Another Car Fire Hits Campus

Accidental Car Fire Makes Third of Its Kind in A Week

By Lillian M. Aleman

The third accidental car fire within a week occurred this past Tuesday near the Clifton Fire Department, extinguished and ruled as an "accidental fire." Earlier that same day, another car fire involving a Ford Van, caused two surrounding cars, a burgundy Nissan and a blue Saab to be "destroyed completely" said Detective Barrett.

Three other nearby vehicles had burn and smoke damage. Police, alongside two fire engines from the Little Falls Fire Department and a one engine from the Clifton Fire Department, arrived at the scene of 11:42 a.m. The fire took about six minutes to extinguish.

Costello adds that if the fire crews did not act quickly and efficiently, "a gas tank could have leaked causing the gas to flow down hill igniting additional cars."

According to Barrett, a small can of lighter fluid was found near the scene of the fire within a week occurred. The origin of the fires were.

A 10-year-old Avenel boy, who stabbed a classmate in the back, was sentenced on an adult to six years in prison. Jakub Pynel, who was 14 at the time of the attack, pleaded guilty to aggravated assault for stabbing Adam Loria in a middle school in Woodbridge. In exchange for Pynel’s plea on the second-degree aggravated assault charge, prosecutors agreed to dismiss a charge of attempted murder that carried a sentence of up to 30 years in prison.

A new $3 million ferry pier was opened Monday at the Southern tip of Manhattan, cutting the 25-minute sea trip in half from the Hoboken Terminal for New Jersey commuters. The Port Authority built the boat slips in Battery Park, in four six-weeks, after terrorist bomb attacks on the World Trade Center forced the closure of the ferry terminal at the World Financial Center.

the SGA is still functioning well and will continue to do so in the future.

"I am the president of a million dollar corporation, and as such I must uphold the constitution," said SGA President Jeannette Mammare.

"This situation has nothing to do with the unity of the E-board."

According to Long and Dean of Students Helen Mattusow-Ayres, the SGA Code of Ethics has been modeled after similar ethical codes of the State legislature, the university, and many corporations.

"Sharif [Elhagin] was not targeted," said Mattusow-Ayres. "It is very hard for an individual to judge himself. That is why the Code of Ethics was created. An officer of a corporation is never permitted to make money from his or her position in the corporation... the Code of Ethics should not and cannot change with a particular person or situation."

Long said he expects that the situation with Elhagin will not escalate any further and does not anticipate that the Code of Ethics and its implementation will present the SGA with many more problems.

"There seems to be an understanding that the SGA doesn't need any more problems right now," said Long.

"I think Sharif [Elhagin] and everyone else understands that and no one wants to rock the boat."

Little Falls Fire Department accompanied the Clifton Fire Department last Wednesday to extinguish the fire from the Ford Van, which suffered from mechanical failure. Five surrounding cars were also damaged.

Detective Barrett also reassured MSU by stating that these fires were, "all isolated instances and there was nothing suspicious about any of these car fires.”

"People pay a lot of hard earned money for cars and then take advantage of them by not maintaining them," said Costello. "Maintain your car and the chances of an accidental fire by mechanical failure is reduced."

"Lack of and/or poor maintenance of any type of machine or engine could have resulted in the wearing down of vital parts such as belts, wiring or any movable part."

Because the fires were of accidental nature, Costello says that, "no one should be alarmed about these fires."

"They were all accidental and none of them are connected to anything."

According to Oberhofer, this is the first such accident involving the bleachers in his nine years at MSU.

"Oberhofer says the area around the press box at the top of the bleachers was recently renovated to repair cracks."

The open space between the bench rows still represents a threat to audience safety. However, according to the Montclair Maintenance crew, that space meets the national standard.

"If you go to William Paterson or any other field around the country, you’ll see the same type of bleachers."

Although the exact age has yet to be revealed, Oberhofer believes the age of the bleachers to be "over 30 years old."

The only other maintenance done on the bleachers was in 1979-1980. According to Physical Plant Engineer in Charge Joe Mazullo, the maintenance occurred around the same time as the installation of Astroturf on the field.

"I can remember looking out my window and seeing piles of dirt on the field," says Mazullo. "They fixed the bleachers then, too." According to Oberhofer, the Physical Plant will be looking into the situation.

"I’m afraid to bring my five-year old son to the games... he might slip and fall."

Sixth Annual Unity Food Festival Celebrates the Cultures of MSU

By Cristin Curry
Staff Writer

Since the recent attacks against the United States people have been becoming more and more racist against one another as a result of their fear and anger. The nation attempts to collaborate as one to establish a feeling of unity, when actually placing their hatred and loathing upon a fellow neighbor who just happens to differ in race or religion. At times like this the country should come together and help each other to ease our pain and worries, and not try to place the blame on one person or group of people. All throughout the year, organizations in Montclair have held programs to try to unite the students in attempts to educate some on the matter in question and lifestyles of other cultures. The international Student Organization and Unity Collaboration held the Sixth Annual Unity Food Festival on Tuesday October 30 in the Student Center ballrooms. Contribution was also given from many of the sororities/fraternities on campus, the different cultural clubs, the Health and Wellness Center, the NAACP, the Newman Center, and the Human Relations Leadership Development Association. Jeannette Mammagro, President of the SGA, and Gujran Shah, Chairperson of the Unity Food Festival Planning Committee, gave opening greetings to the audience and organizations. Entertainment for the program consisted of song and dance performances. The National Anthem, “He Said She Said”, and “Forever” were performed by Kemi (singer/writer/producer) and presented by the international Student Organization. A dance called Palo was performed by Yumika Ortiz and presented by Human Relations and Leadership Development Association.

Each organization/club brought some type of food to contribute to the cultural festivities, along with pamphlets and handouts concerning their particular organization. The festival was a day for cultural unity and celebration, sharing our customs and traditions to enlighten and influence one another. It was a day to forget about our troubles and not hate each other because of them. It was a day to look amongst ourselves and judge each other by means of who we are and not by what we are.

Halloween Sweetened for the Children

By Valerie Wakeham
Staff Writer

When looking back on some of your happiest memories as a child, trick or treating must come to mind. First you had to choose which of your favorite ghouls and goblins you were going to be. Then came the best part, taking to the streets to grab the best candy you could find. But some children may not be so lucky. Some parents work full time jobs and find it next to impossible to take their children out on Halloween. That’s why the men of Groove Phi Groove decided to step in and lend a helping hand to the children of the Child Care Center.

Despite the cold, rainy weather this past Wednesday, the members of Groove Phi Groove, a non-Greek organization of MSU, managed to take numerous children around our campus to experience the joy of trick or treating. This project in particular was the brainchild of group President Jameel Mathews. “It only took one month to get everything for this Halloween project finalized,” said group member Willie Fanfan.

Making the transition easier is the fact that Groove Phi Groove has been affiliated with the Day Care center in the past. Everyone responded positively to the Halloween activity, including three year old Jewel Walston. When asked if she was having fun, she answered with an enthusiastic, “Yeah, I love candy!”

The trick or treating trip began at the Science Center and eventually worked its way down to the Resident Life building. Groove wasn’t the only organization involved in this endeavor. Also helping out were members of Phi Beta Sigma, Mu Sigma Upsilon, Iota Phi Theta, and their sister organization Swing Phi Swing.

