The announcement of the winners of the 2006 SGA elections were delayed until Wednesday night because of a delay due to the questioning of President Angelo Lilia's e-mails encouraging SMU campus to vote in the elections.

SGA President Angelo Lilia has been re-elected into position, as well as Vice President Amy Chicken. Maria Soares has been elected as treasurer and Matthew DePasquale has been elected as secretary. The winners are all part of the same campaigning team.

Earlier Wednesday, Legislator Abby Gildersleeve wrote an e-mail to contact the elections until next week, because Lilia sent out an e-mail on the "All Students" list serving Wednesday morning, encouraging students to vote in the elections, along with statements of what the SGA has accomplished.

Because sending out e-mails on the All Students list serve is a privilege only the president and secretary have among students, it was speculated that the e-mails were illegal campaigning because none of other candidates didn't have such a source.

At the Wednesday elections committee meeting, some of the legislature argued that because his name was stated in the e-mail, it was campaigning. However, Lilia argued as president, he is supposed to encourage the student body to vote. If this belief was carried out, it could have led to Lilia's impeachment or post ponement of the elections until next week.

At the elections committee meeting, Gildersleeve said, "The e-mail was an unfair advantage of the 2006 elections. According to the SGA constitution, the student list serve is a privilege. I'm not happy to do this, but the rules have been compromised."

"It doesn't say anywhere in the e-mail 'vote for me,'" said Lilia. He added that in Article Three, Section Two of the SGA constitution, it states that the SGA president has to act as an official host and representative as the SGA. That's something I did," said Lilia. "The e-mail says to vote for whomever you feel best represents you."

"He cheated and he knows it. He went against his oath to the statutes. He used his privilege to his advantage, and it's a shame the legislature didn't see that,"

David Kois
Current SGA Treasurer

Montclairfest Headliner Departs Early

Shayna Jacobs
Assistant News Editor

Montclairfest 2006, with a turnout of 401 MSU students, and a $70,000 budget took place last Saturday in the Student Center ballrooms from 12 to 5 p.m. Rapper Juelz Santana, the headlining act, played a 17-minute set, the shortest of any act, and was only paid half of the salary set forth in his contract. Santana was meant to receive $25,000 for the show, but was only paid $12,500. Neither Santana nor his representatives provided an explanation for the premature exit.

"Even his agent was like 'Where are you going?'" said Jen Winkela, Class One Concerts President. "He got off the stage, walked straight to his van, and left.

Punk bands Hometown Anthem, of Maryland, and Hidden in Plain View, of Stanhope, were the first two acts. They were followed by MC Lars, Santana and female rapper Just.

Only MSU students were admitted because the show was moved inside in anticipation of rainy weather. From its original location at the amphitheater next to the Kauer Theater. Admission was free.

Due to the change of venue, the cost of Montclairfest was under the allotted budget. Had the show been outside, appropriating for rental toilets, stage roofing, extra amplification and lighting would have been necessary. The final cost of the event is unknown at this point.

Lars, a California native who deems his music "post punk laptop rap," followed the first set.

The 2006 SGA election winners have been announced. (From left to right) Treasurer Maria Soares, President Angelo Lilia, Vice President Amy Chicken and Secretary Matthew DePasquale.

Election Results Announcement Delayed

Chantal Gabel
News Editor

The 2006 SGA election winners have been announced. (From left to right) Treasurer Maria Soares, President Angelo Lilia, Vice President Amy Chicken and Secretary Matthew DePasquale.

Current Treasurer David Kois said, "He cheated and he knows it. He went against his oath to the statutes. He used his privilege to his advantage, and it's a shame the legislature didn't see that.

"After seeing the election results, I'm disappointed that the Guttilla ticket lost. However, I'm proud of them for running a clean campaign and maintaining dignity as individuals," said Legislative Serailian Traipoom.

Legislator Jeremy Slagle said, "After seeing the election results, I feel that the reason for attempting to contest the election was shown to be moot.

"Chief Justice Joe Spichcia said, "The members spoke and said their job to make sure everyone is protected. I hope that this process taught SGA members a lesson they continue to learn."

Treasurer candidate Jamie B. Drescher was disappointed by the election. "At least last year I lost to someone qualified. All of the winning campaign team did was blather. They have no skills. They are liars. I'm going to give her hell.

The other opposing candidates were unavailable for comment.

Wrestler Harassment Complaint Investigated

Jose Ortiz
Managing Editor

There has been an investigation conducted into a sexual harassment complaint filed by freshman wrestler Christian Crespo against head wrestling coach James Torres. The complaint was filed a week after the team returned from California on Jan. 16.

Since then, the team has been dropped from the MSU varsity sports program, and the wrestlers who were left behind have been rallying to get the school's decision reversed. What hasn't happened is the disclosure of the results that the university's investigation yielded.

According to sophomore wrestler and SGA Justice Anthony Rodriguez, the investigators spoke to all of the wrestlers who were on the trip to California, where the alleged event took place. Apparently, all of the wrestler's stories corroborated, but the investigation team, headed by the university is Director of Equal Opportunity, for me just because it's what they're used to seeing," said Guttilla. "It's so obvious that what's going on is shady and against everything we stand for.

"In finding out the results of the election, Lilia said he was shocked. "I thought the campaigning team votes would be split," said Lilia. "I'm grateful to have been given a second chance, and I'm happy for my teammates. I'm excited for next year."

Lilia added that the e-mail didn't affect the votes at all because 1,300 people voted by Monday morning, and 1,743 people voted altogether. "If someone is supposed to be a campaigner, his campaign team won is because they campaigned together," said Lilia, who was never split up. We also spent $1,800," said Lilia about the campaigning they made sure to use tactics that students would remember, such as the blank CDs they handed out with their names on them.

When asked if there's any hard feelings between the two campaigning teams, Lilia responded, "There has been tension since day one. We're trying not to let it get in the way of the students. They really have to stick to business."

Members of the legislature had mixed feelings regarding the election.

"I'm disappointed that the Guttilla ticket lost. However, I'm proud of them for running a clean campaign and maintaining dignity as individuals," said Legislative Serailian Traipoom.

"I'm disappointed that the Guttilla ticket lost. However, I'm proud of them for running a clean campaign and maintaining dignity as individuals," said Legislative Serailian Traipoom.

"I'm disappointed that the Guttilla ticket lost. However, I'm proud of them for running a clean campaign and maintaining dignity as individuals," said Legislative Serailian Traipoom.
The Police Report: Violence and Drug Possession Top Police Reports

4/18/06 - A student reported being threatened with a motor vehicle violation out of Paul Epifan, 20, were both arrested for verbal dispute located in the Red Hawk. This case will be heard in Municipal Court.

4/18/06 - A staff member reported a verbal dispute located in the Red Hawk. The Police said settled a score with her husband by stabbing his two young children to death in the couple's Irvington apartment, tearfully pleaded guilty to the crime yesterday.

SUN DAY 30

Local News

ESSEX COUNTY - A Bangladeshi woman who police said settled a score with her husband by stabbing his two young children to death in their Irvington apartment, tearfully pleaded guilty to the crime yesterday.

WASHINGTON - Calling the oil a matter of national security, President Bush outlined a plan Tuesday to cut gasoline costs and temporarily stopped deposits to the U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

TEHRAN, Iran - Iran threatened Tuesday to begin hiding its nuclear programs from the United Nations, as its supreme leader said Tehran was ready to transfer its nuclear technology to other countries.

The Police Report: Violence and Drug Possession Top Police Reports

4/20/06 - A student reported being threatened with a motor vehicle violation out of Paul Epifan, 20, were both arrested for verbal dispute located in the Red Hawk. This case will be heard in Municipal Court.

4/18/06 - A staff member reported a verbal dispute located in the Red Hawk. The Police said settled a score with her husband by stabbing his two young children to death in the couple's Irvington apartment, tearfully pleaded guilty to the crime yesterday.

SUN DAY 30

Local News

ESSEX COUNTY - A Bangladeshi woman who police said settled a score with her husband by stabbing his two young children to death in their Irvington apartment, tearfully pleaded guilty to the crime yesterday.

WASHINGTON - Calling the oil a matter of national security, President Bush outlined a plan Tuesday to cut gasoline costs and temporarily stopped deposits to the U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

TEHRAN, Iran - Iran threatened Tuesday to begin hiding its nuclear programs from the United Nations, as its supreme leader said Tehran was ready to transfer its nuclear technology to other countries.

The Police Report: Violence and Drug Possession Top Police Reports

4/20/06 - A student reported being threatened with a motor vehicle violation out of Paul Epifan, 20, were both arrested for verbal dispute located in the Red Hawk. This case will be heard in Municipal Court.

4/18/06 - A staff member reported a verbal dispute located in the Red Hawk. The Police said settled a score with her husband by stabbing his two young children to death in the couple's Irvington apartment, tearfully pleaded guilty to the crime yesterday.

SUN DAY 30

Local News

ESSEX COUNTY - A Bangladeshi woman who police said settled a score with her husband by stabbing his two young children to death in their Irvington apartment, tearfully pleaded guilty to the crime yesterday.

WASHINGTON - Calling the oil a matter of national security, President Bush outlined a plan Tuesday to cut gasoline costs and temporarily stopped deposits to the U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

TEHRAN, Iran - Iran threatened Tuesday to begin hiding its nuclear programs from the United Nations, as its supreme leader said Tehran was ready to transfer its nuclear technology to other countries.

The Police Report: Violence and Drug Possession Top Police Reports

4/20/06 - A student reported being threatened with a motor vehicle violation out of Paul Epifan, 20, were both arrested for verbal dispute located in the Red Hawk. This case will be heard in Municipal Court.

4/18/06 - A staff member reported a verbal dispute located in the Red Hawk. The Police said settled a score with her husband by stabbing his two young children to death in the couple's Irvington apartment, tearfully pleaded guilty to the crime yesterday.

SUN DAY 30

Local News

ESSEX COUNTY - A Bangladeshi woman who police said settled a score with her husband by stabbing his two young children to death in their Irvington apartment, tearfully pleaded guilty to the crime yesterday.

WASHINGTON - Calling the oil a matter of national security, President Bush outlined a plan Tuesday to cut gasoline costs and temporarily stopped deposits to the U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

TEHRAN, Iran - Iran threatened Tuesday to begin hiding its nuclear programs from the United Nations, as its supreme leader said Tehran was ready to transfer its nuclear technology to other countries.
Montclair State University held a tree planting in front of Stone Hall April 20 in honor of Earth Day. The Department of Residential Education and Services and the Physical Plant participated in the program.

In the photo from left to right are Lugenia Ford, Will Pagan, James Fuller, Angelo Cardellichio, Bob Greene and Bob Jones. Assistant Director of Facilities and Services Theresa Giardino began an Earth Day Tree Planting Program when she arrived at MSU five years ago.

According to Giardino, each year, the location of the planting is planned carefully, as well as the type of plant. The plant material chosen is native to New Jersey and is drought resistant. Previous locations of the planting have been Bohn Hall, Blanton Hall, Freeman Hall and the Bohn/Blanton Hall Quad. "We all need to take responsibility for our environment, and should do whatever we can to preserve and improve the environment."

Giardino added that the planting "helps beautify an area," as it did to Stone Hall. "Planting a tree/garden area creates a natural habitat for birds and other small creatures of nature," said Giardino. It's important for student to not only be aware of Earth Day, but also for them to participate in Earth Day because it's their world. Our students will become tomorrow's leaders, and they will find themselves in jobs, as well as community activities, where they will be making decisions that impact the environment for themselves as well as their families."

The video included stories of experience from people who immigrated to the United States from the torments of the Holocaust and elaborated on President Roosevelt's decision to take no action regarding a bill to let Jews into the United States.

Price said he hoped students learned "about the atmosphere of anti-Semitism in America in the 1930s and 1940s, and will want to do their best to combat such an atmosphere today when encountered."

Price added that, for interested students, there are courses about the Holocaust in literature, film and drama; his own class, Drama from Ibsen to O'Neill; The Deputy of Rolf Hochhuth.

Montclair State University held a tree planting in front of Stone Hall April 20 in honor of Earth Day. The Department of Residential Education and Services and the Physical Plant participated in the program.

