A "major altercation" between patrons and staff of MSC's Ratskeller, last Friday night, prompted an administrative decision to temporarily ban the sale of alcoholic beverages there.

"It will be closed until we can come up with a recommendation to protect the students and our staff," Thomas Stepnowski, director of student activities, said.

The temporary ban on alcohol sales will be in effect until a complete review of the facts surrounding Friday night's incident can be made. "It (the ban) is a protective measure for the majority of the students," Harold Ostroff, student center manager, said. "It will be a consensus response from the college administration, the SCA, and the Rat management," he added.

Borrow now or pay later

(WASHINGTON, DC) - Make sure that college students in your family who don't have a government guaranteed student loan now borrow before the end of 1980 to lock in the seven percent interest rate.

The interest rate goes up to nine percent on Jan. 1, but only for students who have not borrowed before then. If students have a seven percent government guaranteed loan now or take out a loan before Jan. 1, the seven percent rate will apply to all such loans for the rest of their education.

Doctors back ban

(TRENTON, NJ) - NJ doctors are endorsing measures to restrict smoking in public places. But the doctors have one reservation.

They told the Assembly judiciary committee yesterday that the bills might not be strong enough.

The bills would ban smoking entirely in certain public places, such as elevators, polling places, retail food stores, and pharmacies. In addition, no smoking sections would be established in schools, theaters, libraries, public institutions, large restaurants, and workplaces.

SGA revokes Chi Alpha charter

by Mary Ann D'Urso

Last night the SGA dechartered Chi Alpha, a former Class III Organization. In a heated and often emotionally charged meeting, legislators, a vote was taken over whether or not Chi Alpha, a religious organization, should be dechartered. A Class III is a religious student organization, while a Class IV is a non-religious student organization. The SGA said that Chi Alpha did not meet the requirements of a Class IV organization.

According to campus police, on Fri. Oct. 31, Rosario Terranova was told to take the following week off with pay, on account of a sick leave. He was told to return in two days. After the meeting finished, Terranova was forced to return to his dormitory, but now he has the chance to return to his dormitory after leaving the campus.

Exdriver charges shuttle; student hurt

by Stephen McLean

A recently laid off shuttle bus driver has been charged with having caused the death of a Chi Alpha student, Iodd Barnes, whose former girlfriend is a Chi Alpha member. The driver, Ettoringer, reported that he was caught by an approaching vehicle and was able to slow to a stop, and that he was unable to see the car or its driver.

Terminology was also that of the SGA, as a driver would not be later in the afternoon, Phil Ander, president pro tempore of the legislature, said Chi Alpha member, said Chi Alpha would not continue to be chartered. After the legislative meeting, Ander's onlyvote was that the case will be non-partisan.

Ron Naples, vice president of the Assembly of God Church, should be a hearing on the matter.

A dance marathon to aid research into multiple sclerosis MS and victims of this incurable disease of the central nervous system will begin 6 pm Saturday in the gymnasium of the professional arts and sciences building.

Sponsored by the Circle K and Tau Kappa Eta TK's fraternities, the dance marathon will benefit the National MS Society Research, and the Upper NJ Chapter of MS.

Margaret Rothbard, director of the Upper NJ Chapter of MS, said that the dancers must comply with:

"Their vital signs, such as temperature, blood pressure, and heart beat rate, must be checked by the Montclair volunteer first aid squad, who will be there to periodically check the dancers. The dancers must also pay and raise a minimum of $24 per couple from sponsors, she said. She added that 75 percent of a dancer's body must be moving in order for him to be considered dancing.

Rothbard said she hoped to raise $3,000 by the event. She explained that 60 percent of the money will be donated to the Upper NJ Chapter of MS to aid victims in Essex, Hudson, and Union counties, while the remaining 40 percent will go to the National MS Society for Research.

Rothbard said the Upper NJ Chapter of MS provides activities including hill-climbing, water treading, swimming programs, wall climbing, and a weekend home care course where they learn to manage domestically.

