Kean visits Quarry dump site and calls for special meeting

By Linda Welchenlader

After receiving hundreds of letters, phone calls, a petition with nearly 13,000 signatures, and a request by Assemblyman John Kelly (R-27th), Gov. Thomas Kean and a delegation of state officials visited the proposed dump site last Friday afternoon.

The governor was accompanied by Kelly, Art Clay, Essex County freeholder. Fred DeFuria, Passaic County freeholder and Dennis Lindsay, deputy mayor of Little Falls.

On Friday, Kelly told Lindsay that he couldn’t break Carrino’s lease to dump, but would call for a special meeting in Trenton this week with the state attorney general, representative from the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) and local officials. A date for the meeting has still not been set.

"Kean was in the area at the time,” Thomas Kelly, said. “I had appointments in Nutley, Belleville and Glenridge that day and he was there in the area as well.” Barrett said, “I’m glad Kean went because his lawyers advised him not to dump. Kelly said since Carrino has a legal contract and there’s really nothing he can do.”

"We’re quite pleased Kean saw the site,” Lindsay said. “During his visit Kean admitted this is not an appropriate place for a dump, but that Carrino does have a legal contract. Kean also voiced concern about the students.

Kean later called the problems that tight arose since Clave Road is only a single lane,” Lindsay said. He also suggested that Kean consider using state funds to buy Carrino’s contract.

MSCHad the right to buy Carrino’s contract in 1974-75 for $400,000. But chose not to, according to Carmen Gaita, mayor of Little Falls. “Now it will cost nearly $3-5 million to buy Carrino out because they have already spent up to $1 million in court fees, linings, Gaita said. “We’ve asked the MSC board of trustees to use money from their trust fund to help buy Carrino out. Little Falls is also looking into its budget for the available funds.”

Gaita said Assemblyman Joseph Bubba (R-34th) has also introduced a bill that calls for purchasing Carrino’s contract.

At last night’s SGA meeting, Gaita voiced his concern over possible leachate seepage from the dump site into the local water supplies. “I don’t think the clay lining Carrino will install is sufficient to prevent leachate seepage. The dump site is a quarry and has faults that could leachate seep into the water supply,” Gaita said. “However, we have made a few advances,” Gaita added. We’ve gotten the DEP to update its environmental guidelines for the site, and we’re hoping taht we can come up with some arrangement with the governor to buy out Carrino’s contract.

Under the new proposal, a person interested in teaching would only be required to have a bachelor of arts degree. After passing a subject matter test, a provisional license would be issued. Following a year long internship, a teaching certificate would then be awarded.

On the other hand, requirements under MSC’s existing certification program include field experience, methods teaching with computer application, effective teaching studies, demographic and social studies, developmental, philosophical orientation to education and educational psychology.

“Cooperman’s proposal is absurd. The requirements for certification are not sufficient.” Catherine

Becker, president of the MSC faculty union

According to Catherine Becker, chairperson of teaching and curriculum, “Cooperman’s proposal is absurd. The requirements for certification are not sufficient. If this new proposal goes through, within five years the entire state will be calling for reform. I’m in favor of subject matter tests, but while subject matter is a necessary condition, it is not a sufficient con­ tion to good teaching performance.”

According to Dr. David W.D. Dickson, chairman of the computer science department.

Wolff said that if a student entered the entire computer science class was given the same password. If a student opened another account, either directly or by punching numbers until he found the correct combination, he could take the student’s money.

Wolff said his is “confident there has been more," but he “can’t point the finger at any one person.” He said there are no laws in N.J. to govern such situations.

This semester the system was

Kean meets with teachers' union to discuss contract dispute

By John Connolly

Governor Thomas Kean and Marcoantonio Lacatena, president of the council of N.J state college locals, met at 10:30 a.m. today to discuss the contract dispute between the State Board of Higher Education and the Council of N.J. State College Locals.

At last night's faculty senate meeting, Dr. Catherine Becker, president of the MSC faculty union, said the state is trying to "create a squeeze play" by waiting to call a meeting so close to the Oct. 4 strike date.

