Rising number of bomb threats causes dorm phones to be tapped

By Cathy Clarke

As a result of an increasing number of bomb threat calls made to MSC dorms at night, Dr. Raymond Stover, director of housing, will install tracing devices on telephone lines in all five residence halls.

Stover said on campus students are responsible for the calls, and the tracing devices will enable him to find out exactly where a call comes from. He said calls are currently taped, “but it is difficult to find who is doing the calling since we don’t have voice prints of said calls are currently taped, “but it is difficult to find who is doing the calling since we don’t have voice prints of everyone on campus.”

According to Stover, at least two of six bomb threats called into Blanton Hall last week were made by the same person—a male using profanity. Web­

Registrar proposes to change 50 minute classes to 75 minutes

By Eileen Oleksiak

Due to a growing demand by MSC faculty for longer classes, Marshall Butler, registrar, submitted a proposal for 75-minute classes which meet twice a week to Dr. David W.D. Dickson, president of the college. According to Butler, the proposal is a revision of a plan he submitted eight years ago. “I suspect the schedule change was rejected in ’75 because the faculty did not really want a mandatory four-day schedule.”

Under the present scheduling system, Butler said some faculty have been able to arrange to be on campus only three days a week. Since then, there has been a significant increase in the number of depart­ments that want 75-minute classes, Butler said.

“We’re waiting for both student and faculty input. Although the decision to change ultimately rests with the president’s cabinet, I guess this really is a question of majority opinion,” Dr. Jean Armstrong, vice president of students affairs, said.

Butler said the advantages of the proposal include “discouraging students from cutting classes, eliminating course and examination overlaps, bet­

The 75-minute class schedule will go into effect fall if approved. A decision must be reached on this issue by Nov. 1.

Dr. Catherine Becker, chairperson in the curriculum and teaching department, said, “The faculty should have the opportunity for an in-depth study regarding this issue. It’s important to explore the ramifications in order to decide whether this schedule change will have an overall positive or negative impact on the college. I think it is impossible to make a decision on this in three weeks.”

Butler said, however, there are many 75-minute classes already at MSC and because this is not an unfamiliar idea, it does not really require an in-depth study.”

Judy Mongiello, a junior office systems administration major, said “I think the change would be advantageous if it’s a class like accounting. In a class that is strictly lecture, however, it would get monotonous.”

Mona Seghal, a junior political science major, said 50-minute classes “go by too quickly. Just when I’m getting interested in a class lecture, 50 minutes are up and the class is over. I’m in favor of the schedule change.”

Senator Bubba speaks out against Quarry dump site

By Chris Worthington

Joseph Bubba, New Jersey state senator, spoke out against the Quarry dump site at a meeting sponsored by the Political Science Club recently.

Bubba, who represents the 34th district, an area that encompasses Little Falls and Clifton, among other cities, said, "I've been working on trying to avoid opening the dump for a long time." Bubba did this by writing a bill to prohibit the opening of any dump in a small, residential area where there is an institution of higher learning. The bill did not get past a senate committee.

Bubba recently proposed another bill which would allow the state to buy back MSC's contract from the Carino Contracting and Trucking Company. The senator said the bill will not be voted on until after the November elections for political reasons.

Supreme Court to rule on legality of Solomon Amendment

By Elliot Baumgart

During the latter part of 1982, Congress passed and President Reagan signed the law, Section 1113 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, which became effective July 1, 1983.

Known as the Solomon Amendment, the law requires males, upon reaching 18 years of age, to register for the draft and, at their school, a statement of compliance in order to meet the qualification guidelines for any financial aid programs. This law requires males, upon reaching 18 years of age, to register for the draft and, at their school, a statement of compliance in order to meet the qualification guidelines for any financial aid programs. However, this law requires males, upon reaching 18 years of age, to register for the draft and, at their school, a statement of compliance in order to meet the qualification guidelines for any financial aid programs.

First, it was their contention that by linking federal financial aid to draft registration, the government was punishing an individual through a legislative determination without judicial process.

Second, it was argued that deeming a student ineligible for financial aid for failure to declare his compliance with the draft registration law was a denial of due process rights and Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination.

Third, the argument was made that the law is discriminatory on grounds it not only focuses on men who are in a certain age group, but also on the poor, a group eligible for the most federal aid.

