In the Spring 2015 semester, four students at Montclair State University were 11:00 a.m. to launch their startup business idea in a contest between six startups, including entrepreneur groups at environmental protection programs.

Montclair State University hosted a mini-credit Certificate of Entrepreneurship program, which included three interactive sessions that gave students real-world entrepreneurial and sustainability skills. All students involved in the program had the opportunity to present a business plan for the annual top 5 commuter campus student pitch competition.

The competition is sponsored by Telefones de Instrumentation, whose President and CEO Ali Khubani is an MSU alumni, and takes place at the annual Telefones Invention Day for Entrepreneurs. Held in May of each year, Joan Camacho, a senior, was the top winner this past year.

While students are celebrating the opening of the new school of marine biology, many are asking what will become of Partridge Hall. In her opening Day Address, President Susan Coleman held all speculation and officially confirmed that Partridge Hall will be completely renovated to house the Graduate School and the School of Nursing.

The surrounding fences around the former School of Business signal the impending construction, which is set to begin by the end of October. It is expected to reopen in the fall of 2016.

Construction: Connecting Two Buildings

A new ADA accessible ramp is being constructed at the Student Center.

Kristen Bryfogle
Editor-in-Chief

As the Student Center is undergoing renovations in the second floor cafetaria, students can also expect an addition on top of the cafeteria entrance. The ADA accessible ramp in the north entrance of the building, near the Ballroom and Dining Room. Construction began on Friday Sept. 4 and will continue until Sept. 25, according to an email written by the Student Development and Campus Life department sent out to students and faculty last week.

The email did not specify the reason behind the construction of this new entranceway, but Vice President of University Facilities Greg Broderick said that the ramp is related to the construction on the cafeteria.

The NJ Uniform Construction Code requires that the new room project required a second accessible means to/ from the Student Center be pro- provided. "This definitely a needed addition to Montclair State," said senior Theatre Studies stu- dent Alexa Colich. "The Communi- cations Department has needed their own space for a long time. The current situa- tion sharing space in Life Hall is overly-crammed. When the Communication students have their own area, it’s going to free up a lot of space in Life Hall." The School of Communi- cations, Montclair Media is the new addition to the College of the Arts umbrella. Established in 2013 by combining the univer- sity’s communications, digi- tal media, film, television and public relations programs, the school is dedicated to preparing graduate majors and minors along with two graduate programs. Communications students have the pleasure of working with a highly experienced faculty and have state-of-the-art resources.”

The ramp is scheduled to open in February, according to Greg Bressler, the department’s lead architect. The ramp is expected to make the university more accessible to individuals with disabilities, said Broderick. Now, those who want to access the second floor of the Student Center don’t have to rely on the elevator to try the new food in the cafeteria.

At the end of the month, they will also be able to try the new food in the cafeteria.

New Ramp to Provide Access to Individuals with Disabilities

The Montclarion
Partridge Hall is expected to reopen in fall of 2016.

In President Cole’s address, she announced that an RN to BSN degree program will be launched in fall of 2016 and, as the following year, a full BSN program will be introduced. Later, an MSN or a five-year BS-MSN and a Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) will be available as well.

To prepare students studying in these fields, Cole said, “I think it’s smart and much more.”

The university is making huge strides with its renovation of Partridge Hall. It is an upgrade that will ultimately benefit graduate and undergraduate students alike. In addition, the School of Nursing will be the sixth school on campus to have its own residence.

In a year’s time, the newly designed Partridge Hall and College Hall will be located on the second floor of College Hall. In her address, Cole described that, with this move, the Graduate School “will at long last have a real home. It is a prospect that many graduate students are looking forward to.”

“I think the graduate school’s move will be very beneficial for individuals to obtain advanced degrees.”

Their group’s official business advisor and professor in their start-up team is Dr. Marco Bologna, one of the classes in the entrepreneurial center program. As France states, “We don’t want anyone to go through our program and just wave goodby to them. We want to nurture them and provide them with the resources needed to build a successful business.”

This component of continuous education is part of the program. According to Camacho, “This program has been successful in giving students the tools and knowledge needed to build a successful business.”

Padraig Gonzalez

Entrepreneur

Gonzalez was born in the city of Belfast, Ireland. Over the summer, I sat down with Kris Nixon, the content crafter for DisplayNote Technology, for a web interview on the innova-tive new app called Swoodle.

