Letters Stolen from Student Center Display

Deanna Rosa
News Editor

Letters from the wall on the west side of the Student Center were reported missing by a University employee at approximately 11:30 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 7, according to an email sent from Paul Cell to the campus community yesterday.

What to do spell out “Red Hawk Country” was missing the letters “C,” “O,” “U” and “T.” The disappearance has been attributed to a theft by an unknown person.

The email announced a reward of $200 Red Hawk Dollars for “information leading to the successful arrest and prosecution of the person, or persons, responsible for the theft.” Red Hawk Dollars may be used on-campus as well as off-campus establishments.

Anyone possessing knowledge of the theft is urged to contact University Police at 973-655-5222 or msupolice@montclair.edu.

Ribbon Finally Cut on Feliciano School of Business

Kristen Bryfogle

The newly constructed School of Business building received its official name during its ribbon-cutting ceremony on Thursday, Sept. 7.

The lobby of the new building welcomed several guests from varied fields. Business students are standing on the main stairwell, preparing for the festivities to begin. While University officials, businesswomen and women from all over the state, Board of Trustee members and even Lt. Gov. Kim Guadagno, were all in attendance.

Guests mingled and enjoyed refreshments until a live fanfare drew everyone’s attention to a podium at the main landing of the center stairwell. From there, Cole announced that the new building had been named the Mimi and Edwin Feliciano School of Business after two former students of the university who became successful entrepreneurs and businesspeople.

Cole also highlighted several community service activities. After checking in at the Student Center Ballrooms, participants in the National Day of Service could sign up for one of 17 off-campus or on-campus service projects and collect their free event t-shirt. Upon choosing an off-campus site, students boarded public school, volunteering at the Mimi and Edwin Feliciano School of Business after two former students of the university who became successful entrepreneurs and businesspeople.

Cole also highlighted several

Montclair State students welcomed animals from Cosmo Meadows Farm in Hazlet, N.J. at a petting zoo in the Student Center quad on Friday.

The line to pet and hold the animals stretched along the walkway beside the quad, as students eagerly waited their turn to step inside the gate. Inside the fence, an assortment of llamas, ducks, bunnies, chickens and baby goats received much love and attention from their adoring fans. Students were thrilled at the opportunity to hold the animals, especially the baby goats.

Outside the fenced-in area, a cow named Cayce lay basking in all the attention and a pony named Shoshom shadowed the quad eating grass. Those who didn’t have time to wait in line were able to step in and pet the two animals.

The mobile petting zoo from Cosmo Meadows Farm travels all around New Jersey, visiting nursing homes, children’s birthday parties, special needs camps and more during the summer months. During the fall and spring seasons, they welcome visitors to the farm located in Monmouth County.

Montclair State University’s English department has seen four of its own—David Galef, Claudia Cortez, Michael Robbins and Sarah Ghoshal—publish poetry within the past year.

From an Ohio summer spent in a childhood home to the intricate characters of the Japanese language, each work has undoubtedly had its own unique influence.

David Galef, Director of the Creative Writing Program and English professor, had his book, Kanji Poems, published in June 2015. After graduating from Princeton University, Galef lived in Osaka, Japan for a year. “It gave me a different sensibility,” Galef said. “Case in point: you can eat a bite of something by piercing it with steel tines or you can pierce it with two wooden sticks.”

Kanji Poems has its route in the Japanese language. Each poem starts with a Japanese character and its definition. What follows is a poetic narrative crafted upon the definitions. Galef also teaches literature courses and creative writing workshops, in addition to being an author in his own right.

Recently, Galef completed a textbook on flash fiction for Columbia University Press. “I developed a theory of the genre, the characteristics and challenges,” said Galef. “I sketches to what-ifs and narrative mass compres-

The classroom experience is set to be published in 2016. “Being a writer has certainly informed my teaching,” Cortese said. “Because I write often and I write poems, essays and stories. I can easily connect my own experiences drafting, revising, workshopping, reworking to my students’ own struggles with writing.”

Michael Robbins is also a professor within the English department that had his work published recently. Alex vs Predator, a chapbook following the dark suburban girlhood, was published by Lucky Bastard Press in 2013.

