Porn attacked

By Dianne Hahner

The final lecture in a series of three on “Violence in America” was delivered by Father Ned Murphy Wednesday night in the Student Center Ballrooms. The event was sponsored by the Council on International and National Affairs (CINA).

Father Murphy addressed a sparse audience of MSC students in reference to an industry that preys upon the bodies of lost youths, an industry supported by the white collar workers in the Manhattan area, and an industry that, according to certain estimates, turns a profit in excess of $1.5 billion dollars annually. The industry is pornography and prostitution.

It is an industry supported by the white collar workers in the Manhattan area, and an industry preying upon the bodies of lost youths, an industry that operates 7 days a week, 24 hours a day. Father Murphy explained that if there has ever been a classless society, it is the society of lost children. These children are “lost,” in the sense that they are “alone, homeless, and without any center of stability with which to relate.” Murphy added, “it is because of this aloneness, that they are so very vulnerable, and because of this vulnerability that they become exploited.”

According to Father Murphy, “Statistics report that there are over 20,000 homeless children under the age of 16, in Manhattan alone.” Murphy added, “If you tend to think of this sort of problem as a New York City problem, FBI numbers say that across the 50 states, there are over one million homeless children. This is an enormous problem.”

During his discourse, Father Murphy related to his listeners the stories of three individual youths with which he has come into contact.

Father Murphy explained that he is in the unique position of being able to comment first-hand on the industry and the dilemmas of the youths it exploits through his work with Covenant House. Covenant House, according to Murphy, “is the largest emergency and crisis shelter for youths and runaway children in the country.”

Murphy added that Covenant House is located in the right place: the heart of Times Square.

Fee hike proposed

By Stephen McLean

MSC students may find as much as a $12 increase in next fall’s tuition bill.

A proposal that the maximum SGA fee be raised from $24 to $36 was met with little opposition at last Wednesday’s SGA meeting.

Money raised through these fees is used by the SGA to finance SGA-affiliated student organizations.

Sandy Schlanger, SGA treasurer, said, “Students are currently charged $2 per credit they take, with a maximum charge per semester of $24. The increase calls for a charge of $3 per credit with a maximum of $36 per semester.”

This would be the first increase in SGA fees since 1967. Schlanger said, the inflation rate since then has forced the SGA to cut back on programming in order to get by from revenue of current fees.

Sonju Lal, SGA president, said, “The proposal will put before the general student body for a vote in spring, 1982.”

“If accepted,” Schlanger said, “the increase would provide an additional $114,000 in revenue. Of this, $275,000 would come from the full-time students and $64,000 from part-time students. She said that last semester the SGA raised nearly $230,000 through fees.

Schlanger pointed out that the money would be used by from revenue of current fees.
Chamber ensemble performs

The MSC Chamber Orchestra, under the direction of Norman L. Smith, will perform selections by Handel, Vivaldi and Stravinsky, and will feature Lillo Way as narrator in a free program presented at the Union Congregational Church on Friday, December 11 at 8 p.m. The program will feature Handel’s “Water Music Suite,” Vivaldi’s “Concerto for Three Violins and Orchestras,” and Stravinsky’s “The Soldiers Way,” which will be narrated by Lillo Way. Way, a dancer, choreographer and artistic director of the Greenhouse Dance Ensemble, has appeared as narrator with the orchestras of the White Mountains-Festival, the Waterloo Music Festival, The Music Project in New York City and recently recorded Stravinsky’s “L’Histoire du Soldat” with the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra. The Union Congregational Church is located at 176 Cooper Ave., Montclair. For more information contact the Office of Cultural Programming at (201) 893-5112.

Navy offers program

For many students, a college degree is a dead end street. Jobs are getting harder to get and sometimes, people have to settle for jobs that are demeaning to their field of study. This is where the navy can benefit a lot of students. Their Nuclear Power Program boasts its twenty six years of operating experience and 150 nuclear plants throughout the country. As Lieutenant Mike Dunne said, the training can’t be matched, especially with Adimiral Rickover in charge, who graduated from the naval Academy in 1921, and at age 81 is still in active duty.

