Aiming to Prevent Food Waste at MSU

Many students at Montclair State University believe that too much of the food in the on-campus eateries goes to waste and that some of this unnecessary disposal could be prevented if Chartwells, the food provider on campus, were more proactive in waste control and management. Although students have a general sense of what happens to food at the end of the night, many are not fully clear with the university’s waste-disposal procedures and question whether waste products could be reused to perform different functions for the greater community.

Lindsey Anderson, the Marketing Manager of Food Services, cleared up some of the misunderstandings over what actually happens to leftover food once the dining facilities close. She revealed that food that can be used again is often served and reined into a new dish the next day. “If there was leftover chicken from a day and it could be used in chicken noodle soup the next day, that is how we would use that leftover,” she explained.

Most other food ends up in the trash, Anderson remarked, as it expires by the end of the night and therefore cannot be preserved or donated.

Correction: In the March 5 edition, student Mahnoor Waseem was misquoted in the article “Cory in the House.” The quote should have read as follows: “I think Senator Booker spoke about a lot of really important things. To accomplish his goals, he’s going to need support from both sides of the aisle... One thing he started doing, if you look at his Instagram, he’s doing a series called ‘Selfies with my fellow Senators,’ and I think that’s a great thing because that humanizes him.”

Keynotes speaker, Rabner, serves as chief justice of New Jersey Supreme Court.

Staff Writer Peter Shaver Staff Writer

With graduation approaching on May 20, the Student Government Association committee selected the eighth chief justice of the New Jersey Supreme Court, Stuart Rabner, as this year’s commencement speaker. Last semester, a committee of random students and faculty selected 20 commencement speaker nominations. The committee consisted of random students and administrators. Bios were provided describing each of the nominations. The committee then ranked the nominations and narrowed down the numbers, according to Rajohn White, the Vice President of the SGA. Once the five candidates were selected, committee chair Keith Barrick, the Chief of Staff to President Susan Cole, took the final decision to the board of trustees. The final selection resulted in Chief Justice Rabner.

Rabner grew up in Passaic, eventually graduating summa cum laude from the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University. He graduated cum laude from Harvard Law School in 1985. Governor Jon Corzine nominated Chief Justice Rabner to the Supreme Court and, on June 20, 2007, he was sworn in.

Years later, he was nominated for tenure by Governor Chris Christie and was sworn in on June 24, 2014. He is expected to hold his position on the Supreme Court until he retires. Chief Justice Rabner and his wife, Deborah, have three children and reside in Caldwell. He is currently a member of the Board of Directors of the Institute of Judicial Administration at the New York University School of Law. He went on to serve as a member of the Board of Directors of the Conference of Chief Justices.

“I am curious to hear what [Chief Justice Rabner] has to say and I am eager to utilize his words of wisdom.” – Quanston Hunter, Senior

A student worker at Free-Place dispose of two entire piz-azzas a few minutes before the dining hall closed, even though students were still coming to the Italian food station to take slices. A student worker at Free-Place disposed of two entire pizzas a few minutes before the dining hall closed, even though students were still coming to the Italian food station to take slices. A student worker at Free-Montclair Dining Hall, who remains anonymous in order to protect herself, positions herself near the food left over from the lunch provided to students and their parents. According to this source, the food workers did not allow students outside of the program to take any of the leftovers unless they paid for them, though there were large amounts of food left. Most of that food was thrown out, evidencing a mentality that students were hungry students who could have helped prevent the food being thrown out, the employees were very concerned. Students have their own ideas about how Montclair State can prevent leftovers from being thrown away. Fauser believes that food scraps could help grow other foods if they were composting. "They get rid of a lot of eggs at the omelet station at Sam's Place," he said. "Just the amount of eggshells that get stomped into that little hole and the scraps of scrambled egg and omelet that get show in there — you could take that trash bag and make some pretty sweet soil out of that." One thing that all these par-ents agree upon is that the responsibility of food waste is on the students themselves and the role of the school to overcome is getting students to think about the things they put on their plate. "We always encourage stu-dents and staff to be the most conscientious eaters they can be," Anderson shared. "The programs we have in place are good for our guests as well as for our environment and we wish that everyone would take the time to see the benefits each one brings to the campus." 30 active merchants by the end of the spring semester. Right now, the list includes Sandwich Theory, CVS/Phar-macy, the Applebee’s on Route 5 and Route 46, Al_TIMESTAMP strtol. MSU is open to accepting requests from students. The merchants are happy to have MSU students back again and even more so, students are excited to be able to swap their ID cards without having to worry about carrying cash. Gianna Pellitteri, a senior child advocacy major, ordered a CABC Delivery sandwich since the program restarted.
Now that we’re back from Spring Break, it’s time to dust off your textbooks and get back to class. This means getting out of your pajamas or sweats and looking a little more presentable for class. I hope these stylish students give you some inspiration to help you get back in a fashionable mindset. The middle of the semester is here. Along with getting back to hitting the books, it’s actually time to get ready for class. I hope this gives you some outfit ideas for this still-chilly weather.