On Sept. 15, 2015, 32 Greek organizations took to University Hall’s 7th Floor to ring in the new school year with this semester’s annual Meet the Greeks event. This event showcased each organization individually while welcoming both underclassmen and upperclassmen to enjoy the excitement of meeting new people and showing their potential interest in joining a Greek Organization.

Anthony Nuñez, a Senior and member of Lambda Sigma Upsilon, Latino Fraternity Incorporated, said, “This was the first time that we have had a Meet the Greeks event where we had individuals sign up as interested in our organization and that shows that the campus involvement in Greek Life is growing. I finally feel that Greek Life is getting recognition and being promoted strongly and in a positive light on campus.”

Performances took place that encompassed the many talents of Montclair State’s Greeks, ranging from a vocal performance by the Musical Fraternity, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia and stepping, strolling, hopping and saluting preformed by the Divine Nine and Multicultural Organizations, which were some of the main highlights of the night’s events.

Welington Gomez, a sophomore at Montclair State University who attended the event, is interested in joining a Greek organization. “I really liked the event because I got the chance to see Greek organizations in a different aspect,” said Gomez. “At the Meet the Greeks event, I got to see each organization honor and express the love they have for their organizations and why they went Greek in the first place.”

Over 400 Montclair State students were in attendance at Monday night’s event. “I feel that this semester’s Meet the Greeks event was way more publicized on campus and introduced to freshman in a more efficient and welcoming way via HawkSync,” said Emily Cordero, Coordinator for Greek Life at Montclair State. “We are excited to see how the Greek community will grow with the large number of students that we had at both Meet the Greeks and last week’s Greek Organization Fair.”

POUND It Out at the Student Recreation Center

Alexandra Clark
Staff Writer

This semester, a new exercise class called POUND has been added to the weekly schedule of Group X classes held at the Student Recreation Center. While still fairly new, POUND is a full-body workout that combines exceptional music with a great exercise routine, all with the help of some drumsticks called Ripstix. Tierney says it all: “POUND. Rock out. Work out.”

Before making its way to campus, POUND was founded by Kirsten Potenza and Cristina Potenza. Both women are drummers themselves as well as fitness experts and music lovers who bonded over their own personal struggles. Through creating POUND, they were able to find self-realization and create something truly inspiring. POUND grows far beyond just a way to work out. The founders have created a groundbreaking philosophy. Life can’t be fully enjoyed without balance and nurturing, and if you give up on self-improvement at any time, you give up on yourself.

Two juniors, Katie Fierro and Brittany Tierney, were inspired by POUND when they took Zumba at the Student Recreation Center who teach Zumba as well as certified fitness instructors at the Student Recreation Center. Both students are inspired by POUND when they teach and now it’s here. POUND has garnered positive reviews from students who see this to other people. “It’s easier the second time around,” says Tierney. “It’s easier the second time around. We’re having so much fun that you don’t even realize you are doing so much work,” said Tierney. “It’s for everybody; there are all different levels and modifications for everything. When I did it, I was having so much fun. I thought, ‘I want to bring this to other people.’”

Another first time POUND student is the use of drumsticks to rhythmically pound to the beat of the song, which fuels a person’s drive and ambition. It’s similar to stamping your feet at a concert or banging your hand against the ground when you drive. Keeping a beat allows you to become completely invested in the song and let it take over.

POUND has garnered positive reviews from students who see it as a refreshing, new workout routine. “It was awesome,” said Chantal Simon, a junior Marketing Major, after attending her first POUND class. “At first I was like, ‘what’s POUND?’”

POUND is a full-body, 360-degree workout that improves focus and higher level cognition and creates something truly inspiring. POUND goes logically. Studies also back-up this exercise and why it works so well. Drumming has the ability to alleviate stress as well as boost your immune system, lower blood pressure and decrease anxiety and fatigue. The rhythm accompanied with drumming improves focus and higher level thinking. You can burn 400-900 calories per hour, which is the length of a standard POUND class.

The energy in a POUND class is electric. What makes this exercise class so different is the use of drumsticks to rhythmically pound to the beat of the song, which fuels a person’s drive and ambition. It’s easier the second time around. The instructor knew what she was doing and I loved the routine. I’m probably going to come back to every class!”