In the photo from left to right are Lugenia Ford, Will Pagan, James Fuller, Angelo Cardellichio, Bob Greene and Bob Jones. Assistant Director of Facilities and Services Theresa Giardino began an Earth Day Tree Planting Program when she arrived at MSU five years ago.

According to Giardino, each year, the location of the planting is planned carefully, as well as the type of plant. The plant material chosen is native to New Jersey and is drought resistant. Previous locations of the planting have been Bohn Hall, Blanton Hall, Freeman Hall and the Bohn/Blanton Hall Quad. "We all need to take responsibility for our environment, and should do whatever we can to preserve and improve the environment."

Giardino added that the planting "helps beautify an area," as it did to Stone Hall. "Planting a tree/garden area creates a natural habitat for birds and other small creatures of nature," said Giardino. It's important for student to not only be aware of Earth Day, but also for them to participate in Earth Day because it's their world. Our students will become tomorrow's leaders, and they will find themselves in jobs, as well as community activities, where they will be making decisions that impact the environment for themselves as well as their families."

The video included stories of experience from people who immigrated to the United States from the torments of the Holocaust and elaborated on President Roosevelt's decision to take no action regarding a bill to let Jews into the United States.

Price said he hoped students learned "about the atmosphere of anti-Semitism in America in the 1930s and 1940s, and will want to do their best to combat such an atmosphere today when encountered."

Price added that, for interested students, there are courses about the Holocaust in literature, film and drama; his own class, Drama from Ibsen to O'Neill; The Deputy of Rolf Hochhuth.

The video included stories of experience from people who immigrated to the United States from the torments of the Holocaust and elaborated on President Roosevelt's decision to take no action regarding a bill to let Jews into the United States.

Price said he hoped students learned "about the atmosphere of anti-Semitism in America in the 1930s and 1940s, and will want to do their best to combat such an atmosphere today when encountered."

Price added that, for interested students, there are courses about the Holocaust in literature, film and drama; his own class, Drama from Ibsen to O'Neill; The Deputy of Rolf Hochhuth.

Our clinic is conducting a clinical research study for adolescents and adults with both asthma and seasonal allergies.

You may be able to participate in this study if you:
- Are at least 15 years old
- Have been diagnosed with persistent asthma for at least the past 3 months
- Have been diagnosed with seasonal allergic rhinitis that was active during the past 2 allergy seasons
- Have been taking a stable dose of an allowed asthma treatment for at least 3 months

Study staff will review additional criteria with you.

Qualified study participants will be asked to come to the clinic for 4-5 study visits over 5-6 weeks, and they will not be charged for study-related office visits, medical evaluations, or study medication.

FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE CONTACT:
Monika Sklenar
Pulmonary & Allergy Associates
One Springfield Avenue, Summit, NJ 07901
P (908) 934-0440 x249
Email: monikas@paamds.com
EGG DONORS NEEDED!!!

THE IVF OF NEW JERSEY is seeking egg donors of all ethnic backgrounds between the ages of 21-32.

AS AN EGG DONOR, YOU CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE
AND MAKE ONE COUPLE RECEIVE A GIFT OF LIFE - A CHILD
THAT THEY DREAMED OF HAVING.

RESIDENTS OF NEW JERSEY ONLY. EACH CANDIDATE
NEEDS TO SEND A PICTURE WITH THEIR NAME ON IT,
ADDRESS AND DAY-TIME PHONE NUMBER.

AFTER THE DONOR HAS COMPLETED AN EGG DONOR CYCLE,
THEY WILL BE COMPENSATED $7000.00

For more information on our egg donor program call
(973) 470-0303
and ask for one of our Nurses.

1035 ROUTE 46 EAST
CLIFTON, NEW JERSEY 07013
TELEPHONE (973) 470-0303
FAX (973) 916-0488
MSU Represented As Non-Diverse University In Trenton

Caucasian Students Attend Event, Upsetting Ethnic Students

Oriana Dagostino
Staff Writer

The Dean of Students Office of MSU was represented by five Caucasian students on Monday, April 10th at the Montclair at Trenton event, leaving students of color feeling that their voices were not heard. Students had their own thoughts on the matter when told about the selection.

Pennington, Vice President for Student Development and Campus Life, said, "I know that Dean Ross-Maye has been working very hard to ensure that every student is represented at the Montclair at Trenton event. However, she was interested in attending the event, however, they were unable to attend the event."

Pennington added that Howell questions like, "Who was in charge of choosing which students would attend? Why was it ignored or overlooked that there was no diversity represented by the group of students? What will be done in the future to prevent this from occurring again? Do you find the situation acceptable?"

Howell responded with the following: "I have reached out to Pierre on several occasions (April 8, April 12, April 17 and April 18) in an attempt to schedule a meeting to address his questions and concerns. Unfortunately, he has not responded. I am preparing for surgery and will not be available to schedule a meeting. I am still available to meet with Pierre. Perhaps he will be available to meet after his surgery."

Additional questions were posed, such as "How MSU presented itself to other schools visiting on April 6th. However, the questions were left unanswered.

President Susan Cole did not respond to a request for a meeting. However, she did not comment on the matter when told about the selection. "I am extremely disappointed that Juelz Santana only played for 15 minutes," said Anthony Gutilla, SGA President Pro Tempore. "I think a good number of people are here, but it's not big enough to be spending $70,000 every year."

Anthony Gutilla
SGA President Pro Tempore

Urban Academy Prepares Students for Challenges

Montclair State's Urban Teaching Academy (UTA) is one of three programs in the country to receive a $50,000 grant from the National Commission on Teaching and America's Future (NCTAF) and the MetLife Foundation for successfully preparing quality teachers to teach in high-need urban schools. These grants support efforts to improve the preparation and transition of new teachers to urban schools.

"It's a punk rock song about how much Hot Topic sucks!" said Lars on stage.

Lars, whose name is reminiscent of the Britney Spears, also covered The Bloodhound Gang's "The Bad Touch."
Earth to God and you’ve already paid for your ticket.

Voices Mystic & Divine
The MSU Chorale and Singers

With two unforgettable twentieth century works, Ralph Vaughan Williams’ Five Mystical Songs, and Maurice Duruflé’s Requiem, Op. 9., the MSU Chorale sets a new standard of excellence.

HEATHER BUCHANAN, conductor
NANCIANNE PARELLA, organ
KARIE BROWN, mezzo-soprano
JEAN-RONALD LAFOND, baritone

DATE AND TIME:
April 28 & 29 at 7:30pm

NO CHARGE FOR MSU UNDERGRADS THROUGH PERFORMING ARTS FEE

Terrell Stafford with the MSU Jazz Ensemble

Directed by JEFFREY KUNKEL

Terrell Stafford has been hailed as “one of the great players of our time, a fabulous trumpet player” by piano legend McCoy Tyner. A gifted and versatile player with a voice all his own, Stafford combines lyricism and a deep love of melody with a spirited, adventurous edge.

DATE AND TIME:
April 30 at 3pm

NO CHARGE FOR MSU UNDERGRADS THROUGH PERFORMING ARTS FEE

For tickets or more information please call 973-655-5112 or check online at www.montclair.edu/kasser
Thinking About Summer? Plan Ahead!

Course selection available at www.ccm.edu

4 sessions

Day Session I
May 22 – June 22

Day Session II
June 26 - July 27

Day Session III
July 31 – August 11

Evening Session
June 5 – July 27

Call 973-328-5101
10 Things I Hate About MSU

Justine Burke
Staff Writer

"Do you think yoga is the solution for world peace?" I jokingly asked Daniel McBride, also known as Dalien, a yoga professor here at Montclair.

"I really think it could be, because you feel so good from doing it all of the time," he responds, with a hint in his voice from speaking so highly about the one thing that helps shape his life.

McBride is not only known as a yogi here at Montclair. He also teaches yoga at the Lotus Yoga, a yoga studio on Midland Ave. in Montclair, and moonlights as a very successful singer/songwriter. The "yogi rocker," as he is affectionately called, finds satisfaction in his dual career choices and passions: yoga and music.

The reason why he chose these as his passions is a long story full of obstacles and revelations. From health problems to musical crisis, the road of growth as a musician and as a wandering yogi instructor has been a tumultuous one.

McBride's passion for music started when MTV launched on Aug. 1, 1981. According to him, it was a channel that opened up a new world for him that has never been revealed to him before. As a result, he started to learn how to play a number of diverse instruments. From the clarinet, to the guitar, to obscure instrument called the euphonium (a brass horn instrument resembling a tuba), McBride actively took to playing for crowds as a member of his high school marching band and playing in jazz bands.

But unfortunately, his budding career as a musician, especially his singing, had to come to a halt, due to ongoing chronic sinus problems and food allergies.

"I had to go to so many doctors who did not help my condition, so I just tried to find an alternative solution for a cure," McBride said about his experiences with western medicine.

In his early years.

That is when he turned to alternative medicine for an answer to his health problems, and after two years of rigorous alternative health practices, such as becoming an organic eater, he finally saw improvements to his health. As a result of his regimen, his body improved and his voice improved, having upside-down garbage cans providing him with upside-down garbage cans providing the beat for some of the performances.

2) Funniest- Theta Xi, hands down, was the most hysterical act of the entire night. Doing a sketch through the 1990s, the audience was visited by Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Vanilla Ice, the characters of Wayne's World and more. The crowd burst out laughing when Austin Powers appeared onstage, and even harder when the Theta Xi boys did a Men In Black tribute. To top off, the boys had a little free-form dance at the end to "Ludacris's "Number One Spot." That song really foreshadowed their placement for the night.

3) Best Showcase of Talent- Sigma Sigma Sigma had a variety of talents, appealing to just about everyone in the audience. Using their own voices and raw talent, the girls of Tri-Sig sang, did hip-hop, ballet and a little techno dance. Jamie Drescher really performed well, doing a partnered point-toe ballet portion and leading most of the other dances as well. These girls really showed their talents well.

4) Most Creative- Pi Kappa Alpha took us on a little tour through history, flashing back to Greek Week decades ago from when the actual performances was taking place. These guys put on an amazing dance portion (aside from the break-dance battle between two brothers) when they did their futuristic act. Wearing all black and space-age looking masks, they did a ninjas worm and a dance in which they all seemed to energize each other. Their theme of a futuristic Greek Week having upside-down garbage cans providing the beat for some of the performances.

The Yog Rocker, Daniel McBride, is a singer/songwriter based here in Montclair and teaches yoga at Lotus Yoga in Montclair and here at Montclair State University as well.

Here members of TKE showcase their talents by dancing down the aisles and creating fun.

SEEN "ABOUT MSU" ON P. 11

Greeks Provide Laughter for The Campus

Justine Burke
Staff Writer

Of all moments of Greek Week, the Talent Show could be considered one of the most memorable (that is, next to the puking guys of PRA during the soda chug). The 11 acts, all of sororities and frats, were unique in their own way, providing humor and shock for the pure talent that these Greek Week participants really had. Although there were only a few runner-ups and two top winners, each group could have won their own individual prize. As a first year Talent Show audience member, I feel that all should be recognized for their efforts. So the awards go to:

1) Most Together- Sigma Delta Tau really looked well rehearsed in their MADE act, entitled "If I Were a Hip-Hop Dancer/Greek Week Winner." With strong choreography and great musical choices, this first act was a real crowd pleaser. Wearing all black, the girls of Sigma Delta Tau were in sync and most-organized looking. Not one girl was out of step, and they even had a street theme to, having upside-down garbage cans providing the beat for some of the performances.

2) Funniest- Theta Xi, hands down, was the most hysterical act of the entire night. Doing a sketch through the 1990s, the audience was visited by Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Vanilla Ice, the characters of Wayne's World and more. The crowd burst out laughing when Austin Powers appeared onstage, and even harder when the Theta Xi boys did a Men In Black tribute. To top off, the boys had a little free-form dance at the end to "Ludacris's "Number One Spot." That song really foreshadowed their placement for the night.

3) Best Showcase of Talent- Sigma Sigma Sigma had a variety of talents, appealing to just about everyone in the audience. Using their own voices and raw talent, the girls of Tri-Sig sang, did hip-hop, ballet and a little techno dance. Jamie Drescher really performed well, doing a partnered point-toe ballet portion and leading most of the other dances as well. These girls really showed their talents well.

