Rugg At Montclair
As Guest Professor

For the coming spring semester, noted author Dr. Earle Rugg will be on campus as a visiting professor. Dr. Rugg, professor of education and chair of the education department at Colorado State College, Fort Collins, will teach social studies while at Montclair.

In a special endorsement, Montclair State President DeAlton Partridge, stated that "Dr. Rugg, having a long and distinguished career as an educator, is an exceptional choice to serve as our visiting professor. We believe he will bring some new ideas and stimulating insights to our campus."

Dr. Rugg has studied at the universities of Illinois, Colorado, and received his doctorate in education and psychology at Teachers College, Columbia University. He was a teaching assistant at Teachers College, Fort Collins, and later was a research associate at the Lincoln School of the college.

While at Colorado State Teachers College, he helped organize a unique program which brought students to Colorado State in connection with community activities in Greely, Colorado, site of the college. The program resulted from Dr. Rugg's participation in the Commission on Teacher Education, which had found that a large gap in the preparation of teachers was in the failure of teachers to provide prospective teachers the opportunity to study the local community in which they would teach. The Inter-Sorority Council of Colorado State College voted to invite Dr. Rugg to come to the campus to help organize a unique program which would bring students to the Colorado State College site to study in connection with community activities.

While at the University of Colorado, he served on the administrative committee which planned the program. The students at the university were involved in professional and social activities which were coordinated with the college's goal to bring the community spirit both in professional and social activities on campus.

Dr. Rugg has served in the university at Iowa State, Utah State, New York State, and Colorado State College, the University of Colorado, and the University of Nebraska. He has been a member of the National Board of the Social Studies, and the National Survey of Teacher Education. He has spoken scores of addresses to professional and civic organizations, local state, and national, about his work with the Greely Community Committee on Adult Education, the director of the Adult Education Committee, and the director of the School District.

Quarterly
The Quarterly has been significantly absent from our campus life since September. We wonder whether this is an intended action, or whether the staff of Quarterly has been met with a great deal of apathy in their search for undiscovered literary talents. If the latter is true, then the failure of Quarterly to appear is the fault of the students at MSC, and we must commend Quarterly for withholding an issue which would not be up to the standards of their previous efforts.

Additionally, the Creative Writing Club should be actively supported on this campus—by those interested in contributing; by the administration, in charge of publishing the literary efforts of our students; or poorly organized staff.

For years it has been apparent that the advisory system here at MSC is grossly unsatisfactory. For the most part, advisory staff have not been busy enough to be genuinely concerned about the problems of their advisees. Few undergraduate students are advised by someone who would be under the influence of a sincere adviser who cares about aiding this students in planning a curriculum which will benefit them. The majority of students, however, are left in the dangerous situation of planning a schedule on their own, mainly based on hearsay or information learned by accident.

From this type of planning can occur unfortunate incidents in which the student finds himself without enough credits or without the proper credits for graduation. Unbelievable as this may seem, it happens due to the lack of proper arrangements. Besides this drastic result, this type of self-planning situation may lead to undesirable choices of over-loading or under-loading a schedule, a move which may be later regretted.

With the advent of a new semester, the problems of scheduling and fulfilling curriculum requirements once againloom on the horizon. Although most of us are old enough read to follow courses effectively and are always ample room for advice and counsel by those older and wiser.

THE BILLS DID RING
Advisory Service

The characterization of curriculums on campus just before Christmas and what was designed to find out just how such an installation would work and what the reaction of faculty and students would be have shown some circularity. The bells were rung every hour for some time, and for many days in the beginning the Faculty Senate was satisfied that there were not enough places and facilities. However, after the bell system was rung and several times the bells sounded off at the wrong time.

Thetraumatic experience caused by the SGA circles, the SGA scabs, which made “Welch’s” of us all, the “shame and drain” of budget hearings, the running of the kibbutz Four, the pure pleasure of Warren House, and the new Cafeteria, and the frantic freshman elections, the work of new innovative students, and the first semester is closing its peaceful end to the SGA. We will now scan the pages of the ledger book and see how the year of the SGA has been spent.

