Little Falls Mayor Gaita pushes for Carrino buy-out

By Cathy Clarke

"It is worthwhile to spend taxpayers' money to buy out the Carrino contract to dump garbage in the MSC Quarry," Carmen Gaita, mayor of Little Falls, said at a citizen's meeting last Wednesday.

If the dump stays open, Gaita said the cost to New Jersey and Little Falls would be over six million dollars, including costs for leachate treatments and periodic inspections of the site by the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) and Little Falls' engineers. Gaita said he had the maximum cost for the state to purchase the contract.

Passaic County Senator Bubba Bubba said there are two paths to the alternative of buying out the contract. Those paths are executive order, in which Governor Kean would agree to purchase the合同, and legislative session, where a bill would be passed in the senate to buy out the contract.

Bubba attributed the dump situation to MSC, saying, "If the officials at Montclair State College had been more sensitive in the past, this problem would not have developed. But we have a problem, and it gets down to the wire. We will pay whatever we have to, even if it's five million dollars, to buy the contract."

"We've chosen, on the advice of council, not to attend any of the citizen's meetings because they are between Carrino and the state. It's up to the governor to decide whether to buy back the contract, but I don't know where the state is going to get the money," Dickson said.

Jim Segreto, township attorney of Little Falls, suggested that "mayors of surrounding municipalities get together and go to the governor's office. "The facts have to be brought home to him." He said going to Kean's office might encourage the governor to take action.

Segreto recalled Kean's reaction upon viewing the dumpsite. "Kean shook his head and said, 'This is a horrible place for a dump. How could this have happened? However, my hands are tied because my lawyers can do nothing about it.'"

In response to Segreto's suggestion, Gaita said he hopes to meet with the other mayors and go to Kean's office before the end of the week. He said representatives from the governor's office, as well as from MSC, and the Chancellor of Higher Education were invited to the citizens' meeting, but none attended.

MSC not held responsible for Little Falls civil suits

By Kathy Gilligan

MSC refused to enter an agreement with Little Falls township which would require the college to take legal and financial responsibility for civil suits filed against Little Falls patrolmen answering campus police requests for assistance.

According to Dr. Elliot Minnig, vice president for administration and finance, a memo from William Haria, deputy attorney general, stated that MSC does not have to take this responsibility because of a tax subsidy paid annually by the college to Little Falls.

"It is not within our jurisdiction to provide reciprocal police services to Little Falls," Gaita explained.

Little Falls requested the agreement on the advice of James V. Segreto, the township's lawyer, as a result of a civil suit filed against Little Falls Patrolman Arthur Ketz. The suit was filed on Sept. 27, 1983 by MSC students Shawn Good, Anthony Turner and Greg Webb, who charged that their civil rights were violated last fall.

The incident occurred when Little Falls' Patrolman Katz was called in by campus police to serve as a backup on a report of a burglary in the Quarry parking lot. Suspects were described as three black men. Mistaking the students for the burglary suspects, Katz stopped them, aimed a shotgun, and forced them to lie on the road. When Webb asked the patrolman what the matter was, Katz aimed the shotgun.

"We have an obligation to let Carrino go ahead with the operation as long as they abide by the contract," Gaita said. "We've chosen, on the advice of council, not to attend any of the citizen's meetings because they are between Carrino and the state. It's up to the governor to decide whether to buy back the contract, but I don't know where the state is going to get the money," Dickson said.

"The facts have to be brought home to him," he said going to Kean's office might encourage the governor to take action.

He said representatives from the governor's office, as well as from MSC, and the Chancellor of Higher Education were invited to the citizens' meeting, but none attended.

Recreation lounge in Stone Hall helps to upgrade dorm's image

By Wendy Shultz

In an attempt to upgrade the image of Stone Hall, the dorm council converted an old, empty room on the second floor of the building into a recreation lounge.

Stone Hall has been known for its wild parties and generally rowdy behavior. Tim Teen, president of the dorm, said, "We have an obligation to let Carrino go ahead with the operation as long as they abide by the contract."

Radio station appropriated $32,000 for new equipment

By Patricia Flynn

The SGA appropriated $32,523 to MSC's radio station MSC-FM. The funds will be used to purchase a transmitter, a new antenna, four reel-to-reel tape decks and a new studio console.

MSC-FM has been working with its existing equipment for over nine years. "It seems their 18-hours-a-day, seven-days-a-week schedule has brought about significant wear and tear to make the new purchases warranted," Frank Little, SGA legislator, said.

The station will also be moved on the FM stereo dial from 90.3 to 101.5 and a new antenna, four reel-to-reel tape decks and a new studio console.

Women continue to move up in major corporate positions

By Michelle Atchley Congello

"Despite the women's role in middle management positions, the upward trend of women in the corporate world, has been a successful one," Barbara Drake, a marketing and promotions consultant with AT&T, said, at a seminar on Women In Business: The Corporate World, recently.

Drake, who is also the owner and president of Barbara Drake Associates, said, "I can see women will be moving towards upper management positions."

"You don't necessarily have to have an MBA to go into business, but you should avail yourself to 'business-things,'" Drake said.

