Assault on Campus
Jayna Gugliucci | News Editor

According to a UPD report sent to the campus community at approximately 11:20 p.m. on Saturday, the University Police Department “received a report that a male, non-resident student was assaulted.”

The victim was walking up the stairway leading to Dinello Heights at the time of the incident. Upon being punched in the face by the assailant, the victim fell to the ground.

Immediately after the assault, the assailant was said to have fled the scene by running up the staircase and proceeded towards Blanton Hall.

Following suit, witnesses were able to describe the assailant as an “Afric-a-American male 5’5” in height. Wearing a black, hooded sweatshirt, black Adidas workout pants and black sneakers” according to UPD.

N.J. Bill Offers Paid Sick Days
Catherine Baxter

With the swift, autumn chill settling across campus and the drows of midterms hanging in the air, Montclair State students were looking for that special pick-me-up to make their week just a little better. To their surprise, Student Life has returned with one of Life’s earliest hits, the Student Life Advisory Committee’s (SLAM) annual paid sick day initiative in order for it to be approved.

The law is currently up for a vote during Tuesday’s referendum.

With Election Day fast approaching, the Office of Government Relations is partnering with the Student Government Association, Residential Education and Center for Student Involvement to push for voter registration among the university community. The goal, in the words of Shivaun Gaines, director of the Office of Government Relations, is to make the student body aware of their civic responsibility.

This was an isolated incident that unfortunately resulted in an act of violence. [Still], community members should always keep an eye towards their general safety; walk in well-lit areas, with a trusted friend or group if possible, and follow pathways that are meant for travel rather than those that might appear to be a shortcut.

-Lieutenant Kieran Barrett
University Police Department
Dr. Li-Chun Lin, chairperson and professor for the Management Department, and the Provost Office of Advising provided workshops for advising and encourage faculty to attend where they are given advice and taught how to best advise students.

"Even here in the Management Department, we give advising workshops for our students," Lin said. "We send out emails to faculty reminding them of upcoming registration days and inform all advisers of who their advisees are to connect them together. Advising takes time and it is sometimes hard for faculty to always meet face-to-face with students because of different schedules." Many students are not aware that their WESS advisors get paid to never meet anyone. "Don't have to face it on your own," says Lin. "We are here to help you."

Sophomore Brett Mangan has felt like encounters with his advisor during the semester were met with being pushed off instead of being welcomed with open arms.

"It's difficult to think about how much faculty advisors get paid to never meet half of their students and how much money the school makes off students taking classes they never needed to take," he said. Mangan also stated how difficult it was to be seen by his advisor because the small time-frame offered did not fit into Mangan's hectic athletic schedule.

The Clothesline Project

The Clothesline Project, a campus awareness event that allows students to become vocal about sexual assault and abuse to the Essex County community, says Kang Yoon Kim, a representative of the organization and that greater community includes the Montclair State University community.

During this week, SAVE is teaming up with the LGBTQ Center, the Women's Center, CAPN, Campus Police, the University Health Center, Health Promotion and the Office of Student Life and the Provost's Office to make a statement at Montclair State about speaking out against violence through a campaign called the Clothesline Project.

"It all comes to include ‘all gender identities [and] sexual/affectional orientations,’ as the flyer for the event at Montclair State explains. Like the original project, each individual T-shirt in the quad represents a story: a personal struggle with abuse, a rejection of one’s status as a victim of sexual violence, a commemoration of a loved one who died as a result of sexual violence or abuse or simply an attempt to raise awareness," Kim said. SAVES has participated in the Clothesline Project in the past, but this is the first year that they are bringing the event to Montclair State University based off of a suggestion made by the Coordinator of Montclair State's LGBTQ Center, Brian Edwards.

Students had the opportunity to make their own T-shirts and add to the clothes line on Wednesday, Oct. 22 and to contribute their own voice to the event through social media. "You’re not alone," said Marines. "We want to bring awareness that [sexual assaul]t does happen and you don’t have to face it on your own." Students at Montclair State and their families were encouraged to attend a pancake breakfast with black and brown beans on the side.

Shortly after, the entire campus community gathered together in the Amphitheater to watch the annual Student Showcase in which different organizations, act, sing and dance to represent the school spirit of Montclair State.

"It is becoming a common thing for students to take matters into their own hands and map out their own course plans with varying degrees of success. It is not unusual to see students helping out each other and students seeking out faculty help to map out their course plans.

"Because it is a part of Montclair State's campus, says Lin. "We are here to help you."

