Tentative agreement averts teachers' strike

By David S. Tomeo

In a last minute bargaining session, the council of New Jersey State College Locals and the State Board of Higher Education reached a tentative agreement on Oct. 3 which averted a walkout by all of New Jersey's state college teachers, set for originally for Tuesday, Oct. 4.

"The council merely recommended that the agreement be approved," Dr. Thunder Haas, MSC's strike coordinators, said. However, MSC faculty union members, who have the final say on whether the contract is eventually approved, "The council will meet on October 7," Haas said, "to set a date for the rank and file to vote on the pact."

The new contract, which runs for the next three years, is a compromise between the board and the faculty. Among the highlights of the agreement are the preservation of the 195-day layoff notice period.

Another major portion of the contract, the salary agreement, calls for the continuation of the basic increment pay, which received after the teacher achieves the next step in his rank. Added to the increment pay is three percent of the teacher's current pay, to be added each semester starting in January 1984.

Add to the increment pay is three percent of the teacher's current pay, to be added each semester starting in January 1984.

Also being continued is the merit pay system, in which the administration can award extra pay to outstanding teachers. The union said the merit pay system is not adequate and wanted a promotion system in which reward would be bestowed upon a teacher after a more thorough and complete review of the professor by many sources.

Also preserved in the new agreement is the present sabbatical of 160 days, and added to it is a retraining sabbatical in which a professor can retrain in a new or related field.

"One feature of the contract which the union is very unhappy with," Haas said, "is a salary rollback in which the governor of New Jersey can, in a proven time of fiscal crisis, roll back the teachers' salaries by three percent, which must eventually be repaid."

Haas said although the council has recommended the contract, it has not as yet been approved by the faculty members, who have the final say on whether the contract is eventually approved. "The council will meet on October 7," Haas said, "to set a date for the rank and file to vote on the pact."

The council expects the pact to be ratified by the faculty," Haas said. "It is the best package possible, considering the circumstances, and it is basically satisfactory to our needs and wants," he said.

Ficerai is elected new SGA treasurer

By Thomas Daning

After four months, the vacant position of SGA treasurer will be filled by Sandy Ficerai, a senior finance major, who defeated Tracey Lacovelli 161 to 68 in a special SGA election held this week.

Despina Katris, SGA president said, "She is optimistic about the outcome. "I am looking forward to a very productive year. Sandy's new at this, but we'll be there to help her along," Katris said.

After the SGA executive elections held last May, Howard Leon, a sophomore broadcasting major, was voted in through a write-in ballot and sworn in as treasurer. At the time of the elections, Leon had above the required grade point average, Leon's GPA, which did not include two coursework choices. As treasurer, Ficerai will also work with SGA investments, budgets and spending.

"This is just the thing I hope to be doing in my career. It's good practice and a nice feature to have on my resume," Ficerai said.

Former treasurer-elect Leon is considering taking legal action against the SGA. He is presently awaiting a letter from the college which will provide a detailed account of what transpired, before taking any action.

MSC faculty questions the reappointment of Gimbrere

By Eileen Oleksiak

MSC faculty is questioning the reappointment of Dr. Rene Gimbrere to the position of associate vice president of academic affairs at last week's affirmative action meeting.

Although teachers and administration discussed the issue at this month's board of trustees and faculty senate meetings, they presented written grievances at the first affirmative action meeting of the school year last week.

In a letter to the president's commission on affirmative action, Anita Uhia, president of the Hispanic caucus, said the "appointment contradicts affirmative action guidelines and procedures, as established by the college in an announced policy statement."

Uhia said she has a great respect for Gimbrere but stressed that the faculty has a duty to take action when they perceive that something is not right.

Faculty representatives of the 1982 search committee asked Dr. David W. Dickson, president of the college, and the MSC board of trustees, "to rescind the appointment of Dr. Rene Gimbrere to the position of assistant to the president, and to provide for access and opportunity in accordance with Federal and state legislation relative to equal opportunity."

Dickson, present at last week's meeting, said the college initially froze the position because of "budgetary constraints." Dickson then decided to transfer Gimbrere who was serving as Dickson's assistant, to the office of Dr. Roland Garrett, vice president of academic affairs.

Dickson said he made the transfer in an effort to help Garrett handle an "increasingly difficult" workload. Gimbrere would also retain most of his old duties as assistant to the president.

Uhia said the move is not only a transfer but a promotion because Gimbrere received a salary increase.

According to Dickson, however, the salary increase is "moderate" and costs the college much less than it would to hire an additional employee at $50,000 a year.

In addition, Uhia said, money had been allocated by the state and had been available in the spring of '81 and '82. Thus two full searches were conducted at these times.