Becker also said some of MSC's faculty are planning to picket the picket line if there is a strike, and are trying to force their students to come to class by assigning tests. Becker called this a "despicable act" and said the teachers were trying to "use the students as a pawn." Becker said she will buzz whatever she can to stop these actions. If the teachers strike, the faculty will distribute leaflets to inform the students, Becker said.

In other business, the faculty senate unanimously passed a resolution that "condemns the efforts by the commissioner of education and the governing board (and eventually eliminate) professional teacher preparation by permitting non-certified persons to teach in public schools."

Dr. Jack Sacher, chairman of the mathematics department, said this resolution is "not only to protect our jobs, it is to emphasize that teaching is a skill and it requires discipline and training."

According to Dr. Edward Boyno, president of the faculty senate, the executive committee of the senate will meet to devise a resolution opposing the appointment of Rene Gimbere to the position of associate vice-president of academic affairs. Gimbere, formally the office of the president, was appointed by Dr. David W. D. Dickson, president of the college, over the summer. According to Dr. Roland Garrett, vice president of academic affairs, the appointment took place over the summer "to enable good planning for the academic year."

Garrett added that due to budgetary constraints, the person hired should already be an employee of the college.

The faculty senate also discussed the first 1985 budget submission for MSC from the state. According to the proposed budget 12 full-time salary lines will be cut. The proposal is also $340,000 less than the college's request. Although the budget was cut in salary funds, it is higher in non-salary funds.

Southside postpones concert due to problems in scheduling

By Judy Susser

Oases I Concerts (CIC) rescheduled its Southside Johnny and the Jukes concert to Oct. 24, after negotiating contract difficulties with the band.

The group was scheduled to perform in Memorial Auditorium on Sept. 29, until the William Morris Agency, which handles Southside, rescinded the contract offer last week.

According to Rich Neisen, the agent who negotiated the deal between CIC and the William Morris Agency, the show was postponed because Mirage Records said Southside's new Album Trash It Up, was not known well enough yet. Also, the Jukes get paid on a weekly basis and there weren't enough shows for that week. "It was not financially feasible," Neisen said.

John Iannarelli, producer of CIC, said the problem is a result of "lack of communication between William Morris and Dave Sonnenberg, Southside's tour agent." The former agreed to CIC's offer and failed to inform Sonnenberg, according to Iannarelli.

"The worst we could do is file a grievance acknowledging their unprofessionalism," said Neisen.

"Southside has done before and I believe he will continue to do so." He added that Southside's agent says this is part of the "trail of blood Southside has left behind."

The band will appear with accapella group 144 and Great Soul Smithereens, the opening band, complements Southside's music.

CIC recently had contract complications with Billy Idol as well. Idol, scheduled to appear on Oct. 23, had to postpone his tour because his drummer had just been replaced. The concert is now scheduled for Nov. 15.

CIC was planning three shows this semester: Southside, Idol, and The Fixx, but the latter group cancelled all tour dates.

Iannarelli said he hopes the unused money carried over to the spring will obtain larger bands, such as The Pretenders.

Southside Johnny (above) and the Jukes were scheduled to appear tonight at MSC, but will perform on Oct.24 due to contractual difficulties with CIC.

NSJA invited to meet with Kean to discuss possible strike

By Jim Benson

Governor Thomas Kean asked to meet with the N.J. Student Association (NSJA) today at 10:30 a.m. after Bill Solomon, NSJA president, spoke before the Board of Higher Education and sent Kean a letter supporting the council of N.J. State College Locals' decision to strike.

The NSJA, which represents the 80,000 students enrolled in N.J.'s state colleges, announced its support of the union on Sept. 18. Solomon's letter to Kean expressed NSJA's view that the state's current proposal to the union is "adverse and highly counter-productive to higher education."

Solomon said, "The NSJA supports the teachers in their collective bargaining efforts and will support them in the event of a strike."

Solomon said he is pleased with the governor's request and is happy to see Trenton considering student opinions concerning higher education.

According to Solomon, the governor will discuss the possibilities of a teachers' strike. In addition to Kean and Solomon, Cindy Marnori, NSJA's representative to the U.S. Student's Association and Marcoantonio Lacatena, statewide union president, will also attend the meeting.

Computer account thefts still a problem

By Cathy Clarke

The SGA legislature passed a bill during this week's meeting supporting the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) in "their negotiations inclusive of a strike" set for Oct. 4.

