SAT scores rise

By Diane Hahner

Amid nationally declining Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores, MSC freshmen scores have taken a turn for the better. Incoming freshmen averages.

The freshmen mean scores are above those of last year's freshman class, and exceed both N.J. and national averages.

The mean scores for the 1991 freshmen are 441 verbal and 474 math, 17 and 8 points higher than the national verbal and mathematical scores, respectively. The freshmen are also 27 points higher than state verbal scores, and 24 points higher than state math scores.

SAT's, designed by the College Entrance Examination Board (CEEB) to measure the verbal and mathematical ability of prospective college students, provide a means of standardizing criteria for acceptance to higher education institutions.

Alan Buechler, director of admissions at MSC, explained that the competition effects the mean SAT's. "Changes in the mean score reflect changes in the population taking the SAT's for admission, and not changes in the college's standards for acceptance," he said. Buechler explained that "in any given year, the competition is only as good as the competitors.

Rene Gimbrere, assistant to the president, is responsible for data collection and analysis. Gimbrere said "Close attention is devoted to trends within the college." Gimbrere added that "comparisons made of MSC scores from year to year are more relevant to the college than are comparisons between colleges."

According to Gimbrere, MSC freshmen SAT scores dropped from 480/500 in 1974 to the 441/474 scores this year.

"The mean score is determined by the freshmen that are accepted by MSC," Buechler said. "Each year, MSC processes in excess of 6,300 applications for approximately 1,400 available seats. If 6,300 students apply with high SAT scores, the mean score of those accepted would be low, while competition would be high." He added, "If 1,400 students apply with high SAT scores, the mean score of those accepted would be high, while competition would be low.

Buechler attributes the decline in the scores to a broader base of students who now have the SAT available to them. He said, "Comparisons from state to state must be regarded with caution."

Gimbrere concurs, cautioning that data on SAT scores at MSC is based on what is called "ac-ac" data. "Ac-ac" data is based on SAT scores of those students the college accepts, and it turn, accept the college's acceptance and forward a cont. on p.5

Right to bear arms debated

By Linda Weichenhrieder

The pros and cons of gun control were discussed last night in a debate sponsored by the Council on International and National Affairs (CINA).

Former Senator Dick Clark of Iowa debated "The right to bear arms" with Richard Gardner, a staff attorney of the National Rifle Association (NRA).

Gardner spoke first, explaining "The issue is simply one of civil liberties. Don't be led to believe the answer to gun control is simple, it's a complex problem and requires a great deal of thought before we come to a decision."

Gardner stressed that a handgun is "simply a piece of personal property. The misuse of guns should be addressed, not the purchase of guns by innocent citizens," Gardner said.

He pointed out that the most common myth surrounding handgun is that most homicides are crimes of passion committed by family members. Of all people who have committed a homicide, 90 percent have had previous police troubles, he said.

Clark challenged Gardner's views, stating, "The bottom line is whether a ban on handguns will save more lives. I don't see how unrestricted possession of handguns will result in saving lives. It's simply common sense," Clark said.

He pointed out that there are already 50 million handguns in the U.S., and that virtually anyone can purchase, "With an unrestricted system, criminals, psychologically unstable people, and children can purchase guns in one way or another," he said. He stressed that individual state controls aren't effective since guns can simply be purchased in another state.

"A handgun is a very good means of self defense," said Gardner. "If gun control laws are passed, the criminals won't obey the law, it will be the innocent citizens who will obey the law and get hurt."

Gardner said that each day millions of Americans protect themselves with handguns, not by firing, but by simply preventing the gun. He added that approximately 180,000 people die annually as a result of fatal accidents involving handguns. "Considering that 50, million people own handguns in the US. That's a small percentage," Gardner said.

Clark challenged that statement, saying that handguns account for 80 to 90 percent of all abuses of firearms. In 1980 there were approximately 25,000 murders in the US. "Exactly one half of these murders were committed by people using handguns," Clark said. "Of that number, 16 percent were relatives and eight percent were spouses killing each other," he said.