Uhia, who took part in the '82 search, said the committee spent "an enormous amount of time" interviewing individuals for the job. She said the committee recommended four people, and three women headed the list as best choices, yet these suggestions were unsatisfactory to the president's office. Thus the position remained unoccupied.

Uhia said the committee was assured the position would not be filled without another search. Garrett made this guarantee at a meeting in June of '82.

Three grievances filed against appointment of Gimbrere

By Kathy Gilligan

Three written grievances concerning Dr. Rene Gimbrere's appointment as the director of the English Language Center were presented to the affirmative action committee last week.

Dr. Gimbrere was recently invited to lecture in the fall of 1982 in Budapest, spoke about the life of gypsy musicians in Hungary. Today, he is internationally known books: Die Völker- und Gitarrenmusik, Budapest, 1978. His dissertation contrived to cover-up the creation of a new administrative reorganization and transfer. But, as easily as they can suffer, gypsies can suddenly change their tune on the appointment was unfair.

Dr. David W.D. Dickson, president of the Hispanic Caucus representative of the American Federation of Teachers agreed that the appointment was unfair. Dr. Dickson, president of the college, opened the meeting with a congratulatory speech concerning the success of the committee. He also discussed the Gimbrere appointment. Citing fiscal problems as a major consideration in the decision making process, Dickson described the appointment as an administrative reorganization and transfer.

During the open discussion, Barbara Chasin, professor of speech and AFT union representative, claimed that the administration was involved in a "juggling of words." Chasin charged that "reorganization and transfer" is terminology contrived to cover-up the creation of a new position without an affirmative action search.

EOF or STP guidelines for affirmative action search. The representative of the Hispanic Caucus pointed out that recommendations of the search committee were ignored, thereby removing two competent women from consideration. The discussion ended when a motion was passed to form an ad hoc committee to investigate this issue.

In other business, Rosie Noble, director of the Health Careers Program, announced the receipt of a $220,999 grant from the human services department of the federal government. Aimed at meeting the needs of disadvantaged students, the grant provides funds for the Health Careers Opportunity Program which is the umbrella of the MSC funded Health Careers Program.

According to Noble, the federally funded grant received Sept. 1, will double the number of EOF and STP Tutorial Program students from 20 to 40 per class. Students matriculated into this program must meet either prerequisite of the Women's Center, was voted in for a second non consecutive term. He served a year and a half on the first committee when it began in 1974.

Jose Magdalene was elected vice president of the committee. A new constitution was adopted by the committee. The committee allowed for 10 at-large members, but the number of minority faculty is too exclusionary and he would prefer 15 at-large members. An amendment to remove the at-large member at the next meeting, October 20.

Dr. Roland Barrett, vice president for academic affairs, delivered an evaluation of the faculty improvement process over the past two years. The goal of the improvement process was to increase the number of blacks and Hispanics on the faculty. Dr. Clarke said a second black and Hispanic faculty members on tenure track in the fall of 1982. FivePositions were at high attrition, leaving only two new minority faculty members on campus. In contrast, however, the gain achieved in 1983, of new minority faculty members, all on tenure track with an attrition of only one.

An armed robbery caused security to be increased in Hall

By Mark Hatfield

The front desk in Stone Hall is unattended between the hours of midnight and 3 p.m. But Dr. Raymond Stover, dean of housing asked that security be increased due to a recent armed robbery in the dorm.

"I don't think it's fair that Webster doesn't receive the same attention the bigger dorms receive," Laura Paulus, a Webster hall desk assistant, said. "I would like to see the girls of Webster protected 24 hours a day."

Jim Teen, the president of Stone Hall, added that, "Stone Hall is a big family. Everyone here chooses to be here and watches out for our friends. If I put a guard behind the desk at midnight it would be a good idea."

According to Zena Gallaway, director of Stone Hall, the financial aid department has allocated money which will be used to hire four or five additional desk assistants. The increased coverage will take place in the morning hours.

Presently, however, the security desks in Freeman and Stone Halls are unattended between the hours of midnight and 3 a.m. In the Freeman desk is unattended from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Every desk attendant has a key. The exception of Bohn and Blanton, are locked between midnight and 8 a.m. All residents have a key.

Stover said, "The residents of the smaller, less populated front desk doesn't belong as the semester progresses."

"Gypsies like to suffer as they sing. But, as easily as they can suffer, gypsies can suddenly change their tune and become happy and start dancing." Dr. Babri Sarosi said during a lecture of gypsy folk music sponsored by the anthropology club and department recently.

