Nader Tavakoli will serve as the 1979-80 SGA President.

Tavakoli won the election by a margin of nearly two-to-one over his closest competitor. He received the votes of 828 students out of the total 2,078 who voted in this year's SGA elections.

Michele Gierla made a successful bid for the SGA vice presidency, as she defeated her competitor, Dennis Galvin, by a vote of 1,157 to 764. The second female on the executive board will be Dona Soranno who won the treasurer contest over Scott Garrett by a margin of 1,113 to 759.

Unopposed for the position of secretary, Carmen Santiago received 1,533 votes.

Student representative to the Board of Trustees candidate Brian Cige polled 1,538 votes in his unopposed race.

Although the referendum on the ballot received the majority of the student support with a two-to-one margin, it automatically failed because of a less than 20% student voter turnout. The referendum requested that state college students pay a $1 refundable fee per semester to go toward the New Jersey Student Association (NJSA).

Edward Willis finished second to Tavakoli with 450 votes to his credit. Frank Cosolito placed a close third with 417 votes.

William Johnson polled 148 votes while Charles Schwarz received the support of 120 students.

"I'm shocked at the amount of the victory," Tavakoli said ecstatically. "I feel that it is a sign that the students want a change in their student government, and I won't disappoint them," he stated firmly.

He added that he was looking forward to unifying the SGA in order to best serve the students.

Tavakoli commented on the tremendous effort of his campaign workers saying, "I had so many good people behind me without which I could never have done it."

Larry Blackburn, attorney general of the SGA, was visibly relieved to have these elections completed. "These elections went as well as I could have hoped," Blackburn commented minutes before the polls closed yesterday.

Tavakoli was also happy with this year's campaign. "I'd like to compliment Larry Blackburn and the other candidates on running a very tight campaign."

SGA president-elect Nader Tavakoli has no trouble expressing his emotions after the elections results were announced. He happily hugs Joyce Bowen, an SGA legislator and one of his close campaign workers.

Looking Back at Election '79

by Stan Godlewski and Naedine Hazell

The tension which had been mounting for weeks finally culminated at 3 pm yesterday as the results of the SGA election were announced in the Student Center lobby.

Elation, shock, despondency, and finally resignation registered across the faces of the candidates and their supporters alike as the newly elected were met by handshakes and congratulations; the not as fortunate by quiet smiles and consolation.

An unabashed victory smile on his face, Nader Tavakoli, the elected SGA president, was immediately surrounded by his ecstatic supporters and well wishers. "My first thought was that I had so many good people behind me that it would have been hard for me to lose," Tavakoli said obviously thrilled at the outcome.

Showing no ill feelings toward their former opponents all the candidates displayed positive attitudes for both the incoming officers as well as the election itself.

The race was described as the "Cleanest election I've seen in four years," by Bill Johnson, a recent presidential candidate. Charles Schwarz, a somewhat controversial but consistently colorful presidential candidate, stated after the results were released, "I really enjoyed getting involved in this political game and I hope I can play again."

"I think the student government has very good leaders now," Frank Cosolito stated after the election and stated that he had no regrets. Upon being offered condolences by Schwarz, Cosolito shrugged and he was overheard to say, "It was my turn to win last year, and my turn to lose this year."

Ed Willis, another presidential candidate, had few comments to make in reference to the elections except that he felt they were well run and fair. Other members of the winners circle included Michele Gierla, as SGA vice president-elect, and Dona Soranno, as SGA treasurer-elect.

Keenen Wins AFT Election

by Mary Ann McCarthy

Seventy five per-cent of the members of the MSC chapter of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) voted last week for the officials who will be representing them in the next term.

James Keenen was re-elected as president, defeating Larry Schwartz by a vote of 81 to 62. According to Schwartz, he ran for the office because he feels that the union is in need of change—thus an alternate slate was proposed for election, with Schwartz as the presidential candidate.

Marcoantonio Lacatena, president of the eight college local of the AFT, feels that the defeat of this alternate slate represented a great vote of confidence in the union.

In his campaign letter, Schwartz indicated that he was very unhappy with the strike settlement this past March. "A weak, but fast settlement was better for the long term organizational and business interests of the AFT, though not in the best interests of the faculty who will suffer under its provisions," Schwartz said in the letter.

In a platform letter published by the alternate slate, they proposed that the major concerns of the union is to fight for good working conditions and to fight for quality education for students. Also, Schwartz asked for support in order that they might form a strong union and prepare for the next contract negotiations in 1981.

Keenen is pleased that the opposite slate had the opportunity to present their views during the election.

All voting was done on a mail-in basis, and they were counted on April 26, according to Keenen. He mentioned that he felt there were some very good people on the opposing slate and is hopeful that they will be active in the union.

The vote turnout was good, but since it was a mail-in vote, it could have been better," Lacatena commented about the elections. He went on to say that he feels the vote indicates that the faculty as a whole is appreciative of the work the union has done in the past.

All winners in the election were members of the "Unity Team." Howard Balwanz defeated Steve Seegmiller for the office of executive vice president. The position of personnel vice president will be filled by Italo Battista, who defeated George Bernstein. The offices of treasurer and secretary will be filled by Constance Waller and Jo Ann.

Panzar Re-roofed

by Bonnie Jerbs

The area around the Normal Avenue entrance of MSC is the center of activity and construction lately. A great deal of changes and improvements are under way and still others are being planned. Panzer Gym's roof is in the process of a simple repair. Jerome Quinn, director of institutional planning, feels that this repair has been needed for the past 20 years.

The roof is being insulated and reinforced by the use of new technology in construction. Instead of the conventional method of scraping off old portions of the roof and installing multiple layers of waterproofing paper, we save money by simply installing the new roof right over the old one," Quinn stated.

The roof will be a rubber sheet instead of the usual asphalt and waterproofing. "The project will cost $60,000 and should be completed in one month. The work does not interfere with any activity in the gym because we are an external repair," Quinn said.

Atkins Roofing Company and Dennis Myland, architect, will be handling the job. "Quinn said that there are a number of other repairs planned for the future. "Hopefully the main gym will be caulked and painted both inside and out. The cost of this will be approximately $20,000."

There is also a contract pending to install a metal roof over the gym. The work should begin sometime this summer.

MSC Prof Math Prez

Max A. Sobel of Fair Lawn, a professor of mathematics at MSC, has been elected president-elect of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics (NCTM).

In congratulating Sobel on his election, MSC President David W.D. Dickson wrote, "We have long known you as one of the most distinguished scholars, teachers, and contributors to professional pursuits on this campus. It is heartwarming to me and to your other friends and admirers that you are continuing the distinguished reputation of this college in supplying consistent leadership in the national councils of mathematics." Dickson was referring to the fact that previous NCTM presidents had ties with MSC.

Problem with Priorities

Registration problems may get worse at William Paterson College (WPC) if athletes are permitted to register before other students, according to Bill Madaras, news editor for the Beacon.

At an all college senate meeting on April 25, it was voted to give about 800 athletes priority in registration. The policy must now be approved by the college president, Seymour C. Hyman, and the Board of Trustees.

The main argument in favor of this policy is that precontracted athletic events often conflict with classes. Since many of these events are planned as much as two years in advance, it is felt that priority registration will avoid students having to cut classes.

The SGA president of WPC has recommended to the school's Master Planning Council that a study be done to see what other campus groups should be given priority. These would include students involved in such things as student government and the college newspaper, among others.

Tragedy for Frat

Tragedy struck at Rutgers University in New Brunswick when a member of the Delta Phi fraternity was killed in a car accident recently, Andrea Smakula, news editor for the Targum reported.

The victim, Richard Fuhs, was 20 years old. According to Smakula the incident occurred when he and several other Delta Phi brothers were returning home from a bar on the morning of April 19. Their car hit a telephone pole in Piscataway near the bar.

The driver, John McDonald, has been charged with driving under the influence of alcohol. McDonald, along with the two other passengers, John O'Connor and John Borsmu, were treated for minor injuries at St. Peter's Medical Center in New Brunswick.

As a result of the accident, all of Delta Phi's operations have been suspended, and a major investigation of the entire fraternity system has begun.

Radio Fundraising

WTSC, the radio station of Trenton State College (TSC), recently raised $7500 for the Deborah Heart and Lung Fund, according to Gwen Jones of the Signal.