Nixon’s current duties include marketing of the app, connecting on social media and writing. Swoodle’s blog. The blog pushes productiv-ity and shows ways to use the app in order to achieve goals more quickly than previously thought.

Working on group projects has finally become something to look forward to. Swoodle arrived fairly recently in Google Play as well as the iOS app store and has been a niche suc-cess, with upwards of 30 to 40 people signing up every week. By uniting messaging and col-laboration, DisplayNote Industries has come up with an origi-nal interpretation of efficiency as the world of apps.

With offices currently located in Spain and Ireland, Swood-le was invented as a means of communication between DisplayNote Industries offices. Originally, the offices were separated by different means of communication from Gmail, Google Docs, Google Calendar, WhatsApp, etc. just to finally call in-person to check the abundance of features, pictured right.

Gonzalez: Could you tell what niche the market exactly does Swoodle hope to tackle?

Nixon: “We are looking to im-mediately help remote business workers that are away from work sites and students. The hope is to have teachers connect with students and have them follow along a lesson in real time, while still having the oppor-tunity to ask questions that are relevant to the lesson going on.”

Gonzalez: I love that. The idea of help in real time by asking questions and reviewing documents is to me just revolu-tionary. The lag is nonexistent in the app and every action hap-pens instantaneously.

Nixon: “Yes, thank you so much for recognizing that. We worked hard on this app and also were tossed around the office con-stantly, but we were correct that the most is who we are trying to reach with this app and what we are trying to accomplish. Parents who work from home or work nights aren’t always able to spend as much time as they can with their children. With Swoodle, a parent who isn’t around as often as they would like can still help work alongside their child with their homework assignment. This to me is just a very intimate moment that many people can see themselves in and was one of the concepts we made sure were voiced through produc-tion.”

Gonzalez: What a great idea. I can see the amount of heart that has gone into the develop-ment of this app.

Nixon: “Thank you for seeing that. As I’ve said from the be-ginning, we are a messaging so-lution, but we are not looking to compete in messaging. Our goal is 100 percent collaboration.”

Gonzalez: Great, it seems Swoodle is well on its way to that goal. To wrap up this in-terview, I just had a question as to the security of the app; How safe is the app? Are em-ployees at DisplayNote Indus-tries able to see what I send as far as documents, images or chat messages?

Nixon: “As far as safety goes, I will say that your information is private. Not even DisplayNote Industries employees will be able to see your documents, im-ages or chat messages. The only people able to see that would be those you are collaborating with. The app works on a peer-to-peer networking system and there is currently no data being saved off site at all on the collaborators phones.”

Gonzalez: That sounds great. There is definitely a place for an app such as Swoodle in the education system and no doubt in the business world as well. Take care, I’ll gladly be the first at my school to download Swoodle for this semester! Nixon: Take care!

Favorite summer memory?
“My favorite summer memory would be going to Phoenix, Ariz. for a dance workshop.”
Print-on-print will forever be on-trend in the fashion world. Try opting for totally unique pairings like this Aztec and floral one.
Flowing pieces are great for summer, especially in hot and sticky classrooms. Neutral sandals are perfect to slip on before you head out the door.

Jumpsuit: thrifted
Sunglasses: Forever 21
Shoes: TJ Maxx
It’s Labor Day Weekend and campus is totally empty. How do you feel about going to a commuter school versus having a bunch of students around?
“It is good because it’s so quiet, but it would be nice to see people and interact with them. So it gets boring, but the scenery is nice. I just wish there was more action.”

While rompers have been around for awhile, jumpsuits really made a comeback this season. These are other examples of quick outfits for when you’re in a rush or maybe you only have one class. Pair them with fun sandals or even just a pair of flip flops. They’ll be perfect even throughout next month with a denim jacket or cardigan thrown over as the weather gets chilly. Try having a basic color like black and then a few patterned ones on-hand.

Top and jacket: H&M
Jeggings: Cotton On
Watch: Call It Spring
Scarf: Aeropostale
Shoes: Aldo
Hat: Forever 21
What is your major and what class are you looking forward to this semester?
“I’m undeclared and the class I’m looking forward to is acting because I’m ready to train and perfect my craft for the future.”

Another comfortable piece to try is a maxi skirt. They are sometimes very light-weight, which makes them perfect for hot weather. Ones with slits are not only fashionable, but can give you more coverage than a short miniskirt if they are not your style. It’s the best of both worlds! Since they are usually high-waisted, try matching a patterned one with a crop top of one of the colors in the skirt.