Gardner said that the major problem with gun control is that if enacted, only the criminals would possess guns. He said, "The NRA believes that the misuse of guns should be attacked, not legal possession by citizens."

"Banning guns will also clog up the already congested courts," Gardner said. "To prosecute one percent of all gun owners would require many more judges and courts than we can handle."

Clark addressed the involvement of handguns and suicide. "There is more of a possibility of suicide if a gun is handy than if it weren't. It's harder to jump off a bridge than to kill yourself with a gun," Clark said. He added that half of all deaths by handguns are suicides or accidents.

Gardner said that "making it a crime to possess a handgun is not going to reduce suicides."

He stressed that any gun control law is not directed at the misuse of handguns, but at their legal possession.

Clark concluded the debate saying, "You are more apt to be killed by an in-law rather than an outlaw."
Cordasco speaks on bilingual ed.

In a lecture last Monday night, Dr. Francesco Cordasco, a professor in the educational foundations department, cited a failure of the institutions of this country to recognize minority cultures. The talk was specifically aimed at our educational institution's failure to implement bilingual programs.

Speaking to 25 students, Cordasco cited MSC as being "bankrupt in terms of affirmative action programs." He added, "Montclair State has no true commitment on bilingual education."

Cordasco said bilingual education, along with other affirmative action programs are vital to eradication "of stereotypes of various ethnic groups." These stereotypes, he said, "invoke hostilities which are based on ignorance."

Cordasco said that interactions with the ethnic communities around college and universities is vital to ethnic awareness. "I'm ashamed," he said, "by MSC's lack of attachment to any surrounding community." He said he also "signed a petition to reduce state funds to this college because of its lack of affirmative action."

However, he said, bilingual education will "soon die out." Current programs he said, are "too little, too late." He explained, it would take a large influx of groups, such as the many Puerto Ricans who came to this country in order to put bilingual education programs into full swing. He said, "We closed this nation long ago, and current powers are keeping it closed."

Cordasco cited the MSC Department of Spanish-Italian-Portuguese and an example. He said, the "department is headed by a WASP," when it should be "built on indigenous harmony."

Speaking in the Student Center meeting rooms, Cordasco said "Many immigrants to this country were labeled idiots." However, he pointed out that "their decendants make up close to fifty percent of this country's population, which when combined with the large percentage of blacks brought here, would make this a country of idiots."

Cordasco said, "In 1967 thirty-eight states had laws forbidding the teaching of a language other than English, and today some states, such as South Carolina, still follow this example. He also said we are "the only industrialized nation that has developed an unrepresented, under-class of close to 30 million people."

In reference to the recent gubernatorial election, Cordasco said Kean, "a creature of Reagan," won because "he appealed to a social class and not an ethnic class." Florio, he said, appealed to those sharing his ethnic background. However, he said people support issues as a social group, and not as an ethnic group.

Two-years ROTC program

College students can be commissioned as officers in the Army in just two years through the Army ROTC Two-Year Program at Seton Hall University.

By enrolling in the Army ROTC Two-Year Program, students do in two years what ordinarily would take four. The program is designed for two-year and community college students, as well as students at four-year institutions who did not take ROTC in their first two years.

Students start with a six-week Basic Camp which is held during the summer before their junior year at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Here they get their first taste of Army life. Here also, is where they are evaluated on their potential to be Army officers.

"What we look for at Basic Camp," said Captain Mlynarski, "are students who are really trying to prove themselves. We're looking for the leadership potential that makes a good officer." After Basic Camp is successfully completed, students have the option of enrolling in Army ROTC if they decide it's for them.

Students attending Basic Camp may also compete for special two-year scholarships based solely on merit. The scholarships pay for full tuition, lab fees, books and certain other educational expenses. Up to $1,000 a year in living allowances for each year the scholarship is in effect is an added attraction.