Dr. Catherine Becker, president of MSC's faculty union, announced that she will be at the bargaining table in Trenton on Sept. 29 for the first time since Aug. 15. Becker said that if a strike next Tuesday, students will be informed through a flyer which has already been published.

SGA presidents from all state colleges will meet at MSC on Sept. 30 at 4 p.m. to decide whether to support the strike and whether to get a mediator if the strike lasts more than one day. In the case of a strike, Sprague Library and most department offices will be closed.

In other business, Little Falls' Mayor Carmen Celta asked the SGA to adopt a resolution calling upon Governor Kean and state legislators to support the closing of the dump site near Clove Road. The SGA agreed to sign the resolution.

Beginning Oct. 1, all SGA legislators will spend one hour each month working to inform students about the SGA and how it helps the campus community. Students with questions about the SGA, will be welcome to stop by its office in the Student Center Annex, Room 103.

The Riding Club was appropriated $2,400 for their eighth annual riding show, Le Cercle Français and the Spanish Club were collectively appropriated $390 for their trip to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Kennith Ashkin, James Farley and Patty Rosas were appointed as SGA legislators.

Nikki Maul and Nikki Buckland bring British culture to MSC

By Chris Worthington

Life at MSC might seem like old hat to most upperclassmen, but to senior exchange students Nikki Maul and Nikki Buckland, everything is new and exciting. Both women are exchange students from Leeds Polytechnic School. The two students are fine arts majors. In February, Buckland decided to go abroad. She wanted to come to the U.S. for the first time in September. Maul and Buckland have been there several times already. They like everything they saw, particularly the clothes in the shops and the brownstone houses, as well as the culture of the city. Maul's hobbies include all types of art such as abstract painting and papermaking. She also designs and dyes clothes, cycles, and swims. Buckland does all sorts of artwork and designs clothes as well. In addition, she plays bass guitar, dances, and loves to see the city. Both are talented abstract artists and will hold an exhibition of their art on Nov. 19 in the Calca Fine Arts Building. The art work will be on sale. Maul and Buckland said they miss their family and friends in England and are very excited when they get letters from home. They also miss their flats, or apartments, as Americans call them. Both of their flats are in Leeds. Maul lives in a house where she rents a room. In contrast, Buckland has a much larger flat. They are presently living in a small room in Blanton Hall. Both Britshers find MSC students very friendly and enjoy being a novelty. They are making many more friends and have a really good time. But as Buckland said, "It's very sad in a way. We're meeting all these people and making friends, but we'll probably never see them again."

Both women thought they would blend in here at MSC and were disappointed when this was not the case. They find it amusing that so many people want to hear their accents. Their style of dress also makes them stand out. Their clothes are not unusual in England or in New York's Greenwich Village. But here at MSC, they seem punkish, if nothing else.

Buckland has her blonde hair cut short and shaved in a fashion that has only recently become popular in the U.S. She is presently giving haircuts to MSC students for $4 in her dorm room, SD14. Although many Americans think young British people only listen to punk rock, Maul and Buckland like all types of music. They are delighted with American radio, because of the many different stations and the variety of music that is played on FM. In England, there is only one main radio station which does not air 24 hours per day.

The two English students are planning a sorority, Sigma Delta Pi. Because sororities are not a part of British college life, they feel joining one will provide additional perspective into the American social scene.

Buckland chose New York as her favorite part of her experience in the U.S. so far. She likes all aspects of the city because, "You can just walk around and do absolutely nothing and still have a good time."

Police report minor incidents of vandalism and harassment

On Sept. 23, a car belonging to a student was vandalized while it was parked in Lot 24. The rear window was smashed by rocks and the car was also dented. On Sept. 24, a male left from Bohn Hall after he refused to sign in. He was apprehended in Lot 25 and escorted out.

Cooperative education rate is up drastically from last year

This fall, co-op placements are up 150 percent from last year, with students combining learning and earning in jobs related to their major fields.

All schools within the college are represented in co-op. Geography majors will soon be among those who take their classroom knowledge and apply and test it in the working world. Their co-op participation will earn course credit and provide solid experience which will help in getting that first post-graduation job. As more students discover the value of co-op, staff members are working hard to provide an increasing pool of jobs to meet the demand.

