Professor questions board on tenure denial

Three incidents of arson in Blanton Hall last week revealed that the building's fire alarm system was inoperable for an undetermined period of time, according to John Griffin, fire and safety officer at MSC.

"No one knows how long Blanton Hall was left unprotected, due to a malfunction of the fire alarm," Griffin said.

The malfunction was discovered by campus police because the alarm failed to sound after a resident assistant attempted to evacuate students during an incident of arson.

"The reset button was stuck, thus rendering the alarm system inoperable," Dave McComb, director of engineering for housing services, said.

At about 1:30 a.m. on Thurs. Dec. 8, papers on the door of a resident's room in the 4A wing were ignited by an unknown person. Stephen McLean, an R.A. in Blanton Hall said.

"Ten minutes later, a massage board on a door of an R.A. in the 4A wing was hit, and it set off the fire alarm and the building was evacuated," McLean said.

McClean said there was quite a bit of smoke in the halls and stairwells, but the smoke alarm didn't go off.

"Once the alarm sounded, the reset button was pushed and held in for four seconds and released," McComb said.

"The last time the button was reset it got hung up on the face plate and it didn't pop all the way out," McComb said. This rendered the alarm inoperable, he said.

"The next day I tightened the face plate and made the hole larger to give the button more clearance," McComb said. He added that the system is now in perfect working order.

McComb couldn't determine how long the building was unprotected due to the malfunction. "The last time the button was reset prior to this incident was in November, and I'm glad it was discovered and fixed. It's one of those tricky mechanical things," McComb said.

"It never seems serious until something happens, but of course it's serious and I'm glad it was discovered and fixed," McLean said.

Mike Rich, chief of campus police, said that a white male, medium build with blond curly hair, wearing a ten-gallon hat and white shirt, was seen in the vicinity right before the fires, but a search of the building was unsuccessful.

Rich also said that there was a possibility that this was a copycat crime because a female R.A. at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst was caught setting fires in her dorm and it got quite a bit of press coverage in local papers the day before the Blanton incident.

"Many doors to rooms in Blanton are covered with Christmas decorations which may be flammable," McLean said.

"All decorations, except for foil, which doesn't burn easily, are prohibited," Griffin said. "I've told managers to remove decorations but they haven't complied and I'm going to tell them again," Griffin said.

Blanton Hall was the site of three consecutive incidents of arson last week.

Special events on campus close Lot 13 to students

By Mark Hatfield

"We can handle casual visitors but we have already consigned parking area for special event visitors," Michael Puglisi, parking committee chairman, said. According to Puglisi, Lot 13 (across from the fine arts building) was designated as a special parking lot in June 82.

Jayeke Rich, chief of campus police, said Lot 13 has been closed so often this semester because of MSC's 75th anniversary. She said the math and computer department sponsored an event last week and the lot was closed to students for the entire day.

According to Rich, the sponsor of the event must give notice in writing to the campus police stating the number of required parking spaces. The campus police then reserve that number of spaces. The remainder of spaces are open to students. Rich said the entire lot is closed when over 200 spaces are required. They are closed for approximately 350 lots in Lot 13 now.

Rich said the reason students are turned away when the lot is empty is that the day's event might not start until 11:00 a.m. if students are allowed to park before that time there would be no chance of emptying the lot for visitors.

"What really aggravates me is when the main lot we pay for is closed to the students. I can't deal with competing for a parking space. I park down the pits and wait for the shuttle," Jerome Quinn, director of institutional planning said.

"One purpose of MSC is to sponsor special educational events," Puglisi agreed with Quinn saying we must realize the importance of public educational events. It's good for college/community relations. Puglisi said MSC should make it easy for special event visitors to park.

According to Quinn, MSC is conscious of the parking problem. He said, "Since the late sixties MSC has been considering a multi-level parking garage. This garage would be located either in the lot 30 is now (below the tennis courts), or where Lot 13 is). Quinn said this idea hasn't been discussed lately.

Another proposed solution was to rent Lot 13 to the hour by anyone wishing to park there. Quinn said this proposal was turned down by the parking lot committee.

Puglisi said the parking lot committee has talked about giving students advance notice of special events. He would like to have one sign posted near Lot 13 and a second sign at the lot's entrance one or two days before a scheduled event.

According to Quinn, approximately $100,000 is collected annually from the sale of parking decals, but over $100,000 is spent each year maintaining all of the lots. Quinn said the parking committee budget is spent on:

- salt for lots and roads
- traffic signs
- a portion of part-time parking staff salary
- maintenance depending on conditions
- purchasing parking decals
- electrical bill for the lighting of all lots

Quinn said this money was also used to renovate Lot 13 this past summer.

"Everytime there is a fire or bomb scare, we reset the alarm," Griffin said. "And when evidence has to be searched or students are searching classrooms, the alarm is activated in order to evacuate the building, and then it is reset by campus police," McComb said.

In order to reset the alarm, the reset button is pushed and held in for four seconds and released, he said.

At the meeting. They are Delores Gioffre, business administration and finance; Karrnour Pirouz, economics; Suzanne Trauth, speech and theater; Tina Jacobowitz, educational leadership; Robert Rich, educational leadership; Robert Gilbert, physical education; and Eduardo Gil and Kathleen Hughes, librarians.

The board also discussed the Cooperman proposal, which would allow individuals with a baccalaureate degree to take a subject matter test and engage in a long internship as an alternate route to teacher certification. Dr. David W. D. Dickson, president of the college, said he will reconsider giving Zeitlin tenure.

Five faculty members and two librarians were recommended for tenure at the meeting. They are Delores Gioffre, business administration and finance; Karrnour Pirouz, economics; Suzanne Trauth, speech and theater; Tina Jacobowitz, educational leadership; Robert Gilbert, physical education; and Eduardo Gil and Kathleen Hughes, librarians.