They are looking for college graduates with a bachelor’s degree (minimum) in engineering, math, physics, chemistry or related areas with a 3.3 grade point average. Students would spend six months in the Navy’s nuclear power school in Orlando, Florida, followed by six months on a prototype reactor either in New York, Connecticut, or Idaho working on drills and how to handle problems. The next three years are spent on a nuclear powered submarine or surface ship where students, seniors operating engineers, and managing technicians operate the reactors.

The four year obligated duty is very beneficial to a student because it had ideal teaching positions and facilities. Dunne said students learning the program are bright and highly motivated which places them in high demand in the job market with starting salaries of $50-60,000 a year. Students can join while they’re still in school and receive a $3,000 bonus and earn $1,000 a month just for joining the program and committing themselves after they graduate.

Israelis speak

By Meryl Younish

The Israeli side of the Middle East situation was presented by Dr. Alexander Bligh, a representative from Israel, last Monday night. The lecture, sponsored jointly by the Political Science Club and the Jewish Student Union, was prevented from starting on time by a bomb threat.

"I think it's a reciprocal action," said Peter Piszczatowski, former president of the Political Science Club, recalling that last year's lecture by a PLO representative was interrupted by two bomb threats.

Once the lecture began, Bligh stated, "I'm not sure, we can use the term 'Arab-Israeli conflict' anymore." He explained that his terminology differentiates between the relationship between Israel and Egypt, and between Israel and the Arab countries which don't recognize Israel, and the Palestinian question as well.

"The main source of the Arab-Israeli conflict is the refusal of the Arab countries to recognize that we are there," the native Israeli said. He stated that the eight-point proposal by Saudi Arabia's Prince Fahd is an encouraging move, but, he added, "The next logical move is for the Saudis to speak to Israel." He said the Fahd plan merely reiterates what the Israeli parliament has already stated.

Bligh divided the Palestinian question as well, citing the refugee problem as wholly separate from the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO). "The PLO is a tool of international terrorism," Bligh said. He claimed that the PLO is a Soviet-backed terrorist organization, and accused the PLO of taking part in the training the Iranian militants who seized the U.S. embassy in Tehran. He cited information presented to a House subcommittee to support his claims, but could not produce specific information during the lecture.

Bligh also accused some Arab countries, notably Jordan, Syria, Lebanon, and Saudi Arabia of creating the Palestinian refugee problem. "The refugee problem is kept alive to pressure Israel," Bligh said. "The Arab countries have done nothing to solve the Palestinian problem."

Bligh suggested that Jordan could become the separate Palestinian state, saying "Juda and Samaria (the West Bank) and security are essential for Israel's security."

Following the 35 minute lecture, there was a question and answer period. Bligh earned a B.A. from the Hebrew University in Arabic Language and Literature and Islamic History. He has an M.A. from Tel Aviv University, and Ph.D. in modern Middle Eastern History from Columbia.

Gun decision delayed

Board swears in new member

By Robert Thibault

At the Board of Trustees meeting last night, Dr. Edward A. Jeser, Jr. was sworn in as a new member, replacing Dr. Hans Hillerbrand. Hillerbrand left in August to take a position at Southern Methodist University.

Jesser is also on the boards of Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., Colby College in New Hampshire, and at the New Jersey Institute of Technology in Newark.

Hillerbrand now serves as provost and academic vice president at S.M.U.

In other action, the board announced that its executive committee will review input on the issue of arming the campus police for action at the board's January meeting.

Student representative Craig Stogurt asked that the board delay any decision on the issue until its February meeting to enable students to express their opinion on the matter. He said that because school is not in session in January, students will not be able to attend the January meeting.

Dr. Ernest May, chairman of the board, said that the board should have already heard student opinion and will base its decision on that testimony, but did not want their actions misinterpreted.

He said that the board did not want their actions to be construed as taking place in January so the students would not be able to attend the meeting.

May said that the executive committee will make its recommendation to the board in January, but the board will not take action on it until February for "public relations purposes."

The board also heard the report of the personnel committee granting tenure to eight faculty members. The committee also granted 41 faculty reappointments and 38 non teaching professionals.

The academic planning committee presented its report on the proposed toxicology program. The committee also presented the final draft of a proposal for an educators/trainers program.

Dr. David W.D. Dickson, president of the college, was instructed by the board in a formal resolution to discuss the possibilities of a cooperative academic program with the presidents of four other state colleges in the area.