Anyone wishing information about the Army ROTC Two-Year Program should call Captain Mlynarski at 763-3078.

Program opens new doors

Gloria rushes to get the baby to the sitter, drives to the Sandy, gets on the school bus on campus for another. Joan watching television and comes home. On most days she will before mom has to leave the house. Many in the program have Full-time problems. Their main problem is fitting work, school, and sleep into a 24-hour day. Ted is a well-paid gas and oil heating systems mechanic. "I decided to study to become a CPA. I'm following the example of my wife, Frances," Ted says. "She graduated in May and now she's working for her family."

Harry has retired from ownership of a small printing company. "Trite but true," he said. "You're never too old to learn.

Problems for women

For women, the problems are more frequently psychological. The need to "do something for myself" is at war with "my family needs me." Pat said, "I can't seem to give up the idea that everything in the house must be done by me." Many students majoring in studio art courses cannot be pursued part-time.

Lack of reliable child care is also a serious problem. In the fourth week of the semester, one woman was employing her fourth babysitter. "I couldn't believe this was happening," Marla said. "The first sitter just didn't show up one day. The second quit after one day on the job. The third one called the day before she was to start and said she couldn't make it. I'm crossing my fingers now, hoping I can keep my fourth sitter." Enthusiastic family support makes the path of the student smoother. Elke said, "My two daughters are doing their own laundry now. They and my son, Peter, are keeping their rooms neat; I only do the vacuuming. My husband is doing some cooking. The entire family loves the idea of mom going to college." Most of the men, except for the ones already retired, have full-time jobs. Their main problem is finding work, school, and sleep into a 24-hour day.

As of Friday, Nov. 6, 11 female residents of Clove Rd. apartments have reported receiving obscene phone calls, dating back to July. In all cases investigated up until this point, the mode of operation has been the same, and apparently the calls are being made by the same individual. The matter is being investigated further.

On Saturday, Nov. 7, at about 2:30 a.m., a bomb threat was received by the Drop-In Center from an unknown phone caller. The two occupants of the building were advised by campus police to leave immediately. A check of the building produced no bomb.

On Friday, Nov. 6, at about 7:10 p.m., two men were seen attempting to break into the front door of the automotive laboratory. The men left before campus police arrived. When the campus police did arrive, the front doors of the automotive laboratory were open and one of the doors was on the floor, and the other was broken off at the top hinges. Inside the building a desk drawer was found pulled open. An MSC carpenter arrived at 8:40 p.m. to secure the doors with wooden beams. After a later check of the building, it was determined that nothing was missing.

On Friday, Nov. 6, at about 3:32 a.m. a female patron and a male employee of the Rathskeller were involved in a dispute. The women was in the Rathskeller taking pictures of her friends when the male employee approached her and started that picture-taking was not allowed. According to the girl, the employee spoke to her in a vengeful and abusive manner, so she slammed him in the face. She reported that at no time did the man identify himself as an employee of the Rathskeller; otherwise, she said, she would have cooperated with him. The employee, however, denied that he did inform the girl he was a bouncer.

Two thefts were reported in the last week-and-a-half. On Tuesday, Nov. 3, it was reported that three top round pieces of roast beef were stolen from an unlocked cooler in the Freeman Hall cafeteria. The meat, which weighed about 120 pounds and was valued at approximately $200, was stolen sometime between 3 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 29, and 9 a.m. Monday, Nov. 2. There is one suspect in the case. On Saturday, Nov. 7, a student reported that between 4 a.m. and 8 a.m. a speaker, worth about $25, was ripped out of her 1972 Toyota, which was parked in Lot 4.

Two acts of criminal mischief were reported in the last week-and-a-half. On Wednesday, Nov. 4, at about 12:30 a.m. a rotten apple was thrown at the side window of a shuttle bus while it was approaching Clove Rd. apartments. No damage was done, but a number of riders were startled. On Thursday, Nov. 5, a man reported that the windshield wiper of his 1978 Dodge, parked in the loading dock area of Bohn Hall, was bent between 5 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 4 and 7 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 5.