According to an analysis by Michelli of the new proposal, there will be "months of debate" during which other options may be discussed. For example, Michelli said "we could develop intensive training programs for individuals wishing to make the transition from another career to teaching."

In other business, Despina Katri, SGA president, resigned from the presidential search committee due to illness. Sandy Piceri, SGA treasurer, iniciated the president's place on the search committee. As a student representative, Puglisi said, she was involved in reviewing and describing the president's job, preparing a job outline, evaluating resumes, and choosing three candidates for the board of trustees to choose from.

"STUDENTS SERVING STUDENTS"
Students should guard books due to recent Student Center thefts

By Dan Johnson

There have been several incidents in which students have tried to sell stolen books back to the bookstore, according to Ada Middleton, assistant manager of the bookstore. Thus, students must have a validated MSC ID card, and must fill out a form, including name and address, when selling their books during "buyback." If a book is suspected of being stolen it will be taken from the suspect, Ada said. Employees usually look for a name in the book, but other distinguishing marks are often helpful in determining if the book is stolen. Heath Stanhyck, an employee of the bookstore, suggests students find their own way of marking their books, such as writing their social security number or birthdate in the book, in case of theft.

A case of arson occurred on Dec. 8, on the fourth floor of Blanton Hall. Two memo boards on residents' doors were set on fire, and a roll of flaming tissue paper was thrown through the hall. All flames were extinguished before campus police arrived.

A 1980 Datsun 200 SX, worth $5,000, was stolen from Lot 30 on Dec. 5. There are no suspects or leads in the theft.

A 1976 Monte Carlo reported stolen on Dec. 2, was found in Edison, and has been returned to the owner.

Several other thefts also occurred last week. On Dec. 6, $1,000 was reported missing from a safe in a student center office. The matter is under investigation.

Cash and merchandise were stolen from several vending machines on Dec. 6. In Partridge Hall, $46.20 was stolen from a soda machine, and $97 was stolen from a College Hall soda machine. Thirty dollars worth of cigarettes, and $25 cash were stolen from a College Hall machine. According to the police reports, these machines may have been opened by a key pick.

Four Chevrolet hubcaps made of chrome, and having a value of $100, were stolen from a car in lot 23 on Dec. 9. A $30 briefcase, containing several small articles, was stolen while unattended at Richardson Hall on Dec. 8.

One bomb threat and several fire alarms occurred last week. The bomb threat occurred at 3:25 a.m. on Dec. 8 in Bohn Hall. The first fire alarm went off at 4:45 p.m. Dec. 5, as a result of food cooking on the second floor of Freeman Hall. Another, at 11:34 a.m. on Dec. 7, was the result of food cooking in Webster Hall. Two others were of unknown causes. One was at 3:18 a.m. on Dec. 10 at Freeman Hall, while the other was at 6:55 a.m. on Dec. 11 at Panzer Gym.

A case of lewdness occurred at 11:36 p.m. on Dec. 8 at the Clove Road apartments. A white male, 5'10", 175 lbs., was seen exposing himself to two females after knocking on their window. He fled immediately.

Road Closings Due to Icy Conditions

Campus police have announced that steep inclines, such as Webster Road and certain Quarry roads, may be closed between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m., if icy conditions cause hazardous driving. These roads will be cleared by maintenance personnel for use during peak traffic hours.

Stolen Credit Card Misused by Students

Dr. Edward C. Martin, associate dean of student affairs, has been notified that possibly a dozen or more MSC students have been using a telephone credit card number that is reported as stolen. Telephone company officials have pinpointed several residence-hall telephones as prime sources of the calls. They have also been able to convince recipients of these calls to identify the caller.

Dr. Martin advises students, that misuse of telephone equipment and credit card numbers is a violation of federal and state laws, and can lead to serious consequences.

Volunteers Needed to Visit Elderly

The Montclair Health Association of Passaic County is seeking volunteers who will visit isolated elderly members of the community. A training course for the program will begin on Tues., Jan. 31. Art is one MSC student’s main ‘reason for existence’

By Eileen Oleksiak

"I was dabbling in art since I was a kid. Now, it’s not just a part of my life. For me, it’s a way of life. It’s the reason I live," says Jeff Jaffe, a senior fine arts major at MSC.

One of Jeff’s "reasons for existence" is the wood and stone structure that stands outside the Calvia Fine Arts building on campus. It took Jeff nearly the whole fall semester to set the piece up, which is an indication of the kind of commitment he has to his work.

"It’s an emotional involvement as well as a day-to-day involvement," Jeff says.

Jeff was born in South Africa and who studied art in Israel for two years, says "my art is affected by my history, my political convictions and the countries I’ve lived in. I’m presently involved with wood, stone and rope. These materials represent a unifying factor between the past and the present.

Jeff sees the past in terms of the ancient aspect of Israel, in that most of the structures are either stone or wood. The U.S., on the other hand, represents for Jeff a highly technical and modern society.

"I’ve narrowed myself down to my materials in a way. I’m seeking expression of certain ideologies through the materials I use," Jeff says.

Jeff gave the first exhibition of his art while he was serving in the South African army. "It was very successful and it gave me the impetus to carry on with it.

Jeff described the Big City or any big place for young people because "growth and opportunity really do exist there. It’s a young country trying to get settled and so many things are developing. Basically anything goes.

In New York, however, there’s not a lot of opportunity for people to be artists, or to be dancers," Jeff says.

Jeff left Israel, however, because he says, "it became difficult to deal with everyone walking around in military uniforms. When I go back, I hope the West Bank and Palestinian issues are cleared up.

Jeff also sees his art as a learning process both for the creator and the viewer. He explained how a professor gave him new insight into a piece of art he was working on. "If you’re going to close yourself, you won’t benefit."