The Radiothon consists of four days of continuous broadcasting. Included are student performers and the auctioning off of records, bikes, food, and other items.

The Trenton band, "Duke Williams and the Extreme," was on hand for the event. Also performing was Dean Friedman, who auctioned off a kiss for $25.

The successful event began at 2 pm, April 17 and finished at 4 am on April 21.

Clamp on Crime

The Ad Hoc committee investigating the crime problem at Rutgers-Camden presented their final report to the school’s faculty senate last week, Karen Phillips of the Gleaner reported.

Crime problems have been rampant on the Camden campus. After investigating the problems, the committee came up with several recommendations. Included are more campus police, another patrol car, better communications with the campus police, and the appointment of a permanent campus police chief.

If the faculty senate approves of these recommendations, a permanent committee will be appointed to make sure they are enforced.

Having trouble finding a full-time, part-time, or summer job? Career Services may be the answer for many students here at MSC who need employment.

According to Tricia Haney, director of Career Services, it is a worthwhile service. It helps students to build the self-confidence and experience needed when searching for a job.

Career Services provides many different types of services for all of the students here at MSC. It is located in Life Hall, and according to Haney many of the students take advantage of it.

Career Services has been available for seven years. It provides special services for all students and alumni. Career Services has been very helpful in getting seniors jobs and helping them with their future.

Career Services is under the dean of students (Lawton W. Blanton). It was started simply because there was a need for it. Before this was started, no one experienced enough to help the students, Haney stated emphatically. She explained that many services are provided. Among the ones she spoke of were individual counseling and special seminars on areas such as interviewing, resume writing, job hunting, and career information.

"These seminars are very helpful to the seniors. Ideas for developing an effective resume, learning what to do during an interview, and any questions the students have are covered during these seminars," Haney said.

Haney not only feels that Career Services has done a tremendous job in finding students employment, she has impressive statistics to back this up. "Ninety-six percent of the students who responded to the senior survey said they were either employed or going to graduate school," she said with a proud gleam in her eye.

"We have campus recruiters. This is when full-time employers come on campus to interview students. This is only for seniors and runs from October to mid-May. This year we had 190 companies come to the campus," Haney stated.

Haney explained that seniors should come in to register, speak to a counselor, and then participate in the seminars. She made it clear that there are only a few seminars left. They are Wed., May 9, 2 pm, on resume writing; Mon., May 7, at 2 pm, on interviewing techniques; and Tues., May 8, at 11 am, on the job hunt.

"About 100 students come in a day to get some help. We help them to get a job, but we do not get it for them. For underclassmen who are interested we have part-time openings and summer jobs posted. This is a very worthwhile service, but it is only worthwhile if students come in and take advantage of it," Haney said.

MSC to Participate in Health Programs

MSC will participate in an innovative health education study to be conducted by the American Council for Healthful Living (ACHIL) and the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (CMDNJ).

The project, called "Health Needs Assessment and Wellness Program," will be conducted in conjunction with the Upward Bound program at MSC. The ACHIL is coordinating the program under a grant awarded by the Geraldine Dodge Foundation. According to Thelma King Thiel, executive director of ACHIL, it will involve a holistic approach to "wellness" related to nutrition, exercise, sexuality, mental health, etc.

The Upward Bound programs are designed to assist economically disadvantaged high school students to prepare for post-secondary education.

president, Dona Soranno as SGA treasurer, Carmen Santiago as SGA secretary and Brian Cige as student representative to the Board of Trustees. The election was characterized by heavy campaigning on the part of some candidates who manned their positions in front of the Student Center well after the majority of students had gone home. Candidates enthusiastically presented their qualifications and made promises. It wasn't uncommon to see supporters of a candidate actually walk students from buildings to the Student Center lobby in order to make sure they would vote. Though the campaign for individual positions by the candidates and their supporters may be the most obvious aspect of an election all the candidates agree with Schwarz who asks the students to “Please get involved; it is our student government.”

Dreams Do Come True

by Nora DePalma

The Carnival was originally supposed to be held at Clove Road, but Elliot Mininberg, vice president of administration and finance, approved a move to Bohn Hall lot. Rosello said the main reason for the move was safety because there is no shuttle bus service on weekends, and students would be walking back to the dorms alone late at night.

On Fri., May 4, Carnival starts at 6 pm and ends at midnight. On Sat., May 5, it runs from noon to midnight, and on Sun., May 6, it will be starting at noon and running until 8 pm or 9 pm, depending on the crowd.

At 8 pm Fri., May 4, there will be a disco dance with a live DJ. A dance contest will be held, and there will be trophies awarded for first and second places. Rosello is optimistic about having a good Carnival.

However, she does have one worry, “If it doesn’t rain this year, it will be the first time in seven or eight years,” she said. “So far, they are saying there is a possibility of rain Friday night,” she added with a slight look of despair in her eyes.

Serving Up Some Funds

by Dennis Bloshuk

A weekend volleyball marathon, sponsored by the Student Intramural Leisure Council (SILC), helped to raise approximately $2000 for the United Way of North Essex and Passaic Valley.

The event was held from 6 pm on Friday to 6 pm on Saturday. There were 14 teams that participated in the marathon. Out of the 14, 10 played for a period of two hours. The other four teams, Key Lime Pie, Panzer Student Association, SILC, and the Sons and Daughters of King Kong stayed the entire 24 hours.

According to Maria Tome, secretary of SILC, the best hours for the marathon were between 6 pm and 8 pm. She said that the only teams there were the four 24 hour teams, the people alternated between playing and sleeping. And from 6 am to 2 pm it was the worst, according to Tome.

Things were kept lively, however. There was continual music throughout the marathon, as Curt Pederson was the DJ for the marathon and was assisted by Tom Johnson. All the equipment was supplied by them.

There were also raffles held every 45 to 60 minutes with the winners receiving special prizes. They also sold food to those who got hungry and free food was given to those teams who stayed for the full 24 hours.

There also will be prizes for the individual and team that raised the most money from sponsors. Each team member was asked to contribute $2.50 to the cause. According to Tome, Key Lime Pie has probably raised the most money as a team with a total of about $1000. “I wish all the people had the enthusiasm that Key Lime Pie had,” stated Tome.

Some of the problems involved, in regards to not having enough teams, was that there were conflicts in work, money, etc. Another problem, according to Tome, was that the Bohn Hall Olympics interfered with the marathon.

Before the marathon began, Lawton W. Blanton, dean of students, MSC President David W. D. Dickson, and a member of the United Way, spoke to the players.
Social Service Jobs: How to Get Them

by Linda Lamonica

Are there job openings in the social service area these days? A seminar focusing on this problem was held last Tuesday in the Student Center. It was jointly sponsored by the Career Services Officers and the Latin American Student Organization (LASO).

The eight speakers who attended the seminar represented six different fields within the social service area. The speakers present were David Matos, Michael Lubertkin, Gail Levenson, Jim Schmutz, Fred Velez, Tim Mowatt, Myrna Zokow, and Robert Taylor.

Matos spoke about his position as Hispanic Affairs Coordinator of the NJ State Alcohol, Drug, and Narcotics Unit of the Department of Health. Job opportunities of this nature for graduating seniors were also discussed.

The job description of senior community service counselor of the Bergen County Community Action program was presented by Lubertkin. He also discussed such matters as salaries in this field and job opportunities available.

Levenson and Schmutz gave a joint presentation representing the East Orange Community Mental Health Law Project. They briefly described exactly what law services are offered to the mentally ill which would allow them to function more comfortably in a normal society. Both Levenson and Schmutz agreed that usually a master's degree is necessary to find a fairly well-paying job in this area. Experience is also a plus on someone's side when searching for a job in this field.

Velez, member of the Puerto Rican Legal Committee, spoke of his duty as managing attorney for this organization. Job descriptions, salary guides, and opportunities in this type of social work were given by Velez in his presentation.

The Passaic County United Way was doubly represented by Mowatt, who is the director of this chapter of the United Way, and by Zokow, who is the head of Information Services of this same chapter. They explained that the United Way was a fund-raising organization for social agencies. They also both agree that a master's degree is necessary in order to attain a good job in this type of work. However, Mowatt stated that jobs are "open for my hispanic friends."