In June 1983, Donald D. Alsp, a Minnesota federal district judge, ruled that the law was unconstitutional and ordered a permanent injunction against its enforcement. Although the judge rejected the argument of discrimination, he accepted the first two contentions, stating that the law "determines guilt and inflicts punishment on an identifiable group based on the past act of non-registration without the protections of a judicial trial."

By this time, many of you are probably feeling relieved. Unfortunately, that's not the end of this perplexing situation. The Justice Department has appealed the decision of Judge Alsp to the Supreme Court of the United States, which is expected to hear the case this fall. Meanwhile, the court has been persuaded by the justice department to set aside the injunction for the time being on the basis that interference with the selective service system constitutes a threat to the national security.

This is the first in a series of articles to be published periodically by Baumgart in the Montclarion.

Kogan tells packed house Jesus links Jews and Christians

By Don Reilly

Before a capacity crowd, Dr. Michael Kogan, associate professor in MSC's philosophy and religion department, said the Jewish faith has not given Jesus the respect he deserves. This was one of the main points of his lecture titled "Jesus the Reappraisal," held at MSC Monday.

"Judaism should recover this great man," Kogan said, "for there is nothing in the recordings of Jesus that the Jewish faith cannot look at as dynamic."

"Just because Christians have judged Jesus as more than human, Jews should not view him as less than Jewish," Kogan said. Speaking of Jesus in a positive light, he said, "Let's make Jesus the point of contact between the Christians and the Jews, not the point of persecution."

Kogan has a B.A., Ph.D. and a doctoral dissertation on "Kingdom of God and Jewish Theology" from Syracuse University. He has also done graduate work at Columbia University and has lectured at many churches and synagogues.

This lecture was the first of a four-part lecture series co-sponsored by the Interfaith Committee of Essex and the philosophy and religion department of MSC.

"Let's make Jesus the point of contact between the Christians and the Jews, not the point of prosecution." Dr. Michael Kogan

Kogan expressed the hope that large numbers of students would take advantage of this "unique venture" into interfaith understanding. However, at this first lecture, there were very few students.

The next lecture of the series will be Oct. 17, when Dr. Alice L. Eckardt, of the department of religious studies at Lehigh University, will speak on "The Holocaust: Christian Reflections." The lecture is free and will be held in the Student Center Ballrooms at 8 p.m.

There's nothing Kaloudis can't Do with karate

By Mark Hatfield

Breaking boards and bricks with bare hands is a snap for Edward Kaloudis, adjunct professor of Koei-Kan Karate Do at MSC. Kaloudis, who will appear on the Joe Franklin Show on Friday at 2 a.m., was one of the pioneers to introduce the art of karate to the U.S.

In between teaching, Kaloudis has taken time out to appear on "just about every major television network. Once I was the commentator for the Wide World of Sports when they hosted the Oriental World of Self Defense," he said.

"I also performed a breaking technique for a Panasonic commercial that was televised at the same time Reggie Jackson was doing Panasonic commercials. The Reggierung billboard advertisements were almost Kaloudis vision ads, but baseball beat karate for that position."

Called Sensei (master teacher) by his students, Kaloudis has been teaching karate at MSC and Fairleigh Dickinson University for over 14 years. He has also been teaching physical education in the North Caldwell schools for 19 years.

Kaloudis is a sixth degree black belt and has been studying Koei-Kan Karate for 34 years. He was born in Greece and came to America in 1954. Before moving to the U.S., Kaloudis became the first non-oriental to study Koei-Kan Karate in Japan.

Besides being a master and teacher of self-defense, Kaloudis is the founder of Koei-Kan Karate Do schools throughout the country and in South America. The national headquarters is in Caldwell.

Kaloudis said although Koei-Kan Karate demonstrations where bricks are broken with bare hands and boards are split over a person's back are very impressive, one must be careful about how we interpret what Koei-Kan Karate Do really is. "Koei-Kan Karate Do is the fastest, most effective, practical defense known to men and women. It is a philosophy and a way of life," Kaloudis said.

"We help you to develop your mind and body through the physical art, the philosophy, and most of all to develop your powers of meditation. A person who is an excellent practitioner of Koei-Kan Karate Do must totally avoid the use of violence unless it is an absolute necessity. This is accomplished through inner security and the knowledge that the use of force should be the last resort under the circumstances."