Red Hawk statue thoughts? “I think it’s a great way to inspire campus pride and I think it’s overblown. People don’t understand what the money has to go to and it’s been saved up for like 10 years. People are upset that they’re not doing anything to improve, but they can’t use the money towards anything else.”

Dress and tights: Forever 21.
Shoes: Doc Martens.
Last month, MSU held Body Acceptance Week as well as National Eating Disorder Awareness Week. How do you think the two compare? “I volunteer at the Drop-in Center. I think promoting a healthy image on the same week opens eyes to eating disorders. It’s a real thing and important to make sure people feel comfortable in their own skin.”

While a fashionable outfit is certainly attainable without wearing dresses, they are certainly a fun look. With the variety of tights and dress pairings, the possibilities are endless. Try colored tights that intentionally mismatch your dress. A great example shown here is mustard-colored tights and a neutrally-colored dress. Tights keep your legs warm and adding a cardigan over a sleeveless dress makes it more winter-appropriate. Combat boots are also a great choice to finish off this look.

Boots: Doc Martens.
Last month, MSU held Body Acceptance Week as well as National Eating Disorder Awareness Week. How do you think the two compare? “I think they compare because people with eating disorders should learn to love their body.”

Just because you’re trying to look fashionable doesn’t mean you have to wear dresses and skirts all the time. Try opting for high-waisted jeans to mix it up and get noticed within a sea of skinnies. Go for a Spencer-Hastings preppy look with a fun blazer to dress up a plain t-shirt. This is a great example of how you don’t need to give up plain, comfortable T-shirts and jeans to be fashionable. Top the look off with classic Doc Martens or combat boots.

Cardigan and necklace: thrifted.
Scarf: A.C. Moore.
Dress: H&M.

Here’s another example of a dress made winter-appropriate with leggings and boots. Now that it’s March, Spring is upon us which means florals are also coming out. Denim jackets are a great choice to transition from cardigans, as a way of still using layers to stay warm. To match the dress, adding fun accessories like flower crowns and bows are a great way to add to the look. This outfit screams spring and can be easily toned down with tights as well as dark-colored tops. This maroon top pairs great with the blue in this skirt, making it not too overpowering for the still-chilly weather. Tucking in the top is also a great opportunity to add a fun short strand necklace and the short sleeves can be easily covered up with a plain tee. This is a great example of how being fashionable doesn’t mean wearing skirts and dresses all the time. Leggings can easily be fashionable by pairing them with unique statement pieces. Try fun lace pieces like this one. If it’s one of the typical cold days, simply layer over a cardigan and jacket. Knee-high boots look a little more formal than combat boots to top off the look.