Lastly, Taylor, a professor here at MSC who specializes in urban studies, spoke of his background.

He spoke of the field of urban studies in general and also discussed exactly what type of schooling and experience he had had in this field.

Wall-to-wall on Sprague

by Bonnie Jerbasi

Grass, grass, grass! That's all you ever hear about on college campuses these days. The most expensive grass found at MSC will be the grass covering Sprague Field—namely astroturf.

In a recent interview with Jerome Quinn, director of institutional planning, it was revealed that the idea for the changeover has been studied for several years. It is part of a larger project which includes the development of the Quarry.

"Astroturf is actually a parking lot with a carpet," Quinn stated. "The field is paved with asphalt and covered with the material." Quinn feels that there are many benefits in installing the new field. "Sprague Field will now be a multi-purpose area that will not be limited to use for football games. Physical education courses, intramurals, and other activities will be able to utilize the facilities more fully.

The astroturf covered field will not be as vulnerable as one covered with sod. It is not affected by weather, and therefore the range of use will be increased. Quinn added that "The present number of hours that the field is used is approximately 50. This number will dramatically rise once the astroturf is installed."

The cost of this project is $600,000. When asked if the astroturf would be economical and pay for itself, Quinn said, "The cost-benefit ratio guarantees that the astroturf will be well worth the price.

"As it is now, MSC pays from $10,000 to $20,000 per year to install sod which wears out quickly. The maintenance cost will also decrease because the new astroturf will only need to be hosed down and doesn't need the costly care that the sod now requires."

The field should be completed by mid-July of this year. The architect is Ronald C. Vaughn, AIA, and the contractor is AJ Rombough and Son of Montclair.

SingerSpeaks

by Dennis Blosshuk

Over 800 people jammed into the Student Center Ballrooms last Thursday night to listen to a lecture given by Isaac Bashevis Singer, the 1978 winner of the Nobel Prize for literature.

The lecture was co-sponsored by the Council on International and National Affairs (CINA) and the Jewish Student Union (JSU). As he entered into the ballrooms, Singer was greeted with an ignominous standing-ovation.

Singer read one of his stories to the audience. The story was called "The Beard." It is about a man named Chaim Pupko, a Yiddish man who is successful in many areas, except writing. Pupko has a friend who is a critic.

Pupko, who is desperate to get a career in writing, offers his friend a great sum of money if he will print an article telling people what a good writer he is. His friend refuses and is visited by a man named Red Omega in parking lot 12.

Lemberger parked her 1971 car in lot nine, and when she returned to it, her side mirror was stolen. The driver's door was damaged, and the side mirror was stolen. The mirror on the passenger side of the car was also broken.

"My goose was cooked," said Singer, "I knew, he said, when he came back from the drugstore after eating breakfast with his wife. "It was then," Singer said, "that I decided to write the article praising Pupko. He sends it to the printer, where it is delayed, and before it can be printed, Pupko dies. The real irony occurs when the friend gets the article back and in the margin, in Pupko's handwriting, he writes 'Don't tell you!'"

After reading the story, Singer was then asked questions by a panel which consisted of William Berlin, Ph.D., a political science professor; Naomi Liebster, Ph.D., an English professor; and Brian Frisch, president of JSU. Singer, who writes in Yiddish, was asked why he does so. His reply was a simple "Why shouldn't I write in Yiddish?"

As to the Nobel Prize, Singer said that he didn't know he was even nominated. He finally knew, he said, when he came back from the drugstore after eating breakfast with his wife. "It was then," Singer said, "that my goose was cooked."

One of the most important things about writing, according to Singer, is that the writer should write the way and about the people he knows best.

"A writer should know all kinds of people," Singer said. "He can write about introverts, extraverts, crazy people, or superhumans. He then added, "A real writer can write about many people like Dostoevsky or Chekov."

Vandals

by Dave Yourish

Once again the college campus was plagued by numerous acts of larceny and vandalism to both motor vehicles and personal items.

On April 17, Jeanette Lemberger parked her 1971 Red Omega in parking lot 12, and it was vandalized. The driver's door was damaged, and the side mirror was stolen. The mirror on the passenger side of the car was also broken.

George Barlett, a non-student from Dumont, parked his car in lot nine, and when he returned to it, his side window had been smashed. Stolen from the car were golf clubs, a starter pistol, and a radial tire. The campus police are still investigating the incident.

Hitchcock 'Priced'

by Debi Reynolds

Dressed in blue jeans and sneakers, Theodore Price, Ph.D., of the MSC English department, spoke to approximately 30 people in Russ Hall Lounge last week on "Alfred Hitchcock and the Chaos Man."

Price, a known authority on Federico Fellini as well as on Alfred Hitchcock, has given a lecture similar to this one by invitation to the Florida State University Film Conference, sponsored by Music and Arts Organization Committee (MAOC), the lecture began with a musical interlude with selections from the Hitchcock film Vertigo, score by Bernard Herrmann. Price then showed a film trailer taken on the location of what Price calls Hitchcock's greatest film work, Psycho. The trailer showed Hitchcock giving an inside tour of the hotel and hilltop house used in the thriller, as well as a good view of Hitchcock's wit and personality.

Shortly after some technical difficulties, Price began his detailed talk on "Alfred Hitchcock and the Chaos Man," accompanied by film slides to better translate his point.

"But what is a 'chaos man'? He is only one aspect of a Hitchcock film, and reflects Hitchcock's own view of the world at a particular time. "Art is a many faceted jewel. It is like a diamond. Look at one face, and you see the reflection of the entire diamond, but only as it looks through that facet," Price said.

"The chaos man is a sinister person who has transferred some outside force, possibly political, and more frequently, into his personal lifestyle. He is the killer psychopath who may kill for many reasons, but most often in the Hitchcock film he kills for money or for a holy cause. "The chaos man believes there is no God. Therefore, nothing is forbidden. This is how he justifies his killings to himself. The ending chaotic theme is murder for murder's sake," Price said.

Price pinpointed that the chaos man can "be and look like anyone. The most usual looking chaos man may be seen as Peter Lorre, a sneak running vertically from his forehead to his brow and a streak of white hair running through otherwise dark locks a gross look indeed. However, the chaos man may also be the tall, good-looking, debonair type, one that may be played by Cary Grant, for example.

Price also commented that anyone can become a chaos man— even a woman. And don't think we can be rid of this chaos man because old chaos men never die. They go underground. Where else?"

Price asked, "Will price be giving a film conference at Purdue University on the Anthony film The Passenger and in the fall at the West Virginia University on Federico Fellini?"

It’s TELERAD

by Jana H. Polsky

“Take color bars and tune” one student commanded. Another announced, “Quiet in the studio, 30 seconds ‘til air!”

This scene may sound like the taping of a Hollywood game show, yet in essence it is MSC’s own Hollywood: TELERAD. As the end of each semester approaches, MSC’s broadcasting students combine their efforts to produce an entertaining eight hours of programming to air to the campus community. In preparation for TELERAD DAY, which airs on Tues., May 8, then sequentially on the 9th and 10th, the students devoted to television are wrapping up the last few hours of programs they have been taping all semester.

Presently in its 12th semester, TELERAD, officially known as MSC-TV, is an organization under the auspices of the broadcasting department. Dozens of students produce, direct, and write scripts which in turn become 15 minute and half-hour shows. All of this hard work and dedication takes place in the closed-circuit tv studio in the basement of College Hall. Working in close contact with the Media Center, the TELERAD Executive Board and the 70-odd majors do all of the lighting, technical work, editing, etc., to produce quality programs in the hope that they will be aired for the campus to view. The programs ranging from interviews and documentaries to situation comedies and intense dramas are placed back-to-back in an effort to provide eight continuous hours of programming.

Lynda Schulm, this semester’s TELERAD executive producer, commented on TELERAD XII. “This semester, more so than in the past, we are quite proud of our accomplishments. The quality of the shows has greatly improved, and a large number of underclassmen are becoming more involved than in previous semesters.”

TELERAD adheres to the NAB (National Association of Broadcasters) Code of Ethics, to which all major networks and other stations around the country also adhere. I’m really looking forward to this semester’s TELERAD. I believe that the campus community will really find it worthwhile and at the same time we can let them know that there really is such an organization at MSC.