So far, Jeff has been at MSC for 18 months (he will graduate in May), and he said the experience has been positive because of the college’s close-proximity to New York, which he says is the art center of the world.

"This is where it’s happening and I’m in the middle of it. It blows my mind every time I look at the skyline. The galleries here are phenomenal," Jeff says.

One of the major problems Jeff has encountered, along with many other students, is a lack of money. He received scholarships while in Israel, but has taken three jobs in the U.S. to pay for his education here.

He is an R.A. at Blanton and seems to know everyone on campus. Jeff says it’s not the position, however. "People tend to hear an accent."

Jeff also tutors in English and makes jewelry for some extra cash.

Jeff says this cloned attitude by one may be one of the reasons every piece of art work outside Calvia has been vandalized this semester.

Jeff says he doesn’t know how long he’ll stay in the U.S. after graduating in May. His family is in South Africa, but he says the situation there is getting worse and worse. "The white are getting whiter and the blacks are getting blacker."

Although Jeff seems somewhat uncertain about his future, he says, "I do know that in some way I’ll always be involved in art."

Jeff also sees his art as a learning process both for the creator and the viewer. He explained how a professor gave him new insight into a piece of art he was working on. "If you’re going to close yourself, you won’t benefit."

Study shows student reaction to 75-minute class schedule

By Susan Mearns

A survey by the environmental, urban and geographic studies department revealed students are almost equally divided in whether or not they favor the administration's proposal for 75-minute classes.

The 75-minute schedule proposal was submitted to the administration in October by Marshall Butler, registrar. It is now being studied by a faculty senate task force, and if approved, it will go into effect next year.

The student survey, conducted by a research and quantitative methods class, under the supervision of Dr. Harpene Singh, was designed to determine the effect the proposal would have on students' employment schedules, commuting time, and study habits.

A total of 376 students answered the questionnaire, which represents a sampling from the business administration and the departments of fine and performing arts, humanities and social sciences, math and computer science and professional studies.

Forty percent were for the change, 37 percent were against it, and 23 percent were undecided or impartial. Almost half of the students surveyed felt longer class periods would have no impact on their studies. Thirty percent said their employment schedules would not be affected. Twenty percent said they would have less time to work and 31 percent said they would have more time to work with 75-minute classes.

Of the students surveyed, 75 percent commute to school. Thirty-one percent said the change would be more convenient for them, 19 percent said it would be less convenient and 25 percent said it would not be affected.

There are many 75-minute classes already scheduled at MSC, and according to Dr. Jean Armstrong, vice-president for student affairs, overlapping is a problem now. Armstrong said the problem may increase rather than decrease with more 75-minute classes.

Susan Mearns, a student from the research and quantitative methods class, said, "I have a miserable time scheduling classes now because there is so much overlapping."

Stace Tuzik, a sophomore psychology major, said, "Unless all classes are 75-minutes, it would be difficult to schedule classes. It's needed for some classes, such as gym and sciences, but other than that it makes scheduling difficult."

Conservation Club given $500 for workshop

The SGA deliberated one hour over a bill which would appropriate $500 from the SGA unappropriated surplus for a workshop. The money would allow approximately 15 people to attend the environmental workshop at the New Jersey School of Conservation, from Jan. 27 to 29.

Legislators decided that the workshop would be open to all students. Anyone attending could get one credit from college. Total cost per person is $52 (plus $30 if the student wants credit). The legislature passed this bill specifying that $30 per person and up to $500 would be appropriated.

In other business, a survey about the SGA, compiled by the Public Relations Committee, showed that students are using the SGA and its services. But, the SGA services need to be publicized more and SGA members need to be more readily available to the students, Brian O'Reilly, SGA legislator, said.

Bill A-893, which gives the student representative from all New Jersey state colleges to the Board of Trustees the right to vote, will be voted on today. "It looks as if it will pass," Despina Katsis, SGA president, said.

The parking problem of closing Lot 13 on days when there is a special event on campus was discussed. Last year, the SGA agreed to have this lot closed on specific days for specific events instead of having a portion of the lot rebuilt into a visitor's parking lot. Even so, there seems to be a great number of days when this lot is closed to students. John LoBasso, president pro-tempore, said.

The SGA constitution was amended to include that members of the students, Brian O'Reilly, SGA legislator, said. "I have a miserable time scheduling classes now because there is so much overlapping."

Stace Tuzik, a sophomore psychology major, said, "Unless all classes are 75-minutes, it would be difficult to schedule classes. It's needed for some classes, such as gym and sciences, but other than that it makes scheduling difficult."

HAPPY HOLIDAYS
From the vice-president’s desk

To the editor:

Every student at MSC is deeply concerned with the amount of tuition charged each year for higher education in the state of New Jersey. Even in the best of times, there has always been a question as to whether or not the state is bearing an appropriate portion of this burden and whether our students are being placed in the awkward position of shouldering financial burdens that often stretch beyond family means.

This issue is an even more controversial one currently because of the suggestion by the governor’s efficacy review that perhaps tuition at the state colleges might rise as much as 55 percent in order to relieve the state’s tax revenues from some of the difficult stress currently experienced as a result of high demands for additional funds by virtually every state agency.

Many factors contribute to this issue. State tax revenues are clearly important and even more significant is the perception of the governor and the legislature as to the priority higher education is to have amongst competing state agencies, in a marketplace with limited funds.

None of us individually is in the position of significantly influencing these broad statewide problems in any way other than in the way in which we act as a community at the local level. We are responsible at MSC for the way we conduct ourselves in the acceptance and expenditure of our funds and the way in which we attempt to make the most of the limited monies provided to us through both state appropriations, and our tuition and fee income. Are we fulfilling these responsibilities?

