Porn attacked

By Dianne Hahner

The final lecture in a series of three on "Violence in America" was delivered by Father Ned Murphy Wednesday night in the Student Center Ballroom. The event was sponsored by the Council on International and National Affairs (CINA).

Father Murphy addressed a sparse audience of MSC students in reference to an industry that preys upon the bodies of lost youths, an industry supported by the white collar workers in the Manhattan area, and an industry that, according to certain estimates, turns a profit in excess of 1 billion dollars annually. The industry is pornography and prostitution in the 10 x 3 city block area of New York known as Times Square.

Father Murphy began the lecture with mention of the problem of violence in America, expressing the opinion that it is out of this over-all tenor of violence that the Times Square industry is born. Of this industry, Father Murphy said, "It never stops, never slows down. It operates 7 days a week, 24 hours a day. It is an industry whose survival is based upon the buying and selling of human bodies, in any way, shape, or form, that someone has found to make a profit."

Father Murphy explained that "if there has ever been a classless society, it is the society of lost children." These children are "lost" in the sense that they are "alone, homeless, and without any center of stability with which to relate." Murphy added, "it is because of this aloneness, that they are so very vulnerable, and because of this vulnerability that they become exploited."

According to Father Murphy, statistics report that there are over 20,000 homeless children under the age of 16, in Manhattan alone. Murphy added, "If you tend to think of this sort of problem as a New York City problem, FBI numbers say that across the 50 states, there are over one million homeless children. This is an enormous problem."

During his discourse, Father Murphy recounted the stories of three individual youths with which he has come into contact.

Father Murphy explained that he is in the unique position of being able to comment firsthand on the industry and the dilemmas of the youths it exploits through his work with Covenant House, Covenant House, according to Murphy, "is the largest emergency and crisis shelter for youths and runaway children in the country." Murphy added that "Covenant House is located in the right place: the heart of Times Square."

Fee hike proposed

By Stephen McLean

MSC students may find as much as a $12 increase in next fall's tuition bill.

A proposal that the maximum SGA fee be raised from $24 to $36 was met with little opposition at last Wednesday's SGA meeting. Money raised through these fees is used by the SGA to finance SGA-affiliated student organizations.

Sandy Schlanger, SGA treasurer, said, "Students are currently charged $2 per credit they take, with a maximum charge per semester of $24. The increase calls for a charge of $3 per credit with a maximum of $36 per semester."

This would be the first increase in SGA fees since 1967. Schlanger said, the inflation rate since then has forced the SGA to cut back on programming in order to get by from revenue of current fees.

Sonjui Lai, SGA president, said, "The proposal will be put before the general student body for a vote in spring, 1982." She said, "Students will be allowed to vote on the issue by way of a ballot to be conducted in the Student Center Lobby."

If accepted, Schlanger said, the increase would provide an additional $114,000 in revenue. Of this, $275,000 would come from the full-time students and $64,000 from part-time students. She said that last semester the SGA raised nearly $230,000 through fees.

Schlanger pointed out that those who would benefit from the increase would be organizations run by SGA money, and eventually the students themselves. Schlanger said, "These organizations have been forced to cut back on programming which they can no longer afford to offer."

During the 1981 SGA elections, students approved a referendum calling for some kind of fee increase. However, Schlanger said, the 20-percent student body input required to validate such a vote was not attained.

Other plans for fee increases put before the SGA legislature included the implementation of a standard $24-per-semester fee for all students, and the increase to a $3 per credit with a $24 minimum. Both were unanimously rejected by the legislature in favor of the $3 per credit, $24 maximum proposal.
Chamber ensemble performs

The MSC Chamber Orchestra, under the direction of Norman L. Smith, will perform selections by Handel, Vivaldi and Stravinsky, and will feature Lillo Way as narrator in a free program presented at the Union Congregational Church on Friday, December 11 at 8 p.m.

They are looking for college graduates with a bachelor’s degree (minimum) in engineering, math, physics, chemistry or related areas with a 3.3 grade point average. Students would spend six months in the Navy’s nuclear power school in Orlando, Florida, followed by six months on a prototype reactor either in New York, Connecticut, or Idaho working on drills and how to handle problems. The next three years are spent on a nuclear powered submarine or surface ship where students, seniors operating engineers, and managing technicians operate the reactors.