"Women are human, too, you know. A lot of us think about sex, and some do more than think about it. Anyone who is shocked by that is easily shocked," Greeley said.

For Greeley, storytelling is the most effective means of illustrating points, especially in religion. "If anything can be uplifting, it is a story told with wisdom and compassion," he said.

Student Center Railings Removed

A 5,000 pound cement railing, that had shifted position, was removed from the fourth floor of the Student Center on Oct. 29 and 30. "It was not dangerous," Dean Tom Stepnowski, director of student activities, said. "But, I'd rather be safe than sorry.

The railing, which was above the revolving doors, was leaning at an angle. Contractors who inspected it over a year ago determined that there was no immediate danger, but that it should be straightened or removed. Stepnowski compared the railing to the Leaning Tower of Pisa. "It was leaning," he said, "but it probably would never have fallen."

The railing, which was removed at a cost of $2,000-$2,500, may not be replaced, if it is, according to Stepnowski, a lightweight aluminum will be used.

"It was there primarily for aesthetic reasons," he said. "It also permitted in-house window washing so we didn't have to hire an outside contractor."

Master keys stolen from dorm

By Dan Johnson

The housing office will change the locks in Freeman Hall because a set of keys was stolen from an R.A.'s dorm on Oct. 30.

At 5 p.m. on Oct. 30, Tom Harper, an R.A. at Freeman Hall, discovered that his set of master keys was missing. According to Harper, someone entered his room while he was in the bathroom and stole the keys. "I usually keep my door unlocked and in two years nothing like this has ever happened. I had to learn the hard way," Harper said.

Although the keys were found last Wednesday in front of a resident's room on the first floor, campus police believe the keys may have been duplicated. Housing has placed a rush order on new locks. Harper estimated it may take three to four weeks for the new locks to be installed. Until then, there will be increased desk coverage at Freeman, including a nine to one a.m. shift. In addition, Harper said the campus police are looking for a temporary security officer to patrol the dorm until the new locks are installed.

There was a fire at the MSC radio station at 11:07 p.m. on Oct. 26. Andy Timm, assistant production manager, said a piece of equipment which erases tapes was accidently left on and overheated.

Mary Miele, building manager, saw the smoke as it filtered through offices in the Annex and called the local fire department.

A 1973 Chevy van was stolen from lot 21 on Oct. 29. The estimated value of the van is $500, and there are currently no suspects.

A Minolta camera, worth $129 was stolen from Blanton Hall on Oct. 28. Also, a $100 coat was stolen from the MSC radio station on Nov. 1.

On Nov. 3, a student left a purse outside a classroom in Finley Hall, a custodian recovered it but $60, credit cards and an ID were missing from the purse. These items, excluding the money, were returned to campus police the following day.

A Freeman Hall resident discovered an unknown male in her room, along with her sleeping roommates on Nov. 6 at 1:50 a.m. When she entered the room the man immediately fled the area. It was later discovered that $40 was missing from the room.

On Oct. 6, three text books worth $20 and a calculator were stolen in the kiln in the Calcite Fine Arts Building.

Health Careers program receives $220,999 grant

By Kathy Gilligan

A $220,999 grant, received from the United States Department of Health and Human Services expanded the Health Careers Program at MSC. Received in July '83, the grant funds the Health Careers Opportunity Program for the period running from Sept. '83 to Aug. '86.

The Health Careers Opportunity Program, in conjunction with the previously existing Health Careers Program, is designed to help disadvantaged students prepare for careers in health professions. Enrolled students must meet the requirements of the program, which include two summers of prescriptive course work, and a third summer of externship at cooperating professional schools, while maintaining their biology or chemistry major curriculum.

Formerly, enrollment in the program was limited to twenty students, but the receipt of the grant has enabled the program to include twenty additional students. "Students enrolled in this program must be highly motivated and capable," Rosie Noble, director of the health careers program, said.

Out of 270 nationwide grant applications, most from professional schools such as the Harvard and Yale Medical schools, twenty seven grants were awarded. Twenty of those grants were continuous, refunding programs already in existence. Seven were new competitive grants. The MSC program was awarded one of the competitive grants.

"MSC was one of the few colleges without its own medical school to receive one of these grants," Noble said.

"It is encouraging that our efforts at MSC are not only being rewarded but nationally recognized."

femininity. "When a man is assertive, he is considered ambitious. When a woman is assertive, she is considered a bitch," Elizabeth Garcia, chemical engineer for Exxon Chemical Company, said.

Garcia came to the U.S. from Cuba, and it took her almost two months to get a job offer. Her husband, who is also an engineer, received two job offers in a week and a half. "I had to work many times harder than men to prove myself. Things have changed, but we have a long way to go, in a male dominated world," Garcia said.

This program is the second in a series of "Women in Business Seminar," in memory of Helen Z. Rendall, who held the secretarial position of the Alumni Association of MSC, from 1961 to '71. Prior to this, she was a businesswoman, and was both interested and active in helping women obtain status and recognition in the business world.

Campus police report

Two alarms, one in Webster Hall and Freeman Hall were activated by smoke detectors on Nov. 1.