The American Society for Research is searching for causes of and cures for the disease.

Dorothy Deignan, a junior political science major and president of Circle K, said door prizes will be awarded to the starting several programs on campus. Including Second Careers, a teacher education program in the sociology department, and a law enforcement program aimed at educating paratime students, some of whom are police.

The award was also granted to Dr. Christian Barnard of South Africa, the first cardiac surgeon to perform a human heart transplant, and President Valery Grazd D'Estaing of France, for his work in government and politics.

The solid gold medal weighs two ounces and is made up of pure 24 karat gold, coat of arms, and maltese cross. It is approximately two inches wide, four inches long, and worth $1,500.

Alda may speak at graduation

by Mindy Goldstein

FIlm and TV star Alan Alda may be the featured speaker at MSC's 1981 commencement exercises. According to Edward C. Martin, associate dean of students, Alda is being considered because of "his instant recognition as a humanitarian," and Alda embodies "qualities students appreciate."

Alda is one of three speakers under consideration for the commencement. The other two speakers under consideration are Sen. Bill Bradley, (D-NJ), and Roland Smith of CBS News, for commencement.

Alda was the first choice of the Commencement Honors, Traditions, and Ceremonies. The committee, which plans graduation, is made up of administrators, faculty, and an SGA representative.

Martin said Alda was sent an invitation to speak at commencement, but refused. According to Martin, Alda and Associates said, "Once you get several, you seem to get more."

Alda is also being considered by several other speakers.

Sponsors of the event have sent a letter requesting that Alda speak at commencement.

The Rathskeller will no longer accept "R" stickers as proof of legal drinking age becouse students have been using the stickers earlier than expected to transfer them illegally to minors, according to Vincent Baiardi, Rathskeller manager.

As a result of the illegal transfers, students under NJ's legal drinking age have been gaining access to the Rathskeller with stickers obtained from students nineteen and older. Baiardi said.

Baiardi said students are been asked to show their drivers licenses and MSC ID cards certificates and completion of Class D's are not being accepted because they are easily forged. Baiardi said. Furthermore, students who do not have a drivers license to prove their age, the Rathskeller has a master list of all students who are of drinking age. For the most part, Baiardi said, students have been cooperative with the double proofing.

Harold Ostroff, Student Center Manager said the double proofing is only a "temporary measure." As far as the future solutions are concerned, Ostroff said a committee had been formed to look into the possibilities. The committee is trying to formulate a method of validly checking a student's age, that is not susceptible to forgery.

Ostroff refused to comment on any of the ideas the committee may be considering.

Consumer Corner

Drivers take caution

by Lori McDonough

Imagine how you would feel if you were driving your car and your tires blew out or your engine overheated. What would you do if your brakes failed or your wipers failed to work in the middle of a dangerous intersection?

Many consumers, even those who are experienced in handling auto repairs don't know what to do when a minor emergency occurs.

At some point in life, every driver is faced with at least one emergency, which if not handled properly, could result in serious injury or death.

The following is a list of guidelines designed to help you cope with the common minor emergencies described above.

According to the US Department of Transportation you can do one of several things should your brakes fail. Whatever you do, remember not to slam on the brake pedal. Pull off the road to a safe spot where you have enough room to park without causing a hazard to yourself, and other drivers. Many importantly, remember not to slam on the brakes because this could make the car spin out of control.

Overheated engines are a common sight in the summer when many motorists rely on air conditioning to cool off the car. Should you be in this situation, pull off the road as soon as possible, turn off the engine, and let it cool down before moving on. If you can't turn off the road, turn on the heater and roll down the windows. This will reduce the engine's temperature by increasing the radiator capacity. Many people make the common mistake of removing the radiator cap before the engine has cooled, chances are the steam or liquid trapped inside will be forcibly released and could possibly cause severe burns. Pouring cold water into a hot engine will only help you crack the engine block.