Sarosi, the director of instrumental folk music at the Institute of Musicology in Budapest, spoke about the life of gypsy musicians in Hungary. "The songs of gypsies cry out for attention," Sarosi said. "The songs of gypsies are not logical. One line is about one thing and another line is about something else. The connection in songs is one of emotions, not words."

"Gypsy music elicits strong human feelings, contact with people is important. Thus, gypsies, when performing in public, never have written music in front of them. They must remember the tunes," Sarosi said.

Sarosi provided some historical background on the gypsy tribes in Hungary. Originally from Romania and the Balkans, gypsies migrated to western Europe in the 15th century as beggars and as "peaceful barbarians." In order to make a living, many become fortunetellers, musicians and thieves.

The European people believed gypsies are descendants of the biblical Hebrew, "mixed bloods." Sarosi invited to lecture in every country, as well as in the Soviet Union, Ireland, Japan, Israel, Ethiopia, Ghana, and the U.S. for an average of 200 students a day. He also had one audience in Ethiopia, "mixed bloods." Sarosi invited to lecture in every country, as well as in the Soviet Union, Ireland, Japan, Israel, Ethiopia, Ghana, and the U.S.

The front desk in Stone Hall is unattended between the hours of midnight and 3 p.m. But Dr. Raymond Stover, dean of housing asked that security be increased due to a recent armed robbery in the dorm.

According to Mrs. Lucy Neebey, secretary of the housing department, all dorm residents pay the same amount of rent.

"The girl's of Webster have key cards to open the front door from midnight to 8 a.m.," said, "Stone Hall is like a big family. Everyone here chooses to be here and watches out for our friends. If I put a guard behind the desk at midnight it would be a good idea."

According to Tim Teen, the president of Freeman hall, the desk assistant calls the resident to the front desk. The resident must escort the visitor through the dorm. If the front desk is unattended, a visitor can enter at will.

Carolly Busch, a Bohn Hall R.A., said, "I think what happened at Stone can happen anywhere, but I doubt that it could happen here."

Study abroad program offers trips to China, Italy and Spain

By Chris Worthington

“All the world is not America,” Ellen Mohammed, professor in the fine arts department, said at an open house for students abroad in the student center last week. Studying abroad will give students an “international outlook on life,” Mohammed said. MSC students, through the office of intra-collegiate academic programs, can travel to places such as China, Italy and Spain during the winter and spring semesters.

At the open house, Dr. John Hwang, a professor in the Spanish-Italian department, showed slides of his trip during the last winter session. He went to Pompeii, Rome and Madrid, among other famous cities of Italy and Spain. This coming winter session, Hwang will host a trip to Spain, where students will visit such places as Malaga, Sevilla and Madrid.

Dr. Vincenzo Bolletino, professor in the Spanish-Italian department, will take a group of students to Italy. There, they will see Rome, Florence, Capri, and other famous Italian cities. Mohammed will conduct a trip to China, which will feature visits to the Great Wall, Beijing, Xian, Shanghai, Hong Kong, and Bangkok.

Other winter session classes will go to Argentina with Dr. Ana Rambaldo of the Spanish-Italian department, and to England and France with Dr. Jack Sacher of the music department. The trip’s price tags will range from $1809 to $2,650.

Mohammed said, “The students learn so much in a little while. They recognize the difference in the education of students in other countries.” She said that foreign students, as a rule, learn more languages, fine arts and world history compared to American students.

Mohammed also said, “The students are so different when they come back. It gives them a desire to know more languages and history. They will go out and pursue greater knowledge of these.” Some students have gone on three or four trips because they desire to learn more about the world’s many diverse cultures.

MSC also offers study abroad programs during the 1984 spring semester. Students have the option of going to Denmark, Israel or Australia.

In Denmark, the students will attend the University of Copenhagen. The courses will be taught in English by Danish professors. Students can either live with a Danish family or in a dorm.

Students attending the University of Tel Aviv in Israel will also be instructed in English.

Mininberg says dump site will open when regulations are met

By Mark Hatfield

Sandy Pecora was sworn in as the new SGA treasurer during the SGA meeting held this week. Her opponent, Tracey Lecovelli, received 68 votes. Pecora won with 161 votes.

In other business, Dr. Elliot Mininberg, vice president for administration and finance, said the dump will open once Carrino meets the conditions specified by the contract. According to Mininberg, the protective clay lining has not been inspected or approved. In addition, test wells must be dug to ensure that the ground will not be contaminated by sanitary waste.

Mininberg said it is estimated that the dump will be filled to capacity in four months. However, the contract allows two years to completely fill the dump.

