The Montclarion, April 23, 1981

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.montclair.edu/montclarion

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.montclair.edu/montclarion/1487

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Newspapers at Montclair State University Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Montclarion by an authorized administrator of Montclair State University Digital Commons. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@montclair.edu.
Moore said that the practice of withholding the two semesters, students, financial aid awards are held up until the semester. He explained that we are attempting to bring about enforcements.

Professional financial aid withheld?

Moore said that preventing students from registering for a legal. He said that the college contracted the NJ Attorney General’s Office for an opinion before they were able with the plan, and that they were told that it is the college’s prerogative to do so.

He also said that there is no room for bargaining. “We had discussed working out a deal to forget 50 percent of the fine, but it’s unfair to students with only one or two tickets who pay their entire fines,” he added.

Unpaid tickets are costly

AFT okays faculty strike

The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) at the eight New Jersey state colleges overwhelmingly voted in favor of a positive strike authorization during the second week of April. The AFT bargaining unit, which includes faculty, non-professional employees, and librarians, voted 3,171 in favor of the authorization and 419 against it.

Some of the issues the union is negotiating for include: a 16 percent increase for each of the two year contracts, a salary tied to the cost of living index; the elimination of the promotion cap, which currently denies 55 percent of its faculty as either full or associate professors; and job security.

The two sides have been negotiating for the past four and one-half months. The AFT’s current contract expires in June.

We haven’t reached an agreement on the economic issue of negotiation, which are the main issues,” Edwin Evans, the negotiator for the state, said. “We’re still far apart, but we have not been able to make any progress on the economic issues.”

James Keenen, the president of the AFT local at MSC, said, “The strike notices from the administration have been collectively served, since the Council of New Jersey College Locals will convene Fri., April 24, to discuss strike related issues. Therefore, until that time, no strike deadline has or will be set.”

Barbara Hoerner, a staff representative with the college council, said that the council was the “policy making body of the union.”

The vote regarding the strike authorization issue were tabulated on April 10 at an AFT meeting at the Labor Education Center at Rutgers University, New Brunswick.

“The ballot boxes from each of the state colleges were brought to the meeting and were collectively tallied,” Hoerner said.

She added that at the April 16 negotiating session “The state did not have material prepared and Theodore Gerberg (the state appointed mediator) had to recess the meeting a half hour later.”

Hoerner said that the state is refusing to respond to the demands.

Chief Jayne Rich of the campus police said that should a faculty strike result, the campus police would try to keep the roads as clear so that people wishing to come on campus could do so. She added that the officers would be working 12 hour shifts.

Normally campus police officers work eight hour shifts.
Rutgers protests collide

NEW BRUNSWICK, April 20—Two demonstrations over US involvement in El Salvador took place last week at and around Rutgers University, according to Ron Helstott, managing editor of the Daily Targum, Rutgers' student newspaper. One demonstration called for US support in El Salvador, while the other condemned it, Helstott said.

Carrying placards proclaiming "Soviets Out of El Salvador" and "Castro Out of El Salvador," members of the Collegiate Association for Research of Principle (CARP) gathered on Rutgers' Brower Commons, Helstott said. The march of about 25 people took place April 15.

CARP, a student affiliate of the Unification Movement, called for an end to Soviet intervention in El Salvador, Helstott said. However, he added, it supports the continuance of US aid. "El Salvador leftists are trying to destroy your freedom, because they don't believe in individual freedom, they believe in the government," Helstott, quoting CARP director Phil McCraken, said. CARP believes aid from the US should continue, while Soviet aid should be stopped. "Soviets Out of El Salvador and Castro Out of El Salvador," he added. The controversy came about after a number of students admitted to having voted more than once in the election, Helstott said. He explained students wishing to vote were handed one ballot to fill in. However, many students left their ballots lying about the Student Center instead of returning them. "Some people just left them (the ballots) and I just took them and voted three or four times," an anonymous student admitted to the Targum.

Three days earlier, a protest of about 120 people made its way through the streets of New Brunswick condemning US involvement in El Salvador, Helstott said. Protesters tabled our involvement "Reagan's War," he added. The march was sponsored by the New Brunswick based NJ Coalition in Solidarity with El Salvador.

According to Helstott, a spokesperson for the group said its purpose is to "awaken and educate people on what's going on in El Salvador.

TSC elections probed

TRENTON, April 22—The result of the recent SGA elections at Trenton State College (TSTC) "could be ruled invalid" due to a number of possible violations of election rules, Bill Fellows said, news editor of the Signal, the college paper. Melisa Zuravner was elected SGA president after running an election in which her only opposition was a student who waged a write-in campaign starting two days before the elections, Fellows said. Despite the shortness of his campaign the student lost by a vote of 137 to 211, he added.

The controversy came about after a number of students admitted to having voted more than once in the election, Fellows said. He explained students wishing to vote were handed one ballot to fill in. However, many students left their ballots lying about the Student Center instead of returning them. "Some people just left them (the ballots) and I just took them and voted three or four times," an anonymous student admitted to the Signal.

Fellows said it may be viewed as illegal campaigning. Zuravner, who spoke at the rally, said that since she was more than the required 10 feet away from the ballot box, and had cleared her appearance earlier with the SGA and administrators, she wasn't in violation of election rules. Fellows added that nobody had officially challenged the election results, and that it looked as if the election results would stand as is.

