The Montclarion, March 15, 1979

The Montclarion

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.montclair.edu/montclarion

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.montclair.edu/montclarion/1469

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Newspapers at Montclair State University Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Montclarion by an authorized administrator of Montclair State University Digital Commons. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@montclair.edu.
State, Union Air Opposing Views

by Nora DePalma

TRENTON—Intense negotiating is taking place right now between the state of NJ and the Council of NJ State College Locals to avert a strike scheduled for Tues., March 20. Yesterday, T. Edward Hollander, chancellor of higher education, and Marcoantonio Lacatena, president of the Council of NJ State College Locals, held separate press conferences in Trenton regarding the possible strike.

The presidents of the eight state colleges attended the press conference with Hollander. MSC President David W.D. Dickson was present along with Frank Mason, chief negotiator for the state.

Hollander and Lacatena said they are both prepared for 24 hour negotiations from today until Sunday. Hollander, especially recognized the non-teaching professionals who had a 90 per-cent turnout the negotiations. "This puts strength in our negotiators' hands," Keenen emphasized. . . .

The final vote count was 1,866 yes votes in favor of the authorization of a statewide teachers' strike. James Keenen, president of the MSC chapter of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT).

The tentative strike date has been set for Tues., March 20, at 7 am, according to Lacatena. The faculty about strike procedures. The students then moved down the street to the Trenton Motor Inn where Lacatena held his conference.

The issues that are being negotiated are: a higher wage increase for the faculty than the state is prepared to give, academic freedom for the faculty, and the right of the faculty to choose their own textbooks. The rights of academic freedom are no longer supported by state law, according to Hollander, since the NJ State Supreme Court passed the Ridgefield Park decision.

Despite what the press has reported thus far, Hollander explains this discrepancy by saying, "They've offered us a two and a half per-cent increase after a delay of six months." He pointed out that that which would make next year's raise only one and a quarter per-cent.

Hollander had previously said that a strike by the faculty is illegal under their present contract which expires June 30.

"After all, they make a lot of money," he said, "We are going to do everything we can to resolve everything in dispute. We believe there is a middle ground."

Negotiating will take place at the Rutgers Labor Center in New Brunswick. If negotiations are not completed to the satisfaction of the union by Sunday night, the union will strike on Tuesday. On Monday, Lacatena will spend the day instructing the faculty about strike procedures.

Approximately thirty students from Stockton State College (SSC) held a demonstration outside the statehouse while Hollander was holding his press conference in the Senate chambers. The students reportedly were not parking hassles, your days could be numbered. An ordinance to restrict parking on streets surrounding the college has been proposed to Clifton Municipal Council. If it passes, cars without parking permits will be ticketed. See the story on page 5.

Exhilarating Music

Eddie Palmieri brought a driving sound, a Latin flavor, and an enjoyable and exciting evening to Memorial Auditorium on Monday night. See the review on page 16.

Clever Commentaries

Born-again Christian Eldridge Cleaver spoke to more than 800 people at MSC last week. The former Black Panther gave a lecture entitled "Soul on Ice—Soul on Fire." He discussed the changes his life has undergone in the past two decades. See the story on page 7.
BALLROOM ART '79
Juried Exhibition of Student Work
March 18 - 23
9 am - 6 pm
9 am - 8 pm
Monday Tuesday Friday
Opening Reception
Sunday, March 18
5 pm - 8 pm
BALLROOM B
STUDENT CENTER
Sponsored by Fine Arts Committee of MAOC
School of Fine and Performing Arts
Controversy was censorship. The restraining of obscenity and lack of clarity concerning the word censorship. In Dickson's mind, censorship pertains to word censorship. Dickson stated his belief that the outstanding issues have been ironed out. "I have real hopes that the situation can be happily resolved," he said, adding, "I feel we can now reach a mutually satisfactory document." As outlined in the proposed document, the administration will maintain the system, and Student Activities will program it. The SGA, which financed two thirds of the system, will have top programming priority.

The only remaining concern, according to Sahner, is the position of the Faculty-Student Co-op. Co-op, which has also contributed financially to the system, has been "conspicuously silent throughout the negotiations." Sahner commented worriedly.

Sahner continued that if Co-op steps in with any objections to the present proposal, new meetings will have to be held. This can only result in further stalling of an air date. Barring any unforeseen difficulties, Sahner is hoping the system will be ready to air by the end of March. Training sessions have been conducted and the system can be properly run by students. Sahner definitely wants the system functioning prior to the presentation of Telerad programming.

Sahner feels all the delays have been very unfortunate but said it would have been a very easy task to give in to the administration. Implicit in all Sahner's decisions was his concern for the future of the system.

Sahner noted that if he hadn't stood his ground, "The students would suffer in the long run." He is tired of students paying for things that will be of no use to them.

There will be no commercial television aired on the tv monitors as is now being viewed by students on campus. The only exceptions to this rule would be airing of such presentations as speeches by the President of the US.

Sahner wants no advertising to be aired. If advertising is used, all revenues would be forwarded to Student Activities.

The tv monitor system was initiated to unite the college community by serving as an information base. It will also function as an excellent means for Telerad programming to be seen by a majority of the campus.

Other suggested program uses are airing of news events, televised concerts, and hopefully, financial aid information.

Dickson felt the system could have been of significant use during the recent blackout of five buildings on campus due to electrical failure.

Never Too Late To Fight Hike

With all the interest surrounding the possible teachers' strike, students may have forgotten that there might be a tuition hike.

Can the students do anything to prevent a hike? Is it too late to try?

"It's never too late," Chris Jackman, speaker of the state assembly in Trenton said. Jackman said that students could help themselves by writing to their individual assemblymen. "Don't write a form letter," he advised. "If possible, call them on the telephone."

Some students may think that there is only a small group of legislators who decide if there is to be a tuition hike. Jackman explained that the Appropriations Committee will make a recommendation to the state senate and assembly, but ultimately, the senate and assembly will have the final vote.

Prezes Make Progress on Monitors

The sixth annual MSC Phonathon is a major effort to seek funds for the university. The phonathon is a major fundraising event of the SGA and WMSC, as well as students from Webster Hall, Freeman Hall, Harambee House (a section of the Alumni Association), and the Clove Road Apartments.

Other participating groups have been the Women's Softball team, the Alpha Phi Omega (A90) fraternity, the Fencing team, the Latin American Students Organization (LASON), and Players, MSC's theater group.

The phonathon has three more weeks remaining. It is hoped that the association's goal of $45,000 will be reached. They have $31,934 left to go.

Phoning for Dollars

Rhonda Woolf, a resident of Webster Hall, lends a helpful hand in the Alumni Association Phonathon. The phonathon has raised over $13,000 in pledges to date.

Phoning for Dollars

by Barbara J. Runser

"The total amount contributed to the Alumni Association through its phonathon so far is $13,066," Rich Renzulli, director of alumni affairs and overall coordinator of the phonathon, said.

The sixth annual MSC Alumni Association phonathon raised this money in its first four nights of operation, during which MSC students manned the telephones in an effort to seek funds for the association.

The phonathon is a major fundraising event of the association and will continue through the entire month of March.

The basic idea of the phonathon is to have students and alumni telephone alumni asking for pledges for the association. The funds raised during the phonathon go to various programs of the association.

Renzulli, standing in front of a long table lined with several phones said that students enjoy making the phone calls.

"The students have a good time. Many have returned to do more telephone manning. Many groups hope to win a prize," Renzulli said. Prizes are offered by the association to the group and individual who helps to raise the most money.

As he glanced at the blackboard where the amount of total monies pledged was visible, Renzulli said that everything was going well and that he was optimistic.

Various participants in the phonathon have been members of the SGA and W MSC, as well as students from Webster Hall, Freeman Hall, Harambee House (a section of Bohn Hall), and the Clove Road Apartments.

Other participating groups have been the Women's Softball team, the Alpha Phi Omega (A90) fraternity, the Fencing team, the Latin American Students Organization (LASON), and Players, MSC's theater group.

The phonathon has three more weeks remaining. It is hoped that the association's goal of $45,000 will be reached. They have $31,934 left to go.
Outlook In Doubt

The Outlook, student newspaper of Monmouth College, resumed publication on March 8, Dave Wilson, entertainment editor, reported.

The staff of the Outlook ceased publication because they felt they were not receiving enough student participation.

The paper was asking the administration to award credits to all editors for their services. Also they urged that it be made mandatory for all students enrolled in journalism courses to contribute to the paper. The administration has not complied with either of these requests, according to Wilson.