Dr. Jean M. Armstrong, vice president of student affairs, said the majority of faculty members are in favor of a two day-a-week, 75-minute class schedule. The new model, if passed, will be implemented in the fall semester of ’84. Armstrong said, “MSC is one of the last state colleges to adopt the 75-minute class plan.”

In other news, the SGA passed a bill asking the SGA attorney to offer legal advice on whether the executive officers should be given free housing and tuition during the summer session.

The public relations committee submitted a budget for the SGA asking for $3,500 appropriation from the unappropriated surplus budget. According to Wendy Shultz, director of public relations, the surplus budget is one of the three budgets the SGA operates on. The surplus budget absorbs additional Class I, Class II, and operational budget costs.

John LaBasso, a Rathsk. — employee, asked Mininberg about the possibility of reassessing the pub’s occupancy limit. LaBasso said the Rathsk. could be making more profit, which in turn would reduce Student Center fees.

According to Mininberg, the present occupancy limit is 330 persons. Mininberg said, “The main object of the Student Center is to provide a service to the students. The profit is a byproduct.” The following people were elected as freshman representatives to the SGA legislature: Darren K. Abe, Tarenda Bratcher, Carl Qark, Rosa Giolallo, Joseph Kane and Keith P. Roachford.

Equal Opportunity Employer M/F
Bill Solomon rallies for student rights throughout New Jersey

By Pat DiFulco
— STUDENT SPOTLIGHT -----------------

Bill Solomon

As I was sitting in the SGA office last Friday waiting for Bill Solomon, I tried to imagine what he looked like. I pictured a very professional looking, sophisticated man. When he arrived, I was a bit surprised. He looked just like every other student walking the MSC campus.

For those who don't know him, Bill is the president of the New Jersey Student Association (NJSA). He represents roughly 80,000 students in the eight state colleges. The NJSA lobbies for student's rights, and works towards improving higher education.

Bill is the first NJSA president from MSC in ten years. The last president from MSC was Angelo Genova, currently the SGA attorney.

Bill and his wife have been a resident of Montclair. He graduated from Verona High School in 1974, and got into the fast food industry. After "quite a while", Bill left Burger King to go back to school.

Bill is a natural-born leader. He was elected vice president, treasurer, and finally president.

Bill commented on what inspired him to run for president, "N.J. has the second highest income per capita, yet we're next to last in funding higher education."

Today, Bill is trying to do something about that. But some problems still stand in his way. "Apathy is the toughest thing to overcome. We must convince the students throughout the state that voting is important. Being a student is a time when we have the freedom to express an unlimited amount of creativity and new ideas, and make them a part of our future," Bill said.

What would Bill want to be remembered for after it's all been said and done? "I'd like to remembered as one who made people think and changed things for the better, while helping create change for the benefit of mankind." Good luck, Bill!

Bomb threats and false alarms more frequent

By Dan Johnson

A series of bomb threats and false fire alarms headed the campus police report last week. Students were forced to evacuate dorms and classes and the campus police was called out several times in the late night and mid-morning hours to investigate the threats and false alarms.

The callers threatened Bohm, Blanton and Richardson Halls on Friday, Sept. 29, and another call threatened Webster Hall on Sunday, Oct. 1.

After the first threat, received at approximately 1 a.m., in which the caller claimed there was a bomb on the 12th floor of Bohm Hall, the dorm was evacuated.

A police search turned up nothing. The second call, received at 2:50 a.m., claimed there was a bomb on the fourth floor of Blanton Hall, Again the building was evacuated, and no bomb was discovered.

The calls made Sunday at 9:10 a.m. concerning Richardson Hall and at 3:30 a.m. threatening Webster hall were also prank. Although the police are still investigating the sources of the threats, they strongly suspect there were more than two different callers.

On Sept. 26, a fire alarm was set off at 12:03 p.m. in Stone Hall, and false alarms were again set off on Sept. 28 at 9:20 p.m. in Blanton Hall and October 1 at 10:45 in Partridge Hall.

MSC’s department of economics is sponsoring a free retrospective film series this fall, The New Deal—50 Years After, to help celebrate the college’s 75th anniversary. All films in the series will be presented in Russ Hall’s Kops Lounge at 7:30 p.m.

On Wednesday, Oct. 12, Black Fury (Warner Brothers, 1935) featuring Paul Muni, will be shown. Daniel Leab, editor of The New Republic, will speak Oct. 25 at MSC on “Law in the 21st Century.” The address will begin at 8 p.m. in Ballroom A of the Student Center.

Also, the Pre-Law Society and the SGA will co-sponsor Law School Admissions Day on Oct. 26. During the day, students will be able to meet with admissions officers representing law schools from throughout the nation.