Finally, a 1977 Volkswagen Rabbit, stolen on Wednesday, Oct. 28 from Lot 22, was recovered in Lot 22 at 7:45 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 3. The owner, who was notified, suspected a break-in a few hours later. He considered the car to be in good condition, but since it had seven additional miles on it he considered it stolen.

As furniture is being moved into Blanton Hall in preparation for its scheduled Nov. 28 opening date, the Administration is planning to take steps to protect it from becoming a prime target for thieves and vandals.

Because of the dispute concerning the liability of the dogs, the college is now planning to hire a security guard to patrol the construction site.

According to Dr. Raymond Stover, director of housing, guard dogs were originally considered for the job because they were used, without incident, in the construction of Bohn Hall while it was being constructed. "They worked well when they were used in Bohn Hall, but because of complications in terms of who is responsible for the dogs, we won't be using them in Blanton," he said.

Solart Builders, the Blanton Hall contractor, has had no prior experience with guard dogs and will not assume responsibility for any liability or expense, according to a Solart representative.

Solart insists that the guarding of the furniture and other equipment is the college's responsibility. "They (the college) have paid for the building and it is their responsibility," the representative said.

However, according to Jerome Quinn, director of institutional planning, Solart would also benefit from the presence of dogs on the construction site. "They (Solart) have a great deal of expensive equipment in the building and we felt that the dogs would be of much to their benefit as to ours," he said.

"But," said Quinn, "the company just wouldn't pay their share!"
One of the most important issues brought up at last night's SGA meeting was Assembly bill A604. This bill proposes that there be two voting student members on the Board of Trustees for each state college. SGA President Sonjui Lai strongly urged students to get in touch with their representatives in the NJ Senate. The bill will be on the Senate floor today and students are being asked to call the Legislative Information Hot Line to speak to their State Senator or assemblyman in favor of this bill. The number to call is (800) 792-8630.

A statement drafted by the Board of Trustees was presented to the legislative body. This statement outlined the goals of the trustees concerning the undergraduate program here at MSC for the next decade. The statement proposes that more of an emphasis be placed on the liberal arts and sciences undergraduate programs, rather than business and vocational programs. SGA under­graduate programs, liberal arts and sciences emphasis be placed on the program here at MSC for the concern­ing the undergraduate present­ed to the legislative board it been settled. With the imput of (CLUB's) policy of selling to call is (800) 792-8630. was decided that CLUB favor of this bill. The number Line to speak to their State Legislative Information Hot was approved. They are planning a trip to the New York Stock Exchange on Tues. Nov. 17th. There will be $1 charge and the trip is open to approximately the first 36 people to sign up.

Alpha Kappa Psi was granted a class four charter by the SGA. The meeting was adjourned at 5:55 p.m.

Gym lacks security

By Ramon De LaCruz

Women using the MSC pool in Panzer Gym are worried about the lack of security in the locker rooms, claiming the locker room entrances are unguarded and readily accessible to anyone wishing to enter.

Grace Cunningham, a freshman psychology major, a frequent swimmer, cited an incident involving two men entering the women's locker room from the pool entrance. She notified the life guard who responded, "they're just walking through." Her insistence that the security police be called provoked a dispute followed by "insults" aimed at her by the lifeguard she said.

Barbara Beckmann, a financial aid office employee, recalled an incident when she was dressing after a swim in the locker room while a man approached her. Despite signs at the entrances, the man smirked and said he didn't know he was in the women's locker room, according to Beckmann.

Ken Fernandez, a life guard at the pool and captain of the men's swim team said, he hasn't experienced any incidents this year, but acknowledged there were repeated incidents of trespass last year. He said on certain incidents it's understand­ably an honest mistake because these people are not familiar with the facility. Dr. J. Schleede, chairperson of the physical education department, for comment as was Domenica Desiderioscioli, who was covering for Schleede.