On Oct 31 at 1:52 p.m. and 9:36 p.m., false alarms were reported in the Bond House and Stone Hall.

There were several arrests in the last two weeks. On Nov. 6, at 2:46 a.m. a male began cursing and banging on the doors and windows in Webster Hall. He ran over to Blanton Hall, threatened the desk assistant and broke a card file. He later went to Blanton Hall and was abusive to the security guards. He was apprehended leaving Webster Hall.

On Oct. 29, a visitor who was arrested for trespassing in Bohn Hall was picked up by the Jersey City police and brought to the campus police. He was then brought to court and fined $50. Two others were also arrested for disorderly conduct. The two were attempting to crash a party at Blanton Hall. When denied entrance, they became loud and abusive and attempted to break the glass in the doors. The disturbance was broken up by campus police, who then arrested them.

MSC shouldn't have to shoulder the burden for a Little Falls officer's actions

Montclair State College and the Township of Little Falls are battling it out once again. They're still fighting about the dump site, but now a new skirmish is brewing. This one concerns a civil rights suit filed by three MSC students against a Little Falls police officer.

The problem is Little Falls Mayor Gaita wants MSC to take financial responsibility for the suit against the patrolman. This is absurd.

The incident occurred in September 1982, when students Greg Webb, Shawn Good and Anthony Turner were thought to be burglary suspects by a Little Falls police officer. The Little Falls officer saw the students in the vicinity of the crime, pulled a shotgun on them and forced them to lie on the ground. When Webb asked what was going on, the Little Falls officer aimed a shotgun at Webb's head and forced him to crawl on the ground to where the other two students were.

Since the campus police are not armed with guns, they often ask Little Falls officers for assistance in potentially dangerous situations. In return for their assistance, Little Falls receives $32,000 annually from the college in tax subsidies.

Gaita said Little Falls police patrol 75 percent of the campus and help defend the campus police. This is true. The MSC campus police do need their assistance, especially since they do not carry guns.

But MSC shouldn't have to pay the legal fees for a Little Falls officer, especially when the officer was out of line and aimed a shotgun at innocent students.

Yes, campus police asked Little Falls police for assistance that night in September. But campus police can't control the outrageous actions of a Little Falls officer, and MSC shouldn't have to pay the legal fees for such actions.

The problem with life is that it's full of problems

I've been doing a lot of thinking about the state of the world lately, and in light of current events this can be quite overwhelming. Suicide bombers, assassinations, and military invasions present a rather bleak picture.

In the face of these senseless happenings one tends, or let me say, it can be very easy for one, to feel utterly helpless. How can I, little insignificant me, make any difference? Why should I even bother to vote, it doesn't matter anyway, politicians are all alike, just different sides of the same coin. Right? Or not?

Day after day, life is just one big problem, or a series of little problems. Newspapers and television keep us posted on the big ones; our families, friends, jobs, and school provide the little ones. Plenty for everyone, never a shortage of problems.

Getting up in the morning is a problem in itself for many of us. As soon as we wake enough we remember all those problems we have to face during the day. And so we procrastinate, and then we're late and presto, we have another problem. Then we get to school, already running late, and we can't find a parking space and so we curse the administration, campus police, other drivers, and the registrar for scheduling this class at this time, and our professor for giving an exam today of all days. We haven't even gotten to our first class and already we're tired and we want to go home.

We somehow manage to make it through our day of classes, even the 3:00 which we weren't prepared for so it was a problem staying awake, and then maybe we have to run to work which is another problem because we can't stand our boss, or the work, or maybe we go home and we can't stand our roommate or our parents and that's another problem. And why even bother anyway? Especially after listening to the news on the car radio about all those problems out there. We've got enough of our own problems, we can't deal with those too, and anyway, it's useless, it's all too messed up to fix anymore. And so it goes...

Closer to home, what about the local news? Murders, rapes, thefts, accidents, you can't trust anyone these days. More problems. Day in and day out, everywhere we turn there's a problem waiting to happen, or so we come to assume. We can't walk across campus at night, we might be attacked; we can't ask her out; she might say no, or worse, laugh at us; we can't go out tonight because we either have no money or we have to do homework, or both; or we do go out and then we don't get our work done for the next day's class.

As I said, I've been thinking about this problem of life being full of problems. And I don't really have any answers. I have, however, shifted how I view the problems in my life, and in so doing the situation looks somewhat brighter.

First of all, I believe that we all want to make a difference in the world, that we are all naturally loving, and caring, and giving and able to make a difference. But from the day we are born that natural aliveness gets slowly suppressed, beaten down. We learn not to say this, not to do that, not to trust that kind of person, not to be too friendly or too generous or too nice. So what's the answer? I have no answer, but let me pose a few questions. What if, instead of seeing problems as problems, we see them as opportunities? What if, instead of expanding our energy avoiding problems, we use it to take them on or to face them? To be responsible for them? After all they are our problems, and then to move on to the next opportunity?

When we only see problems as problems it is very difficult to see beyond them to the opportunities and possibilities that life holds for us. They're endless! really!