In one noticeable way, we are indeed failing. We are constantly addressing problems of vandalism on MSC’s campus, which are extremely costly events which take away scarce resources from other areas which are much more properly directed toward the quality of the educational experience provided here.

Not all vandalism on the campus takes place by our own students. Much of it in fact takes place by guests of our college community, and in some cases I’m afraid unauthorized visitors to the college. Most recently, within a two week period, huge glass windows were broken in the Math/Science building, replacement of which cost $2397.50. This is a lot of money! In one case a rock was thrown through one of the windows and in the other, a cover from one of our trash receptacles was heaved through the window.

This sort of childish and malicious mischief is inappropriate and costly, and ultimately results in the college’s inability to do something in the absence of adequate resources. As members of MSC’s community we all have a responsibility to monitor these things as best we can.

As Pogo once said, if we’re not part of the solution, we are clearly part of the problem. Let’s all help and try to eliminate some of this senseless and costly mischief on our campus. After all, in the end we pay higher tuition and fees as a result.

Upperclassmen dorm is needed

To the editor:

I think that the elimination of Free­men Halls as an upperclassmen’s dorm was a mistake. The events of this past semester indicate to me that there is a need for an upperclassmen’s dorm.

Upperclassmen, on the other hand, have learned to respect the privacy of others and the need for independence is something that they demand. By this time, most of the upperclassmen are here to study, make good grades, and hopefully graduate on time.

BSCU praised for Harvest Ball

To the editor:

I would like to congratulate the Black Student Cooperative Union on their excellent work in putting the Harvest Ball together. The Harvest Ball, which was held on Nov. 21, featured Ismeel Jameel, who is a world philosopher on nutrition. Mr. Jameel’s speech had a profound effect on the audience.

He spoke on many types of foods and ingredients which we use that are not good for the body. Before leaving Mr. Jameel left a list of foods and ingredients that are good for you. Also featured was a professional jazz band, which put us in a mellow phrase of mind.

I would like to thank Wandra Bell and Arkadomo Jackson, who are in charge of the Cultural Affairs Committee of BSCU, for their hard work in putting the Harvest Ball together. I would also like to thank the other families and members of BSCU, who took time out to come and support the students of MSC.

I feel that more programs like this will not only entertain students, but educate them as well.

The holidays: A time for reflection

As the semester furiously winds down to a close, we here at MSC should be heading into winter break not with an attitude of relief, but rather with an attitude of reflection.

We've all gone through a semester full of papers, exams, TV shows and paintings due. We've heard new complaints about the dump, ever-present complaints concerning parking and the generally ranting about the way things are generally run here at MSC. There have been too few instances to point to when something positive has been highlighted.

Walking to classes in a December rain might have the tendency to make people forget about the world around them and concentrate only on their wet feet. It's time for the students of MSC to realize how good we have it here and to be thankful for the opportunity to decorate our Christmas trees, light our Menorahs and celebrate the holidays in the settings and solitude of our own homes.

None of us will be hanging garland around our sandbag bunkers in Lebanon, or we won't be a Marine, closer to Jerusalem than ever before in our life; still not able to celebrate the holidays the way nobody military or American family can who will be celebrating the holidays this year without their loved ones who died in vain on the far-off shores of Lebanon and Grenada, should not be forgotten. Americans should be heading into 1984 reflecting and perhaps re-evaluating the events of this past year, with the thoughts and hopes of preventing them in the future.

Closer to home, just down Valley Rd, in Clifton, N.J., 23-year-old Ricky Gugel, Jr. is spending his holidays fighting for his life against cancer. His battle has been one that he has had to wake up to and fight for the past five years.

Ricky has undergone nine operations, radiation treatments and chemotherapy, all of which have failed to halt his disease, lymphoma cancer. He has spent over 325 days in the hospital over the years and is now undergoing a Federal government- and National Cancer Institute-sponsored experimental drug program at Sloan Kettering Cancer Center in New York, using a new prototype drug. He has become only the fifth person in the country to agree to experiments previously done only on rats and monkeys.

In addition to the frustrations from his disease, Ricky was fired from his job as a Department of Public Works employee for the City of Clifton. He was fired during an eight-day hospital stay, because he forgot to write a letter asking for a leave of absence. Recently his family has also been hit by hard times; his father has lost his trucking company and his mother has lost her job. Recently his family has also been hit by hard times; his father has lost his trucking company and his mother has lost her job.

To help his son and other lymphoma cancer victims, Ricky's dad has founded Lymphoma Cancer Society of America. Ricky needs help and he needs it right away. He requires blood and drug transfusions every day, just to live.

Starting this holiday season, the Lymphoma Cancer Society, or who wish to donate blood for Ricky, can contact his father, Richard Gugel, Sr., at 470 Piaget Ave., Apt. K-2, Clifton, N.J. 07011, or call him at 478-9009.

viewpoint/Susan August

used to be different, now I'm the same

As the semester is coming to a close and I can actually see my desk top again, I've had a bit of time to ponder about the holidays. I used to get very angry around this time of year, as I would witness what seemed to me the bastardization of Christmas. (I do not mention Chanukah because quite honestly I don't know much about it, though I would guess what I refer to can also apply to this holiday as well).

I would become sad, discouraged and very disappointed in the human race as a whole, as I witnessed the pagan-like rituals in malls and stores, and the obsession with the monetary value of things over the very act of giving itself.

I've come to see that much of our self-indulgence comes from our own feelings of despair, from the belief that we as individuals don't make much of a difference in the world. Statistics on suicide and depression make that despair very real. It is at this time of year that we have the highest rate of suicides and depression. (Kind of ironic when we remember that Christmas is a time to celebrate the birth of our "savior.")