The purpose of TELERAD, aside from producing quality programs to air on campus, is to function as a regular network does in an average day of programming. This semester, as in the past, there will also be live campus news airing twice during each day of the three days of TELERAD. Produced as a regular news show, it will provide the viewers with updated national, local, and campus news.

TELERAD XII can be viewed by all interested student on Tues., May 8, in C-129 of College Hall. On Wed., May 9, it will be aired in Life Hall Lounge and on Thurs., May 10, on the third floor of the Student Center. All members of the MSC campus community are invited to view TELERAD. TV never looked so good!

SGA NEWS

by Benno Miller and Sonjui Lal

The winners of the executive board elections were announced by the present SGA President Charles Sahner. Larry Blackburn discussed the failure of the referendum which called for each MSC student to contribute $1 to the New Jersey Student Association (NJSA). Although the referendum question had a majority approval, it failed because the required 20 per-cent of the student body did not vote in the election.

The legislative election process begins today. Candidates must acquire a petition at the SGA office on the fourth floor of the Student Center. Petitions will be due back to the office by Wed., May 7. Any undergraduate SGA fee-paying member may run to serve on the SGA legislature next year.

The Student Intramural Leisure Council (SILC) and the College Life Union Board (CLUB) were granted Class One charters for 1979-80. CLUB was given a budget of $48,500 for next year, and SILC was given a budget of $16,207. The Weekend College Student Association was denied a Class One charter. The group is looking into other possibilities of becoming chartered under the SGA.

A resolution was passed stating that it will go on the record as being opposed to any pageant which gives financial assistance on the basis of personal appearance, poise, sex, race, marital status, and age.

Fine Arts Club was given a Class II charter.

Sahner announced publication of an SGA magazine to be entitled Gahumph.

MSC's lacrosse team has been setting records this season, practically unnoticed because of the small crowd turnout. But next year, because of the artificial field being put down, Coach Spencer Willard expects the sport to have a great deal more fan support. On Fri., May 4, the Stickmen will play archrival Kean College at the Union campus, at 3 pm. Everyone's support is needed, as the team continues their quest to win the Knickerbocker Conference for the second straight year.

The Stickmen opened their season way back on March 21 with a loss to number two ranked Adelphi University. They lost 19-4, but MSC was on their way to their most successful season ever. On March 28, the Stickmen destroyed Marist College 23-0. It marked the first shutout ever for Jerry Buonocore, the goalie, and the team. At this point the Stickmen were 1-1, and with only 17 players on the team it did not look as though they could win many more games.

However, against Stevens Institute of Technology the Stickmen posted a 12-6 victory. Things started to look even better for part-time coach Willard after this win. One of the big games was against Dowling on April 4 at Dowling. The Stickmen lost a tough 11-8 decision, but now, "questionable circumstances that will be resolved next week," according to Willard, could change the Stickmen's record. It seems that Dowling allegedly used an ineligible player, and the board will be voting next week on this issue, which will make Dowling forfeit all their games if passed.

After the Dowling game the Stickmen took on City College of New York (CCNY) and creamed them 35-0. It was the second shutout for the Stickmen this year, and the second shutout in their career. The winning goals margin was a Division II and III National Collegiate Athletics Association (NCAA) record. Also, George Nucera set a Division I, II, and III record with his ten goals and seven assists in that one game.

At this point in the season, standing at 3-2, the Stickmen caught on to win their next four which stretched their winning streak to five games. Against Fairleigh Dickinson University (FDU), Teaneck, the Stickmen outscored them 11-4 for their second straight. Then, to make their season even more successful, they beat Villanova for the first time ever, 13-11.

They played with Gary Gelston in goal because the all-American candidate's (Jerry Buonocore), car—which is not an all-American candidate—broke down.

But, remarkably, with only 17 players there is bench strength on this team, as Gelston posted his first ever win in goal. Gelston, later in the season, would get his second win in goal, and get an assist playing goal.

Against New York Maritime the Stickmen continued their winning ways, thrashing Maritime 16-5. Now the Stickmen were on their way to one more record: most wins in one season. They stood at 6-2 and needed only one win to tie the old record (7-2), and two to break it.

The record tying win came against FDU-Madison in overtime. Alan Geissel, who had 26 goals and 17 assists, scored the game winner, as the final score was 13-12. Jerry Buonocore was excellent on this spring day, and the team never gave up, even after being down by as much as three goals. "Buonocore is doing super for us," Willard commented. He also explained that his saves percentage is around 65%, which is excellent for the all-American candidate.

In that game Mike Bocech, Bob Gillespie, and the entire team played excellent lacrosse as they just kept battling back for the dramatic win.

After the FDU win, the Stickmen lost a tough game to Lehigh University 12-8. In the game they lost number one goalie Jerry Buonocore for about two quarters due to a back spasm.

He got the back spasm by being kneed by an opposing player. That ended the team’s five game winning streak, but the Stickmen, who stood at 7-4 before the Upsala game, then broke the record.

At their home, Brookdale Park, this past Saturday, the Indians put down the Upsala Vikings 14-5. The game was no contest and could have been a shutout for MSC if Goalie Jerry Buonocore was in goal.

However, Garry Gelston anchor the defense which has been good this year. “Of our four losses, we’ve lost them by only eight goals,” Willard said, showing how good the defense has been.

Craig Porter had to play goal in the Upsala game because Gelston was penalized and had to serve time in the penalty box. Gelston had an assist while playing goal.

On Tuesday the Stickmen played at Kutztown and lost a heart-breaking 10-9, but the record still stands impressively at 8-4. “What we really need is student support against Kean,” Coach Willard said.

Nucera has 38 goals and 28 assists even though he missed one game this year. Bob Gillespie has 37 goals and 9 assists, while Geissel has 26 goals and 17 assists.

Coach Willard added that there will be changes in the team since they will drop out of the Knickerbocker Conference and go independent. He also stated that the new field should increase fan support.

Asked whether the Stickmen will be one of the 12 teams to make it to the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) next year he said, “Definitely. We’ll be there next year!” Said MSC looks forward to another great year such as this record 1979 season.

Congratulations!

On behalf of the student body of MSC, the MONTCLARION would like to extend warm congratulations to Nader Tavakoli, Michele Gierla, Dona Soranno, Carmen Santiago, and Brian Cige, the next SGA executive board and student representative to the Board of Trustees. Each person will take office at midnight of May 31.

We're not sure about the students, but we're very happy that the elections are over and we can finally get back to the business of serving the students.

We have a long year still before us—and each of the five people have several campaign promises to start working on. We hope they won't forget them as soon as all the posters are taken down and the parties are ended.

And what will become of the losers? Many of them will graduate (now they can go out and play for real where the stakes are far more serious) and hopefully the others will stay on to help with all the work that lays ahead.

But they won't be successful unless the students support the endeavors of the new officers. This means getting involved in your SGA. Even with only the 20 per cent of students who came out to vote, they would greatly help the five people more effectively do their jobs to represent everyone.

The end of an election is something like a catharsis. People start breathing a little more easily on the fourth floor of the Student Center, frowns of mistrust turn to smiles, and plans for campaigning become dreams of all that might be next year.

We share in those dreams. This year has certainly been rough, what with tuition hikes, teachers' strikes, and the general unrest that has run rampant throughout SGA this year. Next year may be just as difficult, and the decisions won't come any easier.

The MONTCLARION looks forward to working with all the new officers—and we wish them the best of luck in everything they do.

It's Not Over Yet

Now that all the excitement is over concerning the executive board elections for the SGA, we turn our attentions to the elections for the positions of SGA legislators. Too often these important posts are forgotten in the rush to finish up our final exams and start up our summer vacations. However, whether most people believe it or not, the legislature is more important than the executive board.

The process for elections may seem more complicated than it really is. Positions are available for representatives from each of the schools, and seats are allotted for the departments according to how many students are enrolled in each of the different subject areas.

Many times the positions are run unopposed, and often too few people run. This leaves several spots open to appointment by the new SGA President.

Come out to run for a legislative post. Find out exactly what does go on on the fourth floor of the Student Center.

Apathy Abounds

What do you think of the low voter turnout (less than 20 per cent)?

"I think the students just don't care, but when a person runs and wins that particular office, they criticize him. It can't be not knowing about the candidates. It's just a non-caring attitude."