NJIT employees arrested

NEWARK, April 21—Two special service department employes at the New Jersey Institute of Technology (NJIT) were arrested by postal inspectors and federal agents Mon., April 13, according to Scott Walyus, news editor of the Vector, NJIT's college paper. The two employes, who worked for the NJIT postal office, are being held in suspicion of theft of mail sent through the college, Walyus said.

The arrests were made after two months of investigation by the post office. Walyus said many dormitory residents complained that mail sent to them, especially envelopes containing money, was missing. Walyus said that the Vector had not yet heard what charges would be made, or on what grounds they would be made.
Toni Morrison, lyrical novelist...

by Mary Ann D’Urso

Toni Morrison, a female novelist, whose latest work, Tar Baby, was recently released by Alfred A. Knopf publishers, NYC, will be the first guest artist to be featured in the president’s annual series of lectures. Morrison, recently the National Book Critics Circle Award in 1977 for Song of Solomon, her last novel, is a black female novelist, and said something to the effect, ‘don’t you wish you could have done this entire interview without mentioning the word “black”? Morrison calmly stated, “yes, I guess so, but you started it.” Applause.

Morrison, undoubtedly one of the leading female novelists in the country, is the winner of the National Book Critics Award, a nominee for the National Book Award, a senior editor at Random House, a former Yale University lecturer and currently at Bard College, and a former instructor at Howard University, Washington DC—past a few of the credits under her name.

Morrison’s voice, which ranges from being sophisticatedly tranquil, to down right streetwise, never ceases to captivate. Her laughter has that kind of insightful knowledge, which has covered many miles. Morrison’s work tends to deal with the idea of identity, a search for one self by the ways of one’s history. Her work deals with sex, violence, male-female struggles, female friendships, vanity, and racism.

Born Chloe Anthony Morrison, she comes from a family strong ties and rooted with a fascination of the supernatural. In interviews she recalls the ghost stories she was told as a child. These stories, along with the black stories and music and language she grew up with, seem to have been the foundation for her wonderful command of language.

In a recent New York Times article one of Morrison’s friends, opera star Leontyne Price said, ‘she paints pictures with words and reading or hearing those words is like listening to music.”

Excerpts from Tar Baby

And when the vision materialized in a yellow dress Jadine was not sure it was not all part of her list—an addition to the coconut and tamarind, a kind of plus to go with the limes and pimiento. Another piece of her luck. The vision itself was a woman much too tall. Under her long canary yellow dress Jadine knew there was too much hip, too much bust. The angelic to disappear—the woman turned her head sharply around to the left and above her lashes to say it. She swallowed and was about to try again when the door opened and a tall woman walked into the room. She leaned into the dairy section and opened a carton from which she took three or four—but you started it.” Applause. Morrison said, “no, I guess so, but you started it.” Applause.

Jadine followed her profile, then her back as she passed the store plate glass stopped. And there, just there—a moment before the woman reached into the pocket of her yellow dress and put a ten-louis down to the pavement and the hearts below, Actually it didn’t matter. When you have fallen in love, rage is superfluous; insult seems to be a kind of plus to go with the limes and pimiento. Another piece of her luck. The woman reached into the pocket of her yellow dress and put a ten-louis down to the pavement and the hearts below, Actually it didn’t matter. When you have fallen in love, rage is superfluous; insult seems to be a kind of plus to go with the limes and pimiento. Another piece of her luck. The woman reached into the pocket of her yellow dress and put a ten-louis down to the pavement and the hearts below, Actually it didn’t matter. When you have fallen in love, rage is superfluous; insult seems to be a kind of plus to go with the limes and pimiento. Another piece of her luck. The woman reached into the pocket of her yellow dress and put a ten-louis down to the pavement and the hearts below, Actually it didn’t matter. When you have fallen in love, rage is superfluous; insult seems to be a kind of plus to go with the limes and pimiento. Another piece of her luck. The woman reached into the pocket of her yellow dress and put a ten-louis down to the pavement and the hearts below, Actually it didn’t matter. When you have fallen in love, rage is superfluous; insult seems to be a kind of plus to go with the limes and pimiento. Another piece of her luck. The woman reached into the pocket of her yellow dress and put a ten-louis down to the pavement and the hearts below, Actually it didn’t matter. When you have fallen in love, rage is superfluous; insult seems to be a kind of plus to go with the limes and pimiento. Another piece of her luck. The woman reached into the pocket of her yellow dress and put a ten-louis down to the pavement and the hearts below, Actually it didn’t matter. When you have fallen in love, rage is superfluous; insult seems to be a kind of plus to go with the limes and pimiento. Another piece of her luck. The woman reached into the pocket of her yellow dress and put a ten-louis down to the pavement and the hearts below, Actually it didn’t matter. When you have fallen in love, rage is superfluous; insult seems to be a kind of plus to go with the limes and pimiento. Another piece of her luck. The woman reached into the pocket of her yellow dress and put a ten-louis down to the pavement and the hearts below, Actually it didn’t matter. When you have fallen in love, rage is superfluous; insult seems to be a kind of plus to go with the limes and pimiento. Another piece of her luck. The woman reached into the pocket of her yellow dress and put a ten-louis down to the pavement and the hearts below, Actually it didn’t matter. When you have fallen in love, rage is superfluous; insult seems to be a kind of plus to go with the limes and pimiento. Another piece of her luck.
career corners

by Peter Prichard

This time of year Career Services receives a lot of career related questions from students who are graduating in May or August. Some questions include:

Is it too late to start looking for a fulltime job?