“It makes me feel good to help these kids, said Fanfan. “This was a positive way to unite our campus and I know it will happen again next year.”
Ancient Wisdom for Modern Times
Author Miguel Ruiz Writes of the Four Key Agreements of Life

By Edgardo Santos
Staff Writer

The Toltecs flourished in central and South Mexico from the 10th to the 12th century. They were known as "men and women of knowledge." Their society was formed by artists and scientists. They considered science and art to be one and the same, coming from the same universal laws. Their main objective was the preservation and examination of the spiritual knowledge of their ancestors.

Those who mastered the wisdom of the Toltecs were known as naguals. They, along with their apprentices, the naguals were forced to maintain the existence of their ancestral wisdom in obscurity.

In his book, "The Four Agreements," Ruiz shares some of the ancient teachings of the Toltecs which were passed down to him. According to Ruiz, an individual who wants to live a life of joy and fulfillment, must examine all of the agreements that he or she has made in his or her life.

An agreement is made whenever one decides to accept something as true, and they believe it. Ruiz states that we each make thousands of agreements with our friends, families, and society, but the most important agreements are the ones we make with ourselves. The agreements that we make with ourselves define who we are, and if we examine our beliefs about ourselves we will find that many of our beliefs come from fear.

Ruiz offers four agreements, which he claims will help break the old fear-based agreements which we all have made. The first agreement is "Be impeccable with your word." This is the most important and difficult agreement to honor. The word is creative, and one’s intentions is implied in how one speaks the truth in order to create the reality that one seeks.

The second is, "Don’t take anything personally." By not taking anything personally, one acknowledges that his or her reaction to another person is upsets which come about from making assumptions. One sees something that is not there, thus distorting their reality. The way one keep from making assumptions is to ask questions. If you don’t know, ask.

The third is, "Don’t make assumptions." Whenever one makes an assumption, he or she misunderstands. One sees something that is not there, thus distorting their reality. The way one keep from making assumptions is to ask questions. If you don’t know, ask.

The fourth is, "Always do your best." In everything that you do, always do your best, no more and no less. Every time you do your best you honor yourself. By always doing your best, you will have no regrets and will live a very productive life.

Ruiz believes that it is possible to live up to these four agreements, although it may not be easy. He states that it is possible because he did it. And according to Ruiz, once one adopts these four agreements, his or her life will change in amazingly profound ways. Ruiz is living proof.

Don Miguel Ruiz, a modern day nagual, and author of several books on Toltec wisdom, states that as a result of European conquest and widespread misuse of power by some apprentices, the naguals were forced to hide their knowledge from those who were not prepared to use it wisely or those who might misuse it for personal gain. As a result, the naguals were forced to maintain the existence of their ancestral wisdom in obscurity.

Cigarettes Going Up In Smoke

By John M. Prewitt
Special to The Montclarion

The American Cancer Society organized the first Great American Smokeout in 1977. The purpose was to encourage smokers to quit for one day to prove that they could do it. Each year, more Americans try to quit smoking on the day of the Great American Smokeout than on any other day of the year, including New Year’s Day.

Most of us, whether we’re chain smokers or anti-tobacco advocates, recognize that overcoming an addiction to tobacco is no easy task. Ask any smoker about the health perils of smoking and chewing, and they can recount the harmful side effects as well as any non-smoker.

There are many reasons people begin smoking, and suffering from cancer, emphysema and a plethora of other damaging effects is not among them. With the American Cancer Society’s annual Great American Smokeout, there is yet another opportunity for you, a friend, classmate or family member to make the transition into a smoke-free lifestyle.

This year the Great American Smokeout is Thursday, November 15. It draws national attention to the importance of being smoke-free, not just for your own health, but for the health of your family, friends and those with whom you share air space.

Most people have gone through several “quit days” and feel that each time they go back to smoking, they have “failed.” But each time you quit, even for just a few days, you are that much closer to making it and extending your smoke-free time longer and perhaps forever.

There’s lots of help out there. Talk with your health care provider about the latest quit-smoking aids, especially those that can treat the immediate physical symptoms of withdrawal. Look into joining a support group that can offer you the encouragement and camaraderie that is so important to success. Or check out on-campus activities at MSU on Thursday, November 15—you may just change your life.

For more information about the Great American Smokeout or for tips on how to quit smoking, please contact the American Cancer Society at 800-ACS-2345 or visit their website at www.cancer.org.

For a select few, taking a $125,000 job on Wall Street is not “going out into the real world.”

MSU Students Plant for Peace

Students from the Recreation Facilities and Recreation Leadership classes, and the MSU Recreation Club planted over 50 white pine seedling trees in memory of those lost in the WTO Tragedy. These were planted outside of Bohn Hall with a six inch pole that reads "May Peace Prevail on Earth" in four different languages.

What Really Happens at the Local Floor Meetings

By Lacey Smith
Staff Writer

I glanced at my watch. Two minutes and counting...I was running to my building for my floor meeting. "Residents who do not attend will be fined," the flyer had threatened. But had anyone ever actually been fined for such an act? I had my doubts.

A few minutes later I stepped off the elevator and joined the rest of the victims lined in the hallway. Unfortunately, I was right on time. My R.A.’s (let’s call them Tracey and a bigger fellow) mumbled to each other before turning towards us. Tracey managed to get our attention and began to speak. She had been talking for approximately twelve seconds and we all let out a painful groan. The rumors were true. This meeting was called due to poor bathroom cleanliness.

At this point I would like to give credit to Tracey. She is a wonderful person, and we get along well, but all that instant something inexplicable happened; her voice became that of Charlie Brown’s teacher and I was unable to understand a word out of her mouth. Wah wah wah wah wah wah wah.

I glanced around. One kid was scratching, another picking something out of her fingernail, and one more watching an imaginary fly go around the light. Weighing the option of watching the fly with Joe over there, I thought I might as well listen to what Tracey had to say. Bad idea. She was going through a detailed explanation of how to remove one’s hair from the drain after showering. “With your sandal, slide the hair from the drain. After this, walk over and get a piece of paper towel. Go back to the stall, sop up and scrape off the problem in the towel. There you go—no one has to look at your hair.” She instructed, and went on to describe the problems which occur if hair is not removed.

The girls in the hallway were completely disgusted. Yet I wonder. Why would someone have a problem with hair falling from their own head if it doesn’t seem to be a problem when found on the rear of some random kid they sign? My problem when found on the rear is not removed. The girls in the hallway were completely disgusted. Yet I wonder. Brazilia & Brazilia Grill

Location

Brazilia is located at 132 Ferry St Newark, NJ 07105, and Brazilia Grill is located at 99 Monroe St Newark, NJ 07105 in the Ironbound Section.

Mass Transportation

Both of these restaurants are accessible from campus by NJ Transit Bus No. 28 to Newark Penn Station, from there firm to the MSU via NJT Bus No. 25 or 1 up Ferry Street. For those driving take Route 3 East to Route 21 South to Market Street East to Ferry Street South first one is to your left, for the other make a right at Monroe Street and less than a block it is on your left.

Price Range

The restaurants are not tremendously expensive. The cost of an appetizer is $5.00 and the entree is $10.00 to $18.00. The desserts cost $2.50 and the drinks between $5.00 and $15.00 for a large pitcher of Sangria.

What’s On The Menu

Both restaurants offer typical Brazilian Cuisine. Appetizers include grilled chicken hearts, fried green bananas, and garlic shrimp while main courses include Feijoada, a dish made of beans, greens, and sausage, and the national dish of Brazil. It is offered alongside rice. Brazilia Grill offers House lobster and grilled red snapper in terms of seafood. The signature drink of these restaurants is Caipirinha, a mixture of sugarcane liquor, limes, and sugarcane juice, and there is also sangria. Plan and coffee are offered for dessert.