Patty Labutkin, the paper's editor who was strongly in favor of the strike, recently resigned. The newly elected editor, Dan Stern, has decided that the paper should pursue this job action but should continue to publish while doing so.

Wilson feels that the one good thing that has come out of this job action is that the paper has received more concern and cooperation from students.

Advisors Outraged

The preceptors (house advisors) at Rutgers University (New Brunswick) may go on strike, Frank Freyre, a news editor for the Daily Targum reported.

The 102 preceptors are complaining that they have not received a pay increase in about four years. In light of current inflationary prices, they feel this is an injustice, according to Freyre.

Negotiations are presently going on between the university and the preceptors. If a strike does occur, it will create two adverse effects for students. Firstly, Freyre commented, students will have no one to go to if problems arise on their floor. Secondly, the preceptors are supposed to conduct the interviews for the new applicants. These interviews are scheduled for April 1.

According to Freyre, if a strike does come about, it will probably begin next week.

Cuisine-A Pleasure?

Cuisine Ltd., the company which supplies the food at Trenton State College (TSC) has had their contract renewed for next year, Chris Vota, editor-in-chief of the Signal commented regretfully.

TSC has been dealing with Cuisine Ltd. for the past three years. Next year they will continue to operate at the same cost and conditions that they have in the past, Vota reported. "I don't see how they can operate this long for the same price without cutting corners somewhere," he added.

According to the Signal, William Klepper, chairman of the Interassociation for Food Service Review, said that evaluations of Cuisine Ltd. made by the SGA were considered. Vota commented that he does not believe this is true because the ratings were very low.

A major complaint about Cuisine Ltd. is their poor sanitary conditions. Vota reported that they have thus far received five conditional ratings.

"How long will students be subjected to eating this 'alleged' food?" Vota questioned.

NJSA to File Injunction

In the course of a three hour meeting on a leisurely Sunday afternoon, the New Jersey Student Association (NJSA) decided it would file an injunction against the state teachers' union in the event of a strike.

They also agreed to file a damage action against the state of NJ, requesting a refund of student tuition proportional to the class time lost due to a teachers' strike.

The Board of Trustees of the NJSA also decided to allow David O'Malley to remain as executive director of the organization, despite a resolution supported by NJSA president Leila Sadat who asked for his resignation.

Sadat herself resigned as president of the NJSA following the board's decision on O'Malley. "I am resigning from an organization which I believe has lost its purpose," she read from her official letter of resignation before leaving the meeting.

Mike Metz, who formerly held the position of treasurer of the NJSA, became president, according to the line of succession in the absence of a vice president.

A new vice president was also elected to fill the position which was vacated three months ago. Dave Geist, a junior from Glassboro State College (GSC), was elected by the board to this position. He defeated Frank Cosolito, MSC's SGA vice president, who had also been nominated for the position.

NJSA decided to file an injunction against the NJ American Federation of Teachers (AFT) in the hope that it will "restrain the AFT from engaging in a strike," according to O'Malley. The AFT represents all state college faculty.

The damage action filed against the state of NJ will be specifically directed toward the NJ Board of Higher Education and the state colleges.

The NJSA represents the 70,000 students who attend NJ's eight state colleges, the New Jersey Institute of Technology (NJIT), and Douglass College.

As the board met in executive session, Sadat presented her reasons for considering O'Malley's resignation. She felt that he had not carried out his duties as defined in his contract requirements. O'Malley is a paid employee of the NJSA, receiving a yearly salary of approximately $9500.

O'Malley defended himself, claiming that there are no specific duties of the executive director as stated in the contract. He feels the contract is "too general," and therefore he could not be held to Sadat's charges.

SGA President Charles Sahner, who also attended the meeting, felt that the issue between O'Malley and Sadat was a "personal dispute which could not be resolved privately and so was made public."

Sahner also commented that he saw no "tangible evidence" on either side. Cosolito refused to comment about the board's decision to keep O'Malley.
AFT: We're Prepared for Strike

by Mary Ann McCarthy

The union is organization­ ally and physically preparing themselves for a strike," James Keenen, president of the AFT, commented. A strike headquarters has been set up at the home of faculty member Ben Minor to facilitate striking faculty if a job action is necessary. The union has proceeded to set up committees necessary for an escort onto the campus." But he added that if there is an academic freedom clause in the contract,

the faculty will still have it.

"There is no college without academic freedoms," he continued, saying that "freedom" as such, shouldn't have to be included in any contract.

However, Hollander made reference to the Ridgefield Park decision, when he commented that "some items of the contract (academic freedoms) are now prohibited from inclusion in a contract."

Lacatena said that the administration has broken promises to the faculty before, although he did not cite any examples. "We are not going to accept promises anymore," he said. "Now we want action."
New Route

The shuttle bus route on campus will be rerouted through the center of campus, according to Peter Macagne, Clove Road Apartments.

WANTED: Someone to fill the position of Assistant to the President of the Student Senate. Contact Dean of Students Office—X4141.

FOR SALE: 1975 Mercruiser. Monarch, air conditioning, rear window defogger, power windows, spoke hubcaps. 4 new steel belted radial w/w vinyl roof. Call 475-9929.

FOR SALE: Pioneer TP27R 8-track player, slide mount and Jensen coaxial Speakers. $100. Call Mary at 573-0170 between 10:30 pm and 11:30 pm.

FOR SALE: Pioneer P727 R- track player, slide mount and Jensen coaxial Speakers. $100. Call Mary at 573-0170 between 10:30 pm and 11:30 pm.

FOR SALE: Click & Pop Removal. SI 75. Contact Rotti 345-8454.

FOR SALE: 1975 Noise Reduction Unit 5000. Contact Jensen Coaxial Speakers. $100.

FOR SALE: Pioneer TC-727 R- track player, slide mount and Jensen coaxial Speakers. $100. Call Mary at 573-0170 between 10:30 pm and 11:30 pm.

FOR SALE: Pioneer TC-727 R-track player, slide mount and Jensen coaxial Speakers. $100. Call Mary at 573-0170 between 10:30 pm and 11:30 pm.

FOR SALE OR REM: One 50mm 1.9) - with case. $1,900.

FOR SALE: 1975 Mercruiser. Monarch, air conditioning, rear window defogger, power windows, spoke hubcaps. 4 new steel belted radial w/w vinyl roof. Call 475-9929.

FOR SALE: 1975 Noise Reduction Unit 5000. Contact Jensen Coaxial Speakers. $100.

FOR SALE: Pioneer TC-727 R-track player, slide mount and Jensen coaxial Speakers. $100. Call Mary at 573-0170 between 10:30 pm and 11:33 pm.
Iceman Sets MSC Crowd on Fire

by Karen Celeste

“1 was late in life when he touched me, but I say better late than never,” Eldridge Cleaver said, coining a phrase. The former Black Panther Party leader, and believer in communism and Marxism, has become a born-again Christian.

Cleaver spoke to more than 800 people in the Student Center Ballrooms on March 8. Both “young faces and bald heads,” as Cleaver stated, were attracted. The lecture, “Soul on Ice—Soul on Fire,” was sponsored by Chi Alpha, the international Christian ministry to colleges and universities.

Dressed in a gray suit and white turtleneck sweater, Cleaver shared with the crowd his development from “unrighteous little devil” as a 12-year-old, to a militant caught up in the “jailhouse revolution” and then to become a fugitive by jumping bail. Cleaver traveled to communist countries, learning his beliefs would change. While contemplating suicide in Paris, Cleaver claimed that Christ appeared to him in a vision in the moon. “I then decided to surrender and get my life straightened out,” he said.

“I committed every crime in the book. But I’m not going to justify or clean up the past. I replaced God with my own resources and friends, the slightly gray haired Cleaver explained.

Cleaver became a member of the party in ’66. Two years later he jumped bail and fled to Cuba because of a shootout between the and California’s Oakland Police. He then traveled to other communist countries to learn military tactics and guerilla warfare.

Cleaver joined his wife and child in Algeria. A change in combination of his and his wife’s features, he “knew it was not an accident. God designed this,” he said.

“I was no longer closed to the idea of God. I became nervous because there was a God out there and I was one of the loudest mouths who didn’t believe there was a God,” Cleaver said.

Cleaver and his family left Algeria and went to France. The first year they hid, but soon were able to live freely with the help of a female friend, who was friendly with the president of France.