The board also drafted a formal resolution commending the football team on its fine performance during the past season.

N.J.S.A. meets

The New Jersey Student Association will hold its first statewide leadership conference since it was reorganized last August.

The conference, to be held in Wayne, N.J., will emphasize the need for a unified student movement in our state.

The conference is open to students from all eight state colleges and the two state universities. Letters were sent out by Sonjui Lai, president of the SGA. Last month Lai said the conference will be held the last weekend in January, 1982.

Lai also stated that members of Class One Organizations will be attending.

Porn lecture

The response so far has been very encouraging. I think we will get representation from all the schools.

The conference will have workshops on students' rights, how SGA can improve itself, financial aid, and student and public relations.

The conference will be held the last weekend in January, 1982.
Sprague notes

By Martha Cooney

The holiday season and inter session means different things to different people. For some, it means lying on the beach in the warm sun, for others it means a trek through snow-covered fields, and for still others, it means a break in the normal routine. Whatever your pursuit, here's a sampling of books to restore the soul and tickle your fancy.

Shaping Up by George Mazes (GV 544. M1) provides a customized weight training program for both men and women. It'll revitalize those muscles grown slack from a long semester of sitting, studying, and writing term papers.

With the body humming and rearing to go, the Fodor guides will help you get away from it all. Fodor's Caribbean and the Bahamas (F 2171 F68 1981) will tell you where to go, how to go, when to go, and where to stay.

If colder climates are more to your liking, the Cross-Country Skiing Guide (GV 854.9 .C7G76) may be just the thing. It's a chapter on cross-country skiing in New England. For downhill enthusiasts, Wendy Williams Skiing the Great Resorts of North America (GV 854 .W54 1978) will give you an insider's view of trails, lifts, and accommodations. A section here is devoted to skiing in Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine.

Whether you come off the slopes or off the woods, you'll probably feel stiff and weary. Unwind with The Complete Yoga Book by James Hewitt (RA 781.7 .H49 1978). The book will give you a firm basis in the philosophy of yoga, as well as complete, illustrated instruction in yoga posture.

After you've gotten in shape, exercised, and relaxed, you'll be ready to sit down to a good meal. Why not try something different? The library has a large selection of international cookbooks, including the Foods of the World series from Time-Life books. You'll find books on the cuisines of Latin America, India, Russia, Italy, Japan, China, and many more too numerous to mention here. You'll find the cookbooks in the 1X section of the library on the second floor.

And what better after a good meal than a good book to curl up with? How about Nicholas Nickleby (PR 4565 .A1 1971), The Rolling Stone Illustrated History of Rock & Roll (MI. 3534 .R4 1980), or a science fiction short story (PS 648)?

And if you can't decide what you want, Frederic Raphael and Kenneth McLeish have written The List of Books (Ref. Z 1035 .R24). This is an annotated guide to 3,000 books arranged by category, such as fiction, feminism, biography, film, art, etc.

All of the books mentioned are part of the library collection, and are located by their Library of Congress call numbers.

The staff of Sprague Library extends the entire college community warm wishes for a joyful holiday season—During the semester break our hours will be 8:30 am-4:30 pm, Monday through Friday. We'll be closed Dec. 25th, Jan. 1st, and all weekends until the spring semester begins on Jan. 25th.
Center offers counseling for women

By Donna Cullen

The Women's Center is a support system geared particularly toward the needs of women, a "place to sit and talk and get information" for almost a decade, according to its director, Dr. Constance Waller. The center serves 600 to 700 women per month, both on and off campus, including faculty, staff, and students.

Counseling, support group meetings, workshops aimed toward developing skills, and discussions every Wednesday at noon are among the center's programs. There is also a legal clinic one night a month, where a woman can receive counseling from a local attorney. Waller noted that any money raised through programs that charge a nominal fee goes toward expanding the center's library—a collection of books by and about women, available on loan to any interested person.

This year the center is undergoing a couple of important changes. Once a part of the Inter-Collegiate Academic Program, the center is now under the Department of Student Affairs headed by Dean Jean Armstrong. Secondly, the center will move from its obscure location of the Math/Science Building to the new Student Center Annex.