Although I am still very much aware of our pathological ways, I am not saddened or discouraged by them anymore. You see, I used to think I was different, that I cared more, that I wasn't indifferent like the rest of the world. At the same time, however, I also thought I couldn't make much of a difference in the world. So I got real good at passing judgments in my mind and during the 1982 holiday season, 30,000 volunteers brought gifts and shared both Christmas and Chanukah with 210,000 people in psychiatric facilities, nursing homes, orphanages prisons, shelters for battered wives and children, and other institutions throughout the U.S., Canada, Mexico and Puerto Rico. Through corporate and individual donations, over $300,000 was raised.

According to one Project organizer, "The purpose of the Holiday Project is to give people an opportunity to experience what the holidays are really about, so they can create a context in which to hold them and have them be a real celebration and contribution to people's lives."

There are many different ways to participate—wrapping gifts, visiting facilities, contributing money or donating goods and services.

People confined in institutions rarely have the opportunity to make a difference in others' lives. Through the Holiday Project, volunteers give these people that opportunity.

Have a wonderful and restful vacation and a very happy holiday!

P.S. If you'd like more information about the H.P., call (212) 922-1200 and ask for the Holiday Project.

NJSA president gives a point of view not included in article

To the editor:

After reading your headline article about the New Jersey Student Association (NJSA), I felt obligated to inform you that it was poorly written and unfair to the association. Included with my feelings about your article are some of NJSA's recent accomplishments.

We have appeared on television and radio speaking out against the Solomon Amendment. One interview was conducted with Congressman Solomon himself. (Last week the U.S. Supreme Court agreed to hear the case.)

When assembly speaker Allan Karcher wanted to meet with students to discuss the Governor’s Management Improvement Program (GMIP), NJSA was the first contact made by his staff, and we were instrumental in organizing students to meet with him. We also coordinated a meeting on the same day with the assistant director of GMIP.

The thought of raising tuition by 55 percent is a disgrace, when New Jersey already ranks next to last in the nation in higher education spending.

Last month A-853 (the student trustee bill) came up on the senate agenda, as well as the senate bill. The Montclarion did not mention that Ramapo was also in support of our position, along with MCT, Trenton, and Kean Colleges, as well as The Montclair State University staff.

NJSA has pushed voter registration on campuses this fall, and a workshop will be conducted at our statewide conference in February, on “Running a Successful Voter Registration Drive.”

We are beginning to work on A-3642, a bill to expand student eligibility for the state tuition aid grant program from four to five academic years. If passed, this would be of great assistance to many students who now have to double major or change majors along the way.

It is extremely important to remember that NJSA was only in existence for 18 months when I took office as president 19 months ago. We have been very successful in disseminating information and speaking out as the student voice. I am proud of NJSA’s accomplishments and I foresee us becoming even more successful over the next six months.

I am sorry to say that The Montclarion printed an unfair article about NJSA, only quoting the three student government presidents who are opposed to our organization. What happened to the other six SGA presidents? When I asked Ms. Oleszkak, before she completed the article, to get a quote from one of the other six, she said “I am sorry, I have a deadline to meet.” Well, I am sorry too! That was irresponsible reporting! The article was a disservice to the students of MSC, as well as the 70,000 students in the state college system who depend on our services.

The article mentioned two individual “single campus” statewide (9) teams. It did not mention what these organizations have done, and I’m certain that their successes (if any) cannot stand in comparison with our activities over the last six months as a state student association. Your article states that McMahons oversees the SSC “statewide team,” but later in the article you say that Connera heads the team. Which is correct?

A point that should not go unnoticed is that when The Montclarion writes a story on tuition ceiling hikes, tuition increases, GMIP, A-893 or National Student Lobby Day, they call NJSA because they can trust us as a good source. Most of the other campus newspapers call us for information and feel the same way.

The NJSA is not just concerned about state and federal legislation. It’s a shame that campuses share so many common campus problems (crime, asbestos etc.), and we can’t get all student governments around the state to attend a meeting and discuss them. We invite all student governments to every NJSA meeting.

I don’t blame the student governments, because it is only a few students at these campuses that prevent unity and an exchange of good ideas from taking place.

These few students have to learn that people, at times, must work side by side with people they dislike in order to achieve common goals. Patience and perseverance is necessary, and our enthusiasm far exceeds our problems. We feel that these organizations are cults dedicated to taking over all the religions of the world.

Fourthly, Jack Chick is not a member of the Assemblies of God. We don’t agree with his views, and feel that he is a proven crank.

Finally, I would hope before people go on a witch hunt, that they check out the facts before formulating any opinions. I also hope that as a legislator Jerry Boyle will be more careful to diligently seek the facts before discrediting a good organization.

Your sincerely,

Bill Solomon
NJSA President

Computer aides offer little help

To the editor:

This letter is in reference to the student aides available at the computer room. If you are a business major like I am, you probably know that some professors assign computer assignments in non-computer classes.

My professor told the class that if we ran into problems, the student aides are there to help the students. Unfortunately, I had several humiliating experiences with the student aides.

For instance, one time I was working on the terminal, and I asked a student aide what she should do if I made a mistake. He quickly corrected my mistake, but did not show me in an intelligent manner what the actual procedure was. He was in such a rush, I could not even write it down.

So every time I made a mistake, I would walk over to ask for help, and the student aide would roll her eyes and treat me like I was the biggest nuisance he ever came across. No doubt I felt like crying, and getting out of there.

I just want to point out that it is obvious that most of the student aides do not like to help non-computer majors. I wish they would realize that most people find computer work very inhibiting, due to its complexity and detailed nature.

In addition, if they really do not know the answer to something, I wish they would admit it instead of wasting the students’ account time, and money.