Edward Kaloudis

"'Patience is the greatest virtue' is a famous quote I learned in Japan. I try to teach this quality to my students. I will continue to teach and maintain the purity and tradition of Koei-Kan Karate as it was originally taught."

The SGA votes against proposal for 75 minute classes

By Mona Sehgal

The SGA legislature voted against the proposal for 75-minute, two-day-per-week classes during the SGA meeting this week.

"What if you're sick and miss one class? That's a lot of time to make up. It's not very advantageous to the student," Eric Hartman, SGA legislator, said.

In supporting this proposal, I have the students' interests deeply in mind," Jean Armstrong, vice president of student affairs, said before the voting took place. "The change would do away with course overlapping," she said.

"Because the SGA consensus vote is not binding, the issue may be brought up at next week's SGA meeting, according to Lynn Mesuk, SGA vice president.

All SGA legislators will be asking undergraduates to fill out a survey to "discover how successful the SGA is in the eyes of MSC students."

"Everybody complains we are not doing enough for the students. I want to know what it is that we're not doing," Wendy Shultz, director of public relations, said.

In other business, the public relations committee was appropriated $3,500 for the duration of the semester. The committee was in the red, mainly because it published an MSC calendar this semester in honor of the college's 75th anniversary, Shultz said. Any money remaining will be returned to the SGA unappropriated budget.

Shultz also announced that Alcohol Awareness Day will be held on Thurs., Nov. 10 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Ballroom B of the Student Center Annex. Some activities will include a lecture/discussion on drinking and driving, a workshop entitled "Sex and Alcohol," films and a non-alcoholic party in the Blanton Hall Atrium.

In other news, the following organizations were granted Class II charters: Ski club, Health Professions Association and the Political Science club. The Jewish Student Union was granted a Class III charter and the Home Economics Association was granted a Class IV charter.

Volunteers Needed for Non-English Speaking Students
If you have an hour or more a week to spare, you might want to assist a non-native English speaking student in the Weekend College by providing conversation practice or tutoring in English.
No teaching experience or foreign language proficiency is required of volunteers; only a native knowledge of the English language and a desire to assist non-English speaking students.
The students in the Weekend College are predominantly Spanish-speaking and a majority are of traditional college age. Most are employed during the week, and are usually available for tutoring on Saturdays or Sundays, and some afternoons and evenings.
If you can make a commitment of at least an hour a week, see Dr. Savage in Room 306, College Hall, or call her at 893-4431. Meetings with students will begin in mid-October and will continue through the end of the semester.

Chemistry department receives grant
Students in chemistry will be using a new fourier transform nuclear magnetic resonance spectrometer, to be purchased through one of the grants from the New Jersey High Technology Program.

According to Dr. Richard Friedman, who is responsible for the purchase, $100,000 was donated to MSC for the purchase of the spectrometer to be used by students in organic chemistry courses and in research. This is one of the three high-tech grants that MSC recently received.

Dr. Gottschall named chairman
Dr. Carl Gottschal of mathematics and computer science, has been named the first chairperson of the newly created advisory board of the center for legal studies at MSC.

Bomb threats are on the rise

By Dan Johnson
Last week there were six more bomb threats on campus. Since Sept. 1, there have been a total of 11 bomb threats, while only 17 occurred last spring semester.

According to Jayne Rich, chief of campus police, there are only one or two people making the calls.

Three of the six bomb threats occurred on Oct. 4. Two of them occurred at Blanton Hall. The first was at approximately 4:15 a.m. and the second was at 9:15 p.m. Campus police said the same person made these calls.

The third one that day occurred at 9:29 p.m. at Freeman Hall. The bomb threat call was made by a female on campus.

The fourth and fifth occurred on Oct. 5. At 3:30 a.m., a female called and said there were bombs in both Webster and Stone Halls.

The last one to occur last week, was on Oct. 7 at 12:30 a.m. when a bomb was said to have been placed at Webster Hall. Anyone who may have information on these bomb threats should contact Rich at 893-5122. The identity of the caller will be kept confidential.

