Eleven Seniors Named To "Who's Who" List

The list of Montclair State College students selected for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities was announced by the publisher of the Who's Who last week in a ceremony to be held at the MONTCLARIAN. The Who's Who selections for this year are eleven senior students who have exhibited outstanding four years at Montclair State College.

The original voting list consisted of the entire membership of the senior class. This list was up set by Miss Marie Frazee, academic counselor. It was first circulated to the administration, personnel, department heads, Senior Class advisor, and the full-tired assembly of this year's SGA. These people voted for the eleven students they considered most worthy of the honor.

Balloons Continue

The second and final ballot, consisting of the fourteen students with the highest vote totals was then distributed to the voters. The ballots were cast by members of the A & Wards Committee and depending on which one received the most votes within the voting period, the students themselves were chosen as Who's Who for the Class of 1964.

Students Salute Late President

On Monday, November 24, a Commemorative Tree was planted in recognition of the first anniversary of the assassination of the 35th President of the United States, John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

The program started with an organ prelude played by Russell Harlow, followed by the Pledge of Allegiance and the "Star-Spangled Banner," accompanied by Mr. Hayton on the organ.

James Cottingham, SGA President, made the introductory remarks. Jim urged a resolution by everyone to the cause of world peace and that Kennedy had worked for during his lifetime.

Ernie Elvin, SGA Senator, "Are Maria," by Bach-Georges Bachar, accompanied, by Mr. Hayton, after which students Schubert's "Laudy for All Seasons" Day.

Bill Meyers, past president of the NJEA, said, "The Ideal." But Meyers said that Kennedy represented the symbol of ideal courage, vitality, and leadership. He went on to say that one should remember the man and what he did rather than the untimely way in which he died.

Is Apathy Dying?

Over a period of several years, the leaders of Montclair State College organizations have raised their voices in un­ den to denounce "apathy" on the part of the student body. The natural question to follow such a statement is "Oh, what does apathy exist?" Groups have accused the student body of an imperviousness to culture, lack of school spirit, and total ignorance of what the school offers them in any media.

In a school whose enrollment is over 3300 students, there should be no room for cultural apathy or any other type of apathy. Montclair State College does have in existence and is presently giving the student body a wide spectrum of cultural activities. However, there are no programs that are approved by the school in the East. In a recent article in the "NJEA Review," the president of the Montclair College and various students were interviewed about the lack of cultural activities in the school. There are, however, several clubs where the school remains open. We must continuously work with our students; a certain number of school days are required each year. However, since students are absent from school, they could have pro­duced an assembly program, and various activities could arise in this area. A good director and students with much time free are hard to find.

Therefore, there can be no reat to stop work at eleven o'clock for a "window for quiet and per­ onal silent prayer."

Veterans Day this year has been attacked. A mistake has been made; it cannot be undone. Let us make a better showing when we are in one way or another, celebrate Veterans Day.

Bookstore Problem

One morning ago, the college bookstore closed for a week to take inventory. During that week, nothing could be bought at the college bookstore. This is an operation again for several weeks. Everything is running smoothly, except for a small detail. No supplies have a purchase order and the old ones are diminishing rapidly. One has the feeling that this is no way to run a bookstore, especially one which is devoted to supplying the student body. One also has the feeling that the college bookstore which is devoted to the student body will always be successful. However, I would like to commend the managers of the bookstore to the student body even if things continue as they are. The college bookstore is an example of the Law of Diminishing Returns in sc­

Students See Schiller

by Berniece Hillman

Tuesday evening, November 24, a group of Montclair students, who make up the bulk of German language classes at the college, attended the opening night of the drama, "Don Carlos" by Friedrich von Schiller, which was performed in German by the world-wide-acclaimed Schiller Theatre of West Berlin at the New York State Theatre in Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts in N.Y.C.

A chartered bus provided transportation for the group. Accompanying the students were Dr. E. Lebel, who organized and was in charge of the excursion, her mother, and Mrs. Maxwell.