So what's the answer? I have no answer, but let me pose a few questions. What if, instead of seeing problems as problems, we see them as opportunities? What if, instead of expanding our energy avoiding problems, we use it to take them on or to face them? To be responsible for them? After all they are our problems, and then to move on to the next opportunity?

When we only see problems as problems it is very difficult to see beyond them to the opportunities and possibilities that life holds for us. They're endless! really!

Again, I have found no answers, but I am finding that by living out of the questions, life is becoming an entirely new possibility. Carpe diem!

Smoking in MSC's buildings is illegal

To the editor:

Each year cigarettes cause about 340,000 unnecessary deaths in this country, according to a 1982 Surgeon General's report. Adults who smoke a pack or more a day are three times as likely to die of cancer as non-smokers. In December, 1981, the N.J. legislature passed a law controlling smoking in colleges and other schools, and last year the MSC board of trustees promulgated campus policy prohibiting smoking in libraries, elevators, classrooms and hallways on campus. Yet the state law and campus regulations are flagrantly violated by a remarkable number of otherwise nice people. Why is this?

Studies show that non-smoking spouses of smokers live four years less on the average than spouses of non-smokers. Experts conclude that the risk of cancer to those who breathe others' smoke is close to half of that to smokers themselves. Why should we be exposed to such a risk in order to work or study at MSC?

We suffer now from the lawlessness of smokers. Others without immediate health problems are made uncomfortable or even miserable by others' smoke. I feel strongly that this lawlessness should stop.

If you are willing to have your name used to promote healthy air, please sign a statement saying, "I support smoking in all libraries, elevators, classrooms and hallways on campus," and send it to me in care of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science. I promise I will use such statements only for publicity purposes on campus, and for petitioning the appropriate authorities to enforce the rules.

Tobacco smoke is the only substance beyond doubt to be carcinogenic. Why should we tolerate its illegal distribution in our living space?

Animals are getting a raw deal from people

To the editor:

I was driving along the highway when I was forced to stop short. There in the lane in front of me lay a dog, who seconds earlier had been full of life. Now he lay there gasping his last seconds.

Animals are getting a raw deal from people. Others without immediate health problems are made uncomfortable or even miserable by others' smoke. I feel strongly that this lawlessness should stop.

To the editor:

I suppose by transforming President Reagan into Theodore Roosevelt (Cartoon, Oct. 27, p. 10), Matt Natuck was trying to portray Reagan as a simple-minded, stative jingo. Without arguing Reagan's case (I think Matt's wrong—but that's a different issue), he's done a great injustice to old T.R., and inadvertently done too much for Reagan.

Theodore Roosevelt was a brilliant and energetic man, whose tenure in political office immensely benefited the people he served. While Governor of New York, he successfully fought corruption and the spoils system. As president, it is to him, more than anyone else, that we owe our system of National Forests and Parks; he was America's foremost and greatest, conservator. He was the first president to vigorously enforce the anti-trust laws; he created the Departments of Commerce and Labor; he saw to the passage of the Pure Food and Drug Act; through his support, the first employer liability laws were passed; and he effectively fought corruption in government, by big business.

These things alone would qualify him for greatness, but as if all of this were not enough, he earned the Nobel Peace Prize for mediating an end to the Russo-Japanese War, was the first head of state to bring a case before the Hague Court of International Arbitration, and saw to the building of the Panama Canal. It's true that in completing the canal, he interfered in the affairs of Columbia, but his interference was on the side of the Panamanians, who wanted to revolt, and resulted in the birth of the independent nation of Panama. The canal he built is now there, and will forever improve a source of prestige and pride to that nation for generations to come.

He's done none of these things, T.R. would still be remembered as a scholar and author. He wrote over thirty books on a variety of topics, and established himself as an expert on the American west, and as a naturalist.

While T.R. was a nationalist and patriot (traits once thought admirable in a man, but now in bad flavor), and believed in a strong and effective de-defense, he was not given to bragging. After all, it was T.R. who said, "Speak softly." But then, of course, he added, "But carry a big stick."

Unfortunately, T.R. has been most often remembered not for his accomplishments, but for his personal eccentricities, easy to caricature and greatly exaggerated by his political enemies. In the popular mind, he's come down to us as a bombastic, bullying jingo. It's truly shameful that he's so often thought of in this way. It could very well be argued that he was our greatest president. Certainly he has been a Democrat, but he's first in the liberal pantheon.

Incidently, should you be looking for a true embodiment of bully-neighbor foreign policy, you might try Woodrow Wilson, who invaded Mexico, or FDR, who sent thousands of American troops to fight in war. We can find better role models for ourselves.

Editor accused of slander and censorship

To the editor:

I believe this is a problem. I am sick and tired of seeing The Montclarion being used as a platform for a vicious attack upon President Reagan. The editorial editor uses whatever current issue he can find to slander the president.

The editor has twisted the facts of Lebanon and Grenada to suit his own purpose. And when his ignorance of issues and facts are unmasked, how does he respond? He doesn't print your reply to his editorials. Yes, there was a number of replies to the editor's column "Sunday, Bloody Sunday." But these replies only offered an alternative point of view. They did not directly attack the editor's viewpoint and logic.