There are some large corporations that have been recruiting all spring for their junior summer programs. Sales, banking, insurance, and retail operations are often set up this way. Those who are interested in getting involved in a large scale June training program will be at a distinct disadvantage compared to students who have been interviewing with these companies since February. There are other companies which also gear their hiring to June. Positions which are open to college graduates are filled throughout the year as vacancies occur. This is true even in the training programs. Graduates can find jobs throughout the year through those that need to have something soon after graduation need to get started as soon as possible.

Will I be penalized if I graduate in May, take the summer off, and start my job search in September? That depends a lot on how you present yourself. If you answer the question, "So what did you do all summer?" defensively, the interviewer might perceive it as wasted time. If you say something like, "I worked hard while I was in school and felt that I needed to get away from work for awhile and treat myself to a vacation. Now I'm ready to get moving on my career and will work as many hours as you need me," there will be much more of a likelihood that you will come across positively. The personality of the interviewer is also a factor. A very straight do-it-by-the-book type of interviewer will probably look upon it negatively, while someone who has done the same thing and is not all "business" might be more likely to see it as a strength.

The months spent looking for a job will affect your chances. The worst months to be job hunting are probably August, November, and December. I'm graduating and don't have any idea what I am going to do with my degree. How can I find out what kind of jobs are available to me? The Career Services Library, located in Life Hall, has information on job opportunities for college graduates. Information in this Career Information section is arranged by major and specific career. Counselors are available to help students look into their various options.

What is the best way to go about looking for a job? A comprehensive search should utilize as many resources as possible. These might include approaching Career Services' job listings (see the attached Job Listings and Career Seminars box); contacting employers directly (numeros resources are available which lists employers of college graduates); answering newspaper ads (ads which list an employer's name and address are preferable to box number ads); contacting employment agencies (make sure you don't have to pay the fees); utilizing personal contacts (if done appropriately this can be the most successfully); reading magazines, trade journals, and periodicals which carry want ads in your field of interest; checking with the local Chamber of Commerce; contacting your local NJ Employment Service; and contacting your local NJ Employment Service.

July training programs. Sales, by Peter Prichard

There are some large corporations that have been recruiting all spring for their junior summer programs. Sales, banking, insurance, and retail operations are often set up this way. Those who are interested in getting involved in a large scale June training program will be at a distinct disadvantage compared to students who have been interviewing with these companies since February. There are other companies which also gear their hiring to June. Positions which are open to college graduates are filled throughout the year as vacancies occur. This is true even in the training programs. Graduates can find jobs throughout the year through those that need to have something soon after graduation need to get started as soon as possible.

Will I be penalized if I graduate in May, take the summer off, and start my job search in September? That depends a lot on how you present yourself. If you answer the question, "So what did you do all summer?" defensively, the interviewer might perceive it as wasted time. If you say something like, "I worked hard while I was in school and felt that I needed to get away from work for awhile and treat myself to a vacation. Now I'm ready to get moving on my career and will work as many hours as you need me," there will be much more of a likelihood that you will come across positively. The personality of the interviewer is also a factor. A very straight do-it-by-the-book type of interviewer will probably look upon it negatively, while someone who has done the same thing and is not all "business" might be more likely to see it as a strength.

The months spent looking for a job will affect your chances. The worst months to be job hunting are probably August, November, and December. I'm graduating and don't have any idea what I am going to do with my degree. How can I find out what kind of jobs are available to me? The Career Services Library, located in Life Hall, has information on job opportunities for college graduates. Information in this Career Information section is arranged by major and specific career. Counselors are available to help students look into their various options.

What is the best way to go about looking for a job? A comprehensive search should utilize as many resources as possible. These might include approaching Career Services' job listings (see the attached Job Listings and Career Seminars box); contacting employers directly (numeros resources are available which lists employers of college graduates); answering newspaper ads (ads which list an employer's name and address are preferable to box number ads); contacting employment agencies (make sure you don't have to pay the fees); utilizing personal contacts (if done appropriately this can be the most successfully); reading magazines, trade journals, and periodicals which carry want ads in your field of interest; checking with the local Chamber of Commerce; contacting your local NJ Employment Service; and contacting your local NJ Employment Service.

July training programs. Sales, by Peter Prichard

There are some large corporations that have been recruiting all spring for their junior summer programs. Sales, banking, insurance, and retail operations are often set up this way. Those who are interested in getting involved in a large scale June training program will be at a distinct disadvantage compared to students who have been interviewing with these companies since February. There are other companies which also gear their hiring to June. Positions which are open to college graduates are filled throughout the year as vacancies occur. This is true even in the training programs. Graduates can find jobs throughout the year through those that need to have something soon after graduation need to get started as soon as possible.

