Montclair Prof Elected "Life Fellow" Of IIL

Dr. Frederick H. Young, assistant professor of English at Montclair State College, received notice of his election as a "Life Fellow" of the International Institute of Arts and Letters. This honor now allows him to take his place alongside of many distinguished personalities as Alfred Huxley, Jean Cocteau, Tiberio Micer, Marcel Chagall, Eugene Delacroix, William Saroyan, and others. Many fellows are Nobel Prize winners or honored in literature and art.

The IIL, whose headquarters are located at Leutersheim, Germany, was founded in 1932 by professors of many nations, the classification of fellow in high standing is second to none. The council consists of the fellows and Corresponding Members, who represent arts and lettering in any one of the countries of the world. Theresa Young, chairperson of the IIL, has been the secretary of the IIL since its beginning.

Dr. Young doesn't have the slightest idea which members of the IIL nominated him, and he stated that he didn't have any idea which foreign name even being brought up until he received his letter of admission in the mail. Besides being a great personal honor to him, this honor reflects great honor on Montclair State College.

In 1951, Dr. Young's book, The Philosophy of Henry James, was published. The book during the past year will be invited by the administration at the dinner on May 26. It was necessary to cancel the picnic supper at the college cafeteria. There will be a dinner in honor of the retirement of Miss Margaret A. Sherwin, assistant director of personnel. Penny Costa is chairman of the committee. Students attending will be served at a family style dinner in the college cafeteria. There will be all refreshments to the administrations.

Student Exhibits Works
The one-man show in the sculpture lab of the Administration building is the product of Vitto Gal­lone. A fourth-year student, Montclair’s senior received basic training in the Army in 1950 to 1955.

Vitto’s experiments are carried out in several rooms such as oil paint, sculpture, drawing, collage and fabrics. Flowing lines in the forms of two beings—one red and one blue—dominate the impetus of the oils. The beings are portrayed on an un­usual period of yellow and green backgrounds.

The paintings of Mr. Gallone are of particular interest as he has a unique vision of human beings in each. From this center of life, he speaks, the branch others which form the outline on the sub­mersion. A reclining woman is the piece of sculpture which first gives one a look at the exhibit. Made of concrete, the lady appears to have plodded herself down for a afternoon of watching the world go by.

The gallery features a pair of pieces on the front of the gallery; one merely naps, the other stretches over the entire length of the hall. This work ranges from animals to mermaids and many other gay little crea­tures. Bits of this sunset appear to be flowing into portions of the tree. It is truly a striking work

GAY PUPPETS SHOWN IN LIFE SHOWCASE
by Wendy Pane
All the bright colors of a circus in a form of puppets are decorat­ed报表 at the Memorial Auditorium. There are some one hundred, many of which are made by various students at Montclair, and many other gay little crea­tures. Some of the students participating are Ethan Stein, and others.

Adding to this rainbow is a dia­play of colored lights by students under the direction of Mr. Tony Fano, who has been employing this method over the entire length of the hall.