With the help of a new marketing program and word of potential employers, students are being contacted to provide job opportunities in banking, newspaper, computer, and advertising, manufacturing and other areas. Organization and other job opportunities provided in the past are being encouraged to expand their involvement.

MSC's co-op enjoys substantial support in the business community. Its highly active advisory council boasts leaders from firms like Prudential, Schering and Ted Bates Advertising among its 20 members. These industry executives volunteer their time to spread the word about the benefits of co-op to their business peers and colleagues. In addition, they provide insight into the corporate mind and contribute concrete suggestions for job development. They're convinced that co-op works. That's no surprise because some of the executives were once co-op students from MSC.

All MSC students are potential co-op participants, either now or at some point in the future. Basic requirements are a 2.25 GPA and the completion of 45 credits, although individual departments do have additional criteria.

The Co-Op Office is located in Room 104 of the student center student center and provides an introductory sound-slide program for students interested in learning more about the program. It can be viewed between 8:30-4:00, Monday-Friday, and 6:30-9:00 p.m., Thursdays, without an appointment.

NJ cutbacks jeopardize the future quality of higher education

Last week the Council of NJ State College Locals voted in favor of a statewide teachers' strike. It’s a decision that has been in the making for a long time. It’s a decision that no doubt makes many people unhappy, but it’s one that had to be made.

New Jersey teachers have been unappreciated and underpaid for too long. Teachers are the backbone of education in any society. They are the ones who guide us from kindergarten to graduate school. They are the ones who ultimately produce business executives, doctors, lawyers, and sometimes Indian chiefs. Yet the teachers stand in the shadows, often less successful than some of their pupils. They often earn less than most of their graduated pupils.

Yes, it’s true that teachers know what they’re getting into when they apply for the job. They know that there’s not much money in the profession. But they take the job because they are dedicated, and believe in the importance of their job.

Now the state is trying to take the few employment benefits they have away from them. The state wants to cut layoff notices from 195 days to 45 days and decrease sabbatical leaves from 160 to 100 days. In addition, the state is considering withholding over $6 million in increment pay increases and plans to use the money for merit raises. Such raises would be “awarded” to teachers at the discretion of the college presidents. A program like this would only promote friction and competition among faculty. It’s almost as if the state were saying, “Now boys and girls, if you get an A on your report card daddy will give you a raise in your allowance.”

Teachers are professionals, and deserve to be treated as professionals. Yes, it would be nice to have a few days off from school if the teachers strike, but it would be even nicer if the teachers could make the state realize it is jeopardizing the future of higher education in New Jersey.

Six 1983 MSC graduates began working at New Jersey Bell as sales representatives this August. The long hiring process, which included passing a written test and role playing a business problem, began with interviews these six students took at Career Services the previous spring.

Beginning on November 1 and almost every day thereafter through mid-December, employers will send representatives to the MSC campus to interview January and May graduates for entry-level positions. This process is called recruitment.

Recruitment activities are a direct reflection of current job trends. As the economic recovery becomes more of a reality, we can expect that more organizations will come to campus seeking our graduates. Employers such as Xerox, Mahne’s Chubb & Son, Bell Labs, Ingersoll-Rand, AT&T Long Lines, Amerada Hess and the Bergen Record are scheduled for visits this fall.

A sample of jobs available include programmer, sales representative, internal auditor, junior accountant, financial analyst, management trainee, and assistant buyer. Some of these employers seek students with specific majors, but others look for those who are capable and have a keen interest in their industry or job title.

Being able to communicate one’s worth to an employer is a key element in obtaining a position. It is important to recognize that employers hire whole people, not just majors.

You are eligible for recruitment if you are a student currently enrolled at MSC, completing your degree in December or May, and are available for employment after graduation. Those interested must be registered with the Career Services Office and should follow the procedures for on-campus interviews. The dates of November on-campus interviews, and information about the requirements of recruiters, are currently available in the Career Services Office. When you come in, ask for the recruitment schedule.

Because these interviews start in November, seniors, whether graduating in January or May, should complete the required forms and provide the office with copies of their resume as soon as possible.