I know I am not alone in finding The Montclarion that did challenge the viewpoint and logic of the editor, but were they printed? Of course not, and the excuse given is "Letter Policy." This "Letter Policy" is nothing but censorship. The editor may say he does not have to follow this policy. This is true, but when does the editor see fit to break this policy? Only when it suits his purpose.

Why was this policy not broken to publish the amount of letters in response to the "pressing, important and timely issues" of Lebanon and Grenada? Because we submit the purpose of the editor not to. The amount of times many students have asked The Montclarion to publish my views have been ignored.

I do not deny his viewpoint, but I do deny his right of censorship and his right to The Montclarion as a springboard for malicious attacks and slander of President Reagan. I hope this article will be printed, for it gives voice to and allows the issues. Let us doubt it will get past "The Censor."

Paul Chepura University Union/Junior/History

Editor's reply: Your attacks and accusations are totally unfounded and lack truth. Your letter to the editor was not printed in last week's edition of The Montclarion because of lack of space, not because of our "Letter Policy."

Your claims of censorship are equally unfounded. The Montclarion is a public figure, my comments about him are not slanderous, as the printing of his desires; promoting a weakening of our foundations and an outright corruption of our youth. I hope we never have to see the results of their thinking put into practice while I, or the generations to come after me, are still on this earth as we know it; far too many already live under such grave circumstances.

I strongly believe in promoting peace, but no, the means is always the question. Unfortunately, certain powers care little about freedom or the right to speak out. I will support those as well as any right to speak out. I will support those as well as any tax cut at any cost: these pursuits must be halted. War is never pretty and is a dreamer's fantasy. The result of fallen man and his lamenstate state of being. Often evil must be quenched with physical force, especially when the aggressor has closed his eyes and ears to reason and arms himself with logic, death and oppression.

Student input is needed for winter courses

To the editor:

How many of you students have ever wanted to take a general education course or an elective over winter session? I believe many students have problems getting the courses they need over winter session here at MSC. Many students need one class over winter session to graduate, instead they may have to wait until the next semester to graduate if they are unable to get it. This I feel is unfair

More courses should be offered over winter session to help the students. I feel the students should also have a hand in choosing courses. This suggestion would enable the students to select more courses that would be beneficial to the whole student body, not just a few students.

Another suggestion would be to offer more than one section to the most popular courses. This would enable more students to take a particular course. I also feel these courses offered over winter session should be recognized. I feel more students would take these courses if they were offered as an alternative to the spring session.

Why is Lot 13 barricaded in the morning?

To the editor:

So, the motorcyclists think they're upset about their parking spaces being stolen, do they? Well, at least they know who is responsible! The barricades go up at 7:15 a.m., and even those of us willing to get there at that early hour find ourselves walking from the quarry. Who is responsible? No one knows.

Are they students who value more for their parking decals than the rest of us that they should receive preferential treatment? And if they are students, who are they parking-space snatchers? Speak up and justify yourself!

I feel that the three deciding paying students of MSC deserve an explanation.

Klara Barlow will lead master voice class

Montclair State College’s department of music will present a master voice class by American operatic soprano Klara Barlow on Fri., Nov. 11, at noon in McEachern Recital Hall on campus. Four Montclair State students, Diane Durand, Barbara Kourmas, Jayne Maggio and Steve Andryszewski, will sing arias and art songs, and Barlow will give her impressions and insights, interpretatively and dramatically.

Barlow made her Carnegie Recital Hall debut as a coloratura soprano, and received lavish praise from the New York press as well as the best reviews of the season.

She auditioned for the European opera and was engaged for the next ten years fulfilling two year contracts with the opera houses of Bern, Oberhausen, Kiel, Wiesbaden and Zurich. After auditioning for the acclaimed stage director Walter Felsenstein, she was invited to East Berlin and Komische Opera where she appeared as Donna Anna, in his production of “Don Giovanni,” a production which was later filmed.

Barlow also appeared in the role of Isolde, after auditioning for Austrian conductor Kurt Boehm. Barlow’s greatest success was her return to the Metropolitan as a last-minute substitute in “Tristan and Isolde,” for which she received world headline, including a front-page article in the New York Times.

Barlow has since expanded her career by teaching master classes in voice, stage direction and dramatic motivation. She has toured for the past two years fulfilling two year contracts with the opera houses of Bern, Oberhausen, Kiel, Wiesbaden and Zurich. Ellis Island photo exhibit opens in College Art Gallery

The College Art Gallery at MSC will host a unique photo documentation of Ellis Island during November. The exhibit is a collection of photographs taken by a group of 17 advanced photography students from MSC this past summer. It opens on Fri., Nov. 11, with a reception to take place in the College Art Gallery from 5 to 8 p.m. that evening. The exhibit will continue through Fri., Dec. 10. The Gallery is located in Life Hall and is open weekdays, 5:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The exhibit portrays the current state of Ellis Island as it awaits restoration. Even with its overgrown foliage and broken plaster, Ellis Island today provides a haunting reminder of the place that represented, to 12 million immigrants, their first steps on American soil, a characteristic that is captured in the photographs.