Will I be penalized if I graduate in May, take the summer off, and start my job search in September? That depends a lot on how you present yourself. If you answer the question, "So what did you do all summer?" defensively, the interviewer might perceive it as wasted time. If you say something like, "I worked hard while I was in school and felt that I needed to get away from work for awhile and treat myself to a vacation. Now I'm ready to get moving on my career and will work as many hours as you need me," there will be much more of a likelihood that you will come across positively. The personality of the interviewer is also a factor. A very straight do-it-by-the-book type of interviewer will probably look upon it negatively, while someone who has done the same thing and is not all "business" might be more likely to see it as a strength.

The months spent looking for a job will affect your chances. The worst months to be job hunting are probably August, November, and December. I'm graduating and don't have any idea what I am going to do with my degree. How can I find out what kind of jobs are available to me? The Career Services Library, located in Life Hall, has information on job opportunities for college graduates. Information in this Career Information section is arranged by major and specific career. Counselors are available to help students look into their various options.

What is the best way to go about looking for a job? A comprehensive search should utilize as many resources as possible. These might include approaching Career Services' job listings (see the attached Job Listings and Career Seminars box); contacting employers directly (numeros resources are available which lists employers of college graduates); answering newspaper ads (ads which list an employer's name and address are preferable to box number ads); contacting employment agencies (make sure you don't have to pay the fees); utilizing personal contacts (if done appropriately this can be the most successfully); reading magazines, trade journals, and periodicals which carry want ads in your field of interest; checking with the local Chamber of Commerce; contacting your local NJ Employment Service; and contacting your local NJ Employment Service.

July training programs. Sales, by Peter Prichard

There are some large corporations that have been recruiting all spring for their junior summer programs. Sales, banking, insurance, and retail operations are often set up this way. Those who are interested in getting involved in a large scale June training program will be at a distinct disadvantage compared to students who have been interviewing with these companies since February. There are other companies which also gear their hiring to June. Positions which are open to college graduates are filled throughout the year as vacancies occur. This is true even in the training programs. Graduates can find jobs throughout the year through those that need to have something soon after graduation need to get started as soon as possible.

Will I be penalized if I graduate in May, take the summer off, and start my job search in September? That depends a lot on how you present yourself. If you answer the question, "So what did you do all summer?" defensively, the interviewer might perceive it as wasted time. If you say something like, "I worked hard while I was in school and felt that I needed to get away from work for awhile and treat myself to a vacation. Now I'm ready to get moving on my career and will work as many hours as you need me," there will be much more of a likelihood that you will come across positively. The personality of the interviewer is also a factor. A very straight do-it-by-the-book type of interviewer will probably look upon it negatively, while someone who has done the same thing and is not all "business" might be more likely to see it as a strength.

The months spent looking for a job will affect your chances. The worst months to be job hunting are probably August, November, and December. I'm graduating and don't have any idea what I am going to do with my degree. How can I find out what kind of jobs are available to me? The Career Services Library, located in Life Hall, has information on job opportunities for college graduates. Information in this Career Information section is arranged by major and specific career. Counselors are available to help students look into their various options.

What is the best way to go about looking for a job? A comprehensive search should utilize as many resources as possible. These might include approaching Career Services' job listings (see the attached Job Listings and Career Seminars box); contacting employers directly (numeros resources are available which lists employers of college graduates); answering newspaper ads (ads which list an employer's name and address are preferable to box number ads); contacting employment agencies (make sure you don't have to pay the fees); utilizing personal contacts (if done appropriately this can be the most successfully); reading magazines, trade journals, and periodicals which carry want ads in your field of interest; checking with the local Chamber of Commerce; contacting your local NJ Employment Service; and contacting your local NJ Employment Service.
1981 Accounting Symposium
Thursday, April 30, 1981

Symposium Speaker: Bernard H. Berkman, CPA

Topic: SEC's INVOLVEMENT IN THE ACCOUNTING PROFESSION

ALL ARE WELCOME!

Tickets will be on sale
Wednesday, Thursday & Friday
April 23, 24, 25

Student Fee $8.
Includes Speaker Followed by Luncheon

Jewish Student Union
Newman Community
and Protestant Foundation

sponsor a panel discussion

Christian Response to the Holocaust presented by

Dr. Mary Imelda
Dept. of Theology
St. John's University

Michael D. Ryan -
Associate Professor of Theology
Drew University

Rev. John S. Grauel -
Methodist minister

Thursday, April 30 — 8:00 pm
Student Center — Ballrooms A & B
Admission Free
Students are sure losers

The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) of the eight state colleges has authorized a strike if contract negotiations fail to reach a settlement. This has become a distinct possibility.

Threats of strikes by faculty members have become a bi-annual event in recent years, and each strike results in less desirable changes for the faculty and, especially, the students.

The teachers are performing a vital service to the state of NJ and its citizens. We feel that a strike is uncalled for, and would not benefit the students in any way. For this reason, we urge the students not to support the strike. We can understand the faculty's need for some increase in salary, inflation being what it is, but their demand for job security is unrealistic. Wouldn't we all like the job security tenure teaches enjoy?

By opposing the strike, we do not condone the actions of the state of NJ. The state must bargain in good faith and employ any labor relations policies available to prevent a strike. We believe this has not been done. While both the state and the union claim that their only interest is the students, their actions show that they are only out for themselves.

No matter what side wins this battle, the sure losers are the college students.

