Cold weather caused a pipe to burst in Freeman Dining Hall.

At one point in Kingsman: The Secret Service, the villainous Richmond Valentine (Samuel L. Jackson) asks Kingsman Harry Hart (Colin Firth) if he likes spy movies. “Not the new ones. They’re all too serious nowadays,” Hart replies.

This dialogue takes place in the villain’s home where the two are sharing a meal of McDonald’s, which is being served to them by the villain’s henchman, a girl with blades for legs.

In spite of their differing ideologies, the one thing that Richmond and Harry have in common is their love of the old-school spy films, where super spies would battle megalomaniacal bad guys with a convoluted plot for world domination.

MSU Panel Discusses Brown and Garner Cases

Peter Sheaver
Staff Writer

The cases involving Michael Brown in Ferguson, Mo. and Eric Garner of Staten Island have become well-known influences nationally as well as internationally. Yet, the incidents that occurred as well as the legal proceedings that followed still open controversial debate, as was examined Monday night at Montclair State University in a panel entitled “Do Black Lives Matter?”

Massive protests and great opposition have surged across the country and throughout the world in the cases involved with Michael Brown and Eric Garner. These cases, along with many others, have created per- spectives that not only draw upon race in the spheres of inequality and gentrification of minorities throughout American history; they have further led to the question of the legal proceedings involved with the indictment process and the question of excessive force.

Black HERstory Ball Leaves its Mark

LGBTQ Center hosted event in honor of Black History Month.

The LGBTQ Center celebrated a part of black history otherwise forgotten with its largest event of the month. The timeless glamour of stylized vintage came to life at the free Black HERstory Ball on Friday, Feb. 13. In addition to commemorating the fashion greats who have inspired icons such as Madge- na, the ball was designed to ele- vate the students of Montclair State who manage to catwalk outside the dishwashing area.

loved the panel of judges and categories of competition includ- ing: Androgyny-Realness, Blackout (Black Attire), Best Butch, Best Femme, Best Run- way Walk, Best Lip-Synch and Best Vogue. International rap star Cakes da Killa was broker to host the event. He said it was "an honor" to be able to MC at his alma mater.

The drag queen and king participants were dressed to the nines and participating students recorded much of the event. Performances included dance routines by the Haitian Student Association dance troupe and the Haus dance group. Trophy prizes were awarded to any outstanding participants. Everyone was invited and encouraged to join what was sure to be an entertaining evening on campus. "It was amazing," said competitor Julian Rosario. "If it were up to me, this would be a monthly event. It brought everyone together."

The pioneers of drag culture who flourished in the sixties paved the way for the orden- ful evolution of drag-culture. A screening of Paris is Born- ing, a related documentary about ballroom culture and the revolution was aired the previ- ous Wednesday at 8 p.m. The hundreds of fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers rejected from their families found a safe space among like-minded in- dividuals thanks to a common vogue community.

An entire week of programs was organized in preparation for the event. A vogue work- shop was provided and any students interested in expand- ing their knowledge of black history, drag or meeting others with similar interests found a fun evening thanks to the cen- ter. "Montclair State has never seen anything like this. I hope it becomes an annual event," said graduate student Ebony Jack- son.

The next large program sponsored by the LGBTQ Cen- ter will be Divas for Diversity where guests-Channel and Bebe Zahara Benet will perform and meet-and-greet students. Many students were disappointed when the event was postponed due to weather conditions; however, Divas for Diversity is confirmed for March 2. The LGBTQ Center provides weekly group meetings and discussions for students and faculty of Montclair State University. therefore caused a great deal of stress to quickly enter the dining area. In response, an orderly evacuation of the dining area was conducted for the sake of all present at the time of the incident; both University Police and Fire Department responded to the scene to ensure the safety and well-being of these individuals.

To begin cleaning up, the Chartwells Dining Team pushed the fallen water towards a floor drain in the dishwashing area; soon after, the housekeeping staff arrived to assist with removing the water from the dining area.