He began to dislike his lifestyle and Paris. He saw many things were changing. Black men were getting elected in many offices and Cleaver wanted to go back to the US.

“I began to appreciate my American citizenship. I am, proud to be an American,” Cleaver said patriotically.

He went into a “psychological depression” and thought of ending his life. One night, pistol in hand, trying to get the courage to use it, Cleaver saw an image of himself in the moon, he said. As the image fell away, he then saw his old heroes, Castro, Marx, and Engels pass by. Finally the image of Jesus Christ appeared, he said.

Cleaver decided to surrender. The American Government thought he was “up to something.”

“They thought I was trying to get a passport. But I had a box full of passports,” Cleaver remarked.

Cleaver was taken to Oakland Prison upon his arrival to the US. “I asked the Lord to come into my life and change my life,” Cleaver said. “I didn’t feel like I was in jail. I felt free,” he added.

Cleaver’s bail was set for $100,000, which another born-again Christian paid. “I repent all that I’ve done that was not for the Lord,” he said.

“If I don’t believe, I’m going to die and stay dead. But if I believe, I’m going to die and rise again,” Cleaver said. Many people in the audience replied “Amen,” “Praise the Lord,” or “Alleluia.”

After Cleaver left the podium, Rev. Steven Espamer, Chi Alpha campus chaplain, led an “alter call.” If those in the audience wanted to accept Jesus into their lives they were asked to stand and get into a line and pray. Only a few people accepted this call.
CAR Fights Racism

by Shari Kirkup

The state's real reason for a tuition increase is racism.

Leaders of the faculty union are not very forthcoming with students' interests, but rather are out for themselves.

They are the leaders of MSC's Committee Against Racism (CAR) which is headed by Lucinda Long, a political science professor on campus.

Long feels that racism hurts all people and she believes that all people, no matter what race, should get together and unify.

She said that CAR is an activist organization which believes in fighting racism by having campaigns and marches. CAR is a rank and file organization which does not rely on politicians to get what they want, but rather they rely on people organizing, according to Long.

Long has publicly attacked SGA leaders for what she calls their contempt for students.

She has also accused leaders in the New Jersey Student Association (NJSA) of being "mis-leaders" who have a "do-nothing attitude" toward the fight against the tuition increase.

Pat Thomas, an MSC student who is very active in CAR, explained that CAR is affiliated with the National CAR. She said that the national organization was started in 1973 at a founding convention held in New York.

The organization on campus is a chapter of this national group.

"The issue that started this organization is Arthur Jensen. He said that blacks are genetically lower in intelligence. We totally disagreed with this," Long said.

"Last semester CAR stopped Professor Shockley from coming to MSC. He believed that blacks are genetically inferior and we don't believe this," Thomas said.

"We also organized a union in Los Angeles and had a nationwide campaign against the Ku Klux Klan (KKK) and the Nazis," Long said.

"CAR is nationwide and very powerful. The organization keeps expanding because what we are putting forth is right. We are unifying people to fight together," Thomas concluded.

Parading

For the second consecutive year, the MSC Riding Club has been invited to ride in the St. Patrick's Day Parade in NYC.

The club raised the money needed for the trip by selling raffle tickets. This was necessary to raise $700 needed to rent 10 horses for the parade.

This is a step for both local and national recognition that the Riding Club has strived for. After the parade the Riding Club will be going to Long Island to open their new season where they hope to improve their current ranking of seventh in the east.

SAY BULL!

TO YOUR STUDENT BODY.

GET THIS UNIQUE "SAY BULL" ATHLETIC SHIRT CUSTOM-PRINTED WITH THE NAME OF YOUR SCHOOL FOR ONLY $5.50.

Bull your way through college in style! With a genuine Schlitz Malt Liquor bull shirt. Featuring our Schlitz Malt Liquor bull with royal blue 3/4 length sleeves and white shirt body. It's made of 70% cotton and 30% polyester. And it's 100% you, because we custom-print the name of your school right on the front.

It's the shirt you'll wear proudly all year long. For jogging, class, team sports and getting together with friends for a round of Schlitz Malt Liquor. After all, if you're going to "SAY BULL" across your chest, you might as well back it up.

MAIL TO: "SAY BULL" JERSEY OFFER  P.O. BOX 9197, ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA 55191

Please send 25-30; Low: 20-25.

In General: Thursday to Saturday will have slightly below normal temperatures but will be sunny. Good weekend to prepare for crossing picket lines.
It's a Crime

By Dave Yourish

In the last few weeks, larcenies and thefts totaling about $9000 have been as common to the MSC campus as potholes have been to area roads.

One of the recent rashes of thefts that have occurred affected John Walsh. Walsh owns a 1978 Trans Am which was stolen Feb. 7. The East Orange Police found the car, but unfortunately it had been completely stripped. The car was worth an estimated $7000.

Another incident occurred on March 7 at 11:15 pm when two young women were walking to their car and saw a male trying to break into it. As one of the women ran toward the car, the suspect saw her and was able to escape in his own car. However, the women did get the license plate number of the car and immediately reported it to the Campus Police. The police have a good lead on the investigation but were unable to release any names.

There have also been several larcenies on campus as of late. On March 1 the car belonging to Joan Smith was robbed of a radio and a tire. The larceny occurred in broad daylight at approximately 11 am. The stolen articles were estimated to be worth about $100.

Kirk Heinz of Livingston was also a victim of larceny on Feb. 28, when someone cut open the roof of his car and stole two stereo speakers from within. The estimated amount of total damage was $744.

On a routine patrol, two campus patrolmen were approached by Michael Tropeano, who stated that someone had broken the windshield of his Camaro Z-28. This happened on Webster Road on March 2 while Tropeano and his friend were visiting the Rat.

In a recent interview, Campus Police Sergeant Herb Lloyd warned that, “Students should try to be more alert.” He also explained that students could be more helpful by reporting any information to the Campus Police.

If students see something suspicious, or if a crime is committed against them, they can contact the Campus Police at 893-4222 in case of emergency only, or at 893-5222 for general information.

---

SGA News

By Benno Miller

The SGA will establish a hot line to provide students with information concerning the tentative strike.

On Mon., March 19, the SGA will hold a closed meeting to officially take a position on the strike.

Other issues resolved at yesterday's meeting included the formation of an Arab Student Association and an appropriation to MSC's Riding Club. The appropriation will enable the club to participate in horse shows.

The class one charter of the Council of International and National Affairs (CINA) was approved. Also discussed was the New Jersey Student Association's (NJSA) decision not to take part in another student rally in Trenton.

CINA was granted their Class One charter for the academic year 1979-1980. The purpose of this organization is to present college community programs that reflect international, national and local topics which concern and effect the student body.

Interest was expressed by legislators in having another student rally in Trenton to show opposition to the tuition hike. However, unless students show interest in this rally, it will not take place.

The NJSA approved MSC’s motion to have another student rally in Trenton.

---

Counseling Available

Counseling for evening students who are majors in the School of Professional Arts and Sciences is available in room 308 of College Hall, Monday through Thursday nights from 4:30 pm-6:30 pm. Regular office hours are from 8:30 am-4:30 pm, Monday through Friday.

---

WMSC 15th to 21st

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Thursday</th>
<th>Friday</th>
<th>Saturday</th>
<th>Sunday</th>
<th>Monday</th>
<th>Tuesday</th>
<th>Wednesday</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>10 am</td>
<td>R. Zelachowski</td>
<td>Brian Barros</td>
<td>Kevin Malvey</td>
<td>Sandy Mckenny</td>
<td>Rich Zelachowski</td>
<td>John Smith</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11 am</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12 am</td>
<td>Mary Alice Ten</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 pm</td>
<td>George Saunder</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 pm</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3 pm</td>
<td>George Saunder</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4 pm</td>
<td>John Clark</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5 pm</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6 pm</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7 pm</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8 pm</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9 pm</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10 pm</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11 pm</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12 pm</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

DAVE GRISMAN TOUR CANCELED!!

Tickets refunded at place of purchase.
Must present ticket for refund.

Sorry, Doug Tuchman.

---

Visit the JOSTEN'S RING Table

in the Student Center Lobby:

THE RING YOU WEAR FOREVER WILL SAVE YOU $10 RIGHT NOW.

Visit the JOSTEN’S RING Table in the Student Center Lobby:

- Tuesday, March 27: 10am—3pm
- Wednesday, March 28: 10am—8pm

---

80,000 ITEMS!!!

