State to Vote on Bond Issue

On November 3, the voters of this state will be asked to decide, either for or against, the bond issue presented in the form of a referendum by the State Board of Higher Education for New Jersey. The referendum, which seeks the consent of the people to a bond issue, is an attempt to obtain the necessary funds for the construction of new buildings and other vital improvements at the State's institutions of higher education.

The referendum will affect Montclair State College, which is one of the institutions mentioned in the bond issue. The board seeks to borrow $50 million for the construction of a new science building, a new library, and other improvements at the college. The funds will be used to provide modern facilities for the students of Montclair State College and to enhance the educational opportunities available to them.

The referendum is important because it represents an opportunity for the people of New Jersey to contribute to the development of their state's higher education institutions. The bond issue is an attempt to ensure that the state's institutions of higher education remain competitive and continue to provide high-quality education to its students. The referendum will give the people of New Jersey a chance to express their support for the improvement of the state's higher education system.

Those who are in favor of the bond issue argue that it is necessary to ensure that the state's higher education institutions remain competitive and provide the students with the best possible education. They believe that the bond issue will provide the necessary funds to construct modern facilities, purchase new equipment, and attract the best instructors to the state's universities.

On the other hand, those who are against the bond issue argue that the state should not borrow money to finance the construction of new buildings and other improvements. They believe that the state should instead use its existing resources to support the institutions of higher education. They argue that the bond issue is an unnecessary burden on the state's taxpayers and that it will increase the state's debt.

Regardless of one's position on the bond issue, it is important to remember that the referendum is a democratic process that gives the people of New Jersey a chance to express their views. It is important to participate in this process by voting on November 3 and expressing our support for the improvements that we believe are necessary for the state's higher education institutions.
Broadway Producer to Speak;

On Thursday, November 5 at 7:00 p.m., Players of Montclair State College will present Arthur Cantor, famed Broadway producer, in the recital hall of the music building. Players is bringing Mr. Cantor to Montclair as a guest speaker for its November meeting. Mr. Cantor, a Harvard graduate, is well known in theatrical circles both as a producer and a director.

Cantor broke into the motion picture field soon after World War II as a publicity agent for the Playwright's Company, then one of the most active theatrical organizations on Broadway. There, as an assistant to the press representative, he publicized nearly forty shows, ranging from musicals such as "Miss Liberty," through comedies "Goodbye, My Fancy" and "Dream Girl!," to serious dramas, "Darkest of Noon" and "John of the Luftwaffe." In 1950, Cantor became a member of the Playwright's Company, Cantor, and the American Players, under Cantor's management. In November of 1950, Cantor's firm produced "House of哩 at Night," "Two for the Sea," directed by Tyrone Guthrie.

In 1955, Cantor made an appearance as a theatrical producer with Paddy Chayefsky's "Airport" at the Phoenix Theatre, directed by Tyrone Guthrie. After a two-year run in London, the play is now in rehearsal for a projected return to New York, Cantor directing.

Cantor and Guthrie have joined forces many times, with results as good as his most successful collaboration, "All the Way Home." Paddy Chayefsky's "Ciderhouse," and Herb Gardner's "A Thousand Clowns.

In addition to his publicity, production and directing activities, Cantor has contributed many articles to leading newspapers, magazines and the movement. Last season he was sponsored by Chayefsky's "The Passion of Jonathan Derby," and his most recent contribution to the theatre stage was the first revival entitled "The Committee" now playing to enthusiastic audiences on Broadway.

Players welcome anyone interested in attending Mr. Cantor's lecture to participate in his next meeting.

MARIO MUNNO

H. rart Krain, a sculptor in the group, stated that when she is creating, her concern is her reaction. It is after her work is satisfactory to herself that the public reaction comes to her attention.

Of great interest to those present was the role of the critic. The consensus seemed to be that the critic is necessary, useful, and yet sometimes detrimental to the artist. Critics are like housewives. They prevent the horse from plowing. (Check) A good reviewer can stop an artist's development just as anyone can.please for one job is reluctant to go on to another. A critic must be critical to the public to be effective. He cannot constantly praise in one direction and sti-hold the public's confidence in what he says.

The distinction between the creative arts and the interpretive arts was of interest to those present. Mr. Munno drew in the simialogy between an abstract ex-eriment and a musical composition. They both must have an understanding of their own art in order to be creatively effective. Just as a jazz musician must know music, an abstract expressionist must have a knowledge of draw-ning. He must also know when to stop working a painting if it is to be considered successful.

The main interchange of ideas between the panel and the audi-tence was of interest to those present. A desire to have more such panels in the future was expressed by many present.

McGinty Stresses New Progress in Construction

There are several new attractions on campus of which Mr. Joseph McGlynn, head of the Maintenance Department, feels the campus should be aware. As most of the students have already observed, the final phase of construction on the Administration Building is almost completed. The much-needed closet room space will be welcomed by professors and students alike. If the bad news is successful and the new construction program on the other administrative building will begin.

The parking situation on campus has not stood still while the campus expands. As many students, especially commuters, have, there is a new student parking lot behind Sprague Library. It is capable of holding up to 215 cars. It has been轰炸ed by occasional错过了 by professors and students alike. If the good news is successful and the new construction program on the other administrative building will begin.