TheChartwells Dining Team brought in additional staff to begin the cleanup process. Though the residents were able to return to their rooms, many had to be turned off for plumbing repairs. Within a few hours, the system was fully operational.

Though the remains of dam-gage are still present at the site of the incident, by 9:30 p.m., the dining area was restored to its original condition.

Students and residents were invited to sit at Freeman Dining Hall while the cleaning and initial repairs were being made. In the meantime, for those looking for an alternative dinner setting the following morning, Residence Life staffs, as well as the residing Life staffs, as well as the resi-

Transitioning from Winter to Spring

Kristen Bryfogle
Opinion Editor

They say that March comes in like a lion and out like a lamb, but we all know that at Montclair State, the lamb often doesn’t arrive until long after the start of spring. With temperatures barely breaking 30 degrees over the past two weeks, it looks like we still have a lot of cold weather left, but most stores are already featuring spring styles. There are many ways that you can incorporate spring trends with some warmer clothing so that you can dress for the upcoming season while still staying warm and comfortable in the transition from winter to spring. If you follow these tips, you can conquer the cold and embrace your inner flower-power queen, even if the weather is working against you.

Mix and match winter and spring pieces with bright colors and patterns.

In The Devil Wears Prada, Miranda Priestly famously dismisses the trend of florals for spring, but let’s be honest: spring is the season for flowers, both in gardens and in your clothes. Most stores stock up on floral patterns as spring approaches, so you can always pick up a floral blouson in chiffon or polyester and pair it with a wool cardigan and skinny jeans for a bright and springy look. You can also dress in a neutral top and a floral bottom, such as a floral print tassel or floral skater skirt with tights. Pair either of these with a collared button down, layered with a sweater and you’ll be sure to keep out the Montclair State wind while staying up on the trends. If you’re not into florals, pick out a bold-colored denim or trouser to brighten your look from the popular blacks, greys and browns of winter fashion. Old Navy pixie pants are a great option. They come in a large span of sizes, colors and lengths and can be dressed up for work and down for a weekend hangout. Pairing one of these with a winter go-to—a dark sweater or bottom—can mix cold-weather fashion with spring staples, easing the transition to lighter-weight clothing.

When the temperature rises a bit, you can pack away your knee-high and lined boots and start wearing lighter footwear—both in color and weight. Instead of wearing a heavy boot, you can slip on a pair of light-colored booties to brighten your look, or try a pair of ballerinas. These classic shoes are perfect for a casual look with jeans and can be dressed up for work with your favorite dress and blazer. Oxfords come in all colors, so you can choose a cream or light brown for a staple shoe that matches with everything or you can pick up one with a bold pattern, such as a floral or polka dots, to make a statement with your shoe selection. Another great way to lighten up a look is to pick up a pair of sneaker tennis shoes. Keds and Payless sell great everyday sneakers that you can wear with basically any casual outfit, bringing a splash of spring fever into your cozy appearance.

Replace your heavy wool scarf with a lighter-weight fashion scarf in a floral pattern or bright color to complement your outfit for the winter while still staying warm. You can also wear some soft pastel-colored statement necklaces or dangling earrings to break up winter’s dark color patterns. Flair and makeup can also give the illusion of being ready for spring although you are still dressing warmly. Getting warm highlights, wearing your hair into a braided hairstyle and coining your locks into big beachy waves can definitely help your hairstyle springtime look. Additionally, experimenting with pastel makeup can always give your favorite warmer clothing a uniquely springy flair and using lighter prills and peaches in your palette can lighten the severity of the winter months.

Pick the right accessories and style your look according to the weather.

It sounds uncomfortable and unflattering, but wearing a pair of tights under your jeans is a life saver in cold weather. It will keep you warm on especially cold days and when the weather lightens up, you can wear the tights with a skirt, shirt, or with a pair of wool, tweed or leather shorts.

Lightweight clothing isn’t enough to keep you warm on especially cold days and when the weather lightens up, you can wear the tights with a skirt, shirt, or with a pair of wool, tweed or leather shorts.

Wear heavier clothing with a lighter jacket.