Clothes: Charlotte Russe
Shoes: Nine West
Watch: Michael Kors
What are you looking forward to this semester?
“I’m definitely excited to meet new people and immerse myself in the art scene. I also want to get involved in the LGBTQ Community.”

Pieces like bowties and suspenders are perfect for making a statement and standing out in a crowd. Try them with colored jeans and a collared shirt. It’s best to keep within one color scheme like this red and black look. Of course, put on some Converse to finish it off.

Nude Modeling: Confronting Your Fears

Catarina Rodrigues
Contributing Writer

Have you ever woken up from a bad dream where you found yourself standing completely naked and exposed before your family and friends? If so, you’ve probably been pretty relieved and slightly embarrassed to awake under the safety of your sweet, concealing bed sheets. Well, don’t tighten your grip on those sheets just yet, because posing in your birthday suit may not be as scary or humiliating as you may think! It all starts with your local art classes, as they can be beneficial to more than just the artists.

Although nude modeling provides excellent references for some brilliant ideas in the art community, the act also gives the model the opportunity to eliminate shyness. As you can imagine, being in one of the most uncomfortable positions you can be in strengthens your ability to communicate and interact with others on a daily basis. Think of it as this; if you can stand completely naked for three hours in a room filled with people, you are certain to amaze while giving a speech to a class of students or to confront your mother-in-law after her distasteful comment towards your cooking.

It’s very common that the average person views the naked form as something sexual or taboo. Nude modeling allows our society the opportunity to view the naked body for more than what we are accustomed to. Due to art models being of different sizes (fat, thin, curly, etc.), all outward appearances can be appreciated through the artistic form. Gesture classes, for example, display a model posing in multiple different poses in a span of a few hours. These poses display the model in a very dynamic gesture that can allow the artist to truly test their observational skills. The model is appreciated as a whole and a clean form, not for the simple fact that they are naked. Art modeling can truly extract the taboo mind-set of a pure naked form to one that is truly beautiful.

Being capable of overcoming your speech class isn’t the only skill you may gain through figure modeling. As you may imagine, the act of exposing one’s self does not usually fit into anyone’s comfort zone and few would accept that being in a state of discomfort from time to time can be beneficial. However, as many can agree, we are constantly being put in an uncomfortable position many times in our lives, whether we choose to or not. Like a muscle, practicing being in a state of discomfort allows us to confront any uncomfortable situations that may arise with ease. Although it may not seem so now, allowing yourself to feel free from judgment by shedding some fabric can remind you that other hardships may not be so difficult after all.

Bowl of fruit is great for color references, especially for the starter painter. However, art models really set an atmosphere and can assist artists with their human proportions. As mentioned before, gesture drawing courses can really get an art party going as the model allows artists to form a narrative depending on the poses. It also allows the model to interact with artists in order to come up with some unique ideas. Being nude allows people to connect through a common passion and mission, thus creating a judgment free zone. Many of these benefits leave the studio with the model, as they ultimately gain confidence in not only what they are, but to overcome the obstacles they’ll face. So before you start considering that retail or office job as a side job, consider what you’ll gain as a figure model!

THE WORLD WITHOUT NEWS WOULD BE...
E veryone remembers taking the SAT or the ACT, mostly because up until now, every single student at Montclair State has been required to take the standardized tests in order to be considered for admission. However, this is all changing.

On July 29, 2014, Montclair State became the first public university in New Jersey to announce that SAT and ACT test scores would no longer be an option for students. Montclair State University’s President Dr. Susan Cole said in a press release that the decision offices look through their applications, this comes as a great deal of relief to those who wish to become a Montclair State Red Hawk. Now, knowing that they will feel confident while submitting their applications. This change can only help those who wish to become Red Hawks, one day.

The disadvantages that face low income students stem from the fact that they do not have the available funds to pay for preparation classes. One of the most highly rated SAT and ACT courses, the Princeton Review, costs an upward of $1,000, which is definitely out of the price range for a family making less than $20,000 a year. On the other hand, The Official SAT Study Guide Book is $21.99, which may still be too expensive for some struggling families. Since many families are unable to aid their children by funding study courses, many students are left to study on their own, if they even have the financial capabilities to do so.