SAGA News

Chi Alpha, Rat issues addressed

by Sonjui Lai

The SGA debated over two hours last night before chartering Chi Alpha, a campus religious group and former Class III Organization of the SGA.

The debate centered on the possible legal ramifications of the SGA chartering a partisan religious group. The procharter group felt that all fee paying students should have the right to exist as a chartered organization on campus. Those favoring dccharterment also chartered a (Class II religious group.

Questions were raised as to the legality of chartering or dcchartering the group. The final vote, taken by secret ballot, was 19 against chartering and 18 for. A two-thirds vote was required for passage.

Brian Cice, SGA president, brought up the closing passage of the Raphkelel. He is working with Tom Stepien, director of student activities, to have the Rat temporarily reopened by tomorrow.

Weekend college, a largely Hispanic group, was made a committee under the Latin American Students Organization. Before last night's vote, weekend college did not have class status under the SGA. The Accounting Club was also chartered as a Class II Organization.

Club seeks charter

A flying disc club, intended to educate students about frisbee play and compete with other such intercollegiate clubs, will apply for a Class III Charter with the SGA next week, according to a vice president of the club, Jim Murphy.

"We're putting in our constitution that one of the purposes of the disc club is to educate the student body on disc play. It's more complicated than most people think," Terry Brauer, president of the club, said.

The group's starting membership of 24 students seems to indicate that an interest in such a club exists at MSC, Brauer said. "We still need to raise some money for equipment and to reserve the gym for practice during the winter," Murphy said. The club will be having a cake sale in Mallory Hall today in an effort to raise money for equipment such as discs, cones, T-shirts, and eventually golf baskets needed to play frisbee golf, Murphy added.

Murphy, who calls himself a professional disc player, said a winner in a frisbee tournament can win up to $10,000. Murphy is a member of the International Frisbee Association, which sponsors such tournaments.

Brauer said exhibitions, as well as intercollegiate competition, are some of the club's plans for the coming semester. Glassboro State College and William Paterson College are two colleges the club intends to compete against next year, Murphy said.

Junior business major dies

Phyllis Meli, 20, of North Bergen, died Saturday of aplastic anemia at Sloan Kettering Hospital in NYC. A junior business major at MSC, she was employed at the Sears and Roebuck Distribution Center in Secaucus.

Surviving are her mother, the former Mary Tutani; her father, Joseph; and two sisters, Victoria Delucire and Judy. Services were Tuesday in the Vanieri Funeral Home in North Bergen. Burial was yesterday in Fairview Cemetery in North Bergen.

Sobecki said, "I think the AFT is always talking strike as an alternative. It's a traditional blue collar labor approach. I think people see the NJEA as a more professional alternative."

Keenan said, "A strike is something the faculty has to make up its mind about. Obviously nobody wants a strike, everybody would wind up losing."

Regarding the possibility of a settlement by the spring, provided the AFT was still representing MSC faculty, Keenan said, "I anticipate, as usual, a difficult negotiation session." He said the state doesn't seriously negotiate until a strike is imperative or in progress.

MSC goes on band wagon

Sometimes we wonder just who this college is being run for. Students? Guess again.

So why should it surprise us when a handful of administrators close the only place on campus where students can get together and relax over a few beers?

Although we are not aware of all the facts because the parties involved are being amazingly tight lipped, the fact that the Rathskeller has been closed due to a fight seems rather unfair to the rest of the students on campus.

It is in the nature of bars that fighting does occasionally break out. Everyone knows that. (Have you ever viewed a barroom scene on a TV show and had it not result in a lengthy segment of flying chairs and bodies?) To feel that this practice is uncommon and is cause to close the student pub is naive.

The rumor is also circulating that the parties involved with the fighting were not MSC students. Taking this into consideration, why are we being punished for someone else’s wrongdoings? The parties responsible for the brawl aren’t being punished in anyway. How, then, is our consideration, why are we being punished for someone else’s wrongdoings? Government get small nation from Washington is that the real business of Washington in our age is pretty much to run the world. An American national government in this age will always give priority to foreign affairs. A system has to be developed, therefore, under which domestic programs go forward regardless of what international crisis is preoccupying Washington at the moment.