There were also several fire alarms on campus last week, two of which were false alarms. However, one alarm, which occurred at 7:42 p.m. was caused by the smoke from food cooking on the stove on the second floor lounge in Webster Hall. Another was caused by a routine checking of the fire hydrants at Blanton Hall. Because of a drop in water pressure, the fire alarm, which was connected to the sprinkler system, was activated.

In addition, four thefts occurred last week on campus. On Oct. 6, in Lot 30, a car's stereo cassette player and a CB having a total value of $375 were stolen. In addition there was $600 worth of damage done to the car. The last threat occurred on Oct. 7 in Lot 20. A stereo system, and two sheepskin seatcovers were also stolen. The value of these items came to $564.

On Oct. 3 at College Hall, an unattended wallet containing $33, a driver's license, and credit cards was stolen. Another theft occurred on Oct. 5 at Freeman Hall. A purse left on a cafeteria table was stolen. It contained $20, a calculator, and $50 worth of bus tickets.

A case of lewdness occurred on Oct. 6 at 9:20 p.m. While a woman was jogging from Freeman Hall to dove Road, a dark blue vehicle pulled up by her. At first, the male driver asked directions to Route 46, but later emerged from the car and chased the female while he was nude. After the stalker was observed by a witness, he stopped the chase and fled. The suspect has been described as 6 feet, 250 pounds, obese, with brown curly hair. A composite sketch is currently being drawn by campus police.

On Oct. 8, while two males were looking for two females, a fight broke out between the two males, and a resident in Blanton Hall. The fight occurred at approximately 12:30 a.m. on the fourth floor. The two males were arrested later for trespassing because they had not signed in.

MSC grad student finds sugar to be cause of skin problems

By Michelle Congello

The intake of sugar may be the cause of your acne problems. Morgana La Vine, a 28-year-old MSC graduate, said.

During most of her teen-age years, La Vine never had serious acne. Suddenly, at nineteen, her skin began to break out. She saw several dermatologists who gave the same diagnosis. "You have adult acne," she said. For a long time La Vine accepted this diagnosis.

One week while an undergraduate student, La Vine was so broke she couldn't afford to buy sugar. In that one week, she noticed many changes in herself. Her energy level increased, she dropped a few pounds, and her face cleared up dramatically.

La Vine excluded such things from her diet as fruits and fruit juices, carrots, corn, rice and milk because they all contain some form of sugar.

La Vine said she is surprised that not one doctor tested her for sugar intolerance. The dermatologists prescribed antibiotics, which helped her condition, but did not cure it. "There's a tendency in modern medicine for the doctor not to trust the innate body wisdom of the patient," La Vine said.

Since her discovery, about two months ago, La Vine has lost 20 pounds, has had virtually no acne problem, and has about "ten times the energy" she used to have. "I'm calmer now because I'm not on a sugar roller coaster ride," she said.

"Outward appearance is so important in our culture today, and a serious acne problem can be a hard thing to deal with. Thus, I was very happy to find a solution to my skin problem," La Vine said.

La Vine said many people have adult acne and should stay away from sugar for a while and "see what happens."

"I have become very sensitive to the needs of people who must live on special diets, and who must eat on this campus. The candy machines are loaded. I usually bring my own food on campus. We have become a sugar-obsessive culture. I wonder what would happen if we weren't," La Vine said.

Equal rights: Still a long way to go for women at home and in the workplace.

There’s some positive and negative news for women this week. A Census Bureau report released this week revealed that almost half of all adult women worked outside the home in 1980, compared to one third in 1950. Three cheers for women! But don’t get excited yet. The average earnings of women in relation to men hasn’t risen in the past 30 years. In fact, the gap has widened since 1980, when women earned 65 percent of what men earned. Now, women earn only 59 percent of what men earn. According to the report, women also continue to bear the brunt of household tasks, and give up leisure and sleep to do so. Taking these points together, the average lifestyle of half the American women is hectic and not very much fun. It goes like this. Wake up. Fix breakfast. Go to work and get underpaid. Come home. Make dinner. Fix the house. Go to sleep. It goes like this. Wake up. Fix breakfast. Go to work and get underpaid. Come home. Make dinner. Fix the house. Go to sleep.

Things have got to change. Women are a major work force in society and desperately need quality day care services. This is a segment of business that has been ignored for too long.

Also, women and men with the same job must be paid equally. Black and white Hispanic men in the same position earn the same pay. So should women. Chores in the home should also be shared equally when both members of the household are working.