As is the case in all interview situations, preparation is important. To help seniors prepare for these interviews, Career Services offers a series of interviewing and resume writing seminars. It is strongly urged that students attend these sessions prior to signing up for interviews. Students should also study all information that is available about the employer.

The on-campus recruitment program is only one way which is available for seniors to conduct a defensive job search. Employers, such as social service agencies, publishers, public relations firms, environmental groups, museums and organizations for the fine and performing arts, are also recruiting on campuses throughout the country.

These types of organizations do list jobs in nationwide bulletins, which Career Services receives monthly or biweekly. These listings can be found in the Full-time books on the tables in the Career Services Office, Student Center Annex, Room 104.

Sprague Library exhibits artwork in celebration of 75th anniversary

By Lorraine Cangialosi and Kathleen Hughes

In honor of MSC’s 75th anniversary, Sprague Library is presenting a variety of exhibits throughout the school year, and a special exhibit in January. September’s display, “Peak into our Archives,” features a look into the past.

The photographs commemorate the 1965 opening of the library, which opened in 1963.

In October, the library will focus on “Reading: The First ‘R.’,” which will highlight the conference, “Reading: A Tradition for Tomorrow.” The event will celebrate the importance of reading and is being sponsored by the School of Professional Studies.

The School of Fine and Performing Arts will be represented in November by “Dance I,” a survey of this art in all its forms—ballet, modern, folk.

Cooperman proposal has its advantages and disadvantages

The recent proposal introduced by Governor Kean and Saul Cooperman to alter the current teacher certification program is certainly food for thought. Under the new proposal, a potential teacher would only be required to have a bachelor of arts degree, pass a subject matter test and complete a year-long internship. That has many teachers distressed, and rightly so. Current teaching requirements include a college degree, field experience and mandatory courses such as effective teaching studies, development, reading, and educational psychology.

The college degree and field experience are the basics necessary for the job. But perhaps the most important and useful to prospective teachers are the educational courses. To get in front of a class of 30 students without psychologically understanding them could be a disaster for the teacher, and more importantly the students. The effective teaching and educational psychology courses are designed to make prospective teachers aware of the 'brains' of teaching. They are designed so that teachers can better understand their students and their learning habits.

Teaching is a skill. It is the ability to transfer information from one individual to a group clearly and effectively. Some people can do that naturally, but most have to learn it. Allowing anyone with an undergraduate degree after a test and an internship is like letting everyone with the same requirements become an engineer, chemist, or nurse.

But the positive points of this proposal must be ignored. Raising teachers' salaries to $18,500 is certainly a smart move. More college students will consider entering the teaching profession, not only for the pay, but because the requirements are not as stringent. And after a one year internship, these students will know whether or not they've picked the right profession after all, who in their right mind would put up with hyperactive adolescents seven hours a day, if they didn't really love doing it?

degree to teach after a test and an internship is like letting everyone with the same requirements become an engineer, chemist, or nurse.

But the positive points of this proposal must be ignored. Raising teachers' salaries to $18,500 is certainly a smart move. More college students will consider entering the teaching profession, not only for the pay, but because the requirements are not as stringent. And after a one year internship, these students will know whether or not they've picked the right profession after all, who in their right mind would put up with hyperactive adolescents seven hours a day, if they didn't really love doing it?

Laslo's not for Hispanics only

By Tomasina Jimenez, LASO president

Last semester, one of my classmates needed to borrow my notes, so I told her to stop by the LASO office to copy them. She asked me whether the LASO members would mind a non-Hispanic in the office. This semester, at the SSA Activities Fair, I overheard a student ask someone about LASO, and he was told that LASO is for Hispanics only. But nothing is further from the truth.

LASO (Latin American Student Organization, Class of SGA) is an organization dedicated to showing Hispanics influences in art, music, and literature. We also try to show the position of Hispanics in educational and political areas as well. We do this by sponsoring movies, lectures, dances, plays and trips to performances in New York City.

Last year, for example, we showed a film entitled "Super," concerning the difficulties of a Hispanic family's assimilation into American culture. We also had Herman Badillo, former Attorney General of New York, speak about various political and contemporary issues. Additionally, we had (and still do have) an excellent theater group known as Rapsos, which is composed of LASO members who demonstrate an ability or interest in acting or directing.