At first it was very nerve-wracking," shared Seun Al- veneer, an unabashed freshman. "But, then again, I felt really good because I’m not really involved in a lot of things so it was exciting to be a part of something so big. I’d never been to Homecoming before so it was great. It felt like I was a part of Montclair State at [finalist, future]. Following the spectacular shore, students and their families head over to a massive carnival in the Freeman- Russ Quad. With a rock-wall toward the center of the tent and an inviting mechanical bull, the tent was filled with laughter and hugs as those in attendance rushed to do everything at once.

Whether students were snapping pictures in the photo booth or painting "MSU" across their faces, the normal seemed to be well-received on this delightful the perfect event leading up to the athletic season finale.

With the rest of the student body feeling happy and the events well through the winter, I am not surprised that the campus community is already looking forward to next year.

Look No Further for Halloween Costumes!

Jessica Mahmoud
Staff Writer

Halloween is next weekend! If you’re like most college students, you probably don’t have $40 to spend on a costume; however, you realize Halloween only comes once a year and you want to have an awesome, original costume without the price tag attached. Don’t worry! Here are some DIY costumes to help you out.

Mary Poppins
Lauren Conrad is known for her unique Halloween costumes. To get the look of Mary Poppins, tuck a bottom-down shirt into a black skater skirt. Add tights, basic black heels and a red bowtie. To finish the look, wear a fedora with a flower attached and don’t forget to carry an umbrella!

Cracked Porcelain Doll
At Halloween, makeup can really create the look. This is definitely the case with the look of a cracked porcelain doll. Check out how pineneedlecollective.com used makeup to create this outfit. It’s cool to dress up as a doll, but a cracked doll takes it a whole step further and adds in the scary for Halloween. Simply put on a dress or a doll-like outfit and then look up a YouTube tutorial for the makeup.

Britney Spears
Channel your inner Britney Spears! To get her classic “…Baby One More Time” look, just find a school uniform. If you don’t own one, someone you know probably does. If both of those options aren’t available, check out a nearby thrift store. The skirt doesn’t have to be plaid, but a plaid one will fit the look of a schoolgirl. If your hair is long, definitely copy her braids and pink accessories. You’ll stand out among other celebrity costumes like Miley Cyrus or Lady Gaga.

Waldo
If you’re a guy reading this, I suggest dressing as Waldo from the Where’s Waldo? books. It’s a unique idea and super easy to do. Just pick up a red-and-white striped long sleeve shirt and a red-and-white beanie. Pair it with jeans and black shoes. For the glasses, opt for those nerd glasses or 3D glasses with the lenses popped out.

Peter Pan and Wendy
If you and your significant other or best friend is looking to coordinate costumes together, try Peter Pan and Wendy. For Peter, just wear a green oversize shirt and cut an oversize green shirt’s brim into a zig-zag pattern. Don’t forget his signature feather hat! As for Wendy, any white flowing dress works perfect. If you have long hair, wear it in a ponytail of tight curls. For shoes, Peter should wear brown shoes and Wendy should go for simple flats or ballet-style slippers.

Scrabble Letters
Although group costumes may seem hard to coordinate, this one isn’t too bad. Simply grab a few cardboard boxes, some Sharpies and pick a word made up of the same amount of letters as group members. To take it a step further, dress up like the word you choose. Dressing up like zombies, like in this photo from popsugar.com, is easy since the costume is not planned. The makeup is the important part. Other ideas for words and costumes could be clowns, babies, nerds and mimes. Please do this if you plan on sticking together; otherwise, you’re just a letter!

Halloween only comes once a year, so I suggest making the most of it and picking an original costume. Don’t get the urge to buy a hoodie costume from the store, especially since someone is bound to have the same one. There are plenty of easy do-it-yourself ones that can be found right in your closet. Happy Halloween!
What are some good and bad fall dates?

The Weekly Debate

He Said

Some of the best date ideas for the fall include, but are not limited to pumpkin picking, apple picking and hayrides. All of these activities show engagement and commitment to the season as well as your significant other. Your partner will always appreciate an opportunity to be taken out and shown a fun time among other happy couples/groups. It’s an exciting time for everyone involved and while most guys aren’t exactly interested in picking vegetables or fruits out, the thought of eating them sounds very appealing.

Hayrides are also a great way to sit and talk to your partner while experiencing a changing environment; it’s the fall equivalent of taking long walks on the beach. All of these date ideas cumulatively or individually will create a nice string of dates and will help you grow closer in these fall months with your significant other.