The four-year obligated duty is, very beneficial to a student because it had ideal teaching positions and facilities. Dunne said students learning the program are bright and highly motivated which places them in high demand in the job market with starting salaries of $50-60,000 a year.

Israeli speaks

By Meryl Yorish

The Israeli side of the Middle East situation was presented by Dr. Alexander Bligh, a representative from Israel, last Monday night. The lecture, sponsored jointly by the Political Science Club and the Jewish Student Union, was prevented from starting on time by a bomb threat.

"I think it's a reciprocal action," said Peter Piszczato-ski, former president of the Political Science Club, recalling that last year's lecture by a PLO representative was interrupted by two bomb threats.

Once the lecture began, Bligh stated, "I'm not sure, we can use the term 'Arab-Israeli conflict' anymore."

He explained that his terminology differentiates between the relationship between Israel and Egypt, and between Israel and the Arab countries which don't recognize Israel, and the Palestinian question as well.

"The main source of the Arab-Israeli conflict is the refusal of the Arab countries to recognize that we are there," the native Israeli said. He stated that the eight-point proposal presented by Saudi Arabia's Prince Fahd is an encouraging move, but, he added, "The next logical move is for the Saudis to speak to Israel." He said the Fahd plan merely reiterates what the Israeli parliament has already said.

Bligh divided the Palestinian question as well, citing the refugee problem as wholly separate from the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO). "The PLO is a tool of international terrorism," Bligh said. He claimed that the PLO is a Soviet-backed terrorist organization, and accused the PLO of taking part in the training the Iranian militants who seized the U.S. embassy in Tehran. He cited information presented to a House subcommittee to support his claims, but could not produce specific information during the lecture.

Bligh also accused some Arab countries, notably Jordan, Syria, Lebanon, and Saudi Arabia of creating the Palestinian refugee problem.

"The refugee problem is kept alive to pressure Israel," Bligh said. "The Arab countries have done nothing to solve the Palestinian problem."

Bligh suggested that Jordan could become the separate Palestinian state, saying "Juda and Samaria (the West Bank) are essential for Israel's security."

Following the 35 minute lecture, there was a question and answer period.

Bligh earned a B.A. from the Hebrew University in Arabic Language and Literature and Islamic History. He has an M.A. from Tel Aviv University, and Ph.D. in modern Middle Eastern History from Columbia.

Gun decision delayed

Board swears in new member

By Robert Thibault

At the Board of Trustees meeting last night, Dr. Edward A. Jeser, Jr. was sworn in as a new member, replacing Dr. Hans Hillerbrand. Hillerbrand left in August to take a position at Southern Methodist University.

Jesser is also on the boards of Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., Colby College in New Hampshire, and at the New Jersey Institute of Technology in Newark.

Hillerbrand now serves as provost and academic vice president at S.M.U.

In other action, the board announced that its executive committee will review input on the issue of arming the campus police for action at the board's January meeting.

Student representative Craig Stogurt asked that the board delay any decision on the issue until its February meeting to enable students to express their opinion on the matter. He said that because school is not in session in January, students will not be able to attend the January meeting.

Dr. Ernest May, chairman of the board, said that the board has already heard student opinion and will base its decision on that testimony, but did not want their actions misinterpreted.

He said that the board did not want their actions to be construed as taking place in January so the students would not be able to be at the meeting.

May said that the executive committee will make its recommendation to the board in January, but the board will not take action on it until February for "public relations purposes."

The board also heard the report of the personnel committee granting tenure to eight faculty members. The committee also granted 41 faculty reappointments and 38 non teaching professionals.

The academic planning committee presented its report on the proposed toxicology program. The committee also presented the final draft of a proposal for an educators/trainers program.

Dr. David W.D. Dickson, president of the college, was instructed by the board in a formal resolution to discuss the possibilities of a cooperative academic program with the presidents of four other state colleges in the area.

The board also drafted a formal resolution commending the football team on its fine performance during the past season.

NJSA meets

The New Jersey Student Association will hold its first statewide leadership conference since it was reorganized last August.

The conference, to be held in Wayne, N.J., will emphasize the need for a unified student movement in our state.