After much deliberation and careful thought in choosing a name for my column, I chose "Thoughts of Conscience." Before I finalized my decision, I asked friends how they thought it sounded; most were receptive to the name and voiced their approval. Of course there are always those who will disagree with disagreements.

I was a bit hesitant using this name, I did not want to sound pompous, egotistic or the like. I chose this name because I feel that is how I write. I feel what I write comes truly from thoughts of conscience, what I see as right and wrong.

Thinking more on the "Korean Tregy" I began to see a different angle covered by all its publicity. Ever since the beginning of Sept., KAL flight 007 has been the dominant news story in the media, print and non-print alike.

Time and time again I have seen this happen, just as one issue heats up, the focus is neatly shifted to another. Recently (within the past year and a half) the emphasis was shifted from El Salvador to the Nuclear Freeze movement. The "freeze" was foreshadowed for the Israeli invasion of Lebanon, which was replaced by U.S. covert aid to help overthrow the Sandinistas in Nicaragua. From Nicaragua we were back in Lebanon looking at the expanded role of the U.S. Marines.

Luckily for the Reagan administration the fervor from the KAL incident has generated such intense anti-Soviet emotions, the permission for the peace keeping Marines in Lebanon to shoot back and call in air strikes in support of the Lebanese army has generally been overlooked by the public.

Of all the faults our media has, things of this nature are their worst. I can understand covering the latest "hot" news story, but in a nation such as ours should it not be one of the goals of our media to help us uncover injustice, protect freedom and the "rights" of others? Or is that asking them for too much to lose their objectivity, stop thinking of profits and start taking a real look at the world?

If America is truly the watchdog of freedom, why then as a nation are we not concerned with the racism in South Africa, the political murder in the Philippines, the sovereignty of Nicaragua, the plight of El Salvador or the war in Lebanon? The U.S. is so close to getting caught in a war in Lebanon that it scares me.

If MSC's teachers should strike on October 4, will you cross their picket line to attend any classes you might still have?

Yes, I would rather keep up with my school work. If the teacher is going through all that trouble to get to class, so will I.

Michelle Phillips
Sophomore/undeclared

Although I sympathize with their position and agree that they are entitled to what they are asking for, I would still attend class.

Rob Cartagena
Senior/economics

I sympathize with the teachers, but I would still go to class because I am a graduating senior, and I have paid for my classes. It is unfortunate that we have to be the innocent victims of a possible strike.

Debbie Holland
Senior/marketing management

Yes, if the teachers have enough nerve to cross the line knowing that their peers and union are against them, they must be dedicated. That dedication deserves the same from the students.

To the editor:

This is in response to The Montclarion's coverage of last week's protests against the proposed re-opening of the garbage dump near Clove Rd. There are several points which need to be clarified or added to make this important story complete.

The article implies that there were 150 of us there on all three days (Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday). This is true of Monday only. On Tuesday, it dropped to a scattered group of about 35. However, increased awareness and the premise of dump trucks brought our numbers up to 300 on Wednesday.

Another ambiguous item concerns the dump's clay lining. Although the MSC administration has given up in the courts, the entire site must be lined before it can be re-opened. As of Sept. 19, only half an acre, out of 7.9 acres had been lined. Little Falls officials have been denied access to inspect progress of the lining operation. The Montclarion article states only that "opponents claim it (the clay lining) is inadequate to prevent seepage into local water supplies."

The "local water supplies" are the head waters of Pearl Brook, which flows through a wildlife preserve in Montclair. Montclair's Mountainside Hospital draws part of its water supply from Pearl Brook.

The original contract, signed in 1972 (not 1975), called for the dumping of household garbage only. But it was terminated in 1975, when it was found that the Carrino Contracting and Trucking Co. was dumping dead animals, sewage sludge and agricultural wastes (pesticides?) on the site. This led to the site being declared toxic by the EPA. Not toxic enough to qualify for Superfund money, but toxic nonetheless. The termination also led to the just-ended eight-year court battle between MSC and Carrino.

Another point of contention is the bridge leading to the dump site. This narrow bridge is already congested at times. Mayor Gaeta of Little Falls is currently looking into its design specifications to find out if it can withstand the additional strain of 50 to 100 garbage trucks per day.