Some guys expressed that they aren’t into that scene and would much rather stay inside and not do anything except watch horror movies. A couple of guys even recommended that you take your significant other to some Halloween party or other event that may be occurring in the coming week. That being said, there are also bad date ideas. These are the ones that may negatively impact your relationship with your significant other, even if the date idea may have seemed good at first. A classic example would be haunted houses, which can cause your partner to lose your love if they aren’t into being scared. Black Friday shopping is another big no-no, as it can cause undue stress to your partner. You can actually get them killed or by being out against overly aggressive shoppers and the mobs that storm the stores.

Overall, it becomes apparent that just putting time and effort into an activity will make a good date. While you also have to show interest in the activity, the simple act of planning a date will go a long way to making the date a good one. It will also have a greater impact on you and your partner’s relationship as a whole.

She Said

A general consensus of the interviewed felt that the crisp weather was perfect for outdoor activities. The obvious choices thrown out there by people were pumpkin picking and walks in the cool weather with a warm beverage. The agreement ended there, however, as the group split; some of the girls complained that fall at night was too cold for some activities and just in general would be more the former but that it just goes out in general, because even though the idea of a haunted hayride is supposed to be cute, she would just end up feeling embarrassed. Other daytime activities included by the girls we asked were corn mazes and apple picking earlier in the fall season. A few girls explained that the corn maze should happen during the daytime because there is nothing fun about getting lost in the corn maze and getting frustrated in the end.

Others said that the haunted hayride activity called to them, citing scary movies along with haunted hayrides and haunted houses as their fall dates of choice. Some girls explained their excitement for haunted houses as a date came from the fact that the danger isn’t real but the reactions, including the screams, are. More than one girl expressed their love for scary movies during the season. The season is perfect for the scary movies and someone to cuddle with. Some of the girls were excited for the amusement parks that offer both the thrill-packed rides along with a scary experience; the fear and adrenaline are a perfect mix for a date.

Few girls had a bad experience on a fall date, although some girls explained that some dates are just not good ideas. Some of the girls explained that Mischief Night was not a good night for dates. The idea was said to be childish and in general not a good night to be out. When asked to clarify if this meant joining in on Mischief Night activities or just going out in general, she explained that it was more the former but that it applied to both. The beach was listed by multiple girls because, even if you went to the boardwalk, it could get really cold really quickly.

Almost all the girls jumped to clarify, however, that any date that makes them uncomfortable was a bad date. Most of the girls felt that if a guy double checked with them and listened to their input, even a date to the beach could turn into a success.

Healthy Baking Tips

Kimberly Asman
Staff Writer

Fall is a great time to give thanks to the yummy fruits in season this time of year, such as pumpkins and apples. With so many different recipes out there, it can be easy to get lost in a sea of flour and sugar and forget to look for healthy options. However, the good news is that you can still enjoy all of your favorite fall treats as long as you use some of these tips to turn up the nutrition and turn down the processed ingredients.

Go for whole wheat
In anything that uses all-purpose flour, try switching it to 100 percent whole wheat flour instead. Whole grains are a good source of iron, magnesium, selenium, B vitamins and dietary fiber. Whole wheat flour can sometimes be a bit denser than regular white, so keep that in mind for your recipe. If you are making a cake that you want to be fluffy and light, try half all regular white and half whole wheat; that way you will get some added nutrients without mess ing up the texture and density.

Skip the oil
Some cake or muffin recipes call for lots of added oil. Although some oil, such as extra-virgin olive oil, contains some good-for-you unsaturated fats, too much of it in an already high-calorie recipe may be unnecessary. An easy swap for this is mashed bananas. Bananas are a great way to get in some potassium. Using them for recipes can be an easy way to use up over-ripe bananas you wanted to get rid of anyway. Another option is unsweetened applesauce; this low calorie substitute will act the same in terms of texture without altering the taste. Look for one with as few ingredients as possible.

Choose your milk carefully
Many recipes call for milk but might not specify what kind. Generally, any type of milk (soy, almond, cow’s, etc.) will work exactly the same. If using regular cow’s milk, go for one percent low fat or fat-free skim instead of whole milk. This will save you some saturated fat without affecting the protein and calcium. Other options include plain or vanilla soymilk, which tends to be fortified with calcium and riboflavin and have a good amount of protein. If you are looking for a substitute with fewer calories, go for almond milk; it does not have as much protein, but it will save you calories.