Joanne Bowman

Communication Science and Disorders/1980

"I think it's horrible. I think that everybody should get out and vote or they shouldn't complain. A lot of people have been complaining about the SGA and other organizations. If they don't vote, they shouldn't complain. It's laziness. There's nowhere you can walk on this campus without seeing leaflets, posters, and other campaign paraphernalia."

Fred Newman

Sociology/1980

"I think it has a lot to do with the fact that many students are not as involved in student activities as they could be. It also might have to do with a general distrust for politics."

Karen Satch

Foods and Nutrition/1979

"I think it just shows student apathy at MSC. I always thought that since it is a commuter college, students don't become as involved as in a college where the majority of the students are on campus. However, I still feel students should become involved, especially in the SGA elections, because they will be the officials running the SGA next year."

Sandi Heinz

Biology/1981

"I think that from what I heard from the students next year."

"I think that the students do care what's going on, but don't have the time to take the time out to keep up with campus activities. Since the students are paying for the services, they should try to keep track of how their funds are allocated."

Ed Lewis

Quantitative Methods/1979

"I think that the students just don't care, but when a person runs and wins that particular office, they criticize him. It can't be not knowing about the candidates. It's just a non-caring attitude."

Give Keith and Frank an 'A'

by Peter J. Baligian

The SGA election is finally over.

Soon the present SGA executive board will fade away from the memories of the student population, and Nader Tavakoli will emerge as MSC's number one student leader for the upcoming academic year.

But can we actually erase from our memories the leaders and events of the past year, some of which rocked the campus from Russ Hall to Clove Road?

The answer, quite simply, is no.

The present administration will probably be characterized as the most careless, ineffective, and destructive SGA executive board that ever served at MSC. From the graffiti on the SGA office walls, to the unplugged tv monitors, it can only be classified as a step backward in the SGA's quest for credibility.

These are the primary reasons why this column is being written. As a former Editor-in-Chief of the MONTCLARION, I know first hand all of the crap that has gone down during the past 11 months. I also know that unless someone speaks out before the year's end, students will graduate from MSC feeling that two of the board members did absolutely nothing during their tenure of office.

These two students are Frank Cosolito and Keith Ansbacher, the vice president and treasurer of the SGA.

Throughout the turmoil of the past year, these two people seemed as though they were in a no-win situation. They had to go along with many of the decisions that were made by the board, although sometimes they felt that those decisions were either unfair or simply wrong.

Cosolito was the only link that the students had with the SGA executive board. To be sure, he spent over 40 hours a week in the office, and frequently crossed the sacred boundary between the SGA and the MONTCLARION to mend differences between the two.

He honestly tried to make the SGA work for the students. His biggest handicap throughout the year and during the elections was his attachment to the present SGA administration. Had he not been the vice president of the executive board that felt it had the power to do anything it wished—including the shutting down of the MONTCLARION for no good reason—he may very well have won this election.

Ansbacher is another person whose position needs to be clarified. In all honesty, Ansbacher felt that he had done his fair share in carrying out his executive duties.

He had constantly fought for what he believed to be the true and honest way to run the student government. Many also feel that he may have been misled on several occasions, but only Ansbacher knows if that is true.

In any event, Cosolito and Ansbacher have proven themselves to be a pair of student leaders that generally had the best interests of the students in mind. In fact, those were the only two from the SGA office that were visible on the fourth floor during my tenure as Editor-in-Chief.

But it is all over now. All the fighting, the mud slinging, the harassment—all of it is history. Cosolito and Ansbacher have nothing to concern themselves with now that graduation is fast approaching. They both can look back at their individual efforts, grade themselves fairly high.

I feel that is quite a compliment, considering the fact that I am writing this column wearing a Nader...Naturally t-shirt.

To the Editor:

As many of my fellow off-campus dwellers will agree, life on the third floor is not always what’s cracked up to be. Many tales have been told of pestilent landlords renting out bug-infested freezer chests for rooms. These stories tend to get blown out of proportion, however, roaches and 50 degree temperatures are a reality for many of us.

Plagued with many problems, the off-campus student soon finds that he has nowhere to turn. MSC’s Housing Board frankly does not have the time or money to assume complete responsibility for off-campus housing, and will only intervene in the most extreme circumstances. The students, some with very legitimate complaints, can not contact the proper authorities because they fear repercussions from the housing they so desperately need.

It is for these reasons and many, many more that I propose a much needed Federation of Off-Campus Housing. A united federation of students could afford the off-campus dwellers many benefits.

Consider these possibilities:

1. A mediator between landlords and students, setting a fixed mutual understanding concerning the “little things” that the cards currently issued by housing lack, such as temperature, number of persons, noise level, who supplies what i.e. cleaning supplies, and fixed non-escalating rates.
2. Improve placement of students; pairing ‘single’ students seeking compatible roommates, and helping to pair ‘troubled’ roommates with more compatible ones. (Off-campus students just can’t change rooms or floors with a friend!)
3. Social Benefits: Students, especially freshmen, living off-campus can meet people through FOCH meetings and will know addresses of other FOCH members. (Off-campus students have no R.A.’s nor can they seek help from floor full of students.) There would be a club-like atmosphere, with parties, directories, and T-shirts.

If any of these ideas appeal to you, and you are seriously interested, leave your name, address, and telephone number (along with any comments) in the box marked “FOCH” on the Student Center desk. The success of this program depends on you, the “off-campus.” The larger the group, the more powerful.

LATIN INSIGHT

10 Years: We’ve Come a Long Way

by Ramonita Santiago

Since this will be our last column for this semester, I feel that it would be most appropriate to bring the Latin American Students Organization (L.ASO) into perspective.

Next year (1980), L.ASO will be celebrating its tenth anniversary. L.ASO has been influential since 1970. Its advisor and still its Educational Opportunity Fund (FOF) counselor, Maurice Gilbert was the first president. The purpose in starting this organization was to get a group of Hispanics together to feel a sense of unity and belonging.

For years this has been L.ASO’s goal, together with providing an overview of social and political viewpoints. Included in this concept was the idea of exposing the college community to music, cuisine, and cultures of all the different Latin American countries.

According to Ortiz, L.ASO has progressed in its years, and this is why a celebration is in need for next year. The celebration is not only to give ourselves a hand, but to present others with a review of the change that L.ASO has gone through within a span of 10 years. One of L.ASO’s main purposes is influencing the recruiting of more Hispanics to MSC. Obviously, this has been done to a certain extent. MSC is now the state college with the largest amount of Hispanics.

In 1970, when L.ASO was created, we had no monies and were considered a Class Two Organization. Since 1974, L.ASO has been a Class One. Harry Morales, one of our past presidents, was responsible for getting us a Class One status. Morales, because he was in the SGA, realized the importance of having a representation in the student government. Before L.ASO received money mainly from FOF and Student Activities. The SGA at that time did not have all of the organizations it does now.

As of today, L.ASO has progressed and will continue to do so. Ortiz states that L.ASO has advanced in its amount of programming, in offering a place where students can get leadership and organizational skills leading to career and employment opportunities. As an educational leader because it has filled gaps that existed in the academic programs, such as Latin, art, and Latin Week; in bringing more Latin students to MSC, and has united the surrounding communities in which case has made them more involved.

Working with L.ASO can be rewarding, but dedication and appreciation for the culture is a necessity. Esclar Pudlicue, which means moving ahead, has been L.ASO’s motto, together with “In unity there is progress.” We are a community, and must remain this way.

As of 1980, we will be part of history, MSC, L.ASO, the pedestrian, (us), and keep fighting!

Ramonita Santiago is the vice president of L.ASO.
Hey Guys, There Are Alternatives

by Matt Wilson

Ok, so you just lost the SGA Presidential election. You feel bad. Bottomed out, bummed out bad.

You've blown a lot of money. You abused most of your friends. Your grades are skidding toward the ever-dangerous C level (let's be realistic, this is MSC). And for the first time in your life your sex drive is in neutral. What are you going to do with yourself?

Well, two or perhaps three of the candidates—Ed Willis, Frank Cosolito, and Bill Johnson—face the risk of having to grow up.

This is truly a horrifying situation, especially for a sincere, committed, lifetime student. Yes, all those fun times shouting “point of personal privilege” in the legislature are over.