Used books, sheet music, records, tapes and art prints.

ON SALE AT: 416 Bloomfield Ave., Montclair

MAR 23-APR 2

Weekdays: 9:30-9:00, Saturdays: 9:30-6:00

44th Annual Sale of College Women's Club of Montclair (AAUW)
In a lengthy letter to the members of the NJ State College community, T. Edward Hollander, chancellor of higher education, expressed his views regarding the impending teachers' strike. What follows are excerpts from the letter, written Mon., March 12.

ECONOMIC ISSUES

The paramount issue will be that of salary increases. The governor has proposed an austere budget with few increases for programs, but the proposed budget does provide limited funds for increased salaries for college faculty members. While it is likely that the amount of the increase may not be as great as in previous years, it is also true that, on the average, salaries for State College faculty are above levels at Princeton University and other private colleges, and substantially exceed salaries of public state college faculties nationally. State College faculty members may also earn significant additional amounts by teaching overload or summer school.

Even so, the State recognizes the importance of helping our faculty maintain real earnings during a period of rising costs. Competitive faculty salaries and adequate promotional opportunities help New Jersey's colleges recruit the very best graduates who seek to pursue careers as faculty members. The size of the salary increase, however, does depend on State tax revenues and the willingness of the public to be taxed. An unlawful faculty strike three months before the expiration of the contract will discourage public support for increased appropriations for faculty salary increases.

The Union has requested a $1,000 across-the-board increase plus salary range adjustments of up to 10%; automatic cost-of-living increases, in-range salary increments of 5% and an extension of maximum range positions by 5%. How to meet these demands out of the relatively small portion of available tax money which can, on the basis of priority, be set aside for salary poses a great challenge to the negotiating process. But the circumstances are real. The States' resources are limited and I ask that you attempt to understand the circumstances.
Dickson to Students

1. Every effort will be made to keep the college open and to maintain campus conditions as close to normal as possible. The campus and classroom buildings will be accessible to faculty and students so that those wishing to attend their classes may do so.

2. All essential services will be maintained and will be available to students: dormitories will be open, food service will operate, the Student Center and library will be open, and infirmary service will be available.

3. In the event of a job action, students should assume that faculty members will be available to teach at all regularly scheduled class times. If a faculty member does not appear within 15 minutes of the scheduled class time, students should presume that class has been cancelled for that particular day. In the event this occurs, students should complete their class assignments without the faculty member. If the faculty member continues to be absent from class, students should undertake independent study and continue to maintain normal progress in the course by reading textbooks and working on term papers.

Dickson to Employees

TO: All Employees
FROM: David W.D. Dickson, President
SUBJECT: Strikes or Job Actions

It has been announced by the Council of New Jersey State College Locals, NJSTF-AFT, AFL-CIO (herein called the Union) that it will seek to cause a strike at the college on or about March 1979. This action has been announced by the Union despite the fact that it has a fully executed agreement with the state running through June 30, 1979, containing a commitment that there will be no strike during the term of the agreement.

Further, even absent the Union’s promise that it would not strike, such conduct by public employees is generally illegal and may subject participants to disciplinary action and other penalties in accord with legal standards of the college.

We realize that this possibility may cause great inconvenience to students and others, but it may be necessary if the educational standards of the college are to be maintained.

5. A central “hot-line” number for student use has been established. You may call 893-2221 from 7 am to 8 pm each day the employee participates in a job action. Individuals will be available to answer your questions, ensure that your right to study is not being interfered with, and, if necessary, to make arrangements to escort you on or off campus.

Throughout the State

A. The rights of all employees to teach and work and students wishing to learn may be preserved.

2. The college will not authorize the payment of salary to any employee participating in a job action.

3. Employees will be expected to indicate to the college their availability for work activities or special assignments commencing the first day of a job action. Failure to so indicate will be considered as evidence of participation in the job action, and this presumption will continue until the first day the employee participates in scheduled duties.

Each college will operate a special information center from 7 am to 8 pm each day during any strike or job action. The following numbers should be used: 893-4482 for general strike information; 893-5222 for access to the campus. Please call these numbers if you have any questions and particularly if your right to work is being interfered with.

James Keenen, president of MSC chapter of the American Federation of Teachers, (AFT) addresses faculty members at yesterday’s AFT union meeting in the Student Center Ballrooms.
We Vote Yes

The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) has received a strike authorization from its statewide membership and the other teaching and non-teaching professionals from the eight state colleges. This authorization is the consensus vote of everyone who will be affected by a possible strike, and is being used by the union in its present negotiations with the state.

To everyone who's involved in the union and state negotiations, it looks like the impending strike is a very real possibility. The union is now gearing up for a strike, doesn't intend to back down on any of its contract demands, and will go through with the job action once confidence in negotiations have been made by Monday. The strike date is set for next Tuesday.

On the other hand, judging from the public statement sent out by T. Edward Hollander, chancellor of higher education on Monday, (excepting are reprinted in today's centerfold) it seems that the state is not about to back down, either.

And so the time has come for the students to make up their own minds on the issue, since student support one way or the other could mean the real difference in the end.

After examining the many facets of the conflict, the newest contract offers seems to be hurting the rank and file faculty the most. The MONTCLARION recognizes that it is the common professor—she ones you find in your chemistry, Spanish, and home economics courses, for example—who will be dragged through the proverbial mud being forced into this job action.

For this reason, the MONTCLARION is reaching out to the faculty members in our support of the strike.

We admit that we disagree with the moves being made by the union leadership. James Keenen, President of the MSC chapter of the AFT, has alienated many students. Union propaganda, which has been covering the campus, is painting a rosy picture of the union and its solidarity. The strike may be an extended one.

But the issues that the union is fighting on are worthy issues; money, academic freedom, and faculty participation in decision making are primary examples. These are the things that extend beyond union and state. They affect every single professor and the 65,000 students who attend the state colleges.

Students, above all, should remember some of the "shady deals" that have already been put over on them since Hollander took office. Hollander now wants to blame declining enrollments for all for everything that our higher education system is built on.

So what the MONTCLARION is doing is encouraging students to support the strike. We realize that strikes are serious businesses and that our support of the strike may mean serious implications to the newspaper.

Not even the SGA has taken a stand on the issue. But as far as we can see, the faculty who are striking have no choice. The faculty, union and non-union, must stand up once and for all for everything that our higher education system is built on. Read the literature and decide for yourself. Consider both sides.

We are confident that a true analysis of the situation will prove positive for the faculty.

We hope that the strike is not a long one. We hope that damage to the students will be minimal, and non-striking professors will not penalize students who do honor the strike.

For those of you who choose to cross the picket lines, the MONTCLARION will continue in its duty to inform the campus community by publishing throughout the strike. Copies of the newspaper will also be made available to any student who docs not wish to cross the lines.

Hopefully, there won't be many people here on campus to read it.
Apathy Begins With Apathy

by David Anderson

Amongst the “involved” and the “Fourth Floor Elite,” student apathy is quickly becoming the sex, parties, and drinking as the most popular subject of conversation. Apparently, most of these students have nothing better to do than sit around talking about how just don’t get involved. This true that MSC has about as many concerned students as Ivory soap has additives but it is incorrect to assume that the blame for this indifference rests solely with the poor, ignorant slobs who are too selfish to allocate time or concern to their college. It would be downright unfair to criticize these pathetic creatures.

There are a number of additional factors that cause students to be apathetic. While most students apologetically plead “I don’t have the time” to justify such urgent missions as feeding their pet goldfish and manicuring their nails, there is one influence that has not received the attention it deserves: how faculty members encourage student apathy.

Yes, Joe Student, now you can blame Dr. Teacher for your disgusting slovenly habits. Perhaps you would like to know why.

Many teachers regard their profession as a nine-to-five job. They come in, teach four or five courses, grade papers and leave for the day. Most faculty receive failing grades in inspiring student activity. Few teachers get involved in student-sponsored projects, or encouraging students to actively participate in extra-curricular activities. With such a pathetic, uncaring attitude toward the job, who can blame students for adopting similar values? If teachers view their role as academicians to foster disinterest (whether consciously or unconsciously) rather than interest, perhaps they should reevaluate their chosen careers.

Other faculty members presume that assigned work in their courses takes precedent over all other things—including natural disasters, acts of God, death, etc. They fail to realize that most students handle an average of 15 credits, and (shock!), take other courses in addition to theirs. However, the burden on students is passed off as insignificant as long as their assignments are completed. With this attitude it appears that extra-curricular activities are viewed as superfluous. At the worst, they are viewed as an unnecessary drain on the student’s academic time. Thus, to encourage participation would be practicing heresy.