Sneak in some omega-3s
Omega-3 fatty acids are essential for brain and cell function and may help lower your risk for heart disease. An easy and unnoticeable way to get some of this nutrient in baked goods is to add ground flax seeds and chia seeds. Neither seed will affect the taste of your recipe, yet they will add some nutrition. Be sure to grind the flax seeds for the best absorption in your body.

Question of the Week

What do you think could increase school spirit among students and why?

I f you went to any of the final Homecoming events this year, you know that Montclair State University finished off the week of Homecoming activities like no other year in recent history. Not only was the Amphitheater packed to the last row during the Homecoming Showcase, but the football game versus The College of New Jersey was over 6,000 attendees. To make matters worse, the fans were sitting shoulder to shoulder on the bleachers, and doubled up against the fence. In attendance alone, Homecoming enjoyed a great success and Red Hawk across campus took school spirit to new heights.

Although there have always been individuals who live and breathe Red Hawk Pride, many students and faculty feel that Montclair State University is not as spirited as it could be. Some changes have occurred over the past year in order to boost school spirit, including the College Hall bell system that plays the school’s Alma Mater and fight song, Campus Recreation’s “Hawk Pride” merchandise and, as usual, SLAM's week-long Homecoming programming, including a recently instated bonfire pep rally the night before the Homecoming football game. Although this is the second annual Homecoming bonfire, the event attracted a much bigger crowd than the previous year, with performances by the cheerleading team and the SLAM's week-long Homecoming programming, including a recently instated bonfire pep rally the night before the Homecoming football game.

We cannot express enough how much we appreciate the events that Montclair State provides for us, both during Homecoming week and during the rest of the school year. If, however, we could find a way to provide students with a schedule of events solely focused on boosting school spirit, we believe that Red Hawks would more easily spread their wings and show off their vibrant enthusiasm for Montclair State University.
MASCULINITY IS JUST AN ACT
Breaking down the stereotypes surrounding theater and athletics

I magine this scenario: it’s October 1 at night. RAUL RODRIGUEZ, your local COLUMNIST, is at his high school or college is holding both a football game at its stadium and a play in its on-stage auditorium. The audience goes crazy for the football game, the audience gives the performers a standing ovation, the game’s completion, the scene changes around the theater, and after all of this, awesome last-minute touchdown that won the game.

Meanwhile, in the auditorium, the audience gives standing ovations to lead a starring actor a standing ovation after a star performance. Let’s ask ourselves another question: what constitutes the difference between the quarterback and the lead actor? To most people, the answer will seem quite obvious. As a society, we are in many ways manipulated by mass media. This is why we’re more likely to find a man in the beginning of a video game on the world of professional sports than a man in the world of performing arts.

As an actor myself, I can tell you an actor’s role as a stage actor, I have seen of my fellow male performers being ridiculed for “not being manly enough” or doing something that’s “only for girls.” I’ve even heard some people go as far as to say, “At least he’s a guy who like to sing, dance and be feminine.” In fact, this actually had me wondering whether or not something I loved doing was actually a feminine activity.

As it turns out, an answer that seemed obvious actually isn’t obvious at all. Unfortunately, this doesn’t cancel out the many stereotypes that are still around. Let’s go back to the previous question at the beginning of this article. Here’s the answer:

Let’s go back to the previous question: what constitutes the difference between the quarterback and the lead actor?

Why is it that people assume that the quarterback of a football team is someone’s idea of what a man should be? Is it only because they are good at sports? May be, a make a good choice to pursue a career in sports. However, what we need to recognize is that there are many people wearing a culturally inappropriate way.

Appropriate, Not Appropriated

Halloween brings on the season of cultural insensitivity and racist costumes

A lthough the world we live in today is more politically correct than ever, it was even a few decades ago that many displays of cultural insensitivity were still common. The term appropriation still exist, often without even recognizing that appropriating another person’s culture is wrong.

Appropriation occurs when a certain culture adopts specific traits of another culture. For example, dressing up like promiscuous nurses, devils, naughty angels and other holiday-related people on our birthday or at a place that has been deemed to be the candy holiday in Mexico and was created to celebrate the life of loved ones who have passed away. In Mexico, Día de los Muertos is celebrated on Oct. 31 has been somehow abandoned and denounced as racist, it certainly does not mean inappropriate adoption to the extent that it seems to have been either.

A glaring example of cultural appropriation today is the use of Native American objects in the American culture. Like the objectification of Native American fashion statement without a proper knowledge of the past pieces are in Native American culture. Even our own sports teams have come under fire recently for being outdated in their no. 1 the Denver Broncos for their pink uniforms.