The worst incident I experienced happened when I told the aide I had to press some key before I started the program. In order for it to print out afterwards, she told me that she was positive that it should be pressed accidentally. After this, she was working out the assignment, and following her instructions, I returned the computer, and a bill came later. I hope the reason for my humiliation is justified, and I hope the student aides will be more helpful and patient in the future.

Letter Policy: Letters to the editor must be typewritten and double spaced. The deadline for letters is 3 p.m. the Monday before Thursday publication. Letters must be signed, but names will be withheld upon request. Letters must include student’s year and major in order to be published. The Montclarion reserves the right to edit all letters for reasons of style and brevity.

Chi Alpha denies accusations

To the editor:

This letter is in response to Jerry Boyle’s letter about Chi-Alpha in last week’s Montclarion. I don’t mind people criticizing our views or beliefs, but I do get upset when people make unfounded statements that are slanderous. It is also frightening to think that someone who is a legislator, and in such a position of authority can be so misinformed, and then irresponsibly publicize the information without checking the facts.

First of all, we never said, nor believe that the “Bike, Kwanis Club, Lions Club, Rotary Club, fraternities, country clubs,” etc. “worship the devil.” There are many fine and outstanding Christians in these organizations.

Secondly, we never said, nor believe that these organizations are cults dedicated to taking over all the religions of the world.

Finally, I would hope before people go on a witch hunt, that they check out the facts before formulating any opinions. I also hope that as a legislator Jerry Boyle will be more careful to diligently seek the facts before discrediting a good organization.

This will be the last edition of The Montclarion for the fall semester. Our next issue will be Feb. 1, 1984. Have a happy holiday!

What makes Terms of Endearment the movie every critic and his brother is raving about? There have already been so many stamps of approval being dished upon this movie, that to praise it any further almost seems superfluous.

However, Terms of Endearment is a rarity; an intelligent, sensitive movie that is the equal to the best of its kind. It is the kind of film that demands all the adoration? It isn't about nuclear war or the radio, the lecture circuit, and the cover of Life Magazine. It is a non-musical grade Z horror flick, Little Shop of Horrors. This remake of The Montclarion/Tburs.. Starring in the title role of Silkwood, Meryl Streep has once again proven herself to be one of the finest actresses in the industry today, possibly ever. The film is based on the personal and professional conflicts of Karen Silkwood. She died in a mysterious car crash in 1974 while attempting to expose potential dangers in the Kerr-McGee plutonium plant in which she worked.

With the recent viewing of The Day After, we have all become shockingly aware of potential dangers of nuclear weaponry. Silkwood brings potential dangers of radiation even closer to home. The story is that it is not the technology itself which poses the threat, but those who use and abuse it. It is the man, Kermit McGeey, who is able to sell the nuclear energy as a bright future promise to be, along with the movie every critic and his brother is raving about.

This movie is a rarity: an intelligent, sensitive movie that is the equal to the best of its kind. It is the kind of film that demands all the adoration. It isn't about nuclear war or the radio, the lecture circuit, and the cover of Life Magazine. It is a non-musical grade Z horror flick, Little Shop of Horrors. This remake of the Audrey II promises to be, along with Terms of Endearment, one of the year's best films, providing us with useful insights as well as pure entertainment. See it soon.
Eastwood blasts again

By Patrick Kavan

Poor Inspector Callahan. He gets it from all sides. The judges throw his cases out of court because of illegal search and seizure. The San Francisco police commissioner wants him to stop his one-man war against corruption, apathy, and red tape in the system because he is an administrative dinosaur. Heck, he can't even get a cup of coffee in his usual coffee shop without having to block your four or five circles of Hell.

Everybody's favorite homicidal homoceptive, Dirty Harry Callahan, is back to his old tricks in the fourth Dirty Harry film, Sudden Impact. The title apparently refers to the shotgun weapon, the .44 Magnum Automag, which is something like a cross between a handgun and a cannon. He alternates between this and his old favorite, the .44 Magnum, "the most powerful handgun in the world, and can blow your head clean off.

This time around Harry is after a killer with the nasty habit of shooting men in the groin and in the head. The identity of the killer is no mystery at all; it is none other than Mr. Eastwood's real life sweetheart herself, Sondra Locke.

Locke plays Jennifer Spencer, an artist on the revenge trail for a gang rape ten years ago that left her sister catatonic, and causes Miss Spencer to paint things that look like they came from a mental hospital's arts and crafts show. Eventually she and Harry meet, and it's a marriage made in heaven. How many other women can be compared to Harry so easily? Although they are on opposite sides of the law, they are both walking a thin line by taking justice into their own hands.

The thing to keep in mind is that the twenty or so people Harry and Jennifer kill between themselves are all killed justifiably. By the second time we see the brutal rape in flashback, we're ready to kill the rapists ourselves. Harry himself is a master at walking into situations that warrant a little gunplay.

After killing the four coffee shop holdup men, and receiving his customary slap on the wrist, he is forced to take a vacation. Before he even leaves town, he causes three drownings, shoots three men, and frightens a Mafia don into a fatal heart attack. All justified, of course.

Eastwood directed himself in this film, which made me slightly apprehensive. I'm not saying that the role of director intrinsically makes for a better acting performance, I mean, how hard can it be to act like Dirty Harry? You just have to look Involved most of the time, which Clint does quite well.

Overall, Sudden Impact is a fun and surprisingly funny film, and it is all the things a good Dirty Harry film should be. For the uninitiated, I suggest putting aside expectations of a typical police drama and not confusing the film with the stuff he does here. Sudden Impact can only be truly appreciated if you remember the Law as perceived by Dirty Harry; if you do something very bad, you must be punished. The punishing must not be done by the System, which is almost bad, but by Harry. What makes Harry right? He is on the side of Justice and Freedom. Besides, his gun is gigantic.