In a recent MONTCLARION article (March 8), professor Lucinda Long labeled student leaders, as well as the state and the union leaders, as the enemies of the striking. Statements like that hardened the sentiments of many students and teachers.

To the editor:

I am a part-time graduate student at MSC. I work full-time and am involved in community affairs as well. My time, therefore, is rather rushed. I haven’t read fully about the strike, so perhaps I’m unaware of all the issues at stake. One statement concerning the strike, however, bothers the hell out of me. In a recent MONTCLARION article (March 8), professor Lucinda Long labeled student leaders, as well as the state and the union leaders, as the enemies of the striking. Enemies? Has the campus now become a battleground between teacher and student? The students elect their leaders, and so, by alienating them, she is alienating the entire student community. We—the student body—become the mass enemy. Well, I happen to believe in the naive and outdated philosophy that teachers have great responsibilities toward their students, responsibilities in trust for the future. When you took the job as a teacher, you knew about the hardships, and you knew about the rewards—that sometimes can’t be measured monetarily. Teachers, no matter how strong their convictions might be, aren’t supposed to drive wedges between themselves and the students. Actions like that harden the hearts of a lot of people. Enemies? Professor Long? I think that because of your statement, you indeed might have created some where there were none.

Francis Smith

BA History ’76

TSA Objects

To the editor:

The following is a response to an article entitled “Turkish Students Form New Club,” which appeared in the MONTCLARION on March 8. The members of the Turkish Students Association (TSA) concur that the mentioned article did not fulfill its true purpose—that is, to inform the student body of the aims of the club. It is also a false representation of Turkish culture, history, and contributions to the modern world.

It appears the author of the mentioned article failed to investigate properly the club’s main goals. Instead, the author dwelled predominantly on the private lives of single individuals, and erroneously applied generalizations to Turkish youth, specifically those attending this school.

We were joking, and the interviewer misunderstood. The secretary and chairman of the communications committee, Susan Aybayaz, remarked, “Being Turkish is not a religion. The purpose of strengthening the ties between the students of the college and, also, to facilitate the exchange of educational, cultural, and social experiences with other SGA organizations; (3) they wish to educate the students of the college about Turkish culture and to assist them in any difficulties they may encounter in both their private and college life; (2) they wish to serve the purpose of strengthening the ties between the students of the college and, as well, to facilitate the exchange of educational, cultural, and social experiences with other SGA organizations; (3) they wish to educate the students of the college about Turkish culture and to assist them in any difficulties they may encounter in both their private and college life; (2) they wish to serve the purpose of strengthening the ties between the students of the college and, also, to facilitate the exchange of educational, cultural, and social experiences with other SGA organizations; (3) they wish to educate the members of the association with the problems facing Turkey and to project their educational experiences at MSC to the Turkish community both here and abroad; (4) they wish to coordinate events as the means for implementation of educational, cultural, and social interests.

In conclusion, the TSA members feel that the article “Turkish Students Form New Club” may have hurt the organization. This is evident in the fact that the TSA Open House scheduled last week and mentioned during the interview, was not announced in the article! We ask kindly that the MONTCLARION in the future edit their articles more closely.

Editor’s Note: There is no excuse for the reporter’s equating the Turkish people with the Islamic religion. She was wrong in reporting that they “worship...the prophet Mohammed.” She is a new reporter. But she was writing a feature, not a news article. Her aim was to personalize the club. The club’s goals belong in a news article. She should not disguise all the unity she received. There was no intention to demean anyone.
Hollander is Smarter Than You Think
by Matt Wilson

Why would Hollander want a strike?
To crush the AFT, or at the very least, render it impotent. Following this line of reasoning, Hollander wants the AFT to go to the mattress, and in short order, begin to collapse as the teachers run out of money and will. Hollander, to be sure, will paint the AFT to be greedy and claim that the union is holding students hostage, thus turning public opinion against the union.

After the collapse, Hollander and the state will be around to pick up the fragments. With the AFT effectively disgraced and silenced, he will be free to mold the state college system as he sees fit, with no resistance.

A far-fetched, paranoid scenario? Perhaps. But consider the alternatives.
Hollander may not want a strike, but he does want the contract—that even some management officials have labeled “poor” badly. Of course, getting it without a strike would be nice, for the destruction of the AFT would be no less complete and considerably less messy.

But if it comes to it, he’ll be content to suffer through a strike. After all, one can’t make an omelette, or a new state college system, without breaking a few eggs or a union, right?

And who will pay for the destruction? Not Hollander—he will continue to draw his paycheck and won’t spend any money on tuition. Yes, folks, the students and the teachers will suffer the most. And ironically, the state, almost without trying, has managed to pit us against each other when we need solidarity the most.

Oh, the chancellor is stupid all right. Stupid like a fox.

Matt Wilson is a columnist for the MONTCLAIRION.
Homemade Soap Is Back to Basics

by Karen Satch

“All food entering our house is utilized to its maximum,” Caryll Sue De Fraite said. “Refuse from produce, like broccoli leaves, feed our compost pile. Table scraps feed our rabbits, a labrador, and a poodle. The days of home production are long gone for most Americans, who rarely find the time to cook themselves breakfast in the morning. They only vicariously experience the types of activities the De Fraite family makes. Pioneering efforts are exerted in the production of wine and root beer in the basement. Home canning of the fruits and vegetables grown in the backyard is also enjoyed. In the midst of this whirlwind of activity—race-children, birds, fish, rabbits, a labrador, and a poodle—De Fraite discovered the homemade soap possesses another remarkable quality—that of increasing her husband’s appetite for the morning. When asked to explain, she said, “Well, because I use bacon drippings and don’t generally add cologne during the process, it’s usually cries for bacon and eggs that I hear coming from the bathroom while he’s washing up!”

De Fraite discovered the homemade soap is back to basics. She experiments with the types of activities the De Fraite family makes. Pioneering efforts are exerted in the production of wine and root beer in the basement. Home canning of the fruits and vegetables grown in the backyard is also enjoyed. In the midst of this whirlwind of activity—race-children, birds, fish, rabbits, a labrador, and a poodle—De Fraite discovered the homemade soap possesses another remarkable quality—that of increasing her husband’s appetite for the morning. When asked to explain, she said, “Well, because I use bacon drippings and don’t generally add cologne during the process, it’s usually cries for bacon and eggs that I hear coming from the bathroom while he’s washing up!”

Get Inside Real Politics

by Stephen N. Adubato, Jr.

There is a unique learning experience happening on the MSC campus. It is the “Campaign Politics” program, which has been a standout in the political science department since 1972 and is under the direction of Harry Balfe, JD, a Montclair resident and Democratic County Committeeman for a dozen years, described the program, “Our goal is to further the objectives of political science by taking theoretical political concepts and applying them in a practical manner.”

Several students have benefited greatly from the “Campaign Politics” course. It has provided many students with the opportunity to work in an actual campaign. “This past semester all the candidates our students worked for were victorious,” Balfe stated. “Our students worked for such candidates as US Sen. Bill Bradley, Peter Shapiro, Essex County executive, Con. Matthew Rinaldo, and Con. Robert Roe.”

The “Campaign Politics” course was especially active in the 1976 presidential election. Balfe assigned students to work for both the Jimmy Carter and the Gerald Ford campaign. “The party or candidate our students work for is not that important. What is important is that they experience and participate in a full-fledged political campaign,” Balfe stated. One of Balfe’s former students became the only successful non-incumbent congressional hopeful, James Courter (D-district 5). At the conclusion of each campaign, students come together to compare notes on their experiences. They were required to submit a written report and deliver an oral report on their campaign activities.

The contacts students make during their involvement in their respective campaigns are many times helpful to them at a later date. The “Campaign Politics” course is open to all students at MSC, not only political science majors. The course itself is an opportunity for students to get into “the real political world.”
A Glorified Soap Opera

VOICES. Directed by Robert Markowitz. Written by Barry Miller. Produced by Joe Vran. Released through United Artists. Starring Michael Ontkean, Amy Irving, Alex Rocco, and Barry Miller.

by John Mack
Voices is the type of movie that tries to create a tender love story. Instead, a glorified soap opera has been created. The movie complicates itself with unrealistic situations. There is constant chaos and crises. Voices is set primarily in Newark; however, portions of Essex and Hudson counties are included. It marks the first movie since the silent film era to be entirely shot in NJ.