After a class, there’s a palpable sense of accomplishment and joy in the air that even Tierney can detect. “People have been really into it. I hear them talking about it as they walk out saying, ‘Wow that was really cool! We have to come next week!’”

In an attempt to sway students to give POUND a try, Tierney says, “You can work out on the machine, but it’s a lot more fun to rock out. It’s fun and it’s different. It works a lot of different areas that you normally wouldn’t be working on.”

Everyone should give POUND a try because you don’t need to be an expert drummer to enjoy the class. In every movement and drumstick striking the ground, you are releasing all of the stresses of life and allowing yourself the freedom to just rock out.

POUND classes are held three times a week at the Recreation Center.

Let Pumpkin Spice Up Your Life

Rizlyn Melo
Assistant News Editor

As you probably already know, pumpkin spice season is here. This means tons of specialty and seasonal products are hitting the shelves with a pumpkin spice flavor. Starbucks’ Grande Pumpkin-Spice Latte has almost 40 calories, 13 grams of fat and 49 grams of sugar. That is enough calories to make it a meal, but because it is mainly sugar it will only briefly fill you up and lead to a sugar-induced crash shortly after. If you are dying for Starbucks’ latte, try Starbucks’ Pumpkin-Spice Latte instead of the usual four in a grande drink to save about 150 calories. When it comes to breakfast foods, watch out for pumpkin spiced bagels. Einstein Bros Bagels’ Pumpkin Walnut Cinnamon Bagel has 440 calories, 11 grams of fat and 25 grams of sugar before you add any toppings. Go for a different brand; Thomas’ path Pumpkin-N-Spice Bagels only have 260 calories and 1.5 grams of fat each. Add some nut butter on top or enjoy with a glass of milk to add some protein and fat to your meal that will keep you feeling full until lunch. Crunchy Granola Bars. You can have 2 for under 200 calories, and they have 4 grams of fiber and 5 grams of protein, plus added omega fatty acids. Nature’s Path Pumpkin-N-Spice Plus Granola Bars may have 30 less calories, but they also have less fiber and protein. You are better off eating a few more calories that are made of things to keep you satisfied.

When it comes to any other pumpkin spice products you may be unsure of, do a little research. Always be on the lookout for something with sugar listed in the first few ingredients. If something has protein, fiber or unsaturated fats it will keep you full. Don’t be afraid to read ingredient lists and see if real pumpkin is anywhere on there or if it is just made of synthetic flavoring. Using those tips can help you enjoy a pumpkin spice-filled fall without ruining your health goals.

Apple’s Newest Endeavors

Apple is introducing an entirely new iMac called the 5K Pro. This model will be available for purchase sometime in November. Expanding its market, Apple will also be trying its hand in television. By late October, consumers will be able to try out the new Apple TV. The key characteristic about this new device is that it is app-centric. Apple recognizes that people are relying more on apps, such as Hulu, Netflix, Watch ESPN and even iTunes, to watch their shows and movies. The Apple TV will be designed to consolidate all of these apps onto one platform for viewers’ convenience. It will operate on a new system called tvOS, which will feature a different version of Siri that will make searching through different shows and movies easier. Furthermore, Apple TV will be available in stores Sept. 25 in all the traditional Apple colors as well as rose gold. The newest iPhone models will also have the best picture and video quality of its predecessors. In addition, Apple is introducing a new Apple TV. I remember trying out this look as a little kid. When you didn’t want to hold your jacket, you’d tie it around your waist. Well, fashion often repeats itself and this trend will probably be around for a while. Instead of jackets, most people opt for flannels. This looks great with all different outfits, but with denim shorts specifically. Try it with cutoffs, a white top and combat boots. If the chilly weather comes around, opt for tights under your outfit.

Leather jackets always spice up any outfit. Mix more girly articles of clothing, like skirts and dresses, with one for a unique look. This is also a really quick pairing when you can’t decide what to wear. Finish the look with knee socks and booties and you’re out the door.

Just about everyone has that vintage piece that maybe came from a family member from when they were your age or maybe it came from a thrift store. Regardless, an easy way to pick an outfit is finding a statement piece like a vintage one. Next time you’re having trouble, dig out mom’s old jacket, your grandfather’s old fedora or the shoes you thrifted last weekend. It should definitely inspire the rest of your outfit.