A number of our anticipated events went as planned, and the regular events of April, the monthly student government elections; and in general, the meeting of the SGA to be held some time after the immediate start of the second semester.

NOW IS THE TIME DEPARTMENT. We sincerely urge another serious and conscientious attempt at the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any class committee, and we support the continuing the idea of running for any clas

SGA Report

Carillon
Carillon is an accepted part of our campus life for many colleges. The bells are not just at Christmas time and some people on campus seem to think. Usually minimal times sound off the hour and the half hour has been beautified over the campus and in the surrounding community. The moonlight and angels these bells form a very important part of campus tradition.

If a permanent installation was made for the bells, it would probably be located in one of the lower, older or College Hall or the lower, older or College Hall, and would be adjusted to the height. Some benefits could be had from the sound on all parts of the campus.

It is interesting to note that the reactions from neighbors were all favorable, at least those that came to the President’s office. Reactions among faculty and students were evidently mixed.

Perhaps the step to arrange a bell to determine the hour. The reaction of the majority on campus was the same; it was not an overwhelming one.

The construction work going on in College Hall will be aligned to improve the fire convenience of the building, and the building is a bit hazardous. The building was a fire hazard and would act as floors in a fire and the spread of smoke and flames. Closing the stairwells, while reducing us of much much-needed space in lower center hall, will increase the security of the building greatly.

Please call for a rather complete re-utilization of this building after the new buildings have been completed. Instead, which was the first, and for a number of years the only building on campus, is the only memory many alumni have of Montclair. It will, for many years continue to be the center of administrative offices and of the house many classrooms. Plans of the Department of English, Social Studies, Business Administration, Geography, and Language to remain in the buildings in the near future.

The Audio—Visual Department has been working on making the general area where it is located but was never designed for and library annex will be made use of by the students, faculty, and teachers. Tentative plans can be seen for an expansion of this building to be made where the present library offices are making access to the new library is also direct.

Growth, expansion, and improved access have been the goals, but some inconvenience. This is the price we pay for growth.

E. DeAlton Partridge

A student investigation of the existing campus parking problem has been launched by the SGA Parking Committee. A list of parking complaints has been compiled and the committee has set up to look at these and other student parking questions to the Personnel Department.

The committee is to serve as an official liaison between the long-suffering students of Montclair and the equally concerned administrators. It is hoped that some constructive parking solution will result from continued cooperation.

One of the major student complaints concerned the issuing of parking to areas that are not marked as No Parking zones. The Committee also recommends the hiring of additional student parking directors to meet the demands caused by the morning influx. The recommended pay rate was set at a dollar an hour.

The students also questioned the unpermitted parking of cars by students who are not authorized to be on campus. It is felt that these cars could be designated here while still being allowed to use the available parking spaces.

A question was also raised about getting any fees recharged for recharging the sale of parking stickers and the collection of fines into many small pro-

Students Measure Camp Experience

The results of the student evaluation of the summer outdoor education program have been released. The 150 students who were asked to rate various aspects of the camping experience. A five point system, ranging from one point for "poor" to five points for "excellent" was used.

In respect to pre-camp orientation and planning, 118 of the students rated the student Handbook and other materials given as good, 124 felt that information about equipment and clothing needs was good, while 71 felt that information, talks and lectures were only average.

Regarding camp facilities and program mechanics, the majority of students felt that the quality and quantity of food was excellent, and that cabin arrangements, program scheduling and student-planned activities were good.

One hundred and twelve of the students evaluating the camp program felt that they had gained a new understanding and appreciation of the outdoors; 100 saw value in the planned conservation activities, as well as the farm trip and hikes, and 101 had experienced personal and social growth through community living. However, more than half felt that opportunities for planned and informal recreational activities and value of the student-planned program