Ambiance

The first restaurant Brazilia is rather weak in terms of decor, but it more than compensates for this in terms of service and the quality of food. Brazilia Grill has a more interesting decor than its sister restaurant because of the waterfall you observe upon entering and the dining area is a replica of a Brazilian colonial city. Service is equally as good there.

Thumbs Up, Thumbs Down

Soul Brains Live Show Captured in New CD

When the group now known as Soul Brains first started performing about 22 years ago in their hometown of Washington D.C., they were one of the most unique acts in the history of rock music. The group, who previously called themselves Bad Brains, was made up of four Rastafarians. They played loud, confrontational punk rock music mixed with mellow reggae vibes from Jamaica. Dr. Know, the lead guitarist, started the group with lead singer H.R. and two other members in 1979. They were always noted for their energetic live shows, which had a major influence on many rock performers such as Dave Grohl of The Foo Fighters and Henry Rollins of The Rollins Band. About three years ago, the group decided to change its name from Bad Brains to Soul Brains. This live CD captures the energy of a concert, which had a major influence on many rock performers such as Dave Grohl of The Foo Fighters and Henry Rollins of The Rollins Band. About three years ago, the group decided to change its name from Bad Brains to Soul Brains.

The high energy that the group is known for is present throughout the disc, and is only interrupted when the lead singer, H.R., talks to the audience. The disc's opening track, "Attitude" sounds like a short, loud adrenalin rush. Despite the fact that the lyrics are hard to understand, the basic message is conveyed well. In fact, many of the songs are like this. The loud music makes it harder to understand the lyrics that are already sung too fast to be completely understood. However, Soul Brains are not usually making any deep statements on their fast songs, so it is easier to let it slide and just enjoy the music.

The deeper statements are reserved for the reggae numbers, which are a fairly dramatic change of pace for the disc. The reggae songs have slow, echoing guitar sounds that sound more like Bob Marley than any of the contemporary reggae stars like Bounty Killer or Capleton. The reggae songs are not as politically motivated as Bob Marley's songs. However, the social consciousness and mellow vibes of "The Youth Are Getting Restless" sets it apart from the rest of the tracks. An altered reggae version of the Beatles' song "Day Tripper" is also performed, which adds some unintentional humor to the disc. The rock songs have a few standout tracks, most notably "Re-ignition," with its heavy-metal guitar riff and wailing vocals. "I Against I" is another song that most hard rock fans will definitely enjoy with a chorus that is easy to sing along to. "At the Movies" has a readable quality with its rapid delivery and playful lyrics.

Among the standout tracks, there are some flat moments on the disc as well. "Right Brigade" doesn't offer anything new or interesting, and sounds something like an average Sex Pistols song. "Soulcraft," winds up sounding a lot like Ozzy Osbourne with its whining vocals and heavy-metal guitar sounds. Surprisingly, their new song, "On Like Popcorn" also sounds average with its uninspired, slurred vocals.

With this live CD, Soul Brains deftly prove why their live shows were so renowned among rock musicians in the Washington D.C. area. Their raw energy and talent really come through in this concert. There also seems to be a sense of union throughout that is indicative of the amount of time Soul Brains have been playing together. Despite the fact that they have broken up at certain points during their career, it is obvious that they still function well as a group. Dr. Know plays with enough intensity to support H.R.'s goofy, slurred vocals even when they are not that inspired.

Although this CD will probably not give them any more mainstream success than they already have, it will serve to maintain their status as underground legends. Even if you don't consider yourself to be a fan of punk rock music, you can appreciate their live energy and rebellious attitude that makes them underground rock heroes. If you get a chance to see them live, don't pass it up.

Soul Brains get close to their fans.

Temptations Return

Vanessa Silbald
Courtesy of KRT Campus

It's time once again to get tempted by the return of Fox's reality series "Temptation Island 2," and host Mark Walberg is more than willing to jump back into the fire. Last season, someone could have made the case that Walberg was the illegitimate spawn of some demon from the lower depths of hell, by the way he had a knack for asking the most painful questions at the most painful time. If nothing else, Mandy Lauderdoerfer's frequent tear out bursts were evidence of how exact Walberg's probing was, hitting just the right spot. However, after everything's said and done, Walberg's really just a softie at heart — although perhaps not completely innocent. "Temptation Island" follows what happens when four committed couples volunteer to be flown to an exotic location, only to be separated and tempted away from their loved ones by a slew of sexy singles. There is no prize involved other than the trip and the chance to be on television. Although it's sounds like a great getaway, especially for the host who gets paid to be there, Walberg isn't so sure.

"Temptation Island 2" premieres Wednesday at 9 p.m. ET on Fox. It will follow a one-hour reunion special, "Temptation Island: The Wedding," airing at 8 p.m.

"On a couple levels it's absolutely a dream come true," Walberg left Zap2it.com. "However, it's really emotionally draining. People don't really buy that necessarily from me — most people think that I'm sitting over the shoulder at a cue card or even though you may be really poor. Some critics attacked the moral fiber of a show designed to break up couples. But Walberg points out that couples in love wouldn't be part of ... Su "Temptations" apr. 13
Don't worry if your connection is a little slow this week, it's not another red alert virus or Windows NT exploiting gerr. It's just LucisArms and Apple teaming up to make your week hell by releasing the new Star Wars teaser trailer online. Yeah that's right, the Star Wars, Episode II Attack of the Clones trailer that so many people spent $8 to watch 60 seconds and leave Macintosh Inc. for is now online at Apple's QuickTime Trailers link: http://starwars.apple.com/ep2/breathing/. Your only requirements are that you download a copy of QuickTime 5 for Macintosh or PC (QuickTime 5 Pro for the largest version), and that you have plenty of time to waste cursing at your computer that you wasted 5 hours for 60 seconds of nothing. Feel good though, you could have spent $8.

Spumco's Wonderful World of Cartoons www.spumco.com

Whether you have been with them in the early days of "Ren and Stimpy," or if you were just introduced this year with Fox Kids, "The Ripping Friends," you know that John Kricfalusi and Spumco is synonymous with weird, odd ball cartoons. But it's waiting to the weekend to watch "Ripping Friends" is too much to handle, you can just go to Spumco.com for all you wacky needs. Started some time after "Ren and Stimpy," when John K. was feeling drained at not being able to get another of his "edgy" comics on the air, Spumco.com was created as its release. Now a thriving company with great shorts like "Weekend Pussy Hunt," or games like Pizza Packing Moron. Spumco has become John's way of connecting with fans. John even asks his fans to give input on exactly what they want to see on both his site, and with "The Ripping Friends" on Fox.

Cartoons Take Over

Newgrounds www.newgrounds.com

For those looking for something a bit different in their internet entertainment, we have Newgrounds, Newgrounds is doing just that, setting new grounds in how people share their works. All of the Flash cartoons and games are made by users and linked to on the Newgrounds sites. Some are great, with political or entertainment satire being a large makeup of the cartoons. Some though are pretty poor and not worth the effort of downloading. Newgrounds provide a voting and reviewing system, so you can let the creator know exactly why his or her movie was excellent or disgusting. Be warned though, the site is not censored to a large extent and anyone who is easily offended would defiantly be offended by some of the cartoons.