The Schiller Theatre, largest and most important of West Berlin's twenty theatres, was founded in 1907, destroyed during World War II, and rebuilt in 1961. It has toured Austria, France, Holland, Great Britain, and Finland. Much preparation was necessary for their visit, to the United States. For instance, the troupe had to transport a huge three-ton revolving stage 45 feet in diameter from Berlin. It was needed for "Don Carlos," and no such stage could be found in the United States. The troupe's visit marks the first time since World War II that Berlin has paid a cultural call on New York in the form of a theatrical performance. The Montclair entourage enjoyed the drama very much. The performances of Emil Deutsch as Philip II, Rolf Henniger as Carlos, Eva-Katharina Schultz as Elisabeth, and Gisela Stein as Princess Eboli were especially noteworthy. New York Times drama critic received the drama very warmly also.
Stereo Listening Posts Installed in Library

Two stereo "listening posts" of M.S.C.'s Sprague Library are presently equipped with a pair of stereo record players, and there are admissions for four other "posts" as of this writing. In both machines stereo may be heard at these new listening points to twenty-five feet.

The Audio-Visual Center has been allotted these "listening posts" as part of its expanding program. The Center's interpretation of the "posts" is to emphasize the importance of audio-visual aids to actually bring these aids directly to students and teachers. The allocations are ample, but are not in use because the "posts" have not been utilized in complete working order then, as in the past.

Beckwith Congratulated

Beckwith was congratulated by the students and congratulated Robert Beckwith, President of Montclair State College, for his fine leadership. He stated that his idea stemmed from his own two years in the service of the United States.

PI GAMMA MU REPRESENTATIVES VISIT

Three representatives of sororities from Montclair College, Long Branch State, came to the Montclair State Campus on Monday. Their purpose was to gather ideas from the ISC of Montclair in order that they might start one of their own.

Pi Gamma Mu at the present time has 11 fraternities and 4 sororities which belong to the IPSKC. The main problem that they have with this organization is that the fraternities have greater power over the sororities due to their size.

Dr. Charity Randin, dean of women students, Carol Jacobus, president of ISC, and members of the ISC spoke with the representatives from Montclair. They explained the organization and the activities of Montclair's ISC.

The needs of Montclair college and those of the ISC at Montclair. Montclair is a more extensive college, having fraternity and sorority houses and allowing alcoholic beverages at many fraternity and sorority events.

Pi Gamma Mu received help in their idea of ISC but will probably have a conflict one that is their own type.

They next took a look into one that functions in a college closer to their own type.

Gusty and his room, working in the rain and the dark, first tried to repair the damage then to repair the damage and then repair the damage. They were, doing a direct job for which they were not hired, working onto the evening when they could have been doing something else. There was no sign of appreciation, they were not paid. They worked there and saw much of this activity.

1. As I come from time to time will all require a reminder of the amount of time and energy we have put into this relationship (I am sure I too need a reminder). As I see it, when the time comes to be faced with our problems, many different solutions to the problem are possible and often make it difficult to make a choice. We need to make sure that we do not forget that in our method of solution we do not create more problems than we try to solve.

2. I do not mean to say that I am not interested in intellectual intercourse among teachers, or to say that we have cut ourselves off from our colleagues, or that we have broken their ties.

The Peace Corps offers another way to do this.

Challenging Opportunity

Another factor lies in the opportunity to challenge our ability not only to do a job, but to do it well. To a great extent students, Asia, or South Africa, have a provision a personal proving ground for the volunteer teacher. Conversations with many returning volunteers have topped a personal self-assessment. Emerging from a society that is too much in the individual, the volunteer finds this at the State University of Iowa. He has enough self-confidence and intellectual capability to understand the complexities involved in the Peace Corps. The student understands the importance of the Peace Corps and the role that he or she can play.

Finally, there is the added advantage of the administrative volunteer, of increased opportunities in all fields. One has only to look at the bulletins to see the educational scholarships, or the openings in government and business, which he or she may be considering. BRINGING is there, it needs only someone with courage enough to step forward and say, "I am here and I saw much of this activity."