Is Your Peanut Butter Healthy?
Exposing the misinformation of peanut power

Kimberly Asman
Staff Writer

Peanut butter is heavily marketed as something that is good for you and your health. This is usually the case, as peanuts are naturally high in the beneficial fats and serve as a good source of protein. The unsaturated fats in peanuts can help lower cholesterol and reduce your risk of heart disease, which might not be on your radar now but could be a major change in your life in years to come.

In just two tablespoongs (one serving) of peanut butter, there are around seven grams of protein and 33 grams of unsaturated fats, plus a few grams of fiber. These nutrients will help keep you full, which is why the serving size may seem small.

Peanut butter also contains starch, which can also help control your cholesterol levels and blood triglycerides. Peanut butter is hugely versatile and there are many different kinds of peanut butter and jelly sandwich, but beware—the product “reduced fat” peanut butter is actually natural?

The easiest way to ensure peanut butter is actually natural? Make your own. Blend peanuts and oil in a high power blender and eventually they will turn into a peanut butter consistency.

Reduced Fat

Reduced fat peanut butter may appeal to someone who is counting calories, but don’t be fooled. The claim “reduced fat” simply means it has less fat than its original counterpart, but has nothing to do with calories or other nutrient content. In fact, reduced fat peanut butter tends to have the same or a similar amount of calories as the original. The fats in peanut butter are also healthy, so there is no need to reduce them. To make your product taste better with less fat, companies add lots of other ingredients to make up for it, especially sugar. The first two ingredients in “Jif Reduced Fat Creamy Peanut Butter Spread” are actually sugar in the form of corn syrup solids and sugar. It should immediately be a red flag when the first ingredient is sugar, followed by palm oil, followed by peanuts. The list of ingredients in “Jif Reduced Fat Creamy Peanut Butter Spread” actually contains more sugar than its reduced-fat friend, containing more sugar and sardine oil, plus tilapia gelatin. It may sound crazy for this product to be in peanut butter, but it is. This product carries more negative aspects than benefits it is. This product carries more negative aspects than benefits it is. This product carries more negative aspects than benefits it is. This product carries more negative aspects than benefits it is.

Nutrition Facts

Peanut butter is also marketed as something that is good for you and your health. This is certainly far from natural and something you should avoid on words should also make you aware that what you are eating is certainly far from natural and should be avoided.

Peanut Butter with Omega-3

Omega-3 fatty acids are some of the good ones, so it may seem easy to choose peanut butter claiming to have more of these. However, peanuts naturally have good fats and when you compare nutrition labels, “Jif Creamy Peanut Butter with Omega-3 DHA & EPA” actually has the same amount of healthy fats and it does not have any of these benefits. What it does have more of is ingredient, with 10 ingredients rounding out the list. This product, like its reduced-fat friend, contains hydrogenated oils, giving it a dose of trans fat. A head’s up for vegetarians: this product includes anchovy and sardine oil, plus tilapia gelatin. It may sound crazy for this product to be in peanut butter, but it is. This product carries more negative aspects than benefits it is. This product carries more negative aspects than benefits it is. This product carries more negative aspects than benefits it is. Have your handy smart phone or a laptop? Google the song “The Best Things in Life Are Free” – words and music composed nearly 90 years ago in 1927 by R.G. DeGrasse, Lew Brown and Ray Anderson. Then listen to the following lyrics sung by renowned singer and New Jersey native Frank Sina tro (who would have turned age 110 this December) or other renditions performed by various other popular recording artists during the 1930s, 40s, and 50s – including The Ink Spots, Bing Crosby, Jo Stafford, Dean-Shore and Lena Horne.

Now, read the seemingly trite lyrics below containing a ben eficial message about love and marriage and natural “things” often taken for granted that money can’t buy. Note that these non-material “things” were in valued sense of hearing on those up...

There are more than 1,000 suicides on college campuses each year and it is the third leading cause of death for young people between the ages of 15 and 24, according to an Emory University webpage about suicide. With these numbers, it’s clear that suicide is a continual problem on college campuses, with many students struggling with depression, anxiety and other mental health issues while juggling school work, employment and personal difficulties. Attending college can be a lot for a student to deal with, but one popular social media outlet has plans for an initiative that may help individuals with suicidal thoughts.