Since Nixon, there has been overwhelming Congressional support for the application of planning and management principles to government. Reforms have made the planning agencies a little more open, a little less secret and a little more accountable to the electorate. In short, the planning agencies have become more the nation's and less the President's. Still we are told that planning is needed due to the persistence of basic structural deficiencies in American society. We are called upon to make "hard decisions" in the next few years, and to adjust our political and economic expectations downward so as to be more in harmony with the harsh realities of a changing global structure that is simultaneously struck with inflation, capital shortage, and an energy crisis, to name just a few.

The 1980's represent a crossroad in American politics—the debate on the injustices of social inequality has turned into a debate on the size and the role of the federal government. Do we go with the Neo-Conservatives attack on social programs, subject them to cost-benefit analysis, and dismantle the programs assembled in the era between the New Deal and Johnson's Great Society since they gave too little for too much?

Do we follow the Reagan recipe which rests on the fundamental premise that the Federal government is overgrown and needs to go on a diet? For Reagan, the ills of the nation are due to excessive government spending, taxing, and regulation. He calls for a return to laissez-faire and wants to pull the plug. He claims that we can cut spending somewhat between 64 and 95 billion dollars by 1985 and give a 30 percent across the board tax cut phased in over the next three years.

Can Reaganomics work? I think not. I still do not see how we can simultaneously increase defense spending, decrease taxes and balance the budget. But the larger problem lies in the fact that pulling the plug on the life sustaining equipment may save electricity, but it may also kill the patient. What happens in the short run? What happens while we are waiting for the tax breaks and the deregulation to take effect and increase productivity and thus the tax base? Obviously some cuts have to be made. But Where? Reagan has promised to "defend" Social Security, but what happens to those who rely on the government for income? While we are told the power-base is yest! What happens to programs for the handicapped, the school lunch programs, and disaster relief, to name just a few.

Jimmy Carter does not look that different in this regard. He tells us that the age of scarcity is upon us and that we have to sacrifice and limit our expectations.

Where are the liberals during all this? The liberal disarray. Realizing the validity to parts of the neo-conservative critique, they are left to defend the principles of the New Deal and the Great Society, and to argue for additional funding, better management. Yet they have yet to fashion a systematic social policy.

The question still looms: how to make the cuts? Perhaps this was the message of the Kennedy campaign and the "cause" that kept him going in the face of almost certain defeat. Knowing that severe budget cuts were imminent, he called for compassion at the Democratic Convention. "It is surely correct that we cannot solve social problems by throwing money at them," he said. "But it is also correct that we dare not throw out our national problems onto a scrap heap of inattention and disinterest."

The basic question of the 1980's will be centered around the size and role of the government and the debate over social inequality and the injustices of American life. The contours of the political debate over the next decade are set and will remain long after Nov. 4. Can government get small and remain compassionate? Are we going to determine budget ceilings by the functioning of the private economy, its inflationary impacts, or the inequitable tax structure or are we going to determine budget ceilings by the dictates of human needs?

Students mixed on Reagan

What are your views of the next four years under Ronald Reagan?

"We have unleashed the largest reign of fascism ever known to man. The war on the hill is impossible and formostic policies.

Holly Goodman
1981 English

"I think Ronald Reagan will help bring inflation down and restore the economy."

Bill Knight
1985 psychology

"I don't think it makes a significant difference at this point. The state of the economy and the people's attitudes are at a point where conditions will either improve or not improve."

Carolyn Shull
1982 accounting

"I think economically it will be hard for Reagan to keep his promises, for the simple fact that Carter's administration must prepare a new budget before it leaves, and this may either help or hinder the economy."

Jay Harold
1981 marketing

"I'm looking forward to a change because the US certainly needs a change."

Norma:
Hi, Meryl.