As we hit mid-September, the weather can get chilly, even with the sun out. It’s cardigan weather. Long sleeves and shorts look really unique together and are really easy and comfortable in the air conditioning of University Hall. Bowties and collars make the look more classic and give it that school uniform look. Try keeping the colors simple and match the cardigan to the bowtie. Finish the look with canvas sneakers.

Printed or distressed denim is an easy go-to because it is best when paired with a neutral top. If you don’t own distressed denim, consider making your own to save money. Crop jeans by rolling them up and finish the look off with sandals or classic converse.

Did you just get a new pair of brightly-colored sunglasses? Try using them to coordinate an outfit. Here, the sunglasses match perfectly with the skirt and the shoes match the top. Try using colors or patterns to give you inspiration by looking at just one piece. Small details like this make outfits look a lot more put together, but at the same time are easy to do.

Montclair State is in a constant state of growth. When it first opened its doors in 1908, the campus was only 25 acres of land. Today in 2015, Montclair State University has 486 acres and has become the second largest public college in the state of New Jersey. This growth has only continued into the new school year. Since the beginning of the semester, students have been introduced to two new state-of-the-art buildings as well as the idea of a new School of Nursing coming to campus. Past expansions to our campus have led to amusing bridegrooms in student affairs and the most recent changes are no different.

This year, the School of Business was fortunate enough to gain a much-needed upgrade to campus. The new School of Business also offers another dining option to students on campus, The Venture Cafe. In just two weeks, this building has become a second home to the thousands of students who utilize its facilities every day. On the other side of campus, the Center for Environmental and Life Sciences has become a new favorite spot for many students. The new building presents an amazing view of the New York City skyline from the ground level as well as on its third floor outlook. According to the School of Science and Mathematics, the new building has the ability to “support programs and research in sustainability science, pharmaceutical biochemistry and medicinal chemistry, as well as in biological, computing and mathematic sciences.” These new facilities will enhance the experience of all of all the science majors by granting them the opportunity to work with professional science equipment. The two newest additions to campus have undoubtedly boosted morale among the campus community. Another came in the form of an announcement on Sept. 1 by President Susan Cole. During her Opening Day speech, Cole announced plans of a nursing program expected to come to campus in Fall 2016. By adding nursing to the nearly 300 majors, minors and concentrations already present, Montclair State will be able to rank more competitively with schools like Rutgers University and Ramapo College who already have established nursing programs. The creation of a nursing program is a progressive step to future success at Montclair State.

The program plans to address the national nurse shortage by adding Montclair State-educated and qualified nurses to the healthcare system. The nursing program will fill a societal need as well as a want of Montclair State students.

Although these changes have come at a remarkably quick pace, some students are still left wondering when other much-needed campus expansions will begin, one of which being a solution to the ongoing parking issue. It has been obvious for years that there is not enough parking for commuters or residents on campus. With a new program coming to campus next fall, it is urgent that this is fixed as soon as possible. Many people have suggested building yet another parking garage in Lot 60 to help alleviate the problem. This could create thousands of potential parking spots. Though it may not completely solve the parking issue at Montclair State, it would make a big dent in an even larger problem. Also, with freshman classes becoming larger and larger, Montclair State is going to have to provide more residential spaces. This will provide homes for incoming freshmen without having to live in cramped quarters. This will not only alleviate freshmen, but everyone who calls Montclair State University their home. Besides, extra housing has never hurt anyone. With hundreds of rooms already being tripled this past year, it is definitely necessary.

Montclair State is moving faster and faster into the future. However, there are still some areas where the university could pick up the pace. The two newest building additions to campus have provided students and faculty with new work spaces and the recent addition of a nursing school will add a competitive edge to admissions. However, Montclair State needs to fix the housing and parking problems before moving on to less crucial matters. Either way, Montclair State has made some remarkable changes within the last few years and everyone is looking forward to those to come.
Perry Drops Out of Race, Others Should Too

Kris Perry announced on Monday that he would be running for governor of Washington State. Perry is an unlikely candidate in the race, as he has no previous political experience. However, he has been a prominent figure in the gay rights movement, and his candidacy is likely to draw attention to the issue of equal rights for all Americans.