The conference is open to students from all eight state colleges and the two state universities. Letters were sent out by Sonjui Lai, president of the SGA. Last month Lai said the SGA can improve itself, workshops on students' rights, and public relations.

The conference will be held the last weekend in January, 1982.

Lai also stated that members of Class One Organizations will be attending.

Murphy said, "We make no apologies about the fact that we are firmly based in our religious commitment, for it is out of this commitment that we got our name. We have a covenant with youths. We say 'you are ours' and we are yours: 'I am convinced that we must treat the young where they are. This is not charity, it is justice. It is what they are owed.'"

Sprague notes

The holiday season and intercession means different things to different people. For some, it means lying on the beach in the warm sun, for others it means a trek through snow-covered fields, and for still others, it means hardly a break in the normal routine. Whatever your pursuit, here's a sampling of books to restore the soul and tickle your fancy.

Shaping Up by George Mazes (GV 546 .M3) provides a customized weight training program for both men and women. It'll revitalize those muscles grown slack from a long semester of sitting, studying, and writing term papers.

With the body humming and rearing to go, the Fodor guides will help you get away from it all. Fodor's Caribbean and the Bahamas (F 2171 .F68) or Fodor's Florida (F 3093 .F63 1981) will tell you where to go, how to go, when to go, and where to stay.

If colder climates are more to your liking, the Cross-Country Skiing Guide (GV 854 .9 .G776) may be just the thing. You'll be advised On technique, training program for both men and women, and equipment. There's also a chapter on cross-country skiing in New England. For downhill enthusiasts, Wendy Williams' Skiing the Great Resorts of North America (GV 854 .W54 1978) will give you an insider's view of trails, lifts, and accommodations.

The staff of Sprague Library extends to the entire college community warm wishes for a joyful holiday season. During the semester break our hours will be 8:30 am-4:30 pm, Monday through Friday. We'll be closed Dec. 25th, Jan. 1st, and all weekends until the spring semester begins on Jan. 25th.

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY
Center offers counseling for women

By Donna Cullen

The Women's Center is a support system geared particularly toward the needs of women, a "place to sit and talk and get information" for almost a decade, according to its director, Dr. Constance Waller. The center serves 600 to 700 women per month, both on and off campus, including faculty, staff, and students.

Counseling, support group meetings, workshops aimed toward developing skills, and discussions every Wednesday at noon are among the center's programs. There is also a legal clinic one night a month, where a woman can receive counseling from a local attorney. Waller noted that any money raised through programs that charge a nominal fee goes toward expanding the center's library—a collection of books by and about women, available on loan to any interested person.

This year the center is undergoing a couple of important changes. Once a part of the Inter-Collegiate Academic Program, the center is now under the Department of Student Affairs headed by Dean Jean Armstrong. Secondly, the center will move from its obscure location of the Math/Science Building to the new Student Center Annex. Armstrong said the center was transferred to her area because "it is a natural component of our division (Student Affairs) and Career Services, it has a heavy concentration of counseling," she said.

"I'm very supportive of the Women's Center," Armstrong said. "I hope we can expand the program and employ a greater outreach into the campus community, and I'm personally delighted to have Dr. Waller as a member of my cabinet."

Waller is also pleased with the move. The new location will put the center back "in the line of traffic making it more accessible to students," she said.

The center began in 1972 as a result of a campus effort to meet the criteria of Affirmative Action. Waller headed the sub-group which investigated the needs of students. "Female students felt discriminated against in counseling and in the information they could get about careers," she said. The center was created to fill that gap.

Today the center's goal has not changed. Waller explained, "we help sensitize the campus community to women and minority issues of the outside world." She added that to do so is especially important now because of the conservative trend in the country.

career corner

By Peter Prichard

Students interested in social service, environmental protection, or human rights related careers have a large number of potential employers to contact despite the Reagan administration budget cuts. These organizations are listed on over two dozen directories located in the Career Services Library in Life Hall. Those looking for jobs in these related service fields should focus primarily on direct phone contact with employers who have been identified in these and other sources. A secondary emphasis should be placed on specific job listings.

Individuals interested in working for local social or health service agencies can identify numerous employers throughout New York and New Jersey. Students who support pro-environmental policies will identify a large number of agencies with similar goals in the Conservation Directory or the Environmental Information Survey Handbook.