4) Most Creative- Pi Kappa Alpha took us on a little tour through history, flashing back to Greek Week decades ago from when the actual performances was taking place. These guys put on an amazing dance portion (aside from the break-dance battle between two brothers) when they did their futuristic act. Wearing all black and space-age looking masks, they did a ninjas worm and a dance in which they all seemed to energize each other. Their theme of a futuristic Greek Week..."
Dear P and J,

This past spring break, I started talking to my ex-boyfriend from elementary school. He lives in another state, which is the reason we broke up at the time. Was it just the tip of the iceberg?

A great deal of care and precision goes into the reason we broke up at the time. Now that we are talking, I don't know how to view the relationship. Both he and I have had relationships since then. What's not to say that one of his exes or mine has grown up into now. It is always a challenge to find time to see each other and to keep the lines of communication open. This case is special: you both have a history together, though that was many years ago, and the main reason the both of you broke up in the first place was because of the distance.

This is not a promising start for a new beginning for the two of you. Unless the two of you are willing to make an effort to visit each other more than just sporadically and be willing to constantly speak, e-mail and snail mail each other as well, then it probably is not that great of an idea to think of things like this seriously. If you two do decide to give it a go, there are other factors to think about as well.

Have you seen your ex-boyfriend since you two started talking again? Do you know what he is like around his current friends or family? If not, there is a very good chance he has changed from the person you dated in elementary school to the person he has grown up into now.

Not to say that he's become a bad person over the years, but things about him, such as aspects of his personality and the kinds of friends he has made since then, could have turned him into someone you might not recognize from your childhood. You also say that the two of you have had relationships since then. Well, what's not to say that one of his exes or mine has grown up into now. If you have any questions you would like answered by our team of sex and relationship advisors, send an e-mail to MSUFeature@gmail.com with "He Said, She Said" in the subject line.

YOGI ROCKER

Daniel McBride sings at the Church Street Cafe and has performed at the Luna Cafe in Montclair.

for various record labels. But his health began to deteriorate once again. He felt that even though he had always considered himself a self-athlete, he was constantly fatigued and tried. He decided to take a break from working on music to focus on his health.

Once, when he was channel surfing randomly, McBride happened upon a hatha yoga video. His health. His right leg, and showed the manager the brace on his leg. “I want this puppy because I want to purchase that puppy, the manager’s assistant yoga practice, in addition to classes he teaches here at Montclair College and a country as an independent artist, sharing the likes of Run DMC, Ahi Di Franco and Paula Cole. His first CD, entitled ‘Fix My Feet,’ was released in 1996, followed by 13 Hands, in 1996. His third CD was entitled ‘The Christmas Time Capsule’ in 2000. His fourth musical release was a DVD recording at Montclair’s Luna Stage in 2000. His most recent CD is ‘13 Hands,’ released in October 2005.

In 1993, around the time he received his degree, fate decided that it was time for McBride to take yoga to the next level. He was approached by one of his yoga instructors to substitute a class.

McBride decided to take yoga to the next level. He decided to take a break from working on music to focus on his health.

He decided to take a break from working on music to focus on his health.

The painful things I feel.

To constantly feel confused.

Nobody knows what it feels like,

The fear of never waking up again,

To feel good and with constant practice of yoga, the whole world can become a better place," he said. From that day on I'll finally be free, Aed happiness will be mine.

But until that day nobody knows, The feeling of being me.

Maybe they're not looking hard enough,

Thank you, Anthony.

YEAR-END COMMENTS: I'd like to thank my volunteer "staff" who edited my articles this year. Of course, I would only trust Montclair State alumni to do the job! My sincere thanks to Sue Burghard Brooks '83, Dr. Lisa Greene '74, MA '81, and John McCarthy '71, MA '75.

I am an under- graduate at Montclair State. When Darren was 14, his older brother Anthony suddenly died in his sleep.

Anthony suffered from Tourette's syndrome and was only 20 when he died. Anthony was a good student, a great drummer in a local band, and an outrageous dancer.

Less than two years before his death, Anthony wrote this poem...
Welcome to paradise. Well, not yet ... there are three weeks left in the school year and then, "Hello summer" Some of us will be taking summer classes, which is great, but you know that’s not the way to spend your summer. Some of us will be working hard, trying to rack up the money with two jobs, and those lucky individuals will be soaking it up at the beach and partying hard at night. But we all have something in common: We all want to look good, right? Well, here are a few fashion essentials for summer 2006 for the ladies and gentlemen of MSU, but of course ladies first.

For the ladies: If you don’t know now, you should know:

- Wedges are in! In all heights, all colors. The more colorful, the better. To give it an even sexier look, try wedges that wrap around your ankles, then up your leg, but please be comfortable. You don’t want to look like you’re on stilts!
- Skinny jeans: These usually should be in dark denim, which give you a slimmer look. Not like your typical bootleg, they’re tight on the bottom with a straight leg look, but will definitely look good with a nice pair of pumps or flats and a tee.
- Double-wide belts: This is a great summer accessory, which can be worn either on your hips or on your waist. Looks great on the waist with a nice fitted shirt, but whatever works best for you!
- Keds: all-jan marshalls: They’re in, below it or not, and in many different colors and patterns. Labels such as BCBG and Zero Maria Cornejo have reinvented Keds.

For the guys:

- Bright ideas: Bright colors are definitely in this summer for the guys. Last year it was all about pink, but what about keeping it classic with a white crisp tee that has all the rights parts?

Print shirts: Those are in for the guys in many different colors and styles; think floral prints and porty hats, if you dare!

Loose trousers are designed to give you a break from the tight fitted look...

GREEK TALENT

Continued from p. 5

Sigma Delta Phi chose a Greek themed performance by having sisters dress up as Greek goddesses and others as members of Greek life.

was really original, and these brothers really put on a show.

5) The Man Pleasers: Delta Phi Epsilon really made audience members’ jaws drop when they walked out to the performing area wearing bootie shorts and tights with short tops or bras to cover above the waist. Dancing to Rihanna’s “SOS” and Ying Yang Twins’ “Shake,” these sisters left little to the average male’s imagination. Nonetheless, these girls really know how to dance. Ashley Gray and Christy Sylvester, the apparent leaders of the dance, lead the girls and seemed to really be having fun. And lets be honest ... I’m sure the guys in the audience had fun watching them, too.

6) Most Intense: Tau Phi Beta had a monster to catch, and still managed to dance to “Men in Black,” “Laffy Taffy” and “Can’t Touch This.” But what makes the Bulls brothers most intense was their aggressive and fun with it. But always, ladies, “Keeping It Simple” is the key with hair, makeup and of course, accessories.

Oops! I almost forget about the guys.

10) Best Costume: Theta Kappa Chi walked around in their costumes before the show started, and it was clear that their act was going to be intense and quite a “thriller.” Although it was fun to watch the Theta Xi boys in their tights, the Theta Kappa Chi girls really seemed to have put effort into their appearance. As they started, the audience could clearly see that it was all that and more—the Theta sisters crawled towards the audience in their frightening costumes, most covered in white foundation and make-up resembling blood streaks, it would be no surprise if these girls actually put fear into some of the audience members. Their hair, make-up and costumes were incredible; they took clothes and ripped them, shredded them, covered them with “blood stains” and more. They looked as if they were straight out of a horror film, which is exactly what anyone could guess their intentions were.

11) Most Greek-Spirited: Sigma Delta Phi really stuck close to home with their greek-themed performance. Having sisters dressed as Greek goddesses and other sisters as prominent members of Greek life, it was a showdown between who was the best group. After being provided with fire, the girls tore up the floor with hip-hop moves and slick transitions. But most importantly, they provided a moral to their set which was, “We are all different, all unique, but in the end, we’re all Greek”
1. Construction: Everything is being renovated, and the university will be looking wrong. Yeah... That’s fair.

2. Construction: Everything is being renovated, just so that 10 years later someone can finish, the only problem is that, when it’s all finally finished, we will all be married.

3. Food: To say that this aspect is improving is like calling dog urine an improvement.

4. Advising System: The best advice I’ve ever gotten from anyone at MSU came from a friend who told me that the key to getting good grades in college was to go to every class. Although I have yet to follow that bit of wisdom, it’s still better than anything I’ve ever heard from those paid professionals at MSU. Maybe I’m expecting too much, I don’t know. But I do know that all of my friends have advisers, they all think that they are useless, and most of them aren’t graduating in four years.

5. commuter Mania: If you’ve never seen a ghost town before, just stop by the Student Center on Saturday at about four. I think there may be more life in outer space than at MSU on the weekends. Weekends on a college campus should be legendary, they should be crazy, they shouldn’t be so unbelievably boring that students would rather go back home and hang with their parents than stay on campus and party. Where is the fun at MSU?

6. Dry Campus: I know that you don’t have to drink in order to have fun, but it certainly helps the process. MSU not allowing alcohol on campus is one of the reasons why people would rather leave than spend their time having fun at MSU. Why not have a campus bar with all of the normal state regulations? Not only could the university clean up on the profits and create more student jobs, but they could also lower the chances of student drinking and driving.

7. Neglected Buildings: Talk about misused construction. You ever been in the Student Center while it rains? There may as well not even be a ceiling with all of the leaks. On top of that, Cafis, Blanton, and Bohn are all in dire need of renovations. However, I think we might have to wait until pieces of the buildings actually start falling off before anything is done about it.

8. It’s Cold: Not that winter is great anywhere else, but whatever genius decided to build the campus on a mountain really screwed us for about four months in the two semesters. When it snows, it really piles up here at MSU, and the cold air drills itself seemingly down to the bone. Add in the fact that we have to be berating on Armageddon for them to cancel classes and this problem has become a serious nuisance.

9. Student Involvement: With all of the programing that the university and the SGA provides for the campus, there isn’t enough consistent turnout. Things like barbeques and the trivia contest draw a huge crowd, but sporting events and important meetings don’t generate much student interest. On top of that, many campus organizations are dying out or have died out due to a lack of student involvement.

10. The Police: Sure, they’re good at traffic stops and breaking up our fun at dorm parties, but do they actually make you feel safer? Absolutely not. Police efforts are centered in the wrong areas. Instead of being a saving grace and a protective shield for students, they’ve become nuisances and unnecessary.

Working for Mark Haefeli Productions has been a wonderful experience; this company is located in the heart of Tribeca NYC, but that’s so cool about working for Mark Haefeli Productions?

Well, Mark Haefeli is a privately owned production company that produces documentaries as well as other media inquiries. Mark Haefeli has produced Emmy winning award productions such as Paul McCartney’s Red Square and Rock in the US.

I am currently working on Paul McCartney’s new DVD documentary package about his U.S. tour last year. This is an amazing experience for me as a broadcasting major, because this internship is allowing me the privilege of handling the task of dealing with a project of such importance. I would never think in a million years that I would be helping to produce a documentary about Sir Paul McCartney. I haven’t met him yet, but I hope to meet him some day. Interning at a small production company has taught me a lot about how is like to deal with important productions.

I also learned about the artist himself, about who Paul McCartney is as the musician and as a person.

I learned to never underestimate the potential of small companies, because small companies can make wonders happen.

I got this internship on my own, however the Co-op center can also help you look for an internship. I am graduating this May, and I regret the fact that I did not do one or two more internships. I recommend that students do an internship, not only because it looks good in your resume, but because it gives the student the privilege to understand and work in a professional environment, as well as it allows them to strengthen their technical and interpersonal skills.
FACULTY, STUDENTS, ADMINISTRATORS

The Center for Non-Violence and Prevention Programs is looking for volunteers (students, faculty, administrators) who want to make a change in our community by joining the SART program (Sexual Assault Response Team) as rape care advocates specifically for our community at MSU.

- Volunteers will be trained and certified through a 40 hour program implemented by the Family Service League, Inc.
- Interviews for volunteers will begin in late April through May.
- The 40 hour certification program will begin the first week of September 2006.

Applications will be available at the Center for Non-Violence and Prevention Programs located on the second floor of the Student Center. For more information please contact Jhon Velasco at 973.655.7033 or at velascoj@mail.montclair.edu
MONTCLAIR STATE UNIVERSITY

SUMMER SESSIONS 2006

Schedule of Courses is on the Web
www.montclair.edu/summer

Priority Web Registration for MSU Students* April 10 - 20

Additional Web Registration for All Eligible Students*
April 21 through the first day of the course

Summer Sessions Office
College Hall, Room 215
Voice: 973-655-4352
Fax: 973-655-7851
E-Mail: summer@montclair.edu

* The University reserves the right to modify its calendar and availability of the web registration system without prior notice.