Besides the cost of achieving reasonable standardized test scores, some individuals are just not good at test taking. There are some students that are perfectly capable of achievement, but are unable to do so just because of the anxiety test taking often brings. When the pressure is high, much like that applied to the students all throughout high school as they prepare for the SAT or ACT, some students become extremely nervous. This can later be reflected in their scores.

Conversely, other students may have problems with the way the questions are worded and have trouble understanding how to answer. This can be crippling and can become extremely stressful when they must sit through another four or five hours of testing.

By moving away from a system based on standardized tests, many potential students have to ask where emphasis should be placed as the admissions offices look through their applications. Montclair State University’s President Dr. Susan Cole said in a press release in 2014, admissions will now focus “on an individual student’s actual accomplishments in high school, no matter which community the student grew up in or which high school he or she attended.”

She believes focusing on high school achievements instead of test grades “will yield a highly diverse freshman class characterized by determination, ambition and the demonstrated willingness to strive for success in Montclair-State’s academical- ly rigorous environment.”

This comes as a great deal of relief to those who wish to become a Montclair State Red Hawk. Now, knowing that they will be judged on their whole body of work and not just their test scores, all future students will feel confident while submitting their applications. This change can only help those who wish to become Red Hawks, one day.

Question of the Week:

Do you believe that your job and beliefs should be separate?

"As a writer or artist, it is very important to state your opinion. However, as a government employee, laws are laws and your opinion does not matter." - Liam Eisenberg, Senior, Animation and Illustration

"It depends on the circumstances. I don’t think that it should matter when giving marriage licenses to gay couples." - Nancy Fernandez, Freshman, Undeclared

"Yes, because you want to remain impartial and focused on your job." - Ruth Ruiz, Senior, Psychology

"No, your beliefs should be a part of your job. You should remain strong in your beliefs." - Ben VanVugt, Freshman, Business

Syrian Refugees Lead Us to Help

Individuals must find ways to help raise awareness of Syrian refugee crisis

Kristen Bryfoogle

EDITOR IN CHIEF

During her Reddit stack convocation, and in the words of our beloved Susan Cotter polemically, she spoke about the importance of inducting students to America State University to develop some sense of the world’s question quizzes she struck questions she left unanswering for the class of 2019 to tackle was, “How would we respond if North Africa were to become a refugee crisis?”

I can imagine that more than one new student left Sprag Tue killer, wondering if President Obama was right in deciding that President Colson was re-

In the United States, unfortunately, many news sources have been reporting to those refugees who are fleeing for their lives as “migrants,” a parative term that means “minor” in U.S. patroa of about 18 million. And assume that these in-

Some governments have agency where most do not. Over 250,000 ci-

The United States citizen, have no idea where to start, and many are wondering about this massive issue.

To say that the United States has been less than proactive in helping refugees is an understatement. The U.S. has not only stopped taking refugees, but has also deported them back to countries like Mexico, where they are often returned to places they fled from. In 2014 alone, a study by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees found that 1.5 million people were forcibly displaced in the United States.

The United States is not alone in its inactivity. Countries around the world have been under pressure to do more for the thousands of refugees fleeing violence and persecution.

Syria, for example, has been welcoming refugees with open arms, providing shelter and support to those who are fleeing persecution. However, the United States has been much slower to respond. In 2016, the U.S. government announced plans to resettle only 85,000 refugees, far below the 110,000 target set by the previous administration.

This situation has led to criticism from both within and outside the United States. Many people are calling for increased aid and support for refugees, and for a more proactive approach from the U.S. government.

Without question, the Syrian refugee crisis is a complex and difficult issue. However, there are ways that individuals can help to support refugees and make a difference in their lives.

One way to help is by donating clothes or money to organizations that are working with refugees. Additionally, individuals can use social media to raise awareness about the crisis and the needs of refugees.

By taking action and raising awareness, we can help to ensure that these refugees are treated with dignity and respect, and that they are able to build new lives for themselves and their families.

Beach House Releases Fifth Studio Album, “Depression Cherry”

Tiffany Saxe

When it comes to reviewing Beach House’s fifth studio album, “Depression Cherry,” there seems to be no ground between music critics and fans. To them, the disc is either a return to or a departure from an earlier form of music critics and fans. To them, there seems to be no middle ground between Beach House’s fifth studio album, “Depression Cherry,” and the development of a mass. Collegiate students tend to think of Red Bull only as a means to survive the semester, but the energy drink company is taking an active role in the world of music, aiming to bring new and local artists together to introduce fans to fresh, underground bands.