Carrino stands to make a lot of money from haulers dumping on his (our) property—certainly more than the cost of the athletic field which we are host to "between 50 to 100 trucks" per day, Monday through Saturday. These trucks will be delivering "household, commercial, industrial and institutional" garbage to the middle of the campus.

Please say it isn't so. Dust, noise, traffic congestion, rats, smell. And last, but not least, the image of MSC sitting on the top of a huge pile of garbage. How are we going to attract students with an image like this? How are we going to keep the ones we have? Years after the athletic field is completed and forgotten, this image will remain.

Garbage at MSC... it is disgusting.

MSC students speak out against Carrino's dump

To the editor:

I'm a transfer student from William Peterson College. I transferred to MSC for many reasons, most of them academic.

One reason I didn't transfer for, but saw it when I arrived, was the beauty of MSC's campus. The grounds around MSC's buildings seem like wide open space that gives me such a free feeling. I live in the Clove Road apartments, and at night, when I look out of my window, I can see all the lights from the campus and the open field around the parking lot.

I read the other day that they were going to put a garbage dump right in the middle of my view. I don't want to look out my window and see a garbage dump, nor do I want to open my window for fresh air and smell garbage. As a resident of Clove Road, I don't think it's fair that I might have to.

I think this garbage dump is going to take away from the beauty of the campus. In the future, freshmen and transfer students will think about rats walking around campus, and may decide to go somewhere else.

I'd hate for people to think of MSC as "The college with the garbage dump on it." If they allow garbage to be dumped on MSC, it will not only ruin the beauty of the school, but the name and accreditation as well.

Justice, freedom and civil rights are to anti-Sandinista rebels. But unfortunately the Reagan administration is fighting their every step. This administration's contempt for justice, freedom and civil rights are evident in its policies toward Nicaragua, El Salvador and the Philippines. Their contempt for the wishes of the majority of the American people is shown in their stance on nuclear arms reduction. Their contempt for women, minorities and the less fortunate is prevalent not only in their cut backs of social programs, but embodied in cabinet member James Watt and their refusal to fire him.

It's time to wake up America! Our greatest threat comes not from nuclear power, a nuclear war or Communism, but from Ronald Wilson Reagan. The 1984 election is still more than a year away. And in that year Reagan will behave himself and do his best to help America forget these past three years. Hopefully America will remember, if they don't I can't help thinking that Lebanon will be Arabic for "Vietnam with a desert."

Letters

To the editor:

This letter is in response to the article referring to the Harvey Jett concert. (The Montclarion, Sept 22.) After reading the article twice (the first time through I was in shock), I decided to write and try to clarify a few things.

It was not so much the writer's opinion of Harvey Jett, but his portrait of today's Christian believers that surprised me. Christians came across as a group of over-zealous, commercialized, gimmick-using, bunch of loudmouths, attaching the name Jesus to everything like a cheap jingle. The love of the Christian message is receiving life through Christ's death, there was nothing cheap about that. Christianity is often portrayed as a circumspect, pie-in-the-sky, unethical religion.

However, the very fabric of our society is woven with Christian principles. No other person has affected history (and the entire world) as much as Jesus Christ. This year of 1983 has been proclaimed as "The Year of The Bible" by President Reagan. Our president is urging every citizen to take time out to read the book that has changed more lives and given hope to more people than any other book in existence in the Bible.

The money we use has the inscription "In God We Trust," the very essence of Christianity. Any honest and rational person who looks at the world's situation has to admit it's not getting better. As a matter of fact it's getting worse. Have the great philosophical, political, and scientific minds of our day considered 2 Chronicles 7:14?

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

Cooperman proposal not popular with MSC teachers

Cooperman proposal, a starting salary of $18,500 would be offered. Any incumbent teacher would have to pass a subject matter test in order to raise their salary to $18,500.

Becker said the present form of the new proposal does not mention salary raises for incumbent teachers. If the proposal does not become a policy.