Montclair State University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Institution
Friends with Money explores the darker undertow that exists within any group of friends. Think of it as the thinking man’s alternative to co-star Aniston’s hit NBC sitcom about twentysomething compadres.

After all the witty banter in a restaurant, there comes the uncomfortable moment where the check must be split to suit everyone’s financial needs. At weddings and anniversaries, friends gather to celebrate the life of a friend abroad, Christine draws attention to the possible homosexuality of Jane’s beau. (Francis McDormand), a head fashion designer growing disenchanted with the nature of friendship, but never meets the high standard expected for such in-depth material. “Friends with Money is a good movie that makes some interesting observations about the nature of friendship, but never meets the high standard expected for such in-depth material.”

Friends Serves Aniston Well Once Again In New Comedy

Peter Schaus
Arts & Entertainment Editor

Friends with Money

*Dir: Nancy Taftner
Starring Jennifer Aniston and Catherine Keener*

Friends with Money explores the darker undertow that exists within any group of friends. Think of it as the thinking man’s alternative to co-star Aniston’s hit NBC sitcom about twentysomething compadres.

After all the witty banter in a restaurant, there comes the uncomfortable moment where the check must be split to suit everyone’s financial needs. At weddings and anniversaries, friends gather to celebrate the life choices of those closest to them, whether or not you think it’s in their best interest.

The film looks at some of the unspoken tension that festers in the friendship between three married, upper class suburban queens of Southern California.

There’s Penny (Cusack) a well-to-do society matron who buys $80 shoes for her toddler, Christine (Keener), an accomplished screenwriter engaged in a tumultuous relationship with her co-writer husband, and Jane (Francis McDormand), a head fashion designer growing disenchanted with the privileges of success and her ambiguously gay husband.

The fourth member of their vicious circle is Olivia (Aniston), a recently unemployed, uninterested single pothead who has been cleaning houses to pay the rent. Friends with Money is at its best when it explores the possible competition that can unconsciously exist between long term confidantes. To take the focus off her own crumbling marriage, Christine draws attention to the possible homosexuality of Jane’s beau. (Francis McDormand), a head fashion designer growing disenchanted with the nature of friendship, but never meets the high standard expected for such in-depth material.

Friends with Money is a good movie that makes some interesting observations about the nature of friendship, but never meets the high standard expected for such in-depth material.

Friends Serves Aniston Well Once Again In New Comedy

Peter Schaus
Arts & Entertainment Editor

Friends with Money

*Dir: Nancy Taftner
Starring Jennifer Aniston and Catherine Keener*

Friends with Money explores the darker undertow that exists within any group of friends. Think of it as the thinking man’s alternative to co-star Aniston’s hit NBC sitcom about twentysomething compadres.

After all the witty banter in a restaurant, there comes the uncomfortable moment where the check must be split to suit everyone’s financial needs. At weddings and anniversaries, friends gather to celebrate the life choices of those closest to them, whether or not you think it’s in their best interest.

The film looks at some of the unspoken tension that festers in the friendship between three married, upper class suburban queens of Southern California.

There’s Penny (Cusack) a well-to-do society matron who buys $80 shoes for her toddler, Christine (Keener), an accomplished screenwriter engaged in a tumultuous relationship with her co-writer husband, and Jane (Francis McDormand), a head fashion designer growing disenchanted with the privileges of success and her ambiguously gay husband.

The fourth member of their vicious circle is Olivia (Aniston), a recently unemployed, uninterested single pothead who has been cleaning houses to pay the rent. Friends with Money is at its best when it explores the possible competition that can unconsciously exist between long term confidantes. To take the focus off her own crumbling marriage, Christine draws attention to the possible homosexuality of Jane’s beau. (Francis McDormand), a head fashion designer growing disenchanted with the nature of friendship, but never meets the high standard expected for such in-depth material.

Friends with Money is a good movie that makes some interesting observations about the nature of friendship, but never meets the high standard expected for such in-depth material.
This year will see a number of new releases in the industrial-electro genre, but few have been anticipated as much as the full-length debut release from Life Cried.

Life Cried first emerged in the industrial scene about seven years ago. Since then, they have been able to build up a name for themselves through their live performances and a few demo tracks that became dance floor hits in goth/industrial clubs.

They were also featured on a couple of big name compilation CDs and did some skillful remix work for bands such as Feindflug and Terrorfakt.

Still, fans of Life Cried's work would have to wait a bit longer for a full-length album. Finally, the waiting is over, and Drawn and Quartered was worth the wait.

The ten track CD begins with a re-worked version of "Stale," one of the demo tracks that helped create a buzz about Life Cried. While the core of the song is the same, this version has more energy and focus.

"Stale" is a heavy electro-industrial track, with hard, driving beats and distorted vocals.

But what sets it apart, as with most of the tracks on Drawn and Quartered, are the melodies.

One of the places that I think a lot of hard electro-industrial bands are lacking is that ability to write catchy melodies that get stuck in your head.

The vocal style of the genre, with the distortion, leaves little room for vocals that keep listeners singing along. So there is more of a need to hook the listener with the music itself.

That's exactly what Life Cried does. And most of the melodies on this CD could easily get stuck in your head all day, and will have you humming under your breath while you're sitting at work or school.

"Stale" is a great choice for the opening track, as it sets the tone for what's to come. The rest of the CD is a mixture of songs that will keep listeners moving their feet while they're on the dance floor and tapping their feet when they're off it.

On tracks like "Darkest Eyes" and "Living Hell," you can feel a mixture of influences that combine elements of both old and new industrial.

Other tracks, such as "Rage (Dying Existence)" and "As We Decay," are hard, stomp-inducing songs that are already on their way to becoming dance floor mainstays.

Overall, Life Cried's debut release exceeds any expectations I could have had. Drawn and Quartered is an impressive first offering that offers a fresh perspective to a genre that is too often laden with copycats.

This is easily one of the best electro-industrial releases I've come across in some time.
Silent Night, Deadly Night
Game Adaptation Opens To Mixed Response

Jesse Jenkins
Assistant Arts & Entertainment Editor

As fans of the Silent Hill series may have predicted for the film, the success of Silent Hill has always been, and always will be, in the creepy exterior and visuals of the games. Interesting in its overall style, Silent Hill is a horror/thriller, directed by Gans, that is taken from a number of Playstation games.

The story is about a mother who takes her daughter to a deserted ghost town in order to silence her psychological torment. When the mother (Mitchell) wakes from a crash in the ash covered Silent Hill, she realizes that she is trapped in the town without her daughter. The town itself seems trapped in time and haunted by evils that will not let the townspeople leave their past. The town is filled with all types of demonic beings with various deformities; many of the monsters lurking in the dark are victims of a fire that still burns under the town's surface.

Perhaps the greatest asset to the film is its visual style. Silent Hill is very impressive in this sense. The town is filmed in a snowy-white haze and the atmosphere of the deserted shops and streets is certainly well done. The film, much like the games, lives for creating striking scenes and graphic imagery. Silent Hill sprinkles great moments of visual horror to make up for what it lacks in story.

The film's demons are certainly worth noting. The mannequins act as the town's mass population of tortured souls. The figurehead of most of the evil seems to be Pyramid Head (Tanya Allen), from Silent Hill II, who is part in one of the most gruesome scenes of the film.

The film stays true to the video game's commitment to music and sound. Silent Hill very blatantly utilizes sound to add to the overall horror of the film. The amplification or reduction of noises is a paramount trademark of Silent Hill. Static, from police radio and other ambient sounds are added and repetitiously play to reflect the intense visuals put across screen.

The most striking use of sound is at moments when an ear-piercing siren rings out over the town, signifying the town's descent into complete darkness (a scene which recurs at several points throughout the film).

The films acting, however, is not worth paying attention to. That is, unless audiences wish to poke fun at some of the soap opera style acting and dialogue. The daughter, Sharon (Jodelle Ferland), sets the tone and level of acting that audiences should expect and accept early on.

The story, like the Silent Hill games has many holes. The problem is inherent since the premise of the story plots in the games are psychological and dream based. Film continuity is secondary in Silent Hill and audiences may often have those "how did they end up there?" type questions. The film's ending is very inconclusive and a good example of this. Audiences may expect more after sitting through two hours of Silent Hill's stunning footage.

Overall, expectations can't be too high for the film outside what Gans puts on screen in terms of visual and auditory effects. Fans of the games will probably feel better knowing that old music and characters have been brought back to compliment the town. Still, audiences that have never picked up a remote control in their lives can appreciate the fact that Silent Hill is a good contemporary horror film, even if it is, just a contemporary horror film

The Department of Transportation Services is recruiting student drivers for the student shuttle bus program. You do not need to know how to drive a bus now; they will provide training and cover all associated costs in becoming licensed. Student drivers are needed now through the summer and for the next Academic Year.

Get an on campus job that has great pay with flexible schedules. You will learn a valuable new skill. You will just need to be at least 21 years of age and have a valid New Jersey driver’s license to qualify. Contact Phyllis Brooks at Transportation & Parking Services: 973-655-3448 today for an employment application.
Never Accept Candy from Strangers
Controversial New Thriller Tackles Provocative Subject Matter

Ben Faresich
Staff Writer

Hard Candy
Starring Patrick Wilson and Ellen Page

If you’ve heard anything about Hard Candy, it very likely has something to do with the controversy that the film has drummed up over the past few months. It does deal with the taboo subject of pedophilia, specifically relating to internet stalkers, but there is more to this movie than just in your face shock value.

Hard Candy is about Hayley Stark (Ellen Page), a 14-year-old girl, who is smarter than the average internet chat room dweller. We meet Hayley in the middle of an internet conversation with Jeff Kohlver (Patrick Wilson). Jeff is a 32-year-old photographer and, right from the start, something seems unwholesome about his interest in talking to Hayley. It is apparent that this is not their first time chatting online, and the two decide to meet in person to get to know each other better. Upon meeting Jeff, Hayley seems a mixture of coy nervousness and maturity beyond her years, but it definitely seems like she might be in over her head. However, after Jeff brings her back to his apartment, it seems as if it might actually be Jeff who has no idea what’s in store for him.

I haven’t seen much of Patrick Wilson since his role as Raoul in Joel Schumacher’s Phantom of the Opera. I really wasn’t too impressed with him in Phantom, but he does a good job here. He makes Jeff the attractive, approachable, charming guy that he should be. In fact, if Hayley was 24 instead of 14, we’d probably be rooting for Jeff to get the girl, but of course, that’s not the case. Jeff’s a bad boy, and we want to see him punished.

Ellen Page is adequate as Hayley. There were times when she really impressed me and others where I thought her performance was a little lacking. I couldn’t help feeling as if sometimes she was trying to imitate other actors that she’s seen in similar roles, rather than creating her own persona.

That’s not entirely Page’s fault. Her character isn’t incredibly deep. Hayley is kind of an amalgam of a number of other similar characters, the big twist here being her age. Still, the role of Hayley Stark is one that, in the wrong hands, could have made the movie almost comical. While I think she may stumble here and there, Page manages to pull it off.

As for director, David Slade, this is his first feature film, and it’s an impressive start. Slade’s directorial roots lie in music videos, which seem to be becoming the proving ground for a number of talented, and creative, young directors such as Michel Gondry and Spike Jonze. Hard Candy seems like it could be the piece that graduates Slade to the next level. The way he directed the camera movement and the action adds an additional level of uneasiness when watching the film.

As it’s not off-putting enough seeing Jeff try to woo Hayley and Hayley try to impress Jeff, the proximity of the camera makes us feel even more uncomfortable. There are a lot of close-ups and even extreme close-ups which create a similar feeling to that of a stranger infiltrating your personal space. We also see a lot of close-up smiles that seem charming and innocent, but as the character’s teeth are bared, seem to also imply a predatory undertone. And of course, one of the movie’s themes is that one should never assume to know someone else based on appearance or trivialities. One of the characters even comments at one point that “people’s faces lie.”