The co-chairs of the day are Dr. Harry Balfe, pre-law advisor, and Dr. Marilyn Frankenthal, pre-law studies coordinator.

The event will be held in Student Center Ballrooms A, Band C, and all are welcome to both events with no admission charge.
Teachers and state seek a compromise to avoid a strike

It is unfortunate that New Jersey state teachers must threaten to strike to get what they deserve. It is fortunate that the state finally realized they can’t ignore the situation any longer, even if they waited until the last minute to get to the bargaining table.

The agreement which was reached between the teachers and the state is not outstanding, but it is a reasonable compromise. The new three-year contract calls for the preservation of the 195-day layoff notice, increment pay and a three percent salary increase each semester, beginning in January 1984. In addition to these, the 160-day sabbatical has also been preserved.

While the teachers have made some ground, the contract also includes a salary rollback in which the governor can cut teachers’ salaries by three percent in a fiscal crisis. However, this cut must be repaid when funds become available to the state.

New Jersey teachers have toughened their stance with the state and set their demands. The state has respected them this time. Hopefully they will in the future.

Recently I was dismayed by an armed robbery in Stone Hall, mainly because the two robbers were allowed to walk past an empty Stone Hall “security” desk around 11:30 a.m. At first I figured maybe someone slipped up and went to the bathroom while the robbers entered. But to my surprise, there is no screening of visitors at Stone, Freeman or Webster Halls during the hours of 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

On the other hand, Bohn and Blanton Halls have around the clock security working at their front desks in the form of either a paid student, or campus security. Stone and Freeman Halls only have someone working the front desk from 3 p.m. to midnight and the front doors of the dorms are locked from midnight to 8 a.m. Webster has someone working the desk from 3 p.m. to 8 a.m.

Why is there not uniform security for all the dorms? (This excludes the Cove Road apartments since they are not dorms but separate apartments). All dorm residents pay the same amount of residence fees, so why do they not receive the same protection? Dr. Raymond Stover, dean of housing, feels that the large amount of residence students at Bohn and Blanton require the type of security they receive. But, how can it be justified to protect the many and not the few?

Criminals are not stupid. If someone is planning to rob a house, they will most likely rob it when it is unoccupied, because there is no fear of confrontation. This holds true in the dorms. A criminal is more likely to rob a dorm if it is not confronted as he enters. Somehow I feel a sign asking visitors to sign in, as is the case in Webster, is not a deterrent to crime. A criminal will commit a crime if he has the opportunity to. I feel this is one of the major problems in crime prevention, the criminals have just too many opportunities to strike. Now, I am not saying we should hide in our rooms, but shouldn’t basic steps be taken to prevent crime, such as screening all visitors in the dorms 24 hours a day?

Stover is quoted as saying, “At the smaller dorms the residents recognize who does and doesn’t belong as the semester progresses.” So what if students recognize who belongs. Do you really think students will stop and question everyone who doesn’t look familiar? It is a fantasy to believe that. It’s nice to hope people will take an interest in preventing crimes, but somehow I doubt it. Stover said “as the semester progresses”, need I remind you the armed robbery took place the first week of school?

Now there are some positive points on the issue of dorm security. Freeman has desk screening for the first time this year, but it is not continuous. Stover has also asked the director of Stone Hall to increase the front desk coverage, but it will be financial aid’s decision that will determine how much of an increase there will be in desk coverage.

There has been improvement, but more must be done. The security at Blanton and Bohn is good, but why is it not in the other dorms? There can be no reason to justify this. We need a uniform system of visitor screening and dorm security.

We here at MSC have been forewarned. The armed robbery at Stone has shown us that we need to increase our security. The present system at Freeman, Webster and Stone is not good enough.

Now I know Dr. Dickson does not have a money tree outside College Hall, but we must find a way to increase security. It is unfortunate that the student who was robbed at gunpoint was not injured. He could have easily been murdered. It is now in the hands of the administration, I only hope they care enough to act on it now and not let it sit on someone’s desk until something tragic happens.

Fraternity’s antics insult GALA at SGA Information Day

To the editor:

After attending the SGA Information Day festivities on Sept. 28th, I have a few comments which I feel should be aired! First of all, there seemed to be adequate preparation for this day, not only in the lines of advertisement, but also by the groups themselves. Food and juice were supplied, as well as many volunteers to run the concession stand. I think we owe Wendy Shultz and MSC an extremely large gay population. Whether you want to acknowledge this or not is your business, but at the same time you should keep in mind that: “We are everywhere” and will not be oppressed. I thought this was made adequately enough last year.

