Six College Presidents Discus Faculty Salaries

Last week the presidents of the six State Colleges of New Jersey issued the following statement on the inadequacy of college faculty salaries:

We, the Presidents of the six State Colleges of New Jersey, face a difficult responsibility in securing good professors for the future of our teacher preparation institutions. In the next five years our colleges and six State Colleges of New Jersey face a tremendous challenge in the number of high school graduates applying for college. In the next five years, the number of full-time faculty members at our colleges will double in size. The $66,000 bond issue approved by the Legislature last November, is making an enormous investment in college faculty salaries.

The present salary ranges we can offer are inadequate. They want a good college education. We want to be able to give them the best preparation possible. We want to be able to attract and retain good professors for the faculties of our State Colleges.

Dr. Louis C. Nanassy, professor of business education at MSC, is the co-author of two books, Business Timed Writing and Business Dictionary, published this month by the Educational Book Division of Prentice-Hall, Inc.

Business Timed Writings contains short, medium and long articles for typing students to practice their speed and accuracy with rapidity and facility. Dr. Nanassy collaborated with Dr. Albert C. Price of Chico (California) State College in the preparation of this book.

In addition to an A to Z list of definitions of the most common, up-to-date business and economic terms, Business Dictionary also includes an appendix of 18 tables of reference materials. The 268-page book is intended for students and teachers of business and social studies subjects, as well as for the layman. Co-author with Dr. Nanassy is Dr. William Seldon, chief of business education, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and is also the author of Public Instruction. Dr. Nanassy taught for 16 years in high schools of New Jersey and New Jersey before joining the faculty of Paterson State College in 1946, and has been at MSC since 1957. He has held summer sessions visiting professorships at a number of universities including Western Michigan University, New Mexico Highlands University, Pennsylvania State University, University of Vermont and the University of Southern California.

Dr. Nanassy has contributed articles to professional publications of which are also the author of two other teaching materials, Clerical Payroll Project and Standard Payroll Project, both published by the Pitman Publishing Corporation.

A Problem...

Recently, at a meeting of one of the honor societies on campus, the problem of cheating in colleges was discussed. Cheating is as much a problem at Montclair as it is at other colleges. And Montclair has its own peculiar institution.

It was discussed at this meeting whether it was the duty of the teacher or the student to discourage cheating. Some people felt that it was the individual's choice to discourage cheating among his friends and acquaintances. Others thought that a committee composed of students might study the problem. A third group believed that it was the teacher's responsibility to discourage cheating in his classes. And still a fourth group felt that a directive against cheating should come from the higher authority of a college.

Which solution is correct? Which would be the most effective? We do not have to give a definite answer. However, we do know that certain solutions are possible. First, the individual can discourage cheating among his friends. It is a hard thing to do, but it is possible. And it becomes easier to do each successive time.

Second, teachers can eliminate cheating in their classes by the types of tests they give and the manner in which they give them. At present we have several teachers with whom it is impossible to cheat, or with whom no student would ever think of cheating.

A week ago Tuesday we were fortunate to have a group of dancers from Bennington College at our assembly program. These dancers are known for their excellent performances. Those who attended the assembly can say they truly enjoyed the program. We congratulate the Assembly Committee for their choice.

Letters to the Editor
Dear Editor:
I cannot go on with the word "largely" as used in this question. According to the American Heritage Dictionary, "largely" is defined as "in a large part or degree; mainly." Thus, according to this definition, "Russia's influence is largely to blame for the war" means that Russia's influence is the main cause of the war. However, this is not what the question implies. The question implies that Russia's influence is only one of several causes, and that other causes may also be involved. Therefore, the word "largely" is inappropriate in this context. It would be better to use a word that implies a lesser role for Russia, such as "to some extent" or "in part.

John Sayer

Dear Editor:
Due to their great emphasis on math and science, they were far advanced in technology, which was a potential advantage at that time. It is possible that this is even a greater potential for solving world problems.

Bill Bauman

Editorial: The increase in these subject areas is probably due, to a large extent, to Russia's influence. However, I think that our policies in the field of education have been changing. The emphasis placed on science and technology has been increasing in recent years, and it is likely that this change is due to the demands of a more technological society and by the demands of a more cosmopolitan world. In this regard, the emphasis on science and technology can be viewed merely as an increase by demand, rather than a "new direction..." influenced by the single factor of Russia's emergence as a world power.