Armstrong said the center was transferred to her area because "it is a natural component of our division (Student Affairs) that provides direct support services for students. Like Financial Aid and Career Services, it has a heavy concentration of counseling." she said.

"I'm very supportive of the Women's Center," Armstrong said. "I hope we can expand the program and programs water outreach into the campus community, and I'm personally delighted to have Dr. Waller as a member of my cabinet."

Waller is also pleased with the move. The new location will put the center back "in the line of traffic making it more accessible to students," she said.

The center began in 1972 as a result of a campus effort to meet the needs of students. Female students felt discriminated against in counseling and in the information they could get about careers," she said. The center was created to fill that gap.

Today the center's goal has not changed. Waller explained, "we help sensitize the campus community to women and minority issues of the outside world." She added that to do so is especially important now because of the conservative trend in the country.

MSC actors learn their crafts well

By Stephen Kantrowitz

In a school with 15,000 students, it’s easy to get lost in the crowd. But when you continue to do outstanding work, you’re bound to get noticed. Three speech and theater majors, Stephen C. Clark, Thomas West, and Troy Eric West, have all begun to attract such attention.

The culmination of their work together will be seen on Dec. 18th and 19th, when their production of Samuel Beckett’s Waiting for Godot is presented to the college community. Directed by Clark, the production is set in the role of Estrogen and West in the role of Vladimir.

Troy Eric West, a senior speech and theater major, agreed to "There were several reasons for the decision to do the play until we were 50 or 60, and didn’t care anymore."

Clark, who will be graduating in May, has enjoyed many independent study opportunities in his years at MSC. "I’ve been doing independent studies since my sophomore year," he said. "I believe students should do more of these than they are doing now. It’s important because you have to do the work on your own."

Clark remarked, "I believe my favorite role at MSC was that of Tom in That Championship Season," Clark said. "I enjoyed it more than any other role I’ve done. I had just the right amount of pathos and humor. It was a role I wanted to keep on doing. I could easily see myself doing that role, continuing in it, for a year."

Also close to Clark’s heart are the many friendships he’s had at MSC. "Many of us have bonded ourselves together," he said. "Our friendships add up to remain for a long time—even though we’re also competitors. We’ve learned a lot from each other. And I believe—I know—I’m going to be seeing them again. I know we will be working together again in the future."

West feels that more attention should be paid to the department for its accomplishments. "The last time the American College Theater Festival was held, MSC won more awards than any other college in the six-state region that was competing. This shows something about our department as a whole. We can achieve things—we can produce, and produce well."

"It’s difficult to predict what the future holds for these young artists, but for the present they have the challenge of Waiting for Godot to overcome. "The play is unlike anything we’ve ever done," Clark remarked.

"It also appeals to everyone since it is concerned with a basically human predicament: waiting for something good to happen. Not really knowing what it is, but having faith that it will someday arrive. There’s always a twinge of hope."

There’s much more than a twinge of hope for these ambitious young performers. They have shown, repeatedly, that they are dedicated to their art and worthy of a level of excellence as artists. "I wish more people would come to see the work here—especially the independent studies. It’s kind of sad that so few people see the work you’re the most proud of."

The play will be performed at 8 p.m. in the Studio 1 theater.

Train tracks

By Stephen Kantrowitz

Imagine the horror of going into your last semester in college to find that one of your required courses is not being offered. Richard Sofko, a senior speech and theatre major, came up with the perfect idea: do an independent study.

"I needed three credits in directing to complete my concentration of acting/directing," Sofko said. "I was interested in letting the student work out his own problems. He has a lot of confidence in the students and allows them their great responsibility."

Sofko’s next task was to choose the play to be performed. "I knew from the start that I wanted to do a musical," he said. "They have always been of great interest to me. And when I first came to MSC, the musical Theatrical Series were doing Damas At Sea. Other students and I were disappointed that they only schedule musicals every four years."

Sofko admitted, "I was very pleased when the College Theatre committee set up a program to attract more people to the performing groups on campus. I believe a reason for this is because students are so reasonable;

Moreover, Worden, who was in the role of Vladimir. "The people in the department are interested in the people in the student body. They want to do well for the people."

I had been looking at a lot of different things, he said. "I think my favorite role at MSC was that of Tom in That Championship Season," Clark said. "I enjoyed it more than any other role I’ve done. I had just the right amount of pathos and humor. It was a role I wanted to keep on doing. I could easily see myself doing that role, continuing in it, for a year."