Meryl:
Hi, Big N. Did you read my piece in The Montclarion? Old Doc Minibus is really going to love it! Ha, Ha.

Norma:
Frankly, Meryl I thought your article did more harm than good. Campus problems are not solved through diabolistic insertions.

Meryl:
Look, Norma do you want to remain friends? I mean, you've got to be kidding! Those pot bellied administrators down in College Hall are out to rip us off, and we better hit the road before they do.

Why not keep your opinions to yourselves?

To the editor:
I have been reading Matt Ward's "In the Sports Corner" column all semester and have grown increasingly irritated with each passing column. Who the heck is this kid to be giving his opinions on professional sports? Has he ever been at a professional sporting event as anything other than a spectator? He is just going to reiterate what he reads in some newspaper, or heard on some sportscast. He claims that Shula is regarded higher than any coach aside from Tom Landry and Chuck Noll. By whom? The guy he talks too in the Ratshackel? His promo for the South Carolina-Georgia game and his commentary on the Dave Winfield free agency is also without any first hand knowledge.

He finally mentions something pertinent to ASC by noting the achievements of placekicker Keith Sahlin and suggesting that the New York Jets give him a shot. I certainly have nothing against Sahlin, and he certainly deserves congratulations on his accomplishments. I further agree that Pat Leahy has been inconsistent, but suggest Sahlin as a replacement is ridiculous. Sahlin has never kicked anything longer than a 46 yard field.

Norma:
Wow! You must've gotten an A plus in "Hostility 101!"

Meryl:
Look, you creep-you don't understand. Parking stinks at ASC, and all we hear is "cooperate" and "try to accept part of the inconveniences brought on by our construction programs." What a load of crap! I don't want to hear their stupid logic that every campus across the country uses 3:1 ratios for allocating parking spaces. I don't want to hear about variable schedules and overnight parking violations. I just want to park my damn car!

Norma:
Meryl, you're not interested in what's right or wrong, good or bad, what the facts are, or where the truth lies. All you want to do is win a little political duel with the administration. You know, we do have shuttle buses and an escort service, which not every state college campus has. We need the new dorm and Student Center Annex desperately. No progress of this magnitude can take place without some degree of inconvenience. And all, our fulltime equivalent is far larger than we anticipated. What you really should do is go after all the dorm students and their guests who stay overnight illegally. That would help the commuters. Also, you're not contributing to the problem when almost every car entering the campus each morning is a single person vehicle. And what about the nonlocal cars occupying space which should be for decal purchasers?

What do women want?

With the election campaign finally over, it's time to address some serious problems and issues. But first, I'd like to say a few words in rebuttal to Mike Sinatra's letter regarding my Oct. 9 column (Carter: a man of integrity?).

First, Sinatra apparently did not read my column regarding Ronald Reagan (Reagan: a worthy candidate?). Second, being a political science major, Sinatra had better learn what objectivity is. Either he has rose colored glasses permanently affixed on his head, or he surely had too many peanuts or beer (remember Billy).

I suggest that Sinatra take a course in logic, for we will all be better off. Third, I've wasted too much time addressing such a ridiculous letter. With the question of ERA and women's rights a key issue in this fall's campaign, there has been much confusion as to what women are trying to achieve. With women's libbers and feminist groups taking opposite stands, it's difficult to formulate an opinion on the issue. To define equality, which is what the women's movement is all about, is a difficult task. Does equality mean being drafted, or does it mean equal pay? The question of responsibility goes with this idea of equality, and it is one that women take their responsibilities to heart.

For the past 10 years women have been coming into the working community and out of the house. It was about time they did, for their intelligence and creativity are talents that are greatly needed. It's sad to see women, at this point in time, whose only goal is to get married and raise a family. This should be frowned upon, for the country loses a lot of potential from this.

Women have made our society much better over the past 10 years because they have finally chosen to participate. They have taken the responsibilities of working life and combined them with family life, making them better parents and better people, and making life much more interesting. To all the feminists out there, I say grow up! Equality for women will come when all are ready to accept responsibilities of equal rights with men, and not until then.