The 1960s song “Georgia Girl” reflects the beginnings of the women’s movement in a cute sixties melody. “Hey there, Georgia Girl... shed those downy wings and fly... you can be whatever you want to be... wake up Georgia Girl!” Yes, wake up! It’s been almost 20 years since that song came out!

The ERA didn’t pass this time, but it’s not dead. Don’t give up. We must have more women in professional and high-tech jobs. We especially need more women in government because it seems as though the government won’t listen unless we’re in there making the decisions with them. Yes, you’ve come a long way baby, but there’s still a long road ahead.

Carlos can be held liable for rape

Campus rape is unfortunately on the increase. While rape, campus police, legal aid groups for the colleges, and other members of the academic community are becoming increasingly concerned over the problem, a university professor believes one way to curb the crime may be to hold the post-secondary institutions liable as third party defendants.

In the September issue of TRIAL, the national legal news magazine of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America (ATLA), Dr. Leonard Territo, professor of criminal justice at the University of South Florida, Tampa, claims that rape is one of the most unreported of all serious crimes.

The reasons for this are numerous, he says. The victim doesn’t believe the suspect will be apprehended; unwanted publicity; fear of reprisal by the rapist; apprehension from the media reports which could lead to being further victimized by the court proceedings.

Territo says that post-secondary institutions can protect themselves from liability providing precautions are taken. Attorneys, when determining liability, will examine “what actions, if any the institution took or failed to take to reduce the possibility of rapes occurring on campus.”

These “actions” include investigating the specific campus area where the attack took place. There are frequently campus police, legal aid groups for the colleges, and other members of the academic community are becoming increasingly concerned over the problem.

Senate objects to GALA's letter

To the editor: I am writing in response to Michael McKeon's letter, which was printed in last week's Montclarion. As an active member and former president of Phi Alpha Pi-Senate Fraternity, I would like to apologize to any member of GALA who may have been offended by the "antics" of a few people who happen to be members of Senate. However, without turning this into a "hollow apology," I have to comment on the way the incident was presented in The Montclarion.

To get petty for a second, there were two letters from members of GALA complaining about their treatment on campus. While only one concerned itself with Senate, both letters appeared under the bold headline, "Fraternity antisocial GALA at SGA Information Day." Right away it appears as if our two organizations are involved in some sort of major conflict. I hope this isn't true.

I don't think McKeon's letter was very responsible, considering he is the leader of that "strong, well-organized" group. Tell me, are you condemning all members of Senate for a bad experience you had with a few? This concept may not be new to you, but hear it anyway. It is ignorant to judge a whole group. Tell me, are you condemning all responsible, considering he is the leader of that "strong, well organized" group?

I really am sorry that some members of GALA were hurt by that incident but if you think about it, was it really that heavy? Still, if you care enough about something, you can become very protective of it and even seem defensive. Some people were offended by a joke. I was offended by McKeon's reaction to it and I'm sure there will be someone who will be offended by my response. This could go on forever. Let's not.

If I sound defensive, it's both consciously and subconsciously that I do. I don't think McKeon's letter was very responsible, considering he is the leader of that "strong, well-organized" group. Tell me, are you condemning all members of Senate for a bad experience you had with a few? This concept may not be new to you, but hear it anyway. It is ignorant to judge a whole group. Tell me, are you condemning all responsible, considering he is the leader of that "strong, well organized" group?

I sincerely wish GALA the same success it has experienced other such incidents on campus. Unfortunately, a controversial organization such as yourselves has to expect some confrontation and it is your responsibility to deal with it as best you can. I don't like the attempt to make Senate a scapegoat for your own social unacceptance, or fear thereof. Get constructive! Educate the students of MSC to your cause. Confront the oppressor! Have a GALA Day where people can hear about what kinds of problems you face in society - talk to us, not at us.

Stone Hall angered by cartoon

To the editor:

In your most recent edition of the Montclarion (Oct. 6), much attention was given to the security systems of the residence halls. On behalf of myself and Stone Hall, I would like to express some views on the subject. Stone Hall seemed to catch the brunt of the topic, and whether it was worthy or not, we stood to be ridiculed.

The residents at Stone are a group of guys who are fun-loving, close-knit and indifferent to pictorial attacks. We showed this last semester with our unity, we still choose to be ridicule.