"Our friendships add up to remain for a long time—even though we’re also competitors. We’ve learned a lot from each other. And I believe—I know—I’m going to be seeing them again. I know we will be working together again in the future."

Like Clark, speech and theatre major Troy Eric West has had performing experience outside of MSC. "This past summer I worked with a company called Theatre-By-The-Sea. It is in Matunuck, Rhode Island. It is a non-equity summer stock troupe whose season runs May through September," West said. "It was the most beautiful summer of my life. I opened up my eyes to what it really takes to be a pro. I learned a great deal of discipline and much about the many demands of being an actor. I performed in Pirates of Penzance, Brigadoon, and West Side Story. I also did technical work on two other shows."

West feels that more attention should be paid to the department for its accomplishments. "The last time the American College Theater Festival was held, MSC won more awards than any other college in the six-state region that was competing. This shows something about our department as a whole. We can achieve things—we can produce, and produce well."

The One in the SGA Calendar is WRONG.
Administration still stalled

The Board of Trustees once again delayed their decision on the issue of arming the campus police. The issue has been before them for at least the last six months and both sides have presented evidence. In fact, the board heard these arguments two months ago.

Why have they not decided? We understand that it is a sensitive issue and the board must consider all of the possible ramifications of their decision, but this is turning into a classic case of administrative footdragging.

The board’s severe case of indecision is unfair to the students and unfair to the campus police. The students want, and certainly deserve, to know as soon as possible whether they will attend a college with an armed police force and the police in turn deserve to know if they will continue their patrols unarmed.

The board’s delay is, perhaps, most unfair to the police. It is the police who have the most to gain or lose by the board’s decision. All of the officers are qualified to transfer to departments that will allow them to carry firearms and some have even considered leaving the college force if in fact the board decides to keep the status quo. These officers are now just biding their time until the board makes a decision.

We did not endorse the arming of the police and we are not changing our stated position. We do feel, however, that the board must make a decision and make it soon. The campus cannot, and must not, continue waiting. The board owes it to the students, staff, faculty, and police department to make the decision at its next meeting.

All of us on the Montclarion staff wish everyone a happy and healthy holiday.

We wish you luck with your exams, and we look forward to seeing you all next semester.

P.S. WE STILL NEED HELP!!!!
A tribute to a very funny man! See the review of Tomfoolrey on page 18.

Captain's Log. Stardate 37453.

While testing our new dilithium crystals, a power surge inadvertently sent the Enterprise back through time. Lieutenant Commander Spock is currently trying to find out just exactly where and when we are. The planet below us looks astonishingly like Earth.

"It is Earth, Captain. We are in the late 20th century, approximately Dec. 9, 1981. It's 4:02 p.m. Eastern Standard Time."

"Can you be more precise, Mr. Spock? We can't afford to be mistaken."

"Captain! I am a Vulcan! We do not make incorrect approximations.

"What have you got on your monitor, Spock?"

"Some primitive Earth transmissions - they appear to be a form of entertainment. Interesting, Captain. What do you suppose the word 'dingbat' means?"

"Never mind that, Spock. Haven't you found their governing body yet?"

"Scout here, sir."

"Report on dilithium crystals?"

"Och, sir, we've na got much time! I dinna think the ship can take much more than she's already had, sir."

"How much time, Scotty?"

"I canna be sure, sir, but I'd say a wee bit more than three hours. More than that and the Enterprise will go out like a candle.

"Then, laddie, er, I mean, Scotty, do what you can. Kirk out. Spock! Haven't you found anything yet?"

"Yes, sir. I have on my monitor what appears to be a primitive form of Earth government called the Student Government Association at Montclair State College. They appear to be similar to Starfleet Command."

"Put it on visual, Uhura. Lock inStandard Time."

"Captain! I am a Vulcan! We do not make incorrect approximations."

"Spock! We can't afford to be mistaken."

"Never mind that, Spock. Haven't you found the representatives of the JDL yet?"

"The secretary will please call the legislators' names!"

"Scott here, sir."

"Report on dilithium crystals!"

"Scotty, sir."

"I don't like the color of the paper," Spruce said. "Can we take a consensus vote on changing it to black?"