Late winter/early spring is one of those times of the year when it’s cold enough to wear a heavy winter coat, but bundling up seems a bit excessive. My suggestion in this case is to bundle up underneath your coat; wear an undershirt, a sweater and a pair of jeans or a sweater dress to keep toasty. Then, throw on a denim, leather or another type of lightweight jacket. This can help you avoid looking overdressed while keeping yourself warm enough to fight getting sick in the middle of the semester.

Skipping breakfast means skipping critical health benefits

James Carpentier

If you’re routinely making a fast break out the door each morning en route to class, the gym or the office without first consuming the day’s most important meal—breakfast, consider this powerful eye-opening health benefit derived from “breaking the fast,” or going several hours without food and water during overnight sleep. You’ll see why it’s called the most important meal of the day.

Missing breakfast is like driving a car with no fuel. Your brain, muscles and stomach are starving for nutrients and fluids to support your daily routine. After an overnight fast during sleep mode, you awaken feeling slightly dehydrated and with low blood sugar; two issues that need immediate attention.

“Mowing breakfast” or going for a fast break out the door each morning en route to class, the gym or the office without first consuming a complete breakfast is a bad habit. Breakfast eaters are more likely to overeat at lunch and dinner. Also, it’s easier to burn calories earlier in the day from a larger meal than having a large meal. Complete breakfast promotes fat-burning metabolism throughout the day. It also helps maintain weight and joint recovery from sports and intense exercise compared to those who avoid breakfast.

Breakfast eaters efficiently use nutrients during metabolic processing and exercise. Consuming a couple of glasses of water, milk or tea, coffee and fluids to not only rehydrate, but also to help erase typical back stiffness.

Regularity consuming a complete breakfast containing some of the above-mentioned foods and beverages effectively promotes fat-burning metabolism throughout the day. It also helps maintain weight and joint recovery from sports and intense exercise compared to those who avoid breakfast.

Breakfast consumers are also typically leaner because a filling nutritious breakfast satisfies hunger longer so they’re less likely to overeat at lunch and dinner. Also, it’s easier to burn calories earlier in the day from a larger meal than having a large–day large meal.

There are ordinary excuses and reasons to either omit breakfast or resort to a grab-and-go with a less-than-wholesome portable sugary energy or protein bar. Most Important Meal of the Day

Skipping breakfast means skipping critical health benefits

James Carpentier
Staff Writer

If you’re routinely making a fast break out the door each morning en route to class, the gym or the office without first consuming the day’s most important meal—breakfast, consider this powerful eye-opening health benefit derived from “breaking the fast,” or going several hours without food and water during overnight sleep. You’ll see why it’s called the most important meal of the day.

Missing breakfast is like driving a car with no fuel. Your brain, muscles and stomach are starving for nutrients and fluids to support your daily routine. After an overnight fast during sleep mode, you awaken feeling slightly dehydrated and with low blood sugar; two issues that need immediate attention.

“Mowing breakfast” or going for a fast break out the door each morning en route to class, the gym or the office without first consuming a complete breakfast is a bad habit. Breakfast eaters are more likely to overeat at lunch and dinner. Also, it’s easier to burn calories earlier in the day from a larger meal than having a large meal. Complete breakfast promotes fat-burning metabolism throughout the day. It also helps maintain weight and joint recovery from sports and intense exercise compared to those who avoid breakfast.

Breakfast consumers are also typically leaner because a filling nutritious breakfast satisfies hunger longer so they’re less likely to overeat at lunch and dinner. Also, it’s easier to burn calories earlier in the day from a larger meal than having a large–day large meal.

Drink Your Fruits and Veggies

Kimberly Asman
Staff Writer

For busy students, eating five servings of fruits and vegetables every day (boys and women aging between 19-30 years old need about two cups of fruit a day and about two and a half to three cups of vegetables) may seem like an unattainable goal. Perhaps it is easier for some to consume this much produce in the spring or summer when their favorites are in season, but it is important to include these foods throughout the year. Vegetables and fruits give you huge doses of vitamins and minerals, including lots of fiber to help keep your digestive system running smoothly. Thanks to the fiber and to a high water content, these foods fill you up quickly and keep you fuller longer, helping you to stay on track and avoid getting too hungry. A great way to include some extra fruits and vegetables every day without making it feel like a chore is to make a smoothie. Smoothies are easy to make, convenient, tasty and great for taking on the go (to class, to work, to a dorm room where you also have a mini-fridge to store your ingredients).