The infamous “cockroach cartoon.” We laughed it off, just as we are doing now. Most of us possess a sense of humor and find “Da mugs” in the car­

Any underlying meanings that can be drawn from the cartoon concerning carefree desk assistants or a haphazard run security system at Stone should be dropped. Thanks should be given to John Flore for his efforts in organizing a cohesive and readily staf­

Further more, as my vice president Neil Barone pointed out, regardless of playing up our bad points or trying to humor our unity, we still choose to be here, as does Matt the cartoonist for The Montclarion.

Furthermore, we should also be grateful for the wall done job of the D.A. s at Stone, who in the opinion of the dorm council are as good if not better than D.A. s of other dorms. Also the amount of work done by the R.A. s to help secure the building should also not be overlooked.

In a separate article on security at Stone I was mistakenly quoted as saying I felt a security guard was a “good idea.” In essence I said that I didn’t think it would be too cost effective to staff a security guard during the “off” hours. By putting a guard in Stone you would be turning it into a Bohn or a Blanton, something we don’t want. Stone has a more casual atmos­phere, something we all appreciate.

We never had a security guard and we feel that we don’t need one. I’m not trying to make a case of the misquote, but I did want to state my true feelings on the subject.

Furhtermore, as my vice president Neil Barone pointed out, regardless of playing up our bad points or trying to humor our unity, we still choose to be here, as does Matt the cartoonist for The Montclarion.

Doesn’t anyone care anymore?

To the editor:

There has been a slight commotion on campus, but it seems that most students haven’t even noticed. The cause usually fails to interest them whether it’s about environmental de­struction, disregard of civil rights, or even the quality of education.

Lives become so structured that a new approach, changed attitude, or action seem inconvenient. So the com­motion is ignored or reacted to with annoyance because it irritates them. I’m glad if it does. Some reaction is better than none. It may be that irri­tation is brought on by a conscience that questions their own lack of involvement and continued apathy. Those who can’t be bothered will stop reading by now and return to the more amusing and entertaining articles which are less of a threat. But read on and consider these questions:

How many of you are relieved by the resignation of James Watt?

How many of you are curious about the sudden quiet in the Environmental Protection Agency and what is now happening with the superfund money to clean up toxic dumps?

How many of you dread having to pass microwave dishes on Cove Road which could be surrounding you with radiation and affecting your health and that of your offspring?

Maybe you have thought of these and are concerned, but if not, ask these next questions to see more clearly your values and judgments and those that you may be criticizing.

How many of you laughed at or criticized the protesters at the Cove Road landfill who are concerned about the effects on drinking water beneath the Quarry and your health?

How many of you believe you’ll be spared from the effects of environmental hazards or failing social policies?

How many of you will remain quiet and unconcerned until you become a victim? How many of you are irritated now? Too many.

Article’s mistakes corrected

To the editor:

Regarding the article in last week’s Montclarion (Oct. 6) on the special treasurer elections, I feel bound to correct some mistakes. The election of Howard Leon to the office was not declared invalid on the basis of the grades he received in his uncompleted courses. At the designated time of certification, Mr. Leon did not have the necessary 2.5 GPA allowing him to be considered a candidate.

Protection Agency and what is now happen­ing with the superfund money to clean up toxic dumps?

How many of you dread having to pass microwave dishes on Cove Road which could be surrounding you with radiation and affecting your health and that of your offspring?

During the course of the ensuing campaign and elections, a grade change was made which allowed for cert­ification by the attorney general at that time. It was this subsequent certi­fication which was revoked making Howard ineligible. The incompletes, although entered into the discussion of the matter, did not have any bearing on the final outcome.

Major Theater Series drama: thorn between two lovers

By Harold Lowry

Major Theatre Series has gone all out to present a major production of Romeo and Juliet to celebrate the college's seventieth anniversary year. The production has many exciting flourishes including a large cast, fine costumes, some very effective lighting and a specially-constructed curtain, which announces "The Tragedie of Romeo and Juliet by William Shakespeare" in two foot letters. Many new faces are given a chance to appear on stage, though oft proven MSC talents have taken a number of the key roles.

The major difficulty with the production seems to have been working within the confines of Shakespeare's language, and at the same time appearing acceptably realistic to a modern audience. Despite some awkwardness and occasionally awful acting, the production as a whole is energetic and entertaining.