It's not the students' fault

The college administration is considering holding up diplomas, transcripts and or registration if a student has three or more unpaid parking tickets. We feel this policy is absurd. MSC is an institution of higher education, not a pavy as you go parking for. Unless we arrive on campus before the sun rises, we almost have to walk at Willowbrook.

The students should not be penalized so drastically for trying to park close enough to their classes without being late, or having to trudge half a mile uphill in the rain and wind. We can't believe a few parking tickets warrants withholding a student's diploma. Unless we arrive on campus before the sun rises, we almost have to walk at Willowbrook.

The students should not be penalized so drastically for trying to park close enough to their classes without being late, or having to trudge half a mile uphill in the rain and wind. We can't believe a few parking tickets warrants withholding a student's diploma. We don't believe the taxpayer parents will accept this policy either.

Eliot Minninberg, vice-president of administration and finance, who has requested this action, stated that he "does not accept that there is no place to park." Dr. Minninberg, would you give up your special cozy parking place and join the students who drive for an hour or more to get to school, only to choose between "illegally" parking where the privileged builders park, or descending into the lower depths of the pits.

This parking problem has been a parking problem at MSC, a problem intensified, once again, by the removal of more spaces (close to the campus) below the tennis courts. We did not ask to have our space removed, yet we are being penalized for a situation that is not our fault.

There must be a better solution.

Kosher Comments

What's a matzah?

by Lynn S. Zlotnick

It's flat, thin, semiperforated, and comes in rigid oblongs. It tastes great with cream cheese or butter. Cook it with egg and sprinkle on confectioner's sugar, and you have a lip-smacking treat. Grill it up, mix with eggs and roll it into balls, and it's great with chicken soup. It comes in regular, egg, garlic, and onion flavors. I'm talking about something as old as Judaism itself. Can you guess? It's matzah.

Actually, this week, it's Passover matzah. Jews eat matzah all year round, but on Passover, it takes on a deeper symbolic meaning: redemption of the Jews after their flight from ancient Egypt.

Matza (pronounced: MOTT-zah) is bread which is flat because it doesn't contain any yeast. Many matza are called matzot (MOTT-zot), which is removed from the home during the holiday. Exodus says, in chapter 12: "seven days you shall eat unleavened bread...no leaven shall be found in your house...(or you will be) cut off from Israel." So, matza is the mandatory Pesach food. As a matter of fact, another name for seven days of Pesach is Chag Ha Matzot, which is Hebrew for "the festival of the matzot." God commands Jews to eat matza during the Seder service on the first night of Pesach. Seder (SAY-der) is the ceremony where the family sits at the table, reading the Pesach story from the Hagadah (HAG-adah). Matzot are broken into pieces and softened with water and mixed with egg. This mixture is cooked in a fryer with a little butter and eaten with lots of condiments. It's one of my favorite Pesach meals.

And who could forget famous matzah balls? The matzah meal is combined with egg, salt and ginger, rolled into balls, and poached in chicken or beef broth. Served with good old fashioned chicken soup, there's nothing better.

Well that's everything you ever wanted to know about matza, but were afraid to ask. Right now, I'm going to whip up a batch of matza brae and indulge a little.

Happy Passover—and Easter—to everyone.

Lynn Zlotnick is a member ofpike. and everyone eats a piece of the afikomen at a symbolic dessert.

Matza eaten during Pesach has to be kosher, specifically for the holiday, as do other unleavened foods.

That's why everything appropriate is marked "kosher for Passover." Matza is koshered (made kosher) by a Rabbis who recites a special blessing after observing the first hatch being made. His approval means that the matza—as well as the machinery making it—is free of leavening.

Matza can be eaten in a variety of ways. It's great spread with butter or cream cheese and salt. There's also a special breakfast meal called "matza brei" (MOTT-zah BREE). Matzot are broken into pieces and softened with water and mixed with egg. This mixture is cooked in a fryer with a little butter and eaten with lots of condiments. It's one of my favorite Pesach meals.

And who could forget famous matzah balls? The matzah meal is combined with egg, salt and ginger, rolled into balls, and poached in chicken or beef broth. Served with good old fashioned chicken soup, there's nothing better.

Well that's everything you ever wanted to know about matza, but were afraid to ask. Right now, I'm going to whip up a batch of matza brae and indulge a little.

Happy Passover—and Easter—to everyone.

by Lynn S. Zlotnick
Projects to resolve deficiencies

by Elliot I. Mininberg

Within the next several months MSC will complete its efforts to resolve two of our most serious deficiencies in the facilities. In the Spring term, new 460 bed Blanton Hall Dorm will be occupied, and also the many faceted Student Center expansion project will be completed. When these two projects are fully in use by the students, we will have made an impressive stride in removing shortages in both our building and outdoor spaces.

Blanton Hall will be the largest, safest, and in my opinion, the most dramatic building on campus. It's 460 bed capacity is slightly larger than the 600 bed capacity of Bohn Hall. Its 155,000 square feet of area makes it three times as big as Partridge Hall. It is being constructed of concrete and steel and other noncombustible materials, and will be equipped with complete sprinklers and smoke detection heads in every room.

The most exciting feature about Blanton Hall will be its dramatic five story open atrium. This covered opening design concept, arose from architectural desire to conserve energy by reducing the amount of exterior wall surfaces. We believe that it also enhances student living by enabling different areas of the facility to be able to communicate with each other around these atriums.