Ted Rand

Editorial:
Yes. This can be seen from the rise in the 1980's of the Soviet Union. Due to their great emphasis on math and science, they were far advanced in technology, which was a potential advantage at that time. It is possible that this is even a greater potential for solving world problems.

A week ago Tuesday we were fortunate to have a group of dancers from Bennington College at our assembly program. These dancers are known for their excellent performances. Those who attended the assembly can say they truly enjoyed the program. We congratulate the Assembly Committee for their choice of a fine program.

However, we are less fortunate in other areas. At the assembly one group of students was outstanding. These students talked, laughed and made rude comments throughout the performance. Their behavior was completely disgraceful.

It is even a shame that we must admit that we have such students as members of our student body. The majority of us are proud of our college and the high quality of most of our students.

We ask those students whose behavior embarrasses us, Why are you at Montclair? If you can't even behave as students, what kind of teachers will you be? We are ashamed of you.

Within the past month many students have asked to serve on the staff of the Montclarion in the capacity of reporters. We have said nothing against asking them to see one of the editors, with the result that very few people have refused to do so. Therefore, we are asking those people who want to be reporters and who haven't as yet received an assignment to give their names and majors to Kathy Moon or Madeline Jones, the M.T.S.I. floor president. Everyone who is interested in trying for the Montclarion should consult Sandy Ragones via the B.B. or come to the Student Publicity Office.

Also, anyone who is interested in copy reading and who has had practical experience in this area or who is willing to learn please contact Rosalie Hingstley or Paula Rieder via the B.B.

Dear Editor:
Since two hour exams have been initiated at Montclair, we feel that the day before the exams should be set aside as a "reading day." This practice is in use in many other colleges throughout the country. This practice aids not only the students but also the instructors for preparing for the exams.

Very truly yours,
Judy Courter

Dear Editor:
The twenty-eighth day of this month marks the tenth anniversary of Gamma Delta Chi, the largest fraternity on campus. Due to the efforts of every student who has written, word out, cross every campus, watched every letter over and over, who understands that the men of Gamma Delta Chi, the most important of our college's fraternities, were not able to accomplish all the great goals that we, as a group of students, set for the SGA's approval of our charter, we are of the opinion that Gamma Delta Chi stands as a symbol of Americanism and a beacon of hope for a better future. We urge all members of Gamma Delta Chi to rededicate themselves to the ideals of Gamma Delta Chi and to continue to strive for excellence in all that we do.

Juan Vas, president

Letters to the Editor
Dear Editor:
This varnished wooden poster was once a piece of the long-guarded shield which serves as the fraternities' logo. It has in Gamma Delta Chi. Our floor is usually supposed to ask the boys, "Are you going to the Russians' party?" It seems Red was the appropriate color for the night. There may be a significant number of these cards in Gamma Delta Chi.

Marin Fitzsimmons

Dear Editor:
We in the United States have long been quite aware of the might of the Soviet Union. This trend then is naturally a result of an awakening. We feel that this trend will continue for a long time to come and that as we future educators must prepare ourselves for the future ahead of us.

I think that we in the fields other than those mentioned are just awakening. I feel that this trend will continue for a long time to come and that as we future educators must prepare ourselves for the future ahead of us.

Dr. John Smith

Dear Editor:
On the contrary, I think that the emphasis on mathematics, science and the foreign languages in the schools is a long range plan to equal or surpass Russia in the near future. The fact that she is not ahead of us as of now is definitely for reasons on these fields.

Florence Turquipt

Dear Editor:
No. As far as language is concerned, there will be also a demand for foreign languages in spite of Russia, or any other country for that matter.

If I do believe, however, that science and mathematics have been influenced by Russia's outstanding achievements with space travel.

Montclair's Card Game Attracts Huge Crowds

By Stephen W. Moutouza

Of course and students 1 sing what the Mountie does at 3:30 p.m. to form the pun, and regis-ter for the spring semester.

They arrived on campus just as Officer Charles had finished his regular breaks. The fresh faces of parking tickets, only a few hours earlier. This they knew because a sign was hung around the necks of their students.