Black Perspectives

Bringing Black awareness to MSC

by Janice Bland

The Black Student Cooperative Union (BSCU) continues each month to bring Black awareness to the MSC campus. Cultural Affairs of BSCU, chaired by Kasib Bryant, will be sponsoring a fashion show this month. Students from MSC, under the direction of Patricia Porter, will be participating in the fashion show. On Sun., Nov. 15, BSCU will be sponsoring a trip to the Schomburg Collection in Harlem. There will be a Black History Weekend Program on Sun., Nov. 16, BSCU, along with Class 1 Concerts, will sponsor Tom Brown and Bobbi Humphrey in concert Mon., Nov. 17. Tickets are now on sale in the Student Center lobby. The price of these tickets are $4.50 for students with an MSC ID, and $6 for the general public. Also on hand in November is the "10 Years Later" costume party.

In December, BSCU will celebrate the annual Kwanza event. Kwanza is the only nationally celebrated non-Western Black holiday in the U.S. Kwanza in the last 14 years has grown from its early origins as a cultural concept, and a small celebration of US organization, to become the yearly practice of an estimated 10 million Blacks, as of this season.

The idea of Kwanza comes from the harvest celebrations in traditional African societies, but the symbols and concepts come from our needs, conditions, and development as Afro American people. BSCU celebrates Kwanza with festivities and food. Kasib Bryant states BSCU will be celebrating Kwanza during a two week period.

BSCU hopes all MSC students will feel free to participate in our activities.

Booters end season with tie, 0-0

by William Delorm

The MSC soccer team ended their nightmarish season by battling Rutgers University-Newark to a scoreless tie last Saturday at Brookdale Park.

The Indians ended their horrendous 3-10-2 season the same way they began it eight weeks ago—with a double overtime game. On Sept. 19, it was 3 p.m. at Orange; at the stage for the rest of the Tribe's 15 game season, when they scored with six minutes to play in the final overtime period to give MSC their inital loss—a 1-0 heartbreaker.

Steeiers need to be at their very best with only six weeks remaining. They trail Houston and Cleveland by one game in the division and still must meet quality AFC teams, such as Miami, Buffalo, Kansas City, and San Diego. If the Steeiers continue to play without the fire and drive of years past, then the final pangs may well indeed be the end of the season.

Of course, Steeiers backers are quick to cite the injury problems the team has experienced. No doubt that argument carries some weight. But Steeiers teams in the past have had unjury problems and were able to bounce back. It seems this year’s team has played without the same zeal and drive as in the past. Yet, it is easy to understand that.

After having won four Super Bowl rings, the Pittsburgh Steeiers' attempt at "one for the thumb" seems to be an illusion that will not be achieved this season.

Many will say that to write off the team at this juncture is premature. But looking at a few facts clearly show— that the Steeiers' attempt at "one for the thumb" will not be achieved this season.

After having won four Super Bowl rings, the Pittsburgh Steelers' attempt at “one for the thumb” seems to be an illusion that will not be achieved this season.

Many will say that to write off the team at this juncture is premature. But looking at a few facts clearly shows that the Steeiers’ attempt at “one for the thumb” will not be achieved this season.

The Indians ended their 3-10-2 season the same way they began it eight weeks ago—with a double overtime game. On Sept. 19, it was 3 p.m. at Orange; at the stage for the rest of the Tribe's 15 game season, when they scored with six minutes to play in the final overtime period to give MSC their inital loss—a 1-0 heartbreaker.

On Saturday, the Indians had a chance to pull out a win of their own, late in the game, when midfielder Tom Connors broke in one-on-one with Newark's goalkeeper with only a minute to play. Drilling in from the left side of the field, Connors headed straight for the goal. The goalkeeper held his ground but didn’t cut down the angle. The MSC attacker had half the goal to shoot at.