I am writing on behalf of the Gay And Lesbian Alliance (GALA) of MSC, a Class II Organization of the SGA. Our organization, which began in the spring semester of 1983, is small but growing. We are an outreach group which tries to help the gay men and lesbians of this campus community by offering them support as well as ongoing discusssions and social events. As with all Class II’s, we operate on monies raised through fund-raising activities and special appropriations by the SGA for programs deemed “educational.”

To the editor:

I am writing in regard to the lack of support of the performing arts department at MSC. There are many very talented artists at this school and it seems to me that the students are not aware of this fact.

If these antagonists object to our organization so strongly, why do they not have the courage to publicly say so? We at least have had the courage to come out on campus, to say we are gay and we are here. Our weekly meetings are open to everyone—let them raise their dispute with us directly.

Our aim in advertising is to recruit new members for our group. We are not trying to recruit any new homosexuals. We do not have to. Homosexuals always have been and will always continue to be. It is not something one becomes through any amount of coercion, rather it is a realization by the individual.

And so, we are here to stay. These closet homosexuals can continue to take down our flyers, and we will continue to replace them. It is a losing battle, but it is the loss of the students of MSC because, in the end, it is their SGA dollars that will buy us more flyers.

Performing arts are neglected at MSC

To the editor:

I am writing in regard to the lack of support of the performing arts department at MSC. There are many very talented artists at this school and it seems to me that the students are not aware of this fact.

I realize everyone is busy with their own majors throughout the semester, but that shouldn’t stop them from enjoying a production sponsored by one of the arts departments. Between the music, dance, and theater departments there are a number of events to be experienced.

The students involved in the arts work very hard in gaining experience for the outside performing world. When they are finally prepared for a performance the realization of the students’ support is a wonderful and welcome feeling.

There are advance notices of performances, whether it be a recital or a play, it is a major production for the person(s) involved.

So the next time you see a flyer about a performance, check it out! The next opportunity may be an expensive trip to New York City, we are that serious!

To the editor:

This is in response to David Melillo's letter to the editor (The Montclarion Sept. 29) Jett's Christian theme sup­ported.

Mr. Melillo makes an error when he presumes that Christianity was being criticized in an original review of Harvey Sept. 29) "Jett's Christian theme sup­posed.

The point I am making is that this is not a nation founded upon Christianity, but a nation founded upon the moral and God-fearing principles of Religious Freedom.

"In God we Trust," "God be with you," and "One nation under God," all reflect this diversity for they are the sentiments that rest comfortably with most and perhaps all of the religious expressions held sacred by the citizens of this country.

In view of this religious freedom, dates are now reckoned according to B.C.E (Before Common Era) and A.C.E. (After Common Era), and not according to the old reckoning.

Mr. Melillo should also be aware that our months are named for Roman emperors, except for those named after goddesses. Our weekdays are named for the Norse pantheon except for Sunday which is named for the sun god of Mithras.

Reagan declared this the year of the Bible because he is running for re-election and he hopes to once again win the conservative "bible" vote.

The Bible is not the one book that caused the most hope. Two other fundamental-cate candidates for that title are: (in order of influence) the Hindu Vedas and Upanishads followed by the Pali Canon of Buddhism.

The next time Mr. Melillo sees a Christmas tree or holds an Easter egg, I hope it is realized that these are blatantly pagan religious symbols of life.

The most angering statement in Mr. Melillo's editorial is the following: "Jesus claimed to be God; no other option is open to us." This statement is biblically erroneous and blatantly bigoted. For you, David Melillo, it is the only option, for this is the spiritual path you have chosen. Leave other people's religious beliefs alone. Do not include the word "us" in what is your own personal religious proclamation.

I agree that our society was built on godly principles, the godly principles of all the religions of the world, for we are a nation of immigrants. And the first wave of immigrants used their godly principles to govern this nation long before the coming of the first Christians. They were native American shamen.

Response from the conservatives

To the editor:

When I read The Montclarion lately, there is one element within it which I find particularly disturbing—the column "Thoughts of Conscience" by Jim Benson. I realize that colleges and universities are the entrenched home of liberalism and am not in the least surprised to see it raise its dangerous head in the pages of The Montclarion.

What arouses my opposition the most, however, is that an alternative conservative response is not being awarded equal access to the pages of The Montclarion. Although I cannot agree with any part of Mr. Benson's Utopian views, I do not oppose his right to enunciate them. It is the very essence of our proud democracy and heritage to have a free and open exchange of ideas.

It is imperative therefore to offer the students of MSC a viable conservative response to this left-wing rhetoric.

I therefore openly challenge the editors of The Montclarion to allow us equal space in The Montclarion.