Hard Candy is certainly one of those films where not everything is quite as it seems. This movie is full of twists and turns, and it doesn’t waste any time throwing them out at you. That makes it a little bit difficult to say much about it without giving too much away. It’s one of those movies that are worth going to see knowing only a little bit about it.

The movie may not be perfect, and there may even be one or two scenes or lines that have viewers rolling their eyes. But this is a difficult story to adapt to the screen, and Slade manages a very good job of it. Hard Candy manages to make you feel uncomfortable, yet captivated enough so that you can’t look away. That’s precisely what this kind of movie should do.
A special ultraviolet camera makes it possible to see the underlying skin damage done by the sun. And since 1 in 5 Americans will develop skin cancer in their lifetime, what better reason to always use sunscreen, wear protective clothing and use common sense.

American Academy of Dermatology

888.462.DERM  |  www.aad.org

---

Don't guess whether you qualify for the EITC. Know.

There's a lot to know about qualifying for the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC). You need to work and earn less than $1692. If you have children, they must meet three qualifying tests. And that's just to name a few. But the most important thing to know is you can get help figuring it out. Visit us on the web, call 1-800-TAX-1040 or ask your tax preparer. When it comes to getting help claiming everything you honestly deserve, consider it done.
Get in shape for summer!

5K Walk/Run

for

Healthy Campus 2010

Join Diva Fitness &
University Health & Counseling Services
Promote healthy living at MSU!
Prizes! Refreshments!
All invited!

Date: Sunday, April 30th, 2006
Time: Registration - 9:30 am
Walk/Run begins at 10 am

Place: Student Center Quad (by the stairs)

Questions? Email LatinoL1@montclair.edu

RAIN OR SHINE!
By Hook Or By Crook

DESPERATE ANGELO

Angelo, Angelo, Angelo, Angelo

Vote 4 Angelo

Lilia, Lilia, Lilia, Lilia

Vote 4 Lilia

"Lilia undeniably utilized his position to selfishly gain name-recognition during election time."

If Angelo's goal with the mass e-mail was truly higher turnout as he claims, a generic e-mail should have been sent from an independent party such as a Vice President of the university or a blind "SGA account." However, this was not the goal. By sending an e-mail with his name pasted on the bottom, Lilia undeniably utilized his position to selfishly gain name-recognition during election time.

The oft-dormant legislature should wake up for this issue; the result of SGA legislative or executive work is campaigning. Judicial branch members should step in to overturn and impending impeachment proceedings.

If it was a fair race, the results wouldn't be so painful to watch. Yesterday afternoon, the Student Government Association election results were to be announced and the winners to be celebrated. However, celebration was preceded by the rightful concerns of challengers. The improper actions of the current president and presidential candidate Angelo Lilia prompted hearings for an election overturning and impending impeachment proceedings.

Lilia clearly interfered with the election process at least thrice by abusing his executive position, when sending out mass emails using the 'allstudents' e-mail list. This is a tool of the sitting president, one that should not be utilized during election time for questionable tasks. Lilia barely bothered to e-mail students at all for a campaign. The improper actions of the current president and presidential candidate Angelo Lilia prompted hearings for an election overturning and impending impeachment proceedings.

If interested, email: msuopinion@gmail.com
More now than ever, I have come to realize that no one cares whether or not I am outraged or offended. Day after day, as I walk through my life, I am regularly outraged, appalled and disgusted. But at the end of the day, not you, not my boss, not my classmates, no one cares. And why should you care? My outrage is not your problem ... Or is it?

During the fall semester, I was enrolled in a public speaking class, not the introductory course every one has to take, but a slightly more advanced one. I was reminded the hard way of the lesson every freshman with an opinion learns during their first semester: one must not trust most professors when they say encourage students to disagree and debate issues with them.

I was reminded of this harsh lesson toward the beginning of the semester when I delivered a persuasive speech. I was attempting to persuade my audience to vote for the Democratic Party in the 2005 Gubernatorial election. Innocent enough one would think, but unbeknownst to me, the professor turned my informative speech late in the semester. As I stood in front of the class, the professor said aloud, “Here comes Chris the liberal who will tell us why we should all love each other.”

The second incident occurred when I wrote and submitted the required 10-page research paper. The paper, whose topic was “barriers to communication,” as mandated by the professor, focused on the religious right and how their fanatical religious views represent a barrier to communication. The professor, who had defended the religious right throughout the semester, told me that my paper had a faulty premise and gave me a C-. I am outraged at this blatant display of bias and discrimination.

For the questions that are now rising in the thoughtful reader’s head, I spoke with the professor one-on-one in a non-confrontational manner. I submitted a complaint to the department chair and I will pursue this all the way up to Susan Cole’s office if need be. But is that really the point? Of course it isn’t. The point is that this sort of discrimination takes place every semester on college campuses all over the country and something ought to be done about it.

We have all heard the remonstrances of the conservative propaganda machine; those that would have us believe that liberal professors are trying to indoctrinate our young men and women into their anti-American, Godless, pro-choice value system. However, there is an erroneous notion that liberal professors are the primary perpetrators of political views. However, there is an erroneous notion that liberal professors are the primary perpetrators of bias and discrimination.

I have been a student at MSU for almost four years and I do admit that liberal, as well as conservative professors use the classroom as platforms for espousing their political views. However, there is an erroneous notion that liberal professors are the primary perpetrators of bias and discrimination. In fact, the degree of political bias within the academic community is at least evenly distributed between the ends of the political spectrum, and in my experience more skewed to the right.

I suspect that ultra-conservative professors feel justified for their obvious biases because they are valiantly battling what they perceive to be an inherent liberal bias on college campuses and in the media. For them, their bias is simply leveling the playing field, allowing them to go to war with the liberal menace on an equal footing. This way of thinking of course reflects the attitude behind all conservative movements. Conservatives always claim to be fighting for the preservation of “American values,” but in the end, are they really? Aren’t they really fighting against change, the sort of progressive change that makes America a great nation? It was the conservatives that opposed the freeing of the slaves, the end of segregation, women’s suffrage, the list could go on ad infinitum.

I am not a liberal who is so biased that he cannot be objective on the debate discussed above. I am, in fact, a Democrat, but I am not a liberal. The modern conservative movement has done a fantastic job of lumping everyone who doesn’t conform to its way of thinking together as an anti-American liberal. This way of thinking is not true. In fact, I am simply an outraged college student who finds it unconscionable that academic institutions claim to promote tolerance and debate on one hand and allow students whose opinions differ from those of their professors to be discriminated against on the other.

Perhaps there are those students out there who do not believe that this sort of discrimination exists or that I am in some way exaggerating a tolerable situation. To them I respond with the quote of very wise man, “if you are not outraged, you are not paying attention.”

Chris Drif, a Political Science major, is in his first year as a columnist for The Montclarion.
Low Grades For Student Government

Each year, the Editor-In-Chief issues a final grade on the successes and failures of the current Student Government Association. This year's SGA has had more troubles than in recent years. Last year, I gave President Jacob Hudnut four out of five stars. This year, the current administration is worth a grade of two and a half out of five stars. The grade that President Angelo Lilia receives is mostly because he was in the office, not because he did anything particularly well. When he did act, it was late and with half measures.

Lilia ran on the platform that his opponent, Gutilla, didn't perform his duties as President Pro Tempore. How could Lilia expect Gutilla to perform his duties when he deliberately sabotaged Gutilla's efforts? Lilia blocked the President Pro Tempore from having even minimal access to the Student Government Office, even though he received such access when he served as PPT. Lilia has been indecisive and the cost of his "on-the-job training" was the student body. Lilia wasted countless months by not firing the bookkeeper who wasn't doing her job, and then wasted more months by not hiring a suitable replacement in a timely manner. Winter break would have been an excellent opportunity to give a lengthy interview and hire a suitable successor. Instead, he waited another month before beginning interviews. I will give him this much: he in the luring of his employee's health insurance, he was busy writing the now infamous "low bid." This bill addressed what Lilia considered to be a dire milk shortage effecting Montclair State University. The student legislature, in its infinite wisdom, voted in favor of purchasing a cow to end the shortage.

Current Vice-President Amy Chicken receives five stars for her exceptional work ethic and endless dedication to duty. Kay receives five stars for his conceptual work ethic and endless dedication to duty. Kayi came into a bad situation that got worse and instead of complaining, he sorted through all his duties and took on the job of bookkeeper. As a senior with a double major, Kay was able to continue focusing on his studies and his duties, fulfilling both admirably. One could only wish that he had another year so that we could give him the opportunity to run and win the position of SGA President to fix the inadequacies of the current holder.

Stephanie Suttleberger is one of the best secretaries the SGA has been fortunate enough to have. Suttleberger is another shining star in an otherwise tarnished administration. She receives five stars for her dedication to her position and her attempts to improve the image of the administration. She worked hard to promote the "Meet The Dean" series and should be recognized for that effort. The students are unfortunate to have her graduating. Our only hope is that her successor can fill the big shoes that she has left.

The Legislature has had a mixed year.

Reflecting On The First Year At Montclair State University, from Parking To Personnel

I have made it through my first year at Montclair State University and passed every one of my classes. Throughout the majority of the year, I have written for the Opinion section of The Montclarion about parking, food and services offered to students at MSU. My overall experience during my two semesters has been a pleasant one and I look forward to coming back next year.

Entering college for the first time is scary, not knowing what to expect from classes or the social scene is quite intimidating. As a commuter, I expected it to hard to be in fin and make friends. However, I arrived to find that most of the campus community was in the same situation. I enjoyed my classes and have not had a problem thus far, but I have made two friends that I have kept in touch with. I am happy with the people I have met. The horror stories I have heard before attending MSU was of the hard parking situation. A lot of students and faculty, but only a few places to park! Despite the lack of spaces in the lots and the elimination of spots because of the new University Hall, I have yet to have a problem. Parking garages have been a positive experience for me, and a usually find a spot fairly close. The transit garage is a short and enjoyable walk on nice days and when the buses are slow or too full. It is easy to park there, aside from the slight dinniness you may feel driving around in circles while searching for a spot. Cars are safe, covered from the weather and protected from the outside. The only problem I have had is the speed that a few of the Tri-County Line workers drive at. You think that students drive fast? I have barely escaped accidents while I was straightening out.

Shuttle buses have not been too bad. I do miss the two transit drivers that were always cheerful and the fact that you drive closer to the garage! I am not complaining out of laziness, but it was more convenient for everyone (especially in bad weather) when you could receive four out of five stars for your excellent work, even while having to be associated with the mismanagement of Lilia. Chicken performed her duties admirably. Even in the face of disrespectful comments by the SGAs Webmaster, Ralph Mallena.

Chicken was able to regain order and ensure that the meeting ran productively. Steven Patelis is a dedicated member of the branch of the SGA. With his enthusiasm for the statistics of the SGA, he has left. She worked hard to promote the "Meet The Dean" series and should be recognized for that effort. The students are unfortunate to have her graduating. Our only hope is that her successor can fill the big shoes that she has left.

The Legislature has had a mixed year.
Drunken Hazards
Binge Drinking Can Be A Dangerous Habit

It is no secret that college students drink alcohol, but exactly how much is too much? Many students are getting drunk to the point where it becomes dangerous; it is becoming standard behavior for these young people to get so intoxicated that they are vomiting or having blackouts. What is particularly troubling is that it seems like students don't feel that there is anything wrong with this. If this type of behavior is repetitive, it is a huge problem.

Most students who I know brag about how drunk they were the night before and talk about the anticipation for the next night of chaos. I don't have a problem with college students drinking; I would be a hypocrite if I did. What I see a problem with is continuously over drinking to the point where it becomes hazardous and destructive to one's self.

Over the last 20 years, alcohol related deaths have risen steadily to an all time high in 2005. The National Council on Alcohol and Drug Dependency estimates that 105,000 Americans die annually because of alcohol. Researchers also report that among college students aged 18-24, fatal injuries resulting from alcohol has increased from 1,500 deaths in 1998 to 1,700 deaths in 2001. Students are getting dangerously drunk on a weekly basis. Binge drinking is becoming normal for college-aged people. But why are students drinking more than ever before?

College students have a lot of pressure to deal with. Between pulling all-nighters, studying for exams and balancing work and school, students are apt to feel overwhelmed. They may use drinking in excess as a way to alleviate the stress. Another reason is peer pressure. The game of "who can drink the most," has always been popular among college mates, but now it seems that females are playing along too.