Women's swimming team evens record

The MSC women's swimming team evened its record at 2-2 by defeating Kean College 88-43 last Saturday. Coach Greg Lockard was extremely pleased with his team as they took 13 of 16 events.

Freshman Doris Weder was the Indian standout as she broke the MSC record in the 1,000-meter freestyle event. Weder was clocked at 11:32.01, breaking the old record by over a minute. Frances De Rosa was second in the MSC with a time of 13:13.56.

Another event in which the Indians placed first was the 400-meter relay with the team of Audrey Finkel, Pam Roussetl, Maureen Thomas and Denise Mohrichi coming in at a time of 4:55.11. In the 200-meter freestyle, Junior Lisa DeNero won with a time of 2:17.73, while teammate Lisa Bourne took second in 2:23.16. DeNero also placed first in the 50-meter freestyle with a time of 20.53.00.

Noreen Rotfruss was a triple winner, taking first in the diving required, the 50-meter breast stroke and the 200-meter breaststroke. Coach Lockard said he is very optimistic about the rest of the season. "We are swimming very well right now and we have a good chance of winning our remaining six dual meets," he said.

The team's next meet will be at home against West Point on Saturday, starting at 2 p.m.

Women's Indoor Track

Members of the women's indoor track and field team fared well in a recent developmental meet at East Stroudsburg State College. The Indians came home with four third places and a number of strong performances.

The distance medley team consisting of Liz Dilla, Laura Frisch, Sarah Somar and Dana Caruso ran a 13:54 for third place. The team was led by an incredible half-mile time of 2:33 for Dilla, who hasn't been able to work out on any kind of steady basis for almost a month. Caruso also ran a competitive time of 5:30 for the mile leg, despite suffering from an illness for most of the season. Caruso later returned to run a 2:32 in the 880.

Frisch improved her 640 time from the distance medley to aid the Indians in a third place finish in the spring medley, running a 64.3 as compared to her previous 65 flat. Cyndi Maddox also ran a tough race, finishing her 220 leg of the medley in 30.8. Maddox, along with Frisch, also competed in the 4X 220 relay, where they ran times of 31.3 and 28.8 respectively.

Karen McMurtry cleared four feet ten inches in the high jump to claim third place out of seven jumpers, and Noreen King, who just started classes and doesn't have the knowledge that I have obtained now," she said.

Some of the Generals' requirements consisted of being 18 years of age or older, having dance or modeling abilities, poise and eye contact with the audience. "I didn't take the tryout seriously at first," Jenkins said. "I just went out there and used my talent. If I had a routine ready, I probably would have forgotten it. So, I went out and did what I was trained to do, dance," she said.

Jenkins dances over half a day at MSC. She specializes in tap, aerobics and other sorts of dancing techniques.

Jenkins may be USFL cheerleader if selected from finalists on Sunday

By Perry "The Jet" Schwartz

MSC has succeeded in producing several professional athletes such as Terry Porter and Sam Mills, who are both playing for the USFL and Sam Bond with the NFL. However, MSC may be known for producing professional cheerleaders if Nettie Jenkins makes it to the Generals Squad. She was picked for finals on Sunday, Dec. 20 at the Sheraton Inn.

Out of 10 girls, Jenkins was the only one picked for the finals. Jenkins has cheered basketball games at MSC for four semesters and football for two.

"I give most of the credit for my success to my dancing teachers at MSC. "They really helped me a lot," Jenkins said. "When I came here I didn't have the knowledge that I have obtained now," she said.

MSC's winners and losers of fall '83

Since joining The Montclarion over a year-and-a-half ago, I have wanted to become sports editor and write my own column. Well, I finally received my wish. Last month I was elected sports editor, and this is my inaugural edition of Connolly's Corner.

This weekly column will attempt to give some insight into the MSC sportsworld. Any opposing views to my own are welcome, as I do not claim to know everything about sports. Enough with introductions.

Connolly's Corner

As the semester comes to a close, I feel it is appropriate to highlight a few of the winners of fall '83.

Heading the list is Mark Casale, the senior quarterback who passed his way into the MSC record books 16 times during his college career. His highest honor came this season when he surpassed the 5,000-yard passing mark to make him the leading passer in New Jersey collegiate history.

His coaching style reminds me of the Miami Dolphins' coach, Don Shula. He has the discipline and ability to get the most out of his players, as evidenced by his 363 career wins. Although Gelston does not put much stock in his record, it is an honor and a mark of distinction for Gelston, the MSC sports program and the college.

Congratulations should also go to soccer standout John Ioannou, who set a single season MSC scoring record with 23 goals. Kevin Cooney did an excellent job in his first season as the fall baseball team coach, recording the team's best record ever at 17-1. Another rookie coach that had a noteworthy season was the women's cross country coach. Tim Marotti had a good season, finishing third in the state championship.

Aside from the men's basketball team, which is still unbeaten in five games, the football team also had an outstanding season. The team is in the thick of the NEC playoff race and is one of the top teams in the country.

Another team that had a successful season was the wrestling team. They finished third in the state championship. Dana Caruso was the team's standout in the championship.

Although the men's basketball head coach, Ollie Gelston, has not had his name engraved in the New Jersey collegiate record books, he will shortly become the winningest coach in the state's history. Gelston is only four victories short of the record. His coaching style reminds me of the Miami Dolphins' coach, Don Shula. He has the discipline and ability to get the most out of his players, as evidenced by his 363 career wins. Although Gelston does not put much stock in his record, it is an honor and a mark of distinction for Gelston, the MSC sports program and the college.

Presently, they are using their own money to hold practices. They will be competing in the NCAA and if anyone is still interested in joining, they are always accepting new members. If you love to ski, that is enough. You don't have to have raced before. Anyone interested can contact Mark Colino at 591-6693 or Tom Stewart at 239-4407.