It begins with the introduction by the Prince of Verona (Mark Pinheiro). This prologue is traditionally performed by a chorus, but not only is it a powerful atmosphere created by this opening passage, it also serves as a frame story by matching the tenor of the Prince's closing words to the Montagues and the Capulets. This makes the whole play more coherent and the humor in the early acts more distinct.

Terrence Burnett, as Romeo, starts out on very shaky ground, not seeming able to decide whether to act seriously or frivolously, in portraying his love for Rosaline. The director, Ramon Delgado, takes the audience into the early scenes where Romeo confesses his love for her. Shakespeare's use of the unseen love, evoking the romantic mood which is then transferred to Juliet, is a necessary device which is muted by the actual appearance of Rosaline. Delgado's alteration only weakens the interaction between the lovers by making Romeo's understated fickleness more obvious. Combined with Burnett's occasional lapses of character, Romeo tremendously. He comes across best in the major scenes with Juliet and Friar Lawrence.

Benvolio, Romeo's good-natured confidant, played by Dennis Brito, is one of the least appealing main performances of the play. Brito thoroughly lacks the genuine, almost-shy concern which normally separates Benvolio from the self-touting Mercutio. Brito shows no individuality, and a major unanswered question is why he told the Prince it was Romeo who killed Tybalt.

As Mercutio, James Keaten makes his debut performance at MSC. He looks quite promising. His Mercutio is as full of energy and devil-may-care as could be wanted. The failings in his performance seem to have more to do with the direction than with the ability of the actor.

Bruce Dorhout is both understandable and disagreeable as Juliet's cousin, Tybalt. Valery Pouly as Lady Capulet gives a suitable performance, balancing her emphasis well among the other characters therein, only taking the central role in the hostility against Romeo after Tybalt's death.

The most confident portrayal is that of Juliet's father, Capulet (Wayne Burns). Bushell proves that it is possible to simultaneously interpret lines that are most conventional of the show. Juliet (Anna Smyre) is a woman who symbolizes love and beauty. Smyre holds the attention for the title pair, while Burnett's Little is morphologically likeable. Juliet does not sink to the frivolous level Romeo does, and Smyre proves her to be intelligent, witty and caring.

The role of the nurse played by Michele Tauler, presents a different challenge to a performer. She must decide how gregarious the nurse should be, and how aware she should be of the comic implications of her actions. Tauler plays the part with contained gusto. Although she seems to vacillate between a formal or casual reading of the role, she maintains the character throughout.

Geoffrey Morris gives a well-timed performance as Friar Lawrence, a most successful under-play of a character which is often relegated to mere comic.

Other roles included a cute but seemingly lost Count Paris (Robert Murphy), a sturdy portrayal of Romeo's man Balthasar (Gary Mink), and a noble-sounding Montague (Tim Herman). The actors in general give a wide range of performances but two notable exceptions. The director's liberties with the play range from the most conventional of the show. The show is worth seeing if only to appreciate the talent and hard work of the speech and theater department in presenting this prestigious production.

The show opened last night, and will continue tonight through Saturday at 8 p.m. A matinee will be held on Friday, Oct. 14, at 2:30 p.m. There are discounts for students and senior citizens for all performances.

SMOKEOUT
AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

"On Nov. 17th, adopt a friend who smokes."

Help a friend get through the day without a cigarette. They might just quit forever. And that's important. Because good friends are hard to find and even tougher to lose.

Women's cross country wins three

The women's cross country team picked up three wins Tuesday in a quad meet against Trenton State and St. Peter's Colleges, and Seton Hall University. The Indians swept first place through fifth against SHU for a score of 15-50, swept first through fourth against SPC to win 21-35, and defeated TSC 15-50 with the help of Dana Caruso's first place finish, and a sweep of fifth through ninth place.

Caruso ran her personal best of 19:56 on MSC's home course at Garrett Mountain for her fifth win of the season. Nancy Wright ran a 21:20 for fourth against TSC, but placed second against SHU and SPC. Liz Dilla followed in fifth overall with a third place in the two other scorings. In seventh was Amy McLaughlin with a time of 22:12 for MSC, taking fourth against SHU and SPC.