The Career Services office will be open through the remainder of the Fall semester and during the month of January. It is anticipated that during the time the office will move from its current location in Life Hall to the new Student Center Annex.

Students graduating this month who are looking for jobs are encouraged to come in immediately. Those graduating in May or August are strongly urged to begin their job search preparation prior to the start of Spring semester classes due to the continued competitiveness of the job market. An expanded schedule of job hunting, resume writing, interviewing, and career planning seminars will begin the week of January 18. Sign-up for Spring semester on-campus recruiting begins the week of January 25. Interested students must be registered and have resumes on file with Career Services.

MSC actors learn their crafts well

By Stephen Kantrowitz

In a small school with 15,000 students, it's easy to get lost in the crowd. But when you continually do outstanding work, you're bound to get noticed. Three speech and theater majors, Stephen W. Clark, Joseph Bella, and Troy Eric West, have all begun to attract such attention.

The culmination of their work together will be seen on Dec. 18th and 19th, when their production of Samuel Beckett's Waiting for Godot is presented to the college community. Directed by Clark, the play features Thomas in the role of Estragon and West in the role of Vladimir.

Other students and I were thrilled by the opportunity to work on the project. The task of being a faculty advisor has been reserved for a senior speech and theater major, Troy Eric West. Clark was very pleased with the costumes. "He believes in doing independent studies since my sophomore year," he said. "I believe students should do more of these than they are doing now. It's important because you have to do the work yourself. You have to break the red tape and sell yourself to the people in charge. I had to go out and prove that this was better than the person next to me." The talented young performer has been involved with the professional company, Pushcart Players, in Verona. His work with that repertory company gave him his Actor's Equity card. He has also done summer stock work in the straw-har circuit.

"I believe my favorite role at MSC was that of Tom in That Championship Season," Clark said. "I enjoyed it more than any other role I've done. It had just the right amount of pathos and humor. It was a role I wanted to keep on doing. I could easily see myself doing that role, continuing in it, for a year." Also close to Clark's heart are the many friendships he has made while at MSC. "Many of us have bonded ourselves together," he said. "Our friendships and goals remain to remain for a long time—even though we're also competitors. We've learned a lot from each other. And I believe—I know—I'm going to be seeing them again. I know we will be working together again in the future.

Like Clark, speech and theater major Troy Eric West has had performing experience outside of MSC. "This past summer I worked with a company called Theater-By-The-Sea. It is in Matunuck, Rhode Island. It is a non-equity summer stock troupe whose season runs May through September," West said.

"It was the most beautiful summer of my life. It opened up my eyes to what it really takes to be a pro. I learned a great deal of discipline and much about the many demands of being an actor. I performed in Pirates of Penzance, Brigadoon, and West Side Story. I also did technical work on two other shows.

"West feels that more attention should be paid to the department for its accomplishments. "The last time the American College Theater Festival was held, MSC won more awards than any other college in the six-state region that was competing. This shows something about our department as a whole. We can achieve things—we can produce, and produce well."

Gregg Thomas has been working professionally for the last four summers. "The first summer I was a technical apprentice at a tent theater in PA. The second summer I was an intern at the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival in Madison. The third, I was in an off-off Broadway production of Shaw's Widower's House directed by MSC professor Suzanne Traum. Finally, this past summer I worked at the Black Hills Playhouse in South Dakota." Thomas related. "I tend to think of my experiences at MSC as an awakening."

"I look at the other people performing and compare my skills with theirs. I think my happiest experience was when I worked opposite Stephen and Troy in Pinocchio's Birthday Party. We reached what I consider to be a level of excellence. Theater is often a disheartening experience, but the people in the department here are learning their craft very well."

It's difficult to predict what the future holds for these young artists, but for the present they have the challenge of Waiting for Godot to overcome. "The play is unlike anything we've ever done," Clark remarked.

"But it also appeals to everyone since it is concerned with a basically human predicament: waiting for something good to happen. Not really knowing what it is, but having faith that it will someday arrive. There's always a twinge of hope."