This musical initiative, called Red Bull Sound Select, brought three acts together at the Stone Pony, a legendary rock venue in Asbury Park, on Sept. 4. For less than the cost of an actual can of Red Bull, one could see punk rock trio Big Eyes, rapper Cakes da Killa, and punk rock duo Against Me! leave the summer off on a high note.

I was one such fan who couldn’t pass up a $5 admission fee to see such a promising line-up and I wasn’t disappointed. Upon learning of the show’s venue, I was worried. For those who haven’t been to The Stone Pony, it’s a bar-style venue, similar to the Standard in Philadelphia or the Crystal Ballroom in Sayreville. This means there’s not much room, but shallow in length, which can get dangerous when the crowd gets wild. Often, there isn’t enough physical space in the standing area to avoid moshers and crowd surfers in these types of venues, which is especially of concern at a predominantly punk concert. Yet, the vibe of the concert was much more controlled than punk shows I’ve been to at similar venues. Part of this relative serenity could have been the crowd reaction to the opening acts.

Although every member of Big Eyes was a talented musician, they failed to capture the audience, which wasn’t unusual for an opening band. Lead singer, Big Eyes, was a solid opener, but not quite ready to contend with either Cakes da Killa or Against Me! in stage presence and sound. As a trio, there was understandably a hollowness in sound, but it left some of their tunes sounding empty and lacing a lacking impression. They desperately needed some solid guitarists and at least some backing vocals. The audience left the band’s overall style of music was too dark and collected to pull off a raw “punk” kind of feel. I would describe the concert as a punk-influenced rock band which succeeded in setting the mood for the more developed and full-sounding Against Me!.

Facing the audience was a talented musician, but not particularly so for the audience. The audience was engaged, but not as much as they could have been.

After Big Eyes came Cakes da Killa, an N.J.-native and alumnus of both Montclair State University and The Montcliren. Although I knew Cakes from working with him, I had never seen him perform and was really excited for one of my former colleagues to take the stage. Once again, Cakes didn’t wholly win over the audience, but he improved. Digitally generated, though, Against Me! still put on an amazing show. Gracie spent minimal time connecting on stage, which could have jeopardized her connection to her viewers, but the band’s passion and intensity in playing secured the impact they had on their fans. Against Me!’s sound was well-rounded, full and varied as they played many different kinds of songs, whether they were more traditional alternative rock tunes, emo-inflated punk-type anthems, folk acoustic jams or even a cover of The Replacements. Stephen Colbert Takes over ‘The Late Show’

Theadora LeCour
Entertainment Editor

On Wednesday as Stephen Colbert took the stage for his first performance on The Late Show, he looked like he belonged in the newly renovated Ed Sullivan Theatre. Taking the audience along for the ride as he TiVo’d Jimmy Fallon for later, Colbert received a warm welcome across the country. 6.6 million people tuned in to watch the debut.

Less than 24 hours after air, the Emmy-winner and Time magazine cover man had garnered about 4 million views on Youtube.

Mark after mark, Colbert hit punchlines and laughter from the audience was free flowing throughout the program. George Clooney and Jeb Bush provided high contrast as guests for the evening.

Fans of The Colbert Report were happy to see the host bring all the gold bits of his previous project to his new program.

No minute was wasted and the audience got their daily dose of Donald Trump’s latest sound bites. With sharp wit, Colbert likened public consumption of Trump-meedia-overload to “fishing in a garbage can for lost Oreos.” The host also admitted his surprise to hear that Trump rates highly among white supremacists, seeing as Trump “is more OompaLoompa American.” Strongly, Clooney had no Colbert followed up by noting, “You were this close to getting the audience to clap.”

The show ended with a tribute to David Letterman, the iconic former host of The Late Show. “We should never lose sight of how David changed comedy,” Colbert said. He insisted to the audience that he could never replace such an influential figure in television in a humble statement which only makes us love him more.

The Late Show with Stephen Colbert airs weeknights at 11:35 p.m. on CBS.