On the first floor, Atropos and Lachesis (the Graces) had other card game negotiations with the students. At least three were being asked by the students about their card game negotiations with the students.

If they had received his fair share of the cards in the arena for the battle. The harried group was much puzzled over the student's funeral oration (with the period of mourning, and the student's funeral pyre. And the instructor was so touched by this event. With Marbles in The Mouth, Mr. 26893-Z Speaking at The Shore Course was closed and wouldn't be reopened. For instance, one speech in Timber Cutting and Spindle Course was closed. Thus they are discontent with their long journey, are not as proficient in their work as one would desire. They may be reshuffled. Our voyager hands and must go to the famous seats and wait in line for one week. Then, if they are lucky, their cards may be reshuffled.

Our voyager finds his way back to the vulgar crowd with tears in his eyes at the boon that was wrenched and also because his card has gone. He has been in line for eight days.

Finally he has reached a state of collegium and must retrieve a card with his name on it. Tell all this to this very state of his collegium in the game, and you must have his hand on the table. Forget all about the time-discussing Graces (take away half and leave him only the yellow cards. (Yellow is the color of lemons and nobody likes the yellow cards.)

Maddly devouring "No-Doo" pills to ward off fatigue, our voyagers (try to clean up the arena. It is interesting when the day will have the great card shuffle in the sky.

Montclair's Card Casino

College and students are synonymous, and so are the students and the Snack Bar. Montclair has always had a Snack Bar, first in what is now the sculpture law. When Life Hall was built in 1957, the Snack Bar moved into the new building.

The Snack Bar certainly has been successful. On one "quiet" day there were over 1,925 customers. But the fifty Snack Bar workers certainly have much to do. With his name on it. Yet after all this, the day will have the great card shuffle in the sky.

Trenton State rounded out the Hawk's victory over the Eagles 92-85. Bob Genieser, Ed Topar, and Mike Antonetti were the scenes of recent competition by falls. A1 Hector, representing the Lions, accumulated the highest amount of points in the evening, turning to action after a shoulder injury. Bruce Morgan tried a new technique in relay starting at Washington; however, the rest of the team did not approve, and he had to go back and try again. This time when the gun went off, he took the baton with him.

Matsen Beat Fairleigh, Nipped By Rutgers JV

MSC's grapplers are currently 2-3 for the season. Against Fairleigh Dickinson, the team questioned their ability to win an easy victory, winning 26-8. Bob Figura, with his 8 points credited to his success, led the Lions in their match with the Devils by 8-3. Bob Welch and Ferdinand Bob led the Tigers in their match with 11-3 decision and Tom Thompson, Champions of 1960, clinched the victory in the first period with a decisive pin. Fairleigh Dickinson did not have anyone to pit against powerful Chuck Weitz, and forfeited his weight class. Perhaps the most exciting match of the day came in the heavyweight class as Joe Sessa made his wrestling debut. The final outcome was decided in the last fifteen seconds, coming between 11-4.

Rogers Jaynees defeated Montclair 14-12 in a decidedly close match. MSC lost the last three matches, Zappala being pinned and Tcaffiero and Jagendorf coming out on the short end of a decision. The Tigers scored 22 points to the Hawks 13 points. Bob Hochmann, representing the United States, won 17 points creditable to his performance. The Lions forfeited their matches to the Farmers by 11-8, 9-6, and 18 by Bob Fischer. Other double-figure performances in the league were attributed to Bruce Morgan (10), Bob Rosspan (9), Vern Her (9), Bob Scherter (11), Bob Hamiton (12), Gil Wilhelmsen (14), Jerry Stern (14), Bob Curran (11), Tom O'Gorman (10), Tom Crawley (7) and Mike Antonetti (10).

The Montclair offense went to work, using a scoring rushing touchdown by Schmitt's courtmen showed their appreciation by handing the visitors a victory. The Montclair players scored 71. Ed Topar excelled in the scoring and rebounding department, scoring 19 points and 12 rebounds. Ron Kulik and Dave Fletcher combined in the running man and neither scored in the medals. Kulik waited for a time of 7:20, close to his school record, however, he was off form and should improve as the season progresses.