There's much more than a twinge of hope for these young actors, for they have been competing against established performers. They have shown, repeatedly, that they are dedicated to their art and are achieving a high level of excellence as artists. "I wish more people would come to see the work here—especially the independent studies. It's kind of sad that so few people see the work you're the most proud of."

The play will be performed at 8 p.m. in the Studio Theater.

The One in the SGA Calendar is WRONG.
editorial

Administration still stalled

The Board of Trustees once again delayed their decision on the issue of arming the campus police. The issue has been before them for at least the last six months and both sides have presented evidence. In fact, the board heard these arguments two months ago.

Why have they not decided? We understand that it is a sensitive issue and the board must consider all of the possible ramifications of their decision, but this is turning into a classic case of administrative footdargging.

The board's severe case of indecision is unfair to the students and unfair to the campus police. The students want, and certainly deserve, to know as soon as possible whether they will attend a college with an armed police force and the police in turn deserve to know if they will continue their patrols unarmed.

The board's delay is, perhaps, most unfair to the police. It is the police who have the most to gain or lose by the board's decision. All of the officers are qualified to transfer to departments that will allow them to carry firearms and some have expressed their intention to leave the college force if in fact the board decides to keep the status quo. These officers are now just biding their time until the board makes a decision.

We did not endorse the arming of the police and we are not changing our stated position. We do feel, however, that the board must make a decision and make it soon. The campus cannot, and must not, continue waiting. The board must make a decision and make it soon. The board must not changing our stated position. We do feel, however, that the board decides to keep the status quo. These officers have expressed their intention to leave the college force if in fact the board decides to keep the status quo. These officers are now just biding their time until the board makes a decision.

All of us on the Montclarion staff wish everyone a happy and healthy holiday.

We wish you luck with your exams, and we look forward to seeing you all next semester.

Outtakes
“To search out new life…”

By Meryl Yourish

While testing our new dilithium crystals, a power surge inadvertently sent the Enterprise back through time. Lieutenant Commander Spock is currently trying to find out just exactly where and when we are. The planet below us looks astonishingly like Earth.

"It is Earth, Captain." We are in the late 20th century, approximately Dec. 9, 1981. It's 4:02 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

"Can you be more precise, Mr. Spock? We can't afford to be mistaken." Captain! I am a Vulcan! We do not make incorrect approximations.

"What have you got on your monitor, Spock?" Some primitive Earth transmissions—they appear to be a form of entertainment. Interesting, Captain. What do you suppose the word 'dingbat' means?

"Never mind that, Spock. Haven't you found their governing body yet?" "Scotty, sir."

"Report on dilithium crystals?" "Or what?"

"Och, sir, we've na got much time! I dinna think the ship can take much more than she's already had, sir."

"How much time, Scotty?"

"I'dnaa be sure, sir, but I'd say a wee bit more than three hours. More than that and the Enterprise will go out like a candle."

Then, laddie, eh. I mean, Scotty, do what you can. Kirk out. Spock! Havn't you found anything yet?"

"Yes, sir. I have on my monitor what appears to be a primitive form of Earth government called the Student Government Association at Montclair State College. They appear to be similar to Starfleet Command." "Ye'd better hurry, sir. She's dead jim."

Staples said. "I know. Are there any..."

"Will you listen to me, Pili? I didn't second the motion, I asked a question?"

"Point of Order," said Pall Garble? "What is your Point of Order, Pali?"

"Can he do that?"

"Do what?"

"Ask a question."

"Yes.

"Oh. Never mind."

"Fascinating, Captain. They are more like our Starfleet Command than I had initially surmised. Their meeting so far is confusing, illogical, ridiculous, and follows no certain order whatsoever.

"Quiet, Spock. They've gotten to the President's Report. Cinch is saying something."

"Before I begin, I'd like to say that I think the legislature's behavior today has been the best I've seen all semester. If this continues, I think we won't be needing torture chambers for much longer," Cinch said. "I'd like to turn the floor over to Fool, otherwise Malice will be here to say something."

"He won't. Cinch is being too nice."

The vote was taken. The charter failed. Boorish ran out of the room. After the meeting, the legislators began wandering in, and Boorish woke up. Smiling maliciously, she took an M-80 out of her pocketbook, lit it, and threw it in the middle of the floor. The explosion woke the sleeping legislators, blew a hole in the floor, made Boorish wet her pants, started the freshmen crying, and was declared in violation of Parliamentary Procedure. Boorish was sentenced to two weeks on the Welfare and Internal Affairs Committee.