The race for governor in Washington State is wide open, with no clear front-runner. Perry joins a crowded field of candidates, including several well-known politicians and activists. Perry’s decision to run is likely to boost the profile of the gay rights movement and push the issue of equal rights to the forefront of the campaign.

Perry’s platform is expected to focus on issues related to equal rights, including marriage equality, healthcare, and education. He is also expected to address the issue of economic inequality, and his campaign is likely to draw support from across the state, including from the gay community.

While Perry’s chances of winning the nomination are slim, his candidacy is likely to go a long way in raising awareness of the issue of equal rights. His presence in the race is likely to put pressure on the other candidates to take a more aggressive stance on these issues, and his campaign is likely to be a catalyst for change.

The race for governor in Washington State is expected to be one of the most hotly contested in the country, with both the Democratic and Republican parties vying for control. With Perry’s candidacy, the race is likely to become even more competitive, and he is likely to provide a much-needed voice for the gay rights movement.

FKA Twigs Drops Phenomenal New EP

Traditionally defined by its veterans like Dev Hynes and Solange, the alternative R&B scene — along with much of the hipster subculture — has become increasingly saturated in recent years by more current artists like the Weeknd and Janelle Monae; its vocals and instrumentals to its forerunners is Twigs’ experimental setting that may be likened to the eclectic R&B scene — as well as a manifestation of the very sensual gender politics and female autonomy wanting more from the British singer. Ross Lynch, can be seen dancing by his way from one side of the stage to the other, the lead bassist and vocalist, Riker Lynch, sheds his hair back and forth to the beat of each song perfectly. Throughout the show, the band takes the opportunity to not only thank their fans over and over for their support, but play their new and old music as well.

The band’s unique sounds, “fimile,” a fan favorite, seem to spread positive vibes across the audience as Riker Lynch sings the closing song of his dreams — smile. After the last song, the band can be seen dancing along with each other with guitar and drums and even picking up one another before running off stage — the perfect way to end such a fan-filled evening with their fans.

Currently touring Europe, R5 is definitely taking the music scene by storm and will only continue to do so as their creativity, ingenuity and passion carry them forward.

The Visit is a new horror film that is written and directed by M. Night Shyamalan. The movie tells the tale of two siblings, Becca and Tyler, who are sent by their mother to their grandparents’ house for a one week visit. The point of the visit is for the siblings to finally meet their grandparents and to bond with them. However, as days go by, things start to get har- risome, since the grandparents act in a strange and creepy manner after 9:30 pm. This makes the siblings question whether they will make it out of the house alive.

Upon seeing the trailer for this movie, I did not have very high expectations. I was once a huge fan of M. Night Shyamalan because he has made brilliant movies in the past such as The Sixth Sense, Unbreakable and Signs. Ever since then, his career went downhill. He started making large budget blockbusters that were really disappointing. I am so happy to say that The Visit is undoubtedly Shyamalan’s best movie in over a decade.

The Visit is a horror movie that has plen- ty of scares. There is one scene that involves the children playing hide and seek in a shed, which was terrifying. The scenes that take place after 9:30 pm are the ones that really stuck with me after the movie was over.

There also is a lot of comic relief in this movie and, because of some of the dialogue and the characters’ comedic timing, there is a lot of humor that genuinely works. There were times that I was on the edge of my seat and times that I could not help but laugh because Tyler, the grandsons, have perfect comedic timing. I was also surprised on how much dramatic left was in the movie. There are certain scenes in which the history of the grandparents’ lives are talked about and there are some touching scenes that had a great effect on the movie. The drama nev- er seemed melodramatic or clichéd. It seemed as if it was believable.

I would go more in depth with what made the movie pretty solid, but for this re- view, specifically, I would like to write as little as possible because the less you know about the movie, the more you will enjoy it. The Visit is a well-acted movie that has solid directing as well as a blend of humor and horror that works for the most part. This is certainly a comeback for Shyamalan. It isn’t necessarily a home run, but it’s a solid hit. If Shyamalan continues to do movies in a low budget scale and sticks to his roots, he could regain the career that once made him great.