The student power game has grinded to an abrupt and untimely halt. It's bote the bullet time—time to go out, get a job, and attempt to prove yourself in the real world.

Despite the deep-seated nature of their college syndrome, chances are that my distinguished classmates will make the adjustment.

Fine for them. But what about the two underclassmen in the race—Nader Tavakoli and Charles Schwarz? They can't grow up for at least another year. What does fate hold in store for them if they lose?

Based on the past behavior of almost presidents, one can hazard a guess.

If Nader Tavakoli loses, he will do two things. First, he’ll get himself re-elected to the SGA Legislature so that at the end of next year, after the elected President has had the time to louse up the job, he can have the satisfaction of having the SGA types tell him they made a mistake.

Don’t laugh. This weird scenario occurred this spring to Steve Adubato, who was in truth the best candidate to ever lose the presidency.

The second action Nader will take will be to join the MONTCLARION as a political columnist. But don't worry, odds are that he, like most losing SGA executive types of the past, will never appear in print.

Both of these activities will assure Nader campus-statesman status, and he will be able to speak out on any issue he chooses with authority.

As for Charles Schwarz, well he could follow the Jeff Kaplan pattern. Basically that entails getting into the legislature and continuing to be loud and obnoxious. Such a role would probably be good for Schwarz because holding down a position in the legislature—like campaigning—requires relatively little time and does not tax the intellect.

Someone, unfortunately, is going to capture this prize. My advice to the new president is that he should resign immediately. The job is not worth the aggravation, humiliation, and pain it causes—for either the governed or the ruler.

Matt Wilson is a columnist for the MONTCLARION.

You, Too, Can Be Biased

by Meryl Yourish

Editorial (n): a newspaper or magazine article that gives the opinions of the editors or publishers. (Merriam-Webster dictionary)

Read it twice if you have to. Evidently, most of the people involved in the campaigns don't understand the meaning of the word “editorial.”

It happens every year. The MONTCLARION endorses a candidate and the other candidates scream “biased rag.”

Well, people, if you had taken just a minute of your time away from tearing down other candidate's posters and screaming their name and ours, you might have discovered the meaning of the word “editorial.”

It is an opinion. There is no such thing as an unbiased opinion. Therefore, there is no such thing as an unbiased editorial.

Of course the editorial was biased—editorials are meant to take a stand on an issue—to present one side or another. News stories are meant to be two-sided, and we have tried to make our news present both views. If we have failed in some cases, I’m sorry, but we’re only human.

The point of the matter is, I’m tired of being called biased. I’m damned proud of my newspaper, and I work damned hard on it. Too hard to put up with all the bullshit we received this past week about our “biased” editorial.

Bob Guaglianone, president of CLUB, was so upset that he put out his own little opinion on our opinion.

In my opinion, Bob, you should have looked at a dictionary before wasting your time.

You mentioned Nader’s support of CLUB’s bid for extra money last semester, and imply that it is his fault there was no beer bash this month.

CLUB knew they had a lower budget last year. They failed to cut down operations accordingly, and stubbornly programmed as if they had the extra $900.00. As a result, they went into the red. That was internal mismanagement of funds.

Correct me if I’m wrong, but the management of CLUB’s funds is CLUB’s responsibility, not someone else’s. And the entire SGA legislature voted down CLUB’s first request—not just one member.

Face it Bob, you’re just a compulsive complainer. I fully expect to see you bitch and moan your way to the office tomorrow to complain about this. Don’t disappoint me—I’m beginning to look forward to the next exciting episode of “What’s Your Paranoia?”

And Jeff Kaplan, who evidently loves making a fool of himself (remember the “unknown candidate”—paper bag and all!), was outraged enough to print his own point of view.

Somehow, the opinion of someone who gets his kicks out of flashing a moon in front of dozens of people, screaming “Down with the Shah,” and wearing a paper bag over his head doesn’t seem to be worth the paper it was written on.

Did someone ghostwrite it for you, Jeff? If so, I suggest you get a more literate ghostwriter.

Well, there you have it. You may not like it, but as long as people keep screaming about “biased” editorials (wouldn’t Cronkite get a kick out of that?), I will evidently have to write writing explanations of the word “editorial.”

Maybe next year people will learn to read before they write.

Meryl Yourish is the editorial page editor of the MONTCLARION.
It is no new that literacy in the classroom and in the job market is on the decline. One only has to peruse the nearest periodical at hand (provided it isn't People) to have our language elitists—Edwin Newman, William Safire, and John Simon—remind us that we are daily contributing to the demise of the English language.

With today's students being shoved through high school, English via relevant pop literature and pumped through six semesters of college composition (usually our first and last exposure to the dilemma of dangling participles and misplaced modifiers) it is no wonder that literacy in the English language.

David Stuehler, PhD, stated the purpose of his course is to teach the student to translate the technical jargon of their perspective careers into layman's terms, i.e. for "audience analysis." To illustrate the concept of audience analysis Stuehler cited the example of the engineer.

"In many cases the engineer assigned to run a test for a customer will have to compile a handbook or report that not only his immediate peers will understand, but one that the customer can understand. The field for technical writers is growing, and the need for those entering technical fields to be able to write for a broad audience is essential," stressed Stuehler.

Further supporting this approach of the advertisement, the need of the salesperson to be able to write for the customer the language is examined. The student might collect several ads for the same product and evaluate the content and approach of the advertisement’s clean composition," Benediktsson stated. The permission of the instructor must also be sought.

The three Advanced Writing Skills courses are listed under the English section in the School of Humanities in the Course Booklet for fall 1979 on page 33.

The three courses implemented last fall semester were designed for the departments that responded most positively. If the program proves successful, we hope to add further writing courses for the other majors as well." Benediktsson explained.

Benediktsson teaches the section designed for business majors. Exercises include resume, memo, and letter writing, as well as a strict focus on the structure of persuasive language.

Defining the goal of the writing course designed for students anticipating careers in the scientific or technical field, only his immediate peers will understand, but one that the student is asked to research and evaluate three different brands of the same product for its quality, content, value, etc. The students are also taught how to organize and write a brochure.

Given a 200 course listing, Benediktsson stresses that the writing courses are in no way remedial. "The student must have a secure knowledge of the basics of good grammar and..."
Much Abounds in 'Much Ado'

by Lori Sculti

He was sitting next to you all year, but you never noticed how attractive he is until now. While running to the library, your eyes meet...a few words are exchanged, and it's all set for the movies Friday night. Combine spring fever with young adults, and the result is an inevitable case of young love. No one has reasoned or eloquently rhymed this phenomenon as does Shakespeare in Much Ado About Nothing.

It is a frothy comedy about two pairs of lovers and the troubles that temporarily beset them. Upon meeting, Hero and Claudio fall in deep and fast love. Benedick and Beatrice, however, warily pursue the condition as both have vowed to remain unwed. Claudio has reasoned or eloquently rhymed this phenomenon as does Shakespeare in Much Ado About Nothing.

...equally vain, both feel the love must be "requited." In which role does the Friar, servant boy, and sexton, while remaining onstage as an overseer to the action throughout the play. Since the love god creates the confusion, it is believable when he assumes the role of the Friar to rectify the muddled situation.

This play is a visual delight. Puffs of smoke and Cupid's arrows whizzing past lovers at first seem rather hokey, but, in keeping with the season and spirit of the play, elevate the love festivity.

The design of the costumes is influenced by Botticelli's early renaissance fashion, but with much more color and character. The setting throughout the play remains the same, but, with a few additions and rotations, ingeniously becomes a court, a church, and a garden.

As far as acting is concerned, particular mention must be made to Kathryn Ryan and Michael Zeichner. Ryan's strength as the lady Beatrice dim...the love story it has been popular for. But for Beatrice and Benedick, Hero and Claudio, 'tis the season of true love.

New York City's comedy clubs like The Comic Strip and The Improvisation often serve as a showcase for new, aspiring talent. In a perhaps desperate effort to cash in on the public's recent, renewed interest in comedy, producer Hal Ennis and assistant manager Lisa Stolark have created a similar NYC nightclub setting at the Jade Fountain in Paramus. The unfortunately slow-paced, dragging production is called The Comedy Caravan.