Michael Ontkean portrays Drew Rothman, a 26-year-old who lives with his father, “Spirit of Love,” and his younger brother. By day he works in his father’s dry cleaning business. At night he sings in local clubs. He generally is going nowhere but he has dreams of becoming a popular singer.

Frank Rothman (Alex Rocco), Drew’s father, has lost his sense of purpose since the death of his wife. He is constantly spending money from his dry cleaning business trying to hit it rich at the racetrack so that he can realize his dream of moving to California. Raymond Rothman (Barry Miller), Drew’s brother, finds high school a waste of time and wants to become a big time gambler.

Drew attempts to be a steady influence for his troubled family. His quest for stardom is unending. He is constantly recording demo tapes for recording companies. One day in a recording booth Drew sees the girl of his dreams—Rosemarie (Amy Irving), a teacher at a deaf school who is herself deaf. She is a shy and reserved girl; she does not even talk. Through her relationship with Drew she breaks out of her shell and begins to speak. With new confidence Rosemarie voices her dream of becoming a dancer. After much ado and heartbreak she eventually achieves her goal.

Amy Irving’s performance is a bright spot of the film. She plays in her portrayal of Rosemarie Lemon. Prior to the filming of Voices she went through intensive training in sign language and dance instruction.

Meanwhile, Drew, with renewed incentive, picks up a singing engagement at Patterson’s Clam Bar, a local club. (An interesting note is the use of Burton Cummings’s voice for the song.)

The adventures of the family continue when Drew’s father decides to bet the family savings at the track. After losing the family’s money, he becomes irrational and attempts to burn down the family business for the insurance.

Latin Exhilaration

by Kevin Malmud

Salsa, but anyone who attended the March 12 Eddie Palmieri concert in Memorial Auditorium would call it Latin rhythms, a driving horn section, rounded out a powerful overall sound.

On his latest album Palmieri explains a part of “Mi Conga Te Llama,” performed at Monday’s concert—“While using the sustenance pedal, I opened up the show for Palmieri were Messenger, consisting of much of Grover Washington Jr.’s back-up band. The group provided an enjoyable opening act, at times exciting the crowd with pulsating jazz-rock sounds. Crowd favorites like “Disco Magic” and “Let the Spirit Fly” had the audience clapping along in approval. A highlight of Messenger’s show was percussionist Cy Fibbs, who delighted the crowd with an exciting conga solo.

Palmieri, a native of Puerto Rico, has recorded countless albums and has recently signed with an American label, Epic Records. In a conversation with vocalist Luisito Ayala, he pointed out the recent influence of an American sound in the band’s music. On their last album, Lucumi Macumba Voodoo, sounds of “Mambo,” “Latin soul.” Anyone present at Monday’s show can attest to the preceding statement; Latin sound dominated the entire show.

Much of the beauty of Palmieri’s music is attributed to the rhythmic patterns and variations of melody and theme.

On his latest album Palmieri explains a part of “Mi Conga Te Llama,” performed at Monday’s concert—“While using the sustenance pedal, I opened up the show for Palmieri were Messenger, consisting of much of Grover Washington Jr.’s back-up band. The group provided an enjoyable opening act, at times exciting the crowd with pulsating jazz-rock sounds. Crowd favorites like “Disco Magic” and “Let the Spirit Fly” had the audience clapping along in approval. A highlight of Messenger’s show was percussionist Cy Fibbs, who delighted the crowd with an exciting conga solo.

Palmieri, a native of Puerto Rico, has recorded countless albums and has recently signed with an American label, Epic Records. In a conversation with vocalist Luisito Ayala, he pointed out the recent influence of an American sound in the band’s music. On their last album, Lucumi Macumba Voodoo, sounds of “Mambo,” “Latin soul.” Anyone present at Monday’s show can attest to the preceding statement; Latin sound dominated the entire show.

Much of the beauty of Palmieri’s music is attributed to the rhythmic patterns and variations of melody and theme.

On his latest album Palmieri explains a part of “Mi Conga Te Llama,” performed at Monday’s concert—“While using the sustenance pedal, I opened up the show for Palmieri were Messenger, consisting of much of Grover Washington Jr.’s back-up band. The group provided an enjoyable opening act, at times exciting the crowd with pulsating jazz-rock sounds. Crowd favorites like “Disco Magic” and “Let the Spirit Fly” had the audience clapping along in approval. A highlight of Messenger’s show was percussionist Cy Fibbs, who delighted the crowd with an exciting conga solo.

Palmieri, a native of Puerto Rico, has recorded countless albums and has recently signed with an American label, Epic Records. In a conversation with vocalist Luisito Ayala, he pointed out the recent influence of an American sound in the band’s music. On their last album, Lucumi Macumba Voodoo, sounds of “Mambo,” “Latin soul.” Anyone present at Monday’s show can attest to the preceding statement; Latin sound dominated the entire show.

Much of the beauty of Palmieri’s music is attributed to the rhythmic patterns and variations of melody and theme.

On his latest album Palmieri explains a part of “Mi Conga Te Llama,” performed at Monday’s concert—“While using the sustenance pedal, I opened up the show for Palmieri were Messenger, consisting of much of Grover Washington Jr.’s back-up band. The group provided an enjoyable opening act, at times exciting the crowd with pulsating jazz-rock sounds. Crowd favorites like “Disco Magic” and “Let the Spirit Fly” had the audience clapping along in approval. A highlight of Messenger’s show was percussionist Cy Fibbs, who delighted the crowd with an exciting conga solo.

Palmieri, a native of Puerto Rico, has recorded countless albums and has recently signed with an American label, Epic Records. In a conversation with vocalist Luisito Ayala, he pointed out the recent influence of an American sound in the band’s music. On their last album, Lucumi Macumba Voodoo, sounds of “Mambo,” “Latin soul.” Anyone present at Monday’s show can attest to the preceding statement; Latin sound dominated the entire show.

Much of the beauty of Palmieri’s music is attributed to the rhythmic patterns and variations of melody and theme.

On his latest album Palmieri explains a part of “Mi Conga Te Llama,” performed at Monday’s concert—“While using the sustenance pedal, I opened up the show for Palmieri were Messenger, consisting of much of Grover Washington Jr.’s back-up band. The group provided an enjoyable opening act, at times exciting the crowd with pulsating jazz-rock sounds. Crowd favorites like “Disco Magic” and “Let the Spirit Fly” had the audience clapping along in approval. A highlight of Messenger’s show was percussionist Cy Fibbs, who delighted the crowd with an exciting conga solo.

Palmieri, a native of Puerto Rico, has recorded countless albums and has recently signed with an American label, Epic Records. In a conversation with vocalist Luisito Ayala, he pointed out the recent influence of an American sound in the band’s music. On their last album, Lucumi Macumba Voodoo, sounds of “Mambo,” “Latin soul.” Anyone present at Monday’s show can attest to the preceding statement; Latin sound dominated the entire show.

Much of the beauty of Palmieri’s music is attributed to the rhythmic patterns and variations of melody and theme.

On his latest album Palmieri explains a part of “Mi Conga Te Llama,” performed at Monday’s concert—“While using the sustenance pedal, I opened up the show for Palmieri were Messenger, consisting of much of Grover Washington Jr.’s back-up band. The group provided an enjoyable opening act, at times exciting the crowd with pulsating jazz-rock sounds. Crowd favorites like “Disco Magic” and “Let the Spirit Fly” had the audience clapping along in approval. A highlight of Messenger’s show was percussionist Cy Fibbs, who delighted the crowd with an exciting conga solo.

Palmieri, a native of Puerto Rico, has recorded countless albums and has recently signed with an American label, Epic Records. In a conversation with vocalist Luisito Ayala, he pointed out the recent influence of an American sound in the band’s music. On their last album, Lucumi Macumba Voodoo, sounds of “Mambo,” “Latin soul.” Anyone present at Monday’s show can attest to the preceding statement; Latin sound dominated the entire show.

Much of the beauty of Palmieri’s music is attributed to the rhythmic patterns and variations of melody and theme.

On his latest album Palmieri explains a part of “Mi Conga Te Llama,” performed at Monday’s concert—“While using the sustenance pedal, I opened up the show for Palmieri were Messenger, consisting of much of Grover Washington Jr.’s back-up band. The group provided an enjoyable opening act, at times exciting the crowd with pulsating jazz-rock sounds. Crowd favorites like “Disco Magic” and “Let the Spirit Fly” had the audience clapping along in approval. A highlight of Messenger’s show was percussionist Cy Fibbs, who delighted the crowd with an exciting conga solo.