The editors may regard this as a direct threat to their prized bastion of liberalism high atop the Student Center. In allowing (or not allowing) us to present our views as well, we will be able to ascertain whether the editors themselves believe in this same democratic principle of an open airing of divergent opinions.

The Accuracy of Christian's statements is questioned

The religious philosophy of the colon­nal time period concerning Yeshua Bar Joseph (Jesus) was that he was not the son of God, but the ideal human to be emulated as such.

Everyone in this picture shares something in common. They’ve all had cancer, and are leading happy, normal lives.

Through progress in treatment, knowing the risks and early detection, over two million individuals have survived cancer.

But most people don’t know that. They still think cancer is unbeatable. A fact which over two million people would like to dispute.

Kingsley portrays great thespian

By S.C. Wood

If in order to see a Broadway play this season, you have to mortgage your house or sell your car, make it worth your while and see Edmund Kingsley. Aside from the fact that actors Ben Kingsley, who won our hearts in Gandhi, it is a show worth seeing, and long overdue, as a tribute to one of the greatest English tragedians. Kingsley brings off this one man show with grace and style.

The play was written by Raymond Fitzsimons, who published a highly readable and entertaining biography of Kean several years ago. Fitzsimons wrote the play with Kingsley in mind, and no one could be better for the part. Not only does Kingsley possess the necessary versatility and energy for the part, but he also has the air of light briskness in his carriage (which often makes him appear smaller than he actually is) and the same kind of sparkling black eyes which drew so much adoration to Kean.

Kean (1787-1833) affected a revolution on the English stage through a spontaneous and natural approach to the greatest Shakespearean roles, which up to that time were chanted in the classical fashion and acted with a set of prescribed gestures. Tradition had been codified into law, and actors were more in the habit of striking attitudes than expressing emotions. Kean sweeps away this style of acting, and as his theatrical descendant Kingsley, proclaims no allegiance to any schools of acting. Both men worked hard to perfect their performances, and consequently produced that kind of acting which makes an actor seem to be living the part.

For this reason it is hard to criticize Kingsley’s performance, but one can assess the difficulties he overcame in his role. Fitzsimons, as a biographer, is interested in every aspect of Kean, and an anxious to convey Kean’s complicated character. Thus Kingsley is required to intersperse Kean’s life with climactic scenes from the great Shakespearean roles the tragedian immortalized on the stage.

One minute Kingsley has the audience in stitches over Kean’s dancing Harlequin, and the next, on the edge of their seats to catch every intonation of his interpretations of Othello, Shylock, Richard III and Hamlet. His rendition of Timon of Athens is especially fine.

Portraying Kean’s life is as demanding as tackling his great Shakespearean roles. Kean’s life off stage was as spectacular and complex as any of the lives of Shakespeare’s characters. His father committed suicide and his mother abandoned him to the care of his “Aunt” Tid (actually his uncle’s mother) wearing his “Aunt” Tid (actually his uncle’s mother) with a wife for a role and a wife for a role and a wife for a role, and the next. In the midst of their seats to catch every intonation of his interpretations of Othello, Shylock, Richard III and Hamlet. His rendition of Timon of Athens is especially fine.

Kingsley portrayed Kean in all of his many facets, as a malicious egotist, an adoring lover, and a solicitous family man. He descends into a quiet, almost eerie sadness at the death of his wife and paints himself into a ridiculous caricature when he peppers his correspondence with Latinisms culled from a dictionary, and claims to have been educated at Eton. He proclaims himself a member of that great trinity of heroines of the 19th century, putting himself beside Lord Byron (the Byron archetypal he loved) and Napoleon, Bonaparte. Thus Kingsley must see his role other than the leading role—it’s either Caesar or nothing.

The women's gymnastics team will begin practicing for what looks to be a successful season. Mike Dow, along with assistant Tim Marotti, are returning to coach a squad of seasoned veterans with a promising new member.

Wendy Bossier, state champion in the vault, second in the uneven parallel bars and third place finisher in the all-around competition last year, is returning to help lead the Indians to another successful season, hoping to better their third place finish in the state championships. Along with Bossier, fellow veterans Stacey Grohoski, a fourth place finisher in the state's uneven bars, Jill Mandel, third in the all-around, will return to the '83 squad. Other strong performers for the Indians that are returning from last season are Sally Godun, fifth place in the balance beam last year, Karen Lukach, Karen Collins and Pam Vertes, fifth in the all-around.

A new addition to this season's squad is junior Mel Keigel, who has been recovering from operations on both ankles. Keigel has been conditioning over the summer and is expected to perform well for the Indians.

Anyone interested in joining the team should contact Mike Dow or Tim Marotti in the athletic offices in Panzer Gym.