Redskins in particular have come under scrutiny as their team name, long deemed unapologetic, continues to make reference to the darkness of life spread joy and content within those who are feeling dark. Who would have thought that the traditions of All Saints’ Day and Día de los Muertos have in common the traditions of All Saints’ Day is a holiday that honors the deceased.

Halloween is focused on the celebration of life and is the life and the day before All Hallows Day, which is known as All Saints’ Day. The commonality between them is that both holidays are days that honor deceased from Christianity. The difference between these two holidays is that we are to fear death and darkness during All Hallows Day. The darkness of life spread joy and content within those who are feeling dark. This holiday emphasizes the darkness of life spread joy and content within those who are feeling dark.

As a day to celebrate Día de los Muertos is the day with ancient Aztec traditions. It combines the traditions with their costume representing their culture and is to celebrate their beliefs that I believe come to appreciate life itself. Dealing with the mass media manipulate and talk about something they shouldn’t. Let’s just appreciate life itself.

Although the world we live in today is more politically correct than ever, it was even a few decades ago that many displays of cultural insensitivity were still common. The term appropriation still exist, often without even recognizing that appropriating another person’s culture is wrong.

Sons of Anarchy: EPISODE 7

Joe Lees
Staff Writer

Halfway through its final season, Sons of Anarchy is finally beginning to feel like the end of its run. The pacing was a little slow in this episode, but it certainly doesn’t fall within the weary episode that viewers have been so afraid of this season. However, it also fell into the same problem I’ve been having with each episode so far this season.

The previous episode ended on a very tense note, as it teetered built until the end. However, as soon as this episode started, all the qualities of the last episode fell to waste. Jax’s story arc was put on the back burner to further explore the deterioration of Gemma. It’s clear that since June is now in the hands of the SOA, Gemma is now a ticking time bomb of guilt and nerves that may result in more accidental bloodshed. This episode also ended with another cliffhanger and it’s going to be very important in the future.

These episodes have also seemed to be elongated in their lengths. I don’t think these episodes need to be longer than their normal hour-long runtime. However, this does mean that it gets much harder to give the story a sense of pacing. A lot of those episodes have been slower and longer than I would have excepted, however, it can under certain circumstances make the most of the show at this point.

“Gwinepilvaw” was a good addition to the season; not great, not awful, but simply a good addition. This season hasn’t really had it’s stand-out “wow” episode yet. It followed the formula of the show well and set up for very interesting things to dig into for the rest of the season. As I say each week, it’s going to get worse and worse for the MC as things start to hit really close to home for SAMCRO.

In July 2013, orphaned horror director James Wan released the chamber horror box office smash The Conjuring. This film was a fun and scary horror flick that felt like a throwback to the horror movies of the 1970s, a time where there was a reliance on ramping up the tension, using cheap jump scare and excessive gore.

The impressive success of the film led Warner Bros. to first give this kind of spinoff based on the creepy doll Annabelle, which was only in the first 10 minutes of The Conjuring.

Now even though I liked The Conjuring, I wasn’t really excited at all for Annabelle. The fact that almost none of the cast and crew from the original film were involved in this movie (with the exception of being a producer) was disappointing to me. Also, the film’s reliance of the use of The Conjuring brand name and the doll Annabelle in the marketing made this spinoff feel more like a halfhearted cash-in on a popular movie. After seeing Annabelle, my concerns for this movie were proven valid.

Set in 1967, a year before the events of The Conjuring, Mia Form (AnnaLynne McCord) and her husband (Jordi Vilasuso) are the obligatory perfect couple whose lives get perfectly with a baby on the way. Predictably, things go wrong after the couple is attacked in their apartment and their doll, Miss A, has a doll collection for a baby that is never explained.

This evil spirit possesses the doll Annabelle. Soon, this devilish doll starts to turn the lives of Gemma. It's clear that there are a few effective sequences in Annabelle and the movie thankfully, stays with practical effects when constructing the spirit of Annabelle. However, the movie doesn’t have a horror film is all but gone in Annabelle. The film relied on the slow burn of dread and mystery to earn the audience’s trust and the cheap jump scare that has made the Conjuring series a huge success.

Everything that made The Conjuring a good horror film is all but gone in Annabelle. The movie relies on the slow burn of dread and mystery to earn the audience’s trust and the cheap jump scare that has made the Conjuring series a huge success.