Facebook announced on Feb. 25 that it was launching a feature that allows users to report a post by a friend if they feel the post could represent an intent to self-harm or even commit suicide, they can step in by reporting the post to Facebook. After they report the post, the original poster will receive a notification saying that a friend was concerned about their post. From there, they can choose to ignore the notification or to follow the links that Facebook provides to resources about suicide and depression and how to deal with their feelings or strike up a conversation with that friend or a suicide hotline.

Since suicide is a big issue on college campuses, particularly within veteran student populations, we think that Facebook’s attempt to reach out to its users who may be contemplating suicide could be really helpful, especially to younger people and students who are more likely to use Facebook frequently. With that being said, we think that a few issues have to be cleared up before we can wholeheartedly get behind this suicide prevention platform.

Some say that this new resource may violate user’s privacy, but it may actually prevent individuals from directly reporting a concerning post to the police, which could potentially help suicidal individuals, whose suicide risk often rises rather than falls after hospitalization, according to the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention. However, this initiative still runs the risk of reporting people who are not suicidal or who do not want friends to interfere with their personal or emotional lives. Individuals may get frustrated or embarrassed if a friend misinterpreted a moody status or quoted song lyric as a cry for help and on the dark side of the misreporting issue, some cyberbullies or hooligan friends may relentlessly report a Facebook friend when there is no call for concern at all.

Misreporting as a joke or tactic for annoying an adversary raises the question of whether Facebook will intervene by contacting the authorities if someone’s post is reported several times or if many of their posts are reported. If a student reports 70 of another student’s Facebook posts, calling them potentially life-threatening, does Facebook have a responsibility to call the police and instigate a legal intervention? It’s a serious concern when someone’s life could be on the line. If this is the case, then Facebook’s intervention could lead to a lot of unneeded hospitalization, which can do more harm than good. Preventing suicide is an extremely admirable and important goal that Facebook has taken on, but we are not convinced that this plan of action, as it exists now, is the most helpful toward Facebook users, whether they are college students, veterans or from any other walk of life. Facebook should specify if there are any limits on this type of reporting, whether a user can counter-report someone who is “trolling” them through this feature or double the feature indefinitely to avoid harassment, and whether it will ever take it upon itself to intervene in situations where there may be a real threat. Until these issues are resolved, this measure, which seems like a good idea, could actually be detrimental and harmful to users and less effective in the fight against suicide than Facebook originally planned.

Some people are probably thinking that this was just part of a fun game that got released recently. This is definitely a game that makes me want to find out what anyone could be doing about it. The scandal was first discovered through an exchange in which the national headquarters for Sigma Alpha Epsilon closed the fraternity’s account at the University of Oklahoma and two students were expelled. Behind the Curtain:

‘Winter’s Tale’ Actor, Sean Pohle speaks to The Montclarion

What was your overall experience like?
The environment was incredibly stressful, especially closer to opening night. This was a big show and there were so many elements to be organized. A professional production like this required a lot of attention.

What would you say impacted your performance the most in Winter’s Tale?
I had to do a lot in the second act particularly. I had so many costume changes. I went from playing servant to farmer to this satyr thing... all the time during rehearsal, my attachable phallus kept falling off. There was a performance night when my attachment fell off on stage! So then I knew we were going to have to find a better adhesive.

What’s your favorite memory from production?
Okay, so during tech rehearsal, the band was playing their music and absent-mindedly I started clapping along with the band. But the band was playing off-rhythm. This kept happening until finally they stopped and told me to stop clapping along... only after that did they catch the rhythm. I was teased forever after that.

Has this production inspired you in any way?
Winter’s Tale has inspired me to invest more into what I’m doing in any given circumstance. Whether it’s Shakespeare or TV or film, learning about Shakespeare has informed my experience with other genres of work.