Start with a good base. This can vary depending on what you are looking for or any dietary restrictions. If you want a creamy base with extra protein, go for plain Greek yogurt. Plain yogurt may not appeal to you on its own, but it is great in a smoothie because you will be adding lots of other things that will mask the sour taste. This will also cut back on sugar, which you will get from the fruit you add in. If you want to focus on the produce and cut back on the calories, stick to unsweetened almond milk. While this is not a good source of protein, it is low calorie. You could also try low fat or fat-free milk to provide some protein and calcium.

Soy milk is a good option for vegans or vegetarians because it usually is fortified with great nutrients such as calcium and riboflavin, while still having a good amount of protein. Your target when choosing a milk should be around 8-10 grams of protein per each one cup serving. Of course, water is always an option too if you are not looking for a creamy texture and simply want something to make it more drinkable.

Now it’s time for the fun stuff: the fruits and veggies you are going to add in. You may want to have a theme in your smoothie such as all berries or you may simply add in whatever extra produce you have lying around. Usually, you can’t go wrong. Be sure to include at least one or two fruits because that is what will give your smoothie sweetness and make it tasty. Once you have this, do not be afraid to throw in some vegetables. The fruit will probably mask the taste of the veggies, so you will be getting nutrients without any tastes you may not prefer.

Dark leafy greens, such as spinach or kale, is a great way to add in iron to your smoothie. Avocados is another good way to get a creamy texture and heart healthy fats. If you have some greens or any fruits that are giving you a bad case of the greens, try freezing them. This will prevent them from spoiling and frozen fruit is great for smoothies; it adds taste and nutrients and acts like an ice cube, giving you a thicker texture. If you want some extra nutrients, try adding some ground flax seed or chia seeds to give yourself some healthy fatty acids. If you want a heavier drink, think about adding peanut butter. While full of fat, it is the good kind (unsaturated) and a tablespoon or two will definitely add a lot of taste to your smoothie if you are a peanut butter lover.

You can also add cinnamon or other spices if you want to boost the flavor of your smoothie. Every smoothie may come out a bit differently; experiment and play around until you find combinations you love and can always rely on for a quick and healthy meal or snack.

There are plenty of cheap mini-blenders that double as a cup and are perfect for a single serving. These won’t take up much room and are a great addition to a dorm room where you also have a mini-fridge to store your ingredients.

We like to think of the Internet as an open space—a creative commons where everyone, provided they have access, can set up a website, a forum, an email address, etc. and have tons of information instantly at their fingertips. But while this may be the concept of the Internet we all know and love, all of this could change on Feb. 26, when the United States Federal Communication Commission makes a formal decision about the future of the Internet.

In just one week, the FCC will vote on net neutrality, either keeping a free Internet alive and well or limiting the way that we use the web by allowing Internet providers like Comcast and Verizon to have a significantly tighter control over what we see on our screens and how we access it.

What exactly is at stake in net neutrality? Internet providers will be able to make exclusive deals with companies like Netflix, Facebook and YouTube to provide faster service. Say that Comcast strikes a deal with Netflix. If you have a Verizon Internet connection, Netflix will stream at a lower speed because of its loyalty to Comcast. This makes it extremely easy for big companies like Comcast and Verizon to create a monopoly, making it nigh-impossible for smaller Internet providers to stay in business. With the reins loosened, companies can now also charge higher and higher fees for faster Internet service because there will likely be no competition to provide any other kind of service. There are concerns that the elimination of net neutrality will also impede innovation because of a lack of competition.