And finally we have icebox.com; a site that has some of the best cartoon serials on the web. Created as a writers haven on the web, icebox has quickly become the foremost web entertainment site out there. Unfortunately in the dot com bust earlier this year icebox was deblocked for a time. But it's been reformed and with the financial backing of other media companies (with options to actually see some of these shorts on TV in the future) icebox is back and better than ever.

With writers and Animators from "The Simpsons," "South Park," "Married With Children," and other shows, you never have to worry about the cartoons being to bland. With cartoons like "Jesse and His Brothers," or "Hard Drinkin' Lincoln," bland is the last thing these cartoons are. The best parts is, while they all look great and are funny, they also have a very decent storyline, and are not redundant cat chase mouse escapades we are all familiar with.
BATTLE FOR THE NJAC

Game Time
Saturday
1:30 P.M. @ Rowan University
Weather: Sunny High 56 Low 37
Ed Collins:
We’re going to come out and execute. If we don’t beat ourselves we should move the ball, play hard on defense and play a pretty well-rounded game.

If we don’t come out and execute, we might not win. But if we execute and do our job, there’s no reason why Montclair shouldn’t end up on the winning side of this game.

Omar Lucas:
Are you going to win? Yes. That’s what we’re going down there to do. We’re going down there to play Montclair State football and it’s going to come out. We’re going down there to win, not tie, not lose, we’re going down there to win. We’re going to play our style of football.

MSU

by Eli Gelman
Assistant Sports Editor

The time has come. Was there ever any doubt that the NJAC Championship would be decided on the final day of the season when MSU heads to Rowan to defend their conference title?

They are two of the top 10 teams in the country. MSU ranks fifth at 9-0 while Rowan ranks eighth and is 7-1 after suffering a 32-21 loss at Cortland. Both are fighting for an automatic playoff bid. MSU will most likely make the playoffs if they lose while a Rowan loss may leave the Pros on the outside looking in. You can’t ask for a better game.

In August, both teams wanted to play in a championship game and that’s exactly what they got.

“This is best on best. These are the two best teams not only in our league, but in our area. We’re going to go after each other. That’s what it’s all about. I love it,” said MSU Head Coach Rick Giancola.

Giancolas counterpart at Rowan, Head Coach K.C. Keeler agreed.

“They’re the team to beat. They’re the team to beat. This is why we coach and why kids put in all the time and effort,” said Keeler.

Football is a game of matchups and this game pits two of the top offenses in the country against each other as Rowan ranks second while MSU ranks 12.

Defensively, MSU will have their hands full with Rowan’s no-huddle, fast-break offense, which averages just over 50 points per game. It all starts with their leader, quarterback Tony Racioppi.

Racioppi, who was Mike Walker’s backup last year, has had a remarkable season. Throwing for 2,242 yards and 30 touchdowns, breaking the school’s single-season records for touchdown passes and passing yards, Racioppi fits perfectly into the offense and while he doesn’t have a rocket for an arm, he may read coverages better than any quarterback in the country. And it doesn’t hurt that Racioppi’s offensive line is second to none only allowing four sacks on 278 passing attempts.

“I thought he would flourish in this offense. He’sと思います, Keeler’s incredible. He doesn’t get rattled and is the general for our team.”

And while Racioppi may be an improvement over Walker, his receiving corps has also stepped up its game.

Senior wide receivers Scott “Real Deal” Lipford and Al Beverly are one and two on the team in receptions, while Michael Ward and Michael Osborne have played well. Lipford is also the best kick returner in the NJAC, leading the conference in yards per punt and kickoff returns. He has two punt returns for touchdowns and one 80-yard kickoff return for a score.

“All four of them have been the best receiver on most teams in the country,” said Racioppi.

All of them are capable of making big plays and many of their touchdown passes have been of double-figures in yardage. The key for MSU is to make Rowan work for their points.

“I don’t know if you can stop them. You don’t want to give them 60 yards all in one play,” said Giancola.

“If they complete a pass, tackle them like any other: “If we execute and do our job, there’s no reason why Montclair shouldn’t end up on the winning side of this game.”

We’re going down there, but we’re the team to beat,” said Collins who takes this Saturday’s game like any other: “If we execute and do our job, there’s no reason why Montclair shouldn’t end up on the winning side of this game.”

MSU’s receiving corps is also one of the best. Eric Magini leads the team with 59 receptions and 11 touchdowns. Mike Orlando and Jamey Dorse each have over 30 receptions as well. And while they may not have the breakaway speed that Rowan’s receivers do, all have great hands.

Tony Racioppi:

Last year it was Rowan talk. Everything is on MSU this year. We feel like we’re the underdogs this year.

We’re focused and feel we can get it done. We want to slow down Eddie [Collins], execute, and turn it into a trackmeet. It’s a mini-Stagg Bowl.

Bobby Fisher:

They’re a good team. Collins is probably the best quarterback we’re going to face. They’re the team to beat.

We’re looking at this as a playoff game. We know what it’s about and what we have to do. People say we’re overrated but they don’t know what Rowan is about until they face us.

K.C. Keeler, Rowan Head Coach

This is why we coach and why kids put in all the time and effort.
Who Will Be Crowned

NJAC CHAMPION?

Will MSU Win its 3rd Straight NJAC Title, or is Rowan’s No-Huddle Offense Too Much?

and can make the tough catches.

MSU’s run game is led by Rowan transfer Elijah Freer who has surpassed all expectations to emerge as the starting tailback, Jamari “Mookie” Butte. Freer’s backup, also gets playing time and averages almost seven yards per carry.

Freer’s former teammate, Rowan linebacker Bobby Fisher recalls going at him in practice when he played fullback at Rowan.

“We had wars in practices. He knew it was going to come down to this,” said Fisher of their matchup this Saturday.

Rowan’s defense is up to the challenge and their Co-captain and defensive back Clinton Tabb is the key to their success.

“Clinton’s been the difference for us in the secondary. We’ve been flying around the past two weeks,” said Keeler. “He makes sure everyone is in place and is the tempo setter.”

Since Rowan’s secondary has improved tremendously and they have gotten better defensive line play.

Fisher has also been an integral part of Rowan’s defense, raising his game from last year, after dropping 18 pounds in the off-season. When he hits, he hits so MSU’s offense better be prepared. Linebackers Earle Whilby and Shannon Maynard will also be tough to run on and defensive end Earl Nelson is their top pass rusher.

There’s no question these are the two NJAC safeties and maybe the top two teams in the nation. But only one team can win.

Rowan is treating this Saturday’s contest as a playoff game. They believe they’re the underdogs and still haven’t forgotten the loss to MSU last season.

“We’ve had a year to sit around and think about last year. We should have won last year,” said Racopka. “It still bothers us.”

The Red Hawks feel they’re the team to beat. And why shouldn’t they? They’re the defending champions and if MSU wins, they’ll be the first team to three-peat as NJAC Champions since Glassboro State/Rowan from 1991-1993. But to MSU, it will just be one more step to their ultimate goal of a national championship.

“If you’re going to be a good football team and eventually a championship football team, you have to play good people and win on the road. So that’s certainly going to be a challenge for us,” said Giancola.

The Red Hawks have met every challenge that has come their way this season, but what they do this weekend will determine just how good they really are.

When asked how far his team could go, Giancola said, “I think we can move ourselves around a little bit.”

His players have believed all year that they could win a Stagg Bowl. This game is as close as it can get to that. Let’s see what they’ve made of.