Sergeant Charles Gihl­den of the Campus Police said that the biggest problem in Panzer is that the locker area is not "well-marked."

Gihl­den commented that the Campus Police make suggestions to the physical education department.

Sergeant William Lisowski, head of the police department, acknowledged that there had been a reported incident involving a man entering the women's locker room earlier this semester.

deposit to hold their places in the class of incoming freshmen. However, from ning to 10 percent of these students do not attend in the fall. Gimberre said this leads to inconsistencies.

Boeckler pointed out that discrepancies also occur between districts. Because highly urban states have SAT testing available to all school districts, white rural states often have testing available only to certain districts or the better school systems. He said that comparisons are inaccurate because similar populations are not being compared. According to the CEEB, N.J. mean scores for 1981 place the state 45th out of 50. Mississippi placed consider­ably higher, but only 2 percent of Mississippi high school seniors were tested. While 64 percent of all high school seniors were tested in N.J.

The highest average score reported was in Iowa, where only three percent of all high school seniors took the SAT tests. Cameron said that the students taking SAT's in Iowa are those students who are probably anticipating going on to private schools.

Congratulations are in order to the MSC football team, which is on its way to another fine season. For the past two years, being cheated out of a well-earned berth in the NCAA playoffs. Good luck, team.

Let's hope this season breaks the worst record of the last two years—being cheated out of a well-earned berth in the NCAA playoffs. Good luck, team.

For the past two years (not that we want to insult the NCAA), we're hoping that this is the year that justice will be done, and our players get a chance to prove their worth in tournament play. Besides having a record 8-1 season, including the conference.

Congratulations are in order to the MSC football team, which is on its way to another fine season. For the past two years, being cheated out of a well-earned berth in the NCAA playoffs. Good luck, team.
An apology is in order

To the editor:
I feel I must respond to the problem that occurred between our director, Mr. Dan Held, and your reviewer Stephen Kantonrowitz.

Firstly, I must apologize to Stephen if he was in any way insulted by Mr. Held’s remarks. It was wrong, and indeed unprofessional of Mr. Held to tell Stephen what or what not to print. It is not the policy of Players to have “fixed” reviews.

However, as producer and President of Players, I must allow the director I hired to have complete control of the rehearsal process, and that includes dress rehearsals. If the director feels that a rehearsal should be closed - then it is closed.

I give another apology is in order here. I never really related to Stephen the director’s feelings on closed rehearsals. Therefore, I allowed Stephen to attend the dress rehearsals, and I take full responsibility for this mistake. Because I also work on the Montclarion Staff as a graphics aide, I was fully aware of the deadline problems, and wanted to let Stephen have enough time to get his review written.

Now that I have at least tried to clear up this misunderstanding, I would like to address another issue: The Montclarion’s policies concerning reviews of MSC student productions. Are the reviews meant to “save” students from attending “bad” productions? Are they educational processes for both the reviewer as well as the student being reviewed? What exactly is the policy? Players, as a Class One Organization, does not operate on a profit motive. We are appropriated money by the SGA to provide an opportunity for MSC students to participate in theatrical events. Part of the theatrical process (and perhaps the most important) is the audience. Therefore, Players has the responsibility of obtaining an audience, and then satisfying that audience to the best of our abilities and talents. What the director and I were mostly concerned about on this production was providing the largest audience possible for a musical that is not a “name” show (such as SHENANDOAH or MAN OF LAMANCHA).

I am not asking for “good reviews so that we can get an audience. Surely, that would be detrimental to both of our organizations. How can The Montclarion fulfill their responsibility to the audience if they are not practising under the premise of “freedom of the press”? How can Players provide for their audience the best productions if we have no constructive criticism or feedback on the productions that we do?