The possibility of losing net neutrality is extremely detrimental to everyday life. Not only will an Internet service monopoly hinder using the web for leisure, but work, commerce and research will also be impacted. So much of our lives is dependent on Internet access, that blocking people from using services efficiently unless they have enough money to pay for faster Internet is an essentially classist form of Internet.

Issues of net neutrality have been around for years, but now is one of the most important times to take a stand against eliminating neutrality. The FCC is voting next week, and are currently offering an open forum where citizens can weigh in on the situation, argue for and against net neutrality and air their grievances. It takes just a few seconds to send a comment or letter to the FCC. Online comments can be submitted at fcc.gov/comments. A really easy way to let the FCC know that you stand for a free Internet is to go onto a pro-neutrality organization’s website and fill out your information on one of their pre-formatted letters. Fight for the Future has such submission options and also sends updates on the campaigns for an open Internet and basic information about the issue.

No one should be prevented from using the Internet because of a service monopoly or because soaring prices make it impossible for them to fill out job applications, contact friends and family via email and social media, research a subject or even just to watch cat videos on YouTube. We urge you to take a stand and use your voice to air their grievances.

I did get to see all five animated films as well as three live-action films. As a sucker for cuteness and aesthetics, I nearly cried during one screening of all of the short feature nominees for the Oscars this Sunday. I was unable to stay the whole afternoon because of work, but I did not have a date on Valentine’s Day, but I did have a few personal connections that allowed me to attend an Academy-supervised screening of all the animated features and laughed at the other four.

I'm a sucker for autobiographical family humor. Me and My Moulton is a narration piece from Norwegian filmmaker Torell Kove that describes her unusual childhood due to her post modern architect parents and her jealousy of the family downstairs. The visual style of this film is rather minimalistic and flat, with the people dot-eyed and symmetrical. This was also easily the funniest out of all of the animated shorts. Not only does it include bombastic representational sequences of Kove’s eccentric family, but it also includes imaginative sequences of bears that act hysterically in every way. It also portrays family humor. Me and My Moulton

Some of you may have seen this short preceding Disney’s Big Hero 6. This short, the only one of which had a major Hollywood studio behind it, is from the point of view of a Boston Terrier that has two loves: his owner and, mostly, high-calorie foods. Every scene transitions between what the dog, Winston, eats while surprisingly not becoming overweight. Winston’s appetite, however, gets hindered when his owner’s new girlfriend changes his diet. Feast

This wasn’t so much entertaining as it was interesting. It acts as a rather typical drama between two quarreling British brothers caring for their dying, gout-ridden mother. What’s interesting about The Bigger Picture is the animation style; it’s a combination of stop-motion figurines and wall paintings that act as the people. Some of the scene’s transitions were visually fascinating but had no visible meaning behind them. One of the brothers, Richard, is vacuuming a room while his mother talks to a friend. With no provocation, everything in the room—the furniture, the people—is sucked into the vacuum cleaner, followed by the next scene. Perhaps there’s meaning behind it, but I didn’t see it; it did look cool, though.

#5 - A Single Life

The shortest out of all the films at three minutes, A Single Life is a child-like plastic world of sorts, as our main character looks like a cross between a Doughboy Mitten and Shrunken from Candyland. It peaked a few laughs, but the choice of the song’s genre as indie-folk pays as well. The outcome of the story didn’t truly off on me or the audience well.
Local band Through Thorne and Brier are not what you'd expect at first sight; they are more than your typical metal core band. Vocalists Mark, Peter, Ali, Perry and Justin are easy-going guys who will gladly sit and talk to just about anyone about anything from The X-Files to their musical inspirations. Originating from Bayonne, N.J., the down-to-earth musicians began playing together in college. All members had played in different bands at the time of their meeting. They soon realized that they shared a common interest in the music they wanted to create. The band self-classifies as metal punk and graps musical inspiration from bands such as NoMeansNo, Tragedy and the Misfits. This band will rock your brains out. Their rhythm and overwhelming energy on stage will have you rocking out in seconds. Even I had a hard time not diving into their addictive music, and I’m a person who does not listen to heavy metal that much. I have to admit I became an instant fan. I hope to have the fortune of experiencing this band live out in seconds. Even I had a hard time not diving into their stage will have you rocking your brains out. Their rhythm and overwhelming energy on the X-Files...
In the hands of director and co-writer Matthew Vaughn (Kick-Ass, X-Men: First Class) this love letter to those old spy movies contains an energetic, almost childlike sense of fun that causes the film to move all over the place with no sense of restraint or control, this is the film’s greatest strength, as well as its greatest detriment.