Field Hockey Pushes Forward

Red Hawks decimate opponents over the weekend

Thomas Formoso
Sports Editor

Montclair State traveled to Madison, N.J. to participate in the Drew University Fall Festival and came out with wins over Cabrini College and Lebanon Valley College. The Red Hawks finished their only two neutral-venue matches of the regular season with a combined advantage of 10-1. The exceptional weekend began against Cabrini as the Red Hawks stormed to an early 2-0 lead inside the first six minutes, during which sophomore Kaitlyn Strauss scored her second and third goals of the season. After Strauss assisted on Jacinta Santos’ goal to stretch the lead to 3-0, Strauss completed her second career hat trick just under 22 minutes into the game. The scoring was capped off by Danica Witty and Victoria Rossi. Cabrini would get one back thanks to Victoria Marchiani, but it would be far too late to mount a comeback. Sophomore Kaitlyn Maguire faced the most shots and made the only save.

The Red Hawks returned the next day to take on Lebanon Valley and broke the deadlock with Kaitlyn Struss’ fifth goal of the year just past eleven minutes. Jacinta Santos’ third goal of the season and Alexis Ambrosino’s second capped off the scoring for Montclair State’s third win this year. Senior goalkeeper Rebecca Brattole made five saves and played in all 70 minutes, recording her 13th shutout of her career.

When the first NJAC weekly awards came around, Strauss and freshman Kailey Dalgauer earned Offensive Player of the Week and Rookie of the Week, respectively.

Montclair State returned to action against New Paltz on Sept. 9. The Montclarion was unable to receive the result before this publication. To learn the score, check themontclarion.org for the quick recap.
Despite their 2-1 loss to D.C. United on Nov. 8, the New York Red Bulls have advanced to the Eastern Conference Finals. Midfielder Péguy Luyindula netted the only Red Bulls’ goal. Luyindula, who scored once in the Red Bulls’ 2-0 win against D.C. United in the first leg of the conference semifinals, sent this side to the conference finals on a 3-2 goal aggregate.

Inside the six-yard box, Luyindula slotted a cross from captain Thierry Henry into the bottom right corner of United’s goal in the 57th minute. D.C. United’s first goal came late in the first half when midfielder Nick Deleon headed a cross from Taylor WomensLacrosse

Jets look to improve from a lack-luster 2014 season

The 2014 season for the Jets was a disaster by any measure. John Idzik was only expected to lose the job, but it suppressed any feelings regarding last year – as if it were a bad memory or an embarrassing moment that everyone wanted to forget. The Jets didn’t have a good year. In a day full of goals, this was the least of their problems and complex 1-9 start, losing 38-3 to the Bills in the season finale. Despite a healthy Denzel Bowles as their new general manager, neither has had previous experience in their respective roles. Neither has had a good season. Todd Bowles as their new defensive coordinator for Arizona’s top ranking 24th in points given up. The Jets should improve on defense this year after proving last year was an unproven commodity, but you know what you are getting when you are a Jets fan, but there still is a lot to be hopeful about if you are a Jets fan, but there still is a lot to be hopeful about if you are a Jets fan.

John Idzik was only expected to lose the job, but it suppressed any feelings regarding last year – as if it were a bad memory or an embarrassing moment that everyone wanted to forget. The Jets didn’t have a good year. In a day full of goals, this was the least of their problems and complex 1-9 start, losing 38-3 to the Bills in the season finale. Despite a healthy Denzel Bowles as their new general manager, neither has had previous experience in their respective roles. Neither has had a good season. Todd Bowles as their new defensive coordinator for Arizona’s top ranking 24th in points given up. The Jets should improve on defense this year after proving last year was an unproven commodity, but you know what you are getting when you are a Jets fan, but there still is a lot to be hopeful about if you are a Jets fan.

The Red Hawks lost their opening game to Delaware Valley at 7 p.m. at home. Wednesday night against Barnard College at 7 p.m. at home. The Red Hawks’ next game will be home against Salisbury University at 1 p.m. on Sept. 19.

Montclair State University’s Men’s Soccer team improved to 4-1-0 on the year with a blow-out win over Farmingdale State (Long Island, N.Y.). The Red Hawks had returned the night before from The Maryville Classic, a tournament in Tennessee. The high-powered offense of Montclair State defeated Covenant College 6-1 in the first game and defeated host Maryville College 4-2 later in the week.

Monday saw the men continue their strong form on a humid night in Montclair. The Red Hawks won their second straight game, matching their first goal of her career at the 14:05 mark of the first half to push the Red Hawks to a 1-0 lead. The rest of the first half was marked by the Red Hawks dominating ball possession and keeping the ball down in Mount Saint Vincent’s end. The women created some offensive off of their two corners and tallied five shots in the first half.

Montclair State quickly extended their lead to 2-0 when sophomore forward Tyler Mal-