Palmieri, a native of Puerto Rico, has recorded countless albums and has recently signed with an American label, Epic Records. In a conversation with vocalist Luisito Ayala, he pointed out the recent influence of an American sound in the band’s music. On their last album, Lucumi Macumba Voodoo, sounds of “Mambo,” “Latin soul.” Anyone present at Monday’s show can attest to the preceding statement; Latin sound dominated the entire show.

Much of the beauty of Palmieri’s music is attributed to the rhythmic patterns and variations of melody and theme.

On his latest album Palmieri explains a part of “Mi Conga Te Llama,” performed at Monday’s concert—“While using the sustenance pedal, I opened up the show for Palmieri were Messenger, consisting of much of Grover Washington Jr.’s back-up band. The group provided an enjoyable opening act, at times exciting the crowd with pulsating jazz-rock sounds. Crowd favorites like “Disco Magic” and “Let the Spirit Fly” had the audience clapping along in approval. A highlight of Messenger’s show was percussionist Cy Fibbs, who delighted the crowd with an exciting conga solo.

Palmieri, a native of Puerto Rico, has recorded countless albums and has recently signed with an American label, Epic Records. In a conversation with vocalist Luisito Ayala, he pointed out the recent influence of an American sound in the band’s music. On their last album, Lucumi Macumba Voodoo, sounds of “Mambo,” “Latin soul.” Anyone present at Monday’s show can attest to the preceding statement; Latin sound dominated the entire show.

Much of the beauty of Palmieri’s music is attributed to the rhythmic patterns and variations of melody and theme.
Visiting Artists

Post ‘Fever’ McMullen

by Robert Yeo

At last Thursday’s Art Forum James McMullen, an illustrator, presented slides of his work. McMullen started his talk by using a metaphor comparing the art of creation with the act of sex, suggesting that being an illustrator was like selling your body. The metaphor convoluted and drew an unusual picture of the illustrator. He then went into trying to describe the conflict between fine artists and commercial artists. This is a childish argument as to who is and is not making “art.” It does not help anybody because it belittles the commercial artist and sets up a confusion as to what is of real value. We all know that both kinds of artists have something of value to offer us.

After his opening talk McMullen showed 180 slides and spoke about the kind of jobs he got and the ideas and techniques he used. One of McMullen’s claims to fame was illustration work he did for an article on discos for New York Magazine. The art along with the story by Nik Cohen became the basis for the film Saturday Night Fever.

As it turns out the disco work was only a small fraction of his art. It wasn’t his best work nor did it represent his real talent or interests. McMullen likes to use maps, postcards, and diagrams. For example, he will paint in water color a landscape and above it put floating postcard-like images. The water color is soft and transparent. The lines are elegant and well executed. Most of the work is done by drawing out the idea in a sketch, then taking it through extra steps of more complete drawing to the final stage in which water color is applied.

When asked for advice on becoming an illustrator, McMullen stated that it was necessary to learn the “hard stuff” drawing. Drawing is a vocabulary, something like a list of words; but in this case it’s a list of graphic qualities one used to make sense on a flat surface. He advised everyone to learn to draw the figure in an elegant and convincing manner. He also stated that a knowledge of shapes and what they do is necessary. Surface was another important point McMullen stressed. The artist is working with creating surfaces. He must know many different kinds of surfaces and how to make them so that they have the look and feel he needs. McMullen didn’t talk at all about creating space, but one could see from his work that he used various forms such as compact tight space by putting a lot form in a small space or a loose floating space by making a landscape with thin layers of water color.

McMullen also stressed the need to bring your own personality into your work. He stated that he was a depressive in the market which sold joy, sex, and happiness. This provides a state of tension for him which he would try to bring to the work.

If you are interested in James McMullen’s art, look at Sports Illustrated, New York Magazine and also Broadway theater posters (he did The Gin Game, the Anna Christie-Liv Ullman poster, and Working). His illustrations are convincing, imaginative, and beautifully done.

Paperback Bestsellers

The following bestseller list is reprinted from the March 7 issue of Publisher’s Weekly. All of the books can be found in the MSC bookstore.

1. Bloodline. Sidney Sheldon/Warner $2.75. A young woman inherits her father’s multi-billion dollar business and must find the insider trying to destroy it.

3. My Mother/My Self: The Daughter’s Search for Identity. Nancy Friday/Dell $2.50. The complexity between many mother-daughter relationships is examined by Nancy Friday.

4. The Holcroft Covenant. Robert Ludlum/Bantam $2.75. The author of such mysteries as The Rhinemann Exchange and The Murlock Paper has written another bestselling thriller.

7. Goodbye California. Alistair MacLean/Fawcett $2.50. A plot to blast California into the sea nearly succeeds. Maybe next time.

8. Final Payments. Mary Gordon/Ballantine $2.50. A 30-year-old woman suddenly finds herself alone in the world after caring for an invalid father 11 years.

10. Backstairs at the White House. Gwen Bagni/Bantam $2.50. Two White House maids who served through eight administrations tell what it was like to work in the President’s home.

compiled by Michelle Garcia

Patti Smith Fix

Tickets for the Patti Smith Group’s concert at Panzer Gym on Sun., March 18 at 8 pm are still available in the Student Center lobby or the CLUB office on the fourth floor. For further information call 893-5222.
by Andy Kaye

So you think writing this column is easy. Well, consider the thoughts of this writer last week.

At the start of the week I realized that the only things going on in the world of MSC athletics were a fencing match and Ken Mallory’s quest for a national championship. “Don’t worry, Andy,” I kept telling myself. “Mallory will win the title and you won’t have to interview a fencer. Sure, good old Mallory will come through.”

But then I left Bohn Hall on Friday, one of my buddies noticed something. “What’s with Mallory?” he exclaimed. A quick glance to my left and I saw Ken Mallory—that gladiator, that conquistador—hobbling about on crutches. Terror! Panic! “Mallory, how could you do this to me?” I thought. “You know what that means, Andy. A fencer—those blood-thirsty people who make human pin cushions out of their opponents.”

I quickly regained my composure. “Come on, kid. Start thinking of some questions you could ask.” I thought and I thought, but nothing came to mind. (Of course, that Saturday morning hangover might of had something to do with that.) One cohort suggested I ask, “Did you like Zorro as a kid?” Thanks for trying to cheer me up, but this is a serious matter. I need questions!!!

It’s Monday night, and I still don’t have any questions, but time has run out. I walked to the gym, took a deep breath, and prepared for the challenge that awaited.

I entered Gym 3 and sighted assistant coach Mary Caprio. I explained who I was and then mumbled something about not having any questions. Instead of grabbing her foil and playing “pin the tail on Kaye,” she said she understood. For the next hour, Caprio, head coach Bonnie Farbstein, and Eileen Murray, the MSC Athlete of the Week, talked about their sport. You know what? I didn’t have to have any questions.

They enlightened me on some of the basic points of the game. They told me of how they had qualified for the national championships in San Jose but because of an agreement that was made before the season they were unable to get funds from the athletic department nor were they allowed to raise their own funds. They talked of the relative obscurity of fencing and the possible reasons for it.

But most of the talk centered on Murray. Last week the junior from Wayne won all three of her bouts as MSC beat City College of New York (CCNY) 12-4. The three wins raised Murray’s record to a phenomenal 44-10, a winning percentage of .814.

The most impressive part of Murray’s record was the only other winter sport, she explained. She thus followed into the footsteps of her two older sisters, both of whom are former MSC fencers. Farbstein pointed out that some of the characteristics that make Murray such a good fencer are her aggressiveness, endurance, agility, and ability to “read” an opponent.

I was just beginning to get the gist of this sport when I asked a fatal question—“Where do you feel you’ve made your greatest improvement?” I asked. Murray quickly answered, “In my six.” My immediate reaction was “What the hell are you talking about, girl?” But once again the ladies were patient with this fencing illiterate as they explained that a “six” was a sort of change of pace maneuver.

All that worrying for nothing. Thanks, ladies.

NOTES: Last fencing match is tonight at 7 pm in Gym 3.
IM Highlights

SPORTS SHORTS

Last year's Knickerbocker Lacrosse Conference Champions, the Indians, are very young. Coach Spencer Willard thinks that even though the team is young they have the talent to win the conference again.

