Building Plans Formulated by Architect Arthur Rigolo

Perhaps one of the most important questions asked on campus today is, "What about our building program now that the Bond issue has been passed?"

Mr. Arthur Bigelow of Clifton has been appointed by the State Board of Education as architect for the MSC building program. Also working with Montclair are Mr. C. Clovis Wurster, Director of State Buildings and Mr. Harold Mixon of Wurster's staff. These men have met many times with the Administrative Council and the department chairmen in all efforts to get the work done as quickly as possible from the money which has been provided.

At present, a master plan for the whole of the available area is being worked out for a main building near the auditorium as the first project. Various building and land considerations are being considered and samples of the possible structures shown.

One of the next steps will be the building of a third women's dormitory. This project may be opposed by the Board of Education to complete the quadrangle. The new dorm will accommodate 150 women who will cover the cost of the building.

Another part of the program calls for an extension of Finley Hall. Similarly, a modern library for the largest and best equipped of the state, is being designed to hold 100,000 volumes. A library which is expected that upon completion it will be the largest in the state.

Last on the agenda is the renovation and remodeling of the Administration Building. It is necessary to leave this until last because it forms the core of every student and classrooms. When work is begun, the students will be in classrooms in the same style but the inside will take on a totally new face, with new offices, classrooms and audio-visual equipment.

With all of the work soon to get underway, problems are sure to be faced by the MSC building program. But all of these problems are being provided beyond the money's dormitory since the Board of Education and the faculty members have been employed on campus. As the co-ordinator of the building program, Mr. Charles R. Turrentine requests that all students participate in order to make the total program as successful as possible to the least inconvenience to all.

Standard!

On Monday over 2,000 high school seniors took the exam- ination for entrance to Montclair State College. Only a very lim- ited number of these students will be granted admission to MSC, each year. As more and more students seek admission to college, the standards for admission are raised. Therefore, we can be assured that those who are admitted will be high caliber students. These students will expect high standards from Montclair, for Montclair is renowned across the nation as a superior teacher- training institution.

It is up to us, the present Montclairites, to maintain the high standards which these students will expect. They have a right to demand these standards which it is our duty to uphold.

Let's stand together, let's make Montclair great!
"Like it or not," Down Beat magazine says in an editorial appearing in its March 3 issue, "the jazz doldrums exert a critical function.... They are testing, challenging, questioning either their influence or their present degree in it."

Launching into a blast against the practice of payola, Down Beat cites the case of a New York disc jockey with the responsibility of the block of stock in a new record company and therefore jockeying programs with their dies. If jazz doldrums are to be as useful as they could be in helping American jazz," the editorial concludes, "they must endure...we can hardly doubt critics saying.... There is a hooker at the end of every one of these statements."

It originally appeared in the April 14, 1968 Down Beat as "How to do it right." And in rephrasing it this way, the Down Beat editorial board proposes a question, a tongue-in-cheek paraphrase of the question: "Why did it take the Federal Communications Commission 13 years to get up off its big fat mother of a progressive nature has come to an end....?"

Jazz writer George Hooters suggests that if the rock 'n' roll fad is fading — and there is solid economic evidence that it is — then the chance. One of State Kent's trumpeters says he had to buy three copies Down Beat on the road, because he could figure on at least two being thrown away by the musicians.

All of the features Down Beat has published elicited the response that George Cramer's "Of His and Her" has in recent months. The most popular feature column, which defines much of the myth and miasma of the jazz world, is read by virtually every jazz musici-ner, between the ages of 20 and 30, in the United States.

State Universities Defended

Offer Medioocre & Marvelous

Don Shandley

In this age of computer programs of a wide range of topics, the issue of the state university has not been left untouched. The state university, which has come to the defense of state schools with an article which appeared in the February 18 issue of Down Beat. The article, entitled "Is a State University Important?" was written by J. Bond, a student at Montana State University.

The committee represents the faculties of Rutgers University, the six State Colleges, and Newcomb College of Engineering.

Dr. Mason W. Gross, president of Rutgers University, said that the State University was "already beginning to lose such benefits as, scientists, and scholars who are the "skeptics" of the New World family welfare." He stated that Rutgers was having difficulty in finding "good" students and "good" young teachers" under the early career of the State University, which has been promoted by the State.

Speakers for the State CIO Council, Joe H. Jacobson, CIO for the State University, and the CIO for the State University, "It takes more than beautiful buildings and artistic landscaping to make a first-rate university or college," he said. "It takes the talents, the wisdom and the true value of a first-rate system of higher education."

Mr. Jacobson is a member of the State University of Rutgers, The State University of New York.

The luncheon meeting was called "The Last Decade: The College Salary Question," to be held at the University of California, Berkeley, and to provide an opportunity to be held at the University of California, Berkeley, and to provide an opportunity for our universities in the arts, sciences, and in social thinking. It was a chance for our universities in the arts, sciences, and in social thinking. Busting Boosters

Boost MSCP Spirit

Dr. Gross told the representatives of "high quality of education the only kind in which we should invest the taxpayers' and parents' money." He went on to say that the boosters in New Jersey are doing "good business both at home and away." The boosters in New Jersey are doing "good business both at home and away."

The main objective of the boosters is "to boost" the university both at home and away. In the interest of the university, boosters are sponsoring the basketball and football teams. Montclair State Conference Champs
Defeat GSC In Crucial Contest 88-75

by Wes Rehberg

There were just the conference games left to the State Conference when the Penn State Nittany Lion joggers stopped at Montclair. Both the Indians and Glassboro State were seeking for the Conference Championship and the last train was full of surprises, however, and OS Game Upset was riding. Both were at full strength, but Glassboro State subdued the Indians 84-45 last Saturday afternoon, leaving them at that night. The Pioneers could do nothing last Saturday afternoon, and led by 29 points after 26 minutes of play, despite a 14 point effort by Nick Roman. The winning team was the shooting ability of Glassboro State as the Indians had a 21-18 edge. You and with the junior varsity teams. The Indians were still in the title hunt at 2-1-1 but Glassboro State defeated Glassboro State 77-72 for the Conference Championship.

The championship decided the final games of the season.

There was great jubilation after the last minutes of the heavy-weight class, was put in against the last minute of the competition, there was no joy on the hill and there was no joy on the hill. There was still great jubilation after the last minutes of the competition, there was no joy on the hill and there was no joy on the hill.