Connors led fourirs to land a powerful shot into the goal. The goalkeeper held his ground but didn’t cut down the angle. The MSC attacker had half the goal to shoot at. The move was over, they were brought back to reality.

MSC, who outshot the Knight 16-5, brought the crowd alive late in the second overtime period, when sweeper Paul Liddy hit the crossbar with a free kick from 25 yards out. The shot, which soared beautifully over a four-man defensive wall and above a startled goalkeeper, was just another example of the Tribe’s luck all year.

The game, which was largely played in Newark's half of the field, was, for the most part, devoid of excitement. Neither team could seem to mount a serious attack on the other's goal, and when a shot was fired, it looked more like a back pass to the goalie-slowly rolling right to him.

After his near miss shot in regulation, Connors supplied additional fireworks in the first overtime—but not with the same kind of “bang.” For 95 minutes, Connors and the Knights center halfback, Nick Furriss, continually ran each other into the ground. Flying elbows were a frequent sight. Finally Furriss decided that he had had enough.

Pressure by the MSC offense and continued harassment by Connors led Furriss to land a cheap right hook to Connors left eye. Connors, not noted for taking anything from anyone, (he led MSC in both yellow and red cards this season) retaliated without hesitation.

Players from both sides quickly jumped in to “break up” the skirmish, and the benches emptied. After the pile of bodies was unfurled, Connors and Furriss were ejected, and the game proceeded without further incident.

Goalkeeper Mike Tropeano notched his second shutout of the year in his final appearance for MSC. The 6 foot 2 inch senior from Elizabeth, NJ played flawlessly while making four saves.

THROW INS: MSC dropped a 6-4 decision to Monmouth College-Monmouth last Wednesday night in Point Pleasant Beach.

These same rumors say that Duran, win or lose, has had enough of the fight game, that he has accomplished what he sought out to do, and that the recognition he craves for has come his way.

Leonard is also considering retirement, because there is pressure from his wife to get out of boxing while in good physical shape.

To lose either or both of these two men would be a tragic loss to boxing. In the fight game there are no other two boxers who command the ability and have the personality these two men have. Yet, should these two men make that decision, it will be a loss to boxing and sports fans everywhere.

Byrne takes billiards

by Bo Ritz

The men's basketball league ended its second week of play with six teams still unbeaten. In division I, the Coaches and the Terrapins are undefeated, while in division II, the Oldtimers are unbeaten. WUTPSB and Yummisters are leading the division with 4-0 records.

In the fall bowling league, the Geeks are still in first place with a 40-16 record. The Oldtimers moved into second place with a 38-18 record, while Brian's Bunch slipped into third (35-21).

Individual categories for the men and women are still John Dworkak and Cynthia Jancz.

Mike Byrne outlasted seven other opponents to win the SILC Billiard Tournament. Byrne, last year's runnerup, played well all night. He beat Pedro Prenat in the final game, 100-79, to win the title.

Injuries can play as important a part in the success or failure of a team as the strength and talent of its players. In his five years as coach, Dr. Phil Santiago has had only one player sidelined for a prolonged period of time.

Santiago, realizing that a professional sports career is a limited investment, set out and fulfilled a lifelong goal. After nine years of schooling—while playing on four professional soccer teams—he is now a practicing chiropractor as well as a coach.

The boxy looking, first year head coach of MSC's soccer team comes over to NJ from the New York Institute of Technology XVII. Santiago, who led his Long Island based team to two Metropolitan Conference championships (1977 and 1979), has also been named Coach of the Year twice (1977 and 1979). His ambition is to bring similar results to the Indians.

Sweat dripping down his face and onto a wooden bench in the men's locker room at Panzer Gym (after an hour of rigorous indoor practice), Santiago related his reasons for going into sports medicine and chiropracting, his experiences in soccer's pro ranks, and his goals as a coach.

Brought up in a family of chiropractors (his father, mother, sister, brother, and brother-in-law), the MSC coach lived in an environment that centered around natural health. This, and his lifelong infatuation with athletics, has led the 28-year-old doctor into sports medicine. "I'm able to apply my medical training on the field and into the area of sports medicine," he added.