"Not No! Anything but that! Please, not Welfare and Internal! I'd rather die!" Boorish pleaded.

"That can be arranged," Malice said.

President Cinch, in an effort to stop the disgusting scene of watching Boorish cry and kick and scream in the middle of the legislature floor (besides which, she had a campaign debt to pay), vetoed the measure. Boorish jumped up immediately, wearing an enormous smirk, and stuck her tongue out at Boorish. Boorish ignored the insult, while he, trying desperately to think up one himself. He couldn't.

"Captain. We've only got another fifteen minutes! The ship can't take much more, sir.

"Neither can I. Scotty. We'll be leaving soon. I just want to find out if anything actually happens at these meetings."

"Yes. It's a real life experience."

"Youd better hurry, sir. She's breaking up.""So is the meeting. Kirk out."

The legislature was in the process of debating a new organization's charter.

"Why do you think we should have a chapter of the Jewish Defense League here at Montclair, Malice?"

"Because they're really a nice bunch of people. Listen, they got a bum rap. So what if they used to bomb buildings— that's all in the past. They've changed. Look at those faces. Do they look like the type that would shoot your sister?"

"Boorish asked. The representatives of the JDL brushed and hung their heads.

"But Malice," said Peuter Poppapilly. "What happens if they decide to blow up something on campus? We've got to police the campus."

"I'll shoot them. And if you don't pass their charter I'll— I'll kill you! I'll kill all of you."

"The vote was taken. The charter failed. Boorish ran out of the room. She returned minutes later with an Uzi submachine gun, sprayed the room with bullets, and last of all shot herself.

"They're dead jim."

"Acknowledged. Let's get out of here. Warp six."

Continuing Ed aides community

By Robert E. MacVane

The 1960s and part of the 1970s saw a dynamic change in the role that people, agencies and institutions assumed in resolving the many problems and issues of society. It was a period when concern for and assistance to disadvantaged citizens became a priority and a challenge. Established institutions and agencies, including colleges and universities, began to accept this challenge as one of their missions. Montclair State College saw this need and created the Center of Adult Continuing Education in 1965. The Center’s primary mission was to provide direct services to a broader community—the citizens of New Jersey.

Educational and training services include the following programs: Community Education, Multicultural Education, Clearinghouse; and Adult Education Resource Center, and Industry and CFE Technical Assistance Unit. A Resource Center for Practitioners in Aging; as well as a CLEP (College Level Examination Program) Testing Center for Adult Basic Education and English as a Second Language. Graduate level courses in Adult Continuing Education, undergraduate level courses in Vocational, television courses; older adult counseling and referral assistance, and specialized training workshops are also provided through the Center.

Our National Education Clearinghouse, National Multimedia Center for Adult Education includes the National Adult Education Clearinghouse; and Adult Education Resource Center, and Industry and CFE Technical Assistance Unit, a Resource Center for Practitioners in Aging; as well as a CLEP (College Level Examination Program) Testing Center for Adult Basic Education and English as a Second Language. Graduate level courses in Adult Continuing Education, undergraduate level courses in Vocational, television courses; older adult counseling and referral assistance, and specialized training workshops are all provided through the Center.

The main reason for there being so many fad diets is that there are very few people who really wish to change the habits and to live with those pounds lost usually represents an inadequate diets.

Fad diets are the “Dr. Atkins Diet.” It is essentially a sugar diet consisting of very low amounts of protein, vitamins, and minerals. You live on fruit for the duration of the diet, which is considered seasonal and costly items such as watermelon, pineapple, and papaya. This diet is dangerously low in protein, and will cause the body to digest its own protein. It is also deficient in such vital nutrients as calcium, iron and B vitamins (thiamin, riboflavin, and niacin). Due to diarrhea, a resultant weight loss may occur, along with a possible dangerous loss of electrolytes (body salts), which may cause dehydration. A similar but more adequate diet is the “Pritikin Program.” It is based on cutting out the large amounts of unnecessary and unneeded protein typical of the average American diet. It is the most balanced of the high carbohydrate diets, and also recommends daily exercise.