Men's cross country team wins first meet

The men's cross country team broke a seven-meet losing streak by defeating Queen's College Saturday at Van Cortland Park in New York City. Although Queen's took first place overall, MSC swept second through fifth place. Jim O'Hora led the Indians with a time of 28:19 for second place, followed by Frank Liebel in third with a 28:46. Close behind was Pete Guthrie running a 29:01 and Carlos Esteveas running a 29:48. George Krauss took seventh for the Indians with a time of 30:34.

MSC football team romps to a 35-7 victory over NY Tech

By John DelGuercio

Mark Casale led the MSC football team to a 35-7 romp over the New York Tech Bears last Saturday as he tossed three touchdown passes and ran for another. The victory boosted the Indians’ record to 3-1-1 overall, and gave them their 22nd victory in the last 24 home games.

NYT put points on the board first when they drove 68 yards following the opening kickoff. Their drive was capped off by a 46-yard pass from quarterback Vito Alberque to wide receiver Ed Cosgrove. However, this was the extent of their scoring as the MSC defense cracked down and forced seven turnovers, including two interceptions.

In the first quarter, MSC tried for the two-point conversion, which he returned to NYT’s 11-yard line. Casale tossed a nine-yard pass to tailback John Vannoy to put the Indians on the one. Casale ran for the touchdown and the one. Casale ran for the touchdown back Bob Vannoy to put the Indians on the one. The extra point was good.

Another NYT fumble turned into the final score of the game for the Indians when linebacker Tim O’Connell recovered.

Field hockey team ties GSC, loses to Rider 2-1 in tight match

By Chris Worthington

The MSC field hockey team tied Glassboro State College last Saturday and lost a close match against Rider College, giving them a season record of 1-8-3.

Tom Fazekas

The first half of the Glassboro game was scoreless, but in the second half, GSC’s Sheila Howard scored on an assist by Lois Malagapi at the 20-minute mark. Ten minutes later, the Indians’ Sandy Keenan countered with a goal, tying the game at 1-1. The game went into double overtime, but at the end of the two periods, the score remained 1-1 for the second tie that went into double OT this season for the Indians.

Goalkeeper Lisa Flynn totaled six saves for MSC while the Profs’ Lisa Scafidi had ten.

Rider takes Indians by one

The field hockey team played extremely well against Rider, despite the loss. MSC’s Lisa Morgenthaler scored at the four-minute mark of the first half with an assist by Jeanne Brown. Rider scored at the 25- and 33-minute marks to take the lead, which they maintained through a scoreless second half for the win.

Flynn hit a season high of 13 saves, and teammate Kim Troast returned after a week absence, due to a broken index finger, to play very well for the Indians. The team has improved greatly since the beginning of the season. Team members Morgenthaler, Brown, Dawn Brice, Mary Zoeller, Joy Wadding and Flynn are playing each game with enthusiasm and skill. Improving team members are Keenan and Terry Jennings.

The Indians have lost Laura Vaccaro for the season, after she tore ligaments in a game against Kean.

Coach Lynn Centonze says each member of her team has improved on an individual level, and the team as a whole has grown. However, Centonze feels they have a long way to go, for the women are not working together as well as they should be. Quite a few members on the team are playing their first season this year, and Centonze believes that the lack of experience is a problem. MSC has compared to their opponents’ veteran squads.

The Indian hooter evades an Upsala forward in the recent victory for the MSC soccer team. The Indians are now 2-3-2.

The baseball team suffered its first loss of the fall season on Sunday, dropping the first game of a double header to Upsala College by a score of 6-4.

Upsala took a 3-1 lead in the third inning on a double, a base on balls, another double and a base hit. After scoring a fourth inning run, MSC took the lead in the fifth on singles by Ron Spadora and Mike Nicosia, an infield error and a John Covian sacrifice fly.

The Indians didn’t hold the lead for long, however, as Upsala tied the score in the sixth. They went ahead in the seventh inning on a walk, a base hit and a triple.

MSC won the second game of the twin bill with a narrow 5-4 win. The first three Upsala batters got on base and were brought home with a grand slam. The Indians scored twice in the bottom of the inning on a Jody Tobia single and a home run by Nicosia.

MSC cut the lead down to one when Andy Guizzo scored. Upsala held the lead to one when Andy Guizzo scored.