Gotham premiered last September as a show that was backed into a corner from the beginning. Writer Bruno Heller (Rome, The Mentalist) was tasked with creating a crime drama surrounding one of the most iconic locations in pop culture. If that wasn’t tough enough, Heller had to do this without showing Bruce Wayne in the Batman costume (except for perhaps the final scene in the show).

This led to a freshman season that left much to be desired. Gotham often teetered between a campy, comic book show and a serious, grounded-in-reality type of show. After numerous stars of the show mentioned that the second season will see a lot of the bad habits dropped, it leaves the viewer with a little bit of hope going into the premiere on Sept. 21. One of the most positive signs for the show is that everyone involved seems to be self-aware about what worked and what did not.

Season two’s promos have been centered around the villains rising to the spotlight. With the return of Cameron Monaghan’s pseudo-Joker, Jerome, and Robin Lord Taylor’s exceptional portrayal of The Penguin leading the fray, it should lead to a lot more excitement between the GCPD and the villains working against them.

Gotham has a tough road ahead of it to capitalize off of the things that worked well in season one and hopes to bring itself back into the forefront of a plethora of comic book shows that are currently run- ning.

All-freshman team picks up speed to start the season

The sun beamed down from above as the noise build in just before the starting line. Despite the heat, the energy among the athletes and stillness of the morning could be felt throughout the crowd. After the countdown, a shot rang through the air followed by the first of many clouds of sneaker bangs against the grass and racers were off.

In their first race since 2004, Montclair State’s Red Hawks joined other collegiate teams at the Ramapo Season Opener on Sept. 4. Though the ladies had not been in the spot-light the entire month, they had already made a name for themselves as they climbed through the path at Garrett Mountain. Of 10 other schools who also participated at the meet, the Red Hawks placed third.

Comming in strong for her first meet, freshman Alli Mycek was the top finisher for Montclair State and, ninth overall with a time of 21:35.1. Close behind, freshman Katia Hagedry completed the course in 22:42.3 while coming in second for Montclair State and ninth overall. With a week dedicated to training, the Red Hawks continued to the Monmouth Cross Country Invitational at Holmedal Park on Sept. 12. Placing sixth overall and tallying a total of 148 points, the team did not fare as well in their second meet of the season. How- ever, while taking to the course against Division I teams such as Monmouth University and Rutgers, the Red Hawks were once again exerting their best effort in such a highly competitive field.

In turn, though the overall score of the meet did not align with their first, the ladies appeared to improve or maintain their overall times. For the second week in a row, Mycek continued to lead the Red Hawks as she finished 54th overall with a time of 21:10.4. Following her teammate, Hagedry held strong until the end and was able to again clinch the second place spot for Montclair State while completing the 5K in 22:23.3.

While the Red Hawks will be pushing themselves in practice for their next meet, the ladies are certainly not alone. A former student athlete, Coach John Brennan has been working with the all-freshman team over the summer and is heading into the season with much-needed experience. Coming from a tenure at Felician College, Brennan had led the Devils to victories in the past and will nonetheless work with the Red Hawks this competition.

Only time will truly tell if the recently-formed Montclair State team will live up to the raised expectations across the division, especially at the beginning of the season. The next step for the Red Hawks is the Bill Fritz/Charlie Way Invitational, where fans of the team can catch the action live on Rowan College in Sewell, N.J. on Sept. 19.

Mexico vs. Argentina

Tuesday, September 8

In Arlington, Texas, a pre- maturity Mexico went up against South American giant Argenti- na in front of 82,000 fans. Mexico was lining up with many doubts and speculations among fans. Mexico’s coach Ricardo “Tata” Ferretti had been criti- cized since he didn’t call up the da Silva brothers which had a good run in the Gold Cup earlier this year. Instead, Mexico’s lineup included many Euro- pean superstars such as Javier Hernandez, Carlos Vela and the recently injured Rafael Marquez.

Argentina’s lineup included world class player Lionel Messi and many other superstars such as Sergio Aguero from Manchester City and Jerusalema’s very own Carlos Tevez. Argentina dominated the first 10 minutes of the first half.

As Mexico started gaining momentum, Nicolas Otamari- di committed a foul on Real Jacksonville which cost Argentina a goal and ultimately the first goal after Hernandez converted. This goal prompted many to say Mexico played one of the best halves they’ve played since they Argentina continued to play well in the latest international break.