"I've always wanted to be a chiropractor, and I've always loved sports," Santiago remarked, wiping the sweat from his forehead. "By moving into sports medicine, I'm able to stay in touch with both," he added.

After seeing action in both the North American Soccer League NASL and the American Soccer League ASL, the slender MSc pilot said goodbye to the pro game in 1978.

"Both leagues treat American players like dirt," Santiago commented. "Americans play for nothing, and the owners know it. It's not like basketball or football where a kid out of college can set his price if he's good enough. You're expendable because they (the owners) have the whole world to choose players from," he added.

As a coach, the five year veteran's goal is to reach the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) final four, Hopefully, with MSC. "I've come close twice with New York City," he noted.

Santiago attended the New York Chiropractic College NYCC on Long Island after graduating from Fitchburg Dickerson University. During these nine years of education, he came to the realization that he'd make his living in sports medicine.

While at NYCC, Santiago signed to play for the ASL's New Jersey Americans. "The team worked out a deal with the school," he explained. "I was excused from a lot of classes, but I still had to study. On the road, I got my own room and I had to go before a review board when I came home to prove that I was studying," he said.

It sure took all the fun away from road trips," he admitted with a smile.

As to why he still coaches with his present busy schedule, he replied by simply saying that the game's still in his system.

"I still love the game and I want to build a good program here (at MSC)," he commented. "This year, the program stagnated a little, but we should be much improved next season," he added.

Grundy gains 2000th yard

by John Hugel

Senior tailback Bill Grundy became the second rusher in MSC history to run for 2,000 yards, as MSC (7-2) routed Jersey City State College, 24-7, last Saturday at Roosevelt Stadium in Jersey City, N.J.

Grundy, who gained 73 yards in 19 carries, bailed his way as far as the one yard line late in the first quarter to give the Indians a 10-0 lead. Six plays earlier, MSC linebacker Mike Henkel intercepted the first of four Joe Packwood passes, and returned it to the JCSC 20 to set up the score.

Kicker Keith Sahlin put the Tribe on top earlier in the quarter (3-0) with a 33 yard field goal.

The sloppily played game, which was void of any passing attack, did not look like one that wanted to give the other the game. MSC turned the ball over four times on fumbles, while JCSC (2-7) gave the Tribe the ball almost twice as many times on intercepted aerials.

Starting quarterback Joe Rebholz threw just three completions in nine attempts (20 yards), and back up Scott Fischer connected in nine attempts (20 yards), and back up Scott Fischer connected only twice in eight tries (25 yards) as MSC struggled to gain yardage. Luckily, JCSC was willing to give to the Indians, as two of their three touchdowns resulted from Gothic turnovers.

MSC's defensive line also did a phenomenal job, shutting down JCSC ground attack and limiting them to a measly 63 total yards.

On the day, MSC accumulated 114 of their 15.9 total yards on defense. The offensive line, lead by Paul Tortorella and Bill Powers, opened up more holes than a donut cutter, and enabled Grundy and Co. to do their thing.

The Tribe's defensive line also did a phenomenal job, shutting down the JCSC ground attack and limiting them to a measly 63 yards. This, coupled with the superb performance by the Indians' secondary, held the Goths to less than impressive 101 yards in total offense.

Cornerback Tom Devine set up MSC's insurance touchdown when he returned a fourth quarter interception to the Goths' 10. From there, the Goths' defense stymied the Tribe for three plays before Grundy picked up the yardage for the score, as MSC held on for a 24-7 victory.

EXTRA POINTS: Linebacker Sam Mills reached his 100 tackle mark for his MSC career...The Tribe will conclude their season this Saturday against Glassboro State College (GSC) at Sprague Field. Glassboro State is still holding out for a chance at sharing the conference title with Trenton State College (TSC). TSC is under no pressure to win, as they already own the conference title with Trenton State College (TSC).