In closing, I would like to wish all of the teams a successful winter break, and to everyone, a terrific holiday. See you next semester.

Men’s basketball team wins two, remain unbeaten and atop NJSAC

MSC 88 - Rutgers Camden 53

By Perry “The Jet” Schwarz
The men's basketball team defeated Rutgers Camden 88-53 Saturday night in Panzer Gym. The Indians immediately jumped out to a 10-lead and maintained the lead for the entire game. However, with 6:49 left in the first half, Rutgers pulled within two.

“They (Rutgers) are good athletes, and when we tried to steal the ball and press, things started going against us,” said Indian head coach Oliver Gelston. The two-point margin didn’t last long as then MSC’s Charlie Coe popped four quick, unanswered points on the board bringing the score to 34-26.

Coe had 19 points on the evening, 10 coming in the first half. The Indians went into halftime with a 42-30 lead.

According to Gelston, MSC has been playing better in the second half. “Our key player in the defense is Bobby Smith. When he’s in the game, the team does well. However, if he isn’t, the team will have to work hard for the victory,” Gelston said. Defensively Smith grabbed 11 rebounds, while Chris Mann handled six, and Ty Durkac and Bryan Gabriel had five apiece.

Another major asset to MSC’s win was foul trouble. A total of 28 free throws were completed out of 31 attempted. “We shot our best at the free throws. A total of 41 percent from the floor, totaling 25 points as the game’s high scorer. Senior Kevin Ketchum pumped in 14 points, while shooting 6 for 10.

The three other Indians hitting for double digits, were Junior Robert Schramm (13) and senior Chris Mann and Junior Bryan Gabrielson each had 10 points on the evening.

For Rutgers Newark, who are now 0-7, freshman Robert McCrady put on a one-man show, as he scored 20 of his team’s 45 points.

MSC 94 - Rutgers Newark 45

By John Connolly
The men’s basketball team remained unbeaten by romping Rutgers University of Newark, last night by a score of 94-45.

The Indians are now 5-0, and all of the games have been in the New Jersey State Athletic Conference. MSC sits atop the NJSAC, as they are the only team that still has an unblemished record.

The Raiders, before their home crowd, were clearly outmatched by the Indians. On the game, the Indians had impressive 63 percent from the floor, and went into halftime with a comfortable 44-23 lead.

MSC had five players in double figures. Robert Smith, a junior from Newark, put on a show for his hometown, shooting 10 for 12 from the floor, totaling 25 points as the game’s high scorer. Senior Kevin Ketchum pumped in 14 points, while shooting 6 for 10.

The three other Indians hitting for double digits, were Junior Robert Schramm (13) and senior Chris Mann and Junior Bryan Gabrielson each had 10 points on the evening.

For Rutgers Newark, who are now 0-7, freshman Robert McCrady put on a one-man show, as he scored 20 of his team’s 45 points.

MSC battles GSC Saturday

Coach Oliver Gelston and the Indians will defend their unbeaten record, when they face conference arch-rival Glassboro State College at home Saturday night. Tip off time is 8 p.m.

Tumblers drop second straight but still continue to perform well

By Kathy Sorentino
The women’s gymnastics team suffered their second defeat of the season to NCAA Division I University of Pennsylvania by a score of 156.8 to 137.65.

Junior Wendy Bossier once again led the Indians in team points, picking up three third places, a fifth and a sixth. Another junior, Meredith Gallojav, did extremely well in the balance beam despite losing three tenths for time, placing third with an average of 7.65, her high score being 8.1.

Mitali Mandel, the team’s captain and always a steady performer for the Indians, picked up a fifth place in the vault and a sixth in the beam, as well as earning a 6.8 in the floor exercise.

Other top finishers for MSC include Sally Godwin in the balance beam, who scored a 7.4 for fourth place. Karen Collins in the all-around, taking fifth with a total of 25.30 points, and Karen Lukash who gave a strong routine in the floor exercise, scoring a 7.1. Team captain Margie Breznak had her best performance in the vault, earning a 7.55, as did teammates Vel Vogler and Pam Vertes, who scored 7.7 and 7.85 respectively.

The team has until January to prepare to face other Division I and II teams, as well as a few in their own Division III.

DaCunto is an outstanding wrestler whose record is a remarkable 12-1

By Anna Schiavo
The MSC wrestling team has an outstanding performer in Dan DaCunto, who has an incredible 12-1 record so far this season.

DaCunto is an excellent athlete whose record speaks for itself. In his career at MSC he has had 45 wins, 19 losses and two draws. This season, out of 13 bouts he has had two pins and six decisions. In the decisions he has scored over twenty points three times.

This year in a dual meet against Rutgers (Newark), he pinned his opponent in only 19 seconds, for his fastest pin yet.

Coach Steve Strellner feels that DaCunto is a leader, who has the desire "to win. He has had good seasons in the past. He was 20-9-1 as a sophomore." The MSC coach said, "I think he has the ability to be an NCAA Division III All-American."

The junior economics major, began the year off has helped him. "After coming back from the year off, I had more desire to wrestle and I was more hungry to win," DaCunto said.

DaCunto has had the support of his parents throughout his career. "They were always there in the stands cheering," he said.

What DaCunto likes about wrestling is that "any accomplishments are made through hard work on your own part, so when you win a match you know that you're the one who won it. When you're out there, you're out there on your own, and no one can pick up your slack," he said.

He finds weight control the most frustrating aspect of the sport. "The reason for the weight loss is to try to wrestle lean. That means to wrestle at a body fat percentage of about six percent. To do that I have to lose eighteen to twenty pounds from my off season weight. All wrestlers, other than the heavy weights, are attempting to lower their body fat percentage in order to wrestle more efficiently," DaCunto said.

This Saturday, the Indians meet C.W. Post at 1 p.m. in Panzer Gym.