In addition, Blanton Hall will contain extensive lounge and dining areas. In fact, the existing Bohn Hall dining area will be transferred to this new and larger Blanton Hall facility.

In the Student Center expansion project, which is the other major project now nearing completion, the following features are included: A major addition in the existing Student Center; four new grass recreation/athletic fields adjacent to the Student Center parking areas; a smaller locker and service building for the above four fields; and an increase of over 800 parking spaces (which are now essentially completed).

"...these projects reflect the many hours of effort devoted by our students...

We believe that the above mentioned additions to the center facilities will enhance our student activities, as well as many student related support programs. Also, this new building will allow for the relocation and consolidation of all student activities' offices, now located in Life Hall, to be transferred to the new building. It will provide for substantial increases in student offices and meeting room space.

One of the most important architectural features of this addition will be a large amphitheater-type room which will serve as a lounge and for large meetings and cultural events.

In summary, I invite your continued attention and anticipation to the completion of these two major construction projects. They represent many years of effort on the part of various members of the college community; most importantly these projects reflect the many hours of effort devoted by our students to the overall development of MSC.

Dr. Elliot I. Mininberg is vice president of administration and finance.

Journalism authenticity questioned

To the editor:

In the four years that I have been attending The Montclarion as a well run and well written newspaper. Although I can't say I agreed with every editorial The Montclarion printed in that period of time, I never felt the need to question the word of a newspaper I respected, until now.

I was appalled as I read the editorial 'The PLO has rights too' in the April 9 issue. My anger is directed at MSC and this newspaper's inherent policy of virtually ignoring the student community. We make up 80 percent of the student population, yet we are consistently placed into a corner and forgotten. If there is any coverage that affects us, it's mainly limited to the students strike. I feel they are justified in striking and I would honor that.

Since Elliot

JSU president

Commuter angered

To the editor:

I am angry! My anger is directed at MSC and this newspaper's inherent policy of virtually ignoring the student community. We make up 80 percent of the student population, yet we are consistently placed into a corner and forgotten. If there is any coverage that affects us, it's mainly limited to the parking problem. Face it folks, as long as any university or college has commuting students, this is the number one problem vocalized.

I am as much a student as an MSC dorm resident!

Ellis Bell
political science/1982

Students speak

"In the event of a teachers' strike, will you attend your classes?"

"If it affects my graduation and teachers show, I will go to class. I can sympathize with the teachers needs, but I will be graduating this May and I don't want anything to interfere with that.

"I sympathize with the teachers and will honor the strike providing it doesn't run a long time because it will be unfair to students. There are considerations such as loss of tuition and inadequate course evaluations if a pass/fail situation is imposed.

"I wouldn't go to classes even if teachers do show because my teachers honored the students strike. I feel somewhat obligated to respect their decision. I feel professors are generally underpaid and should therefore be granted a pay raise.

"If teachers show, I will attend.

"I probably wouldn't. My company is financing my education and has a strong union and I like to honor picket lines.

"I wouldn't attend classes even if teachers do show because my teachers honored the students strike. I feel somewhat obligated to respect them. I feel professors are generally underpaid and should therefore be granted a pay raise.

"No, I wouldn't attend classes. I've got so much work to catch up on and this would be the perfect opportunity to do so.

"If the teachers decided to hold their classes, I would attend mine."

"If the teachers decided to hold their classes, I would attend mine."

"No, I wouldn't attend classes. I believe they are justified in striking and I would honor that."

"I mean, I would not go to classes. I believe they are justified in striking and I would honor that."

"I heard there isn't going to be a strike but if there is, I won't show.

"I wouldn't go to classes even if teachers do show because my teachers honored the students strike. I feel somewhat obligated to respect their decision. I feel professors are generally underpaid and should therefore be granted a pay raise."

"I wouldn't go to classes even if teachers do show because my teachers honored the students strike. I feel somewhat obligated to respect them. I feel professors are generally underpaid and should therefore be granted a pay raise."

by David Yannacci and Phil Lanoue
Mixed Two-on-Two Basketball tournament

WHEN: Mon. April 27.
WHERE: Panzer Gym 8 PM.

Tennis Tournament

Men's Singles, Women's Singles and Mixed Doubles
WHEN: May 2-3
WHERE: The MSC Tennis Courts.

Men's 1 on 1 Tournament

WHEN: May, 11
WHERE: Panzer Gym 8 PM.

FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL SILC 893-5245

Applications available in the SILC office, fourth floor Student Center.

SILC is a Class One Organization of Your SGA.
"Students Serving Students"
The Committee of Seniors of the SGA presents

Senior Banquet

Thurs., May 7, 1981
from 7:30 pm - 12:30 am at The Town & Campus
in West Orange, NJ.

Included will be:
— A prime rib dinner
— Five hour open bar
— Dancing

Under the laws of the state of NJ, students and their guests who are under 19 years of age are prohibited from drinking alcoholic beverages.

Bids are $15. and are available to Seniors Only (2 per person) on a first-come, first-serve basis.