The Prequels

November 13, 1999 at Rowan:

December 4, 1999 at MSU:

Free safety Clinton Tabb returned a fumble 55 yards for one touchdown and returned an interception 43 yards for another as Rowan defeated MSU 42-13 in the NCAA Division III playoffs.

November 11, 2000 at MSU:

QB Ed Collins scored on a one-yard run with 2:47 left to give MSU a 17-13 win and a second consecutive NJAC championship.

Freer Returns to Face Former team as MSU’s Starting Back

By Andy Seyka
Assistant Sports Editor

For senior running back Elijah Freer, it has been business as usual this week as the Red Hawks prepare for their showdown with NJAC rival Rowan.

“I just look at it as another game,” Freer said. “There’s just more at stake right now. This is for the NJAC title and for the bye and plus we’ve just got to prove that we’re a good team. We’ve just got to go out there and play hard.”

Freer was Rowan’s fullback from 1998-2000. According to MSU Head Football coach Rick Giancola, the soft-spoken Astbury Park native hasn’t changed his demeanor as he prepares to face his former team.

“He hasn’t said too much,” Giancola said. “He just comes to work, does his job and plays well.”

Freer started at fullback for the Profs during his sophomore and junior seasons and was a second-team All-NJAC selection last year. During the off season Rowan changed their offense, moving to a one back set, where a fullback is no longer needed.

“Elijah’s an excellent football player,” said Rowan Head Coach K.C. Keeler. “It won’t be that he can’t play here. We were just going in a different direction with our offense.”

Freer knew it was at that time when we [the coaching staff and I] said let’s give him a chance and see what he can do in a game situation as a fullback,” Keeler said.

“I had to do what was best for me, I didn’t want to leave. But things happen,” Freer said.

Giancola thought Freer was going to be his fullback. The job of a fullback is to block for the tailback.

“When he and I talked early on he told me that he didn’t have a problem with being the fullback,” Freer said. “But he asked if I could give him an opportunity to carry the football.”

Freer’s and Giancola’s personalities are different. Giancola is soft-spoken and never one to speak your mind, while Freer is a bit more outspoken.

“I really would have had no part in their offense,” Freer said. “I had to do what was best for me. I didn’t want to leave. But things happen.”

Freer was given a chance by Giancola. When MSU opened up camp in early August, Giancola thought Freer was going to be his fullback. The job of a fullback is to block for the tailback. With Rowan, Freer carried the football only 51 times in three years and scored just five touchdowns.

“He has and we’re pleased with it... Through his perseverance, his work ethic, he’s shown that he could get the job done.”

The Red Hawks are the defending champions and their offense is led by tailback duties. As camp evolved, Freer impressed Giancola with his ability to carry the ball.

“The Profs fell to MSU in the regular season finale in each of the last two seasons, giving the Red Hawks back-to-back NJAC crowns. Freer still has some friends on Rowan, but that won’t matter during the game.

“I’m on a different team now,” Freer said. “On the field I can’t look at them as friends. I just got to think about football. After the game it’s different.”

On Offense This Year:
Since it's at Rowan, I think Rowan's going to win. If MU can shut down Racioppi, Montclair wins. They rely on him to beat you. This is his first real big game at quarterback at Rowan. The advantage goes to Rowan. They're playing at home and have a little more talent than MSU. Montclair has the better player at Quarterback. Ed Collins. I think some of the most important positions who've also been in the big game two times.

Kean Head Coach Joe Lohr

Pick: Rowan

L @ MSU 63-7  L vs Rowan 56-6

They're the two superpowers in the conference. Both are very explosive teams. Rowan has the edge on defensive front coverage. We didn't better throwing against Rowan. Against Rowan we relaunched the run. The edge in quarterback goes to Montclair. Edge in receivers to Rowan but we stopped the running attack of MSU. The edge in defensive line goes to Rowan because they're a 49ers team. It's going to be potentially an overtime game and give the home team the advantage. But I wouldn't surprise me if Montclair won.

Cortland State Head Coach Dan MacNeill

Pick: Rowan

L vs MSU 26-24  W vs Rowan 32-31

MSU has a tough front seven but Rowan's is good too. I still think Rowan's defense will be suspect against MSU's offense. It's going to come down to how well MSU's secondary can play. Both offenses can go 90 yards. It's whatever defense can make more stops and that favors MSU and it's going to come down to the quarterback and who can move the ball better. It comes down to the guy calling the shots. The difference is [BL] Collins.

TCNJ Head Coach Eric Hamilton

Pick: MSU

L vs MSU 42-30  L @ Rowan 28-27

It is going to be an excellent football game. We played Rowan early in the season and they looked great. We just played Montclair and they are also an excellent team. Both teams like to throw the football and it will be interesting to see how that plays out. It is too bad we are playing at the same time, because this is a game I would definitely like to be at.

NJCU Head Coach Arnold Jeter

Pick: Undecided

L @ MSU 31-7  L vs Rowan 32-7

Both teams are impressive and it should be a great game.

WPU Head Coach Larry Arico

OUTLOOK

While all signs would seem to point to Rowan, these two teams are not really that different. Both have the potential to go 80 yards down field on every drive. While MSU may have the slight edge in defense, Rowan is not far behind. There aren't any coaching staffs better at preparing their teams than those of Rowan and MSU. And while special teams may impact the game, they won't decide it. Collins will be the difference in this game. He's been in the NJAC Championship game twice before, leading his team to victory in both season finales, while Racioppi only saw a quarter of action in last year's game. Collins has the edge in quarterback goes to Rowan hands down. The Profs' defense ranks second in the country. Add in that they go no-huddle and get ready to be scored upon.

Tony Racioppi can pick apart any defense and has the weapons in Scott Lipford and Al Beverly to make big plays, Rowan also averages 218 yards rushing per game. With a nearly unbeatable defensive line, they'll be tough to stop.

TEAM BREAKDOWNS

by Eli Gelman

DEFENSE

While Rowan averages 50 points per game, they have not faced a defense of MSU's caliber. MSU plays great team defense. They have a solid group of linebackers led by Omar Lucas and Keith Migliorino and an aggressive defensive line. The key will be how well their secondary performs against Rowan's offensive arsenal and whether their pass rush can beat Rowan's offensive line. MSU's Defensive Coordinator Dan Garrett is one of the best in the business at coming up with multiple defensive schemes to stop anyone, even Rowan.

SPECIAL TEAMS

If this game comes down to special teams, the nod goes to Rowan. Scott Lipford is the best kick returner in the NJAC and has the potential to go the length of the field on every return. Place-kicker Nick Frade is 47-50 on extra points and 7-9 on field goals. He doesn't miss very often.

COACHING

Experience wins out. In his 19th season, MSU Head Coach Rich Giancola and his staff continue to put in 15-hour days. Assistant Coach Rich O'Connor's invaluable and Offensive Coordinator Charlie Cuccia, in his 26th season, is as creative as any of his peers. Giancola also has two coaches on the field in Co-captains Omar Lucas and Ed Collins. They and the rest of the staff are trying to make it to their first Stagg Bowl. While that may sound strange to be a bonus for MSU since Rowan has been to the Stagg Bowl before, it is an added incentive. It's a dream that the staff is beginning to see as a reality. They realize that this may be the last chance they get for a while and aren't going to let it slip by.