Other current and familiar diets are the “Beverly Hills Diet” and the “Scarsdale Diet.”

Generally speaking, diets high in protein are usually associated with a high percentage of fat. From the dieter’s standpoint this type of diet may be considered desirable since fat is digested more slowly than carbohydrates (starch and sugars), resulting in greater satiety after meals and therefore less hunger between meals.

In general, most high protein diets are lacking in essential nutrients such as calcium, vitamins A, C, for thiamin and riboflavin. Fasting, or the protein-sparing modified fast provides the minimal amount of protein to prevent the gross breakdown of body proteins. These lack essential body chemicals and can cause fatal disturbances in heart rhythms. Due to the fact these are low carbohydrate diets, they also result in the production of ketones. An example of this type of diet is the liquid protein diet popular a short time ago. Their popularity has since decreased due to the large number of deaths related to their use.

The most productive approach to weight loss is a combination of a nutritionally balanced eating plan that reduces calories by cutting down on certain foods, and a realistic exercise program that increases energy expenditure.

Australian students bid Montclair farewell

On a couple of occasions during our stay here, we have been challenged by a few people regarding the Australian Government’s so called “White Australia Policy,” the policy to keep Australia white. This was abolished in 1967.

To confirm our current policy, I wrote to the Department of Immigration and Ethnic Affairs in Canberra (the Australian capital) and received the following from the Minister; Since 1974 immigration policy has been very tightly defined... Immigration policy should be applied on a basis which is non-discriminatory. The principle of non-discrimination means that the policy will be applied consistently, without distinction, regardlesse of their race, color, nationality, descent, national or ethnic origin or sex.

At any one time the number of people wanting to migrate to Australia, far exceeds our capacity to receive them. In the past financial year, 7/1/80 to 6/30/81, there were over one million applications and enquiries that were processed, yet only 110,000 were accepted. It would be apparent that selection is very necessary. If you would like further information, please write to the Australian Consulate in New York or Washington, D.C. and request a copy of the speech by The Honorable J. M. Macphee, M.P., the minister for immigration and ethnic affairs, on Australia’s Migration Assessment System. It is a Ministerial Statement, from the Parliament’s Debates, 10/29/81.

Elaine, Marian and Seve would like to say thank you for the experience of being in this college during the Fall semester. The things we have learned, the friends that we have made and just the fact of being in the United States will stand us in good stead for the rest of our lives. We really have had a great time, and although we are looking forward to getting back home, where it is now summer, we are going to miss the great friends that we have made. I know that I speak for the three of us when I say that you will be made feel just as welcome in Australia as we have been welcomed here.

We would like to extend to each one of you the compliments of this Festive Season and hope that the New Year brings to each of you all the good things you deserve.

Tyson, a 5-foot-8 right-winger from Beachwood, scored two goals and added two assists for the Indians, who finished 5-10-1.

The physical education major played two years for Ocean County College, where she received all-region honors in both field hockey and tennis in 1978 and 1979 before transferring to MSC. Tyson also played field hockey, basketball, and softball for Toms River High School South.

Despite a brief illness during the 1981 campaign which sidelined her for two conference games, Tyson’s playmaking talents enabled her to take the ball down the sideline into scoring position and center it in front of the goal consistently. This skill contributed to several of the 14 goals the team scored this fall.

"Dianne has worked hard all season on improving her skills and overall play and it paid off for both her and the team," said first-year coach Diane Swierzbz.

"She has been an integral part of our offense—not only scoring goals, but more importantly, setting up our attack," Swierzbz said.

Other players and their respective colleges named to the 1981 NJIAAW All-Conference field hockey team are: Mary Pagano (forward), Mary Drenen and Jody Trappe (defense), of William Paterson; Teresa Turnerberg (forwards), Sharon Goldbrenner (defense), Glassboro State; Pam Custigan and Kelly Hall (forwards), Jackie Hentz (defense) and Tina Paldstro (goalie), Rider; Donna Aromando and Sue LaPierre (goalie), Montgomery; and Donna Wieser (defense), Glassboro State. MSC was the only Indian selected to the New Jersey Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (NJIAAW) Coaches All-Conference field hockey team.