According to Dr. Ronald B. Keys, the number of females who binge drink is increasing. He states that girls may be doing this in order to fit in and be looked upon as an equal by their male peers. Girls are trying to keep up with the guys when, in biological terms, men can handle more alcohol.

Television and the media have influenced the way in which we view alcohol consumption. Television shows like The Real World often show the roommates drinking too much alcohol and often passing out in their beds or getting in trouble with the law due to their extreme intoxication. This portrayal of alcohol consumption in the media is becoming more and more standard.

It is not just television shows that depict this behavior. Young actresses and socialites are photographed left and right in gossip magazines stumbling out of a club and ready to fall over. This overexposure can influence how we view and partake in drinking.

The hazards of drinking large amounts of alcohol not only affect our bodies, but our minds, behaviors and reputations as well. When someone gets experimentally intoxicated regularly, they start to lose credibility and respect. There may also be an underlying problem that the individual is trying to overcome. Having a few drinks is fine, but there is a fine line between having fun and crossing the line.

Rachel Britten, a Communication Studies major, is in her first year as a columnist for The Montclarion.
I must say that I never thought this day would come. I’m finally going to graduate from Montclair State University. For seven years, I waited with financial aid problems, academic difficulties, and my youthful immaturity, and at long last my efforts and perseverance will be rewarded with a diploma.

I remember my first years on this campus quite clearly. The Student Computer Lab was an arcade, there were still parking problems, the Village apartments hadn’t yet been created, and you could still legally drink alcohol on Clive Road. Yes, I’ve been here for quite some time, but during my stay I’ve learned quite a number of lessons.

The first lesson that I have to pass on to you is to make sure you get involved with something on this campus early in your college career. When I say get involved in something, I don’t mean that it was the best decision I’ve made in my life or really what I was even good at. All I can say is that it was a large contribution to your social life. By getting involved in campus, you can actually begin to improve small things about this campus and get more from your education.

My first four years at MSU, I felt like a nobody, and as such, my grades were terrible. This was partly due to the fact that there weren’t five other people in my class, I was always a light-hearted backup of a beer pong player, and not exactly a great student.

On one day I found myself sitting outside of Richardson Hall with no place to go and a three-hour break before my next class. For no real reason at all, I just decided to walk over to The Montclarion office, and see if I could become a sports writer. I knew I loved sports, and figured that I could try something new. I can honestly say that I have always been among the most helpful and cooperative. I don’t know how you get along with many of the other staff that I began with. At times, you are underappreciated and your duties are taken for granted. It says a lot about you as a person that you continue to do this, even through all of the times people disappointed you or hurt you. I know that you will be successful in whatever you choose to pursue because the only way you know how to work is hard.

Mike Johnson: Remember that the first year is just about learning what to do. The second year you can just do it. If you choose to continue on and try and be a sports writer, you’re sure you’ll make many mistakes along the way. Thanks for coming on the staff this year, we would have been screwed and incomplete without you.

Dave Kois: It’s only a shame that our friendship could end up being so short-lived. Well, being that I’ve never been anywhere near Middletown, NJ, and you are graduating too, there is a possibility that this could be good for good. I hope that it’s not the case, but if it is, just know that it’s nice to see that some people still value integrity. I hope that you never lose that trait. I have no doubt that you will do fine wherever life takes you.

If I’ve forgotten you, then I’m sorry, with just isn’t enough time or paper to say goodbye to everyone. In my final message to this university, I would just like to say to those students who complain that there isn’t anything to do on campus that not everything in life will fall in your lap. In fact, it is those things that we must search for that end up being the most fulfilling.

The Montclarion. Your predecessor will have large shoes to fill. I only hope that this is a goodbye just in print, but not in reality.

Karen Frankfort: Well, I know where you live, so I know this isn’t really goodbye. I just think it’s so funny how you came in The Montclarion just as a groupie, and now you are going to be the next Managing Editor. I’m glad that you’ve finally begun to get what you’ve always wanted as a member of The Montclarion, and I can’t wait for another summer of “losing that loving feeling.”

Kevin: I know that you had questions about me being on this staff when I first started in 2003. I’m glad to see that I’ve been able to change your mind over the years, and I’m also glad to see that you are again feeling healthy. Congrats on the record year.

Dominique Wilson: I think that you are the only remaining member from the original staff that I began with. At times, you are underappreciated and your duties are taken for granted. It says a lot about you as a person that you continue to do this, even through all of the times people disappointed you or hurt you. I know that you will be successful in whatever you choose to pursue because the only way you know how to work is hard.

Lesley: I am so lucky that the first game I covered was a soccer game where you were coaching. Of all the coaches I’ve interviewed since I’ve been here, you have always been among the most helpful and cooperative. I don’t know how you get along with many of the other members of the athletic department because you are man of much higher class than many of your colleagues. I wish you luck in the future, and I’ll be rooting for that National Championship.

Head Women’s Basketball Coach Beth O’Boyle: I remember the first time we ever spoke, you were worried that The Sports Guy was going to do a number on your team. Well, I assure you that he wouldn’t have had so much to say. You are an excellent coach and a person of exceptional integrity. I know that there is much success in the women’s basketball team’s future here, and it is mainly due to your commitment to excellence.

Michael McPhie: It’s a shame that we were friends for only the final two years of our college careers. The Montclarion would not have been the same without you here to lay around and “supervise” us. You’ve been an excellent Editor-in-Chief, especially in your role in improving the appearance of the office, increasing the paper’s revenue, and adding to the general image of The Montclarion. Your predecessor will have large shoes to fill. I only hope that this is a goodbye just in print, but not in reality.

EMILIO GIRON
Year: Junior
Major: English
“Honestly, I didn’t do anything but hope I hoped I would. It’s okay though. You live and you learn. Take one of a kind, I feel the world can be mine.”

IVETTZ RIOS
Year: Junior
Major: Sociology
“As a junior, things are more serious and my grades are getting better.”

SHARMINE MELLA
Year: Junior
Major: Psychology
“[I] do not know exactly how I’m going to do this, but hopefully I won’t have anything lower than a C. I want my GPA to go up.”

DOUGLAS BLAKE
Year: Sophomore
Major: Business Management
“I am doing well this semester. Mostly As and Bs. Hopefully the finals aren’t too hard.”

VLADIMIR BONHOMME
Year: Sophomore
Major: Biology
“My grades are great and finals should be easy.”

ERICA WILSON
Year: Junior
Major: Psychology
“My academics seem to improve the closer the beginning. The workload is very intense and also seems to experience mental stress more so than the beginning. This is a time for me to be focused so my academics will be satisfactory.”

“Make sure you get involved with something on this campus early in your college career.”

JOSE ORTIZ
Managing Editor

New Jersey Smokers Get Snuffed Out

Emile Ruggier, The Montclarion

EMILIO GIRON
Year: Junior
Major: English
“Honestly, I didn’t do anything but hope I hoped I would. It’s okay though. You live and you learn. Take one of a kind, I feel the world can be mine.”

IVETTZ RIOS
Year: Junior
Major: Sociology
“As a junior, things are more serious and my grades are getting better.”

SHARMINE MELLA
Year: Junior
Major: Psychology
“[I] do not know exactly how I’m going to do this, but hopefully I won’t have anything lower than a C. I want my GPA to go up.”

DOUGLAS BLAKE
Year: Sophomore
Major: Business Management
“I am doing well this semester. Mostly As and Bs. Hopefully the finals aren’t too hard.”

VLADIMIR BONHOMME
Year: Sophomore
Major: Biology
“My grades are great and finals should be easy.”

ERICA WILSON
Year: Junior
Major: Psychology
“My academics seem to improve the closer the beginning. The workload is very intense and also seems to experience mental stress more so than the beginning. This is a time for me to be focused so my academics will be satisfactory.”

“Make sure you get involved with something on this campus early in your college career.”

JOSE ORTIZ
Managing Editor

New Jersey Smokers Get Snuffed Out

Emile Ruggier, The Montclarion

EMILIO GIRON
Year: Junior
Major: English
“Honestly, I didn’t do anything but hope I hoped I would. It’s okay though. You live and you learn. Take one of a kind, I feel the world can be mine.”

IVETTZ RIOS
Year: Junior
Major: Sociology
“As a junior, things are more serious and my grades are getting better.”

SHARMINE MELLA
Year: Junior
Major: Psychology
“[I] do not know exactly how I’m going to do this, but hopefully I won’t have anything lower than a C. I want my GPA to go up.”

DOUGLAS BLAKE
Year: Sophomore
Major: Business Management
“I am doing well this semester. Mostly As and Bs. Hopefully the finals aren’t too hard.”

VLADIMIR BONHOMME
Year: Sophomore
Major: Biology
“My grades are great and finals should be easy.”

ERICA WILSON
Year: Junior
Major: Psychology
“My academics seem to improve the closer the beginning. The workload is very intense and also seems to experience mental stress more so than the beginning. This is a time for me to be focused so my academics will be satisfactory.”

“Make sure you get involved with something on this campus early in your college career.”

JOSE ORTIZ
Managing Editor

New Jersey Smokers Get Snuffed Out

Emile Ruggier, The Montclarion
Classifieds

The Montclarion
April 27, 2006

---

Child Care Wanted

- Montclair family with 3 children looking for babysitter/experienced driver to help after school. Call Sarah at (973) 783-4675.
- Shadow needed to assist 6 year old, high functioning, verbally autistic boy at summer camp, located in Wyckoff, N.J. Last two weeks in August. Experience with autism strongly preferred. Excellent opportunity for the right candidate. Call Sue 0 (201) 818-5587.
- Part-time, energetic and caring nanny wanted to care for our two year old son and newborn baby in Upper Montclair. Approximately 30 hours. Strong references required. We offer a competitive salary. Call Kathy (862) 202-6369.

---

Help Wanted

- Waiters/Waitresses: hired for weekend catering work in West Orange. Will train, pay, at $12 per hour. Can make up to $400 on weekends, call (973) 731-7900.
- Local entertainment company looking for energetic, motivated individuals to earn unbelievable money plus tips as a children’s performer. No experience necessary, we will train you. Must be available weekdays, have car and Internet access. For more information call Bob at (973) 890-4167.
- Lovely couple seeking egg donor to help them realize their dream. Healthy 20 - 25 Caucasian without any major family health problems. Confidential, generous compensation. (908) 227-8794 ghr11339@optonline.net.

---

Summer of your Life!

CAMP WAYNE FOR GIRLS

Children’s sleep-away camp, Northeast Pennsylvania (6/17-8/13/06) If you love children and want a caring, fun environment we need Counselors and Program Directors for: Tennis, Gymnastics Swimming, Jewelry, Painting & Drawing, Dance and Cheerleading, Ceramics, Sculpture, Aerobics, and Nature. Other staff: Videographer, CDL Driver (21+), Nurses (RN’s and Nursing Students). Select The Camp That Selects The Best Staff! For more information call 1-800-279-3019 or apply on-line at www.campwaynegirls.com

---

Trade Show Rep.

Duos and Trios, a small greeting card company, is looking for an individual to attend an upcoming trade show in New York. The show dates are May 21, 22 and 23. The candidate will attend the booth, greet clients and discuss products.

Requirements: Candidate must have some sales experience. (Retail sales a plus). Trade show experience a plus. Must be personable and organized.

Please fax resume to 973-771-9169.

---

Positions Available Immediately for Mad Scientists.

- Mail Science of North Central New Jersey is currently looking for students to work 1-4 hours a week teaching science classes to kids. Excellent pay—including training!

Do You:
- Love working with children!
- Have full-time access to a car?
- Have an outgoing personality?

If you answered yes to these questions, give us a call at (973) 244-1880 and set up an interview.

---

Health Club Upper Montclair.

Front Desk/Floor Help. Days, Nights + Weekends. (Part Time) Fax Resume with times and days available. 973-529-1880. Attn: Tom

---

Five or more sunburns double your risk of developing skin cancer.

Protect your skin. www.aad.org • 888.462.DERM
Employment and career opportunities will soon increase. Over the next few days, take extra time to explore new educational programs, research funding opportunities or complete applications.