What I am asking for is a clearly defined policy as to what the purpose of these reviews are, and how can they best serve all students at MSC. Perhaps the reviews could appear after a production is closed, so that the reviewer can be completely honest (I am aware of the “honesty” problem with the reviews on the Major Theatre Series productions), and thus allowing the reviewer to do his/her job, without interfering with our responsibility to obtain and maintain an audience. I think you would agree that losing a Broadway audience due to a bad review is quite different from losing an audience in a college production, where an audience is so vital to the educational process we try to provide.

Legislator defends action

To the editor:
As the SGA legislator who authored the bill, the College Life Union Club (CLUB) and their process of selection for the upcoming Winter Ball, which has more plot but less impact. I still find difficult to express.

I am demanding a full retraction of this disgusting editorial on behalf of the SGA, which it, and will continue to be, “Students Serving Students,” no matter what The Montclarion says to the contrary.

Mike Simonds
SGA Legislator

Editor’s note: The Montclarion’s charter was not called in for review for “questionable practices.” According to the editor of the bill, it was mistakenly thought that we had only 10 staff members, a violation of SGA statutes. This was proven incorrect and duly noted at the Oct. 22 SGA meeting.

Catholic Critiques

By Ken Herbster

Movie reviews are not my usual beat but True Confession is being shown in the area. I have seen it, read the book—which has more plot but less impact. I still find difficult to express.

The two brothers, Robert DiNovi as the priest and Robert Duvall as the cop, are worth the price of admission. Some coarse language may be realistic for the time, the place, and the society; but, when you hear a gasp from the audience, one wonders. The old James Dean type of achieving it. He appears to have no friends and the only scene where he feels his wary guard down is with his brother, who is also hard and lonely, but at least the cop usually expresses his feelings. Duvall’s cop is the existential man; he lives, and that is sufficient. At times, cop and priest carom off each other painfully; at others, they awkwardly share. The cop comes to his brother as priest even though rebuffed as brother. The priest comes to his brother as brother, but he has forgotten, or perhaps never learned how to ask for help, or to accept it.

At the end, they are together, regretting silently that they could not have been more to each other but willing to settle for what is, and what will be.

I stayed in my seat as the lights went up and the cast crept onto the screen. My feeling was one of sadness that I still find difficult to express.

Met hurler comes to MSC

For the winter at least, Jeff Bittiger has traded in his glove for a set of books. The 19-year-old Secaucus native, who is one of the top pitching prospects in the New York Mets organization, plans to enroll at MSC for a semester.

"When I signed my pro contract after high school, I made up my mind that I would still try to get my degree," said Jeff, who just returned from a month of pitching for the Mets' Instructional League team in St. Petersburg, Florida. "I know it's going to take me a little bit longer to graduate but I plan to keep at it."

"I'll be taking some liberal arts courses until I decide what exactly I want to do," he continued. "I hope I can get back into the routine of doing homework again."

For the last two summers, Bittiger has taken his examinations on the pitching mound and he has passed them all with flying colors. The 5-foot-10 righthander certainly has come a long way from 1980 when the Mets made him their seventh selection in the annual free agent draft.

"Let me say that it's a wholly tough to predict what's going to happen down the road," said Lou Gorman, the Mets' Vice President for Baseball Operations. "However, it's my opinion Jeff has the talent and the ability to make it to the majors."

"It was there the day he struck out 18 batters for Lynchburg this summer and in all my years in the game I can't ever recall a more overpowering pitching performance. Jeff has done superbly and we really don't plan to rush him now. We want him to take one step at a time." In 1982 Bittiger should start the year with the Mets Jackson (AA) farm team of the Texas League. Last summer Jeff pitched the last month for Jackson and helped the Mets capture the Texas League Championship.