BIDS ARE AVAILABLE:

Mon., April 20 from 10 am - 2 pm in Ballroom B, Student Center.
Tues., April 21 - Fri., April 24 from 10 am - 2 pm at the information desk (second floor, Student Center)

Sat., April 25 from 10 am - 2 pm at the SGA Office (fourth floor, Student Center)

Mon., April 27 - Fri., May 1 from 10 am - 1 pm in the SGA Library (fourth floor, Student Center)

Wed., April 22 & 29 from 7 - 9:30 pm at the Information Desk.

Bid purchasers are exclusively responsible for the conduct of themselves and their guests regarding these laws and hereby waive any rights against the Committee of Seniors of the SGA Inc., for such conduct.
Shampoo, Precision Cut, Blow Dry
Get Acquainted
$8 Special
w/ cut only
Tues/ Wed/ Thurs. only
No Appointment Necessary
Appointments available
Fri & Sat. 746-5557
204 Bellevue Ave, Upper Mtair. (behind Carvel)

Shampoo. Precision Cut. Blow Dry
Get Acquainted
$8 Special
w/ cut only
Tues/ Wed/ Thurs. only
No Appointment Necessary
Appointments available
Fri & Sat. 746-5557
204 Bellevue Ave, Upper Mtair. (behind Carvel)

FOR SALE: Brooks (running, basketball, softball, baseball) shoes. All colors and sizes. Low prices! For information contact Tim at 893-4726 or Apt. 303- Clive Rd.

PERSONAL: Love, Happy Anniversary again. Thanks for a great vacation. Dear, Drew Pavlica and Ed Timke.

LASO: Come and meet Paco from WKTU 92 fm tonight for a lecture and rap session at 9 pm in Room 204.

BOTA
Board on Transportation Affairs
Will Meet on Tues. April 28
at 12 PM.
In The SGA Office
Fourth Floor Student Center.

ALL INTERESTED,
PLEASE ATTEND!

BOTA is a Class One Organization of Your SGA
"Students Serving Students"

SMNS LECTURE SERIES
The School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences
Montclair State College

PRESENTS
BEN SHNEIDERMAN
University of Maryland
College Park, MD

speaking on
"COMPUTERS AND THE HUMAN DIMENSION"
Wed, April 29.
Math/Science Building
W-106
Roe, Swalinski ignite Tribe

by Victor M. Palumbo

Outfielder Steve Lipinski is one player that baseball coach, Fred Hill is counting on for the future. "Steve is only a sophomore and he is getting better each year," Hill said. "He'll be one of the cornerstones of our club for the next few years," he commented.

Lipinski, in his junior year at Lenape Valley in Stanhope, NJ, batted .480 with five home runs and 24 RBIs in 18 games. Lipinski followed that excellent year with a productive senior year. He hit .410 and chubbed six homers and 25 RBIs. Those stats were made some nice catches of long fly balls and is errorless in the field.

"Steve's really coming into his own," Hill stated. "He's becoming a smarter batter because he's getting to know college pitching better and rarely swings at bad pitches," he continued.

"Steve's also a fine defensive outfielder," Hill commented. "He's fast and has a strong, accurate arm," he said.

MSC, in addition to Lipinski, has many young players on the team. In fact, the Tribe will lose only six or seven players to graduation, out of the 25 on the team.

"We have a good ball club now," Lipinski said. "But with all the people we have returning next year that have varsity experience, we can be even better in the future," he concluded.

Lipinski’s bat comes alive

by Paul Hugel

In their battle for first place in the New Jersey State College Athletic League, Coach Fred Hill’s red-hot hitting Indians pushed their record to an impressive 14-5 this past week, with victories over Glassboro State College (GSC), Jersey City State College (JSCC), and Monmouth College (Monmouth). Ace right-hander Glen “Preacher” Roe advanced his record to 3-1, notching two of the Tribe’s victories. In two big conference games, Roe stopped GSC, 8-3 and shuttled JSCC, 4-3. Against JSCC’s Gorics, the junior righty struck out 12, walked only two, and didn’t allow a run over the final eight innings. Glen Dwyer, a senior right-hander, blanked Monmouth 5-0 on three hits for the Tribe’s third win.

The Indians backed up his seven Ks with 10 hits, three by Bill Swalinski. Rightfielder Steve Lipinski belted a two run single and catcher Vin Tiberi walked to force in another run, for a 5-0 cushion.

Roger Loper notched MSC’s second victory over JSCC, 2-1. MSC continued their power surge as Tiberi, the team’s captain hit two homers and drove in four runs vs GSC. The Chifton native hit a solo shot in the second and a three run blast in the fourth when the Tribe scored five. Centerfielder Mark Baker slammed a two out, two run homer over Pittser Field’s right field fence for the decisive runs in the bottom of the sixth vs. JSCC. MSC also pushed across two runs in the second inning when third baseman Swalinski tripled in a run and scored on Bill Schwengel’s base hit.

Swalinski did an excellent job all week, coming off the bench for Bob Fortunato, who is nursing a shoulder injury. Pitchers Jay Aldrich and Bob Buccino are expected back sometime this week. Both are recovering from shoulder injuries.

MSC’s next home game will be on Pittser Field, Friday afternoon at 3:30 pm vs Trenton State College. The Indians will need all the fan support they can get as they battle the hard hitting Lions in a crucial conference game.