Taurus

(April 20 – May 20)

Home expenses, group plans and family routines will expand, before mid-week, expect levels to drop off. Households are now in a strong drive for creative activities or social freedom. Refuse to be censored by bold opinions. In the coming weeks, a mixture may feel an underlying influence; stay balanced and wait for meaningful progress.

Gemini

(May 21 – June 20)

Over the next eight days, family disagreements may be unavoidable. A recent wave of social isolation or home tension now needs to end. Gently probe for a sense of why. Expect power, to begin with, will rely heavily on your ability to mediate. Kinesthetics and emotions are now motivated to end volatile differences. Offer an honest description of emotional details. A clear or understanding of daily routines, now regrettable, will be an unwelcome surprise.

Cancer

(June 21 – July 21)

Attraction and physical alterations are now a powerful influence in key relationships. Over the next eight days, domestics; emotional connections rise quickly to the surface; expect potential lovers or key friends to no longer avoid public displays of affection.

Leo

(July 22 – August 21)

A recent battle of wills between relatives may need to end. Gently probe for a sense of why. Expect power, to begin with, will rely heavily on your ability to mediate. Kinesthetics and emotions are now motivated to end volatile differences. Offer an honest description of emotional details. A clear or understanding of daily routines, now regrettable, will be an unwelcome surprise.

Virgo

(August 22 – September 21)

Business agreements are easily abandoned this week, before mid-week, expect close friends and trusted colleagues to present muddled facts, numbers or opinions. Although long-term aspirations are positive and secure, immediate needs will be delayed. Avoid accusations; a clear understanding of daily restrictions and financial limits is necessary for harmonious progress.

Libra

(September 22 – October 21)

Social breaks are anticipated but improbable this week. Misleading invitations or unexpected group rehearsals are highlighted over the next two days. Avoid personal diminishments. If possible, use secret doves to friends to reveal more personal influences than is warranted. Look carefully for revised instructions and ask probing questions.

Scorpio

(October 22 – November 21)

Over the next eight days, bosses and managers will expect renewed devotion to tasks and projects. A recent sense of workplace mistrust will either be publicly avoided. Look carefully for revised instructions and ask probing questions.

Sagittarius

(December 22 – December 21)

Communications and close relatives may this week reveal unexpected secret disputes. Private threats between friends or marital workings will demand public confrontation.

Capricorn

(December 22 – January 19)

Career decisions will eventually prove rewarding. Over the next six weeks, expect someone, a romantic partner or ask for reliable schedules, profitable plans or new financial agreements. Research all potential arenas for business advancement.

Aquarius

(February 18 – March 19)

Private romantic overtures may now require special diplomacy. Before Thursday, new friends and potential lovers will await a secret response to unique or seductive invitations, offer an honest description of emotional details.

Pisces

(March 20 – April 19)

Minor social discrepancies may now intensify. Over the next five days, close friends will require your undivided attention and continuing support.

---

Crossword

ACROSS

1. Burrows and
2. Fortas
3. Maloney and
4. Mary
5. Four six-packs
6. Fish choice
7. Farewell in
8. Takes off
9. You mind?
10. Make a long story short?
11. Tracks quarry
12. Capital of South Australia
13. Bring about
14. Double bends
15. Poly follower?
16. Cash penalty
17. Blood
18. Bath's river
19. Type of dive
20. Word with cry or
21. Italian seaport
22. Sloth's cousin
23. Rushed
24. Rose or
25. Sampras
26. Kindled anew
27. Middle of
28. Small planes
29. Cheer up
30. Restraining rope
31. Renounced
32. Martins
33. Garnishes
34. 1st balcony
35. Played over
36. Foot woof
37. Bald brother
38. Ecu
39. Mixed bag
40. Sharp-tailing
41. Proud mount
42. Fricassees

DOWN

1. Adder cousins
2. Ring match
3. First lady of scale
4. Closeau portraits
5. Wichita's resident
6. Summer drink
7. Alternative beau
8. 2003's winner
9. Movie
10. Bay window
11. Exercise part by
12. Caruso and
13. Farms
14. Morning droppers
15. Caled
16. G-sharp
17. Incliner
18. Really weird

---

Solutions

© 2006 Tribune Media Services, Inc. All rights reserved.
Hey, Angie! What's going on?

Nothing. Um, I... Nothing.

I... Um... I didn't get accepted into grad school.

What?! I thought you said your interview went well!

Iknow you hate to hear this, but I've said it before and I'll say it again.

You need to dress trashier.

Paul

Boy, some weather we're having today, huh?

Uh-uh, no. We are not talking about the weather.

Come on, just a little humor me, I miss my job!

Is that all you talked about at your job? The weather? How could you miss that?

Psssh, you wouldn't understand. You obviously don't give a crap about the weather! I don't even know why we're friends!

Man, he sure "stormed" off. I guess that conversation got "heated." She must've "rained" on his-

God, I hate you.

Absolutely Sweet Dee: www.joshshalek.com kid_shay@joshshalek.com

The Family Monster by Josh Shalek

Hey, Angie! What's going on?

Nothing. Um, I... Nothing.

I... Um... I didn't get accepted into grad school.

What?! I thought you said your interview went well!

I know you hate to hear this, but I've said it before and I'll say it again.

You need to dress trashier.

Paul

Boy, some weather we're having today, huh?

Uh-uh, no. We are not talking about the weather.

Come on, just a little humor me, I miss my job!

Is that all you talked about at your job? The weather? How could you miss that?

Psssh, you wouldn't understand. You obviously don't give a crap about the weather! I don't even know why we're friends!

Man, he sure "stormed" off. I guess that conversation got "heated." She must've "rained" on his-

God, I hate you.

Absolutely Sweet Dee: www.joshshalek.com kid_shay@joshshalek.com

The Family Monster by Josh Shalek

There's that street-corner preacher, telling us we're all going to hell.

Isn't it better to keep your beliefs to yourself?

I prefer to sit quietly in judgement of others.

I think you're as bad as he is. I can still tell what you're thinking. Then I don't need to say anything, do I?

Absolutely Sweet Dee: www.joshshalek.com kid_shay@joshshalek.com

The Family Monster by Josh Shalek

How do you like my money-making machine? Isn't that illegal?

It makes money by buying stocks, then selling high. Amazing.

The hard part was finding a monkey who could travel ahead in time and teaching him the NASDAQ.

Absolutely Sweet Dee: www.joshshalek.com kid_shay@joshshalek.com
MSU Rugby

PLAY HARD
PARTY HARDER

FALL '06 RECRUITING
GOING ON NOW

FUN AND EASY TO LEARN
PRACTICE

TUES, THURS 7 - 9:00 P.M.
WED 3 - 5

@ THE TRACK

CONTACT
GABE (973) 841-3894
JEFF (973) 714-9609
NHL First-Round Playoff Predictions

Nik Protasenia

The first round of the NHL playoffs is finally here. Many people believe that the first round is pointless because the lower-seeded teams don't stand a chance to do any damage against their higher-seeded opponents, but you only need to go back to the last NHL season to find out that is certainly not true. Calgary was the No. 6, seed in 2004 and defeated three division champions (Vancouver, Detroit and San Jose) on route to the Stanley Cup Finals against Tampa Bay. The Flames said they were able to play so well because they had no pressure to worry about when everyone had them pegged to lose. It was the higher seeded teams that cracked under pressure while Calgary marched through the playoffs. So where will there be any upset in the first round this year? Who will crack under pressure and who will advance to the next round?

(1) Detroit Red Wings vs. (8) Edmonton Oilers

Although many believe that this is an extremely one-sided match-up with Detroit being the heavy favorite, one must look at what Edmonton brings to the table as well. The Red Wings are a small team that can be vulnerable when they play a hard core checking team like Edmonton. Oilers winger Georges Laraque will not be counted on to score goals, but he can be a handful for the Wings defense. If he has to handle the puck with his huge frame, the Red Wings and Oilers are both very good face-off teams; they will have a duel in the face-off circle every time, and both teams are very effective on the power play.

Prediction: This series is not as one-sided as many people think, but Detroit should prevail. This series will ultimately come down to goaltending, and the Wings boast an advantage. Edmonton's goaltending was in shambles all year long, and newly acquired Dwayne Rolston must pick his game up to another level if he plans on competing with Legace or Osgood. The Wings are also the better puck possession team in the league while Edmonton is a team that is guilty of giveaways. While the Red Wings have also played very well as a checking team throughout the season, they have treasured a very stingy defense. They are really an unknown. On the other hand, the Flames really do not need to score a whole lot of goals to win games, simply because they have been able to provide solid goaltending.

Prediction: This will be a close one, but the Flames will likely come out on top. They have the home ice advantage in this one, and they have played very well at the Saddledome all year long. In addition, Kiprusoff looks ready to repeat what he did in 2004 with stellar goaltending.

(2) Dallas Stars vs. (7) Colorado Avalanche

These two teams have a pretty interesting history against each other in the playoffs. Dallas defeated Colorado in the Conference Semi-finals in back-to-back years (1999, 2000) and went on to win the Stanley Cup in 1999. Between the two teams this year, Colorado has the scoring advantage while Dallas has a very stingy defense. The Dallas Stars are a very good team, led by head coach Lindy Ruff. The Stars have been one of the better teams in the league, but the Avalanche have not been as consistent this year as they have been in the past, but at the same time, they take a lot of minor penalties. In addition, the Avalanche need to play with confidence and believing in their goaltender. They have been hot recently while the Stars have been ice cold. Not to mention, Martin Brodeur knows when to shine. You can count on Devils fans to chant, "Martin's Better" at the Meadowlands as they always do in the playoffs.

(3) Calgary Flames vs. (6) Anaheim Mighty Ducks

This should be the most exciting out of all the first round series in this year's playoffs. The connection will come from the Western Conference. Both teams have been on a mound of goalden -taining and that will be a key determin­ant as to who will win. Mikka Kiprusoff is a Verina Trophy candidate, since he has carried the Flames on his back all year long. For the Ducks, Jean-Sebastien Giguere has really come on in the last two months of the regular season to carry a team that was considered a long shot to make the playoffs. The Ducks have the key scoring advantage with the likes of Teemu Selanne, Andy McDonald and Robert Trumpeck. They should be young players with a scoring touch like Ryan Getzlaf, Jeffrey Lupul and Corey Perry, but since they haven't been in the playoffs before, they have not been the most successful in the playoffs. The Ducks have had the home ice advantage in this series, but the Flames are really an unknown. Maybe the change of scenery will do Theodore good, just like when Patrick Roy was traded to Colorado from Montreal. The Wing is the NHL's best goalie, but can he handle the pressure of playing every other playoff game without the Toronto Maple Leafs being there, since the Leafs have beaten the Senators in the last five years, but that is still no guarantee that they will go far. Tampa Bay is the current champion, but you wouldn't be able to tell with how dominant their season has been this year. The primary reason for their inconsistency has been the shaky play of John Grabham in net. He has had a tough time trying to replace Nikolai Khababbin. Not to be forget­ted, Martin St. Louis hasn't been the Hart trophy winner he was in 2004, and he is unlikely to be on the hot seat if they should lose.

Prediction: Ottawa has too much fire­power and is much too formidable in depth to lose a series to this Flames. Not only are they dangerous with offense, but they have the best goalie in the game in Martin Brodeur. The Rangers will try to outscore the Senators and outscore the Devils in this series. The Devils will play a more defensive style and try to score off of turnovers. The Senators will be relying on rookie Henrik Lundequist to be stellar after coming back from a late­season injury. The Devils, on the other hand, wish that Alexander Mogilny was still with the team, as he would provide a more formidable scoring threat.

(4) Buffalo Sabres vs. (5) Philadelphia Flyers

These two teams are very deep in their scoring. Philadelphia has been plagued with injuries all year long but has still been able to get scoring from all four of their. The Sabres have been led by a score­by-committee philosophy that has produced seven 40-goal scorers for the league. One glaring difference between the two teams has been penalty killing. The Sabres boast of the league's best while the Flyers have been one of the league's worst, primarily because of their pen­alty killing unit has been out with injury. Another difference is that the Flyers have Peter Forsberg, perhaps the league's best all-around player. He can score, pass and hit better than anyone in the league. The Sabres do not have one benchie playmaker on the team but still get the job done.