The six-week summer project was conducted in conjunction with the National Park Service and the American Museum of Immigration. It gave students the opportunity to explore the history of America’s immigrants while providing documentation of the island and its facilities which ceased operations in 1954.

Under the direction of fine arts Prof. Klaus Schlotzner, originator of the project, the photographers first spent time exploring the history of the island through required reading and films on the subject, before beginning their photographic work. They traveled several days each week to the island and occasionally stayed overnight to obtain a variety of lighting situations. All processing and darkroom work took place in the fine arts photography facilities at the college.

Many companies lent assistance to the project through donations of materials and services. They include: Agfa-Gevaert of Teterboro, which provided film and photo paper; American Maritime Academy of Hoboken, which provided boat transportation to and from the island; Backley Press of Fairfield, which printed the poster of the project at no charge; Iford, Inc. of Paris, providing film and photo paper; Nelson Molding Design of Toms­send, MA., which provided frames, and Process Materiale Corp., of Ruther­ford, which provided mount board.

Admission to the exhibit is free. Further information may be obtained by calling the Office of Cultural Programming at (201) 893-5112.

Focus on Art: 1983

The 29th annual art exhibition and sale, that has come to be considered the most prestigious in New Jersey, will be open to the public on Dec. 4. Sponsored by the National Council of Jewish Women, Essex County section, the show will be held at the YM-YWHA of metropolitan New Jersey, 760 Northfield Avenue, West Orange, and will run through Dec. 7.

Representing American and international artists selected for their professional excellence, Focus on Art: 1983 will include over 1,000 pieces valued from $30 to $25,000 and will embrace many media from oils, lithographs, acrylics and prints, to sculpture and glass.

In keeping with the show’s tradition of reflecting current trends in the art world, this year’s special feature, “Southwestern Art” includes Indian pottery, Navaho rugs, Kachina dolls, Indian jewelry, paintings and baskets.

Doors will open for general admission on Sun. Dec. 4 from 1 to 9 p.m.; Mon. and Tues., Dec. 5 and 6 from 1 to 8 p.m.; and Wed., Dec. 7 from 1 to 9 p.m. There will be a charge of $2.50 for general admission and $1.25 for students and senior citizens. A special Children’s art workshop will be held on Sun., Dec. 4 from 1 to 4 p.m., to allow parents more time to view the show.

Over 500 volunteers work year round to organize Focus on Art. The money raised during the five-day exhibit funds many community service projects for youth, women, mental health, education, emigres and older adults based in Essex County and Israel.

For information, please contact National Council of Jewish Women, at 740-0588.
The magic is missing from Players Pippin production

By Stephen Kantrowitz

"We've got magic to do, just for you!" promises the cast of the musical, Pippin. Indeed, it is this magical quality that lifts the show from the ordinary to the sublime. Unfortunately, it is this very same quality that was glaringly absent from the Players' production.

The original Broadway production, which opened in 1972, was successful almost entirely due to the dynamic, explosive, and razzle-dazzle direction of Bob Fosse. He took the vacuous and pretentious book, and the pop-sounding but unimaginative score, and transformed them into a strutting, grinding, bumping evening of pure entertainment.

Pippin tells the story of a young man's search for life's meaning. The first-born son of King Charlemagne, Pippin sets out to find his niche, his "corner of the sky." He tries his hand at battle, he tries his hand at sex, he tries his hand at politics, but each of these leave him feeling empty and vacant.

We, too, feel empty and vacant. The story is only mildly interesting. The characters lack dimension. It's the staging and choreography that keep the show alive. Unfortunately, director Bob Rizzo allows the show's obvious weaknesses to rise to the surface. The minutes between musical numbers seem like hours. And then, to make matters even worse, the numbers themselves lack pizzazz. The majority of the performers are appealing, yet we grow quickly tired of outstretched hands and grinding torsos.

The casting of Kevin Gallagher in the title role was no less than a crime. Gallagher portrays Pippin as silly and aloof. He's supposed to be a symbol of modern youth: searching, questioning, exploring. However, Gallagher comes across as immature, unemotional, and unimpassioned.

We don't care that he's unhappy. We only wish that he would get off the stage. Worse yet is his singing. Out-of-tune only begins to describe his renditions. His frail croakings are nothing short of embarrassing. I honestly wonder why no one suggested he lip-sync from a recording. He also has a truly adverse effect on the rest of the cast. Whenever he is onstage, they work quite well. When he joins them, however, he actually throws them off balance.

McIntyre is, without a question, spectacular. He can dance, he can act and he entertains. He ties everything together and commands the action. McIntyre is, without a question, spectacular. Kevin Gallagher (Pippin) shares a pleasant moment with Catherine (Linda Bray).

He starts a little unsure of himself, but his confidence grows as the evening progresses. He sets a standard of excellence that is hard to match. Ben Vereen's shoes are very hard to fill, and McIntyre comes very close to filling them.