The Enchanting Art of Japan

New exhibit hits the George Segal Gallery

Theadora Lecour
Entertainment Editor

The George Segal gallery currently presents The Enchanting Art of Japan an impressive display of Japanese art originating from ancient traditions. Art of such media as woodblock prints, ivory sculptures, ink painting and photography are on display until April 18, 2015. The exhibit is called and features Ukiyo-e prints and pocket-size netsuke figures.

The collected pieces range from the late 18th century to the late 20th century and create a comprehensive exhibit that records the Japanese development of traditions initially adopted from China. A particularly beautiful piece displayed at the front of the gallery is Prince Genji with Lady and Servants by a Bridge Overlooking a River, created by Utagawa

Hiroshige and Gototei Kunisada.

From the late 19th century, these woodblock prints portray the household Japanese tale of an exiled prince and his wom-anizing ways. The piece highlights the strengths of both Hiroshige and Kunisada—landscape and female figures. Utagawa Hiroshige has been studied by renowned Western artists such as Monet and Van Gogh.

What makes this exhibition especially interesting is its combination of both art on paper and sculpture.
Netsuke are small ivory sculptures that might represent gods, animals, dragons or common figures.
Their original purpose was to fasten the carrying cases of men onto their person.

Today, netsuke are less functional and more for decorative purposes. These figurines are quite charming as detail and precision are staples of Japanese artistic style.

The subject of Tokuriki Tomikichirou’s woodblock print follows the Japanese way of Shinto, an approach to living focused on relations of energy. Ise Shrine depicts the holiest of the Shinto shrines. A Torii, or gateway to a Shinto site, might look like a simple arch but carries a major function in terms of energy flow in and out. The ink paintings in the exhibit are inspired from Chinese bunjinga or literary paintings. Without text, these Japanese interpretations display minimalistic but spiritual approach to natural themes.

For those further interested in the art, a lecture and tea tasting will be held on Saturday, April 11 from 3p.m.- 4p.m. for $10 a person.

What’s your favorite memory from production?

Student Artist Highlight
Violin Duo VioliNYC

Aurora Mendez and Robert Radliff have created a duo with the purpose of performing a repertoire ranging from classical to pop for all kinds of audiences.

What is your biggest motivation?
Our biggest motivation is the joy we witness from our excited music listeners and appreciators; the enthusiasm they have when they recognize a favorite tune, the pep in their step they get when a couple starts to dance as we perform a tango in the New York subway and the twinkle in a new bride’s eye when she hears a song she had played at her wedding as she walks by, but then stops and reminisces about her big day.

How has MSU fostered you as artists?
As current students of the John J. Cali School of Music, we have been given the technical training to hone our crafts and expand on our knowledge of music. We also perform in numerous ensembles learning different genres of music and are given direction by great faculty that has walked in our shoes before. Our teachers include musicians from The Metropolitan Opera and the Shanghai String Quartet to Broadway musical conductors and African drumming specialists.

Who are your biggest inspirations?
Our primary teachers and MSU violin faculty, Weigang Li of the Shanghai String Quartet and Mary Ann Mumm of the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra. They are our constant, unconditional source of inspiration and guidance.

What is your latest project?
We have just submitted a music and press packet for the Music Under New York artists association sponsored by the New York City Metropolitan Transit Authority, also referred to as “MUNY.” This association allows street performers a more limitless venue for displaying and performing as artists in the New York subway, parks, and major traffic and transit areas of the city like New York’s Grand Central Station. As a MUNY artist, there are also occasions in which the City will call upon your talents for certain concerts and administrative functions. It is an ideal situation for us and VioliNYC, as it provides a platform that allows virtually all people and walks of life to be exposed to our music and to build an audience from around the world and from our local tri-state area listeners.

Integrity House presents Boys of Bate

On Feb. 26, 2015, “Integrity Changed My Life” after watching the short film Boys of Bate. The Integrity House, a residential support program for adolescents and adults who struggle with substance abuse, debuted Boys of Bate, a short film about hope and transformation. Director of Integrity House, Roman Petrocelli, brought this film to life with the help of Integrity house clients and film director GianCarlo Fernandez, an alumni of Montclair State.