OUTLOOK

While all signs would seem to point to Rowan, these two teams are not really that different. Both have the potential to go 80 yards down field on every drive. While MSU may have the slight edge in defense, Rowan is not far behind. There aren't any coaching staffs better at preparing their teams than those of Rowan and MSU. And while special teams may impact the game, they won't decide it. Collins will be the difference in this game. He's been in the NJAC Championship game twice before, leading his team to victory in both season finales, while Racioppi only saw a quarter of action in last year's game. Collins has always believed his team could capture a national championship and this is a mini-Stagg Bowl so it's time for him to deliver.
Emmy Awards Finally Air on Third Try

By James Topoleski
Assistant Arts Editor

After being cancelled twice due to both the 9/11 attacks and subsequent U.S. retaliation against terrorism in Afghanistan, the 53rd Annual Emmys were finally broadcast Sunday Nov. 4th. Dubbed the "Semi Emmys," this year's show lacked both the enthusiasm and the "Semi Emmys," this year's show the 53rd Annual Emmys were finally

Many of this year's winners didn't attend the ceremonies held at the tightly guarded Shubert Theater, or the ceremony held at the "Uprising." Ellen DeGeneres was hosted by Ellen DeGeneres. Preliminary reports had brought.

Most of the people who write about the shows, at the end of the show. Not that Saturday Night Live, "The West Wing," NBC, "Frasier" (CBS), "ER" (NBC)

The show's format is almost identical to last year's, but what happened couldn't be further from what happened last year.

The first "Temptation Island," despite being the temple of the singles' efforts of driving a wedge between the couples, at the end of the show all of the couples decided to stick together - an outcome that Walberg says he wasn't surprised by. "I personally got a charge out of it. It's so sweet, smart woman. I think, as a viewer, you see her and you're just rooting for that to happen."

But how many couples do you know who are bizarre to you and me but are happy together? That's Andy and Shannon, I guess."

One thing Walberg won't be repeating this year is his trip to intern message boards to see what people are saying about the show.

"No, I tried last year - it's too much of a hassle. I'm too sensitive, he laughs. "When you do a show and you're the host, if the show is successful or not successful, there's always something you've got to pick on. Normally, it's the host. No matter what you do, you come off as a cheeseball."

"Most of the people who write on the message boards pretend to hate the show and then their posts are detailed breakdowns of what happened in the episode, and of course they always take the time to trash me in the process."

SGA Says “No”... To SGA

Picture it. The Montclarion, 1997-1998. It was a rough time for the SGA on the main editorial pages in those days. Accusatory headlines and allegations of misdeeds were a frequent sight, with one highly demonstrative example being the headline in regards to an SGA vice president of the time, “What’s John Griffin Got to Hide?”

Times have changed for the SGA, and with that of course the headlines that may appear in this section have changed regarding the problems the SGA encounters in the course of functioning as the single largest provider for student organizations and events. No longer are accusations and alleged misdeeds the prime focus in these pages, or a major problem within the SGA.

One of the larger modifications the SGA has made to help facilitate this changing of its internal functioning for the better is its adoption of a code of ethics that basically regulates members of the SGA in dealings that may represent a conflict of interest to their official position within the SGA. This addendum to their constitution, made just last April, has just had its first test.

Early this year it was brought to the attention of the Attorney General of the SGA that Sharif Elhagin, veteran treasurer of the SGA in his third year, may be in violation of the newly adopted code of ethics by being paid in his capacity as a DJ for specific SGA organizations. The Attorney General, with the help of the SGA’s lawyer Aaron Easly, made and upheld a verdict stating that there was a violation, and subsequently that there was a decision for Sharif to make: SGA treasurer, or organizational disk-jockey.

Though by being presented with this issue, the stability of the SGA executive board was forced to weather waters uninviting to political sailors. The E-board weathered well. For the time being it seems Sharif has accepted his fate and chosen the role of treasurer, though he is still able to DJ for organizations that do not receive SGA funds.

In getting through this rocky episode, the Student Government has shown themselves to have an important ability, an integral to the stability of any organization, large or small. That is the ability to self-police, to be aware of itself and the possible pitfalls that could be encountered to the extent that when a problem does arise, it is dealt with appropriately.

The SGA was faced with a test. The result? Pass.

Seeking Opposition to the War in Afghanistan

I. The Elephant in the Living Room

How do you hide an elephant in your living room? You can’t! So, pretend it’s not there. If you’re the American news media.

Where’s the elephant?

In 1979, the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan, a country right on its border. The USSR claimed that the American Central Intelligence Agency was behind a fundamentalist Islamic revolt against the pro-Soviet government. Both the Carter and Reagan Administrations denied this.

President Reagan was outraged. “The Evil Empire,” he stated. The US withdrew from the Olympic Games, and began an open campaign to build up the Islamic fundamentalist “freedom fighters” revolt. But the Soviets were correct, as Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter’s former National Security Advisor, admitted in Le Nouvel Observateur in January 1998.

The US has invaded Afghanistan 22 years later. It’s still wrong for the Soviet Union to invade. Isn’t it just as wrong for the US to do so if the Soviet invasion were evidence for US imperialism, isn’t the US invasion evidence of US imperialism?

It would be one thing if the US media - to say nothing of the Bush regime - were to actually face this question, and say something like: “Well, the Soviets weren’t going after terrorism, like we are. So their invasion was ‘imperialism,’ while our ‘war’ is ‘terrorism,’ while our ‘war’ is regime - were to actually face this. But the US government. Both the Carter and the Reagan Administrations denied this.

On September 18, the BBC revealed that the US had plans to invade Afghanistan before Sept. 11. And the Bush Administration stated the US plans to stay in Afghanistan a long time, set up a “rendezvous” regime, and install a military presence there, while admitting it may be there for 15 years, before it finally OKs.

Unocal, a US oil company had been negotiating with the Taliban regime for pipeline routes until this past Spring, when the Taliban demanded too much money. These negotiations explain the US government’s “humanitarian” and “anti-drug” aid to the Taliban regime during 2000 and the first part of 2001.

A military presence in Afghanistan will give US rulers a strong military base near the Caspian region of emerging oil nations, and and may be edited for length, content and libel. Letters will not be printed unless they include the author’s name, major, social security number and phone number or e-mail address. Letters must be typed, preferably on disk first, then formatted in a readable essay style. Letters should not exceed 300 words, and may be edited for length, content and libel. Letters will not be printed unless they include the author’s name, major, social security number and phone number or e-mail address.

II. Oil and Imperialism

However, it is clearer than ever that the war in Afghanistan is over control of oil. It is not even about catching OBL. This is an imperialist war.

On September 18, the BBC revealed that the US had plans to invade Afghanistan before Sept. 11. And the Bush Administration stated the US plans to stay in Afghanistan a long time, set up a “rendezvous” regime, and install a military presence there, while admitting it may be there for 15 years, before it finally OKs.

Unocal, a US oil company had been negotiating with the Taliban regime for pipeline routes until this past Spring, when the Taliban demanded too much money. These negotiations explain the US government’s “humanitarian” and “anti-drug” aid to the Taliban regime during 2000 and the first part of 2001.

A military presence in Afghanistan will give US rulers a strong military base near the Caspian region of emerging oil nations, and will allow them to control the best routes for oil and gas pipelines.

“Fighting terrorism” is simply the cover-up for a war to win the approval of the American public - to counteract the “Vietnam Syndrome.” The healthy distrust of the American people of their imperialist government that works against their interest of every new.

And it is not a war for “cheaper oil” - as though our own dear Oil rulers were sending us off to fight. Kill and die so that we can drive gas-guzzling SUVs to our heart’s content. As the Gulf War, one aim is more expensive oil - higher profits for big US oil companies. The deeper motive. The US is control - political leverage over other industrial, imperialist countries like Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Holland - that, unlike the US, have few or no oil reserves of their own.