Argentina then went on to show why they are ranked first in the world as they dominated throughout the rest of the game. Thanks to Messi’s efforts, the Mexican goal remained score- less until the last four minutes of the game where Aguero and Messi would score to end the game at a draw.

U.S.A. vs. Brazil

Motivated from a pre- vious win against Peru, the United States went up against Brazil at Gillette Stadium in Boston, Mass. The game start- ed with high intensity as Hul- ke gave Brazil the advantage in the first seven minutes of the game. After the Americans got back in form with various opportuni- ties in the first half. The remain- der of the match turned out to be much of a stalemate between the two sides with both the United States and Brazil testing keepers Guzan and Grohe, re- spectively.

Barcelona superstar, Ney- mar, came in as a sub in the 46th minute replacing William. Ney- mar proved useful to put away Brazil’s second goal in the 51st minute from the penalty spot. After the penalty, Neymar made himself present in the game and, he helped Brazil dominate the remainder of the game. Rafaela put one away in the 64th and Neymar put another one in the back of the net in the 67th minute, both of which were assisted by PSG’s Lucas.

The United States started to retaliate on the field when Hages Kluverman brought in NYCFC midfielder Daller- richi in the 72nd minute. Dann- Williams was able to bring the United States back in with the help of an assist by1 time of the season with much-needed compensation time, ending the game with a well-fought win for Brazil.

Despite their 2-1 loss to D.C. United on Nov. 8, the New York Red Bulls have advanced to the Eastern Conference Finals. Midfielder Péguy Luyindula netted the only Red Bulls’ goal. Luyindula, who scored once in the Red Bulls’ 2-0 win against D.C. United in the first leg of the conference semifinals, sent his side to the conference finals on a 3-2 goal aggregate.

Inside the six-yard box, Luyindula slotted a cross from captain Thierry Henry into the bottom right corner of United’s goal in the 57th minute.

Field Hockey

The Red Hawks lost their first contest of the year against New Paltz in N.Y. by a score of 2-1. Three days later, Montclair State avenged their first loss with a 2-1 win over Misericordia University in Dallas, Pa. The Red Hawks will finally play their home opener on Sept. 18 and begin a six-game homestand that will take them through Oct. 2. They are scheduled to play 10 of their last 14 games at Sprague Field.

Volleyball

Montclair State finished 2-2 in the North Jersey Challenge that took place at Panzer Athletic Center over the weekend. The Red Hawks also opened up their NJAC schedule with a tough loss to Stockton University at Panzer Athletic Center.

The Red Hawks are currently 5-4 and will have road matches against the United States Merchant Marine Academy and an NJAC match against Rowan University on Sept. 17 and Sept. 22, respectively. Montclair State is currently 0-1 on the road.

Freshman goalie Molly Barrow stopped six shots and earned her second win of the season, helping the Red Hawks at 2-1 at home and 2-0 on the road.

The Red Hawks continued their winning streak in non-conference play as they beat Union College (0-1-3) and University of Rochester on Sept. 13, but responded quickly with two consecutive goals to give the women their fourth consecutive victory in non-conference play. Forwards Martina Landeka and Jennie Hiemstra scored their first goals of the season within 15 minutes of each other late in the second half.

The Red Hawks will look to continue their season in their first NJAC contest against New Jersey City University on Sept. 19.

Montclair State professor remembers his time with Darryl Dawkins

Perry Schwarz, currently a professor at Montclair State, having a cable show and working for an NBA charity, called Dawkins “one of the greatest guys I loved him.” In his post-NBA career, Dawkins made visits to children’s basketball camps and volunteered when he could with the Special Olympics.

He was “one of the most down-to-earth people I know,” Darryl Dawkins himself, “Sir Slam” and “Dr. Dunkenstein,” among other nicknames.

Dawkins was a true ambassador, Schwarz said when remembering Dawkins. “He would bend over backwards to help another person,” World B. Free, a teammate of Dawkins when he played in Philadelphia, said in a video commemorating Dawkins. “He was just one of the greatest guys I loved him.” In his post-NBA career, Dawkins made visits to children’s basketball camps and volunteered when he could with the Special Olympics.