SILC a part of Yankee history

by Bo Deform

SILC sponsored a trip to Yankee Stadium for opening day ceremonies, which turned out to be a memorable one. The group of 50 people will have their place in the record books, as being part of the largest crowd to ever witness opening day game at the stadium. The Taz Boys played almost flawlessly in the final game of match to win the competitive division of the coed volleyball league. They lost the first game to the returning champion, Ball Stars, but came back to win the final two games. In the jungle division, That’s Just Great took the Wild Cats in two straight games to win the title.

The Pinheads captured first place with three weeks left in the season and held on to win the spring bowling championship. The Geeks finished in a close-second, followed by Almo Hour in third.

Over the break, SILC members attended the National Intramural and Recreational Sports Association convention held at the Hilton Hotel in Philadelphia, PA. Members went to various buzz sessions and lectures during the four day conference to find new ideas to help improve the intramural program at MSC.

Coming Events: The mixed two-on-two basketball tournament will be held on April 27 at 8 pm in Panzer Gym. Registration for the event will be on-site.

The men’s one-on-one basketball tournament will be held on May 11 at 8 pm in Panzer Gym. Registration will be on-site.

The SILC tennis tournament will be held on May 2 and 3 at 9 am and weather permitting on the MSC tennis courts. Competition will be in the men’s, women’s and coed doubles categories. All participants are urged to bring one can of tennis balls. Applications are available in the SILC Office.

For more information, call SILC ext. 5245.
Nucera's six check Drew, 17-7

by Bob Lanza

Despite a sloppy performance in the second half of Tuesday’s game, MSC’s men’s lacrosse team easily defeated Drew University (Drew), 17-7. It was a game that saw goalies Jerry Buonocore collect 19 saves and attackman George Nucera rack up six goals. The victory lifts the Indians record to 6-5.

Buonocore was told after the game that he had only 11 saves. Knowing this was wrong he quickly went over to the statisticians, Vicky Sama and Linda Manno, to correct the error.

“We played well in the first half,” Buonocore said. “Consisting the losses to Kurgers and Fairleigh Dickinson, I felt we came out and played well. In the second half we didn’t take them seriously.”

It was an unusually cold sunny afternoon. It became colder as the sun disappeared from the bleachers. Maybe it was the cold weather that kept all the fans away. The only people there were the players’ girlfriends and a few members of the women’s lacrosse team, who showed about as much excitement as a housewife at a tupperware party. Again, maybe it was the weather.

By the fourth period all the players for MSC had played in the game. This could account for some of the sloppy play since the subs do not get much time to play together.

The only member of the squad who wasn’t in the game was Coach Spence Willard, who was ejected from the game in the fourth period. After making some remarks to the referee, Willard was asked to leave the field and go inside Panzer Gym. Again, maybe it was the weather.

It was the first half where the Tribe displayed excellent team lacrosse. In the first period Sal Guarastella, Nucera, and Matthews each had two goals. Nucera had a total of seven assists in the first half. The Indians advanced the ball up and down the field with lacrosse. In the first period the American candidate has only put one goal on the board for the Indians.

“I know I’ve gotten off to a bad start,” the 6-foot 4-inch senior said. “I’ve had problems with my own skills.”

These problems didn’t help the Indians in their first two games against Roanoke and Adelphi, where they lost, 18-10 and 24-10. It was important for MSC to make a good impression in these games because both schools were nationally ranked.

“The first two games were probably our toughest,” he said. “We should not have lost so badly to Roanoke. I hated the Adelphi players because they were so cocky.”

Geissel started playing lacrosse when he was a seventh grader growing up in Clark, NJ. Lacrosse has just started in that town.

“I was playing baseball at the time when a guy in town, Mr. Carvillano, suggested that I try playing lacrosse,” Geissel said. “I liked it and continued playing through high school. Carvillano and I still get together and talk about lacrosse.”

When it came time to choose a college Geissel let lacrosse be secondary. He was either going to attend Kean or MSC.

“I had a friend from home who played at Kean, but I picked MSC because it was a much better school academically,” he said.

While interviewing Geissel about the team, he employed, it was hard to see how this calm, young man could go out on the lacrosse field and bust heads. He seems like a man with patience.

“I’m different people,” he said. “I have to be aggressive on the field.”

Since the men’s lacrosse team is made up of a variety of heights and weights, Geissel explained what kind of man it takes to play lacrosse.

“Crazy,” he joked. “No really, quickness is important and you have to be able to take punishment.”

Being a captain, Geissel must show leadership during games and in practice. There is more to being a captain than just excepting the title.

“Being a captain is tough,” he said. “I enjoy being the liaison between the coach and players. I also enjoy when the younger players come ask me for help. What I don’t like is when your peers don’t take you seriously.”

Geissel credits Willard for building the lacrosse program at MSC.

“He built this program up from a club team,” Geissel noted. “He also made the schedule 200 percent tougher.”

Like most student athletes Geissel doesn’t find himself with an overabundance of free time. Between working at the Rat, playing lacrosse, and studying, Geissel finds tranquility by fixing automobiles.

“I enjoy, hanging out and working on cars,” he said.

Geissel’s current slump will quickly fade away. He has proven over the years that he is a good lacrosse player. He seems like a man with patience and when a player’s in a slump that’s just what they need.