III. A Terrorist War

In this criminal war, the US is already killing civilians. Remember the term “collateral damage?” Now the US killers are killing too. Civilian deaths are the inevitable result of any bombing campaign against populated areas.

What we are seeing in Afghanistan is imperialist slaughter of people in a non-industrialized country for profit. It’s more than an oil war. It’s a grand scale, as only the largest and most technologically sophisticated military in the world - the US military - can do. And it has just begun.

There’s been some talk of “pathological cultures.” Well, yes, there is plenty of pathology in the Middle East! For example, Islamic Fundamentalism and Jewish Fundamentalism (see Israel Shahak and Norton Mezvinsky, Jewish Fundamentalism in Israel, Pluto Press, 1999). Neither “fundamentalism” are any good for oil.

But there is nothing so “pathological,” so hideous, as a society that declares itself “civilized” and then bombs and kills the people of a tormented country like Afghanist-

The Horoscope Never Lies

However, Jambi is Making This up as He Goes Along

Gemini (May 21 - June 20): You're multiple personalities get you in trouble this week when you explode at a fellow customer in the store, and as the psychoanalytic分析师 with good fashion sense, and no one's personality that dominates corporate dress with no social skills. While you might find this funny, in retrospect, costing your security jaw to flavor in your threats of blowing up College Hall and getting all the students arrested back on you.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22): In a sea of gar- ments by computer science classes in Kirkwood Hall, you receive mysterious messages on your computer about finding a rabbit. Secret agents break into your classroom and chase you across campus. You finally lose them by dressing in the newly renovated section of Fifthing Hall, but are startled when you are kidnapped and you awake in the presence of a group of army tygres who want you to take some weird pill.

Leo (July 23 - August 22): In response to last week's car fire, university police raid your room and find other Manifestor-designed gems for questioning. While in the waiting room, the other four versions of you get there in revenge on your captors, an attack on Manifestor State University's fringe new service.

Virgo (August 23 - September 22): It's an attempt to spice up campus life at the weekends, you and your friends plan a full frontal assault across the Real-Foremost Road towards College Hall. You imagined to go in and search for your less beat-friend who has been stuck somewhere behind "society" lines since the beginning of freshmen year.

Libra (September 23 - October 22): These seven deadly apps do no works openfor. For your worker sisters is really starting to love ya. Try for something silly and random, like taking off every third person who leaves the Student Center from your phone app. Partridge Hall.

Scorpio (October 23 - November 22): You spend your birthday getting silly drunk and partying. Unfortunately for you, you wake up the next morning and have no clue where you can be. Should have gone clubbing in the city after all.

Sagittarius (November 22 - December 21): The unexpected rain of bullets the other. Morning prompts the closing of all elementary schools, high schools, and colleges worth of exit 150 on the Parkway, except for campus for Manifestor State.

Capricorn (December 22 - January 19): Accommodate more students in the residence halls. All Residence majors and other improve students get down into your rank. Complaining to residence life doesn't work. They send you a quest in the Great side of campus. One of your new roommates - a talking donkey - accompanies you on your journey and you can't decide whether to kill him or use him up with his intense reading.

Aquarius (January 20 - February 18): Some evil psychopath steals your letters and holds them for a ransom of one million dollars. Your attempts to steal them back are failed by robots made to look like beautiful, voluptuous, blonde psychopaths. Cautious? What letters? You're stealing the robots!

Pisces (February 19 - March 20): Someone takes incriminating pictures of you playing post-apocalyptic war with your husband's honor body who, later this night, is murdered. An evil judge who is really a cow disguised as a horse frames your husband for the crime as part of a plot to destroy the Student Center, good and build an oil pipeline in its place.

For the night's victory was gritty, Rossillo Fills in for Micek on Offense, Scores 5 Goals

By Mike Holper

The Red Hawk offense came alive Friday night against Seton Hall, breaking a page out of the defense's recipe book for success to top the Pirates, 9-3. The main ingredient for the night's victory was gritty, positional hockey, and forward-turned-defender-turned-temporary-forward Anthony Rossillo was playing chief.

Rossillo, in only his second game back from an MCL strain, filled in for Kevin Micek on offense, playing alongside Dave Bodson for the better part of the night. In actuality, Rossillo was playing alongside the net for most of the night, and his hockey sense was tingling as puck after puck showed up at his feet, just begging to be put in the back of the net.

His final tally for the night was five goals, four of them coming from within a few feet of, if not in, the crease. At any time during his shifts, Rossillo was working around the net, Shouldering aside defenders and waiting for the right time to strike. That time came often, as the Red Hawks got off 42 shots on Seton Hall tender Chris Percella.

"It helps playing with Bodson," Rossillo said after the game. "Whenever he goes in, I'm going to go to the back door and look for the rebound." That rebound came, three times, as Bodson got the first assist on three of Rossillo's backdoor goals. He also got the second assist on the other.

If Rossillo was doing the cooking this night, Bodson was playing the part of table-setter. He was on the ice for every Red Hawk goal, including one of his own, and he collected a career-best seven assists. The only goal of the night that he didn't have a part of was the last one, Rossillo's fifth. Skating in all alone, Rossillo whipped a wrist shot top shelf to beat Percella.

Joining Rossillo in his return to Floyd Hall Arena was Vinnie Vulcano, who had missed a few weeks with injuries suffered in a car accident. The return of the defensive tandem should bode well for the Red Hawks, who have seen a drop in production during their absence. The drop in production is most likely directly related to the absence of two vocal players. Rossillo and Vulcano, respectively, are the team's longest standing and oldest members, bring a lot to the table. "Want me and Vinnie bring is experience," Rossillo said. "There was a lot of complaining on the team (while we were gone). I have no problem putting someone in their place if they step out of line.

"You've got to have some kind of leadership on the team," he continued. "The young kids, they sort of look up to us."

Micek, who was on the shelf last weekend with a shoulder injury, has returned to practice, and should be fine for this weekend's Maryland trip. The return of Micek will allow Rossillo to return to his comfortable defensive play. "I like playing defense better," Rossillo said after his five-goal performance. "I'm more into the game. You have a lot more control on D."

The Maryland trip continues the softer side of the MSU schedule, as the team will face off against the M-ACHA's g overall-dwelling University of Maryland, Baltimore County and the already-vaunted University of Maryland at College Park. While both games should be fairly easy victories with the full lineup, the Red Hawks can't look past the clubs -- not with another ranking period looming large in the near future.

In the first ranking period, considering games through Oct. 29 and released last Thursday, the Red Hawks were in fourth place, behind Siena, NYU, and Stony Brook, and just ahead of Marist and Franklin Pierce College. A Stony Brook victory over Marist and a tie with NYU make it all but impossible for MSU to pass both teams before the next rankings.

The next rankings are released on Nov. 16, but the Red Hawks still have to be careful not to fall back. Convincing victories against UMBC and UMCP, the last two games before the next rankings, should hold the Red Hawks up at fourth.

Both NYU and Siena have another tie added to their records, but still no losses. As the season wears on, it looks more and more like the Red Hawks will have to rely upon their head-to-head matchups with these two teams if they want to usurp their positions on top of the rankings.

There shouldn't be any worry about the team not being ready, Rossillo, their senior player, assures that the team will be moving in the right direction.

The ECAC Division II Metro Championship was a game of who could shutout their opponent. All three games of the four-team tournament ended with the losing team falling to score a goal.