Another fine performance is given by Denise LeDonne as Fastrada. Pippin's step-mother. A sexy, sultry and wonderfully wicked personality, she was quite effective in the role of the queen. As Charles, Ted Shipon does an okay job. First coming across a bit "hammy" and too likeable for a despot, he finds his place later in the play. Linda Bray is pleasant, charming and supportive as Catherine, the woman Pippin finally falls in love with.

Pippin's half-brother Lewis is played by Thom Sweeney. Although he would be better if he put more command and false bravura into the part, he does quite an acceptable job. Also acceptable, though certainly not memorable, is Jillian Armenante as Bertha. Pippin's grandmother. She has one of the best numbers in the show, "It's Time to Start Living," in which she gives advice to Pippin on how to live his life. Foolishly directed to carry a microphone, she spends most of the number trying not to trip. Her singing and acting are all right, but she's no real personality. Where's Michele Tauber when we really need her?

Of the ensemble, Clinton Scott and Kevin Fabian stand out. Each gives that little extra push, that little extra effort that is certainly worth mentioning. The show has an over-all rushed, under-rehearsed quality, but there are some good moments and some good performances, and the play should be seen for these alone. Pippin runs tonight through Saturday in Memorial Auditorium.

Bertha (Jillian Armenante) leads the male dancers through a musical selection.

On the flip side is Gerry McIntyre as the Leading Player. This character serves many diverse purposes: master-of-ceremonies, narrator, commentator, entertainer. He ties everything together and commands the action. McIntyre is, without a question, spectacular. He can dance, he can act and he can sing. He shines with energy, vitality and vivacity. When he lets loose and gives his all, as does quite often in this show, it is nothing short of sensational.

Now we can detect a breast cancer smaller than this dot.

At such an early stage, your chances of living a long, healthy life are excellent. But we need your help. The only proven way to detect a cancer this small is with a mammogram. A mammogram is a low-radiation x-ray of the breast capable of detecting a cancer long before a lump can be felt. If you’re over 50, a mammogram is recommended every year. If you’re between 40 and 50, or have a family history of breast cancer, consult your doctor.

Will the NCAA deny the Indians a playoff berth again?

The college football season is nine games old and it is almost playoff time. Whether or not the Indians will participate in them this year remains to be seen. Their fate lies not only in Friday night’s contest against Glassboro State College but also in the hands of the playoff selection committee of the NCAA Division III East region.

Last year’s selections of Wagner (8-0-1) and St. Lawrence (9-0) were seriously questioned. Plymouth State (Pa.) boasted a 10-0 record, but they were overlooked. The fact that the undefeated Indians (8-0-2) played three Division III teams and beat two of them didn’t seem to help.

The Indians seem to have an advantage this year, however. They have beaten two Division II teams in Central Connecticut State and NYIT. Even though they tied their first game and lost the second, MSC has won its last seven games in a row and are ranked 8th nationally.

There is a total of 196 teams that make up Division III in the NCAA. These teams are divided into four regions (north, south, east and west) and only two teams from each region will participate in the playoffs. The teams are selected by regional committees of four members each. Their decision will be announced Sunday night after the conclusion of the regular season on Saturday.

The east region consists of 56 teams.

Alongside MSC in the running for a playoff berth are Hofstra University (N.Y.), Union of Schenectady and St. John’s University of New York. Hofstra boosted its record to 9-0 last week with a 24-14 win over Hobart and St. John’s also won, beating Georgetown of Washington D.C. 28-27 to improve its record to 8-1. Middleburg handed Union its first loss in nine games with a 24-21 upset.

The Indians are faced with a “must-win” situation against Glassboro if they want to advance to the playoffs. A win would put their record at 8-1-1 overall. Their conference mark would be eliminated.

But the chances seem very good for MSC, as their record can easily support. The Indians have won 19 straight NJSAC games in a row and they are 28-1 in conference play since 1978. Coach Giancola has watched his offense put 258 points on the board in the last five games.

The Indians must win Friday night at Glassboro to keep their playoff hopes alive.

be 6-0 and they would clinch their fourth N.J. State Athletic Conference football championship in the last five years. A loss would result in a third-place conference tie, providing Trenton State also wins, and playoff chances would be eliminated.

But the chances seem very good for MSC, as their record can easily support. The Indians have won 19 straight NJSAC games in a row and they are 28-1 in conference play since 1978. Coach Giancola has watched his offense put 258 points on the board while the defense has limited their opponents to just 131 points this season. The offense has averaged 212 yards passing and 171 on the ground per game for an outstanding average of 383 yards per game.

Mark Casale has been phenomenal at quarterback. The senior has completed 134 passes in 235 attempts for 1525 yards while connecting for 13 touchdowns. The Dallas Cowboys, Washington Redskins and Seattle Seahawks have already spoken to Casale, and a number of USFL teams are interested in him as well.

Jerry Waisel, Bob Vannoy and Archie Peterson are the big three in the Indian backfield. They have combined for 1419 yards and 17 touchdowns. Marc Fraunen has been Casale’s favorite receiver, as he has caught 41 passes for 556 yards and six touchdowns. The defense has done just as well and two players that may have gone unnoticed for too long are defensive end tackle Brad Wilbur and nose guard Bob Gross. Wilbur and Gross have provided the much needed leadership in a very young defensive unit, as well as carrying out their assignments in controlling the line of scrimmage in MSC’s tough 5-2 defense.