Sophomore Jerry Buonocore will again be tending the nets. Buonocore was a first team All Conference player last year as a freshman. Helping out with the defense will be Junior All American candidate Dee Gillespie. The other two defense positions will be fought out between freshman Brian Reilly from Montclair, and sophomore Doug Greulich had to quit for personal reasons. In order for the Red and White to have a good season the defense will have to come around quickly.

Midfield will be lead by All American candidate Bob Gillespie, captain and first team All Conference his freshman and sophomore years. Joining Gillespie will be Tony Orlando a junior from Clifton and Roger Palmisano a senior from Maplewood.

Attack will have sophomore George Nucera leading the way with transfer Gary Gelston and either Nick Tropiano or Mike Bocech. Leading candidate sophomore Doug Greulich had to quit because of a death in his family.

Scrimmages this past weekend showed that the Indians have a lot of growing to do. On Saturday the Red and White beat County College of Morris 15-2 and then lost to a powerful Penn Jersey Lacrosse Club on Sunday 10-3. The overall picture is still bright because the Indians have at least been out on a field. Last year the fields were not available until the first week in April. The Indians open their schedule away Wed., March 21, against the number two team in the nation, Adelphi University.

Joggers and Runners

Attention joggers and runners of all ages and of all levels of competition. You all are welcome, especially beginners. On Thurs., March 22, at 4:30 pm, we will meet for warmups and then go for a run. The meeting place is in front of the Panzer Gym. This run is open to the entire college community. Faculty, staff, and students. If you have any questions or want additional information call Gail Reiken, at extension 5239. Hope to see you all there.

SPORTS SHORTS

Next time you're tucking away the smooth, passionate taste of Two Fingers Tequila, you can dress the part. In the Two Fingers T-shirt. Just fill out and return the coupon below. (At just $4.95 you might want to tuck away a couple of extras, too.)

Send check or money order to:

Two Fingers Tequila Merchandise Offer
P.O. Box 31
Englewood, New Jersey 07631

Please send me T-shirts. I have enclosed $4.95 for each T-shirt ordered.
Specify men's/women's size(s): □ Small □ Medium □ Large □ Extra Large

Name __________________________ Address __________________________
College or University __________________________ City __________ State __________ Zip __________

Offer good in the United States only. Void where prohibited by law. New Jersey state residents add appropriate sales tax.

__ □ Printed by Two Fingers Tequila, P.O. Box 14490, Detroit, MI 48214

MSC: A Mystery

by Dave Wertheim and Terry Mullane

Question: What do recruiting, scholarships, and big money have to do with the future of the MSC women's basketball team?

Answer: Nothing and everything.

Sounds impossible? Well, it's not, and the paradox may be the single most important factor in the Squaws' success in years to come.

Without the money to recruit top high school players, MSC will be hard pressed to maintain their roundball excellence in a sport fast being dominated by large universities.

The Association for Inter-Collegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) will divide into three divisions in basketball next season, based on scholarship aid, much like the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA). Although MSC will compete in the full scholarship Division I, they, like all other MSC teams can only give workstudy aid if need be.

Yet the Squaws will still compete against some “free-ride” squads as Rutgers and Maryland.

“We've competed on a high level for so long that if we dropped down to Division II, I'll be like saying we've defeated,” Coach Maureen Wendelken said. “We know that we're taking a gamble. We can't offer a girl a free-ride so we rely on seniors-to-be have been named co-captains by Coach Wendelken.

In addition to recruiting problems, the Squaws will begin next season minus their entire starting frontline. Forwards Pat Colasurdo and Karen Smith and center Jan Ternyik have all but lost to graduation.

Though the odds of a successful future seem to be against the Squaws, there are some bright spots. They will still feature one of the finest backcourt duos in the country in Alice Schmidt and Jill Jeffrey. Starters since their freshmen years, the “seniors-to-be have been named co-captains by Coach Wendelken.

“They have the shooting experience on the club and will be looked to provide leadership-especially by example,” Wendelken stated.

With Schmidt, MSC has one of the finest playmaking guards in the country. The junior from Jersey City finished second in the nation with assists this season, handing out over eight per game. Next year she will be expected to shoot more, in order to make up for the loss of Colasurdo and Smith, the number one and number two Squaws scorers.

Schmidt’s ability can best be summed up by a comment made by a Women’s Professional League (WBL) scout who said, “It’s a shame that she's only a junior because she could start for any team in the league today.

The six foot redhead’s performance in the closing games of this season proved both her ability, and her improved style of play from the start of the 78-79 campaign. This past season MSC’s offense was geared to getting the ball inside to Colasurdo, Smith, and Ternyik. It seems apparent that the Squaws have to adjust their offense to complement Schmidt and Jeffrey.

Mallory Hurt

by Frank Penotti

A not so funny thing recently happened to MSC's Ken Mallory, newly crowned Division III National Wrestling champion at 134 lbs. The script called for Mallory to end his college career in a blaze of glory and repeat as Division I National Champion at the site of Iowa State University (ISU). He was expected to have some close matches especially with those who had the audacity to beat him during the course of the regular season, but in the end he was to come out smelling like the proverbial rose.

This scenario never made it past the wishful thinking stage, as an unknown and unseeded Bill Goodspeed, from Wisconsin University (WU), altered the Ken Mallory script in one fell swoop.

He eliminated our hero in the first round of the tournament, without so much as a “please may I?”

This year, Ken Mallory’s tussle with the big boys was over before it really got started, as Goodspeed won by the dubious score of 2-1. Up until the third period the match was a draw, as both wrestlers matched each other's feats and takedown attempts with decisive and lighting quick counter moves.

Our boy was still in good physical shape until this year’s scriptwriter, “Fate” moved to pencil the word injury next to Mallory’s name. Mallory grimaced in pain as the third period began to unfold. The cause of the grimace was his knee that was wretched in the grasp of Goodspeed. Stopping the action to take stock of the extent of his injury, Mallory, conferred with Head Coach Rick Sofman and then, true to form, got up and continued to wrestle, attempting to score a takedown that would give him the lead that would send him into the next round. It was not to be as Goodspeed tied up Mallory who was cautioned for stalling. The ax fell a few moments later as Goodspeed was awarded one point because of Mallory’s alleged stalling.

It was all Goodspeed needed for the win, enabling him to move on to the next round where he used his newly found wrestling talent to lose big. So ended Ken Mallory’s season as he made a quick exit that night, along with team manager Dennis Buckley and Coach Sofman, all of whom flew home a few days earlier than expected.

Mallory finished this year’s campaign with a record of twenty nine wins and four losses, included in those wins were the Metropolitan Championship and the aforementioned Division III National Championship crown at 134 pounds.

An extremely successful year no doubt as he cut the cake. His early round loss in the Division I tournament only underscored how everything must fall into place mentally, physically, and luckily for a defending national champ to repeat.

Teamwise the Indians ended their year with an excellent record of 12-5-1, once again indicative of the excellence of the MSC wrestling program.

A New Experience

Peter A. Famiano has been named golf coach at MSC. This has been announced by Bill Dioguardi, director of athletics.

Famiano replaces Lloyd Monroe, who moved on to the Head Gold Professional at a country club in New York State.

“I'm really excited about coming to coach at MSC,” Famiano said. "I like working with younger players and think this will be a really good experience."

Presently, Famiano, a resident of West Orange (NJ), is the Head at Crescent Country Club in West Orange. He has held this position for six years.

A 1967 graduate of the University of Houston (UH), he helped guide the golf team, as a player, to four consecutive NCAA Golf Championships.

He recently completed the South African Circuit where he competed with the top pros in the country. He finished up in the top 16 per-cent.

Although he teaches golf, this is the first time that he has ever coached and he is really looking forward to his new assignment.

"I'm really excited about coming to coach at MSC,” Famiano said. "I like working with younger players and think this will be a really good experience.

A member of the Professional Golfers Association of America, Famiano, with his experience and qualifications, is a welcome addition to the MSC coaching staff.

Alice Schmidt, (24) dribbling ball, and Jill Jeffrey, (10) coming in from back court, were chosen as the Squaws co-captains for next year.

While Schmidt enjoyed a tremendous season as the assist leader, she also came up with some better than average offensive games. Jeffrey a little inconsistent this season, was there to spark the Squaws in some of their biggest games. Both players will be relied upon next year to compensate for the loss of three seniors.