"Spruce!" Pill said wearily, "if the paper was black, we wouldn't be able to read it."

"Gee, I didn't think of that. Never mind.

"Do we have a motion to accept the minutes?" Pill asked, thinking that there must be at least one more bad pun waiting to be announced. He was right.

"I move that we not only accept the minutes, but we accept the hours, the days, the weeks, the months, and even the seconds," said Malice Boorish.

"Seconds?" Neat Staples asked.

"We have a motion, it has been seconded. Are there any comments?"

"I don't say second, I said seconds," Staples said.

"I know. Are there any..."

"Will you listen to me, Pill? I didn't secound the motion, I asked a question?"

"Point of Order," said Pall Garble.

"What is your Point of Order, Pall?"

"I move that we not only accept the minutes, but we accept the hours, the days, the weeks, the months, and even the seconds," said Malice Boorish.

Fad diets can present problems

By Caroline Cloughsey and Tom D'Agie

It has been estimated that the average American adult will try at least fifteen diets in their lifetime. Unfortunately, 80 million Americans are overweight, and more than 10% of these are obese. Almost everyone who is searching for an easy way to lose these pounds and inches falls prey to one of these fad diets.

Educational and training services, such as those cooperatively developed at the Montclair State College State's Center of Adult Continuing Education include the Nutritional and Educational Clearinghouse; and Adult Education Resource Center; and Industry and CEF Technical Assistance Unit, a Resource Center for Practitioners in Aging; as well as a CLEP (College Level Examination Program) Testing Center for Adult Basic Education and Testing, Second Language. Graduate level courses in Adult Continuing Education, undergraduate classes, and educational television courses; older adult counseling and referral assistance and specialized training workshops are also provided through the Center.

Our National Education Clearinghouse, a National Multimedia Center for Adult Education has for the last seven years been recognized as the Adult Education Information and Documentation Center for the United States. In addition to its public service role of disseminating information to active professionals in the field, the Clearinghouse's collection of educational and training materials has been a valuable resource for the members of Montclair State College.

The Adult Education Resource Center, established in the New Jersey Department of Education, trains over 800 training and development programs for adult education programs in central and northern New Jersey. Program monitoring and technical assistance is provided to these 60 programs with special emphasis given to the larger inner-city programs such as Paterson, Passaic, Elizabeth, Plainfield, Orange, and East Orange.

The technical assistance and industry unit of the Center of Adult Continuing Education provides special assistance cooperatively with public and private agencies as well as professional associations throughout New Jersey, such as developing educational and training programs for career development and personal planning, and keeping records of adults in industry and the professions. Other development programs are those cooperatively developed with the National Executive Housekeepers Association, with the Daughters of Israel Home for Nursing Home Administrators, with the Printing Industries of Metropolitan New York, and with various academic departments of MSC. Located in the Alderidge and Legg houses on the south side of Normal Ave, the Adult Continuing Education Center provides numerous print and non-print resources. The members of the college community are encouraged to visit and utilize the many services offered through the Center.

Robert E. MacVane is the vice president for academic services.

A much against the back-up was introduced to the newspaper readers of our nation — a comic strip that was, at one time, more direct, more subtle and more devoted to an iconoclastic exposure of contemporary life and more than any other member of the comic fraternity for decades past. Today, one Pulitzer Prize, a fair amount of controversy and millions of devoted fans later, Doonesbury is still breaking new ground in the idiom of four-panel daily humor.

Now, available directly through this paper, are the two big volumes that trace the checkered history of Michael J. Doonesbury and his world of Walden commune’s gentile eccentricities. From commune to White House to Great Wall to Pago Pago, each volume gives you the full sampling of Doonesbury back to its beginnings in 1970 — 572 strips (in full color) in each volume. If you’ve just discovered Doonesbury, this is a great way to catch up. If there’s a Doonesbury fan in your family or of your acquaintance, this is one of the greatest gifts you’ll find.

MSC coming off last week’s defeat by St. Peters pulled it together with a second half rally to defeat the Kean Squires on Saturday night in Panzer Gym. This is the NJSCAC conference championship team the Indian fans have grown accustomed to. A Division I St. Peters team handed MSC their first defeat with a score of 67-42 in Jersey City last Wednesday night. The key to that loss was the inability of the Indians to get on the scoreboard until 8:03 had elapsed. All hope was lost when St. Peters outscored MSC 12-2 in the start of the second half. High scorers were captain Ed Rich with a score of 16 points.