The Jade Fountain, a lavishly decorated Chinese restaurant-bar, each Wednesday night accommodates a new group of 10 hopeful comics who perform original material for a surprisingly full house. The Jade resembled an intimate nightclub, as the stage, a Comedy Caravan sign that hung above the stage, and a smart-talking, wise-cracking Chevy Chase-type master of ceremonies, Richard Marv, were an excellent copy of NYC's Comic Strip, with one slight exception—the talent.

Marv, a 5'9" blond-haired and bearded comic who regularly performs at NYC's The Improvisation, injected life and energy between the often...smoke and Cupid's arrows whizzing past lovers at first seem rather hokey, but, in keeping with the season and spirit of the play, elevate the love festivity.

...a Comedy Caravan sign that hung above the stage, and a smart-talking, wise-cracking Chevy Chase-type master of ceremonies, Richard Marv, were an excellent copy of NYC's Comic Strip, with one slight exception—the talent. Marv displayed a seemingly unlimited supply of one-liners with ease and assurance, a definite contrast to John McGuiness' jittery, dull 15 minute monologue. McGuiness and another amateur comedian, Bob Reeve, a burly 6'1" high school football coach, restricted their routines to tired, old cliche-type jokes such as knock-knock, who's there and what did the Italian say to the etc., etc. Each comedian fortunately restricted their routines to 10 minutes, as any further punishment would have been unbearable.

Yet there were some bright moments. Hiraim Kasten, a veteran NYC club comedian, brought a contemporary touch to the more traditionally based material. Kasten is a tall, brown-haired NYC native who is a hip, witty comic. Dressed in a three piece brown suit, Kasten was thoroughly amusing as he gave his impression of a diaphragm.

Kasten's quick-paced routine was direct and hard-hitting and was the liveliest of the evening. When he pretended that he was aiding in the war against pregnancy, he swayed, screamed, and gasped. He simulated a diaphragm's performance perfectly, during the sexual act.

The audience appreciated his wild, off-beat humor during his 20 minute set. It was odd that only when the clean-cut standard was stretched did the proceedings begin to loosen up. Perhaps with more daring, sarcastic humor the evening might have been more enjoyable.

Disco Suckers
by Dirk Bender
I should have known better than to write the record-buying public like I did last month in December in these pages. I was giving Blondie's Parallel Lines its last mention of the year by saying that one and all should "chuck up another catchy, well-crafted album that should've been a hit for this band." That'll teach me to declare an Ip as being "stalled on the charts" just because it slipped one week.

If you didn't know, Blondie does indeed have a hit on their hands: the album is in the top ten according to Billboard and Record World. As wonders, the single, "Heart of Glass", just checked in at number one last week. So what if it's the worst album on the album and the only disco cut to boot they've got to eat, too.

Not only that, it's the first time since 1974's "Good Times Bad Times" when The Rolling Stones'"Knock on Wood" by Amii Stewart, for example--she's taken all the soulfulness out of the Steve Cooper classic. I can excuse the insistent disco beat the song's a natural for disco dancing--but the break gives me the shivers when the drama goes down the drain and Amii sings, "You'd better knock 'em all down." Yikes.

The Village People are to my mind a perfect indictment of modern-day drugs. Their songs are crammed with "aluminium and tryed to created a physical experience, for the viewer. Their surfaces were highly polished and therefore were reflective. Von Schlegell began to construct very large, aluminium and reflective sculptures. His surfaces were reflective. His first pieces were abstract but because he reduced form into simple forms. His first exhibitions took place in the Pace Gallery. As an exhibition titled "Primary Structures" which helped launch it.

Von Schlegell's pieces were large, geometric, and fluid forms. They were made out of aluminium and tried to create a physical and fluid experience for the viewer. Their surfaces were highly polished and therefore were reflective. Von Schlegell stated that the pieces related to the environment through the reflections. Although von Schlegell never said that he was a minimalist, his work was close to that style because he reduced form into simple forms. Artists almost never classify themselves. Evelyn "Champagne" King

Music Box

By Janice Bland

Evelyn "Champagne" King's new album, Music Box, is just that. This album contains an exciting assortment of tunes ranging from the powerfully enjoyable title cut "Music Box" to the passionately smooth vocals of "Let's Start All Over Again."

In this album, King again shows us the expressive baritone voice heard in her first album, Smooth Talk. But she has not resigned herself to disco in Music Box. Instead, she puts her talents on display. With an effective full range of her sensational voice she razzles and dazzles listeners with some soul, jazz, and disco. It is an incredible venture for her second album. But King's voice is too sensual and irresistible to hide behind the walls of disco forever.

"No Time For Fooling Around" is one of the disco cuts from the album. It is the current hit flowing through music boxes. It is more subtle than "Shame" (first hit record) but still as tantalizing and fun. "Steppin' Out" (Pt I and II), another disco cut, combines King's maturing voice with a strong rhythm section which will propell the listener.

King's new range in her music will delight and satisfy all age groups. At this point she sounds like a cross between a soulful Patti LaBelle and an intriguing Natalie Cole. The impact of her voice was exciting enough to lend to the explosive "Shame," but also lovely enough for the gentle "My Heart is Telling on Me."

With the correct record promotions, Music Box may become an even bigger seller than her first one. It will illuminate listeners' views that King is clearly one of our best sangstresses today.

Original Soundtrack/Hair
RCA CLB2-3274

By Jeryl Ann Franco

I got a rush from the movie Hair. My heart beat furiously, and I left the theater all revved up and talking at an insaudibly fast rate. The person I saw with the first time reaction must be the same way. What accounts for this reaction? It's the bright costuming, the colors, the innovative cinematography, the Twyla Tharp's beyond-genius choreography, and the movie's air of social discontentment. All these points revolve around the music, which is the essence of Hair. Hair's pulse beats in 4- time.

The high quality of this album is overwhelming when compared to the Broadway version's soundtrack. It holds ahead on all levels, including the talent of the singers and the capabilities of its musical and vocal arrangers (Galt MacDermot and Tom Pierson, respectively).

Delightful, of course, are the old favorites—"Aquarius," "Hair," "White Boys," "Black Boys," and "Flesh Failures/Let the Sun Shine In"—all with new and improved arrangements and performers.

Not so well-known are things like "Sodomy." Sung like a Baptist hymn, its title is about the only lyric which is not too obscene to be printed here. You'll love it. Annie Golden's (of the Shirts) short but sweet solo, "Air," never made it to the silver screen, but it is very entertaining on the album. Its lyrics and melody are just as cute as she is, as she coughs her way through this piece telling us to breathe the pollution in deeply. The chorus sings a "pum-pum-pum" background very similar to "Little Drummer Boy."

As innovative as it is hysterical are the movie's versions of "Black Boys" and "White Boys." In the play these songs saw white girls carrying on about black boys' more outstanding qualities, and black girls doing the same about white boys.

Here the white boys join the white girls in their praises of black boys, and likewise, the black boys join the black girls in their praise of the white boys. As if this isn't all silly enough, these aren't ordinary boys, but recruiting officers for the US Army who are (in falsetto) proclaiming the virtues of "chocolate flavored treats," and saying the likes of "white boys are so sexy...love to run my fingers through their golden curls."

The only bad thing to come out of the Hair soundtrack is the newly released single of "Easy to be Hard." It is a relatively unknown pessimistic ballad. Although it's exquisitely sung by Cheryl Barnes, its slow sentimentality is not singles material—especially when other, more worthy songs were passed by.

On its flip side is the only sickening song on the entire soundtrack—"Good Morning Star Shine."

This too-highly pitched piece of sugar and spice is sung by Beverly D'Angelo as Sheila, the ingenue. D'Angelo is beautiful and a good actress—but, frankly, she can't sing. Of course "Star Shine's" lyrics don't help things, sporting such lines as: "gliddy glop gloopy...sabba sobby sabba... ooby abba nabba...dooby abba dabba...lee lee lo lo...sing a song, sing a song, song song sing sing sing, song."

Lacrosse. I had always thought that it was a French word for crucify. And after seeing a few men’s matches I was sure of it. In March, when three female friends told me that they were going to play on the MSC Women’s Lacrosse club, I figured that they had played one too many games of “Quarter Bounce.” (Writer’s note: “Quarter Bounce” is a drinking game which, when played repeatedly, has devastating effects on the thinking processes.)