The movie premiere was hosted at Bow Tie CineCladge Cinema in Montclair, NJ along with a reception and auction next door at Fresco’s. Big names like Jamal Woolard from the film Notorious along with Federico Castelluccio, known for The Sopranos, made their appearance at the screening with much support.

When entering the theatre, the massive amount of guests were all greeted by the actual boys of Bate. With warm welcoming and a packed house, the boys were invited to sit into the audience to enjoy the film they helped create. The audience’s reactions were mixed with laughter, understanding and heartfelt emotions. After the film, a Q&A was conducted followed by an award ceremony to all the contributors hard work and dedication. Shortly after, guests made their way to Fresco’s and upon entering, champagne and Italian cuisine flooded the floors.

During the reception, an auction grabbed the attention of guests and generous donations filled the room. Not only did this project allow clients express their creativity, it also built a bond between these boys that cannot be broken. All donations went towards the Integrity House so projects like Boys of Bate could become a regular part of the Bate clients’ curriculum.

Red Hawk Round Up

Women’s Lacrosse

The women’s lacrosse team took part in a week full of high competition, playing two nationally-ranked top 20 teams and traveling to Muhlenburg. The Red Hawks were edged by #18 Stevens, 9-6, bounced back to defeat Muhlenburg four days later, but was stopped by #7 Amherst in a 10-3 loss on Monday.

Men’s Lacrosse

The men’s lacrosse team suffered their first loss in a 11-9 contest against Ursinus on March 11.

MSU fought back from an early three-goal deficit and was able to put nine on the board. Attacker Brett Mangan recorded three goals and an assist while goalie Lucas Jones made seven saves. The team’s current record is 4-1.

Baseball

While traveling to Florida for Spring Break, the baseball team competed in the Snowbird Classic where they went 3-5.

The Red Hawks suffered from five straight losses before breaking the streak with a 4-0 win over Muskingum University. The team then closed the tournament off with two consecutive wins. They defeated North Park University, 18-8, and Lancaster Bible College, 11-4.

Softball

The softball team also experienced the sunshine break by competing in the Gene Cusic Classic in Fort Myers, Fla.

With an overall record of 3-5 in the tournament, the team opened their season with two straight wins and only allowed one RBI in the first two games. The team also defeated neighboring Drew University 9-0 in a five-inning game.

Chip Kelly: Is He Creating the Ideal Team?

The second weekend of March brought us another exciting set of games, and the excitement didn’t stop there. By far, the biggest headlines are coming from the sport synonymous Real Madrid squad. The world’s most expensive player, Gareth Bale, looked like he was on a mission to silence his critics with a match-winning goal against Levante. From the first whistle, the Welshman looked energetic and dangerous, consistently running his markers ragged. In the 14th minute, he showed us why he was worth $92 million, scoring a home volley with his weaker right foot from about 14 yards after a scrum in the Levante box. He celebrated his first goal in eight games by running to the corner with his sleeves on and raising his dusters to exploit the gaps created by the game and struggled to get mostly double-marked during the game. Collins was deservedly substituted in the 83rd minute, with NYCFC taking a 1-1 draw.

The Montclair Soccer Update

Chelseas stayed atop the Premier League after a hard-fought 1-1 draw with last-place Southampton, retaining a six-point lead above Manchester City, who lost 1-0 to Burnley on March 14 after a superb solo effort from Earl Boyal. Arsenal continued its hot form this week with an all-around dominant 3-2 performance against West Ham, with goals from Olivier Giroud, Aaron Ramsey and Mathieu Flamini. Barcelona beat Elche 2-0, moving eight points ahead of Atikco Madrid and one point above Atletico Madrid. Bayern Munich steamedroller Werder Bremen 4-0, extending its lead in the Bundesliga to 11 points.