The women's cross country team has recovered from a slow start this season, taking Drew University last week and William Paterson Tuesday.
Despite rain, mud and penalties, the Indians take Ramapo 14-6

By Perry "The Jet" Schwarz and John Rivera

It was a cold, muddy rainy day for football last Saturday, but the MSC Indian's offense was able to hold off the Ramapo Roadrunners 14-6. The Indians advance their record to 2-1-1 and hand the Roadrunners their first defeat of the season, falling to 2-1. MSC is now in first place in the New Jersey State Athletic Conference.

Both teams were battling the elements as well as each other, totaling 27 penalties combined accounting for 273 yards lost. The first score didn't come until the second quarter when quarterback Mark Casale moved the ball 85 yards on 15 plays and completed a 15-yard touchdown pass to running back Pierce Fraunheim. Joe Pern's extra point was good, making the score 7-0.

After forcing the Roadrunners to punt the ball away, the Indians took their next drive 65 yards on 17 plays. Before the drive began, MSC was handed a 15-yard penalty for clipping, moving them back further down field, reaching Ramapo's 19-yard line. Casale flipped the ball to running back Mike Nicosia, who was able to get through the tackles, reaching the goal line as good, and the half ended with the Indians holding a 14-0 lead.

The third quarter was a rebuilding period for both teams. Pern attempted a 37-yard field goal with 8:15 on the clock and the kick was no good. The Roadrunners had a 41-yard field goal attempt and they also failed. Both teams moved the ball, but without getting any points on the board, despite MSC receiving MSc's 5-yard line only to be stopped cold by the Indians' defense.

Ramapo tried desperately to come back when Michael Bukcack recovered a fumble from the Indians' 1-yard line. On this drive, penalties set back the Roadrunners over 30 yards from the endzone, but they still couldn't come away empty handed. On 12 plays the Roadrunners scored on a 34-yard pass from senior quarterback Mike La France to wide receiver Vincent Stango, with 7:06 left in the game. The extra point attempt failed.

MSC held the ball as long as possible to walk away with the victory. Penalties were a big part of this game. The Indians accumulated 16 big penalties for over 130 yards. On the other hand, the Roadrunners played their best game of the season, managing to keep a 1-0 record.

MSC third baseman, Bob Yeager hit a single and batted in the deciding run against St. Peter's College Sunday.

Baseball team adds three games to winning streak

The MSC baseball team claimed bragging rights last Thursday after beating archrival William Paterson College for the second time this season in a 12-3 trouncing. The Indians took advantage of six errors by the first-inning runs were scored on two walks and three base hits. A walk, a passed ball and two fielding errors produced two more runs in the third inning. MSC put the game out of reach in the fifth with an awesome display of offensive power. Mike Nicosia, still recuperating from a broken jaw, doubled, took third on Paul Schaeplmen's single and scored on a wild pitch. Andy Walter walked and Andy Cuomo collected three RBIs on a home run. Dave Stansavlavicky singled after a Paterson pitching change and Ron Spadoro, en route to a 3-5 day at the plate, brought his RBIs total to 12 with a two-run homer.

The Indians won two more games over the weekend, cruising Rider College 15-3 on Saturday and squeezing past St. Peter's 6-5 on Sunday. The offense stole the show in out-hitting Rider 17-5. Ten Indians reached first base on walks alone.

Booters down Jersey City for first win of ’83 season

By John Rivera

After a successful 1982 season of nine wins, four losses and two ties, the men's soccer team has had a slow start this season, losing their first three games before picking up a 4-1 victory over Jersey City State College last Thursday.

John Ioannou was the sole scorer for the Indians, and goalie Eric Nelson helped in the winning effort with eight saves, to bring the Indians record to 0-3-1.

The Indians are a very young team, having only three seniors with Nelson being one of them. So far, the Indian goalie has totaled 74 saves with a 3.02 per game average, hitting a season high of 28 saves in the team's most recent match against Stockton State College, tying them 2-2.

The offense is led by the spectacular Ioannou, who is presently a sophomore at MSC and a native of Cyprus, Greece, Ioannou, who scored 16 goals and had two assists as a freshman, is off to an outstanding start this year. This season he has scored nine goals and has one assist to make him the Indians' leading scorer.

Other scorers for the Indians have been freshmen Danny Simon from Ocean Township with one goal, junior George Krycakow, a forward from West Orange with one, along with two goals respectively from junior Mike Conti and sophomore Dan Coates.

The defense is led by fullback Jose Encarnacion, a junior from Union City.

The team is coached by Phil Santiago who hopes to get the Indians going towards a more successful season, hoping to better last year's record, which led just the Indians' first winning season since 1977.