MSC tightened up the defense and held Kean to 22 points in the second half. The Indians scored 18 of the first 26 points in the second half, 6 by Richie, with Sal Genco making two key steals. An effective four corner offense was mastered by Brian O’Connell. Other key players in this impressive MSC win were Charlie Cole with 12 points, Chris Mann with 11 points, captain Kevin Barry with 8 points, and O’Connell with 6. Mann was also the high rebounder.

MSC’s next conference battle is against Ramapo, Dec. 9 at 8 pm. The MSC basketball team will be looking for a large turnout when the Lions of Trenton State roar into Panzer Gym, Saturday, Dec. 12, at 8 pm.

Tyson named to All-Conference hockey team

Senior Dianne Tyson of MSC was the only Indian selected to the New Jersey Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (NJIAAW) Coaches’ All-Conference field hockey team. Tyson, a 5-foot-8 right-winger from Beachwood, scored two goals and added two assists for the Indians, who finished 5-10-1.

MSC was the only Indian college team in the east. Widener finished first in the voting with 87 points, followed by Albert (81), Westminster (70), Wagner (60), and MSC (56).

MSC’s next conference game is against Ramapo, Dec. 9 at 8 pm. The MSC basketball team will be looking for a large turnout when the Lions of Trenton State roar into Panzer Gym, Saturday, Dec. 12, at 8 pm.

Indians fall in Dial final
Villanova defense shuts down MSC offense

The MSC women's basketball team fell to a tough Villanova squad, 69-58, in the finals of the third annual Dial Classic held this past weekend in Panzer Gym. The loss puts the Indians at 2-1 for the season.

Villanova center Lisa Ortlip, the tournament MVP, led the way for the Lady Wildcats with 21 points and 10 rebounds. Kathie Beisel, Nancy Bernhardt, and Stephanie Vanderslice also scored in double figures with 14, 14, and 12 respectively. Vanderslice grabbed 13 boards for the winners.

The Indians were led by the junior forward Jean Wohlgemuth who scored a game-high 30 points in a losing effort. Tracey Brown added 10 points to push her career total to 887 points. Marguerite Dempsey led MSC with six rebounds.

Villanova controlled the game from the opening tap, jumping to a 24-12 lead in the first 10 minutes. Vanderslice and Bernhardt each had six points in the stretch.

The Indians cut the lead to two with 5:04 left in the first half on a Sharon Ross jumper. From that point Ortlip and Beisel took control, and pushed Villanova's lead back up to 12 at the half.

The second half remained much the same as the first with Villanova's hot-shooting hands. The Lady Wildcats started looking for Ortlip inside, where she scored 11 of her 21 points. The closest MSC got was within 12 at the beginning of the half.

Villanova's tough defense held MSC's talented guards in check the entire game winning, the Dial Championship Game.

Villanova advanced into the final game by beating East Carolina (ECU) 72-59. Ortlip led the Lady Wildcats with 16 points while Vanderslice had 14 points and 11 rebounds. MSC moved into the championship round with a tight 55-52 win over the University of New Hampshire (UNH). The Indians got a strong game from junior guard Sharon Ross, who had 29 points. Brown also had 16 points for the winners.

In the consolation game, UNH, led by Theresa Redmond's 20 points, defeated ECU 65-61 to capture third place in the tournament.

Junior forward Jean Wohlgemuth pumped in a game-high 30 points in a losing effort against Villanova in the finals of the Dial Classic. She was selected to the All-Tournament team for her outstanding play.

Villanova placed two players, Ortlip and Vanderslice, on the All-Tournament team, while MSC, ECU, and UNH each placed one.

Mary Denkler starred for ECU with 22 points and 11 rebounds. Samamba Jones and Lillian Barnes scored in double figures with 15 and 14 points respectively. Wohlgemuth was selected from MSC, while Denkler was chosen from ECU, and Redmond from UNH.

The Indians will travel to George Washington University this Saturday in a regular season game. MSC returns home on Dec. 21, when they will take on Providence College.