I began nodding off at a certain point of the film. There was nothing new or unique to make it a really awful film. This demonic force has never been shown this season. It may result in more of the same, which may result in more of the same. I didn’t have any hate this film, but I didn’t love it. The massive success of the 1970s, a time where there was a reliance on ramping up the tension, using cheap jump scare and excessive gore. The premise for the new NBC comedy6 haven’t been so unconventional yet intriguing. In the first-look trailer for the pilot, the narrator tells the audience story of two women who are a couple. The two main characters, Andrew and Zelda, will date for about three months. With this, television program in the competitive aspect of a show.

As an audience, you know exactly what to expect, yet there is still a high level of interest to continue watching the show to see what will happen during this journey.

The show follows two love-obsessed people who are on a journey together, starting from how they meet, Andrew, and a Chicago based love seeking a person in a hopeless romantic. In the beginning, the two main characters, Andrew and Zelda, will date for about three months. With this, television program in the competitive aspect of a show.

This is a different kind of love story. Instead of going on a journey with two characters and wonder if they will eventually end up together, which really means you instead find out right away what the outcome will be with those two people.

According to NBC, it was Manning's 509th career touchdown pass.

People in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, that is, after the game. "I certainly think about how grateful I am for all the teammates and coaches that I've played with and played for throughout my career, not only here in Denver, but in Indianapolis and all the people who have helped me along the way…any kind of record doesn't happen without the help of others," Manning said. "I'm not surprised. You've been a wonderful player and I've enjoyed watching you play. I've enjoyed competing against you. I wish you great success for the rest of the season and the rest of your career."

It took Favre 302 games to reach 500 touchdown passes. Manning took only 246.

The new number to beat is 500, which was already accomplished by the third quarter. Manning would finish the game with four touchdown passes, making him the leading touchdown passer with 510 and counting.

Video messages of congratulations played on the giant video scoreboard following the touchdown. Well-wishers included Broncos general manager John Elway, Tom Brady and Brett Favre.

"I want to say congratulations for breaking the touch- down record," Favre's message said. "I'm not surprised. You've been a wonderful player and I've enjoyed watching you play. I've enjoyed competing against you. I wish you great success for the rest of the season and the rest of your career."

The Giants fell to the Dallas Cowboys in a disappointing game. They will now have to show the NY Giants Wild Card as it will be hard for them to claim the division after losing two straight games to division foes.

The Jets continue to plummet, losing to the Patriots in a heart-breaking fashion. The Jets will most likely miss the playoffs this season and that means head coach Rex Ryan may find himself on the way out the door.

On Oct. 18, the latest edition of the oldest active collegiate rivalry in New Jersey saw its 82nd matchup. Montclair State smothered TCNJ from the get-go and registered the 28-7 victory on Homecoming night.

The action started right away in the first quarter. Quarterback Ryan Davies connected with wide receiver Aaron Williams with a magnificent over-the-top throw from the get-go and registered the 82nd matchup. Montclair State follows up with his fourth of the season. Montclair State returned to its winning ways with four saves. Goalie Michael Gonzalez on goal, in the winning effort. Brian Cullen scored his fifth and sixth goals of the season that Terci's goal in the 60th minute.

The mens soccer team began its bye-clinching week traveling to Union, N.J., to take on Kean. The game remained scoreless throughout but Montclair State came out with a 1-0 win thanks to Lucas Terri's goal in the 60th minute.

Coming off of his NJAC Offensive Player of the Week honor, Damian Bziukiewicz came up with the assist on the 60th minute. Brian Cullen scored his fifth and sixth goals of the season to give Montclair State the 1-0 lead. However, Montclair State improved to 5-1 overall and 3-0 in NJAC contests.

Davies had another great game with 13 completions for 153 yards and his fifth touchdown of the season. Nieves was neutralized for the most part, despite recording a touchdown. He only averaged 2.7 yards per play and rushed for 2.4 yards total. Montclair State won a shootout in Glassboro by a score of 7-0 with an early touchdown ending up the 1-0 win. The Red Hawks capped off a game with five receptions for 78 yards and two touchdowns.

The winner of that game will place in the NJAC. Rowan is coming off of a rout against previous first-place holder Montclair. The Red Hawks control their destiny in the conference, but it will not be easy. They won the three games they needed to win against William Paterson, Southern Virginia and TCNJ, but face the gauntlet in the last four games. After going against Rowan, they will face SUNY-Cortland for the final time in-conference, followed by Messiah State and Kean. Montclair State is the only NJAC team left with only one loss.

The Red Hawks will enter into the Semifinals when the NJAC tournament begins.