Necessity of college radio grows as commercial stations go top-40

By CC Ryder

If you listen to any of the three most popular progressive, rock, FM radio stations in the NY area (NEW, WAPP, or WFMU), you could hardly go to the radio and watch by which songs are playing. Day after day, the same basic top ten hits move up and down on the dial. Again, and the D.J. says he or she is playing fewer commercials and more music, yet there seems to be no escaping the dial-across-the-blackboard voice of Crazy Eddie. But if you listen to any of the college radio stations in the area, WFMU, WMSC-FM, you'll find a song you probably haven't heard on any commercial station. You'll also find a radio personality and over-all ability to provide an entertaining atmosphere. Those days seem to be over.

And the D.J. says he or she is playing fewer commercials and more music, yet there seems to be no escaping the dial-across-the-blackboard voice of Crazy Eddie.

Meanwhile, college radio has never been hotter. (It is discovering and premiering such artists as Thomas Dolby and Juluka, who commercial radio claims to be its found treasure.) College radio is playing more than the top forty hits; it's playing all kinds of music and doing it well. Frustrated listeners of commercial radio are tuning in to college radio for a fresh approach to music and that audience is growing fast past college campuses. Those days seem to be over.

But one rule that college radio has some leeway with, more so than commercial radio stations, is censorship. There are college stations playing songs that wouldn't be allowed on commercial radio. In fact, there's a whole area of music that goes unacknowledged by all commercial radio stations in this area—Hard Core. This area of music has been considered by some critics, and the public as well, as offensive and violent. Maybe it is, but there are a lot of people who like Hard Core music, and most of all, who want to hear it on the radio. College radio gives them that opportunity.

It's obvious that college radio is worth your ears' attention. A listener can get a full day of air time, diverse music, no commercials, informative news and, many times, ticket give-aways, all within a professional environment. We at WMSC-FM are preparing for a frequency change that will move us up to the dial to 101.5. We have upgraded our level of quality and professionalism, and although there are still some road-blocks, we are gaining a long-awaited popularity. If commercial radio continues to take college radio as a harmless contender, they are setting themselves up for quite a surprise.

But there is a time not too long ago, those days seem to be over.

And the D.J. says he or she is playing fewer commercials and more music, yet there seems to be no escaping the dial-across-the-blackboard voice of Crazy Eddie.

Tennis team crushes Rutgers in second match of the season

By Patty Flynn

The MSC women's tennis team played a tremendous match last Saturday, giving up only one point to destroy Rutgers-Camden 8-1.

A closer look at the individual match scores shows how easily the Indians took the win. First singles, Pat Lassen, pushed her opponent off the court, taking the two sets 6-1, 6-0. Second singles was MSC's sole loss when Ellen Sposa gave up her match 2-6, 4-6. Third singles Karen Canino had a clean sweep with the match going 6-3, 6-2 but the most impressive wins for MSC came in the fourth, fifth and sixth singles, and third doubles when each match was taken 6-0, 6-0. Amber Smith, Kelly Carroll and Adrea Crazetta were responsible for the singles victories while the partnership of Geri Hogan and Patty Flynn picked up the doubles win.

First doubles, Amber Smith and Pat Lassen, took an easy victory, 6-1, 6-2. Eileen McNeil and Madeline Swiss got in their first match-play of the season, teaming up as MSC's second doubles pair for a 6-2, 6-4 win.

Field hockey team goes into OT to defeat Bridgeport

The women's field hockey team won their first game of the season in overtime play against the University of Bridgeport, last Thursday.

Both teams were scoreless through both halves despite the Indians' 25 shots on goal, sending the game into overtime. After nine minutes of play, MSC's Jeannie Brown broke the tie with an assist by Mary Zoeller. Goalkeeper Lisa Flynn had 10 saves for the day.

On Tuesday the Indians again faced a 0-0 tie at the end of regulation play that sent them into double overtime against Kings College. Neither team scored during overtime, therefore the tie was left 0-0 due to the conference ruling that no more than two ten-minute overtime periods will follow regulation play except in tournaments.

A real heartbreak came earlier in the game when a goal was recalled due to a technicality called by the officials. Coach Lynn Centonze said, "That was a real heartbreak for us but the team is getting there this season. They really started to pull together as a team during the second half but it was too late for them to get moving."

The Indians are now 1-4-1 and face Kean College this afternoon at Kean.