To open the tournament Montclair State, who was the second seed, shutout Stockton College, the third seed, 1-0 in double overtime.

The game was scoreless until Steph Sabaliauskas finally put one of her five shots past Stockton goalie Sarah Miller. Sabaliauskas' five shots led the Red Hawks who took 18 in the first 30 minutes of the first period against Stockton.

In the other semi-final game, top seeded New York University shutout Stevens Tech, 1-0 in the final game of the four-team tournament.

The game was scoreless until Steph Sabaliauskas finally put one of her five shots past Stockton goalie Sarah Miller. Sabaliauskas' five shots led the Red Hawks who took 18 in the first 30 minutes of the first period against Stockton.

The Red Hawks, who finished third in the NJAC with a 13-5-3 overall record and 6-2-1 at home, finished the season with a 7-10-2 mark. The win brought the Red Hawks final record to 7-10-2. The win brought the Red Hawks final record to 7-10-2.

The mens team hopes success is ahead of them. They are an extremely young team and lose just seven players out of 28 on the team roster.

The players have nothing to take from this sub-par season but positive thoughts about their future.

They tailed on a quarterback sneak, missed a field goal, and turned the ball over twice in that span. "We had a lack of communication on all levels offensively," said Collins, who put the blame on himself. "It doesn't make a difference if it was Jersey City, Rowan or Mount Union today. We didn't play well."

MSU's only other score of the half came when Collins went to the air four times in a row, and connected with fullback Scott Wisniewski on a 12-yard touchdown strike to put MSU up 14-0. But Collins threw a costly interception and Dates returned the ball 33 yards for a touchdown with 39 seconds left in the half, silencing the crowd and the Red Hawks. Sinclair fumbled on the second play of the drive. The Red Hawks capitalized. Collins lobbed the ball to freshman wide receiver Jasper Hankins who made a beautiful diving catch for a 13-yard touchdown reception. It was the first touchdown of Hankins' career. The Red Hawks were thinking about Rowan last week before playing the Gothic Knights and this week they have been thinking about winning a third straight NJAC Championship when they play the Prof on Saturday.

MSU's defense has stepped up its game, forcing 14 turnovers. While MSU's offense was struggling with plays and routes, the defense was on top of its game causing six turnovers and allowing NJCU one score.

MSU's only other score of the half was on a 27th touchdown pass of the year by quarterback Greg Collins. Collins completed 15 of 30 passes for 244 yards in the afternoon. MSU added one final score on Brent Grablacko's 24-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

On a day in which the offense faltered, there was no shortage of communication on the defensive side of the ball. MSU's defense picked up the team, playing one of its best games of the season forcing six turnovers. Over the last three games, MSU's defense has stepped up its game, forcing 14 turnovers. Co-captain and outside linebacker Omar Lucas was happy with how the defensive performance he and his teammates put forth. "We were definitely out there as a whole unit and everybody working together," said Lucas. "Early in the season, I don't think we were communicating as much. Now we're definitely communicating more and definitely helping."

MSU cornerback Ros Lee was outstanding. Collecting nine tackles and intercepting a pass to earn NJAC Defensive Player of the Week honors. Robert Davis also continued his fine play with nine tackles. The Red Hawks were thinking about Rowan last week before playing the Gothic Knights and this week they have been thinking about winning a third straight NJAC Championship when they play the Prof on Saturday.

MSU's offense was struggling with plays and routes, the defense was on top of its game causing six turnovers and allowing NJCU one score.

Time-Out

Game Set Back As Ref's Weren't Told of New Game Time

By Andy Seyka

Assistant Sports Editor

The start of last Saturday's football game between MSU and New Jersey City was delayed an hour and a half because of a breakdown in communication between the Eastern Collegiate Football Officials Association and the officials scheduled to work the game. The game was originally scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. on October 11; the game time was moved to 12:30 in the afternoon after the game time was changed, the ECFOA was informed of the change.

"The assigner was notified," Head Football Coach Rick Giancola said. "The response back from the assigner had an October 10 date saying that the change was made. We received a confirmation form for the game to be played at 12:30 with all the officials assigned. Apparently someone who was supposed to contact the officials for the change was never notified.

"None of the guys, who worked the game tonight knew that the game was changed."

The delay upset the game day routine of both teams.

"(The routine) is disrupted from the standpoint that you expect to go out on the field at a certain time." Giancola said.

When the game finally did start at 2 p.m., the Red Hawks played sloppy on the offensive side of the ball, committing five turnovers despite beating NJCU, 31-7. To their credit MSU did not use the delay as an excuse for their lackluster play against NJCU. "I don't think it would have changed how we played," Giancola said. "We have a routine, but I don't think the delay had an effect on how we played."

The Red Hawks were thinking about winning a third straight NJAC Championship when they play the Prof on Saturday.
Field Hockey Champs
Breaking Records Along the Way

By Meredith Quick
Staff Writer

The MSU Field Hockey team finished their season with an ECAC Championship title, their first since 1990. The Red Hawks had a record-breaking season. Senior Co-Captain Laura Popes had the most goals in a season and also most points tallied in a season. Senior Co-Captain Janel Bertini had the most assists in a season. As a team they had the longest winning streak, and beat The College of New Jersey for the first time since 1980. They finished with a final record of 15-4.

The championship game started with the desire and will for the title. The senior’s four years of practice and devotion has led them to their ultimate goal, post season play. With 3:06 left in the first half, sophomore Lea Smith scored with an assist from Senior Andrea Ulicny.

“It felt good to give our team a lead before the end of the half,” Smith said. In the second half the Red Hawks held off Catholic with a solid defense, leaving MSU with a championship game win of 1-0. Winkle added another shut out to her record as well as the tournament’s MVP Award. Winkle tallied nine saves making 166 saves for the season.

“Records have been broken and dreams come true. All the hard work has proved to achievement of greatness. The game against Catholic was the final one for seniors Ali Bellino, Janel Bertini, Laura Popes, Andrea Ulicny, and Donna Wixted.”

Sloppy Victory Over NJCU As Team Looks to Rowan

Collins, Offense - No Communication
Defense - All on the Same Note

By Eli Gelman
Assistant Sports Editor

If this is how they're going to play against Rowan, the Red Hawks might as well stay home this Saturday. Clearly looking ahead to Rowan, MSU rarely executed on offense and turned the ball over five times, but still managed to blow out New Jersey City 31-7. That the Red Hawks controlled the game despite playing what Co-captain and quarterback Ed Collins called their "worst game of the year" is just another sign of how good this team is.

"It's nice to take a win 31-7 and be angry with the way you played. I think that says a little something about our resiliency," said MSU Head Football Coach Rick Giancolina. "But we certainly didn't play very well early on. There's no doubt about that. Mark "Money" Hall, like most of the Red Hawks, was not on the money in this game, fumbling two punt returns before leaving the game with a strained quadriceps. Hall's mishap on Duane Dates' punt in the first quarter left NJCU with a chance to take an early lead. But NJCU place kicker Robert Bing missed a 32-yard field goal and the Red Hawks got a second chance. Collins floated a 49-yard pass over NJCU defensive back Troy Winds' to Ed Collins' Courtship.

The Red Hawks got within the Gothic Knights' 27-yard line five more times in the half, but only scored on one of their trips.

66 ... IT DOESN'T MATTER IF IT WAS JERSEY CITY, ROWAN, OR MOUNT UNION TODAY. WE DIDN'T PLAY WELL.
