result. The Q&A portion of the night ranged from questions about the highs and lows of being an artist to if he would ever do a rock opera (which he would never do). One woman even plucked the courage to ask Leto if he would marry her. Leto hesitated for a moment and said in a low, rumbling voice, “Next question.” While reminiscing with the crowd during his darker days as a musician, Leto talked about how he felt when the release of the first single off their second album, Attack, bombed. An audience member shouted that it was his favorite song, to which Leto promptly responded, “Well, you should have requested it more on the radio, buddy!” Artifact and the band’s latest fourth album Love, Lust, Faith and Dreams can be purchased on iTunes and Dallas Buyers Club is playing at select theaters nationwide.

The Montclair State mens basketball team fell to 2-5 on the season with a 2-1 lead.

Red Hawks vented into New York to take on NJAC rival Rutgers-Newark in their second conference game of the season. After opening the game with a three-pointer from Dino Iskrovski, the Scarlet Raiders wouldn’t surrender the lead for the remainder of the game.

The Red Hawks managed to keep it close and cut the lead back to three with just under 10 minutes left in the half, but Rutgers-Newark countered with a 10-0 run and took a 15 point lead into the half.

After the break, Montclair State was trailing 10-5, on Dec. 7.

In the win over Siena, the Hawks were able to hold off the Red Hawks for the remainder of the game, cruising on to a 61-55 loss and outshot Bryant 44-26.

The Montclair State mens Ice Hockey team continued to play hard and stay together, as they swept a weekend road doubleheader, defeating Siena College, 5-3, and the College of Staten Island.

Montclair State ended the second period with a 2-1 lead.

Great shooting was key in the Raiders’ victory, as they were able to shoot 57 percent from the field and 78 percent from three-point land. The Red Hawks were able to get back in the game, but they weren’t able to keep up with the sharpshooting Scarlet Raiders, shooting just 40 percent from the field.

Looking to rebound from a tough loss, the Red Hawks traveled to Mahwah for their third conference matchup of the season against the Ramapo Roadrunners.

Oriel Goldson and Daniel Singleton were back in good form, scoring 25 and 23 points, respectively. However, the Red Hawks were outshot in a 95-84 loss.

The Roadrunners quickly jumped out to a 10-point lead just over five minutes into the game, but the Red Hawks were able to cut the lead back to one that was kept steady with three-pointers from Erick Lef-torr-Harris, Kevin McGorry and Angel Gutierrez. They kept it close, but were unable to grab the lead, as Ramapo went into halftime up by six.

Terry Hicks and George Sapp led the way for the Roadrunners in the first half, scoring 19 and nine points, respectively.

The Red Hawks went into halftime up by six.

Looking to snap a two-game losing streak, the Red Hawks returned home to Panzer Athletic Center for their second match-up against the College of Staten Island Dolphins.

The Dolphins hand-ed Montclair a 61-53 loss earlier in the season.Singleton and McGorry had 17 and 15 points, respectively, helping the home team jump out to an early lead.

However, the Dolphins led for nearly the entire half and created a nine-point lead into the locker room at halftime.

The Dolphins out-scored the Red Hawks 15-6 in the first seven minutes of the second half to tie the game at 53.

The visitors would finally take the lead with nine minutes to go on a Matt Van Massen layup. Goldson tied the game at 61 with a layup in the paint, as the teams traded points on each of the following possessions to tie the game at 63.

Will Foushee’s layup with six minutes left gave the Dolphins a lead they would not surrender. They would hold on to win by a scoring of 77-73, handing the Red Hawks their third consecutive loss. McGorry scored a career-high 24 points while Singleton lowered with 23 points and five assists.

Goldson was kept quiet with just nine points in 36 minutes on the floor.

Once again, the Red Hawks couldn’t get much production from the bench, with just seven points coming off the bench. The Red Hawks were outscored in the paint for the first time this season, 42-36.

The Red Hawks will be looking to rebound with a win over the William Paterson Pioneers at home on Saturday, Dec. 14. This will be their final game before hosting the Team Hill Holiday Classic Tournament on the weekend beginning Friday, Dec. 27 at the Panzer Athletic Center.
On Dec. 13, 2013, the Ultimate Fighting Championship and fans worldwide lost a tremendous fighter in heavyweight Shane Del Rosario. Nearly two weeks ago, Del Rosario suffered a heart attack on Tuesday, Nov. 26, as a result of Long QT Syndrome. The Ultimate Fighting Championship mourns her passing:

"Shane Del Rosario was the best in the business. His heart attack last week was a tragic loss for all strong, well-coached teams. Shane's family and friends, but also to the fans and fighters are mourning the fighter, as he was a very kind and giving person.

"He was passionate about helping people. Shane had always there to offer a helping hand, a smile and encouragement to strangers, not only his family and friends, but also to strangers. Del Rosario's family said in a statement. "RIP to one of the best people I've ever had the honor to have in my life and call my best friend," McCall posted to his Twitter feed on Monday.

Discipline is an important word to freshman running back Denzel Nieves. Nieves had a breakout year this past season with 585 yards on 95 carries through seven games.

After not playing in the first three games and only getting two carries in each of the next two games of the 2013 season, Nieves took over for a hurt AJ Scoppa in the third quarter against Morrisville State. The 5’7”, 190-pound freshman preceded to rack up 2197 rushing yards on just 266 carries.

The main differences Nieves cites between high school and college are the amount of discipline and dedication there is with practice every day and the preparation that goes into facing another team on any given Saturday.

When choosing Montclair State, the amount of love he was showed and the fact that they wanted him to play for their team more than any other was a big factor in his choice of the school. He says the team has been welcoming him well since he started playing as a Red Hawk, as he has been earning their respect with his feats on the field.

Departing senior running back AJ Scoppa has been helping Nieves in terms of rushing, telling him to take a little more time looking for the openings in the defense before each run and in learning the playbook. Nieves later remarked that he felt relieved and was happy he got the opportunity to show what he could do on the gridiron.

A football career that started at the age of six with the Maplewood-South Orange Packers, Nieves grew up in the sport, going on to play for the Columbia High School Cougars where, in his junior and senior years racked up 2197 rushing yards on just 266 carries.

When asked if it was tough balancing school, football and his social life, he said that he manages his time well and has the discipline and determination to get his work done both on and off the gridiron.

Every time Nieves takes the field, he’s playing not only for his parents in the stands who have not missed a home game, but for his friend Malcolm Bagley, who played football at Dean College. Unfortunately Malcolm’s life was cut short in the summer of 2012, but Nieves keeping his friend’s memory alive by wearing the initials “MB” along with Bagley’s number, 11, on his cleats.

Nieves is not just an athlete, but a student, as well studying criminal justice here at Montclair. When asked if it was tough balancing school, football and his social life, he said that he manages his time well and has the discipline and determination to get his work done both on and off the gridiron.

This season really showed that Montclair State has less to worry about as they go on offense. Nieves says he knew he was capable of, taking over the running back position and succeeding with it, but was unsure if he would be given the chance this season.

The offense is already set up for a running back, as Nieves looks forward to next season and bringing the NJAC Championship back to Montclair State. With Denzel Nieves as starting running back, the Red Hawks might have a shot.