Bittiger's overall statistics for 1981 were certainly most impressive. At Lynchburg in the Carolina League he compiled an 11-7 record and struck out 168 batters in 137 innings. He allowed 120 hits and compiled a 3.87 ERA. Jeff was 2-1 for Jackson with a 1.09 ERA. For the season, Bittiger struck out 207 batters in 186 innings.

"I plan to rest up for a while now," said Jeff. "Down in Florida my arm just got a little tired. Don't forget I threw plenty of innings this year. Next month I'll come over to Shea for an exercise program. Then I'll start throwing again in January."

If he performs well the early part of next year, Bittiger is hopeful of being promoted to the Mets Triple A Tidewater team in the International League.

"Right now I'm not thinking about Tidewater," said Jeff. "I couldn't be more pleased with my progress. I have moved up three classifications in two years and I can't be unhappy with that. The organization has been very fair with me, and I know if I continue to do well, I'll keep moving up. Of course, I won't be completely satisfied until I reach New York. That's what it's all about for me."

Soccer loses final game

MSC finished its second straight losing season in soccer Friday evening losing Newark Rutgers, 3-2. The Indians posted a record of 3-11-1 for the season.

Newark Rutgers broke a 1-1 tie with 35:05 when Mike Kriak beat MSC goalie Eric Nelson with an assist going to Vivian McCrain. The Indians goals in the game were scored by Doug Stine and Ricky Emmel.

Correction to article

There is a correction in the article that was in last week's issue dealing with the format of the women's basketball tournament. The MSC women's team will not be eligible for the "Final Four" tourney because they are still a member of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women. Only teams in the NCAA are eligible to participate. Both the NCAA and AIAW are two separate entities.

Stat people sought

The Sports Information Office needs interested students (students must qualify for college-work study) to serve as basketball statisticians for the 1981-82 season. Please call the Sports Information Office, after 9 pm 893-5249.

We are located in Panzer Gymnasium.

Refs needed

The Intramural Department is looking for people interested in officiating men's and women's basketball. Games are played Mon., Thurs. nights from 8-11 pm you must be eligible for work study. If interested, call the SILC office at ext. 5245 or McKinley Boston at ext. 4411.

Fencers sought

The MSC women's fencing team are looking for new members to make up the squad for the coming season. No experience is necessary. If interested, contact head coach Mary Reilly at 228-4383 or stop by the gym for either Mon. or Wed. between 6.30-9 pm or on 1 Tues. and Thurs. between 4-6 pm.
The MSC football team moved one more step closer to a Division III playoff berth by crushing Jersey City State (JCS) 44-0 in a New Jersey State College Athletic Conference game. The win pushes the Indians to 8-1 while JCS drops to 2-7.

Halfback Bob Vannoy set and equaled two more MSC records to go along with his single game rushing mark set earlier this season. Vannoy tied the single game TD record with four scores and broke the single season rushing mark previously held by Mike Horn at 1032 yards. Vannoy’s 134 yards on 13 carries against JCS pushed his season tally to 1123 with one game remaining.

Quarterback Mark Casale had another fine night throwing with 15 completions in 25 attempts. He hit Terry Porter with a nine yard strike in the first quarter to give the Profs the conference crown should Ramapo (4-1) lose to Trenton State.

The Indians will be faced with a tough test this week as they meet the Profs of Glassboro State (GSC). This game will decide who will be the 1981 champion of the NJSCAC. Under NJSCAC rules when two teams tie in the standings, the club winning on the field of play shall be declared the champion. Therefore, a GSC win could give the Profs the conference crown should Ramapo (4-1) lose to Trenton State.

In addition to the NJSCAC Championship, a bid to the NCAA Division III playoff, the Indians, currently ranked ninth in the nation in Division III would complete the season 9-1 and the only defeat would have been to Central Connecticut, a Division II team. Bids for the Division III Tournament will come out on Sunday, Nov. 15, the day after the GSC game.

The MSC defense looks as if they are getting back to their early season form. They held JCS to just 72 total yards, all of which were gained on the ground.