Prediction: While both teams are unsure about their opponents, the Flyers have the overwhelming advantage in playoff experi­ence. Chris Drury of the Sabres has 8 playoff games of experience, which is 10 more than his 20 teammates combined. It will be a showcase of rookie goalies in net between Martin Bure and Mississauga. The Flyers have a more reliable backup in Robert Esche if Niittymaki should go down. The Flyers will use their experience to win the series.

If there is one thing to notice in all of these playoff series, it should be that every team, regardless of where they are seeded, must rely heavily on their goalie to win games. A team can be outchanced two to one and out shot three to one, but if the team's goalie is on top of his game, he can steal a win for them. It was solid goaltending that got the Philadelphia Flyers to their 2004 Final Series, and solid goaltending also brought the Ducks to the 2003 Stanley Cup.

We expect the Ducks to make a name for themselves. Rookie goalie Roli Markstrom has been hot recently while the Rangers have been ice cold. Not to mention, Martin Brodeur knows when to shine. You can count on Devils fans to chant, "Martin's Better" at the Meadowlands as they always do in the playoffs.
Hey there, sportlings! The Sports Guy is back to bless you with his greatness one last time. In three years, he has walked and talked with the greatest of MU's athletes; he has looked to the gods of sport, he has interviewed coaches and swapped thoughts with Phi Kappas, all in search of an obvious answer to the ever-present question in MU sports: Why can't the Red Hawks win?

The Sports Guy knows what the sportlings and the haters out there are thinking: Why are you being so mean? Do you have to be so harsh? The Sports Guy could fill the seats at Panzer Gym with all of the create and whines for candy coating that he's fielded over the years. But to those who feel that The Sports Guy is too tough, too harsh, or too harsh, he asks you, what else is supposed to do?

Since the fall of 1995, MSU has won just one conference championship in all of their varsity sports programs, excluding the wrestling and lacrosse programs. To put this in perspective, TCNJ has won eight conference championships this year alone, and since the fall of '95, they have earned 72 NJAC championships, by far the most in the conference. The fact is that, while teams like TCNJ, Rowan and William Paterson remain consistent contenders, MSU's success rates are about as predictable as George Bush's next mistake.

So The Sports Guy has searched for the answers. The first question he asked himself was, if the players were responsible for the lack of winning. The answer is a resounding no. The Sports Guy knows that the athletes here are playing for only the love of the game. There are no scholarships or pro contracts in the horizon for many Red Hawks here. With that said, The Sports Guy has seen many of the players on the other teams and he is not convinced that they are much better than our Red Hawk teams this year. The Sports Guy says that's like buying a $20 lottery ticket and winning 50 cents.

It is the job of the higher officials of the athletic program to provide a winning atmosphere for the players and coaches. The Sports Guy has been told on many occasions by athletes that they don't feel that their concerns are handled appropriately, facilities are neglected, and there are inner cliques within the department. The Sports Guy says that this is not a department run with the intent of having winning athletic programs. The Sports Guy says that the only reason the teams that win the titles that they do is because of the hard work and extra hours put in by the coaches and players.

Don't misunderstand The Sports Guy. It isn't as if the Red Hawks are the worst team in the conference. MSU could be considered the fifth or sixth most successful program in the NJAC. But The Sports Guy asks why? Why, when the university holds one of the largest athletic budgets in the conference, are we not more successful? The only possible cause is mismanagement of athletic funds.

If this university really cared about winning, the athletic department does not emphasize a winning attitude enough here at MSU. That has been made clear to The Sports Guy, not by Athletic Director Holly Gera, but by the university's hiring and firing decisions, their inability (or unwillingness) to create a school spirit, and the decision to drop one of their most winning programs and one of their least expensive.

The Sports Guy says that this was about as easy a move as having your kids sleep over at Michael Jackson's house. Last year, they claimed it was a monetary issue and that they felt they could distribute it better to the other sports. Well call The Sports Guy crazy, but shouldn't the remaining teams perform better with more resources? Most of the Red Hawk teams this year performed better than the year before. The Sports Guy says that's like buying a $20 lottery ticket and winning 50 cents.

The Sports Guy says that this is getting warm, but it's predictable as George Bush's next mistake. Whether you loved him or hated him, everyone knows that The Sports Guy always told you the real truth and not candy-coated propaganda. So the sportlings have to ask themselves if winning is really important to them. The Sports Guy knows that the athletes work hard, and the coaches do the best they can. But almost only...
SPORTS TRIVIA

QUESTION

Who holds the record for most career penalty minutes in the NHL including playoffs?

LAST EDITION'S QUESTION

What pitcher won the most career games without winning the Cy Young Award?

ANSWER TO LAST EDITION'S QUESTION

Cy Young had 531 career wins, which is the most by any pitcher all-time. He never won the illustrious award which was named after him (of course). Send any of your trivia questions to msusports@gmail.com

Name ‘Em

Name The Sport These Montclair State University Athletes Play

1. Brian Butler
2. Robyn Apicelli
3. Bill Beiermeister
4. Maurice Torres
5. Ryan Morgan
6. Stephanie Machin
7. Morgan Burklow
8. Dara Nalven
9. Carolyn McCrea

GAME OF THE WEEK

Red Hawk Softball

26-6 (7-5) MSU Red Hawks vs. 31-3 (9-3) Rowan Profs

Saturday April 29, 2006 1:00 p.m.

SOFTBALL

TCU NJAC Overall Rutgers-Camden
William Paterson 9-4 27-4 16-0
MSU 9-4 17-12 9-5
Rutgers-Newark 9-6 19-16 8-6
Kean 8-6 24-12 8-6
Rutgers-Camden 8-6 21-12 7-9
Rowan 7-7 23-10 6-8
Richard Stockton 5-10 17-17 6-10
Ramapo 3-10 16-16 5-13
NJCU 2-12 15-21 0-14
This Week
Fri. vs. Rutgers-Newark 3:30 p.m.
Sat. vs. Richard Stockton (DH) 12:00 p.m.
Mon. @ William Paterson 12:00 p.m.

LACROSSE

TCU NJAC Overall
William Paterson 9-4 22-11
MSU 9-4 19-16
Rutgers-Newark 9-6 24-12
Kean 8-6 24-9
Rowan 7-7 19-17
Richard Stockton 5-10 22-16
Ramapo 3-10 6-10
NJCU 2-12
This Week
Thurs. @ William Paterson 3:00 p.m.
Sat. vs. Rowan 1:00 p.m.

Last Week's Results
4/21 - MSU 3, Rutgers-Newark 0
4/25 - MSU 2, Johns Hopkins 8
4/26 - MSU 6, William Paterson 5

Michael Vicaro

Senior
Hometown: Randolph, NJ

Vicaro shut down Rutgers-Newark in the Game of the Week. Vicaro allowed three hits and no runs while striking out 11 batters in nine innings. The win moved the Red Hawks into first place.

Honorable Mentions

Dana Warnock
Junior
Hometown: Kearny, NJ

Warnock pitched the final two innings of the 13-0 win over Baruch, in which she allowed one hit and struck out three. She also went 2-3 and drove in three runs.

Shauna Brocklebank
Junior
Hometown: Long Branch, NJ

Brocklebank scored four goals and one assist in MSU’s 17-3 win over Mount St. Vincent. Undefeated MSU clinched the No. 1 seed in the playoffs with the win.

Jennifer Jiminez
Freshman
Hometown: Linden, NJ

Jiminez went 1-4 with a three-run homerun. She finished with three RBI, two runs scored and one walk in MSU’S 8-1 win over Richard Stockton.

Bryan Klimchak
Sophomore
Hometown: Clark, NJ

Klimchak scored six goals and tacked on three assists in MSU’s 20-1 win over Mount St. Vincent. MSU clinched a playoff spot and will face undefeated Stevens.

Player of The Week

Who holds the record for most career penalty minutes in the NHL including playoffs?
Red Hawks Win Round One

Defeat Mount Saint Vincent 18-1 In The First Round And Hope for NCAA Bid

Mike Johnson
Sports Editor

For Mount Saint Vincent, the ending was already written before Wednesday's game against Montclair State University.

Exactly four days ago, the Red Hawks were celebrating their eighth victory in a row, a perfect Skyline Conference season and, more importantly, a 1-0 pounding over the Dolphins of Montclair Saint Vincent. The win set up a first round matchup in the Skyline Tournament that would feature the Dolphins of Mount St. Vincent and the Red Hawks of Montclair State University.

The Red Hawks scored four goals in the first half and scored 12 in the second half.

The Red Hawks were content to hold on for one more win, they will then be entered into a pool for possible entries into the tournament. Their strength of schedule may be a factor, since the Red Hawks had an easier schedule than some of the other teams, but the Red Hawks cannot worry about that now. They have to wait to see who they play in the final round first.

Goals

1. Don't be a "couch potato." You should spend more time standing than sitting on this-ways. Of course, no one can control the weather, so when it rains, a good video game or movie may pass the time, but when the sun is shining, you may want to consider going to the local park or just relaxing outdoors. Just don't bring the couch outside with you.

2. Wash your car. This is always a good way to get many things accomplished, but only if it is a way for you guys to get that machine of yours looking good, but it's also a good way of getting a peek of that good-looking girl across the street while she's washing her car. It's also a good alternative to laying out and tanning. An old pair of shorts and a sleeveless shirt (if you choose yours looking good, but it's also a good alternative to laying out and tanning. An old pair of shorts and a sleeveless shirt (if you choose)

3. Swimming. Whether you have a pool or not, you can always find a place to swim. If you aren't fortunate enough to have a pool and some of your friends do so you may be able to have that or a half ride to the beach (or wherever it is you kids go these days), it's well worth it. The cool ocean air mixed with the hot bodies makes for an excellent way to stay active. While you're at the beach, you may want to play some volleyball, frisbee or football. You know, all of the things you can do on campus, but since you're on break, it makes them more fun.

4. Get a job. If you have one already, you may want to think of getting some more. If you can't get a summer job, you're definitely doing something wrong. Not only will it keep you active, but it will teach you some responsibilities and put a little gas money in your pocket. Believe me, you'll need it. This isn't only a good idea for the summer, but year-round, unless your school schedule won't allow it. A good idea would be

5. Running/Taking. Now that the 2006 semester is coming to an end, you may be left wondering what you can do to stay active. You can still come on campus and play some frisbee or any of those other fun campus games, but I don't know how many people you will get to join in. And unless you're taking summer courses, you may want to steer clear of MSU until fall semester. Sitting around watching the Mets and Yankees is going to help, but you're just not going to get any smaller, so here is a list of things you may want to take into consideration before your waist line increases, along with the temperature.

1. You never know what to expect," said Pacelluzzi. "All we wanted to do was focus on our game plan. If they weren't taking anything for granted, then forget about the new summer form to that you're taking summer courses, you may want to consider going to the local park or just relaxing outdoors. Just don't bring the couch outside with you.

2. Get a job. If you have one already, you may want to think of getting some more. If you can't get a summer job, you're definitely doing something wrong. Not only will it keep you active, but it will teach you some responsibilities and put a little gas money in your pocket. Believe me, you'll need it. This isn't only a good idea for the summer, but year-round, unless your school schedule won't allow it. A good idea would be

3. Swimming. Whether you have a pool or not, you can always find a place to swim. If you aren't fortunate enough to have a pool and some of your friends do so you may be able to have that or a half ride to the beach (or wherever it is you kids go these days), it's well worth it. The cool ocean air mixed with the hot bodies makes for an excellent way to stay active. While you're at the beach, you may want to play some volleyball, frisbee or football. You know, all of the things you can do on campus, but since you're on break, it makes them more fun.

4. Get a job. If you have one already, you may want to think of getting some more. If you can't get a summer job, you're definitely doing something wrong. Not only will it keep you active, but it will teach you some responsibilities and put a little gas money in your pocket. Believe me, you'll need it. This isn't only a good idea for the summer, but year-round, unless your school schedule won't allow it. A good idea would be

5. Running/Taking. Now that the 2006 semester is coming to an end, you may be left wondering what you can do to stay active. You can still come on campus and play some frisbee or any of those other fun campus games, but I don't know how many people you will get to join in. And unless you're taking summer courses, you may want to steer clear of MSU until fall semester. Sitting around watching the Mets and Yankees is going to help, but you're just not going to get any smaller, so here is a list of things you may want to take into consideration before your waist line increases, along with the temperature.