After a few weeks of practice the three women still had all their teeth and even smiled about going to practice.

“Dave, we beat Centenary (College) today,” an excited Pat Lo Presto told me about two weeks ago. The win evened the club’s record at one and one, after an opening loss to Rutgers University.

After a few weeks of practice the three women still had all their teeth and even smiled about going to practice.

“We’ve got three girls on the team that have never even touched a “cross” (lacrosse stick), scored four times. Raymond said before the MSC-Drew University (DU) contest.

There were still no signs of broken bones or false teeth. Well it was time for this reporter (sorry Howard) to see for himself. Last Wednesday I got my indoctrination to Women’s Lacrosse.

“We’re a young team,” Coach (and MSC assistant trainer) Jan Raymond said before the MSC-Drew University (DU) contest. “There’s only one senior on the squad so we should be even better next year.”

“Our biggest handicap is our inexperience,” Raymond continued. “We’ve got three girls on the team that have never even played before. But everyone is doing great. I’ve seen tremendous improvement in all the girls.”

There are some basic differences between men’s and women’s lacrosse. The first and most obvious is the lack of contact in the women’s game. The only hitting allowed is stick checking and even that is very limited. Another difference is the field on which the game is played. While the men use a field much like a football field, the women’s site has natural boundaries such as wood and hills.

The game that I witnessed proved to be MSC’s best to date, a 9-3 shellacking of DU. Lo Presto, a junior who until a month ago had never touched a “cross” (lacrosse stick), scored four times. Freshman “Pep” Wood, the Squaws most experienced player, had an excellent game, including a goal, despite an ankle injury. “Pep’s job against Drew was to bring the ball from defense to the attack zone,” Raymond said. “And she did an extremely good job.”

Other standouts in the game were Marc Johnston and goalie Niki Ramirez. Johnston scored the first MSC goal and added an assist, while Ramirez stopped 12 of 15 DU shots.

Other key players were Ros Goldschmidt who had a pair of goals and “Crazy” Alice Waller who constantly kept her opponent out of the scoring area.

The Squaws are currently a club but should gain team status, including a league to play in, next year.

“It’s not a question of money but facilities to practice and play,” Raymond said. “Hopefully, we’ll be able to work something out.”

Lady Knights beat Squaws

by Kenneth Lang

The MSC Squaws softball team tried to do what no team had done before, at least this year. On Tuesday afternoon they went up against a Rutgers University team that had previously been undefeated in 17 games. After playing MSC they ran that streak to 18 as MSC lost 4-0.

Rutgers’ winning pitcher, Hallie Cohen, notchd her 10th victory without a defeat as she scattered three hits during the course of the game. For MSC only Nancy Olsen (with two hits) and losing pitcher Dawn Lacey were able to connect off Cohen. The loss dropped Lacey’s record this season to 2-2, while the Squaws dropped to 10-4 as a team.

Lacey only gave up four hits total in the game, but Rutgers made them count.

MSC did manage to defeat West Chester State College (3-14) the day before in a game re-scheduled due to a previous rain-out. Ronnie Gudweicz won her third game as MSC won 5-3. Robyn Krause singled in a pair of runs in the second inning to give MSC a 2-0 lead.

MSC picked up another run in the third. With the bases loaded Kristen Festa forced out Gudweicz.

West Chester scored two in the third as Lindsay Taylor’s double scored Pat Workman and Lori Lacy.

MSC scored in the seventh twice more as Terry Kulik singled in Julie DeCosta and Rutgers scored two more runs for good measure in the sixth inning. After the first batter reached base on an error, Ferina reached base on a fielder’s choice. McNamara then walked, putting runners on at first and second base. Bridget Ellis forced Ferina at third base, and Terry Land doubled home two runs to make the final score 4-0.

Lacey only gave up four hits total in the game, but Rutgers made them count.

MSC had lost a heartbreaker to Southern Connecticut State College (SCSC) to start the week. With the score tied 1-1 in regulation time, MSC scored three times in the top of the 11th to seemingly put the game out of reach. It was, however, SCSC who had the last laugh as they scored four times in the bottom of the 11th to defeat MSC 5-4.

For MSC it’s tournament time. By virtue of a fine season and a 10-4 record, the Squaws have been invited to play in a tournament in Binghamton, NY, starting Friday. MSC is seeded fifth in a 16 team field and will play Ithaca College.

MSC has surprised some people with its softball team. Along with the lacrosse team, both have made the headlines in a season that has seen both come of age.

Basil Exudes Confidence

by Mariana Dumanovsky

How did an MSC senior who could land himself a pro contract start out in baseball?

"When I was five or six years old I used to play whiffle ball," Tom Basil, co-captain of the baseball team, remembered during an interview last Wednesday morning.

Basil, a 21-year-old business major, considers himself one of the best hitters around. The centerfielder by nature was asked to play rightfield once he was recruited to MSC as a freshman.

Basil described one of the biggest thrills for him in baseball. "It was the summer of ’74. It started out slow, but then a lot of people started coming to our games and we didn’t stop winning. We won the state title and ended up one game away from the World Series. We were in high school, but you had to be there to feel the electricity. It was super."

Basil feels he’s good enough for the major leagues. "I hope I get a shot to prove myself, but I don’t even think of being drafted. If I’m not, life goes on. If I am, I’m prepared."

Basil, a blue-eyed blonde, described his most embarrassing moment with a little hesitation.

"When I was a sophomore playing right field, I let two ground balls go right under my legs. They kept on rolling all the way down to the tennis courts. I just ran for the locker room after the game."

Basil revealed his feelings about this year’s team. "I don’t think we’ve really meshed yet as a team. I hope we do soon because we can make things happen."

Leaning back, relaxed, he explained that all the exposure is out in the Regionals. "What I really want is for the team to get together and set things up for the end of the season."

"What I do reflects the image of the team. I believe in leading through example," Basil said, talking about his responsibilities as a co-captain. Another role he plays is mediator between players and the coach.

To psyche himself up for a game, Basil simply tries to relax. "I try to save up my energy for the game."

Tield Guarino finally ended a long slump with a first pitch home run.

The Tribe scored six runs in the first inning on only one hit, as Mike Bujnowski led off the inning with a single and the next eight MSC batters were walked or hit by pitches.

The Vikings countered with three runs on four hits in their half of the first, but were shut out until the fourth.

MSC scored in the second with their leading batter, Spear, blasting a solo home run.

Meanwhile Tom Caruccio was breezing through the second, third, and fourth innings, setting nine Vikings down in a row.

In the fifth catcher Vince Tiberi lined a two out RBI single to tie the score.

MSC's record fell to .500 with 12-12 and TSC's record went to 19-12-1.

It's going right down to the wire with this year's men's baseball team. MSC will enter into its final weekend of the year with its three most important games of this 1979 baseball season.

MSC vs. WPC For Conference Title

by Kenneth Lang

It's going right down to the wire with this year's men's baseball team. MSC will enter into its final weekend of the year with its three most important games of this 1979 baseball season.

MSC has a home-and-home series against WPC this Friday and Saturday afternoon. They will also play Stockton State College (SSC) in a rain makeup game either on Sunday or Monday.

Thus, the Indians have to beat WPC twice to have a shot at first place in the northern division. If they win their final three games, and WPC wins one of their last three games, each would finish at 8-2. The Indians would, however, gain first place by virtue of the fact that they would have defeated WPC twice.

The playoff possibilities at this point are too numerous to figure out. It will not be until late this weekend that the first-round pairings will be set. In the playoff structure, the first place team in the north plays the second place team in the south, and vice versa. These two winners meet in the NJSCAC final, with that winner in all likelihood advancing to further post-season tournaments.

MSC will have its work cut out for it. Starting with last Sunday's victory over a tough Upsala team, the Indians will be playing a game that could possibly be eight straight days. It is important that the Indians win as many games as possible to insure a good record, because if MSC does not win the NJSCAC, they might be invited to participate in tournament play. Not likely, but every win will help.

It all boils down to two important games against WPC. The Indians travel to Wayne for a Friday afternoon (3 pm) game, and play the second game at Pilfer Field on campus at 1 pm (WMSC-FM will broadcast the game). They must win these two games or the road to past-season action may be ending quicker than Coach Fred Hill or his players want it to.