So, the fate of the MSC football team can be four days away. A dream that started in August’s pre-season camp comes down to the last conference game of the season and the decision of four men. With last year’s better memories of a playoff denial and the taste of a Division championship one game away in 1981, the Indians will have to play one game at a time and hope that fate is kind to them.

Indians continue to dominate over Jersey City State, 45-0

By John DelGuercio

The football team, after beating Jersey City State College (JCSS) 45-0 last Saturday, is ranked #1 nationally in the NCAA Division III.

It was the 14th meeting between the Indians and the Gothic, MSC has won all 14. Saturday’s game was their sixth meeting of the season.

MSC continued its domination Saturday, only allowing the Gothic within their 20-yard line once, while Indian quarterbacks Mark Casale and Walter Briggs passed for touchdowns each.

Jerry Wassel scored the first MSC touchdown from one-yard out, after Casale completed a 20-yard pass to Bryan Scipio. The 41-yard drive took only five plays. Joe Perry’s extra point attempt was good for a 7-0 Indian lead.

After a JCSS punt, Casale and the offense took over at the 1-yard line. On only nine plays, the Indians moved 99 yards, which was highlighted by a Casale-to-Bobby Vannoy-to-Bryan Scipio double reverse that went 16 yards. The score came on Casale’s first touchdown pass to tight end Perce Frauenheim from five yards out. Perry’s extra point was good for a 17-0 lead.

Following an 11-yard run by Bobby Vannoy, who ran 10 times for 98 yards, Casale hit three consecutive passes; one to Paul Donnell for 23 yards to Frauenheim, another for 14 yards to Mike Alboquerque, and a 12-yard touchdown pass to Scipio. Perry booted the extra point.

The game opened with a fumble by Ed Chavis, who led to their first possession into Indian territory. A Boswell fumble recovery, who virtually was a one-man offensive drive, hit two straight passes and ran 10 times, to put the Indians on the Gothic’s 13-yard line. JCSS setup for a 25-yard field goal attempt by place-kicker Juanito Chilusa. After the kick was blocked by Harold Clark, strong safety. John Dauber scooped up the ball and ran for a 54-yard touchdown. Perry’s kick was good as time ran out to give the Indians a 31-0 halftime lead.

Soccer team loses two; finishes the season at 5-8-3

By John Rivera

The MSC soccer team dropped their last two matches of the season last week, making their final overall record 7-1-1.

With Briggs at the helm, MSC moved 39 yards in six plays to set up Briggs’ first touchdown pass. Ed Chavis made the 15-yard catch. Briggs’ extra point was good.

Briggs’ second touchdown pass and MSC’s final score came in the fourth quarter with 3:06 remaining on the clock. Briggs hit Michael Vannoy for 4 yards out, and again Perry made the extra point for a final score of 45-0.

Casale completed seven of nine passes for 101 yards, leaving him just 49 yards short of the 6,000 career total mark. He can easily reach this mark next week when MSC takes on Glassboro State College next Friday at Glassboro, for the last regular season game. Kickoff time is 7:30 p.m.

Swimming team dives into season boasting two year record of 17-3-1

By Bob Stevens

The MSC women’s swimming and diving team enters this year’s season boasting a 17-3-1 record in the last two years, and are clearly among the top Division III programs in the East.

Among the 16 returnees are four time All American Janet Taylor, a senior from Caldwell, NJ and Cindy Lepore, a junior from Freehold NJ, three time All American to Monmouth College 4-3. Monmouth had 25 shots on goal while Monmouth had 25 shots on goal, leading the way. Frances De Rosa, Lisa De Nero, a National qualifier and Kathy De Bonis with added distance events.

Candela, Pam Roussell, Cathy Bohen and Lisa Bradley were rated among the top high school swimmers and divers in New Jersey last year.

Rams have a successful season, but they still lack recognition

By Perry “The Jet” Schwarz

The recognition for the New Jersey Rams football team is very limited. Few people know who the Rams are, or what their purpose is.

Slowly they’re getting the rankings and recognition they deserve, from the fans of the Montclair area. They have clinched the Mid East Conference Champions five times in their seven year existence in New Jersey.

This season the team is led by quarterback Ed McMichael and running back Bill Grundy. Mc Michaels, from Rutgers, has completed 102 passes out of 186 attempts, for 1,854 yards. Grundy has carried the ball 102 times for 847 yards. The Rams defense is tops in the nation against the run.

They have five players in the All Star game this year. Grundy and Stewart won’t be starting, but they’re there for backup. Accompanying them will be Doug Hayes and starting in the game will be wide receiver Reggie Beard and defensive back Maynard Freeman.

The Rams offensive squad averages 28.1 points a game, and can accumulate a running attack of 180 yards, and 173 yards with the passing game. The Rams appear to be a solid and organized pro league for the enjoyment. Cole Hayes and starting in the game will be wide receiver Reggie Beard and defensive back Maynard Freeman.