The film focuses on Gary “Eggsy” Unwin (Taron Egerton), an intelligent but rebellious young man living with his mother, abusive stepfather and baby sister. His real father was a Kingsman who was killed on duty when Gary was a very young boy. The only link Gary has to his late father is a medal that Harry gave to the boy’s mother after his father’s death. The medal has a phone number on the back that will give Gary help whenever he needs it if he inputs a coded message. After getting arrested for vehicular theft, Gary calls the number, delivers the coded message. After getting released for vehicular theft, Gary calls the number, delivers the coded message, and soon finds himself embroiled into the world of the Kingsman agency. Gary, along with several other teens, enters training to become a new member of the Kingsman agency. In his first major movie role, Taron Egerton shines as Gary, bringing a nice sense of charm, charisma and heart to the role that could’ve come off as manufactured. If you’re going to this movie to get some fun action, you’ll undoubtedly get your money’s worth. The movie also contains loads of clever wordplay and visual gags, particularly in one very funny sequence involving the front covers of a local newspaper. You’ll have to look in the background during this sequence, but it’s worth the extra attention if you do.

Kingsman is an imperfect cocktail of cartoony violence, satire, classic spy movie homage and genuine emotion that is shaken, not stirred into an enjoyable piece of popcorn entertainment. It dares to be completely chaotic and over-the-top, especially when other scenes are played completely straight with some scenes getting very dark and heavy for what’s supposed to be a lighthearted throwback. It’s like an uneven blend of Austin Powers and the Kill Bill movies, where spoof-level comedy is awkwardly meshed with energetic and extremely gory violence. The pacing of the film is also problematic, with the movie moving at such a zippy pace that it never slows down to let any of the more serious moments of the movie have some real emotional weight to them. As a result, I never have real emotional weight to them. As a result, I never.

The rest of the ensemble cast delivers solid work as well, with Michael Caine, Mark Strong and Colin Firth all being given plenty of time to shine. One actor, who’s not even billed or promoted in the marketing, owns every scene he’s in paying homage to one of his most iconic roles. Vaughn’s direction, as it was in his previous movies, is assured, slick and stylish. While many of the film’s action scenes are bombastic and over-the-top, they never feel cluttered or messy as they are coherently shot and smoothly edited. If you’re going to this movie to get some fun action, you’ll undoubtedly get your money’s worth.

UFC Fight Night 60 Recap

Thomas Formoso
Sports Editor

UFC Fight Night 60 continued as scheduled despite a plethora of injuries that frequently threatened the main event. In the end, Brandon Thatch and Benson Henderson got together in the Octagon. Henderson, the loser of two straight fights, dodged an early bullet and rebounded in the fourth to gain the submission win.

Despite the win, Henderson did not budge in the Lightweight rankings, likely because the fight was contested at Welterweight. With the Lightweight division jampacked with contenders, this is just the start for Henderson to work his way back to a title fight. For Thatch, he lost to a top contender and his stock did not drop much. Thatch vs. Henderson won Fight of the Night.

In the Co-Main Event, Max Holloway worked out a unanimous decision over Cole Miller in the Featherweight division. With the win, Holloway jumps three spots in the rankings and stands at tenth. Holloway will now look to fight a top-10 fighter to continue to climb the Featherweight rankings. The two Performance of the Night bonuses went to Neil Magny and Ray Borg. Magny submitted Chris Kelades in the opening fight of the Fox Sports 1 Main Card. Magny recorded a submission victory by way of a rear-naked choke against Kichi Kunimoto.
